OLDEST FORD DRIVER

J. M. Crow, 89, of Ethel, Miss., the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi, traversed the historic old Natchez Trace in a covered wagon eighty-seven years ago.

As rugged today at 89 as the age in American history he so picturesquely typifies, J. M. Crow of Ethel, Miss., is the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi and one of the oldest in the United States.

When as a babe of two years he rode with his parents in one of a train of 30 covered wagons out of Cobb county, Georgia, into Mississippi, the old Natchez Trace followed by the brave little band was still infested by the swashbuckling ruffians whose bloody outrages gave that era its place in this country's history as "the outlaw years."

One of his vivid memories is hearing, as a boy of six, the news of General Scott's victorious assault on the heights of Chapultepec which ended the Mexican War in 1847, and his proudest memory is of honorable service as a Confederate soldier during the Civil War. When the southern cause collapsed, Crow was compelled to trudge 400 miles on foot to the old homestead at Ethel where he settled down to rear a family.

In the intervening years he has seen the lumbering stagecoach give way to the fleet automobile and the comfortable motorbus, the soggy gumbo and rough corduroy roads of his childhood to the wide, paved roads of today, and although he was long past middle age before the modern automobile became commonplace he is as enthusiastic a driver as youngsters who can boast less than one-quarter of his years.

Five generations of Crow's family are frequently seen together in his Model A Ford, the second of its type Crow has owned and driven.

Gov. Louis L. Emerson delivered an address here, March 30, in honor of the one-hundredth anniversary of the McCormick reaper, and paid a glowing tribute to the memory of its inventor, Cyrus Hall McCormick. "The memory of the struggles of the like Cyrus Hall McCormick," he said, "should shame us in any weakness which we might show today. We have been blessed that our life has been cast in such a golden age of progress. Truly we have a great nation, a glorious past, and a future of unlimited possibilities."

"Regardless of clamor from within or without," the board of pardons and paroles is determined to continue its set policy of giving each prisoner inmate who comes before it, a fair, impartial and unbiased consideration of his case." W. C. Jones, chairman of the pardon board, issued this announcement, and added that the board does not intend to let the prisoners fix their sentences nor sit in on the deliberation of the board. It came after convict witnesses before a legislative committee investigating the riots at Joliet had registered complaints.

In an attempt to keep alfalfa weed out of Illinois, Gov. Louis L. Theory in Dispute

The quantum theory is the theory that radiation from a body is emitted only in discrete units, called quanta, and according to some forms of the theory, that absorption occurs in the same discontinuous manner. This theory is now widely accepted by scientists. It has, however, been criticized by Frank Wigglesworth Clark—Washington Star.

Feature-Length Film

There are about 7,000 feet of film in a feature-length photoplay. To produce this footage it is usually necessary to take 100,000 to 150,000 feet of negative. The 7,000 feet of the finished feature is made up of many short scenes placed together. There are as many as 200 to 500 scenes in the average film.

MANY PRAIRIE FIRES BLAZING IN COUNTY

While forest fires have been destroying valuable property and endangering lives in Wisconsin during the driest April on record, Lake County and other parts of northern Illinois have smoldered under an autumn haze from numerous prairie fires burning off the dry grass left from last fall.

In the northwest part of the county, fires endangered the summer home of Tony Cernak, Chicago mayor and scores of other cottages in the section. Fox Lake, Antioch and Ingleside firemen resorted to backfires to control the spreading flames. Dozens of fires were reported in this area.

Grass fires also endangered the Cedar Crest Country club, and the summer home of Fred Lundin, well known politician, but were extinguished by Antioch firemen before the buildings were ignited.

Lake Forest firemen fought a 40-acre fire which spread from Fort Sheridan through the Sacred Heart academy grounds, and burning over a part of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick estate.

Nancy Carroll at Catlow Saturday

John Crawford's fans sent such a bombardment of mail applause for her dancing scenes in her former pictures that she is responding with an encore in "Dance Fools, Dance," her new starring vehicle which will play The Catlow theatre tonight and Friday.

In the new film Miss Crawford not only performs a new ballroom tango with Lester Vail, her leading man, but does a daring solo dance in the underworld night club scene in a costume made entirely of tiny silver mirrors.

Included in the cast are Cliff Edwards, William Bakewell, Natalie Moorhead, and Joan Marsh.

Scores of children play minor but interesting roles in Nancy Carroll's latest dramatic offering, "Stolen Heaven," coming to The Catlow theatre this Saturday night.

Something of interest for Barrington children will be the Cracker Jack Party in connection with the Saturday night show at The Catlow.

Nearly a thousand extras were employed for spectacular scenes in "New Moon," pretentious co-starring vehicle for Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore, which will be the feature at The Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday night.

Despite the oft heard contention that large groups of extras are difficult to handle in a production with music, the director contrived to depict armies in battle; trained his cameras and microphones on hundreds of dancers in a huge palace ballroom and in particular outfit himself in a vivid scene in which Tibbett rides and sings to the head of 250 cavaliers who form a rousing male chorus.

The story is a romantic drama of love, adventure and intrigue with music woven in as integral details of the situations themselves. The original Sigmund Romberg songs from the stage production were retained including the memorable "Lover Come Back to Me."

Supporting Tibbett and Miss Moore is an extensive cast headed by Adolphe Menjou, Roland Young, Gus Shy and Emily Fitzroy.

Freddie March, who plays the leading male role in "The Royal Family of Broadway," also played the same part on the stage before acquiring a contract to perform in Paramount pictures. This picture, which comes to The Catlow theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday nights, is a satire of a prominent New York stage family. Just which family this is, it wouldn't be diplomatic to say.

Among the better known of the "royal stage families" are the Terrys, the Robertsons, the Irvings, the Forbess, the Robertsons, the Drews, the Booths, and of course, the Barrymores. Suffice to say the "take-off" is so obvious that "The Royal Family" has the entire nation chuckling.

Because he wished to do his Saturday marketing and it was a bother having a prisoner around, the chief of police of Rosebank, N. J., a jailless town, handed an arrested man a warrant and sent him to the chief of police at Orange, N. J.

Wisconsin Coach to Speak at Banquet

Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, famous coach of the University of Wisconsin basketball team, inventor of the short pass offense and four man defense, is to be the chief speaker at the annual high school athletic banquet Thursday evening, April 23.

The affair is sponsored by the "B" club of the local high school and is open to the general public.

The boys feel that they are fortunate in getting "Doc" for this affair. He has coached more championship teams while at Wisconsin than any other big ten coach and his teams are nearly always up among them at the finish if they are not on top. This year he had to rebuild his team three different times and still had a strong team at the end of the season.

Besides his ability as a coach, Dr. Meanwell has a reputation as a speaker. He is of extra interest to Barrington fans because one of the prominent sophomores on his squad this year was Ray Wichman, a former Barrington high school player.

All men interested in athletics have been invited to attend.

After carefully considering the qualifications of the various candidates for Village Trustee the League recommends and endorses Earl Hatje, Norman T. Maxon, and Charles G. McCray. These candidates are all tax-paying home owners of unquestionable honesty and ability, and are vitally interested in the betterment of our local government.

Mr. Hatje, a life long resident of Barrington, is a trusted executive of the Chicago Crime Commission. Mr.

Maxon is a consulting engineer and architect whose best known local work is the new First National Bank. Mr. McCray is a sales manager at the Jewel Tea Company and a competent business executive. During the past year he has ably served as chairman of the Barrington Relief Committee.

The experience, intelligence, and ability of these three men will make them invaluable members of the Village Government, and will insure against a repetition of the carelessness and incompetence that has marked the handling of the Village affairs during the recent past.

The League feels that the election of these able candidates will bring to the tax-payers a prompt and economical solution of the many Village problems, stop the unnecessary and expensive sewer litigation, and place the business affairs of the Village on a strictly business basis.

"President and Board of Trustees Barrington—For file and record: In the test of the sewage treatment plant at Barrington by Engineer Gross and Downer, August 5-7, 1930, and enclosing a copy for your information and records.

Need Settling Tank

"You will note that a good quality effluent was being produced and that there was no noticeable past of present pollution practically beyond the village property. This is a very good showing considering that there is no secondary settling tank. If and when a secondary settling tank is made available in accordance with plans for which a permit has previously been issued by this Board, the solids that were discharged by a slight undocking of the filters during a fair will be retained."

The report as given was generally satisfactory except where it mentioned storm waters which do it, reveals in terms with complete proper functioning of the sewer.

25 At Bird-Club Meeting Saturday

The Barrington Bird club met in regular session Friday evening, April 16 in Julie's Tavern, with Mrs. Clifford Stout and Miss May Boyer as hostesses. Twenty-five members and guests were present to enjoy the instructive program given by an interesting speaker, Mr. William Pretzel of Lake Zurich and James Plagge.

The meeting opened with two vocal selections by Miss Kathryn Coe, "Lullaby" by Brahms and "The Bird in a Rose" by Elise Horrocks, accompanied at the piano by Miss Marian Jura. Mrs. Pretzel then spoke on "Winter Feeding" and told various ways she had employed to attract wild birds and of many unique experiences she had had with chickadees, nuthatches, downy woodpeckers, bluejays and others.

Discuss Bird Houses
James Plagge then spoke on "Bird Houses," naming the requisites of housing facilities and stating the kinds, their required size and location and manner of placement.

He asked for an informal round table discussion and a general interest was shown by an interchange of ideas in both his and Mrs. Pretzel's subjects.

Pictures of birds were then thrown on the screen, the audience identifying each one as it was shown.

Following the program, delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social hour enjoyed.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Chocolate Syrup—To make chocolate syrup mix a third of a cup of boiling water. Stir constantly until the boiling point is reached, reduce the heat, and boil for five minutes. Less sugar may be added if this proves too sweet.

Egg Concoction
Fry the desired amount of sliced breakfast bacon in a hot skillet; remove to hot platter. Beat one egg light; add two tablespoons of cold mashed potatoes, celery seed and salt to taste, and enough milk to moisten. Shape and fry a light brown in the bacon fat. Serve on the crisp bacon sides.

Lemon Tart
Bring to the boil one cupful of sugar, two heaping tablespoons of butter, three eggs, well beaten, and the grated rind and juice of a large lemon. Cook slowly while stirring until the mixture is in the consistency of honey, cool, fill tart shells, and cover with meringue or whipped cream.

Jellied Pineapple
Mix the juice of two oranges and two lemons with a quart of grated pineapple, sweeten heavily, and add a package of gelatin which has been soaked and dissolved. Mold, chill, and serve as soon as possible as the pineapple contains a ferment which softens gelatin.

When a motion picture theatre at Emporia, Kan., installed scales at the box office and announced that all women weighing 160 pounds or more would be admitted free, nearly 21 tons of women got in for nothing.

Iceland Althing First of World Parliaments

Iceland in June, 1930, celebrated two great events: the one hundred nineteenth birthday of Jon Sigurdsson, its George Washington, who wrote home rule from Denmark in 1874; the thousandth anniversary of the althing, oldest parliament in the world.

A century before the battle of Hastings, 850 years before our own government was founded, the franklins (free landowners) of Iceland were living under a constitution (the constitution of Unio) and a regularly constituted lawmaking body. The althing met in midsummer and was the occasion for great feasts and merry-making, as well as numerous bruises, lacerations and concussions.

What political life and law were like in the old days is recorded in Icelandic sagas and law codes. The althing did not function perfectly, nor did the judicial system which was set up, the real governing being done by the various chieftains; nevertheless, the althing forms a magnificent tradition. It looks down from its lofty eminence with paternal solicitude for such youthful bodies as the English house of commons and the United States congress.

At last!—
a laundry that washes
your clothes whiter
—safely—using only
Rinso, the safe granulated soap, and pure,
rain-soft water.

"Did you ever see such whiteness?"

"Ruth Brooks dropped in to see me the other day just as I was opening my laundry bundle.

"Did you ever see such whiteness?" she exclaimed delightedly, as she caught sight of the snowy sheets and tablecloths, and the gleaming white pile of freshly laundered clothes.

"Oh, my laundry work looks like that every week now," I answered. "My laundry uses Rinso, and you know there's no other soap washes the clothes so white as that—and Rinso is so safe, that I've been sending colored things for months and months and they look just as bright now as when they were new."

You, too, will be enthusiastic over the whiteness of clothes washed our careful way with Rinso.

Everything receives ten changes of filtered, rain-soft water. First, the clothes are swished gently clean in several changes of foamy Rinso suds, then they are rinsed, many times, to remove the last traces of soap.

Your wash is safe, here. And the cost of our careful service is reasonable. May we serve you—this week?

"Most Valuable Player" Meets
Most Valuable Coach

After baseball, Hazen ("Kid") Cuyler, star outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, is perhaps most interested in boys. That is how this picture happened to be taken.

Cuyler's home is Flint, Michigan. Just before starting for his team's training quarters at Catalina Island, Cuyler dropped over to the neighborhood city of Lansing, where his friend Jim Crowley, of Notre Dame's Michigan State College, is coach at basketball.

Crowley had arranged a surprise party for Cuyler, inviting 200 local boys to meet the baseball star whom popular voting named as the National League's most valuable player in 1930. The boys brought with them the extremely valuable master model Napoleon coach, which they are reproducing in the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild competition for $50,000. Cuyler, who has known lots of coaches but never one like this, is shown admiring the model. Then they all had dinner together and attended the Michigan State-Loyola basketball game.

Boys in every state in the Union are building these replicas. Four university scholarships and 98 trips to Detroit, with all expenses paid, head the long list of awards.

Rug-beating days are here and Mrs. Trigger has made a discovery

Every spring when the open-season for housecleaning arrives, Mrs. Trigger turns into a feminine Sherlock Holmes. She uses a magnifying glass to track down dirt—according to Mr. Trigger.

This year she didn't change her tactics but she did make a discovery. She got her first clue Sunday morning. "Look at those curtains," she commanded.

Mr. Trigger looked. He half expected to find that they had turned a different color. Actually they hadn't changed at all and that was what Mrs. Trigger meant. She knew how sooty and sad-looking curtains usually are in the spring.

The Trigger's gas heat is making the whole job of housecleaning easier. Rugs aren't tracked up with coal-dust from the basement. The woodwork hardly needs to be scrubbed. But best of all, the house won't have to be repapered this spring.

Mrs. Trigger's discovery was made months ago by Topsy, the Trigger cat. Topsy spends her nights in the basement and has found that it is as clean as any room upstairs.

Besides being as clean as can be, gas heat has many other features to recommend it. If you'll phone your Public Service Store, we'll send a heating engineer to tell you about them. Now is a good time to change to gas heat. Under our special spring installation offer you can postpone monthly payments until next fall.

TO CURB THE SLAUGHTER

In a further effort to curb the appalling slaughter by automobile accidents, compulsory brake inspection legislation is pending in three state legislatures at present. Companion bills providing for official annual inspection of brakes have been introduced in New York, and each motorist would be required to have a certificate signifying that his brakes conform to the law. Minnesota and New Jersey have similar legislation pending.

California, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia now have laws on this subject but the remainder of the states must depend upon voluntary cooperation by motorists and the sales ability of brake service stations.

One leading brake manufacturer has tried to assist in this movement by offering a one-hundred dollar accident insurance policy free to motorists who relin with the company's product and agree to have brakes inspected at regular intervals for a year.

It will be interesting to watch the accident rate in states where compulsory brake inspection laws become effective. Proper enforcement should have the effect of reducing accidents, and if so there is little doubt that other states will follow their example.

We are killing 62,000 people a year in the United States in automobile accidents, and wounding 800,000 more. It is concluded that bad brakes, so easy to avoid, are one of the most prolific causes of this cruel total of deaths and maimings.

NELLIE BLY RECALLED

A flood of newspaper reminiscences has been called forth by the recent ending of the eventful career of the New York World by its being merged with the Telegram. Among them is the story of Nellie Bly, sent by the World on a record-breaking trip around the globe, in 1890, retold by E. S. Van Zile, who was then an editorial writer on the staff of that newspaper.

At one of the conferences which Joseph Pulitzer held regularly with his editors, one of them called attention to Jules Verne's novel, "Around the World in Eighty Days," which was then very popular, and in which "Phileas Fogg," the principal character, made a fictitious journey in keeping with the title of the book.

The young editor, Angus Wright, suggested that Mr. Pulitzer send Nellie Bly, a World reporter whose real name was Cochran, on a trip around the world in an attempt to beat the time of Verne's hero. Pulitzer agreed, and Nellie Bly eagerly embraced her big chance for fame, and shortly set out on her great adventure. She circled the globe in 72 days, 6 hours and 11 minutes, breaking Fogg's imaginary record by nearly eight days.

According to Mr. Van Zile, the reception which greeted Nellie Bly on her return to New York was almost equal to that accorded Lindbergh after his New to Paris flight.

Her great feat was the sensation of the day, and she is still remembered as a pioneer among women who have attained fame through courage and physical endurance of the highest order.

DOES WEALTH CONTROL?

The statement is frequently made that men of great wealth possess an undue influence in our government and it is even sometimes asserted that they control the government.

Such statements seem to overlook some rather obvious facts. If multi-millionaires controlled our government, it is probable that they would have arranged the income tax that no family having an income of less than $3,500 shall pay a federal income tax, while figures covering 1930 income tax payments recently published, show that people with incomes of a million dollars a year pay nearly twenty percent of their incomes in federal taxes; doubtless they pay as much more in local and state taxes.

If the multimillionaires were "running the government," it is to be assumed that they are so philanthropic that they have ordered these graduated burdens put on themselves? Would taxes of all sorts have doubled during the past few years? Would the soldiers' bonus bill have passed? Would a half billion dollar fund have been voted for farm relief?

It is probable that half the bills passed by Congress and our state legislatures during the last few years have imposed some sort of burden or restraint on property; such bills as an organized property interest would have opposed. What, then, is the justification for the repeated assertion that the rich run the country?

CONNECTICUT JUSTICE

Peace officers and a court in Hartford county, Connecticut, recently set a record which deserves high commendation in a land where "the law's delay" is a standing reproach.

Three young men in that county carried out their plans to rob a bank by hiding in the building overnight and forcing the cashier to open the vault for them upon his arrival next morning. They obtained $13,000 and escaped in a fast automobile.

An alarm was broadcast with the result that all three of the robbers were caught in a short time. The unusual part of the story is that they were tried, convicted, sentenced and had entered upon their prison terms within thirty hours after their crime was committed.

It is generally conceded by criminologists that the most effective method of reducing crime is to make its punishment swift and sure. Unfortunately, our American system of criminal procedure, with its maze of technicalities and opportunities for delay, makes prompt punishment extremely difficult if not impossible.

The Connecticut authorities have set a fine example for the rest of the country, and if such procedure could be adopted generally our crime problem would speedily lose its menacing aspect.

We can't help envying the fellow who is morally and financially independent enough to keep away from people and places that bore him stiff.

The Family Doctor

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M. D.

PERIODICAL EXAMINATIONS

I am 100 per cent in favor of health examinations at regular intervals. It is my purpose in this letter, to persuade you into the same view, if possible.

If you were setting out on a long journey in your automobile, now wouldn't you have an expert look the car over, to see that it is in first-class order, that the trip might be made with maximum ease and comfort? You certainly would, if you used the plainest variety of common sense.

I know of no more important trip than this journey that we call human life; we are all on the highway; and, a happy, successful journey is what of all things we most want.

A contemporary tells us that the doctor is by your side when you are born—and he will probably be there when you pass into the great beyond. And, during your active years, you do your best to keep away from him; you use every nostrum that you can hear of for your ailments that are sure to come—and you send for the doctor only when you are "all shot to pieces," and fear you are going to die!

This seems to me the most inexcusable form of shortsightedness that a sensible man or woman can exercise. Do you wait till your automobile is reduced to a pile of junk before going to the expert repair man? Is your body of less importance than the car? Think about it. It is every man and woman's privilege and DUTY to go to his or her family physician at intervals and be carefully looked over; here is the moment above all others that "a stitch in time saves nine." I am sure nine cases of sickness out of ten would be eliminated, if the rule of periodical examinations were faithfully observed. Wouldn't that be a pay proposition?

A dangerous rise in blood pressure may be nipped in the bud; a venous kidney disorder may be recognized at the earliest stage for cure. I could instance many more; see if you can't.

WITTY AND WISE

Two Arkansas men who killed each other as the result of an argument over a passage of scripture have probably gotten it straight by now.

A contemporary recently made a slip by attributing to Commodore Perry the famous remark, "Don't give up the ship." Now, as everybody knows, it was John Paul Jones who said that. What Commodore Perry really said was "Damn the torpedoes," after hearing of Farragut's telling Gridley to fire if and when ready. This merely for the sake of keeping the record crooked.

Dean Inge says that the only way to be really orthodox is not to think at all. Many find little difficulty in being orthodox.

Missed Sleigh Party but Won Husband

By SIDNEY BLAIR

"OO had you can't go Marge. I did you put in both chicken and ham sandwiches? Sure? Sorry you can't go—we'll tell you all about it tomorrow."

Marjorie watched the other girls pile into the big sleigh. They were going to drive out to the Logans' summer camp, where the boys would be waiting for them, with big open fires blazing and the radio going.

They'd all have supper there, and dance and play games, and drive home in the moonlight, with the bells on the horses' harnesses jingling merrily.

She turned away, biting her upper lip hard to keep from crying. She'd wanted so dreadfully to go. But Mrs. Whitcomb, who owned the tea room, was very strict, and this was Marjorie's day to run the place during the dinner hour, always the busiest part of the day. This was Saturday, too, and Mrs. Whitcomb had a cold, just a slight one—and either she or Marjorie just had to be there on Saturdays.

She had put up their suppers—great baskets full of sandwiches and cakes and all sorts of goodies. If only she could have gone!

Oh, wouldn't it have been fun! He'd been so lovely to Marjorie. His father was the richest man in town, and Carl had a good position of his own, was "a good catch," as Mrs. Whitcomb said—

Marge went about her work courageously, seeing that the candles were lighted on the little tables, that the rose-colored shades were straight, that the water had everything ready, that the men were tipped. One of the waiters sent word at the last minute that he couldn't come; he was ill with influenza.

"That means that I'll have to take his place," Marjorie reflected. "Oh, well, just one more thing," and she tied on a white apron over her simple dark frock. She hated to wait tables!

The tea room was crowded for dinner that evening. There wasn't enough chicken—Mrs. Whitcomb was always advertising chicken dinners for Saturday night and then not buying enough chicken; some of the people didn't want to have roast beef instead; and were awfully disagreeable about it, as if it had been Marjorie's fault that the chicken gave out. And one man moved suddenly and hit Marjorie's elbow just as she was setting a cupful of coffee down in front of him, and the coffee spilled all over his wife, who was furious, and blamed Marjorie. And the cook lost her temper and said she'd leave the next day, and Marjorie's head ached.

She was glad when at last every one had gone. It was late, and few passersby went along the little side street on which the tea room was located. Nearly all the candles were out; only a few were still burning, but the freight made up for them. Marjorie took one last look around, and then sat down before the fire. She could have cried now, when there was nobody around, but somehow she didn't want to. She was too tired.

Some one came into the room. Marjorie sighed. People were always coming in after dinner was over. If you were particularly worn out, and aching if they could have something to eat. Oh, well, she could heat up some beef and vegetables, and there was an apple pie.

"Marjorie!" A man's voice behind her. "Marjorie, aren't you going to speak to me?" She turned quickly to face Carl Waiter.

"Oh, Carl, how do you happen to be here?" she asked. Her voice was shaky with fatigue and excitement. "Come back from the party early?" he answered, sitting down beside her. "I wanted to see you."

"But—but it's too late for us to go now," she said. "To go back there? I mean, you see—"

"Of course it is," he answered. "I came quite awhile ago. I glanced in and saw you waiting on the table."

"Oh!" she exclaimed. She hated to think that he had seen her like that; she must have reminded him of the second maid in his mother's home!

"And, Marjorie, you looked so—well, I stood there staring through the window. Marjorie, I love you. You know it, don't you dear?"

"But—but I work—your father and mother—"

"There'd be mighty good to have you in the family, a girl of your pluck," he answered. "Anyway, I love you so much that it wouldn't make any difference if they did object. I wanted to see you so much tonight, and when you didn't come with the other girls I was so disappointed, then suddenly I realized that I loved you. So I left the first minute I could slip away, and came back here so fast that I must have made a record. Marjorie, are you going to marry me?"

Marjorie's answer was buried in his coat collar.

Clarence Johnson of Chicago became angry and hit Lillian Cullen in the face with a custard pie when she refused to accept a kiss instead of money in exchange for a forgiveness on tag day.

John Grady of Waterloo, N. Y., who was given a jail sentence of 35 days, for driving his automobile while intoxicated, sold the car for $2 and spent the money for tobacco.

Mrs. E. V. Wells of Cambridge, Mass., was granted a divorce when she told the judge that only three times during seven years of married life had her husband taken her to the movies.

Experiences in Early Barrington

By MARCO E. DARNALL

Personal experiences of Garrett H. Landwer, charter resident of Barrington, as told to his son, William M. Landwer.

I was born in Westphalen, Prussia, in 1848, so that I am now 85 years of age. In March, 1852, we left Bremen for United States on a small sail boat and transferred to a larger sail boat, which had three masts, and were eleven weeks on the vessel, and landed at New Orleans. Every Saturday the ship captain gave all of his children prizes. We children used to play on the deck of the ship, and one day one of the trap doors was open through which I fell down to the bottom of the vessel.

When we left New Orleans, we took a small steamboat to St. Louis, and one day they blew the whistle and we all screamed, as we thought that the boiler of the steamboat had burst. From St. Louis they took us on a small canal boat towed by two horses driven by one man, and we all lay on top of the deck and as the canal boat deck was shallow, my folks took me to my grandmother and my sister, Dena, at night, so that I could get out of the canal. We arrived in Chicago on June 15, 1852, and my Uncle Esch from the town of Leyden came with a team and got us, and we stayed with him a short time. Then John Landwer came from Deer Grove and got us, and gave me some sticky candy which was the first candy I ever had in my life, as it was something new to me. We stayed at John Landwer's a short time and then Lembert Effink wanted to us come to his house as he had no housekeeper. Later my father bought a small log house for $7.00 and the farmers moved it on an 80 acre prairie that my uncle, B. H. Landwer, owned. My father bought me a dog. One night the dog was barking quite loudly, and was fighting with a rattlesnake. Father went out and killed the snake which had four rattles on its tail.

My father bought a cow for $7.00. One day the cow was gone, and father and I looked for it and we found her south in the prairie with a herd of cattle. Our neighbor, Brainerd Edgerton, built a small frame house up a forty-acre tract near where now the Barrington camp ground is. It was bricked up between the 2nd studding, and father rented it from him.

One day I saw a big deer with large horns going towards Deer Grove. As I quickly got into the house and peeped through the door, it jumped over a fence. Our neighbor, Hill, killed the deer and that was the first venison I ever ate.

Mr. Edgerton came over sometimes and taught us children English, and when I was seven years old, my sister, Dena, and I went to a little school about where Dr. Richardson's house used to stand. Lester D. Castle was our teacher, and Cassius Beverly was my classmate. He taught me English and I taught him German.

When a Denver, Col., female shop-lifter attempted to get away with merchandise valued at $3, a clerk seized her by the collar of her expensive coat from which the woman suddenly slipped her arms and left the clerk holding the garment.

SIDELIGHTS

By MARCO E. DARNALL

Massachusetts permits highway signs along farms only to advertise products raised or sold on the premises. When a brush manufacturer erected his billboards along farms where hogs were raised he claimed they were within the law because hog bristles were used in his brushes. A court thought his argument was a trifle far-fetched and ordered the signs removed.

It may not be generally known that all of the 120 billion cigarettes produced in the United States last year, as well as those of former years, were wrapped in paper imported from France. Now two American brothers, Louis and William Schweitzer, have learned how to manufacture paper equal to the French product at lower cost, it is said. Their chief difficulty will be to convince cigarette manufacturers that the home produced paper is really just as good.

President Hoover refused to appoint John R. Alpine of New York to be Secretary of Labor some weeks ago upon recommendation of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and criticized Mr. Green for trying to dictate the appointment. Now, however, the President has made Mr. Alpine assistant secretary, in charge of the increased activities of the federal employment service. So, it is assumed that every body is more or less happy.

The last work in ambulances is reported from Winston-Salem, N. C., where a new vehicle of this type is equipped with an electrically heated blanket, an electric fan, a baby basket, hot and cold running water, and a radio set. Perhaps the radio will be used to give the victim a safety-first talk as he is carried to the hospital.

Mrs. George Austin of Astin, Ore., is wondering whether hams really have any significance. On a recent Thursday she fired a new ham named Friday, who went to work on Friday and quit Saturday. Another man applied for the job and was put to work on Monday. When asked his name he said it was Monday.

Fifty-five boxes in six many years is the record of Sir William Jamson Souleby, yet he had one job all that time. He has just retired after serving as secretary to 55 Lord Mayors of London. He was knighted by the late King Edward, but declined a baronetcy recently tendered by King George. He is 70 years old.

After a marriage of 72 years, Mrs. William Walker of Winfield, Eng., advises, "Never argue with a man, for he is always wrong and never let him have to look for a clean pair of socks, for it makes him bad tempered all day."

Merchants Beware of Fake Advertising Solicitors

Several local merchants have complained that transient salesmen of advertising service have claimed to be representatives of the Barrington Review with authority to set advertising rates and plan advertising copy for The Review. These schemers are equipped with an advertising service, usually an inferior one, which they attempt to sell to the merchants at exorbitant rates.

The Review takes this opportunity to advise local business men that it has no representatives other than its own staff members and that it is equipped with high grade advertising cut and copy service that is free to all advertisers with no charge additional to the regular space rates.

The management of The Review would be grateful to any local person reporting a transient salesman claiming to be authorized to sell advertising in The Review.

Scientists Find Many Metals in Human Body

Such figurative expressions as "a heart of gold," "the iron gut," and "with leaden feet" are recalled by the recent investigation of two French chemists. Through spectroscopic examination of the ashes of human organs, says Popular Science Monthly, they found there are copper, aluminum and a little silver in the heart; copper, aluminum and traces of the rarer metals titanium, iron, the lanthan, cobalt, nickel, lead and silver in the pancreas; copper, lead and silver in the liver; aluminum, silver and copper in the kidneys and the near by adrenal glands, and silver, lead and copper in the spleen.

Historic Old Pepsys House Part of College System

Impington hall, historic home of the Pepsys family, was presented to the Cambridgehire education committee as a memorial to John Chivers, founder of the town firm says a London dispatch to the New York Times.

Impington hall forms the nucleus of a village college for the area of Histon and Cottenham, from which village the head of the Pepsys family, Lord Cottingham, takes his title.

The house was begun about the middle of the sixteenth century by John Pepsy. It includes a central hall and gallery, and is still substantially what it has been for the last 300 years, though there have been additions in 1802 and 1810.

Allusions to Impington in Samuel Pepys' diary begin on July 1, 1681, with "Rode to Impington where I found my old uncle staying all alone like a man out of the world."

The educational authorities had not altered the old buildings, which are in a good state of preservation and include many beautiful painted rooms with Seventeenth century ceilings.

Symbols of Jewish Faith

A phylactery is a reminder. In reality, a small leather bag containing slips of parchment, which are written Scriptural passages. Two such boxes are worn by Jews, one on the head and one on the left arm, during the time of prayer on all mornings except those of Sabbaths and holy days. The passages are Exodus, 13:10, 11; and Deuteronomy, 6:4 and 8:12, 22, and are reminders of obligation to keep the law.

Perfect Diamond for Beginning of Baseball Season

The Barrington baseball club held its annual banquet at Meekins eat shop last Thursday evening. The following officers were elected for the coming season: Ward Block, manager; Randolph Berk, bookkeeper; and Charles Altenburg, secretary and treasurer.

The local park has been considerably improved this spring, the grand stand receiving a fresh coat of paint and the playing field being leveled off. Barrington now boasts one of the best infields in this section of the country.

Twenty-five players were out for the first practice Sunday and with the addition of several new promising players prospects are excellent for another winning team. The players are out to surpass their record of the season when they won 17 out of 23 games played against the strongest teams in this section.

The first game will be played against Cary, April 26.

SENIORS FAVORED TO WIN INTERCLASS MEET

Coach Clark's tracksters are going to get their first real test Friday and Saturday, April 17 and 18, when the annual interclass track meet is held. The field events will be held at Sturtevant field Friday after school but owing to the fact that there is no suitable track in Barrington the runs will be held at the Palatine high school's new track Saturday morning.

Interest is being shown in the affair this year. The veteran seniors are expected to win, but so many juniors are entered that the seniors will be given a lot of competition. The sophomores will probably get a few points. The freshmen will be hard pressed to score. There will be no charge at either field.

SALEM FLOOR TEAMS DEFEAT ELGIN QUINIS

The Salem Evangelical church basketball team, in the final game of the season, defeated the Elgin Evangelical church at Elgin Thursday night. The scores were: lightweights, 21-16 and heavyweights, 21-17.

Plans for indoor baseball teams for the nearby Evangelical churches are now being discussed. The contesting cities will be Elgin, Aurora, Downers Grove and Barrington.

WILL TEST LEGALITY OF NEW TOWN OF ZION

Peter B. Johnson, Charles W. Warren and other prominent citizens of Benton township through State's Attorney Col. A. V. Smith obtained leave of Judge Dady Tuesday to file in the circuit court of Lake county a quo warranto proceeding to test the legality of the organization of the town of Zion, the limits of which are co-extensive with those of the city of Zion.

Attorneys Edward P. Castle of Barrington and Albert L. Hall of Waukegan represent the petitioners who contend that the county supervisors violated their own rules when they reversed their previous actions and authorized the organization of the new town of Zion.

Two diamond rings stolen and swallowed by William Carter of Chicago were recovered through a surgical operation performed by order of police officials.

When Helmfelt Voigt picked up a pheasant he had shot near Lyons, N. Y., a gold ring set with brilliants was found attached to the bird's right foot.

Sheriff H. W. Culbertson failed to find anybody "at home" when he raided a big whiskey still at Speers Ferry, Va., because the bootleggers were warned of his approach when all the church bells in the vicinity were tolled.

Because water was unavailable skimmed milk was used to extinguish a fire at the home of Gordon Denby, dairyman at Carlinville, Ill.

TO THE PEOPLE OF BARRINGTON

In order to correct some misstatements and inaccuracies made by Earl Hatje in his appeal for votes in the Review of April 9th, and thinking that perhaps there may be others who do not know the real conditions, is the reason for this article. In Mr. Hatje's advertisement he says that if elected he will strive for the establishment of a comprehensive system of bookkeeping for the village and a yearly audit of its finances.

Since 1908 I have maintained a system of bookkeeping that can be compared with any system of ordinary intelligence. My books and accounts have been audited every year; and an annual report has been published in the Review.

Mr. Hatje also favors a monthly report from the treasurer. For twenty-three years I have presented a monthly report to the Board of Village Trustees (with the possible exception of one month when I was a hospital patient). These reports show the condition of the various funds and can also be substantiated by any person of ordinary intelligence.

Respectfully submitted, F. L. WATERMAN, Village Treasurer.
