1938 Building Work in Lake County Goes Above Previous Year

The construction industry of Lake county area went into the instinct of this year with a contract accumulation of more than 5 million dollars. This is far above of the business level at the same point last year.

T. O. Morgan, Chicago manager of the Dodge Reports division of F. W. Dodge Corporation, released his monthly summary of coal construction activities, this morning, with comments on the highlights.

"Residential building in Lake county is well ahead of the eleven months' contract volume in 1937. In trend of the activities in recent months has been upward, with present indications of slackness.

Non-residential work is the end of the corresponding volume of last year. Heavy engineering construction by the government agencies and the utilities is not active than it was in the first 6 months' period of 1937."

A grouping of all types of construction in Lake county, reveals a eleven-months' total of $6,066,190.

All of the contracts awarded in November reached $447,900 in a 25 per cent gain over the $330,000 in November, 1937.

Residential building contracts moved to the level of $3,401,000 during the January-through-November period. The volume in these months of last year was $3,07,000.

This year's non-residential building had a November total of $916,000. Last year it was $46,000.

The non-residential contracts recorded in November by the Dodge news staff amounted to $132,000. There was a gain of 232 per cent over the corresponding 1937 total, $41,000.

Heavy engineering construction projects accounted for expenditures totaling $1,739,000 during the 11-months' period. Last year the amount for the same period was $521,000. In 1935 and 1936, November awards were $56,000 and $22,000 respectively.

Ten Measles Cases Put in Quarantine

Ten cases of measles quarantined during the holidays but local health authorities to prophecy an epidemic of the disease unless proper precautionary methods are taken by parents of children ill with the sickness or those whose children may have come in contact with illness. There are no scarlet fever cases in quarantine as yet, but it was learned one child had been in contact with the disease.

The spread of the measles cases has seen traced to one pre-school age child, it was learned, who had come in contact with school children during the holiday vacation time.

Those who were placed in quarantine during the past week were as follows: Constance Hoss, Violet Bittner, June Porter, Howard Lischarite, Robert Mueller, Jacqueline Lawrence, Jessie Ruth Witchie, John and George Hansen, Darlene Hartley, Birgit Von Malmberg.

Third in Chicago District

W. B. Winteringham of Barrington ranked third among trapshooters in the Chicago district for the year 1938, according to records of trapshooting made during the year. Dr. J. W. Stanton of Chicago was first with an average of 96.40 on 16-yard targets. Don Graham of Ingleside was second with an average of 95.88 and Mr. Winteringham was third with 94.79.

Arlington Dealers Fight Raw Milk Ban

Raw milk cannot be delivered to homes in Arlington Heights but customers wanting raw milk can get it at the producers, according to an interpretation of the milk ordinance in that community.

This interpretation was given by the village board when Jacob Gerhardt and John Piepenbrink, producers, asked for a ruling. Both men had been delivering raw milk in the village. Gerhardt accused the board of taking orders from the "Chicago Milk Trust" in passing an ordinance "contrary to the federal constitution which gives a man the right to eat and drink the kind of food he wants."

Closed Banks Return $7,700,000 in 1938

Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, today made public his annual report showing that approximately $7,700,000.00 in frozen deposits was returned to Illinois bank depositors in 1938. Of this total $5,875,000.00 went to depositors in closed banks. One hundred and twenty-five banks throughout the state made payments during the year. The larger part of these payments were made in Illinois outside Cook county, where 142 closed banks returned $1,119,000.00 to depositors. In Cook county, 53 banks returned $2,756,000.00.

In addition to these payments, $7 open banks made payments on waived deposits totaling $1,834,000.00. In these institutions depositors had waived portions of their claims in order to aid reopening of the banks following the moratorium.

Coffee Wholesalers Decide Against Site Here for Main Plant

Hills Brothers, wholesalers of coffee, considered one or two tracts of land in Barrington, as well as property in other suburbs as possible sites for location of its main plant which will be removed from Chicago, according to a report received here last week.

Barrington has been dropped as a possible location, it was learned Tuesday. An unverified report was to the effect that the new plant will be built near Elmhurst.

Oldest Town Road Commissioner Dies

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 this afternoon for Herman Garms, Wheeling township road commissioner who died Monday morning at his home in Wheeling.

Mr. Garms, who was 81 years old September 11, and who had served as road commissioner for 56 years, was reported to have held that type of public office longer than any other township official in Illinois.

He started as overseer of roads in 1882, and when the title was changed to "commissioner," he was kept on the job.

Wins Picture Award
