STATE SETS RECORD FOR HATCHING QUAIL

At its game propagation plant, on the state fairgrounds, the state set a new high mark in quail production. The first hatch of the season resulted in 223 live birds from 246 eggs—a yield of 90.65 per cent. The best previous record was 89 per cent of perfection, held by the White Oak Game Farms in Virginia, after which the fairground quail production plant is patterned. The electric incubators used were developed on the former record-holding farm, and the man in charge, Stephen Hair, obtained a part of his experience as assistant superintendent of the White Oak farm—owned by Edwin Batjer of Baltimore, and operated as his hobby, to obtain the best possible results in raising quail.

The famous life-size wax figure of Abraham Lincoln, which was displayed in the John Bressner company window, Springfield, previous to re-dedication of the Lincoln monument, was made by Cylver, an outstanding wax artist of New York. Much of the inspiration for the figure was secured from Carl Sandburg books, and years of research and painstaking attention to detail went into this masterpiece of wax work.

She's not like
Mother Hubbard
She has a "reserve shelf" in her electric refrigerator

SHE likes to have friends drop in any time—without warning. Her friends like to drop in, too, because she's such a charming hostess.

■ And she serves the most delicious impromptu lunches. Unlike Mother Hubbard, her cupboard is never bare—or, strictly speaking, her electric refrigerator isn't. She has what she calls a "reserve shelf" where she always keeps sandwich spreads, cheeses, fruit juices for cooling beverages, mayonnaise for hasty salads. She can assemble a tempting trayful of food with no trouble at all.

■ Her electric refrigerator keeps these odds and ends fresh and palatable for weeks at a time. No wonder she's enthusiastic about the way electric refrigeration simplifies the art of entertaining gracefully.

■ It is easy to purchase an electric refrigerator on convenient time payments. Just a small payment down. We'll be glad to tell you all about it at your PUBLIC SERVICE STORE. So will your LOCAL REFRIGERATOR DEALER. Stop in.

THE DANGER OF WAITING

Life can play foul jokes on people some times. In a middle western city there was a grocer, who worked very hard and saved his money religiously so that his old age would be provided for.

For 50 years he stuck to his grocery store. He worked and saved too hard to have very much fun, but he was looking forward to the day when he could retire. Then he would have his fun. He would have money and leisure, and he would make up for the years of hard work.

Well, he finally retired—money in the bank, an assured income, a nice home, everything he needed. "Now," he told his friends, "I am going to enjoy life."

And just 24 hours after he had retired he dropped dead.

If a novelist put that in a book we wouldn't believe it. We would say that things don't really happen that way, and we would accuse the novelist of straining too hard for an ironic effect.

But life takes queer twists that are not permitted to good fiction. It all happens, precisely as it is described here; and all we can do is admit that there are times when wisdom and prudence are horribly confounded.

As a matter of fact, this sort of thing happens fairly often—in a little different way. Not many people who have prepared for a career and leisurely old age die just as they begin to taste their reward, of course; but they get cheated out of their dues, just the same. They find that leisure, after a lifetime of hard work, is boredom. They find that they have forgotten how to play. They find that the empty hours are depressing because they do not know what to do with them. They find themselves feeling that they have been put upon the shelf, and they grow 10 years older in 12 months.

Perhaps we aren't meant to be too cautious. Deferring one's happiness to the end when one will have time and the means to take it, is risky. For most of us that gilded tomorrow will never dawn. If we don't get our happiness along the way we shall never get it at all.

That is a lesson worth learning. The real joy of living is not something that can be banked and drawn on at some future date. It has to be taken from day to day. It is compounded usually of many little experiences. The haze of an autumn afternoon over a flaming woodland; the confiding smile of a child, nestled in one's arms for a fairy tale; the smell of a pear wind as one trudges along a beach by blue water; the sudden revelation of tenderness in the eyes of a loved one; the brief, vanishing strain of a bit of music—such things are a satisfying life fabricated. You cannot postpone them, you cannot wait for them. You must get them as you go along, or you will miss them entirely.—Standard, Excelsior Springs, Missouri.

SLAVERY STILL EXISTS

It is almost incredible that there should still be 5,000,000 or more human beings existing in abject slavery in various parts of the world. Yet such is the case, according to a report of a slavery commission organized under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Slavery is found, it is said, in nearly a score of countries, and is especially prevalent in Abyssinia, China, Hedjaz and Liberia. A traveler in Abyssinia has described "slavery, open, cruel and fiendish; gangs of slaves marching in misery, the men chained together in rows, and the women and children dragging themselves along, beside the main body."

There is no doubt that similar conditions exist in many other countries, although in most of them slavery is officially forbidden. In some areas the condition of actual slavery is disguised under the form of contract labor and peonage, or debt slavery, the latter also prevailing in some South American countries.

Some encouragement is seen, however, in the steps taken by the League toward the abolishment of slavery, particularly by the British government, through whose efforts about 700,000 slaves have been liberated since the close of the war.

Now, as always, the suppression of "man's inhumanity to man" is one of civilization's major tasks.

FARM BOARD'S REAL WORK

Long Prairie (Minn.) Leader—While the Farm Board's critics get on the front pages pretty regularly with their denouncing of the Board's wheat policies, the facts are that what the Board has been trying to do with wheat is one of the least of its activities. Let that not be lost sight of. The Board has been quietly and powerfully building up cooperative organizations throughout the country, aiding them, setting them better organized and equipped and ready to do their helpful work. These organization activities extend to every farm commodity. There are three-quarters of a million more farmers in cooperatives now than there were two years ago and the cooperatives themselves, with few exceptions, are better established. While the Board has been having a hard time in getting sales results due to the unprecedented world depression and the fact that there is no market anywhere for farm products, it has been doing a cooperative organization work, the fruits of which will be apparent as soon as times revive.

TIME FOR GOVERNMENT CHANGE

When a private business has a deficit, it begins to cast around for ways and means to increase its earning power or decrease its overhead.

Now that our Federal government is facing a gigantic deficit, many of our lawmakers are chiefly concerned with how to "increase" taxes.

Taxpayers overlook the simple fact that in times of distress, the more taxes that are taken from the people, the less money there is for productive enterprise. And it is from productive enterprise that all taxes and employment must eventually come.

Industries and individuals have been re-adjusting themselves to present conditions. Let tax-paying bodies follow the same course or add to the people that they are incompetent to adjust government expenditures to government income.

This applies to municipal and state government also.

The Way of Life

By BRUCE BARTON

OTHER PEOPLE'S SUCCESS

We went to the opening night of a play. Between the acts we were talking with the author when a friend rushed up. "It's going to be a great success, old man," he cried. "I congratulate you."

Then his expression suddenly changed. Jealously shot into his eyes. "I wish I knew how you get away with it," he exclaimed. "Why in the world can't I write a play?"

As he walked away we looked after him with pity. We know him well. We have seen him act the same way before. His whole attitude is introspective. Envy gnaws forever at his soul.

One of the most pathetic figures in the literary history of England was the author George Gissing. What was the secret of his constant unhappiness? He reveals a part of it in presenting the hero of one of his own novels.

Intensely self-conscious, he suffered from a habit of comparing, contrasting himself with men, with men who achieved things, who made their way, who played their part in the world. He could not read a newspaper without reflecting, sometimes bitterly, on the careers and position of men whose names were prominent in its columns.

Philosophers and religious teachers have attempted in various ways to account for the gross inequalities of life and to hold out future hope to those who seem to have received only a piggardly portion of happiness. Christian theology presents the promise of another world where rewards will be distributed in proportion to sacrifice, courage and fidelity to truth.

The reincarnationist holds that the soul is but a short time tenant in any human frame; that if I make spiritual progress in this incarnation I shall reappear in happier form; or, failing to progress, will be demoted to work more painfully up again.

Until we have passed across the River we shall not know which, if either, of these philosophies is true. Meanwhile, the sensible man is not afraid to face frankly the facts about life and about himself. He recognizes that he was born with certain limitations; that, however strong the desire for brilliant achievement, he has neither the talent nor the opportunity. He recognizes further that success, as the world views it, contains a very appreciable element of chance.

He surveys his own equipment and tries serenely to do the best he can with whatever he has. As he grows older and more mellow, he recognizes that every minute of jealousy poisons his own soul.

And that he can vastly increase his own pleasure by the habit of enjoying other people's success.

State News

Reductions in rates must go hand in hand with a change in service from artificial to natural gas in Springfield.

The Illinois Commerce Commission is to permit the Illinois Power company to make such a substitution. Further, such action is expected to be insisted upon by the commission in all other cities where such a service change is contemplated. This was the strong intimation left by the commission at an informal conference held recently by commissioners with representatives of the power company, the Panhandle Illinois Pipe Line company and representatives of the city of Springfield.

The conference followed hearing by the commission of the application of the Panhandle and power companies for approval of the proposed change and of a contract by which the power company will purchase natural gas from the Panhandle company. The commission also indicated to the companies that it would welcome a full showing as to costs involved in making the proposed change and all steps to be taken to bring this change about.

Further protecting the interests of the ultimate individual consumer of gas, the commission suggested that the company file with the commission, instead of a proposed contract, a schedule of rates for gas at the point where it is delivered to the power company by the Panhandle company, so that all other gas companies can purchase gas similarly at the same rate.

Governor Louis L. Emmerson has emphasized his assertion that "it is of utmost importance, and particularly at this time, that appropriations for the expenditures of state moneys be kept to the absolute minimum," by his veto of two bills that aggregate $413,000. Of this saving, $308,000 was for improvements at the Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Quincy.

The governor's veto message explained that the public welfare department's building appropriation fund, and bills sponsored by military organizations are sufficient to finance improvements recommended. A bill to provide $50,000 for memorials to Illinois soldiers who served in the war with Spain was vetoed by the governor. Of it, the veto message stated: "In my opinion, the expenditure of $50,000 for war memorials in foreign countries is however commendable in normal times, is a project which, at this particular time, in justice to the taxpayers of Illinois, should be deferred."

Stuart E. Pierson, director of the state department of agriculture, has received from the division of foods and dairies, a comprehensive study of the progress Illinois has made in pure food regulatory service since its origin in 1900. The review recalls the long career of Judge A. Hanley Jones, named food commissioner, who served in that capacity and as superintendent of the division of foods and dairies for more than a quarter of a century. Originally, Jones had a staff of 9 employees. There are now 85 inspectors, chemists and office employees in the division. In the past fiscal year fees and fines that they collected and turned into the state treasury totaled $99,725.96. The cost of the service has increased from less than $20,000 thirty years ago to more than ten times that amount at present.

Hunting licenses for the year beginning July 1, now strongly in demand, cannot be issued until legislative measures pending here have been settled, according to an announcement made by Ralph F. Bradford, director of the department of conservation. Changes in the fish and game code are contemplated in bills awaiting action. One, for example, would delay the opening of the squirrel season from July 1 to July 15. Licenses must be in line with the statutes, Bradford stated, and assures the public that the necessary forms will be available at the usual sources as soon after the decision of pending measures as conditions will permit.

That all who are sentenced to death in Illinois hereafter will pay the death penalty at Menard is contemplated in pending legislation. Sponsors of the measure hope to remove the influence of official executions from communities that now have death chambers—Cook county jail and the Joliet state prison. The plan is to erect a death house at Menard, in a secluded section of the state prison grounds. Another bill is to provide for the employment of one state executioner, who would be charged with the task of executing all who are condemned to die by any court in Illinois.

PEOPLE naturally dislike dealing with strangers in such a delicate matter as the funeral of a loved one when death occurs at a distance, or when funeral services are to be held outside this community; it is possible to make all arrangements through this local organization. We have contact with reliable funeral directors in all parts of the country, and can promise the same dependable service that we give here.

SIDELIGHTS

By MABRY B. BARNALL

This year's crop of honorary degrees has been large, as usual, many new Doctors of Laws and what not having been conferred. Unique among recent titles conferred was that of "Knight of the Kingdom of God," bestowed upon John D. Rockefeller, not by a college, but by Euclid Avenue Baptist Church of Cleveland, for his "distinguished service to humanity." Time was when the head of Standard Oil was looked upon as a prince of the lower regions.

An attack of appendicitis did not prevent the presentation of Miss Virginia Davies, daughter of the American ambassador, to King George and Queen Mary at the royal court recently. Although suffering severely, Miss Davies stuck it out until her great experience was over, then had the offending appendix removed.

A dying request that pet animals be killed need not be heeded, according to Judge Hanby of Los Angeles. As a result of his decision three fine dogs and two Persian cats will be allowed to live. They belonged to the late Mrs. Winterman, who ordered that they be killed upon her death for fear they would fall into unfriendly hands and be unhappy. Thousands of letters and telegrams were received protesting against the execution of the animals. They will be cared for by Mr. Winterman.

An unusual collision occurred on the Great Northern railway in Minnesota a few days ago, when the crack limited train Empire Builder, running at full speed, collided with a tornado. All eleven Pullmans composing the train were lifted into the air and strewn along the right of way, only the locomotive remaining on the tracks. One man was killed and twenty or more were hurt out of 119 passengers on board.

An illustration of the art of playing safe comes from Kansas City, where a strange lunch room customer casually asked the proprietor whether he would fight if someone held him up, and received this reply: "No sir; I'd put up my hands." The customer then said, "That's sensible; stick 'em up," and robbed the restaurant man of $7.

A trifle odd is the discovery that Clara Bow and John Gilbert are on the payroll of a tobacco manufacturing plant at Louisville, Ky. Stranger still is the fact that the tobacco factory Clara, like her movie-talkie namesake, is red-headed.

The name and fame of that erratic but brilliant character, William Sidney Porter, whose incomparable short stories were written under the pseudonym of "O. Henry," has been further immortalized in a biography recently published. Many of his best stories were written during his three years in the Ohio penitentiary, serving for irregularities as a bank clerk. His biographers estimate his daily consumption of whiskey in later life at two quarts; he died in 1910 at the age of 48.

PAIN

NEURALGIA, COLDS

Whenever you have some nagging ache or pain, take some tablets of Bayer Aspirin. Relief is immediate! There's scarcely ever an ache or pain that Bayer Aspirin won't relieve—and never a time when you can't take it.

The tablets with the Bayer cross are always safe. They don't depress the heart, or otherwise harm you. Use them just as often as they can ease your any pain or discomfort. Just be sure to buy the genuine. Examine the package. Beware of imitations.

Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer manufacture of non-narcotic analgesics of alkylsuccinyl.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of cold, diarrhea or minor disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure, agreeable preparation is usually all that's needed.

BOWELS

Let Dr. Caldwell help whenever your child is feverish, or upset, or has caught cold. His simple prescription will make that bilious, headachy, cross boy or girl comfortable, happy, well in just a few hours. It soon restores the bowels to healthy regularity. It helps "break-up" a cold by keeping the bowels free from all that sickening mucus waste.

You have a famous doctor's word for this laxative. Dr. Caldwell's record of having attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby is believed unique in American medical history.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggists and have it ready! Then you won't have to worry when any member of your family is headachy, bilious, gassy or constipated. Syrup Pepsin is good for all ages. It sweetens the bowels; increases appetite—makes digestion more complete.

"City of Chicago" Still Holds Long Time Flight Mark

Record Held by St. Louis Plane is Reported Withdrawn

The world's refueling endurance flight record is still officially held by Hunter Brothers who flew the City of Chicago 553 hours, 41 minutes, and 30 seconds in a flight sponsored by Wilson Herren of Barrington, which ended July 4, 1930.

The record established by John and Kenneth Hunter added more than 17 hours to the old record but it apparently passed by the boards a short time afterwards when Forrest O'Brien and Dale Jackson at St. Louis gave credit for refueling in the air on a non-stop flight for 437 hours and 22 minutes. According to a rumor reported in the last issue of the magazine, "Airway Age," the Federation Aeronautique Internationale is reported to have refused recognition of the St. Louis "records." The article in the magazine follows:

"Irregularities"

"The Federation Aeronautique Internationale is reported to have refused recognition of the refueling endurance mark established by Forrest O'Brien and Dale Jackson, who remained aloft for 437 hours and 22 minutes at St. Louis last year."

"Officials of the National Aeronautics Association, members of the F. A. I., and the record is still held by Hunter Brothers at 553 hours and 41 minutes and 30 seconds."

"Succinctly, irregularities in the flight were said to have been present while the record was still being made. They are understood to be in part as follows: Reports of the flight were not signed by an official timer. The reports also were not complete. The photograph used was not sealed. The fliers did not use a smoke chart as is required by the rules."

Reverts to Hunters

"Officials explained that while these irregularities were only technical they were sufficient to result in refusal to grant recognition."

"Barrington folk will remember the extended flight of the City of Chicago in which two of the Hunter Brothers, Fred and Albert, piloted the refueling ship.
