Committees on Village Board are Cut to Six
The village board of trustees, after a long session last night, decided to reduce the number of committees from eight to six. The committees to be retained are the finance, public works, and health committees. The committees to be eliminated are the education, fire, and police committees. The board also decided to hold a public hearing on the proposed changes on May 10th.

Crystal Lake 1st; Barrington 2nd; Triangular Meet Crystal Lake's well balanced and classy track team had little difficulty in winning the triangular meet with Barrington and Arlington Heights. The final score was Crystal Lake 57 1/4, Barrington 25 1/4, Arlington Heights 25. The real contest was between the old rivals, Barrington and Arlington Heights, for second honors and the Bronchos came out on top by three-fourths of a point. Crystal Lake was especially strong in the track events and also had a pole vaulter who was no slouch. They scored heavily in most of the field events.

W. R. C. WILL SEND G. A. R. DELEGATES TO ENCAMPMENT
The Women's Relief Corps, known for its charitable work, is making a unique contribution this year. The previous work of the organization has mostly been with the veterans of the Civil War, but this year the members are turning their regular work, taking on the responsibility of sending one or more members of the Grand Army of the Republic to the National Encampment. The list of the members of the G. A. R. are very old, and many of them have very little money, so the necessary money to allow them to attend encampments, from which they receive so much enjoyment, is being raised by the W. R. C. The women are putting forth every effort to raise money to swell this worthwhile fund.

Bobby Mundhenk Winner of Trip Through Europe
A summer vacation through the principal countries of Europe with stops in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Germany, and Switzerland, will be the prize awarded to Bobby Mundhenk, twelve year old Barrington boy who won first place in the Chicago district of the Sparrow Radio demonstration contest which ended April 15 after nine months of competition.

Through J. & A.
The contest is one which has been conducted by the radio company through the local dealer, the J. & A. Radio Co. The work in the contest was that of getting appointments for Sparrow Radio demonstrations. Two hundred thousand boys and girls entered in all of the districts. Several thousand entered in the Chicago district. Thirty-one young people enrolled in Barrington.

Speaker Tells of Bill for Highway Control in Towns
State control of highways through villages and cities to overcome the weak links in the Illinois paved road chain is embodied in an administration bill which has passed the house and will soon be considered by the senate, according to W. R. Abbott, of the Automatic Signal Corporation, who spoke before the Barrington Chamber of Commerce at a regular meeting held Tuesday evening.

7,500 Miles of Pavement
Mr. Abbott reviewed the Illinois state highway bond history. It started with the sixty million dollar bond issue to pay for 4,800 miles of paving. This was inadequate for the program and the program was not sufficient for the state system, so the 100 million dollar bond issue was passed in 1923 to complete cost of the originally planned hard surfaced roads and add 6,000 miles more pavement.

Benefit Institute Next Wednesday
Barrington women are showing a close interest in the home institute program which is being sponsored by the Woman's Relief Corps, for the purpose of raising funds for the G. A. R. veterans. The all-day program is being given May 13 at the old Catlow auditorium.

CLEAN-UP DAYS SET FOR MAY 13-14
Good evidence of bad rubbish for Barrington folks Wednesday and Thursday, May 13 and 14, when the village will conduct its annual spring clean-up campaign. This campaign will follow the annual custom of holding, in May each year, two clean-up days when village trucks will collect and haul away winter accumulations of articles such as tin cans, bottles, broken toys, and discarded kitchen utensils.

Local Man Finds Tell-tale Piece of Underclothing
An impulse to take another look at the place where the remains of the torch victim had been found in the ruins of the old ice house on Hawthorne lake, led R. E. Willmering, local undertaker, to discover the hand of a meager clew which later identified the body as that of the notorious Mike de Pike Heitler.

Great Cast at Catlow Theatre Sunday-Monday

The most popular, yet least affected of screen stars, Charles Farrell, comes to the Catlow theatre tonight and Friday in "Body and Soul." Though it has a war background it is not a war picture, the story, based on the stage play, "Squadrons," being one of love, intrigue and heroism. Elisha Landi, whom critics acclaim as the most sensational "find" in years, makes her screen debut in this picture which also features Myrna Loy.

The famous romantic team of "The Border Legion," Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, will be seen at the Catlow theatre Saturday night in another Western classic, "The Conquering Horde." Their new picture is based on "North of 36," a novel by Emerson Hough.

In addition to this pair there is Claude Gillingwater, the economical ranch foreman; Ian MacLarep, the villainous "carpet-bugger" leader, and scores of ferocious-looking and fast-riding Indians.

The play deals with the period just after the Civil War when the land-poor ranchers of Texas were being victimized by money-grubbing "carpet-buggers."

Meet the head gangster of the movies—Edward G. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is the king-pin of cinematic gangsters, just as surely as a certain well-known individual is the head man in Chicago.

"Little Caesar," depicting the rise to fame of the American gangster, and the cause of it, is the picture that has brought the realism of the underworld before the public. This thriller that deals with the actual is still in its loop run in Chicago. The Catlow theatre will present it next Sunday and Monday nights.

One of the most noted casts in Hollywood was assembled for it. It includes Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., William C. Coker, Jr., Sidney Blackmer, Ralph Lee, Glenda Farrell, and many others.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," with Buster Keaton wading through the trials and tribulations of a "wife-stealer" will be the attraction at the Catlow theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The picture, adapted from the celebrated stage farce, provides the frozen-faced comedian he has had since the advent of talkies.

Buster plays the timid Reggie Irving who gets himself advertised by a "great lover" and then finds life nothing but complications in which two many pretty women and a jealous husband figure largely and hilariously.

Charlotte Greenwood, elongated comedienne; Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards head the supporting cast and among the young ladies whom Keaton tries to dazzle are Dorothy Christy, Joan Peers, Sally Eilers and Natalie Moorhead.

State News

Director Stuart E. Pierson, of the state department of agriculture and Dr. Andy Hall, director of public health, have the proper sanction to a plan whereby the two branches of state service will unite forces in an undertaking to determine the relationship, if any, between undulant fever in humans and contagious abortion in cattle. Health authorities and the veterinary fraternity propose to prove or disprove the theory that the disease in animals is transmitted through milk. Undulant fever cases, reported to the health department, will be investigated. Cattle that have supplied them with milk will undergo blood-tests to detect disease.

More than $7,500,000 worth of road building contracts have been awarded by the state highway officials since the first of the year. With contracts carried over from 1930, more than $18,000,000 worth of work is getting underway. This starts the 1931 road program which is estimated to total about $45,000,000—the biggest year in the road building history of Illinois.

Illinois state institutions had a total population of 42,045 on March 1, this year. A classification of this vast list of inmates shows that there were 23,478 in the insane hospitals; 8,342 in the research and educational hospital and the various other curative institutions; and 11,344 in the prisons and correctional schools. Prison population, during the past year, has increased alarmingly. Enrollment at the three penitentiaries has illustrative of the growth in institution population, is given by welfare department officials, as follows:

	March 1, 1930	March 1, 1931
Joliet	4,014	4,530
Menard	2,038	2,289
Pontiac	1,949	2,434

The state board of pardons and paroles, at its April session, considered 41 new applications for paroles and 11 cases that were continued from the preceding session.

"Greek letter organizations contribute much to the training of young men and women in colleges for a successful career in business, art and science. . . . If proof were needed of the value of fraternal life, one would not need to look further than the record of your own organization." Governor Louis L. Emmerson stated in a communication to the national convocation of Psi Upsilon, on its visit to Springfield and the Lincoln shrines.

Illinois coal mines produced 103,753 tons more coal in March, 1931, than in the corresponding month in 1930, and fatalities occurred at an exceptionally low rate—one fatal accident to each 1,430,502 tons of coal produced. There were 140 shipping mines in operation, employing 40,124 men. They averaged 17.5 days' work during the month, according to the monthly report compiled in the office of John G. Millhouse, director of mines and minerals.

Since vetoing the bill repealing the state prohibition laws, Governor L. L. Emmerson has received more than 10,000 letters and telegrams commending his action. They are arriving at a rate in excess of 1,000 daily, with no sign of diminishing. Twenty-eight states, the District of Columbia, and Canada are represented. Many are from liberals of Illinois, in other states and Canada, expressing their belief that modification can not be obtained by depriving the state of all authority to regulate or control illegal liquor traffic. Out of all received, less than 50 express opposition, to the veto, including a number of anonymous letters.

Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, in an address delivered here before the assembly of Kewanee citizens and farmers from this and adjacent counties, recommended "high pressure marketing methods" as a means of overcoming the under-consumption of farm products, which, he said, is an important factor in the surplus of agricultural products. He urged farmers to pattern after methods used to publicize California products, and other staples that enjoy profitable popularity based upon newspaper publicity.

Mr. Trigger presides at a budget conference

Budget figures always baffle Mrs. Trigger so when they called their meeting to order, Mr. Trigger had to be chairman, secretary and treasurer.

They got out all their gas bills so they could compare the cost of their gas heat with the estimate Public Service heating engineers had given them a year ago. And they were surprised to discover that it had cost them 14% less than had been figured. The winter was mild, of course, but even so . . .

"I don't see why we waited so long for gas heat," Mrs. Trigger said over and over. Considering the convenience, it hadn't been expensive at all. The Triggers didn't have to have a new furnace. Simply installed a "conversion burner" in their old heating plant—and they have three years in which to pay for it the "Little by Little" way.

They've been able to save money by not having to repaper the house. They didn't have to send the rugs to the cleaners this spring. It's hard to realize how much damage soot does to home furnishings until you heat with gas.

This isn't the place to go into the private affairs of the Triggers and tell you exactly how much their gas heat is costing. But if you'll phone your Public Service Store we'll be glad to send a house heating engineer to your home to estimate just how much it will cost you. This won't obligate you in any way. And at the same time we can explain the details of our special spring installation offer.

Two national prize winning biographies written by Barrington junior high school pupils and published in Current Topics, national school publication, are republished in this issue of The Review.

The first is a biography of Jane Addams, written by Mildred Eklund. This theme won first place in the biography division of the national contest which the magazine conducts. The second is a biography of William Edgar Borah written by Mildred Skirner. This won third place in the same division. A cartoon drawn by Verna Plager, which placed fifth in its division, is also published in this issue of The Review.

The three prize winners are among five which gave Barrington school a first place claim in the contest. As related in The Review, the well known pupils won first prizes in that contest in which thousands of pupils were entered from all parts of the United States. Alaska and Hawaii. The pupils from the school won one school in the country won more than three prizes. The prize essay follows:

JANE ADDAMS

Biography Contest, First Prize
The most important thing connected with the life of Jane Addams is her accomplishment of the Hull House. But even without Hull House, she would be great. Her writings, speeches, her theories, and her presence make her the most noteworthy woman in the field of sociology today. She is a great teacher. Her quick sense of beauty, and her ability to create a sense of cultured hospitality and understanding opened to the people of the world a new world of commercial value.

When Jane Addams was a young girl, she thought of a city being just candy shops and merry ways.
But when she was about seven years of age she was amazed to discover the tiny, little, ugly, tiny houses huddled close together in a shape of their shabbiness and crime. She asked her father why people lived like this when they may have the beauty of the woods and wild skies she loved so well.
Her father taught her, for the first time, what poverty and overpopulation do to take away the beauty of life.
So it was that Jane Addams was born to have an immense hope in the midst of the squalor of a city that she could share her home with the squalor.
To accomplish this purpose.

has given up life. She has given a fortune that would have kept her in ease and luxury.

Unless her friends would come and help her, she has had to do without them, for it takes time to make friends and Jane Addams has no time.

For two years she studied in the Women's Medical College of Philadelphia.

At the end of that time she had spinal trouble which forced her to lie in bed for six months. Later, as the doctor recommended, she went to London.

She went to the East End of London where she watched a vegetable sale, where, on Saturday at midnight, hideous decaying fruits and vegetables were sold by hawkers, at auction, to the city's starving poor. The long white faces of hungry people sought the food, straining their hands, pitiful workworn, starved hands for the only food that life offered them.

Jane Addams could not forget this awful sight.

She spent two years in Europe. She found herself drawn to the poor quarters. On her second trip she decided to rent a house in the midst of the city where the people needed many things. She shared her plan with Ellen Gates Starr.

Miss Addams and Miss Starr came to Chicago to find a neighborhood and a house suited for their work.

Hull House was established in 1889.
Since that time 13 buildings have been built, and under the leadership of Jane Addams, Hull House has become a monument to one woman's idea that "the best is for all."

limbed, blue eyed, is this Senator from Idaho.

does not know that he carries a pocket comb, that he licks his thumbs and slicks down his eyebrows, and that he scribbles his name on loose sheets of paper while he listens to other people talk.

Senator Borah often does things that make his critics call him a "trini-mer", and the insurgents despair of him as a member of their group.

He is of German and Irish ancestry and was born sixty-five years ago in Wayne County, Illinois. His father was quite poor. The boy read Shakespeare, saw Edwin Booth and yearned to go on the stage; but instead he went to Kansas where he studied law.

Then he moved to Boise a year after Idaho's admission to the Union and began a general law practice. He married Governor McConnell's daughter. His professional reputation increased when he prosecuted the Coeur d'Alene dynamiting case.

In 1907 the Idaho Legislature sent him to the United States Senate, where he has been ever since.

Senator Borah is of a non-social character. He divides his time between his Connecticut Avenue apartment and his dark ground-floor office on the Hill. He rarely attends parties or the theatre. He is very suspicious of Washington society. Once he thundered, "It is far better to argue than to disagree in Washington." His wife once said, "Billy would be so happy if it weren't for the pleasures of life."

Borah's greatest fights have been against the Eighteenth Amendment (though he is dry), the Nineteenth Amendment, the Child Labor Laws, the League of Nations and the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act. He worked for the Income Tax Amendment, the creation of the Department of Labor, the Kellogg Peace Treaty, and the direct election of Senators.

Senator Borah refused to follow
Roosevelt into the Bull Moose Party and he did not go with LaFollette.

but has stayed on the Republican ticket.

President Coolidge once asked Borah to come to the White House, and offered him a place on the Republican ticket. The Senator is said to have asked him, "Which place?"

Borah was Hoover's greatest oratorical supporter in 1928, but broke with him soon after the inauguration because the President disappointed the export debenture plan of farm relief. Today, over the President's objection, Senator Borah is demanding a special session of Congress during the summer because, "We will find it very embarrassing to go home."

As an orator, Mr. Borah's chief characteristics are deliberateness, earnestness and a fine selection of words. He speaks without notes and says, "If you don't get any new thoughts while you're standing you had better sit down." Idaho bride-fully named its biggest mountain for him.

FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE

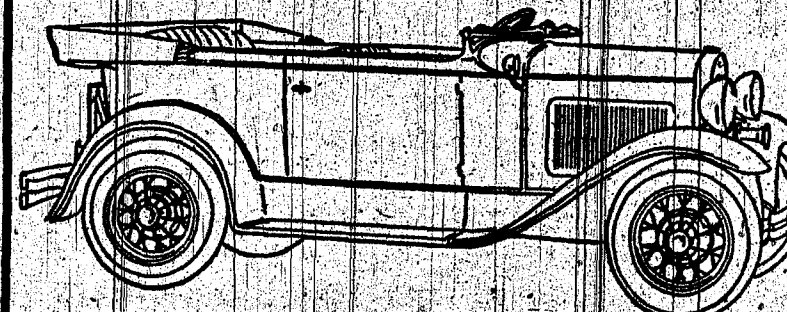

Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

VISITOR HERE SAYS EUROPE IN BAD WAY

The countries of Europe are getting the reaction of the American depression of 1930 and are suffering in varied degrees with France sailing along fairly smoothly and Germany scarcely able to stand up under her burdens, according to Frederick Gross, Brussels manager of the International Harvester Co. of America, who with Mrs. Gross arrived here last week for a vacation.

European countries will recover, according to the opinion of Mr. Gross, but the American war debts hamper their chance of recovery to a great extent. Germany is taxed to a point where many business operators can not carry on.

Mr. and Mrs. Gross will visit at the home of H. D. Wemore, Mr. Gross starting back for Brussels June 1.

Christian Science puts disease there, along with evil, and insists that disease, instead of being a physical condition, is a belief or an illusion of the human mind, which the truth will cure."

A husband's own true story of how his wife and his mother-in-law lived under a single roof—living him with equal fairness—succeeded only in dragging his soul through hell.

That day he broke a pitcher—trivial thing—a molehill that fared into a mountain. "Get out—out of my house, you worthless hag!"—Flo screamed and swinging on me—"This roof's too small—she's got to go, Eddie—or out I go—this minute!"

"Stop," I roared. "You're cruel as a snake." Flo moved toward me—she was crying—she was crying—"No more—a sick," I struggled on. "No more—a sick place to go—she's a die! Before you drive her out!"—Flo's lips sought mine—"I'll see you—damn you—I'll see you—damn you—"

Which woman did Eddie choose? His poor old widowed mother whom he loved, worshiped—or his beautiful wife whose embraces he craved like dope? The state of Illinois, last year, paid out $53,894.68 to enable handicapped children to obtain instruction in special classes in the public schools. That figure represents the expense of teaching public school pupils, in excess of the normal costs, because of unusual expenditures in 51 districts that have special classes for crippled children, three that teach the deaf and three with special facilities for teaching children with defective vision. The state department of public welfare and the state superintendent of public instruction cooperate in supervising this special instruction.

STOCK SAVED FROM $15,000 FARM FIRE

All horses and cattle housed in a large barn on the Whitney Rockenback farm, three miles south of Wauconda, were rescued by attendants and residents on the farm when the building burned Sunday morning.

The barn was destroyed along with all contents except the stock at a total loss estimated at $15,000. A large assortment of machinery, and hay, grain, and harnesses were burned. It was believed the fire was started by sparks from a gasoline motor driven pump.

The flames had gained much headway before they were discovered. The rapid spread of the fire prevented attendants in their efforts to rescue machinery and harnesses. The Mundelein fire department aided by hundreds of residents of towns and rural districts within a radius of five miles of the farm, were successful in preventing the fire from spreading to the home.

A STORY OF PRIVATE INITIATIVE AND LOCAL CAPITAL

Chapter I

NORTHERN ILLINOIS • 1911

HOW well can you remember back twenty years? Amundsen was discovering the South Pole. Goethals was gauging the way for the Panama Canal.

Automobiles wore goggles and wrapped themselves up in linen dresses. Flying was a stunt for daredevils.

Electric lights were only for families living in metropolitan centers or in the most up-and-coming outlying communities. In northern Illinois, outside the city limits of Chicago, there were probably 100 towns receiving electricity. Their service was timed by the clock and subject to the whims of the weather. At five in the evening lights were turned on. At eleven o'clock lights blinked a curfew warning—and service was discontinued for the night. Storms cut off service indefinitely.

This was 1911. In August of that year, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois was organized. Today, in the territory surrounding Chicago there are 318 cities and towns and nearly 7,000 intervening farms receiving gas and electric service twenty-four hours a day.

Two decades have produced this change. Believing that a review of these twenty years will disclose many facts of interest to its customers, the Public Service Company is beginning this series of stories that will appear in these pages from week to week. They will make up a kind of autobiography.

The story of gas and electric service in northern Illinois really begins about five years before the Civil War when the Ottawa Gas Company was founded to manufacture gas for lighting purposes. Its two miles of gas mains served 150 customers. In 1867 a second gas company was granted a charter in Evanston. Later a few others began operations.

Following Thomas A. Edison's invention of the incandescent lamp in 1879—an invention that for the first time made electric light practical for homes—a few scattered local companies were organized to supply electric service of a sort.

Even after twenty years of development this service was very erratic. Progress was restricted not so much by lack of engineering equipment as by lack of money. The local companies were always just a jump ahead of the sheriff. Frequently the sheriff caught up. Machinery for producing electricity could be leased. Usually the company selling the equipment had to share in the financing of the local plant. Managerships changed often. Bankruptcies were numerous. For days at a time service would be interrupted. At the end of the year there was never money left over for improvement of facilities.

Thus was northern Illinois before 1911.

The "Lake County Experiment" which first demonstrated the economies of transmitting electricity produced in a centrally located plant to scattered suburban and rural communities—which was directly responsible for the organization of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois—is the subject of next week's story.

THE LADY WITH THE SCRUB BRUSH

The birthday of Florence Nightingale, May 12th, is an annual reminder of the importance of little things to all who have been helped back to health and usefulness by the trained ministrations of professional nurses. It was little things like soap, water, scrubbing brushes and brooms that "the lady with the lamp" first used to elevate the mental labor of sick nursing into a profession whose members are among the most useful and honored women.

When in 1854, during the Crimean War, Florence Nightingale approached the military hospitals, a few of her companions disclosed romantic notions about soothing the brows of fevered soldiers—visions which she quickly dispelled. "The strongest of us will be needed at the washtubs," she declared, a statement which proved only too true.

It was the washbub and all that the washbub stood for that animated Miss Nightingale's enterprises. As she herself wrote she was "really cook, housekeeper, scavenger, washer woman, general dealer, and store keeper." Among her first tasks was the distribution of soap, towels, knives and forks, combs and toothbrushes. It was her cleanliness practices which revolutionized the nursing profession, and which brought into the stuffy tricorne of the old-fashioned home the sanitary trick of soap, water and sunlight. Those who benefit from the thorough care of professional or amateur nurse may well thank Florence Nightingale, "the lady with the lamp," and remember that she was also "the lady with the scrubbing brush."

THE INDIAN PROBLEM

There has been an Indian problem in the United States ever since its earliest settlement, but that problem is being solved by the gradual absorption of the Red Man into our general population, according to Secretary Wilbur of the Department of the Interior.

We have about 350,000 persons of Indian blood in the entire country, of whom about one-third are in Oklahoma. The rest are widely scattered among 26 states, but even the reservation Indians are intermarrying with the white population and are rapidly assuming the white man's manner of living. A notable exception to this general trend is seen among the Navajoes of Arizona, who have a reservation as large as the state of New Jersey and still hold aloof from the paleface.

It is the policy of the government to encourage the remaining Indians to obtain education and training with a view to their giving up reservation life and taking their places among the independent citizenship of the country. There are maintained 206 day and boarding schools for Indian pupils, where instruction, food, lodging and clothing are furnished free by Uncle Sam. These are privileges granted to no other element of our population.

Secretary Wilbur declares that it has become obvious that the Red Man eventually must lose his identity and become as the rest of us, and adds: "From a sentimental standpoint there is much to regret in this fact, but it is none the less inevitable."

NEW FARM BUREAU HEAD

The elevation of Edward A. O'Neil of Florence, Ala., to the presidency of the American Farm Bureau Federation is a fitting recognition of one of the outstanding agricultural leaders of the country. He succeeds Sam H. Thompson of Chicago, who was recently appointed a member of the Federal Farm Board.

Mr. O'Neil is a practical farmer who has long been identified with organized agriculture and a pioneer in the movement for cooperative marketing. He was a member of President Harding's agricultural conference in 1921, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation since 1923, and vice president of the American Farm Bureau from 1924 until his promotion to the presidency last month. Prof. L. N. Duncan of the Extension Service said:

"In integrity and high purposes, and in his devotion and loyalty to his fellow farmers, Mr. O'Neil stands without a peer in American agriculture. It is a great compliment to Alabama and the South that the greatest farm organization the world has ever known should choose as its leader an Alabama farmer. It is also a compliment to the progress made by organized farmers in Alabama."

FOR COMFORT AT SEA

Sickness and other discomforts of ocean travel in stormy weather will be eliminated when the new gyro-stabilizer comes into general use, according to Science Service.

This stabilizer, which is really a huge top made to spin at high speed, has been developed to a practical stage, and several have been ordered for installation in new vessels. The largest so far made weighs 120 tons and its rotor is capable of being spun at the rate of 800 revolutions per minute by means of a 200-horse-power motor. It takes an hour to get the rotor up to full speed, and it will continue to spin for two hours after the power is shut off.

Engineers say that a stabilizer of this size will prevent a 450-foot ship from rolling more than two degrees in a heavy storm.

A new 45,000-ton Italian liner now being built will have three huge gyro-stabilizers, it is understood, and it is expected that this device will be adopted for use generally in the finest ocean passenger ships of the future. Stabilizers have been successfully used for some time on yachts and other small craft, and it is believed that they will be equally effective on the largest ships.

If expectations are realized, ocean passengers of the future may be able, regardless of the weather, to eat their meals in comfort, and, best of all, retain them after they are eaten.

The United Kingdom imports seven-eighths of its needs in refined copper and almost one-half of its copper products.

The Way of Life

By BRUCE BARTON

TOO MUCH BELLYACHING

I shall be criticized for the title of this editorial, but it is a good old Elizabethan phrase and there is no other which expresses so forcibly the thing I have in mind.

Let me illustrate with a story.

I stood in line one night at the ticket window in Providence, waiting to take up the lower berth which I had reserved to New York. In front of me was a man who had come up from Chatham on Cape Cod, having telegraphed for a reservation from there. Through a mistake on the part of the Chatham operator, the telegram had gone to Boston instead of Providence. If the man waited for the train to come through from Boston he would not get to bed until about two o'clock in the morning. If he got on a Providence car he would have to sleep in an upper berth because all the lower berths were sold.

He bought an upper, but not without a great deal of grumbling.

"This is atrocious," he exclaimed. "Give me a telegram blank. I am going to wire that operator in Chatham and tell him what I think of him."

To which the station agent answered very sanely: "What good will that do? You're mad already. What's the use of getting two men mad?"

Every hour of every day a certain number of things happen which just should not happen, but do. To err is human.

When I became a magazine editor years ago a very wise editor said to me: "You are about to make a discovery. You are about to learn that there are no efficient people in the world."

He went on to prophesy that writers would consistently misinterpret my instructions about articles and that artists would insist on drawing their pictures all wrong.

To a certain extent the prophecy was fulfilled; but, having been warned in advance, I managed to get along without losing my temper often or increasing my blood pressure much.

If you expect perfection from people your whole life is a series of disappointments, grumbings and complaints. If, on the contrary, you pitch your expectations low, taking folks as the inefficient creatures which they are, you are frequently surprised by having them perform better than you had hoped.

Too many of us are like that man in Providence, who probably "bellyached" to everybody he met the next day, saying that he was tired because a fool operator in Chatham had caused him to sleep in an upper berth. Doubtless he went home and "bellyached" to his wife, and he may still be telling the sad story, for all I know.

What's the use of it all?

Arabia and Finland are the only countries besides the United States, having laws absolutely prohibiting the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors.

Experiences in Early Barrington

As mentioned here before in 1888, my sister Leona and I went to school where we were living in Barrington. When we moved to the prairie, I did not go to school again until I was 14 years old as we had no school house close by. I had to go to the woods every winter and haul timber for fence posts and also for fuel. As father had 2 yoke of oxen, we often brought 2 loads of logs for fence posts. They built a new school house on Henry Hawley's woods near the bridge, when I was 14 years old. Henry Bauman and John Silker went there 3 weeks and I had my first teacher and had a lady for a teacher.

When I was 15 years old Mother gave me some pigs and I went to Barrington and got a Thompson's Practical Arithmetic for myself. They built a small new school house in the prairie, and Charles Trimble was our teacher, and Horace Kellogg was my schoolmate. As I was a great lover of ball-playing, Horace Kellogg and I and other boys played ball together. When the teacher called us for school, Horace often took my ball and threw it as far as he could throw it. Horace and I had trouble about it, and when I tackled him his brother, Miles, would jump on my back and I told the teacher about it but he did not pay much attention to it. One afternoon after school, as I was putting on my clothes, Horace grabbed for my mittens and I grabbed him by the throat and got him in the corner of the school house and I told him that we would settle this thing right now, and I thumped his head on the wall. The teacher came and told me to let him go and I put out my other hand and said to Mr. Trimble that I would thrash him too, as I told him long enough to settle this thing with Horace. And when Horace gave up, we then and there made up good friends again, and I don't remember that Horace ever troubled me any more.

As I had but very little schooling in my life because I had to help with the wood, I did not have much time to go to school in the winter. One winter I had about 80 days of school. That was the best schooling I ever had, as I remember that I started in "additions" and went clear through into the "fractions." The following are the teachers I had: Charles Trimble, Kitson, Sid Van Valenberg, Menzel, Isabelle, Lines. Lines taught me when I was about 19 years old.

After we moved into the prairie father bought and raised more oxen and we broke lots of prairie for us and other. We drove and reaped with oxen for six years, we had the oxen on the threshing machine, and did all our cultivating and shoveling ploughing with oxen. Father taught me to plow when I was 11 years old. When I was 14 years old I held the breaking plow.

I was always a friend of dogs, until one day, when we were breaking for Garret Miller, Lambert Bowman had a black dog called Pollo and I used to fool with him. One day we were eating lunch back in the field and I was playing with Pollo, the dog, and he bit me in the breast, and after that I never did care for any more dogs.

Physicians on the staffs of Illinois state hospitals for the insane should not secrete on juries that commit citizens to the hospitals. This, to avoid danger of suspicion that the state government or the institution management may have any ulterior interest in sanity inquiries, is issued in a letter to institution managers by A. L. Bowen, superintendent of charities in the department of public welfare. He expresses the belief that county judges would see the impropriety of physicians serving as jurors in such cases.
