NOTES OF THE MODES.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE CEN-TERS OF FASHION.

Old-Fashloned Bonnets Are in Vogue Again-Seen at a Wedding-A French Design-Colors for Elderly Ladies.

LD - FASHIONED bonnets are in vogue again for small girls all the way from 3 to 12 years old, and prove to be very becoming. The model sketched is of fine chip, trimmed with dainty Dresden figured gauze ribbon made into soft flaringknots that mount behind the curved poke brim and finish the quaint bobbed-off back of the bonnet. Ties of the ribbon fasten in a soft bow under the chin, and against the hair under the brim there is another knot of gauze. A spray of wild flowers is set loosely on the top of the bonnet, and a close quilling of the ribbon about the brim adds width and softness to the effect. Nothing could be daintier, andwhisper—the 18-year-old sister will look a dream in this same bonnet, if she is only crafty enough to borrow it when she wants to make a specal impression on the handsomest man in the world. The soft hair is tied in against the cheeks when the bonnet is in place, and delicate blending of colors in ribbon, straw, and flowers makes the face framed in the wide brim look like a sweet, wild rose, whether it is the 3, the 12, or the crafty 18 year old's. The very high crowned sailor is becoming to no one, no matter what their age, and fearfully undignified on any one past first youth. So, if you invested in such a one, better confess it a mistake and either give up a sailor entirely this season, or try again and buy a moderate crown and a brim to match. The bands of sailor hats are elaborated this year by putting a second band on, only a third as wide as the first. All combinations of color are admissible, the wide band white and the narrow one yellow being often seen. - A few hats have been shown with the narrow band buckling with a jeweled pin.-Florette in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Colors for Elderly Ladies.

Very light colors bring out the faded appearance of a face, and black is deadening in effect, unless relieved by lavender, cream, dark red, etc., writes Emma M. Hooper in a page devoted to "Fashions for Elderly Women," in the Ladies' Home Journal. All materials are worn by ladies past their youth, and such trimmings as jet, colored passementerie, lace, and a moderate amount of ribbons. In selecting materials avoid broad stripes and plaids, as they attract too much attention. Black, dark and medfum brown, medium and stone gray, dark green, garnet, lavender, violet, reddish purple, cream, navy blue, a bit of cardinal or yellow in millinery are all allowable for elderly matrons and spinsters. White can be worn in the house at any age, but the duller colors are more appropriate for the street. Large bonnets are only worn by very old ladies. The toque bonnets with strings are equally suitable for them. A black lace, straw, felt or jet toque with number seven black velvet ribbon tied under the chin, black tips, lace-black or white-and a bit of color, as a velvet rosette or flower, is always becoming over gray hair and not too gay for even a grandmother. A black net veil, with few if any dots, and black, brown, tan, dark or light gray kid gloves are among the necessary items of an elderly lady's tollette. Nowadays the full capes reaching well around the hips are convenient for them in black satin or cloth, velvet or brown ladies' cloth,

Seen at a Wedding.

At a recent wedding party these gowns were worn: By the bride, white faille with plaited chiffon vest bordered with duchess lace. By the bride's mother, light-gray satin with a panel in the front of the skirt ornamented with a four-looped satin bow near the bottom; the bodice had a blouse trimming of jet, strangs confined at the waist with a satin belt and reaching only to the bust, where an immense jet butterfly perched and stretched his wings. Lace epaulets stood out over the immense satin sleeves and the collar was of satin like the belt and bow on the skirt. One bridesmaid's gown was made of fine striped silk in a blue and gray tint. The skirt was perfectly plain; the bodice was a blouse with a wide collar edged with white lace points. Her hat was round and rather flat, but had loops of ribbon standing up high at one side of the front; around the crown of this hat chiffon was knotted in a manner much affacted fust now. Rosettes or fans of chiffon are also much used on this season's hats, by the way. Another bridesmaid wore the costume shown here. The skirt had a strip of lace running up each side with three rosettes on each. The waist was chiefly lace, which formed the yoke-cut very long on the shoulders-the three strips reaching from the yoke to the waist and the gathered epaulets over the large sleeve puffs. It might have been called a lace wedding.-The Latest in Chicago Daily

Of French Design.

The numerous alpaca and canvas gowns seem to foretell the decline of crepon, yet the latest reports from Paris are to the effect that all the new materials being manufactured for winter use are creped in novel designs, and either striped, plaited, or changeable in color. Meanwhile the gowns in evidence, and not those of the future, attract our immediate attention. The novel dress illustrated is of French design, for a garden party and other outdoor functions. It is carried out in pale pink crepon combined with blue miroir velvet ribbon. This forms the loop trimming on the skirt, headed by a band of beaded lace, which also finishes the blue velvet yoke, neck and waist. Jet strings fall from the yoke White chiffon to the belt in front.

waists are worn with white taffeta, moire, and crepon skirts, making the daintiest sort of summer gowns for afternoon wear. A pretty example shown has a sort of stole collar of white net, embroidered with fine sequins in black, silver, and pearls.

Short Gowns Are Coming.

We are certainly drifting toward the short gowns of our ancestresses, for morning costumes are made to clear the foot completely, but this is only the thin edge of the wedge. The very amplitude of our garments will make it impossible for them not to be short for The wadded cord outdoor wear. vet or silk or the sedate three folds on the cross are the favorite trimming for skirts, except a few, which are slashed with white satin on the hips and at the hem. Many cloth skirts are severely plain. The black mohair crepon skirts, now so much worn, are made quite simply, but they are lined throughout with silk and have double and triple flounces of picked-out taffeta as a balayeuse. The petticoats are very full and flounced at the back; instead of being drawn in with a running string, bands of ribbon are placed at a certain distance from each other longitudinally, and a rather wide ribbon is passed through these straps, which ties in a bow, confining all the fullness at the back by a handsome bow.-Ex.

Answering Invitations.

When a gentleman and his wife are invited and do not go to a reception, all that is necessary to represent them is their visiting cards. A man and his wife have separate visiting cards, those uniting the names being seen very seldom nowadays. A wedding invitation should receive some recognition; a courteous little note containing either an acceptance or a regret would seem to be the proper way in which to acknowledge this civility. When a lady and her daughter send out cards for an afternoon tea, one would send, if one did not go, a card for each.

Notes of the Modes.

Broadcloths come in pretty shades of red and brown and green and pinkish tans.

Beautiful made-up ribbon bretelles and girdles, arranged over elastic to remain in shape, are a novelty.

Buttons of a white enamel set with a single tiny brilliant are beautiful for trimming white and ecru linen gowns. Narrow lay-down collars and cuffs of hemstitched linen or cambric are the latest thing for accessories on dark cloth costumes.

Black lace and insertion on sheer white costumes is a new wrinkle in fashion's domain.

For trimming white dresses the first favor is given to Dresden ribbon having a white ground and pink, blue or rosy-violet flower designs. Although feathers will be largely used this summer, flowers will continue to be the most popular trimming for all kinds of millinery models. Coarse black net over silk is used in fashioning the bodices of stylish midsummer costumes. The skirt is of the silk, untrimmed. White tucking is coming in again for children's frocks. Combined with white or colored beading and satin baby ribbon, it is very pretty for yokes, guimpes and plastrons. Fair shoppers should avail themselves of the opportunity of buying white skirts at the annual underwear sales now taking place in all the stores. White skirts are indispensable in this summer's wardrobe.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate The Department of the Farm-A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

HE GROWING poultry should be pushed to maturity. Unless the pullets are well matured before cold weather, they will not lay before spring. If your are raising turkeys and ducks for the fall

market remember it is the large fowls that bring the most money, and they should be forced in growth as much as possible. The faster they grow the better the meat, and the larger they grow the more money they will bring. Do not feed corn; the object now is growth, not fat. Bran is an excellent food for growing fowls, but it should be well scalded or it will cause bowel trouble.

Do not induce the hen to wean the chicks early. The chicks that remain with the hen until they are well feathered will grow faster and thrive better in every way than when the hen leaves them early. As a rule, old hens will not wean their chicks until they are pretty well grown, and for this reason old hens make better mothers than do

Be sure to keep the growing pullets free from lice, as that pest in itself is the cause of more deaths among growing poultry than anything else. If growth has been checked by the presence of lice the young fowls will always be less vigorous than they would have been if they had not been infected with them. Thick, sweet cream is better to grease the heads of young fowls afflicted with lice than melted lard; it will kill the lice and not injure the fowl, as lard is apt to do.

A very critical time for grawing poul-try is the time they shed their downy covering and before they are fully feathered. At this time they should be well fed and kept well sheltered at night and during damp weather. They are more liable to roup at this time, and exposure to cold and dampness is apt to result in this fatal disease.

Lime water and sweet milk will assist in feathering. A diet that will greatly assist in feathering is prepared as follows: To a pint of boiling sweet milk add two well-beaten eggs, let boil until the consistency of jelly, add a dash of red pepper. When given to the fowls place in a cool place in the shade to prevent its becoming sour.

Grit of some kind is as essential for of the requirements of nature. Place grit where they can get at it and see how eagerly they devour it, and you will be convinced that it is a necessary part of their bill of fare. The lack of grit will cause indigestion and bowel trouble. A constant supply of it within reach all the time will cause them to consume more food and thereby make a more rapid growth and reach maturity earlier.

It is important for growing fowls to have shade, where they can retreat out of the hot sun. The extreme heat of the sun is debilitating to growing fowls and will retard growth. Ducklings are very sensitive to the heat of the sun.-Farm, Stock and Home.

Care of Ducklings.

These little animated, orange feathered-downed, we should say-objects have very little reed of a mother, except to brood them at night, and except they are hatched quite early, when the weather is cool. A good-sized hen can care for a large flock of them—as many as fifteen or twenty, perhaps. When first hatched, it is better to confine them in a low, movable pen made of boards, say six inches wide, and any length convenient. The pen may be made either square or in the shape of a triangle. In either case it is a wise plan to nail thin boards across the corners, thus affording the ducklings a shelter and refuge from sudden storms and the sun. If the coop be placed where some tree will throw its shadow across it so much the better. This is especially necessary after the latter part of May. Water, in shallow vessels, should be plentifully supplied, and in order that one may be perfectly sure that the birds will be all right in the morning, an empty barrel should be placed on its side within the pen, with a nicely-fitted and ventilated cover for a door, and the ducklings closed within this temporary yet quite serviceable structure, otherwise one may be missing in the morning. It is better to keep them within this enclosure until they are large enough to get out, by which time they will take care of themselves. The enclosure can be shifted about, so that the ground need not become befouled.

Ducklings are not very particular in the matter of food, as they will relish and thrive upon the coarsest fare, provided only that it is always given fresh and sweet. The following is a formula for a model food for young ducklings: Ground white oats, sifted, three parts; sharps, four parts; bran, one part; ground oil meal, one part. When using it, first mix the different ingredients in a dry state, then take only a sufficient quantity of the mixture for one feeding, and after salting it slightly, scald thoroughly with boiling water, and when cool enough, feed. It should not be wet enough to be sloppy, but only sufficient to soften and swell the broken grains.-Mark Lane Express.

Blessed is the farmer who revels in fried chicks this early in the season.

Oleomargarine vs. Butter. These arc some figures given out by the Produce Exchange, Chicago: In 1894, in the United States, there were manufactured 70,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine, equal to the product of 500,000 cows, of which, in Illinois, there were made about 60,000,000 pounds, equal to the product of 450,000 cows.

During the above period, the agricultural producer for the raw material entering into a pound of butter received sixteen (16) cents, while under the same conditions, for the raw material entering into a pound of oleomargarine he received three (3) cents. This difference represents a loss of thirteen (13) cents on every pound of oleo sold and consumed as butter—over $8,000,000 in the United States and $7,500,000 in Illinois. It is a consérvative estimate that eighty (80) to ninety-five (95) per cent of the oleo consumed is consumed as and for butter at the price of but-of a pound of butter. It is further true that it is the yellow color or the shade of yellow color artificially given to oleo that enables it to be sold and consumed as butter at the price of butter.

In other words, it is the means whereby the fraud is committed and the public deceived.

The consumer is thus defrauded and cheated—but everybody is a consumer, therefore in this connection the terms nsumer and the public are one and the same thing.

But legislation seeking to protect the public from fraud is not class legislation, and it is further true, that legislation against fraud is not class legisla-

Whenever a pound of oleo is sold at the price of butter, a fraud has been committed-committed not only on the producer who is deprived of an opportunity to earn sixteen (16) cents and in its place has an opportunity to earn only three (3) cents, but also on the consumer who pays the sixteen (16) cents and gets only the value of three (3) cents in return.

Therein lies the fraud.

An Ideal Dairy.

Probably the most ideal dairy in existence is that of the Princess of Wales, in which not only she, but her various daughters, have learned to make the most perfect of butter. The walls are covered with tiles presented to the Prince of Wales, who placed them here as a surprise to the royal dairymaids. They were made in Bombay, and are of a deep peacock blue, the rose, shamrock, and thistle being intertwined, with the motto, "Ich dien."

A white marble counter running around the room holds silver pans of milk from the Alderneys grazing without. Above this on broad bracket shelves of marble is a collection, in every imaginable material, of cows, bullocks, and calves; Italian and Parian marble; alabaster, porcelain, terra cotta, and sil-Grit of some kind is as essential for ver—all gifts. A long milk can, paint-young poultry as for adults. It is one ed by the Princess Louise to match the Indian tiling, stands in one corner, and opposite is the head of the Princess' pet Alderney, with a silver plate recording her virtues. Here the Princess sometimes churns in a silver churn, and in the next room the butter for the family is made and sent up fresh every morning when they are in London. The day's supply is made up into little pats and serolls all ready for the table, and the Prince requires a special order of pats. Not a grain of salt is allowed in them, and they are made the size of a half dollar and the thickness of three, with either the crown, the coat of arms or the three feathers stamped on each.-Ex.

How to Keep Cheese.

Cheese must not be kept in a warm and dry place. The best place is a cellar such as would be called dry, which will anyhow have some moisture in it. and some is necessary to the proper keeping of cheese. Darkness is preferable to light, and a low temperature, but lower than 55 degrees, is desirable. The cheese will become moldy on the outside; the mold is permitted until the surface is covered, when it is scraped off and the cheese is washed with water at 80 degrees and all the mold is removed. It is then wiped dry and greased with sweet oil, or butter, unsalted, to fill the pores in the crust. It is thus left for a few weeks and this is repeated. In this way the cheese slowly changes its character, improving all the time in flavor and texture. It becomes fatty by the change of some of the caseine into a kind of fatty matter. and a peculiar mild aroma is produced quite different from the intolerable smell of the coarse kinds of semi-putrid cheese known as Limburger, or some of the overcured German cheese. The curing described is that practiced with the Brie and the Roqueford cheese, as well as that finest of all kinds, the English Stilton. As a rule we do not give requisite attention to curing our cheese. and hence its want of high quality. The curing of cheese is a slow process that requires skillful control, or it becomes decomposition.

Butter Demand.-The people of the United States eat on the average about four pounds of butter for each bushel of wheat consumed as food. From this it is easy to see that so far as the home market is concerned butter brings the farmer more money than wheat, and yet there are some folks who think the dairy industry, which includes the sale of milk for food, and the manufacture of cheese as well as of butter, is not of very much importance as compared with wheat raising.

Pretty Girls of Ire and.

"Do you know how very pretty a pretty Irish girl is?" asks a well-known and enthusiastic writer. "She is tall and slender. Crisp little black curls lie against her white neck. Her skin is clear red and white, and her fine black brows and curved lashes accentuate it. "And then her eyes! Why should poets sing of the languorous orbs of oriental houris or the violet eyes of the fair women of the north when the Irish girl has them all at one and the same time? Starry eyes that sparkle and

A Slave From Boyhood.

(From the Red Wing, Minn., Republican.

"I am now twenty-four years old." said Edward Swanson, of White Rock, Goodhue County, Minn., to a Republican representative, "and as you can see I am not very large of stature. When I was eleven years old I became afflicted with a sickness which baffled the skill and knowledge of the physician. I was not taken suddenly ill but on the contrary I can hardly state the exact time when it began. The first symptoms were pains in my back and restless nights. The disease did not trouble me much at first, but it seemed to have settled in my body to stay and my bitter experience during the last thirteen years proved that to be the case. I was of course a child and never dreamed of the sufferings in store for me. I complained g to my parents and they concluded that in time I would outgrow my trouble, but when they heard me groaning during my sleep they became thoroughly alarmed. Medical advice was sought but to no avail, I grew sapidly worse and was soon unable to move about and finally became confined continually to my bed. The best doctors that could be had were consulted, but did nothing for me. I tried various kinds of extensively advertised patent medicines with but the same result.

"For twelve long years I was thus a sufferer in constant agony without respite, abscesses formed on my body in rapid succession and the world indeed looked very dark to me. About this time when all hope was gone and nothing seemed left but to resign myself to my most bitter fate my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Like a drowning man grasping at a straw, in sheer desperation I concluded to make one more attempt—not to regain my health (I dare not to hope so much) but if possible to ease my pain.

"I bought a box of the pills and they seemed to do me good. I felt encouraged and continued their use. After taking six boxes I was up and able to walk around the nouse. I have not felt so well for thirteen years as during the past year. Only one year have I taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am able now to do chores and attend to light

"Do I hesitate to let you publish what I have said? No. Why should I? It is the truth and I am only too glad to let other sufferers know my experience. It may help those whose cup of misery is as full to-day as mine was in the past."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements neces-sary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. V.

FATHER AND SON KILLED IN A SHOOTING FRAY.

Drunken Man Does Bloody Work in Versailles Hotel-Bloomington, Ill., Young Lady Assaulted by a Negro Fiend-Other Criminal News.

At Varsailles, Ky., Shortly after o'clock Monday afternoon, W. N. Lane, a fence dealer, of Lexington, Ky., shot and killed James Rodenbaugh and mortally wounded H. C. Rodenbaugh, father of James at the Hotel Woodford.

Early in the morning Lane, who was drunk, arrived from Lexington and applied at the Hotel Woodford, of which H. C. Rodenbaugh is the proprietor, for a room in which to sleep off his drunk. He was given a good front room. Shortil after 4 o'clock in the afternoon Lane came down stairs and, addressing H. C. Rodenbaugh, said: "The room you gave me is not fit for a hog." Rodenbaugh said: "The room was very nice until after you had been in it."

This enraged Lane and made him more violent. Just then James Rodenbaugh, aged 22, son of the proprietor, and a cripple, came in with a revolver in his hand, and, addressing Lane, said: "Get out of here; you shall not abuse my old father in that way."

Lane instantly drew his revolver and fired, sending a ball through the young man's neck, cutting the jugular vein. As James Rodenbaugh fell, he fired at Lane. His aim was unsteady, and the ball barely grazed Lane's left breast, plowing along the side. More furious than ever, Lane rushed up to the old man and at close range sent a bullet through his mouth into the base of his brain, and still another into his spine the wishes of the commission. It is exas he fell by the dead body of his young pected that the legislatures of the differ-

SOLDIERS INJURED.

Cannon Fired as a Salute by Knights of Pythias Does Damage.

Springfield, O., Aug. 6 .- A cannon fired as a salute from a Knights of Pythias excursion train yesterday struck a passing train carrying the Third regiment, Ohio National guard, Colonel Charles S. Anthony, commanding, resulting in the serious injury of a number of the soldiers. Three men were more or less cut about the head. Two little boys, "mascots," had their faces shot completely full of powder and were in great agony. Two of the soldiers were made deaf, probably beyond recovery. Another will lose his eyesight. One man was sitting with his face between his hands, looking out of the window and received the discharge full in the face. He is seriously burned about the face, head and arm:. Some twenty more had their faces partly filled with the powder. The train stopped but a moment here, and then hurried on to Dayton, where the injured were taken care of.

The negro accosted her and made a villainous proposition, and, upon her turning to flee, struck her in the back, so injuring her that she did not regain consciousness for nearly an hour, when she came to her senses in a dark alley. The purpose of the scoundrel was not accomplished, but Miss Nicklin was so severely injured and so overcome by the shock that it is doubtful if she can recover. The outrage has created intense excitement.

M'AFEE MURDER MYSTERY.

Tramp Under Arrest Identified as a Discharged Insane Patient.

Lincoln, Ill., Aug. 6.-The mystery surrounding the murder of Lewis Mc-Afee on Sunday, July 21, near here, is explained. McAfee was shot dead on his porch, the assassin escaped, and a vigorous search resulted in the arrest of Charles King, claiming Kingston, Tenn., as his home. King confessed to being Joseph Leonard Giles, from Scio. Harrison county, Ohio. Correspondence received has verified his statements and established the further fact that he had been discharged from the Ohio state insane asylum at Columbus. He has been identified as the roaming tramp in Menard county, this state, who demanded coffee from a farmer's wife at the point of a pistol and was chased away by the indignant farmer armed with a Winchester. Later he appeared at another farmer's place, and upon being refused food said he wanted to kill someone and brandished a pistol. The farmer fled and saved his life. Giles is weakening and will make a complete confession.

He went over all his books to see if he could find what ailed them, but in

At last he called in one of his neighbors, and, showing him the thin and weak surviving chicks, asked:

"What do you suppose is the matter with those chickens? "Well, I dunno," said the farmer;

"what do you feed 'em on?" "Feed them? Why, I don't feed them on anything!"

Then how did you expect they were goin' to live?" "Why, I supposed the old hens had milk enough for them."

New Law on Chattel Mortgages.

It is probably a fact, startling as it may appear, that nine-tenths of the chattel mortgages executed in Illinois since the first of July are absolutely void. The fact arises out of the popular ignorance of one of the statutes passed by the Thirty-ninth General well's compilation, one section of which reads as follows:

"All notes secured by chattel mortgages shall state upon their face that they are so secured, and when assigned by the payee therein named, shall be subject to all defenses existing between the payee and the payor of said notes the same as if the said notes were held by the payee therein named, and any chattel mortgage securing notes which do not state upon their face the fact of such security shall be absolutely void."

This is an entirely new provision. and little has been said of it in the public prints. The law is just and good, but it is likely to work much harm if not brought to the attention of the public and of lawyers engaged in drawing up such papers.

There is another section of the same law which provides how sales shall be made under chattel mortgages. All sales of personal property under such mortgages must hereafter be made in the county where the mortgagor resides or where the property is situated when mortgaged. The only exception made is one in favor of furniture sold by regular dealers on the installment plan. In cases where there is more than one mortgagor, the mortgagee before selling the property, must give days before the sale. Moreover, after-METHODIST EPISCOPAL. - Rev. T. Devil's Lake, Wisconsin.

This popular and renowned resort is thirty-four miles northwest of Madison, and is reached only by the Chicago & North-Western railway.

The lake is one of the most wonderful and interesting spots on the American continent. Here, ages ago, probably some mighty internal convulsion rent the earth's surface and piled the various strata of rock, of immense size, to heights of from 300 to 600 feet, and deposited it in almost every conceivable shape and form. Within the basin thus formed lies nestled a beautiful, placid lake of pure, clear water. which reflects on its mirror-like surface the rugged and awe-inspiring barriers that environ it. It has no apparent inlet or outlet. Mountainous precipices surround the take on every side, except at two points where narrow defiles or passes are formed, one at the southern end where the railroad enters the lake basin, and the other at the northern end where it makes its exit. On every side of the lake, except at these two points can be seen rocks piled upon rocks in every conceivable form. Columns, pillars, piles, masses and bowlders, in size from the smallest pebbles to the largest sized rocks, are piled to enormous heights, forming a picture that the most briltiant efforts of pen or brush fail to de-

The railroad runs along the shore of the lake on a bed that was literally blasted out of the solid rock sides of the mountain. From the car windows all the beauties of the wonderful and mysterious region can be plainly seen. The varied and romantic scenery, tastily built cottages and hotels surrounding the lake, together with the excellene fishing, boating, bathing and riding facilities render this emphatically one of the grandest and most enjoyable and delightful resorts in America. It has a lasting attraction for tourists, who return to it again and again, year after year, to admire and enjoy it, and to wonder and study over its remarkable, grand and beautiful surround- All the News of Lake County.

A Bridgeport clergyman thanked God in a sermon last spring that there had been frost enough to destroy the apple blossoms in the neighborhood, and hoped that it would destroy every apple blossom throughout the length of the land, so that there would be no cider, This would, no doubt, be very helpful to the cause of temperance, but it would be more to the point if the minister had prayed for a blight on the corn and rye crops. The grapes seem to have suffered sufficiently already to satisfy the most devout of prohibitionists, but the blackberries gooseberries and currants should not be forgotten.

Even as virtue is its own reward, so the bloomer brings its own punishment. Witness the case of Miss Fuhr, of New York. She wore bloomers, doubtfully at first, of course, but with increasing hardihood and confidence. At length the bloomers entirely won her confidence. She even put her money in the right-hand breeches pocket of them. Then came a robber in the night and demanded her money or her life. Speechless with fright she pointed to the bloomers-those blue, shapeless, treacherous bloomers. The robber thrust his hand in the pocket, drew out the money and fled. If Mamie Fuhr had worn a skirt and put her money in the pocket of it the robber would have been looking for the pocketbook still. Women will find out sooner or later that the bloomer is as a broken reed to lean upon.

THE MOB STILL RULES

RIOTERS IN CONTROL AT SPRING VALLEY, ILL.

Negro Miners Warned Not to Return to the Town-Authorities Seem Unwilling to Take Steps Toward Ending the

Princeton, Ill., Aug. 6.-The rioters and the lawless still hold sway in Spring Valley. No arrests or attempts at arrest have been made. The mobs commenced operations yesterday by stopping work at the various coal shafts and during the entire day the streets swarmed with men and further depredations are expected at any moment. All day both sides engaged in the bloody riots of Sunday have been organizing their men and preparing for further displays of force. The aid of the law as yet has not been successfully evoked on either side and if the belligerent parties attempt to carry out the resolutions adopted by them bloodshed cannot be avoided. It has been impossible to locate the following negroes in addition to those reported injured, several of whom, it is positively asserted, are lying dead in the ravines surrounding Spring Valley on the west: WASHINGTON ANDERSON, aged

47 years. ARCHIBALD FLEMING, aged 25

SAMUEL JOHNSON, aged 30 years. LEWIS MARTIN, aged 35 years. ROBERT NELSON, aged 33 years.

JACK STONE, aged 42 years. Several of the above are known to have been shot and badly injured, and two young ladies who came to town late last evening reported that they saw the prostrate form of a negro lying in the woods west of town. They made an unsuccessful effort to arouse him. Marshal Hicks of Spring Valley says he is satisfied that one or more bodies will be found in the woods between Spring Valley and Marquette. A searching party is being organized to start out from Seatonville at once. The immense whistles at the various coal shafts were blown yesterday, giving the signal that work would be done in the mines, and large numbers of miners turned out with their dinner pails, but were confronted on the highways leading to the shafts by Italians armed with rifles and the various small arms used in the riots Sunday, who ordered them back to their homes. The order was universally obeyed, though most of the English speaking miners desired to work. At a secret meeting of the Italians held at midnight last night the plan of stopping the men from working was arranged; also a call for a mass meeting of the miners was issued, to be held at the lumber yard adjoining the Rock Island depot, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Over 2,000 men assembled at the appointed hour, and the situation was freely discussed, nearly all of the speeches being in a foreign tongue. The coal company was roundly denounced, and much inflammatory language used. One speaker said if the murdered Italian was a relative of his he would not stop with the negroes, but would settle it once and effectively with Manager Dalzell, of the coal company, who, he said, deserved all the blame, as he had brought the negroes here. After an hour of general discussion a resolution was adopted giving the remnant of the negroes left until 5 o'clock this evening in which to leave the city, and to carry off their effects. Any effects left after that time will be declared confiscated and destroyed.

A committee was appointed to organize the Italians and see that instructions were carried out. Another committee was appointed to wait upon Manager Dalzell to demand the discharge of all negroes and to agree to employ no new ones for the present. The committee immediately called at Mr. Dalzell's office and stated their grievances. Mr. Dalzell, in reply, said he had nothing to say on the subject, and that it was a matter he wouldn't discuss. The committee retired with no assurances. During the remainder of the day the streets were crowded with men discuss, ing the situation. The situation is serious. The foreign element has declared that no man, either black or white, shall return to work until the coal company agreees to discharge every colored man in its employ, and also to hire no men of either race until idle men of Spring Valley shall be given employment.

The negroes now propose to return to their homes and continue in their employment in the mines of the coal company. They held a mass meeting at 10 o'clock yesterday in the Union church at Seatonville, where the negroes are rendezvousing, and voted to remain at Seatonville until their men were organized and then return to the valley. A committee of six was appointed to visit Princeton in the meantime and endeavor to secure supplies and the 300 repeating Winchester rifles that are owned by Bureau county and stored in the courthouse, to be used for the protection of citizens in case of riot. The Spring Valley Coal company sent its treasurer to Seatonville and paid the negroes there what was due them up to last Wednesday. The amount due since that time will be paid within a few days.

The county officials at Princeton when seen last night did not know what steps if any would be taken to bring the guilty parties in Spring Valley to justice. Sheriff Clark said he was discouraged in the matter as not one arrested a year ago for looting the stores at Spring Valley had been convicted by the courts. They were either let off for lack of evidence or on legal technicali-calities. State's Attorney Johnson said he would not be the one to make the complaints. He had personally conducted the cases last year to no effect, and didn't care to go through the same experience again.

"MAN OVERBOARD" THE SUB-JECT OF THE LATEST ONE.

Arise Call Upon Thy God, If So Be That God Will Think Upon Us That We Perish Not-Jonah 1:6-For Summer Pleasure Seekers.

OD TOLD JONAH to go to Nineveh on an unpleasant errand. He would not He thought to get away from his duty by putting to sea. With pack under his arm, I find him on his way to Joppa, a sea-port. goes down among the shipping, and says to the men lying around the "Which of these vessels sails today?" The sailors answer, "Yonder is a vessel going to Tarshish. I think, if ful calling, following the sea. The meryou hurry, you may get on board her." Jonah steps on board the rough craft, asks how much the fare is, and pays it. Anchor is weighed, sails are hoisted, and the rigging begins to rattle in the strong breeze of the Mediterranean. Joppa is an exposed harbor, and it does not take long for the vessel to get out on the broad sea. The sailors like what they call a "spanking breeze," and the plunge of the vessel from the crest of a tall wave is exhilarating to those at home on the deep. But the strong breeze becomes a gale, the gale a hurricane. The affrighted passsengers ask the captain if he ever saw anything like this before. "Oh, yes," he says; "this is nothing." Mariners are slow to admit danger to landsmen. But, after a while, crash goes the mast, and the vessel pitches so far "a-beam's-end" there is a fear she will not be righted. The captain answers few questions, and orders the throwing out of boxes and bundles, and of so much of the cargo as they can get at. The captain at last confesses there is but little hope, and tells the passengers they had better go to praying. It is seldom that a seacaptain is an Athfest. He knows that there is a God, for he has seen him at every point of latitude between Sandy Hook and Queenstown. Captain Moody, commanding the "Cuba" of the Cunard line, at Sunday service led the music and sang like a Methodist. The captain of this Mediterranean craft, having set the passengers to praying, goes around examining the vessel at every point. He descends into the cabin to see whether in the strong wrestling of the waves, the vessel had sprung a leak, and he finds Jonah asleep. Jonah had had a wearisome tramp, and had spent many sleepless nights about questions of duty, and he is so sound asleep that all the thunder of the storm and the screaming of the passengers does not disturb him. The captain lays hold of him, and begins to shake him out of his For thirteen years this ship had been unconsciousness with the cry, "Don't ou see that we are all going to the bottom? Wake up and go to praying, if you have any God to go to. What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not." The rest of the story I will not rehearse, for you know it well. To appease the sea they threw Jonah overboard.

Learn that the devil takes a man's money and then sets him down in a poor landing-place. The Bible says he paid his fare to Tarshish. But see him get out. The sailors bring him to the side of the ship, lift him over "the guards," and let him drop with a loud splash in the waves. He paid his fare all the way to Tarshish, but did not get the worth of his money. Neither does any one who turns his back on his duty, and does that which is not right.

There is a young man who during the past year, has spent a large part of his salary in carousal. What has he gained by it? A soiled reputation, a half-starved purse, a dissipated look, a petulant temper, a disturbed conscience. The manacles of one or two bad habits that are pressing tighter will keep on until they wear to the bone. You paid your fare to Tarshish, but you have been set down in the midst of a sea of disquietude and perplexity.

One hundred dollars for Sunday horse-hire. One hundred dollars for wine-sup-

damnation! Instead of being in Tarshish now, he is in the middle of the Mediterranean. Here is a literary man, tired of the faith of his fathers, who resolves to launch out into what is called Free-Thinking. He buys Theodore Parker's works for twelve dollars; Renan's Life of Christ for one dellar and fifty cents: Andrew Jackson Davis's works for twenty dollars. Goes to hear infidels talk at the clubs, and to see spiritualism at the table-rapping. Talks glibly of David, the Psalmist, as an old libertine; of Paul as a wild enthusiast; and of Christ as a decent kind of a mana little weak in some respects, but almost as good as himself. Talks smilingly of Sunday as a good day to put a little extra blacking on one's boots; and of Christians as, for the most part. hypocrites; and of eternity as "the great "the everlasting now," or "the infinite what is it." Some day he gets his feet very wet, and finds himself that night chilly. The next morning has a hot mouth and is headachy. Sends word to the store that he will not be there today. Bathes his feet; has mustard plasters; calls the doctor. The medical man says aside, "This is going to be a bad case of congestion of the lungs." Voice fails. Children must be sent downstairs, or sent to the neighbors, to keep the house quiet. You say, "Send for the minister." But no; he does not believe in ministers. You yer comes in. and, sitting by his bed- thing, but it is too late." Invisible ages, world without end. Amen.

side, writes a document that begins, "In hands take him up. He struggles to sound mind, do make this my last will soul to the verge. They let it down over and testament." It is certain where the sick man's body will be in less than opens its frothing jaws to swallow. He a week. It is quite certain who will has gone forever. And while the canget his property. But what will beget his property. But what will become of his soul? It will go into "the great to be," or "the everlasting now," or "the infinite what is it." His soul diapason of midnight storm, "Because is in deep waters, and the wind is "blowing great guns." Death cries, "Overboard with the unbeliever!" splash! He goes to the bottom. He paid five dollars for his ticket to books. He landed in perdition!

Every farthing you spend in sin Satan will swindle you out of. He promises you shall have thirty per cent or a great dividend. He lies. He will sink all the capital. You may pay full fare to some sinful success, but you will never get to Tarshish.

Learn how soundly men will sleep in the midst of danger. The worst sinner on shipboard, considering the light he had, was Jonah. He was a member of the Church, while they were heathen. The satiors were engaged in their lawchants on board, I suppose, were going down to Tarshish to barter; but Jonah, notwithstanding his Christian profession, was flying from duty. He was sound asleep in the cabin. He has been motionless for hours-his arms and feet in the same posture as when he lay down-his breast heaving with deep respiration. Oh! how could he sleep What if the ship struck a rock! what if it sprang a leak! what if the clumsy-Oriental craft should capsize! What would become of Jonah?

So men sleep soundly now amid perils infinite. In almost every place, I suppose, the Mediterranean might be sounded, but no line is long enough to fathom the profound beneath every impenitent man. Plunging a thousand fathoms down, you cannot touch bottom. Eternity beneath him, around him! Rocks close by, and whirlpools, and hot-breathed Levanters; yet sound sleep! We try to wake him up, but fail. The great surges of warning break over the hurricane-deck-the gong of warning sounds through the cabin-the bell rings. "Awake!" cry a hundred voices; yet sound asleep in the cabin.

In the year 1775, the captain of a Greenland whaling vessel found himself "lay-to" until morning, expecting every moment to be ground to pieces. In the morning he looked about, and saw a ship near by. He hailed it. No answer. Getting into a boat with some of the crew, he pushed out for the mysterious craft. Getting near by, he saw through the port-hole a man at a stand, as though keeping a log-book. He hailed him. No answer. He went on board the vessel, and found the man sitting at the log-book frozen to death. The log-book was dated 1762, showing that the vessel had been wandering for thirteen years among the ice. The sailors were found frozen among the hammocks, and others in the cabin. carrying its burden of corpses.

So from this Gospel craft today. I descry voyagers for eternity. I cry, "Ship ahoy! ship ahoy!" No answer. They float about, tossed and ground by the icebergs of sin, hoisting no sail for heaven. I go on board. I find all asleep. It is a frozen sleep. O that my Lord Jesus would come aboard and lay hold of the wheel, and steer the craft down into the warm Gulf Stream of his mercy! Awake, thou that sleepest! Arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee life.

Again: Notice that men are aroused by the most unexpected means. If Jonah had been told one year before that a heathen sea-captain would ever awaken him to a sense of danger, he would have scoffed at the idea; but here it is done. So now, men in strangest ways are aroused from spiritual stupor. A profane man is brought to conviction by the shocking blasphemy of a comrade. A man attending church, and hearing a sermon from the text, "The ox knoweth his owner," etc., goes home unimpressed; but, crossing his barnyard, an ox comes up and licks his hand, and he says, "There it is now-'the ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib,' but I do not know God." The careless remark of a teamster has led a man to thoughtfulness and heaven. The child's remark. "Father, they have prayers at Uncle's house-why don't we have them?" has brought salvation to the dwelling. By strangest way and in the most unexpected manner men are awakened. The gardener of the Countess of Huntingdon was convicted of sin by hearing the Countess on the opposite side of the walk talk about Jesus. John Hardoak was aroused by a dream in which he saw the last day, and the judge sitting, and heard his own name called with terrible emphasis: "John Hard-oak, come to judgment!" The Lord has a thousand ways of waking up Jonah. Would that the messengers of mercy might now find their way down into the sides of the ship, and that many who are unconsciously rocking in the awful tempest of their sin might hear the warning, "What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, and call upon thy God!"

Again: Learn that a man may wake up too late. If, instead of sleeping, Jonah had been on his knees confessing his sins from the time he went on board the craft, I think God would have saved him from being thrown overboard. But he woke up too late. The tempest is in full blast, and the sea, in convulsion, is lashing itself, and nothing will stop it live to go home. In the house of many now but the overthrow of Jonah.

So men sometimes wake up too late. The last hour has come. The man has no more idea of dying than I have of dropping down this moment. The rigging is all white with the foam of death. How chill the night is! "I must die," he says, "yet not ready. I must push out upon this awful sea, but have nothing with which to pay my fare. The white caps! The darkness! The hurricane! How long have I been sleeping? say, "Read the Bible to him." No; he does not believe in the Bible. A law-the name of God, Amen. I, being of get loose. In vain. They bring his the side. The winds howl. The sea the ropes thumped, the sea took up the funeral dirge, playing with open I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand and no man regarded; but ye have set at naught all my counsel, and would none of my reproof; I also will laugh at your calam-Tarshish when he bought the infidel ity; I will mock when your fear com-

Now, lest any of you should make this mistake, I address you in the words of the Mediterranean sea-captain: "What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not." If you have a God, you had better call upon him. Do you say. "I have no God?" Then you had better call upon your father's God. When your father was in trouble, who did he fly to? You heard him, in his old days, tell about some terrible exposure in a snow-storm, or at sea, or in battle, or among midnight garroters, and how he escaped. Perhaps twenty years before you were born, your father made sweet acquaintance with God. There is something in the worn pages of the Bible he used to read which makes you think your father had a God. In the old religious books lying around the house, there are passages marked with a lead pencil -passages which make you thing your father was not a godless man, but that, on that dark day when he lay in the back room dying, he was ready-all ready. But perhaps your father was a bad man-prayerless, and a blasphemer, and you never think of him now without a shudder. He worshiped the world or his own appetites. Do not then, I beg of you, call upon your father's God, but call on your mother's God. I think she was good. You remember when your father came home drunk late on a cold night, how patient your mother was. You often heard her pray. She used to sit by the hour meditating, as though she were thinking of some good, warm place, where it never gets cold, and where the bread does not fail, and staggering steps never come. You remember her now, as she sat, in cap and spectacles, reading her Bible Sunday afternoons. What good advice at night surrounded by icebergs, and she used to give you! How black and terrible the hole in the ground looked to you when, with two ropes, they let her down to rest in the graveyard! Ah! I think from your looks that I am on the right track. Awake, O sleeper, and call upon thy mother's God.

But perhaps both your father and mother were depraved. Perhaps your cradle was rocked by sin and shame, and it is a wonder that from such a starting you have come to respectability. Then don't call upon the God of either of your parents, I beg of you.

But you have children. You know God kindled those bright eyes, and rounded those healthy limbs, and set beating within their breast an immortality. Perhaps in the belief that somehow it would be for the best, you have taught them to say an evening prayer, and when they kneel beside you, and fold their little hands, and look up, their faces all innocence and love, you know that there is a God somewhere about in the room.

I think I am on the right track at last. Awake, O sleeper, and call upon the God of thy children. May he set these little ones to pulling at thy heart until they charm thee to the same God to whom to-night they will say their little prayers!

But, alas! alas! some of these men and women are unmoved by the fact that their father had a God, that their mother had a God, but they have no God. All pious example to them for nothing. All the divine goodness for nothing. All warning for nothing. They are sound asleep in the side of the ship, though the sea and sky are in mad wrestle.

Many years ago, a man, leaving his family in Massachusetts, sailed from Boston to China, to trade there. On the coast of China, in the midst of a night of storm, was shipwrecked The adventurer was washed up on the beach senseless-all his money gone. He had to beg in the streets of Canton to keep from starving. For two years there was no communication between himself and family. They supposed him dead. He knew not but that his family was dead. He had gone out as a captain. He was too proud to come back as a private sailor. But after a while he choked down his pride and sailed for Boston. Arriving there, he took an evening train for the center of the state, where he had left his family. Taking the stage from the depot, and riding a score of miles, he got home. He says that, going up in front of the cottage in the bright moonlight, the place looked to him like heaven. He rapped on the window and the affrighted servant let him in. He went to the room where his wife and child were sleeping. He did not dare to wake them for fear of the shoke. Bending over to kiss his child's cheek, a tear fell upon the wife's face, and she wakened, and he said, "Mary!" and she knew his voice, and there was an indescribable scene-of welcome, and joy, and thanksgiving to God.

To-day I know that many of you are sea-tossed, and driven by sin in a worse storm than that which came down on the coast of China, and yet I pray God that you may, like the sailor, mansions your friends are waiting to meet you. They are wondering why you do not come. Escaped from the shipwrecks of earth, may you at last go in! It will be a bright night-a very bright night as you put your thumb on the latch of that door. Once in, you will find the old family faces sweeter than when you last saw them, and there it will be found that he who was your father's God, and your mother's God, and your children's God, is your Letters have just been received at Elgin written by Mrs. Hattie Cady, wife of Rev. Olin Cady, from Cheutu, China, May 29, in which she states that two days previous the party of missionaries just arrived from Illinois had been obliged to flee the city in the night to escape death at the hands of the rioters. They climbed the walls of the city attired only in their night clothes and took refuge in the attic of a Chinese shanty, where nineteen of them were huddled. They were without food and dared not leave the place of hiding. As the letter was written the city was in flames and they were fearful as to the probable fate of the party.

August W. Kenkel, the Polish count who shot himself Sunday in Chicago, died at Michael Reese hospital. His correct name was Algernon Wilhelm Djialinski, and he was a native of Nemel. He was a Polish spy in Russia during the Russian war and after the subjugation of his country a price of $25,000 was placed upon his head by the Russian government. He fled to America and changed his name.

Federal officers arrived at Springfield Wednesday, having in custody Ranson Payne, John Beady, Jr., John Stanton, John Griffin, and Patrick Sheehan of East St. Louis, charged with murderously assaulting Sunday night Deputy United States Marshal James F. Skerrett, who was guarding the Tudor iron works of East St. Louis. The federal court here had enjoined strikers or others from interfering with the Tudor works.

A possible murder came to light when farmer living six miles north of Streator discovered the dead body of a man lying in a cornfield near his house. Though information concerning the case is meager, it is believed that the remains, are those of a man named James Downer, long a resident of Streator. Mr. Downer had been missing for a few days, and at the time of his last appearance he had $180 in his possession, having just received the money for his work on a farm. There was no money found on the body, however, and the supposition is that Downer was murdered and robbed by some person who was aware he had the money with him. His father has been sent for to see if he can identify the body.

Among the marriage licenses issued at Chicago was one to John Harney, 37 years old, and Florence Burgess, 18. Harney secured the paper about 10 o'clock in the morning, and two hours later Miss Burgess appeared at the county clerk's office. She denied any willingness or intention of marrying Harney, and said he had not been authorized to get the license. The man had been twice married, she said, and had been employed doing odd chores for her mother at her home, 155 Sangamon street. Yesterday morning he entered the kitchen where she was working and in a joking way, as she thought, asked her to marry him. To get rid of his company the girl said she told him she would if he would go away. An hour later he returned and smilingly presented the license.

Complaint is being made by persons living along the Illinois river that the fish in the same are dying by the million and that the stream in places is literally covered with dead minnows. Here is a short mention of the facts taken from a Chicago paper, that throws a flood of light on the matter: "Reports from along the banks of the Illinois river as far as 100 miles southwest of Chicago are to the effect that the fish are dying in schools. The shores are strewn for miles with dead minnows and hickory shad, and the cause is all laid to the Chicago sewage, which, it is said, is so polluting the stream as far south as Peoria that the fish are all dying in the river. 'I have no doubt it is true,' said Dr. Reilly of the health department to a reporter. 'We are pumping Chicago sewage into the canal right along every day and it is being carried down to and into the Illinois river. Of course the sewage kills the fish. There are no fish in the canal or the Chicago river simply because they can't live in filth. I presume the unusual fatality among the fish at this time is due to the fact that we have had no rains. The sewage came down in a solid form. The rain storms give a more rapid flow and dilute it. There is no doubt that the reports about the dead fish are true."

Judge Horton of Chicago last Thursday issued a writ of habeas corpus for four Chinamen who are being taken to China from Detroit. They are Lee Ye, Lee Quon, Lee Ke Jo, and Lee Goat Sing and were arrested in Detroit on the charge of being in the country in violation of the anti-Chinese act. They were taken before United States Commissioner Graves at Detroit, who ordered they be confined in the Detroit House of Correction for ten days, after which they were to be deported to China. The four men left Detroit yesterday morning in charge of Charles W. Smith, a United States deputy marshal. Attorney Oscar Springer of Detroit came to Chicago for the purpose of intercepting the prisoners when they arrived. He filed a petition before Judge Horton in the name of Lee Lai Vin, a Chinese merchant of Chicago, setting forth that the four men are illegally restrained of their liberty, not having had a hearing in Detroit before the order of deportation was entered. Upon this petition Judge Horton issued a writ for the production before him of the captive Chinamen as soon as they arrive in the city. The attorney said the order of deportation as made by the Detroit commissioner is void under the federal statutes because it does not state by whom the men are to be taken out of the country and the order is not directed to anyone. The United States marshal and the prisoners arrived at 2:40 o'clock. Deputy Sheriff Sheridan presented the babeas corpus to United States Marsha! Smith and demanded the Chinamen should be delivered to him. Marshal Smith delivered them up under procest. They were taken to the county jail.
