ALL THE STATES AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Many Beautiful Pavilions and Pretentious Buildings Show Forth the Enterprise of American Commonwealths.

A beautiful city has grown up among the trees on the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. It has nothing to do with the immense exhibit palaces, but is a living space by itself. The houses in this new city are of various styles of architecture. Some are palatial in size and splendor, others are of a more homely cast and inviting. Nearly all states have so many notable and historic buildings that commissioners have decided that the new city might be called the City of the States, from the houses included in it are the state buildings of the Fair.

The city is not compact, but somewhat straggling, as befits the prominence of the view. Yet there is a striking suggestive of a Stringtown-on-the-Pike about the city, for the grounds surrounding each of the houses are beautified with gardens typical of the state represented.

All the states are to be represented at the World's Fair. This means a great deal, a shining triumph for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. It gives furnishes another illustration of the fact that this Exposition's completeness is the marvel of the age.

Fifty-one states, territories and possessions of the United States, have taken the steps necessary to participate in the World's Fair on an important scale. But not all have built outside the fold at the last report, and not all have made a well defined movement in favor of being represented at the fair with buildings and exhibits. New Hampshire is the last state, and Delaware are the states reported to. Is New Hampshire a fund for participation is being raised principally by patriotic citizens, so that in the event of legislative control the commonwealth may be represented. The states and territories are:

Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Indian Territory, Philippines, Porto Rico.

Of these there will be 26 prominent county exhibits provided by special appropriation of county funds.

The City of the States presents a picture of surpassing beauty. Nature has done much to aid in the creation of the picture. Never before has the exposition been able to grant such advantageous sites for state buildings. The buildings are situated on a plateau which seventy-five feet higher than the level ground to the north upon which most of the main exhibit palaces. There are hills and valleys here and there, enabling the landscapists to lay out a most delightful pattern of roads and terraces and lawns.

The smallest of the state buildings is that of Arizona, which stands near the southeastern entrance to the grounds. It is one of the largest in that of Missouri, from the dome of which it is and will remain the very finest view of the Exposition may be enjoyed. The building is a palace in the Italian renaissance, costing in all, but at a cost of $105,000. Near by is the reproduction of the Cabildo at New Orleans, in which the Louisiana Purchase transfer ceremonies took place—Louisiana's state building. Ohio has a clubhouse of highly ornate design, in the architecture of the French renaissance. Illinois is prominent with a massive pretentious structure, with wide verandas and a commanding position.

A description of each of the state buildings, with any detail, would more than fill a newspaper column. It is not possible here to hint at some of the most striking structures. California, for instance, has reproduced in exact size the famous old La Rabida Mission, Connecticut presents a copy of the Sigourney residence at Hartford, home of the poetess Lydia Huntley Sigourney in her time. This building is one of the finest specimens of purely colonial architecture now standing. The New Kentucky Home, from the Kentucky Historic, is a handsome cabin house that would make quite a sensation among Fifth avenue, New York society. The Indiana building, a copy of the original old house which Jefferson Davis first lived and occupied many years, is reproduced in Mississippi. Its wide verandas or galleries give it a most brilliant appearance. Washington's headquarters at Morristown, N. J., are reproduced by New Jersey. Virginia constitutes Mount Vernon, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

The state of Washington exhibits a structure of unique design. It is called the Forestry, and stories high, built of wood from Washington forests. The building is octagonal, and the roof diagonal timbers rising from the ground and meeting in an apex about 60 feet in the air, above which is built an observatory, from which a splendid view of the Exposition may be had. An elevator will carry visitors to the observatory.

New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Arkansas, Colorado, Indiana, Virginia, Illinois, Wisconsin, Texas and many other states have represented in buildings which cannot fail to arouse admiration. The Texas building is in the shape of a five pointed star, an appropriate idea for the big Lone Star State. It has a magnificent mansion, with classic porticoes and a central tower containing an observatory chamber. The Kansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma each uphold the growing reputation of the Sunflower for enterprise and fertility of resources.

The report that M. Witte is protesting against the despatch correspondence being adopted by Russia against the Plans, Poles, Jews and other subjects of the czar who are fortify the Russian or outsiders that he is the most sagacious and fearless statesman that the Russian empire has produced in a century. It was the war party, headed by Alexieff, that discredited Witte source of the Russian Far East. He is not always the truest friend of his country. The man who dares to point out a unfavorable truth, even at the expense of personal popularity, is worth a hundred time servers.

Admiral Dewey is not usually regarded as a humorist, but here is one anecdote that shows he can use a sense of fine quality of irony: He heard that Germany's new vessels were to be named respectively Tale and Harvard. "Good idea," he declared. "Let us have some of the same evidence of pride in our institutions." Why not name the next one the College of Bondsmen and Surgeons and then give the Massachusetts boat one of Technology?"

Student's Amateur Plays.

Barrington has witnessed 5 amateur plays this spring all of which have been amusing and well given, but without undue partiality it seems that the best success was scheived by the high school students last Friday night when the graduating class presented "A Bag of Monkeys" and "An Irish Idyll" in Kelly hall.

Essential features of dramatic finish are prompt entrances, quick taking of the cue, speaking with one's lines, distinct enunciation and modulated voice; mime with a natural poise and graceful movement. Through their own merits combined with the skill in teaching drilling of their assistor, Miss Gordon, the pupils who took part accomplished creditable worthy work in these attributes.

The different situations in the forces were laughable and amusing and were developed by good facial expression and clear aside remarks. Those who participated were, Misses Sadie Hincks, Emma Pomeroy, Metina Wheaton, Louise Boehmer, Rose Kampert, Della Bennett, Ella Gooden, Elmer Gieske, Elmer Peckham.

The leading parts were played by Sadie Hincks and Elmer Gieske, but equal credit is due throughout the cast for most acting ability. And to Miss Gordon is due the credit for the choice of individuals for certain parts, each one seemed especially adapted to the character assigned. Proceeds will assist to defray graduating expenses and amounted to $20.00.

Compiled With the Law.

With a top-to-date automatic fire escape stairway. The steel stairs are suspended from front of the building, by cable, and hinged to a steel platform projecting from a central window to the main assembly room. The device is the same as adopted by Chicago theatres and is said to be superior onto of the law in that city. It is substantial, perfectly reliable, and affords an excellent exit. The doors at main entrance have been made to swing outward, and the hall put in condition to comply in with the state law and village ordinance.

The hall is now as safe as it can be made and some need for use to attend entertainments held therein.

The over abundant unemployed labor of the cities should be transferred to the farms, but how this changing of unnatural conditions is to be effected is a question far from solution.

MRS. McINTOSH'S CLASS

In Elocution Entertains a Large and Appreciative Audience.

The costume recital given at the Baptist Church Tuesday evening by members of Mrs. McIntosh's class in elocution and dramatic culture, proved to be a very pleasant affair. Nearly three hundred invitations had been sent out to relatives and friends of the pupils and the church was crowded with an interested audience. The pupils were ably assisted by musical numbers from Misses Costello, Tuttle, Myrtle and Mabel Wood, Mr. A. C. Lines and two costume solos by Miss Ethel Kenton, who came out from Chicago to assist in the evening's program. The part of the program which was especially enjoyed by the younger people present were two pantomimes "Maud Muller" and the "Village Serving Society" which were most admiringly acted out. The readings were of much credit to the pupils and to their teacher, and showed careful training. Mrs McIntosh endeavors in her lessons to make of her pupils students who can read a selection and give to an audience, life-like, real portrayal of the characters represented, and to encourage all artificialness and affectedness in connection with reading. The close attention given to the two hours program showed that the evening's work was appreciated and enjoyed.

Court of Honor Memorial Day.

Last Sunday at ten o'clock fifty members of the Court of Honor assembled in the down town square where they left the Woodmen hall and formed a green cemetery for the purpose of decorating the graves of deceased members, Dr. C. H. Kendall and Joseph Lamey.

An address was offered by Clark McIntosh in which he paid tribute to the dead and praised the organization.

A hymn, which is given in the lodge ritual was sung, the Woodmen hymn, number of pep pie then drove to Palatine to visit the grave of Charles Hostetter.

Third Anniversary Marked.

Three years ago Mayflower Camp, Royal Neighbors of Aurora, was organized here with 22 members. Sterday the lodge has grown in a town of many lodges to a membership of 100 enrolled. Within a year the by-law requiring Neighbors to be near relative of Woodmen has been declared void so that a still larger increase in numbers is expected. Meetings where held in Schoede's hall up the time that the Masons and Woodmen opened their hall in the auditory lodges, the Royal Neighbors and Knights of Pythias. Mayflower Camp has given a continuous program of public social, entertainments and concerts which have delighted members and friends. These have been popular and satisfactory, gaining for the ladies the name of having true cordiality, sincere friendliness and the enviable reputation of being excellent social entertainers.

Monday evening the "Mayflowers" with friends gathered in Woodmen hall to enjoy the celebration of the third anniversary and twas greatly enjoyed. Fraternal loyalty is always shown by unique decorations in the Lodge colors which this time was a pretty idea in purple and white and the hall was prettily dressed for the occasion.

A pond was made on a large white draped table around whose edge leaves formed a bank on whose surface sail ed a boat "the Mayflower" with its sail flying. A looking glass for water reflected the dreamy state of time paper and electric bulbs and popular of fancy cut hung from the canopy to the table corners. Beautiful spring violets fastened with ribbons and with white ribbon were at each plate where a dainty luncheon of ice cream and cake was served.

Most entertaining and beautiful music filled a program further made pleasing by Miss Johnson's popular readings. The Young Ladies orchestra gave charming selections, Misses Beulah Otis and Elsie Costello played piano solos in their cultivated rendition. Mrs. Frank Willmarth and Arthur Schroeder sang with all the sweetness of their naturals and appreciatal training. Fred Kirschner presided.

Odd Fellows' Memorial Day.

Sunday June 12th, the local lodge of Odd Fellows will hold memorial service for deceased brothers.

The program of the day is not yet complete but will include services at some house of worship in the forenoon and parade to Evergreen cemetery in the afternoon.

Speaking of Spots.

Science has found another scapegoat. The poor microbe has had to stand for every sort of human ill, except appendicitis and the green tremens, which are so plainly chargeable to alcohol. Now that the overburdened bacillus escaped the blame. Now another prolific source has been discovered for the cause of the rice. It is the sun spot. Just as now the face of the orb of day is said to have a dozen spots with small pox. As a consequence the sun could earth has had to bear all sorts of calamities, from earthquakes to scientific pipe dreams is by no means the least. The first of the bunch of ills which the sun spots are said to be fertile eruptions on old Sol is the weather. Now, the condition of the weather, in spots on the sun, or not in spots, is one that is not been exactly ideal this season, and if science can prove that the blame lies on the sun it will relieve the weather man of a large number of anathemas and curses which are hurled at his director.

The pimples on the features of the day god can be seen with the naked eye. Any one who has a proper regard for the feelings of his god, however, will not leave it naked during the process. The sun reserve being spied and stared at unless the inspector is properly veiled by means of a smoked glass or a piece of green goggles.

The cause of solar freckles is not known. Possibly they originate on the retouching process, the rays from the rebound being equal to that of the blow. The sun causes freckles on the faces of the men who are at work or forced to take a dose of his own medicine. This may not be strictly scientific but it is a good guess at least. We believe science says the sun spot is caused by a whirlwind of gas or a hurricane of gas. The whirlwind of gases is always deplorable, even in congress. But that a gaseous whirlwind should be so powerful as to disarrange the climate of the earth, to say nothing of the tempers of the inhabitants thereof, is carrying the thing too far.

At any rate, this scientific theory is a good one. It gives the weather man a large number of possible reproaches, and the microbe needs the rest, as its was already overworked when the sun station was suffering. Further, it gives the genus homo a line on what ails him. If there is a sudden attack of epidemic or of the stock market or of the weather, it can be charged to the sun spot. The sun spot theory relieves account for some of the unpleasant things that are happening to be blamed on the sun. Scientists have admirals and generals of a great number of the responsibilities could be shifted. The sun would not mind and could not help himself if he did.

In anything the woes of the world to the environment on the sun's cuticle the scientists have hit the spot.
