centers of the world. The speaker had his audience in rapture at the start by reading some of the ridiculous letters and telegrams he receives in his "fan-mail" and then held his listeners in keyed interest throughout the lecture by his forceful presentation. The seating capacity of the auditorium was completely filled and overflow crowds listened to loud speakers in the assembly room, the Methodist and Baptist churches.

Special musical entertainment was furnished by a male quartet composed of George Cameron, E. W. Piagge, Io Shepard and Charles Eisner.

Dr. E. DeWitt Jones

The lives of early American statesmen, their contributions to the foundations of our government and the perpetuation of personal liberty demanded by them for future generations were discussed by Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones when he addressed the Town Warming program at the public school auditium Thursday night on "Adventures among Great Americans."

George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Daniel Webster, John Adams, Henry Clay, Abraham Lincoln, Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were reviewed by the speaker as being among those who devoted a lifetime to the founding of a democracy and to its successful continued application.

Starting with Washington, Dr. Jones reviewed his early life which gave to him the characteristics so beneficial when it became time to lead the revolutionary forces and later serve as first president of the United States. Dr. Jones pointed out that Washington recognized the merits and ideas of his fellowmen and as an example placed Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton in the first cabinet, both men being of opposite viewpoints.

Thomas Jefferson, Dr. Jones stated, was a far different kind of man from Washington but was as equally conscious of the principles of freedom which the early colonists sought. Jefferson was pointed out by the speaker as being the champion of five bills of private freedom—freedom of property, freedom of estates from litigation, freedom of slaves, freedom of mind and freedom of soul.

The tremendous eloquent appeal that Daniel Webster possessed made him of particular value to this country during its formative period, Dr. Jones related; then gave excerpts of speeches and incidents to illustrate Webster's qualities.

Another orator, Henry Clay was presented to the audience Thursday night by Dr. Jones, who stated the Town Warming program was "so typically an American experiment."

In discussing Abraham Lincoln, Dr. Jones called him the "uncommon commoner" and stated "this man climbed his rugged pathway to the stars." Lincoln's life was divided into four divisions by the speaker—the first seven years in Kentucky, 14 years in Indiana, 31 years in Illinois and four "purgatorial" years in Washington. Concluding his discourse on Lincoln he reviewed Ingersoll's tribute to the former president—"He is the gentlest memory of the world."

Dr. Jones in concluding his address touched briefly upon the lives of Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, in conclusion he said: "Upon this globe we call the earth there is not a country such as this where there is free speech, free press and free pulpit. Thank God for America."

"The Shining Hour" Is Week-End Bill at Catlow Theatre

"Captains Courageous" Will Return Wednesday for One Day Showing

Roland Young and Billie Burke join voices in a duet in a scene of "The Young of Heart," which comes to the Catlow theatre Friday and Saturday. The two film players went into their song with other members of the cast, which stars Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Paulette Goddard, applauding on the sidelines.

The song is a light little ditty taken from the old English music hall days, titled, "Algy, the Piccadilly Johnny." The music is the original, but new words were supplied. "The Young in Heart" is comedy-romance not a musical. Young and Miss Burke are called upon to sing their song in the cold, gray dawn of a railroad station scene, when family spirits are at their lowest.

Heralded as one of the outstanding productions of the season, "The Shining Hour" with Joan Bennett, Margaret Sullavan Robert Young and Melvyn Douglas opens a two day showing at the Catlow Sunday.

Based on the New York stage success by Keith Winter, the drama presents Joan Crawford in her first dancing role since "Dancing Lady." "The Shining Hour" is the story of a dancing star who attempts to escape from her surroundings through marriage with a Kansas farmer. The resulting family entanglements provide a plot rich in dramatic action.

Five of the strongest and most rugged stars in all Hollywood were enlisted for leading roles in "The Storm," coming to the Catlow Tuesday.

In order to secure Charles Bickford, Barton MacLane, Preston Foster, Andy Devine and Frank Jenks, all at the same time, Producer Ken Goldsmith waited nearly a month before starting the film.

On the double feature bill on Tuesday with "The Storm," is "Beloved Brat," starring Sonia Granville, with Dolores Costello and Donald Crisp.

On Wednesday for one night only, there will be a return request engagement showing of "Captains Courageous," with Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney and Lionel Barrymore.
