BARRINGTON REVIEW

Julius Baade, a Popular and Esteemed Farmer, Shoots Himself Tuesday.

Was a Prominent Member of the Fairfield Lutheran Church, and Lived Near There.

On last Tuesday morning the citizens of Lake Zurich and vicinity were shocked by the news that Mr. Julius Baade, a young and popular farmer, living two and a half miles northeast of Lake Zurich, had committed suicide by shooting himself.

It seems that Mr. Baade had frequent quarrels with his wife over the way a certain relative, who lived with them, did his work, and whose presence seems to have been a severe aggravation to the deceased.

On Tuesday morning Mr. and Mrs. Baade were out husking corn, while a brother of Mrs. Baade was plowing. A quarrel arose between Mr. and Mrs. Baade, when, it is said, Mr. Baade made the remark: "My brother (who had worked for them the year before) urd his work well, but yours don't." After some more words, he started for the house. His wife followed him immediately, but before she caught up with him he had entered the house, and taking a revolver, which was in a room, and which appears to have belonged to Mrs. Baade's brother, shot himself.

Coroner Knight was wired to come and hold an inquest, who responded imm diately, and impaneled the following jury: Al R. Ficke, H. Seip, P. Nimpsearn, Wm. Hutchinson, D. Huntington and H. S. Meier, who brought in, a verdict to the effect that the deceased had committed suicide.

Mr. Baade was a strong pillar in the Fairfield German Lutheran church, and the leader of the choir. He was an honest, industrious and upright gentleman, and stood high in the estimation of his neighbors and acquaintances, making friends of all who came in contact with him. He was kindness itself. He leaves a mother, wife and two children, and two brothers and two sisters.

The strangest part about the case is that Mrs. Baade was deeply attached to her husband, and although it, was suspicioned by intimate relatives and friends that differences existed be- to Chicago. tween them, never a word of complaint or reproach did he utter to the outside world. He tried bard to keep his family affairs to himself, until finally and he sought a true confiding friend leave. in the land from which no wanderer returns.

He has before and after election features also, and faces both ways.

A Poughkeepsie, N. Y., prohibition paper was the victim of a printer's malice or stupidity last week. In an an ouncement of a meeting of the "W. W. Experiments have been made in Austria to test the likelihood of a war balloon being hit when fired at. A captive balloon at an altitude of about 4,265 feet was fired at from a distance of 4,400 yards, and was struck nine times without being brought down. In a second trial a captive balloon, at a heighth of about 2,625 feet, was fired at from 5,500 yards distance. A violent wind, causing the balloon to plunge a good deal, rendered the aim very difficult, and the balloon was not brought down until the fifty-sixth round.

The report of the British consul-general at Frankfort on the trade of Germany states that the German mercantile marine has now far outdistanced its French rival notwithstanding the special encouragements given to the Litter. It appears that the German fleet of steamers, which in 1888 was still behind the French now reaches a total of 860,000 tons, the French being only 466,000 tons," and the North American 464,000 tons. The English commercial fleet registered 9,585,000 tons and the German commercial fleet 1,485,000 tons in July, 1894, so that Germany, although second to England, is still far behind her. The consul-general adds that the German shipbuilding trade is making considerable progress, though not to the same extent as the English.

The Trans-Baikal section of the Siberian Railway is now completed. The original plans for this railway were abandoned owing to the fact that they would have necessitated the carrying of the line to an elevation of 3,000 feet above the sea through arid districts where but few settlers could make a livelihood. A more southern route has now been adopted, which, though cor siderably longer, will run by four of the principal rivers, through regions rich in salt, soda, silver, copper, fron, lead and gold, and in which many mines have been opened out. Some 750 miles of the Siberian railway are open for traffic, viz., Chelabinsk to Omsk, in the west, 500 miles, and Vladivostock 20 Grafskaja, in the east, 250 miles. Thus Omsk is placed in direct communication with Moscow and St. Petersburg. Of the total length of 6,000 miles from St. Petersburg to Vladivostock, about 3,700 miles have still to be completed.

FIGHT DECLARED OFF.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons Not Likely to Meet in the Ring. Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 22 .- Unless Robert Fitzsimmons recants and through his manager, Martin Julian. accepts the extraordinary condition which confronts the fight situation here, there will be no contest between him and Corbett, except that it be an impromptu one, shorn of purse offerings, ring rules. referee and seconds, for Corbett says that unless Fitzsimmons "acts the man and accommodates himself to circumstances he will send him to the hospital" the first time he meets him, and that he will go quite a way out of his scheduled theatrical route to do so.

Yesterday there was a conference between Dan A. Stewart, Joe Vendig and the fighters, the latter by proxies, Brady representing Corbett, Fitzsimmons' alter ego being his brother-in-law, Martin Julian. Today the ruling of Chancellor Leatherman is to be taken before the supreme court by the attorneygeneral, and the tribunal of last appeal may consume several days in handing down a final hearing. In view of this fact, and anticipating a favorable decision, Dan Stuart called the parties in interest together and stated the conditions. Stuart wanted a postponement to Nov. 15. Brady, for Corbett, was willing, but Julian was not. Julian contended that his man was "too fine," and that to train for several days after the original time would militate against his physical condition. The proposition was then made to have the men fight in private for the main stake, $10.-000 a side. Here Stuart interjected an offer of an added $10,000. Brady was again willing, but Julian demurred. He opined that the club, if it pulled the fight off Oct. 31, would have to make good its full promise of $41,000.

It is given out that Julian will have Fitzsimmons in Dallas Oct. 31, where his contract stipulates that the fight should occur, and claim the forfeit of $2,500. This is the status of the case and the most decisive knockout in the whole proceedings. Disgust and disappointment now claim the situation. The programme now is to substitute Peter Maher for Fitzsimmons in a contest with Corbett, and another man to be found will be depended upon to entertain Steve O'Donnell.

Myers, Harry; seriously burned. Rodgers, James; seriously burned. Sheets, A. J.; badly burned.

Wycroff, Henry; badly injured. The worst feature of the entire accident is that the steam coming from the twenty-two high pressure boilers blew the chemicals and particles of vitriol into their eyes. All were blinded and the extent of this injury cannot be ascertained yet. It is feared that the result will be permanent loss of sight. Delcamp and McNair are in the hospital and are receiving the closest of attention. Part of the building was blown out. The pipe connected the rod and wire departments of the American Wire Nail works.

Call It a Decisive Rejection.

Washington, Oct. 22.-Officials of the diplomatic corps who are in a position to speak with full understanding on the Venezuelan question, upon a careful reading of the official statement of the British foreign office, made public today, say that it is a decisive rejection of the claims made by Venezuela and a negative answer to the requests of the United States that the subject be submitted to arbitration.

The landing of British marines at Corinto is regarded as a precedent outlining the course Great Britain may take. In anticipation of this policy officials are comparing the relative strength of the forces which might be brought together. The British have a fleet of sixteen war ships available in the North and South Atlantic. Venezuela's seaports are fairly well fortified and it can put 60,000 well armed troops in the field.

Insuring Consumptives.

Cincinnati, Oct. 21.-Special.-Reports say that a leading life insurance company is accepting risks to the amount of $300,000 on lives of consumptives taking the Amick Chemical Treatment for lung disease. The Amick Chemical Co. of Cincinnati is actually paying the premiums on this insurance and presenting policies to their patients. This company claims to have the most complete statistics on consumption in the world, and that these risks are good, providing the patients take a course of the Amick treatment.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN FACING A CRISIS.

May Join the Union of All Reform Forces - Annual Address of Mrs. Williard to Baltimore Convention-Liquor Must Go.

After a prolonged and well-earned rest at the country home of Lady Henry Somerset in England Miss Frances Willard reappeared Friday at Baltimore, Mil., at the head the vast organization of which she is president, and to whose upbuilding she, more than any other, has contributed. Her annual address was first on the program.

Miss Willard warmly congratulated the union on its work of the past year, enumerating many advances which had been made. Among other victories, the general assembly of the Presbyterian church has declared in favor of nonalcoholic wine for sacramental purposes. The bicycle is the most influential temperance reformer of the time, and milk is the favorite beverage of those who ride to win. Men who drink take less, and more men do not drink at all than in any previous year. The Canadian parliament has declared by MISS FRANCES E. WILLARD. overwhelming majority in favor of prohibition; in South Australia and Utah women have been admitted to the full rights of citizens. Five legislatures last winter voted to submit this question to the people.

The constantly increasing participation of women in all the affairs of the world is of the utmost significance for good. Mother and child are rapidly taking their rightful place as the central figure of the great world problem.

The late Lord Chief Justice Coleridge of England said that "at a moderate estimate something like 95 per cent of the crimes tried in the courts are due to drink." The Catholic archbishop of Ireland has recently declared "that but for alcoholic stimulants Ireland would be practically without crime."

The action of the Methodist conferences in voting to admit women to the general conference is the largest straw on the current of the times.

The Polyglot petition, with its seven and a half million of mames and indorsements, has this year been presented in America and England. Its journey will continue until it has borne the plea of the home to every government.

A union of reform forces is contemplated and the leaders have agreed to the following basis, which is commended to the good will of all White Ribbon women: Direct legislation; the initiative and the referendum in national, state and local matters; the imperative mandate and proportional representation.

The election of president and vice president and of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and also of all civil officers, so far as practica-

Equal suffrage without distinction of

As the land is the rightful heritage of the people, no tenure should hold without use and occupancy.

Prohibition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes, and governmental control of the sale for medicinal, scientific and mechanical uses.

All money-paper, gold and silvershould be issued by the national government only, and made legal tender for all payments, public or private, on future contracts, and in amount adequate to the demand of business

The free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1. The labor movement is the natural ally of the White Ribboners. The "working class" are the only true aristocrats. "He who will not work, neither shall he eat." Intemperance in our great cities pushes people into the tenement houses, and the misery and will be 'most as green as you are!" filth of the tenement houses pushes them into the saloons. I believe that the land belongs to the people, and that while the farmer's domain should not be interfered with, since he turns it the beneficent use, a propaganda of education should be devised whereby the single tax and the issue of all money by the government itself should become two of the central planks in the platform of the party of the future. A resolution adopted at the international convention in London was the following: "Resolved, That we are unalterably opposed to the compulsory did mechanic and has made the best OMINOUS SIGN, circumstances when this is done in the interest of impure relations between man and woman." The legalizing of crime might do for other times, but not for the twentieth century.

The World's W. C. T. U. has established a department of amusements, and it is being perceived that until men and women together determine what amusements are helpful to the Jublic the great domain of recreation must remain on a lower level than the society it claims to represent. The fact is, we can only purify art by purifying the artist.

An important part of the address is devoted to the situation in Armenia, and an urgent plea is made for the united efforts of women in collecting funds and circulating petitions for the relief of "our well nigh martyred Christian neighbors in Asia Minor." The invasion of Madagascar by the French is referred to with indignation. The queen is a devoted temperance woman. The formation of a department of politics for the purpose of influencing every party to help the home cause is urged. Miss Willard holds to the idea she has advocated so long, viz., that the prohibition party should change its name to home protection party. She says that the use of the word prohibition as the name of a party has given an excuse to the pulpits of the land to cease from advocating the principles of prohibition. Fraternal messages are sent to the Catholic Total Abstinence Society, the Society of Jewish Women, the Christian Endeavor, the Women's Council, the Woman's Clubs and various other kindred organizations. It was stated that the membership shows a gain, notwithstanding the hard times, Pennsylvania being the banner state in this regard.

The report of the corresponding secretary is very favorable, and shows how widespread is the movement which focused in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She says: "From the the itemized reports which have been received I glean these salient points, leaving the organizers to tell you of their individual work: 105 unions organized, with 2,794 active and 509 honorary members. The total of new members secured by these organizers, in both new and old unions, as recorded in official blanks, is about 5,000. This by no means exhausts the record of new members secured. Many states have carried on this work through their general officers or state organizers. The principal events which stand out in the year as the work of the national union, per se, are, first, the great meeting in Washington in February for the presentation of the polyglot petition; the school of methods at Mountain Lake park in July, and the temperance conferences at Chautauqua."

The treasurer's report shows an increase in membership over last year, although the present fiscal year only covers eleven months, against thirteen months included in last year's report.

The total receipts of this year are: $23,038.96; total expenditures, $18,059,-37, leaving a balance in the treasury after all bills are paid of $4,979.59. Received for dues, $14,757.29. When we take into consideration the extremely hard times in the financial world, and the fact that all philanthropic societies are behind in their receipts, this is a creditable showing.

Types of Beauty.

It is said that when artists are seeking for models the palm for beauty and symmetry of figure is given to the girls of Spain, while the daughters of rural Ireland are a good second. The pretty faces and graceful throats are found among English maidens. A model for a perfect arm would be sought for among Grecian ladies, while a lady of the Turkish harem would be regarded as the possessor of a daintily commendable hand. Italians are usually good in figure, and some of the most beautiful models, perfectly proportioned, are derived from the women of sunny Italy, Frenchwomen, as a rule, are not in request, being too thin and vivacious for the purpose; while the face and limbs of a German frau are too commonplace for artistic work.

One on the Freshle. One of the smaller New England colleges has for janitor a colored man. who has filled that position to the satisfaction of all concerned for over twenty-five years. It is not often that the students get the laugh on "Sam," as they familiarly and affectionately call him. One autumn day, just after the college year had begun, when he was overseeing the burning over of part of the campus, a freshman coming along, cried: "We'l, Sam, that's most as black as you are!" "Yes, sah," promptly replied Sam; "and next spring it

The climax came Thursday, when he went from a grog shop into one of the low dives of the town to sleep of the effects of over indulgence. He was found there by other officers, and when sobered up his resignation was asked for and accepted. Ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer has definitely announced that he will not be a candidate for renomination for governor. This determination on his part has been known by his intimate friends for some months, though it has been made public only the past few days. He has, in fact, never been announced as a candidate, no paper in Illinois having been authorized to use his name in that connection and none of his home papers having done so.

Rockford-At the concluding session of the Illinois State Undertakers' association I. P. Norton of Galesburg, in his address on "Prospects and Objects of Legislation in Illinois," stated boldly that it was impossible to secure legislation from the recent general assembly on the sanitary subjects suggested by the association at a previous meeting without the use of corruption funds. He asserted that at the last session of the Illinois legislature he visited Springfield with a bill prepared by the Undertakers' association providing will be 48x90 feet and two stories, a for the appointment of a board basement and a finished attic, making of examiners under the law, beit practically three stories and a base- fore whom all desiring to practice embalming in the state must pass examination to secure a certificate. He was flatly told, he said, it would require $1,000 to have it passed. Mr. Norton stated that this amount was afterwards reduced to $500, but that he was so indignant at the suggestions that he abandoned the bill altogether.

Alton.-At 11 o'clock Wednesday Senator Herb began to sink rapidly and his physicians, including a specia!ist from Chicago, were hastily summoned. They were unable to stay the hand of death, and shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon the end came. The sad news spread rapidly through the city and the profoundest sorrow was everywhere manifested. Charles A. Herb had been successfully engaged in the mercantile business in this city since 1864, when he came home from helping, as a boy under age, to fight the battles of the union. As a citizen he was held in the highest esteem, and he had served the community in public office with conspicuous ability and a!most continuously for many years, in the city council, on the county board and as mayor from 1883 to 1885, when he declined a renomination. But for the fact of his being a hold-over senator in a democratic district he would unquestionably have been nominated for congress in this district by the republican convention held at Litchfield on Oct. 3. He leaves a widow and seven children and an aged father. Funeral arrangements are not yet announced.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad company was held at the company's office in Chicago last week. The annual report of the directors to the stockholders was submitted and approved. The president made a statement to the meeting in connection with the company's business generally. In the course of his remarks Mr. Fish drew attention to the fact that the company had more shareholders resident in Illinois than any other railroad company doing business in the state. Messrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Edward H. Harriman and John Jacob Astor were unanimously re-elected to fill the vacancies in the board created by the expiration of their term in office. The meeting adjourned until Nov. 26, when the stockholders will be asked to consider a proposition to increase the company's capital stock. After the adjournment the board of directors held a meeting and re-elected the following officers: Stuyvesant Fish. president; John C. Welling, vice president: J.T. Harahan, second vice president; A. G. Hackstaff, secretary; E. T. H. Gibson, treasurer; B. F. Ayer, general counsel; James Fentress, general solicitor.

ATTRACTIONS AMUSEMENT FOR COMING WEEK.

M'VICKER'S THEATER .- "The Old Homestead" will begin a two week's engagement at McVicker's Theater on Sunday evening, October 20. The play has not been seen in Chicago since the World's Fair, when it ran for twelve weeks at McVicker's. Since then it has had a long run in New York, where Mr. Thompson introduced a number of new features which will be seen in Cuicago for the first time on Sunday evening next. Altogether this piece has had over 300 representations in Chicago and is as popular to-day as it was when first presented. "The Old Homestead" is one of those plays which improves with time, it is true to nature and consequently appeals to every heart. There is something that touches everyone and makes them feel kindlier to human kind after seeing this truly ideal play.

The company will be headed by Mr. George W. Wilson, an actor of great ability, who for over twenty years has been with the Boston Museum company. There will be a double quartet and a church choir. The scenery is all new, having just been painted in New York, and will be seen for the first time on McVicker's stage.

Following "The Old Homestead" at McVicker's Theater the "Twentieth Century Girl" will commence an engagement. This is a spectacular farce and contains some of the best vaudeville people to-day on the stage. Among them may be mentioned Miss Mollie Fuller, Mr. Gus Williams, Mr. Kelley and others.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE .- "For Fair Virginia," a romantic play by Russ Whytal, was given its initial presentation in this city at the Chicago Opera House Sunday evening. This is the same production which created so much kindly comment last season in New York, where it attracted prosperous attention at the Fifth Avenue Theater. While distinctly southern in tone and sentiment, as its title suggests, the play is said to furnish an original and ingenious treatment of an exceedingly interesting story, full of heart and home, and absolutely void of sensationalism. It contains all the essential elements of dramatic intensity, and the comedy scenes, of which there is a generous supply, are utilized with fine discrimination. Mr. Whytal has been heartily praised for his admirable work and indeed no play by an American author in recent years has received such cordial endorsement. "Agatha Dene," a charming comedietta, also by Mr. Whytal, is used as a curtain raiser.

Dramatic Notes.

That inspiration of laughter, "Too Much Johnson," with its talented author, William Gillette, and his merry coadjutors, will begin the third and last week of its run next Sunday night at Hooley's. If ever a theater was transformed into the realm of laughter as if by magic, Hooley's has been by this production, which, ever since its initial presentation last Sunday, has packed the theater to its utmost capacity with audiences that by their continuous applause have demonstrated the fact that it is next to impossible to get too much Johnson at one sitting.

John Hare will open his first American tour at Abbey's theater, New York, in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith." which he gave its original production at the Garrick theater, London, last March. "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith" will give Miss Julia Neilson, whose American debut is second in interest only to Mr. Hare's, a role that will afford her opportunity for the confirmation of the reports that have reached this country regarding her tal-

BACRED RUNNING OXEM.

They Are the Greatest Curiosities Among Ceylon's Domesticated Animals.

One of the greatest curiosities among the domesticated animals of Ceylon is a breed of cattle known to the zoologists as the "sacred running oxen." They are the dwarfs of the whole ox family. the largest specimens of the species nev eeding 30 inches, or 21/2 feet in height Oue sent to the Marquis of Canterbury in the year 1891, and which is still living and believed to be somewhere near 10 years of age, is only 22 inches high and weights but 109 % pounds In Ceylon they are used for making quick trips across the country with express matter and other light loads and it is said that four of them can pull a driver of a two wheeled cart and a 200 pound load of miscellaneous matter 60 to 70 miles a day They keep up a constant swinging trot or run and have been known to travel 100 miles in a day and night without either feed or water No one knows anything concerning the origin of this peculiar breed of miniature cattle. They have been known on the island of Ceylon and in other Buddhistic countries for more than a thousand years One story told to account for their origin is to the effect that they were originally cattle of the ordinary height and bulk, that a Buddhistic priest was once imprisoned in a stone building, one-half of which was used for a cattle stable During the night he managed to dislodge one of the stones in his prison wall! The stone in question was exactly 21/2 feet square.

It was almost daylight when this apostle of Buddha felt the air rush through the opening he had made and realized that he was all but free. He knew that he would be unable to get out of the enemy's country on foot, so he prayed that he might be provided with a beast of burden that would safely carry him to the homes of the followers of Buddha No sooner had he done this than one of the large oxen which had been quietly feeding in a stall at his side walked lessurely to the 80 inch square opening and miraculously passed through it.

The priest followed and mounted the new sacredly dwarfed beast and was soon safe in his own country. Since that time, so the story goes, there has been a breed of "sacred running oxen" in Ceylon, which never grow too tall to pass through an opening the size of that made in the prison wall by Buddha's representative on the night when is in a certain sense the maker and he miraculously escaped on the back of the first of the famous dwarfed oxen -St Louis Republic.

Recollections of Bismarck's Wartime.

In the columns of The Kreuzzeitung Herr Andrae, a well known Conservative politician and friend of Prince Bismarck, gives some interesting recollections of the period of the war of 1870. He says: "Bismarck read on the 9th of July the speech delivered by the Duke of Grammout on the 6th He was at dinner and handed the newspaper to his idea suddenly came to him, 'Napoleon dictated by him. 'He went to his room, his first thought being to telegraph to the king at Ems, as follows, 'It would be best to mobilize at once, declare war and attack before France is prepared. His nerves were strung to the highest tension, and he passed a sleepless night. Lying awake, thinking, there crossed his mind the text, 'Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.' 'So that won't do,' he said to himself. Then all the political consequences of his contemplated action became clear to him, and he ended by casting the first message aside and telegraphing to King William simply not to pledge himself to anything with Benedetti, who, if he became pressing, was to be told. LINCOLN'S LOVEMAKING.

Abe Encountered His Political Rival While Addressing Miss Todd.

In 1839 Miss Mary Todd of Kentucky arrived in Springfield to visit a married sister, Mrs. Edwards. At the instance of his friend Speed, who was also a Kentuckian, Lincoln became a visitor at the Edwards', and before long it was apparent to the observant among those in Springfield that the lively young lady held him captive. Engagements at that time and in that neighborhood were not announced as soon as they were made, and it is not at all impossible that Miss Todd and Mr Lincoln were betrothed many months before any other than Mrs. Edwards and Mr Speed knew of it, writes John Gilmer Speed in The Ladies Home Journal

At this time, as was the case till Lincoln was elected to the presidency his one special rival in Illinois was Stephen A Douglas Mr Douglas had more of the social graces than Mr Lincoln and it appeared to him that noth ing would be more interesting than to cut out his political rival in the affections of the entertaining and lively Miss Todd, and so he paid her court

A spirited young lady from Kentucky at that time in Illinois would have been almost less than human if she had refused to accept the attentions of the two leading men of the locality Therefore Miss Todd, being quite human encouraged Douglas, and again there was what nowadays would have been called a flirtation This course of action did not spur Lincoln on in his devotion but made him less ardent, and he concluded. after much self worriment, to break off the engagement, which he did but at the same interview there were a recon ciliation and a renewal of the engage ment.

A POLAR NIGHT.

Graphic Description of This Time of Gloom and Desolution.

Mr. Constantin Nossiloff, reporting in Le Tour du Monde his scientific researches in Nova Zembla, furnishes an interesting description of his sensations and experiences during the long arctic night, which began Nov. 3 and ended Jan. 20.

September was pretty comfortable, he says. Then suddenly snow covered the mountains. The Samoyedes, his only companions, put on their winter clothing the fishing boats set sail for Archangel. the ground froze, the sun lost its warmth and heavy snows fell Winter had come in earnest.

On the day when the sun showed itself for the last time all nands went cut of doors to bid it farewell. It remained in sight for half an hour only.

For a few days longer there was a morning twilight Then this faded and gave place to black night. The stars shone the whole 24 hours The huts of the colony were buried under the snow of which thick whirlwinds filled the air The wind shook the huts to their foundations Sometimes for days together the inmates of the different huts could hold no communication with each other though the huts were side by side.

If any one went out, he was seized by the wind and had to be dragged back by means of ropes

In this darkness and desolation the aurora borealis did much to entertain and cheer them. It lasted sometimes for five days in succession, with splendors of color that Mr Nossiloff tries in vain to describe. To enjoy the spectacle he used to remain for hours in a hole in the snew, sheltered from the wind.

I have never seen anything more terrible than a tempest during the polar night." says Mr. Nossiloff "Man feels himself overwhelmed in immensity "

When there came a lull in the storm the men ventured out to breathe the air and purge their lungs of the exhala tions of the smoking lamps fed with seal oil

Twilight appeared again in the middle of January, and on the 20th the sun rose above the horizon, while the members of the little colony stood in line facing it and fired a salute No one had died or been seriously ill. but all had The Regent diamond, while surpassed the look of corpses and were feeble as convalescents after a long sickness.

Chameleon Spiders.

An interesting instance of color mim icry in spiders has been observed in the south of France The spiders of that region when in search of prey hide in the convolvulus flowers It has been noticed that a white variety of spiders frequented the white flowers a greenish colored variety made the green flowers his home. pink flowers The colors of the three varieties were at first supposed permanent, but it has recently been discovered that the color of any one of these spiders changes within a few days if the insect be placed in the convolvalus of a different colored flower from that which he has been using as his home Four spiders-pink, white green and yellow in color-were all put in a box ogether and within three days all were

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"DISSIPATIONS OF THE RACE-COURSE" THE SUBJECT.

Golden Text: Hast Thou Given the Horse Strength? Hast Thou Clothed His Neck With Thunder?-Job, Chapter 39, Verses 19, 21, 25.

have recently had long columns of intelligence from the race-course. and multitudes flocked to the watering-places to witness equine competition, and there is lively discussion in al! households about the right and wrong of such exhibitions of mettle and speed, and when there is a heresy abroad that the cultivation of a horse's fleetness is an iniquity instead of a commendable virtue-at such a time a sermon is deman led of every minister who would like to defend public morals on the one hand, and who is not willing to see an unrighteous abridgement of innocent amusement on the other. In this discussion I shall follow no sermonic precedent, but will give independently what I consider the Christian and com mon-sense view of this potent, all-absorbing and agitating question of the

There needs to be a redistribution of coronets among the brute creation. For ages the lion has been called the king of beasts. I knock off its coronet and put the crown upon the horse, in every way nobler, whether in shape, or spirit, or sagacity, or intelligence, or affection, or usefulness. He is semihuman, and knows how to reason on a small scale. The centaur of olden times, part horse and part man, seems to be a suggestion of the fact that the horse is something more than a beast. Job in my text sets forth his strength, his heauty, his majesty, the panting of his nostril, the pawing of his boof, and his enthusiasm for the battle. What Rosa Bonheur did for the cattle, and what Landseer did for the dog, Job with mightier pencil does for the horse. Eighty-eight times does the Bible speak of him. He comes into every kingly procession, and into every great occacion, and into every triumph. It is very evident that Job, and David, and Isaiah, and Ezekiel, and Jeremiah, and John were fond of the horse. He comes into much of their imagery. A red horse—that meant war. A black horse-that meant famine. A pale horse-that meant death. A white horse-that meant victory. Good Mordecai mounts him while Haman holds the bit. The Church's advance in the Bible is compared to a company of horses of Pharbah's chariot. Jeremiah cries out: "How canst thou contend with horses?" Isaiah says: "The horse's hoofs shall be counted as flint." Miriam claps her cymbals and sings: "The horse and the rider hath he thrown into the sea." St. John describing Christ as coming forth from conquest to conquest represents him as seated on a white horse. In the parade of heaven the Bible makes us hear the clicking of hoofs on the golden pavement as it says: "The armies which were in heaven followed him on white horses." I should not wonder if the horse, so banged, and bruised, and beaten, and outraged on earth, should have some other place where his wrongs shall be righted. I do not assert it. but I say I should not be surprised if. after all, St. John's descriptions of the horses in heaven turned out not altogether to be figurative, but somewhat literal. As the Bible makes a favorite of the horse, the patriarch, and the prophet. and the evangelist, and the apostle stroking his sleek hide and patting his rounded neck, and tenderly lifting his exquisitely formed hoof, and listening with a thrill to the champ of his bit, so all great natures in all ages have spoken of him in encomiastic terms. Virgil in his Georgies almost seems to plagarize from this description in the text, so much are the descriptions alike -the description of Virgil and the description of Job. The Duke of Wellington would not allow anyone irreverently to fouch his old war horse, Copenhagen, on whom he had ridden fifteen hours without dismounting, at Waterloo, and when old Copenhagen died, his master ordered a military salute fired over his grave. John Howard showed that he did not exhaust all his sympathies in pitying the human race, for when sick he writes home: "Has my old chaise horse become sick or spoiled?" There is hardly any passage of French literature more pathetic than the lamentation over the death of the war-charger, Marchegay. Walter Scott has so much admiration for this dia vinely honored creature of God that in "St. Ronan's Well" he orders the girth slackened and the blacket thrown over the smoking flanks. Edmund Burke. walking in the park at Beaconsfield. musing over the past, throws his arms around the worn-out horse of his dead son, Richard, and weeps upon the horse's neck, the horse seeming to sympathize in the memories. Rowland H'll, the great English preacher, was caricatured because in his family prayers he supplicated for the recovery of a so much of an absurdity.

But what shall I say of the maltreatment of this beautiful and wonderful creature of God? If Thomas Chalmers in his day felt called upon to preach a sermon against cruelty to animals, how much more in this day is there a need of reprehensive discourse. All honor of the memory of Prof. Bergh, the chief apostle for the brute creation, for the mercy he demanded and achieved for this king of beasts. A man who owned four thousand horses, and some say forty thousand, wrote in the Bible: "A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast." Sir Henry Lawrence's care of the horse was beautiful. ly Christian. He says: "I expect we shall lose Conrad, though I have taken in cool. I always walk him the last four or five miles, and as I walk myself the first hour, it is only in the middle of the journey we get over the ground." The Ettrick Shepherd in his matchless Ambrosial Nights speaks of the maltreatment of the horse as a practical blasphemy. I do not believe in the transmigration of souls, but I cannot very severely denounce the idea, for when I see men who cut and bruise and whack and welt and strike and maul | majesty and his strength. 8 and outrage and insult the horse, that beautiful servant of the human race, who carries our burdens and pulls our ploughs, and turns our threshers and our mills, and runs for our doctorswhen I see men thus beating and abusseems to me that it would be only fair that the doctrine of transmigration of souls should prove true, and that for their punishment they should pass over into some poor miserable brute and be beaten and whacked and cruelly treated, and frozen and heated and overdriven; into an everlasting stagehorse, an eternal traveler on a towpath, or tied to an eternal post, in an eternal winter, smitten with eternal epizootics! Oh, is it not a shame that maltreated by the race that came in last—the fowl and the fish created on the fifth day, the horse and the cattle created on the morning of the sixth day, and the human race not created until the evening of the sixth day? It ought to be that if any man overdrives a horse, or feeds him when he see him prance, or so shoes him that his against the cold, or unmercifully abpull and let his horse ride!

of God demand that we kindly treat whatever can be done for the development of his fleetness and his strength and his majesty ought to be done, We need to study his anatomy and his adaptations. I am glad that large books have been written to show how he can be best managed, and how his ailments can be cured, and what his usefulness is, and what his capacities are. It would be a shame if in this age of the world. when the florist has turned the thin flower of the wood into a gorgeous rose, and the pomologist has changed the acrid and gnarled fruit of the ancients into the very poetry of pear, and peach, and plum, and grape, and apple, and the snarling cur of the Orient has become the great mastiff, and the miserable creature of the olden times barnyard has become the Devonshire, and three different kinds of betting at horse the Alderney, and the Shorthorn, that the horse, grander than them all, should get no advantage from our science, or our civilization, or our Christianity. Groomed to the last point of soft brilliance, his flowing mane a billow of needs to be written on the brow of beauty, his arched neck in utmost rhythm of curve, let him be harnessed in graceful trappings and then driven to the furthest goal of excellence, and then fed at luxuriant oat bins, and blanketed in comfortable stall. The long tried and faithful servant of the human race deserves all kindness, all care, all reward, all succulent forage and soft litter and paradisiaca! pasture field. Those farms in Kentucky and in different parts of the North, where the horse is trained to perfection in fleetness and in beauty and in majesty, are well set apart. There is no more virtue in driving slow than in driving fast, any more than a freight train going ten miles the hour is better than an express train going fi'ty. There is a delusion abroad in the world that a thing must be necessarily good and Christian if it is slow and dull and plodding. There are very few good people who seem to imagine it is humbly pious to drive a spavined. galled, glandered, spring-halted, blindstaggered jade. There is not so much virtue in a Rosinante as in a Bucephalus. We want swifter horses, and swifter men, and swifter enterprises, and the Church of God needs to get off its jog trot. Quick tempests, quick lightnings, quick streams; why not quick horses? In the time of war the sick horse, but when the horse got well, probably not all past, our Christian down in the ever-increasing catalogue contrary to all the prophecies of the patriotism demands that we be interfarriers, the prayer did not seem quite ested in equinal velocity. We might as well have poorer guns in our arsenals and clumsier ships in our navyyards than other nations, as to have under our cavalry saddles and before our parks of artillery slower horses. From the battle of Granicus, where the Perslan horses drove the Macedonian infantry into the river, clear down to the horses on which Philip Sheridan and Stonewall Jackson rode into the fray, this arm of the military sevice has been recognized. Hamilcar, Hannibal, Gustavus Adolphus, Marshal Ney were cavalrymen. In this arm of the service, Charles Martel at the battle of Poitiers beat back the Arab invasion. The Carthaginian cavairy, with the loss of only seven hundred men, overthrew the Roman army with the loss of seventy so much care of him that he may come thousand. In the same way the Spanish chivalry drove back the Moorish hordes. The best way to keep peace in this country, and in all countries is to be prepared for war, and there is no success in such a contest unless there be plenty of light-footed chargers. Our Christian patriotism and our instruction from the Word of God demand that first of all we kindly treat the horse, and then after that, that we develop his fleetness and his grandeur and his

But what shall I say of the effort being made in this day on a large scale to make this splendid creature of God, this divinely honored being, an instrument of atrocious evil? I make no indiscriminate assault against the turf. I being and outraging that creature, it lieve in the turf if it can be conducted on right principles and with no betting. There is no more harm in offering a prize for the swiftest racer than there is harm at an agricultural fair in offering a prize to the farmer who has the best wheat, or to the fruit-grower who has the largest pear, or to the machinist who presents the best corn-thresher. or in a school offering a prize of a copy of Shakespeare to the best reader, or in a household giving a lump of sugar to the best behaved youngster. the brute creation, which had the first Prizes by all means, rewards by all possession of our world, should be so means. That is the way God develops the race. Rewards for all kinds of welldoing. Heaven itself is called a prize: The prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." So what is right in one direction is right in another direction. And without the prizes the horse's fleetness and beauty and strength will never be fully developed. If it cost is hot, or recklessly drives a nail into $1,000 or $5,000 or $10,000, and the rethe quick of his hoof, or rowels him to sult be achieved, it is cheap. But the sin begins where the betting begins, fetlocks drop blood, or puts a collar on | for that is gambling, or the effort to a raw neck, or unnecessarily clutches get that for which you give no equivahis tongue with a twisted bit, or cuts lent, and gambling, whether on a large off his hair until he has no defense scale or a small scale, ought to be denounced of men as it will be accursed breviates the natural defense against of God. If you have won fifty cents or insectile annoyance—that such a man $5,000 as a wager, you had better get as that himself ought to be made to rid of it. Get rid of it right away. Give it to some one who has lost in a bet, But not only do our humanity and or give it to some great reformatory inour Christian principle and the dictates stitution, or if you do not like that, go down to the river and pitch it off the the brute creation, and especially the docks. You cannot afford to keep it. horse; but I go further, and say that It will burn a hole in your purse, it will burn a hole in your estate, and you will lose all that, perhaps ten thousand times more-perhaps you will lose all. Gambling blasts a man or it blasts his children. Generally both and all.

What a spectacle when at Saratoga. or at Long Branch, or at Brighton Beach, or at Sheepshead Bay, the horses start, and in a flash fifty or a hundred thousand dollars change hands! Multitudes ruined by losing the bet, others worse ruined by gaining the bet; for if a man lose in a bet at a horse race; he may be discouraged and quit, but if he win the bet he is very apt to go straight on

An intimate friend, a journalist, who in the line of his profession investigated this evil, tel's me that there are races, and they are about equally leprous: by "auction pools," by "French mutuals," by what is called "bookmaking"-all gambling, all bad, all rotten with iniquity. There is one word that every poolseller as he sits deducting his 3 or 5 per cent, and slyly "ringing up" more tickets than were sold on the winning horse—a word to be written also on the brow of every bookkeeper who at extra inducement scratches a horse off of the race, and on the brow of every jockey who slackens pace that, according to agreement, another may win, and written over every judge's stand, and written on every board of the surrounding fences. That word is "swindle!" Yet thousands bet. Lawyers bet. Judges of courts bet. Members of the legislature bet. Members of congress bet. Professors of religion bet. Teachers and superintendents of Sunday schools, I am told, bet. Ladies bet, not directly, but through agents. Yesterday, and every day they bet, they gain, they lose, and this summer, while the parasols swing and the hands clap and the huzzas deafen, there will be a multitude of people cajoled, and deceived, and cheated, who will at the races go neck and neck, neck and neck to perdition. Cultivate the horse, by all means, drive him as fast as you desire, provided you do not injure him or endanger yourself or others; but be careful and do not harness the horse to the charlot of sin. Do not throw your jewels of morality unof those who are ruined for both worlds by the dissipations of the American race course, They say that an honest race course is a "straight" track, and that a dishonest race course is a "crooked" track-that is the parlance abroad; but I tell you that every race track, surrounded by betting men and betting women, and betting customs, is a straight track-I mean straight down! Christ asked in one of his Gospels: "It not a man better than a sheep?" I say, yes, and he is better than all the steeds that with lathered flanks ever shot around the ring at a race course. That is a very poor job by which a man in order to get a horse to come out a full length ahead of some other racer, so lames his own morals that he comes out a whole length behind in the race set before him. Do you not realize the fact that there is a mighty effort on all sides to-day to get money without earning it? That is the curse of all the cities: it is the curse of America—the effort to get money without earning it, and as other forms of stealing are not respectable. they go into these gambling practices. I preach this sermon on square, oldfashioned honesty. I have said nothing against the horse, I have said nothing against the turf. I have said everything against their prostitution. Young men, you go into straightforward industries and you will have larger permanent success than you can ever get by a wager; but you get in with some of the whisky, rum-blotched crew which I see going down on the boulevards, though I never bet, I will risk this wager, five million to nothing, you will be debauched and damned. Cultivate the horse, own him if you can afford to own him, test all the speed he has, if he have any speed in him; but be careful which way you drive. You cannot always tell what direction a man is driving in by the way his horses head. In my boyhood, we rode three miles every Sabbath morning to the country church. We were drawn by two fine horses. My father drove. He knew them, and they knew him. They were friends. Sometimes they loved to go rapidly, and he did not interfere with their happiness. He had all of us in the wagon with him He drove to the country church. The fact is, that for eighty-two years he drove in the same direction. The roan span that I speak of was long ago unhitched, and the driver put up his whip in the wagon-house never again to take it down; but in those good old times I learned something that I never forgot, that a man may admire a horse and love a horse, and be proud of a horse, and not always be willing to take the dust of the preceding vehicle, and yet be a Christian, an earnest Christian, an humble Christian, a consecrated Christian, useful until the last, so that at his death the Church of God cries out as Elisha exclaimed when Elijah went up with galloping horses of fire: "My father, my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof!"

Love God.

Fresh blades of grass, you cheerful seem,

What it is that all grief relieves? Thick ye upspring, a fair sunbeam In your low stems its brightness weaves.

How do you keep that sunny gleam? Love God, love God, they sing, Gay as the birds a-wing.

The flowers and grass make their reply. With all their merry, clapping leaves,

And echoing the holy cry. The drooping heart its joy retrieves All voices to their Maker fly. Love God, love God, they sing. Gay as the birds a-wing.

His Pen for Christ.

S. R. Crockett, author of "The Stickit Minister," in resigning his pastoral charge of the Free Church of Penicuik. appeared to be deeply moved. He told his congregation that he had "weighed every argument, considered every interest, solved every difficulty" and went on to say: "Most entirely do I believe that the same Lord who sent me to preach the gospel has revealed to me the possession of a talent which he desires and intends me to use. I did not seek this literary work-it found me."

A Hopeful View.

Dr. Griffith John, one of the greatest of living missionaries, expresses this opinion: "There are at present in China about 55,000 communicants, which shows a remarkable increase since 1889. There can be no doubt as to the marked increase of these five years. If the next five be as prosperous, our China communicants will, at the close of 1900, number not far short of 90,000. We are on the eve of great changes, and great changes for the better also."

Two Private Boof Gardens. New York World: Plans have been drawn for two new houses that are to be built uptown on the West Side of New York for private residences, and each of them is to have a roof garden. This would indicate that their owners intend to spend part of the summer months in New York. "I know of no better place in New York for a private roof garden," said the architect of one of these houses, "than the high ground on the west side of town. The house that I am going to build will be four stories high, and as there are no high apartment buildings near the roof garden on the top will be private in every sense of the word. It is the owner's purpose to have it so arranged that he may have his breakfast or his dinner served there in warm weather. Under these circumstances he may forget that he is in the city. From his roof he can look over Riverside park and across the river to the Jersey shore. This is the coolest part of the town in the summer, you know, and I expect to see many of the new residences up there equipped with roof gardens."

STANDARD DICTIONARY.

Something About the Latest graphical Production.

When the Century Dictionary was placed on the market a few years ago scholars of the United States and Eng land at once recognized it as the standard authority in lexicography. It was believed that it would answer all ques tions for years to come. But this is an age of unparalleled activity and invention. New words are constantly being added to fill the want of the scientist and inventor, and these in course of time must come into common use. While the Century Dictionary was complete up to the date of its publication, the time that has intervened since then has warranted the publication of a new work-The Standard Dict'onary. Its vocabulary is the largest of any distionary in existence. It contains 301,865 vocabulary words and phrases, by actual count, while the Century has only 225,000. To comprehend this more clearly, let us take one letter, "A." Under this letter the Standard has, by actual count, 19,736 words, while the Century has but 15,621, a difference of over 4,000 terms under "A." If for no other reason, the Standard should have the preference, and no possessor of the Century can claim a complete lexicon with one-fourth of the words in the language omitted. The definitions in the Standard are models of clearness and perspicuity. They aim to define, 1.5t describe, merely. They are frequently shorter than those of the Century, while stating more facts and in clearer language. The necessity for condensation has been so great in the preparation of the Standard that the definitions have been worked over time and again so as to make them short, yet comprehensive. On numerous subjects where the greatest skill has been needed to give absolute accuracy in definition, the Standard will be found to be par excellence. Where the importance of the subject demands it, more space is devoted to definitions than in the Century. For example of these points see the words, agnosticism, alimony, amble, civics, co-education, dowry, evolution, nationalism, socialist. On the staff of the Standard are several of the best editors of the Century, whose previous experience is, of course, valuable. It is a common remark among them that the work on the Standard is much more exacting than it was on the Century. Synonyms and antonyms are of the greatest value in giving clear distinctions between meanings of words, which often shade into each other very closely. No work extant is so full and clear in its treatment of synonyms as the Standard, not even works devoted entirely to the subject. Special pains has been taken to make this a distinguishing feature of the work, and an inspection of a few words, in this particular, will convince anyone that the work in this department is above criticism. For example see, acid, agriculture, allay, altercation, benevolence, care, generous, get, knowledge. These words will also suffice to illustrate the feature of antonyms-words of opposite meanings-a most useful antithesis, enabling one to hit upon the exact term wanted, and a feature possessed by no other dictionary. The numerous examples of the proper prepositions to use are of great importance to all, especially to young writers and students. How often one is puzzled to know just what preposition should be used. Good examples of this feature will be found under the words, allure, animadversion, animosity, bind, and words above cited. This feature is not possessed by the

The groupings in the Standard enable a vast amount of information to be compressed within small limits. This saves space, saves time in examining a subject, and brings within a single view numerous kindred subjects which throw light upon the question involved. This idea is applied not only to the grouping of allied forms in illustrations, as under "dog" where twentynine different types are shown on a single page, with their relative sizes, but to compound words, derivatives and phrases, which are finely classified, and arranged in bold-faced type for quick reference. No other dictionary can compare with the Standard in this particular.

Vegetables for Horses.

The following article appears in the London Farmer and Stock Breeder:

The horse is strictly a vegetarian, and vegetables should enter into the vocabulary of his diet nearly as much as in the human family. He is very fond of them, as well as of fruit, and will often partake of the latter when nothing else will tempt him to eat. For a horse with a capricious appetite, nothing is so good for him when they can be obtained as a very few sour apples in the morning. They have a very invigorating effect.

The Swedish turnip is an article of food, the value of which has not been fully appreciated. Although it is far from containing the quantity of nutritive matter which has been supposed, that which it has seems to be capable of easy and complete digestion. They quickly fatten the horse and produce a smooth glossy coat and loose skin.

The virtues of carrots are not sufficiently known, whether as contributing to the strength and endurance of the sound horse, or the rapid recovery of the sick one. To a healthy horse, the quantity of half a bushel can be fed daily. There is little provender of which the horse is fonder. The following account of the value of the carrot is not exaggerated. "This root is held in much esteem. There is none better, nor perhaps so good. When first given it is slightly laxative, but as the horse becomes accustomed to it this effect ceases to be produced. They also improve the state of the skin. They also form a good substitute for grass, and an excellent alterative for horses out of condition. To sick and idle horses they render corn unnecessary. They are beneficial in all chronic diseases connected with breathing and have a marked influence upon chronic cough and broken wind. They are serviceable in diseases of the skin, and, in combination with oats they restore a worn horse much sooner than oats alone."

Potatoes have been given, and with advantage, in their raw state, but where it has been convenient to boil or steam them the benefit is far more evident. Purging has then rarely ensued. Some have given boiled potatoes alone, and horses instead of rejecting them, have soon preferred them even to oats; but it is better to mix them with the usual manger feed in the proportion of one pound of potatoes to ten and onehalf pounds of the other ingredients. The use of the potato must depend on its cheapness and the facility for boiling it. A horse fed on potatoes should have his quantity of water materially

Labor and Live Stock. ^

The labor question has always been a troublesome feature of American farming where we have so much cheap land-every man goes farther west or south and gets his own farm. We have met the issue to some extent with labor-saving machinery, grass and live stock, but with more intense farming that is now being forced upon us by the cheap prices of grain and stock we must have cheaper labor to correspond to some extent with the prices paid in other countries whose markets we are now supplying with meat and grain. One of our English exchanges says:

"Like his British compeer, the American farmer is finding the labor question a very serious one. According to an official report, the supply of farm labor in the states is very inadequate, and it is also very dear, the average wage of farm laborer in the states being $282 a year as against an average rate of $150 in Great Britain, $125 in France, $100 in Holland, $90 in Germany, $60 in Russia, and $50 in Italy.

The cost of labor has now become a serious item to the American farmer. and it is difficult to see how he can go on paying so dear for the laborer he employs in growing a crop which only averages 13 bushels per acre, and which at present only realizes to the grower 50 cents for his wheat and corresponding prices for other grain and stock.-Ex.

Wasted Food.-From a financial point of view, to the feeder, although I have not had an opportunity of testing it practically, I am quite sure there must be a considerable saving by using ground feed, inasmuch as being in finely divided particles, there is a greater amount of nutrition absorbed than would be from a larger amount which might be passed through the system in coarser condition. We frequently see in the excrement from horses, cattle and hogs, whole or half grains of corn or other particles of food unmasticated. These from their rapid passage through the system have been, if at all, only feebly acted upon by the gastric and intestinal juices, and hence that much nutrition is wasted.-Ex.

Can't Afford Poor Milkers .- Every cow of a dairy herd should be examined through a Babcock tester. The milk should be weighed and tested so that the unprofitable cow should be known and weeded out of the herd. Farmers can't afford to keep cows for "What you need," said the doctor, "is dairy purposes which do not yield quantities of butter or cheese pretty well up to standard record. Both labor and feed may be wasted if the at him. "Rest! You miserable quack! cows which give less than average quantity of butter fat or casein are not turned over to the butcher.

The Value of Trees. How many farmers and others, too, whose places are destitute of fruit and shade trees. Again, how many rented places are devoid of trees of all kinds. Has the land-owner ever stopped to consider that a small orchard, a few yard trees around every tenement house will greatly enhance the value, attract and hold a better class of tenants, make life more enjoyable and that too at practically no cost? We tell you there is a great deal of selfishness when we look abroad and see how stingy and selfish many are with their tenants, and oftentimes perchance some good farmer rents his farm and moves away and is so selfish as to reserve all, yes, all the fruit produced, denying even this to his tenant. Land-owners owe their tenants and the public generally, a duty by planting at least a moderate quantity of trees. This is a wise public policy.—Ornamental Tree Growing.

Not Honey but Stings.

Several Cambridge young men recently went on a bee hunt, which, in some respects, was a remarkable affair. After a long tramp and much patient waiting, they located what ency thought was a swarm of bees in a hollow tree. Axes were procured, the tree fell, but investigation revealed nothing but a hornet's nest. They were sure there were some bees not far off, and the next day went again. This time they found a big birch tree that showed all the signs of containing the much-looked for prize. With renewed courage, they went to work, the tree fell, a large piece was cut out where the honey was supposed to be, and they found another hornet's nest. There were at least three quarts of the buzzing, infuriated yellow-jackets, and the would-be honey gatherers beat a hasty retreat.-Bangor Daily News.
