PLENTY FOR THE BOSSES

"Many WPA workers have been fired and many of them so-called 40's, which every WPA worker knows about, state 'discharged for lack of funds.' Yet, money was available for salary raises for the project bosses. The pay rolls of the 1936-37 fiscal year compared with the pay rolls of the 1938-39 fiscal year finds hundreds and hundreds of WPA bosses receiving salaries of from, three, four, five, six, and even seven thousand dollars per year. There are 225 in the city of Chicago, who received $2500 a year and up to $7000 a year, which is a most disgraceful thing and is one of the blackest pages ever written in the history of this government.

"How will we put men back to work? Give business and industry a sound and reasonable profit. Cut the rolls fast down to earth; return sanity to government; stop the fraud, graft and corruption. Encourage business and industry and you will see men go back to work in the United States at decent wages without having to sit at the door of some wealthy neelers' office for a job or for food." Richard J. Lyons speaking at Salem, Ill., July 25.

This Week in WASHINGTON

By RALPH E. CHURCH
Representative, 10th Congressional District

Washington, D. C., July 24.—The new deal has often been accused of operating one of the largest political propaganda machines ever established. It is a known fact, hardly open to question, that the enormous number of new offices created in the last six years have been filled by the new deal faithful, not always as a reward for past political services but in preparation for the next election. The individual "purge movement" brought in light how this extensive political machine, financed by the American people generally, can be made to operate even against democratic senators and congressmen Roosevelt and his new deal chiefs decide among themselves who should represent the party and the people. It caused a "rebellion" and congress has decided to take steps (we'll remember) ending the evil.

The so-called Hatch bill is an example. In substance it is designed to restrain government employees from using their official authority to coerce and influence voters, and to coerce and intimidate voters. It is designed to put a stop to the unfortunate evil which is among this measure is the answer of congress to the purge." I seriously doubt that a measure of this character would have passed congressional support it has received were it not for the purge experience. Certainly as a strictly partisan measure it would not have a chance of enactment.

Bit by bit, in one way and another, in the administration executive control and bureaucratic interpretations, Roosevelt is actually placing a check on the new deal. Transferring relief appropriations, agencies and bureaus. The Hatch bill is the most conspicuous example, but others are sure to be overlooked.

In the post office department appropriation bill of this session one will find a very significant provision. It was inserted in the bill at the request of Postmaster General Jim Farley. It reads:

"No expenditure shall be authorized to know how much this means to them in dollars and cents. They have been paying the postage.

"In the estimated revenue lost to the government from the free transportation of materials sent by the various departments and bureaus was $5,527,780. Ten years later, in 1938, that figure had grown to the sum, of $25,650,807. Since the new deal has come into power the daily average of the number of packages of free mail has increased free by the department is estimated as of 2,182,702.

The official figures show that in the four years, from 1933 to 1937, the total cost to the taxpayers of the departmental literature—the paper, printing and lost postage revenue—has been $275,951,424. It has represented a daily cost of $150,000.

It is a known fact, hardly open to question, that a very large percentage of the literature which has been mailed by the departments has not been, strictly speaking, an official character but rather simply of a propaganda nature. It has been designed, not to present an accurate account of a particular department's work, but rather to paint a colorful picture of its great merits and accomplishments.

The congress adopted the amendment of Senator O'Mahoney and thereby placed a check on the new deal propaganda machine. Add to "purge" has been another wholesome results. It placed congress in a better mood to place a rein on the new deal political propaganda machine.

Aerial Photos Used in AAA Farm Program

Aerial photographic enlargements are being used in this county for the first time this year in check performance in connection with the 1939 AAA farm program, according to Henry D. Gray, member of the County Agricultural Conservation committee.

These photographs were taken in 1938 under a special contract with commercial aerial photographers. The airplane from which they were taken flew at 14,000 feet when the photo was taken.

A special aerial camera designed for this type of work is used for taking the pictures which are snapped through an opening in the floor of the plane. The airplane flies back and forth across the county so every other section line taking a picture about every 15 to 20 miles apart.

Each photographic enlargement covers an area of land of about six square miles. Since every photograph overlaps the one next to it on all sides, from any single three square miles not coverage in each photograph.

The fields are measured from the enlargements and a copy of a specially designed instrument called a planimeter which can measure fields of irregular size and shape as easily as it can square fields.

Great care is taken in making the pictures to have them accurate in every detail. Experience has shown that aerial photographic measurements are much more satisfactory than ordinary land measurements. Furthermore, less time is required for determining acreage, especially on rough land.

Fully 1,000 feet of which will be photographic enlargements this year will be in operation in order the farm program. The other enlargements will be used for photographed this year
