SAD DEATH

son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Alberding, met with a sad death Wednesday afternoon. He left home shortly after eating dinner to spend a few minutes in play with some of his young companions and was never seen by his parents again alive. Later in the afternoon his mother became alarmed as to his welfare, as he had not returned then. It was not his custom to remain away more than an hour or so at a time without making known his whereabouts. His mother commenced a search for him, but it was in vain. She was joined by her husband as soon as he arrived from Chicago-at eight o'clock. The neighbors were notified and a general search instituted, which resulted in finding the little fellow head foremost in one of the electric light company's pole holes about 10:30 o'clock p. m, at the corner of Lake street and Cemetery avenue, only a block from his home. The company is erecting poles for its wires and the hole had been dug at this point. It was thought advisable not to set the pole at this place, so the hole was left open until it was decided where it would be located. No one was near at the time of his falling in, and as there were about seventeen inches of water in the hole he was drowned. Deputy Coroner Reynoldson of Palatine was notified of the accident and held an other noxious weeds," etc., growing in inquest over the body Thursday morning. The jury found that the child's death was caused by falling into a post hole, left uncovered by the said company, and censured the company for so doing.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. from the Salem church. The REVIEW tenders its heartfelt sympathy to the grief-stricken family.

Three Prisoners Nearly Escape from Lake County Jail.

Three prisoners nearly gained freedom from the Lake county jail at Waukegan Tuesday night when their attempt was foiled by the timely arrival of Sheriff Brown upon the scene.

The escape from the cells was through the steel soil tanks, the covers of which were forced from their rivets, evidently by sheer force of their hands. Access to these tanks from the cage is through iron slides about 12 inches square, which are secured by hasps and padlocks. These hasps were forced, liberating the men from their cells. From the cage the work was easy. Armed by the heavy hasps they ripped out three of the short steel bars over the cage door and climbed through into the outer corridor. They attacked the outer brick wall of the building in the same place where the prisoners that escaped last year broke through. They had removed three or four bricks and had the stone window sill nearly ready for removal when discovered.

Lake County Supervisors Meet at Libertyville.

The board of supervisors of Lake County met at Libertyville Saturday, pursuant to adjournment from Waukegan. All members were present except Supervisor Anderson. The meeting was held at Libertyville for the purpose of ascertaining the needs at the poor farm in the way of additional seconds faster than last year's run. room for insane patients. It was He was closely followed by B. L. decided to first investigate as to whether the state would take care of the insane. If it is found that the state will not take care of them, the committee on poor and poor farm is instructed to procure plans for an addition to the present building at a cost not to exceed $2,500. Plans are to be submitted at the September meeting. The Poor and Poor Farm winning by a score of 24 to 13. committee was instructed to have built a large cistern on the farm to be used in case of fire. The farm was found in an excellent condition and Lake County is to be congratulated upon having such a capable man as C. A. Appley as keeper.

There is No Such Enactment.

Recently many of the country news papers in Illinois have been giving publicity to statements like the following:

"The legislature has passed a law in regard to thistles and other noxious weeds that generally line the roadways every summer. The new law provides that between July 1 and Ervine T. Alberding, the 7-year-old August 20, every farmer shall remove weeds along the highways contiguous to his property. For this work he is allowed $1.25 per day, and the amount will be credited on his road tax. If the work is not done by August 20th, the supervisor is empowered to get the work done and have the same charged to the property

> A statement of like tenor appeared some time back in the "metropolitan" Chicago Tribune, since when the Legal Adviser has received numerous inquiries as to the verity of this story. In fact, there is not even a grain of truth in it. Discovering no such act in an unofficial edition of the session laws, the editor of the Legal Adviser wrote to the secretary of state inquiring if such an act had been filed in that office and received the following answer to that inquiry:

In regard to the mowing of weeds along highways, concerning which many inquiries have been made, this department would say that it is not aware that such a law was enacted by the last legislature.

Yours respectfully. JAMES A. ROSE.

Secretary of State The Legal Adviser Co., Chicago.

The act of June 21, 1895, (see p. 222 Haines' Tp. Laws) makes it the duty of highway commissioners in their respective townships, and of the county commissioners in counties not under township organization to "destroy or cause to destroy," in the proper season, all kinds of thistles and or along the highways under their jurisdiction, under a penalty of a fine of from $10 to $25 for failure to do so. That act has not been changed, amended or superseded by any act of later legislation. How this story of a new noxious-weeds law arose we can not guess .- Legal Adviser.

Lawn Party.

A lawn party in honor of Miss Lydia Beinhoff was given at the residence of her father, Fred Beinhoff, on east Main Street, Saturday evening. A large number of our young people were in attendance. Refreshments were served and a general good time was had by everyone. The following young ladies and gentlemen were present; Amelia Beinlich, Gertrude Meyer, Ida Gieske, Martha Kampert, Luella Peters, Laura Batterman, Carrie Dix, Amanda Schroeder, Lydia Beinhoff, Henry Schroeder, Fred Beinhoff, John Schwemm, George Beinhoff, Albert Kampert, Frank Bauman, Theo Suhr, A. G. Gieske and A. B. Combs.

Palatine Athletic Club Picnic.

The picnic given by the Athletic Club last Saturday proved an enjoyable occasion to all who attended. The crowd was not what it should have been. The club has always conducted their picnics in agentlemanly and law-abiding manner, and our people should show their appreciation of this method of conducting such affairs by turning out and giving the young men a good crowd.

The principal attraction was the road race which covered a distance of six miles starting at Meyer's corner in Palatine and ending at the Plum Grove picnic grounds. The racers were sent off in an excellent manner and owing to the reputation of the riders the race was sure to be a good one. The finish was a brilliant one. W. Grebe, scratch, won both time and place prizes making the distance in 18:28, being 29 Smith, Chas. King, Robertson and Wm. Meyer, who finished in the order

In the men's foot race, Ralph Beutler finished first. The base ball game proved to be one of the best amusements of the day. Sides were chosen, captained by Will Filbert and John Williams, the latter's aggregation

A good crowd attended the dance in the evening which was highly enjoyed by all.

Amended Tariff Bill Passed by the House.

WORK OF CONFEREES INDORSED

After a Short Debate the House, by a Vote of 185 to 118, Passes the Bil On to the Senate-Every Republican Votes for the Measure.

Friday, July 16.

The open session of the senate was brief and uneventful. The Harris resolution relating to the Union Pacific rallroad was further discussed.

The house agreed to the partial conference report on the general deficiency bill, and then concurred in the senate amendment fixing the limit of cost of armor plate for the three battle ships now building at $300 per ton.

Baptist leaders in the country present. The report of Treasurer Frank Moody of Milwaukee showed evidence of greater economy and better financial condition than before.

The board of managers recommended some changes in the constitution, which were accepted and approved by the convention. These changes led to a most complete union of the forces of the Baptist Young People's Union of America with the southern union, by which the forces of both are consolidated, and, in making this new relation with the southern department, separate departments were provided for the north, the south, the east and the west, to be known hereafter as the Baptist Young People's union, north; Baptist Young People's union, south, stc., instead of as heretofore by department colors.

A very large majority of the senate amendments were accepted.

Monday, July 19. Monday in the senate was principally devoted to a discussion of Mr. Harris' resolution relating to the Union Pacific reilroad. At 5 o'clock p. m. the senate went into executive session, and shortly thereafter adjourned.

The conference report on the tariff bill was adopted by the house shortly after midnight by a vote of 185 to 118. The result was accomplished after twelve hours of continuous debate. Only two speeches were made by the Reputlicans-one by Mr. Dingley in opening the debate and one by Mr. Payne of New York in closing it. The Democrats were thus forced to put forth speaker after speaker, but their bombardment of the Republican position was unanswered. An analysis of the vote shows that 180 Republicans and 5 Democrats voted for the report and 106 Democrats and 12 Populists against it.

THE WANTS OF RAILWAYS.

Building and Equipment Draws on Nearly Every Line of Industry.

Those who say the railway question does not affect them are often thoughtless persons. The prosperity of our railways affects in one way or another the whole country. Our railways first of all represent an actual money capital of one-fifth of the assets of the republic. One out of every five dollars we possess as a nation. Our railways employ, or would employ today if prosperous, over one million persons direct at good wages. One out of every twenty-two of the population working for a living. Our railways indirectly employ many thousands more, and in one form or another add to the revenue of another million. Those who doubt this should look over the dafly wants of these great distributors of work and wages. The wants of railroads, according to the observation of a gentleman connected with transportation enterprises, are only second to those of women, which some French philosopher has said no man can ever hope to supply. To the casual observer all that a railroad wants is a roadbed, ties, steel rails, cars and engines to pull them. But growing out of these general features are demands for materials of such variety that the catalogue of the purchasing agent (who, as his name implies, has charge of making the necessary purchases for the railroad), is a good-sized volume wherein are named several hundred articles in more or less constant use by the corporation. Here are a few of the articles taken from this list: Axes, adzes, acid, antimony, ammonia, bell cord, bone-black, cour ale (used for mixing up cores for castings), burners, books, beeswax, chain, cement, chimneys, chairs, clocks, cushions, coal hods, dippers, disinfectant, envelopes, flag signals, firebrick, fuse cotton. globes, gold leaf, gasoline, hose, hinges. hair, hektographs, knives, mops, much lage, marking pots, naphtha, oakura paint, plush punches, powder, plumbago, pins, rubber, rope, saws, snaikes, shorts, soap, sandpaper, solder, tow, turpentine, time directors, tally covers, wick and wheelbarrows. This list is large, but it does not cover more than one-quarter of the articles mentioned in the catalogue referred to. So before you say the railway question has no interest for you, think a little. No American citizen can afford to see these great properties stricken down. They reach all over this broad domain of ours, and distribute money and employ labor and build up communities everywhere. Give the railways a chance.-Gazette.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof-Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

though this point was long since emphasized by Flint. Mr. F. Lamson

HE best mixture of grass seeds depends upon soil and climate and the farmers' needs, says Mirror and Farmer. More regard should also be paid to the succession of blooming of the different varieties that may be sown, Scribner, chief of the grass division of the department of agriculture and one of the best experts on grasses, in one of his admirable addresses made these very practical points: The best wild or native hay grasses are blue joint, fowl meadow grass, a species of Glyceria, and one of the Muhlenbergias or "drop seeds." These are valuable in the order named, and often afford in our low-lying meadows a large bulk of native hay of excellent quality. Like other species of grasses, they respond readily to good treatment. Timothy, meadow fescue, orchard grass, rye grass and redtop are the chief and best known of the cultivated or socalled "tame" grasses for the production of hay. In the markets timothy is the recognized standard by which the value of other grasses is estimated. It is the farmers' gold coin, although it does not appear to me to be equal in some respects to other varieties. Its clean appearance, even growth, fair productiveness, and easy propagation make it a favorite grass. The presence of meadow fescue indicates a good soil, and upon well-drained clayey land it is one of the best grasses we can cultivate; it is alike good for hay and pasturage. Where the soil is moist, but deep and strong, the large fescue (Festuca arundinacea) may be cultivated. It is one of the most productive of hay grasses. Almost equally productive on soils suitable to it is orchard grass, and by many of our farmers this is regarded as equal if not superior to timothy. It has a serious fault, however, of growing in bunches or tussocks. It is not a turf former, and when cultivated the seed should be sown thickly, and it is a good plan to add some other species as a filler. This objectionable habit of orchard grass may be overcome in a measure by heavily rolling the fields in early spring. Were it not for this tussock-forming habit, orchard grass would make one of the best of grasses for pastures, because of the early production of tender leaves. Rye grass, so popular in England, has never come into much favor here, although it is usually recommended as an ingredient for mixtures designed for permanent pasture. On very rich soils, where the ground is fairly moist and the atmosphere humid, its productiveness is very large. It will make a fair turf if well cared for, and may be used alone for lawns, but not in mixtures. Red top is one of the finest and best of our hay grasses, especially for low meadows, but is less productive than other sorts. The requirements of a good hay grass are productiveness, hardiness and adaptability to the soil. It must also be nutritious, rich in flesh-forming elements, and possessing little fiber, and must be palatable to stock. Our pasture grasses are more numerous than those which yield us hay. The most important kinds are meadow foxtail, Kentucky bluegrass, English bluegrass (Poa compressa), certain varieties of redtop and species of fescue, quite productive, and by many is very highly esteemed. It is recommended in all mixtures compounded for the production of continuous herbage through the season. Kentucky bluegrass is a good turf former and a good pasture grass where the land is rich, but does best upon strongly calcareous or limy soils. It is the grass which has made the pastures of portions of Kentucky and Tennessee so justly famous. English bluegrass is a better pasture grass for light sandy soil than Kentucky bluegrass. It will grow on soils so thin and poor that little else will grow. On good land its productiveness is scarcely inferior to that of Kentucky bluegrass, and it is equally tender and nutritious. It makes a very firm sod, and withstands the tramping of stock better than many other kinds. The cultivation of this grass in certain portions of Virginia has changed povertystricken districts to areas of wealth and prosperity. This has been effected by the cultivation of this English bluegrass and the raising of dairy stock. Lowland pastures should always contain redtop in some of its varieties. It makes the cleanest. nicest looking and sweetest turf of any grass I know. The fine-leafed varieties should be selected for cultivation in pastures. Meadow fescue is a valuable pasture grass, as already intimated, where the soil is good; and on sandy soils red fescue is perhaps one seciating with it English bluegrass.

Baumbach Strawberry Growing. J. S. Stickney contributes to the organ of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society the following paper:

The very successful strawberry growing of Mr. Wm. von Baumbach has caused much inquiry as to his methods. Being his near neighbor and passing his plantation almost daily, I am quite familiar with his methods, and with his consent will state a few of my impressions. I think the keynote to all his success is persistent, thorough painstaking, to do everything in season and in the best possible manner. His soil is only fairly good, such as may be found on almost any quarter-section of average farm land-stiff clay subsoil, surface rather a heavy clay loam, originally covered with a heavy growth of Oak and Maple; a strong soff but not easy to manage. He uses manure from the city stables freely, but not excessively, twenty to twenty-five loads per acre once in three years. For these many years, more than three-fourths of all his planting has been six rows of Crescent to three rows of Wilson, and his faith today is stronger in these than any other; still he tries most of the newer kinds. Perhaps the most noticeable points of his management are:

-1st, early and careful planting on thoroughly prepared ground.

2d, frequent, almost constant, cultivation. Light, fine-toothed cultivators are run after every rain, and about every seven days whether it rains or not, with very frequent hoeing and weeding, until new runners cover the row space; later, the runners are clipped to a line by a cultivator with an axle and two revolving discs in front. All weeds die young.

3d, his treatment of pickers. He employs only those of such age and responsibility as he can trust with a sixteen quart case to pick and fill, with the bottom course of as good quality and as well filled as the top. Every family represented by these pickers receives two quarts of berries each day for their own use, in addition to their regular pay. He is never troubled with 4th, he secures "top" prices and quick sales by filling every box heaping full. Nearly all his sales are to one commission house and it is very common in early morning to see five or ten retail grocer wagons standing before that store waiting for his team to arrive. Half of his load, or more, does not reach the sidewalk, but goes directly to those wagons. He is annoyed by other growers and dealers gathering his empty crates and refilling them, so much so that he now does not stencil them. All these things are easy. Let us each try them one season. Perhaps we shall like them. Mr. von Baumbach is planning to keep debit and credit the coming season and, as far as practicable, a comparative tally with some of the later kinds, the result of which he will give us at the close of the season.

Scrub Cow Soph'stry.

A correspondent in the Rural New Yorker makes a plea for what he calls the scrub cow by reason of the fact that she is a better mill for the consumption of roughage, and as at the present prices of butter it does not pay to feed grain. This sounds very nice, and doubtless there are many who suppose that it is true; but such reasoning is at the most somewhat superficial. In the first place what is "roughage?" Webster does not recognize the word, so we may assume that it means the hay and coarse fodders on the farm. Now in the first place, we admit that a native cow may turn more of mouldy or weedy hay into butter than will a thoroughbred that has for gerenations been used to good feed. But if any man will deliberately pursue that line of dairy farming that calls for the raising of weedy hay, and the improper curing of good hay, then we may say Ephraim is wedded to his idols, let him alone. We all sometimes raise weedy hay, and at times get some of it improperly cured, but do not let us deliberately plan for such work. And even admitting that every year we must get some of our hay caught in too many rains there is no cow on earth, be she scrub or thoroughbrd, that will make the best butter out of poor feed. Let us see as to feeding grain or hay: A ton of timothy hay and a ton of bran contain as follows, in each 100 pounds: Protein. C-kydrates. Fat.

Timothy hay .. 3.0 43.9 1.2 2.9

Bran ..... 12.6 49.1 And while the bran contains four times as much protein or milk-making food, twice as much fat and slightly more carbohydrates as the hay, yet the price of the two is nearly the same. Does this look as if it did not pay to feed grain to cows? This is an extreme case to be sure, as timothy is the highest priced hay we have, yet it is often the case that food nutrients may be purchased cheaper in the form of grain than in hay or coarse fodder. The fact of the matter is that the lower the price of butter the more need of the best cow, and the best feed wherewith to feed her.

It is a mistake to suppose that when a flock of hens get into the habit of egg eating they cannot be cured of it. There are a number of ways by which it can be done. One way is to darken of the best species we can cultivate, the nests and gather the eggs often, so that none of them will be broken.

It is alleged that Mr. De Armit's connection with the Carnegie bids on armor plate is so close that he will be unable to keep his agreement on the uniformity settlement, even if it should be effected, unless a higher price be paid for armor.

The governor of Indiana has appointed a commission to investigate the condition of the miners in that state and report as to the extent of their distress.

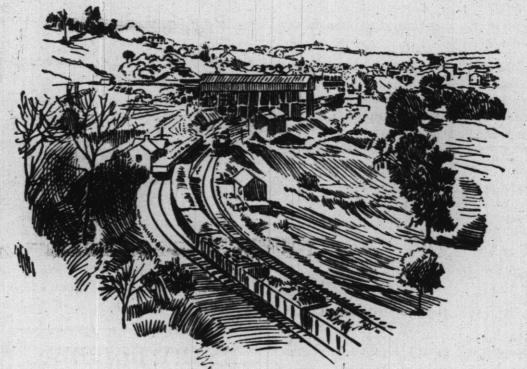

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 20.-The strike situation in West Virginia is becoming serious, and by tonight it is expected that a big majority of the miners will have declared their inten& Ohio and Norfolk & Western railroads, and railroad men are working overtime all along both lines. The activity of the Baltimore & Ohio in the matter of shipments of coal beats all records. Saturday night passenger trains were held to permit the forwarding of coal trains, and hundreds of cars have been sent out from here or have passed from other points within the last twenty-four hours.

FROM NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS. Coke-Workers May Be Drawn Out

-Position of Horace Chapman. Columbus, O., July 20.-The first day of the third week of the miners strike was remarkably quiet in every state affected, according to the reports received at national headquarters. It is reported from Pittsburg that an effort is to be made to bring out the coal and coke workers in the Connellsville district.

J. V. Barton, labor statistician of West Virginia, believes that there will eventually be a complete cessation in that state. This will shut off the coal supply at Pittsburg and effect what the miners have been trying to accomplish for a week. The organizers will then invade the coke region, in order that the coal of that district may not take the place of West Virginia coal.

Reports received at headquarters say tion to join the cause. About 4,000 that the coke-workers have manifest-miners are out now, while there are probably twice that number still at

Why special efforts are being made in this region to spread the strike it is easy to see. The mines are located so that they naturally ship coal to the markets usually supplied by the Pittsburg and Ohio districts, and their arrangements are such that they have capacity only limited by the number of men they can secure to follow up the electrical machinery that runs night and day. Till Fairmont is idle there can be no coal famine in the west and at the lakes. Till Fairmont is idle there is little hope of success, for even if the Pittsburg and Ohio operators were to pay the price demanded by the mine-workers they could not sell their product, got out at that price, against the product of the Fairmont mines, while the latter can produce coal at much lower figures.

There has been the greatest activity on the railroads within the last twenty-four hours and the rush of coal from the mines to the market has practically suspended everything else. ed a desire to aid the strikers. There are about 15,000 men employed in the Connellsville region, and the past has demonstrated the fact that they are all full of sympathy and easily persuaded. It has come to the ears of the miners that much of the coal mined in that district is not being coked, but is contributing to the supply at Pittsburg.

Horace L. Chapman, the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, is interesting himself in behalf of the striking miners, and announces that he will do whatever he can to bring about a peaceful settlement and send the men chairman. back into the mines.

Coa! Famine in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 14.—Coal mine operators and railroad managers say that if the miners hold out three weeks longer they will bring about a coal famine in this state. Very few large concerns dependent on coal have more than two weeks supply of fuel.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Streator.-Michael Purcell, senior member of the firm of M. Purcell & Co., one of the largest mercantile houses in this section of the state, died While a gang of Italian shovelers were working in a gravel pit at Rockton, one entire side caved in. A number were injured, and one is not expected to live.

Henry Lewis, 65 'years old, an oil peddler, living at 794 West Fifteenth place, Chicago, was struck by a passenger engine on the Wisconsin Central road at the Paulina street crossing. He was conveyed to his home by friends and died later.

Decatur.-Mrs. Annie Gipson, the the oldest person in Mason county, was buried yesterday afternoon. She died on Monday, in Mount Zion township. She claimed to be 108 years old, and had a son aged 65 years, with whom she made her home. Mrs. Gipson was born in Tennessee, and did most of her own work up to a month ago.

Lincoln, Ill.—At Mount Pulaski the Lincoln university club defeated the Kenney mutes, 9 to 0. The game was abruptly terminated in the last half of the ninth inning, with the Lincolns at bat, two men on bases, one out and the score tied. The mutes refused to continue and the diamond was invaded by an angry crowd, when Umpire Cowdin, of Illiopolis, decided the game for the Waukegan.—The officers of the Lake County Soldiers' Monument association met to take steps to forward the completion of this long desired project. A committee was appointed and empowered to locate and build a monument. A monument or memorial hall on the court house square is most favored. The soldiers' reunion committee also met and decided to hold their annual reunion at Gray's Lake on August 19 and 20.

Elgin Judge Goodwin granted a motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. W. H. Kimball vs. Elgin Woman's club. The jury returned a verdict of $300 against the club for money advanced the Howes, who gave a kermiss here and who proved to be noted swindlers. The judge ruled that the club was not responsible for the loan and that the plaintiff advanced the money on her own responsibility without authority for so doing Spring Valley.-The residence of ex-Mayor Delmagro was entered by thieves. The robbers were frightened away, the ex-mayor having fired two shots at them. Mr. Delmagro is an Italian, and his residence makes the fifth Italian home entered in the past week. A gang of thieves has been at work here that the police have not been able to cope with, and in every case the raids have been more or less successful. So far no other than the homes of Italians have been entered.

Bloomington.-Prof. Chester H. Rowell of this city, eldest son of J. H. Rowell, ex-congressman from this district. has been appointed instructor of the German language, literature and philosophy, in the university of Illinois at Champaign. He is a graduate of Ann Arbor and completed his education in the German universities. He is a profound scholar. He was private secretary to his father during the latter's congressional term and was connected with the work of the house committee on elections of the Fifty-first congress, of which committee his father was Pana.—At a citizens' mass meeting at the city hall a contract was closed between citizens of Pana and Joseph R. Brown, representing a Cincinnati syndicate, which has been negotiating with Pana business men for several days for the location of a powder mill here, by which the city of Pana deeds the syndicate a plot of thirty-four acres of ground on the Illinois Central, one mile south of the city, and the syndicate is to spend $50,000 in buildings and machinery. The money to purchase land was raised by subscription. The mill will give steady employment to 40 men and will have a capacity of 300 kegs per day.

Rockford.—Thomas Roberts of Rockford, traveling salesman for Horikoski & Co., a big Japanese New York silk house, has been found dead in Lake Erie, ten miles from Buffalo, after being missing for six weeks. He was widely known, having for years made Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee and all the larger points in the northwest. He was straight in his accounts with his house and was first missed six weeks ago. A tracer was sent out over his route and he was last located in Buffalo. He had no motive for suicide, and his friends believe he was a victim of foul play. He was nearly 50 years of age and single, but was, it is understood, engaged to a Minneapolis lady. He has married sisters living in Chicago and New York, whose addresses are unknown in Rockford.

Why Consulates Are Popular.

It is well known that the pressure for consulates is greater than for any other class of offices. Various causes contribute to this desire to go abroad. Representative Hitt thinks he has the true theory. "It is she women folks," he says. "You knew how it is. Brown or Jones or Smith, when he has means and leisure, likes to take his family abroad. When they come back, his wife and daughters are filled with their experiences. The whole town is fired with emulation.

Now, John Jones may not have the means to take his family to Europe, but he has influence in politics. When the political wheel turns and his party is up, he looks around to see what the reward for his services shall be. Left to himself, he would probably be content with the postoffice. But his wife and daughters have had to listen to what the Brown women or the Smith women say of life abroad, and, womenlike, they have listened with envy and with a fixed purpose some day to enjoy those experiences for themselves. So, instead of letting John Jones ask for the postoffice, they insist that he must be a consul somewhere. Their ideas may be a little indefinite about the nature and duties of a consul's office, but they know it means going abroad, and that is enough for them.

So John Jones makes out his application to be consul general to Paris and writes his congressman that, while Paris is his first choice, he will take something equally good, but it must be abroad. And thus," says Representative Hitt, "are the lives of congressmen made a burden for the first six months after a new administration comes into power. By that time the consulates are all disposed of, and the disappointed applicants can return to the postoffices." -New York Tribune.

London and Its Lions.

London does its lionizing in such a very original fashion that there is no telling in advance whether a visitor will be ignored or "taken up." We make a tremendous fuss over some second rate celebrity who excels only in blowing his own trumpet, while the real empire makers are sometimes allowed to come and go unnoticed. For solid and well planned progress achieved with the most limited resources there has been nothing since the days of Clive to beat that of the Niger company. The last little campaign against the Foulahs virtually decided the question of supremacy over a population estimated at 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 of the most warlike of African natives and a country of immense potentialities. The victory was achieved by a few hundreds cf black troops led by a handful of English officers. It was as significant in its way as Plassey, but when the organizer of victory, Sir George Goldie, reached London a few lines in small type on an inside page of The Times were all that he got. We do not regret this. Neither. we are sure, does Sir George Goldie. It is better to let things develop quietly in that part of the world. But when one recollects the gazettes and medals and distinctions devoted to comparatively unimportant skirmishes in India and elsewhere it raises queer ideas as to our national discrimination.-London Saturday Review.

Old Sumptuary Laws.

Mr. Burdett Coutts, M. P., in an address delivered before the English Universal Cookery and Food association, called attention to the sumptuary laws of the fifteenth century. Then it was enacted that, food being necessary to the sustenance of man, the seller had no right to ask his own price, but it was the duty of the state to fix it. In the same century equal supervision was exercised over cooks. They were ordered to make their meat "well seasoned and wholesome and sell it for a reasonable winning, and that they reboil or rebake no meat in hurt of the king's people." The mayor of a town in those days, upon entering office, was obliged to swear that he would exercise vigilant supervision over bakers, brewers, tavern keepers, cooks and such people. This was no perfunctory oversight, but the official exercised his authority with great severity in cases where cooks and dealers in food and drink failed of their duty.

It does look queer to see Mr. Poultney Bigelow in the role of champion of the wicked and cruel Karl Peters, the African explorer. Karl Peters is charged with hanging in Africa a poor negro woman who had been the companion of his travels for a considerable time. He took this quick way to get rid of her, it seems. His German fellow countrymen are quite right to ostracize him socially and otherwise, and all civilized men approve their course, Mr. Poultney Bigelow to the contrary notwithstanding.

Almost all people go to Alaska to hunt gold or fur animals. There are two men, however, Baker and Hubbard, who went there to farm, and they are getting more money than the average miner does. An Alaskan farm is a curiosity and a rarity, but these two men have succeeded in establishing one. They wrested their farm from the sea. They built a dike, like the Hollanders, around 80 acres of tide lands. The sea driven out, the land which it covered at high tide was found to be of extraordinary fertility. The farmers planted potatoes, Swedish turnips and other root crops. Last year they raised over 10,000 bushels of these crops. They have shipped to Sitha at one time a schooner load of rutabagas alone, for which they get the gold down. They are also enabled to keep cattle and other live stock, raising upon their sea farm abundant food for them. They get prices for all they can sell that would remind the old miner of early days in California. This is the leading farm of

The public bicycle carrier in London has now reached that stage where women and men are pedaled around by another person who does all the work. We hope the thing will not become fashionable. There is too much of the Japanese cooly and jinrikisha about it.

Characteristic sounds once more issue from the cave of harmony occupied by the European concert. The announcement was made some time since that an English firm was to overhaul the Turkish fleet and put it in good fighting order for a satisfactory consideration. No sooner has this news time to percolate to the inner consciousness of the czar's government than a warning growl is heard that Russia will not permit such a contract to be filled, regarding it as a menace to herself. It seems therefore that in Europe a private firm in one country cannot even make a contract to do work for a neighbor govern ment without getting permission from a third country that has no more business to meddle than the man in the

If the portrait of Lincoln printed in certain newspapers is a fair sample of the kind of work the celebrated new process of photo modeling is going to do, then it is a great misfortune that the process was ever invented. A man who would make a thing locking like that ought to go to jail.

Greek Fire.

Greek fire, which had several other names-wild fire, liquid fire, wet fire and fire rain—descriptive of its destruc-tiveness, is said to have been the most destructive engine of war previous to gunpowder. CHAPTER II .- (CONTINUED.) "I fancy I shall never marry," said

Carriston, looking at me with his soft, dark eyes. "You see, a boy who has waited for years expecting to die, doesn't grow up with exactly the same feelings as other people. I don't think I shall ever meet a woman I can care. for enough to make my wife. No, I expect my cousin will be Sir Ralph yet."

I tried to laugh him out of his morbid ideas. "Those who live will see," I said. "Only promise to ask me to your wedding, and better still, if you live in town, appoint me your family doctor. It may prove the nucleus of that West end practice which it is the dream of every doctor to establish."

I have already alluded to the strange beauty of Carriston's dark eyes. As soon as companionship commenced between us those eyes became to me, from scientific reasons, objects of curiosity, on account of the mysterious expression which I at times detected in them. Often and often they wore a look the like to which, I imagine, is found only in the eyes of a somnambulist—a look which one feels certain is intently fixed upon something, yet upon something beyond the range of one's own vision. During the first two or three days of our newborn intimacy I found this eccentricity of Carriston's positively startling. When now and then I turned to him, and found him staring with all his might at nothing, my eyes were compelled to follow the direction in which his own were bent. It was at first impossible to divest one's-self of the belief that something should be there to justify so fixed a gaze. However, as the rapid growth of our friendly intercourse soon showed me that he was a boy of most ardent poetic temperament-perhaps even more a poet than an artist-I laid at the door of the muse these absent looks and recurring flights into vacancy.

We were at the Fairy Glen one morning, sketching, to the best of our ability, the swirling stream, the gray rocks, and the overhanging trees, the last just growing brilliant with autumnal tints. So beautiful was everything around that for a long time I worked, idled, or dreamed in contented silence. Carriston had set up his easel at some little distance from mine. At last I turned to see how his sketch was progressing. He had evidently fallen into one of his brown studies, and, apparently, a harder one than usual. His brush had fallen from his fingers, his features were immovable, and his strange dark | state of his mind. In answer to the leadeyes were absolutely riveted upon a large rock in front of him, at which he | Carriston revealed an amount of supergazed as intently as if his hope of heaven depended upon seeing through

He seemed for the while oblivious to things mundane. A party of laughing, chattering tourist girls scrambled down the rugged steps, and one by one passed in front of him. Neither their presence nor the inquisitive glances they cast on his statuesque face roused him from his fit of abstraction. For a moment I wondered if the boy took opium or some other narcotic on the sly. Full of the thought I rose, crossed over to him, and laid my hand upon his shoulder. As he felt my touch he came to himself, and looked up at me in a dazed, inquiring way.

"Really, Carriston," I said, laughingly, "you must reserve your dreaming fits until we are in places where tourists do not congregate, or you will be thought a madman, or a least a poet."

He made no reply. He turned away from me impatiently, even rudely; then, picking up his brush, went on with his sketch. After a while he seemed to recover from his pettishness. and we spent the remainder of the day as pleasantly as usual.

As we trudged home in the twilight, he said to me in an apologetic, almost penitent way:

"I hope I was not rude to you just now?"

"When do you mean?" I asked, having almost forgotten the trivia! inci-

"When you woke me from what you called my dreaming?"

"Oh, dear no. You were not at all rude. If you had been, it was but the penalty due to my presumption. The flights of genius should be respected not checked by a material hand."

"That is nonsense; I am not a genius, and you must forgive me for my rudeness," said Carriston simply.

After walking some distance in silence, he spoke again. "I wish when you are with me you would try and stop me from getting into that state. It does me no good."

Seeing he was in earnest, I promised to do my best, and was curious enough to ask him whither his thoughts wandered during those abstracted moments.

"I can scarcely tell you," he said. Presently he asked, speaking with hesitation, "I suppose you never feel ly man of about forty years of age. tution.

that under certain circumstances-circumstances which you cannot explain -you might be able to see things which are invisible to others?"

"To see things. What things?" "Things, as I said, which no one else can see. You must know there are people who possess this power." "I know that certain people have asserted they possess what they call second-sight; but the assertion is too absurd to waste time in refuting." "Yet," said Carriston dreamily, "I know that if I did not strive to avoid it some such power would come to me." "You are too ridiculous. Carriston." I said. "Some people see what others don't, because they have longer sight. You may, of course, imagine anything. But your eyes-handsome eyes they are, too-contain certain properties, known as humors and lenses, therefore in order to see-"

"Yes, yes," interrupted Carriston; "I know exactly all you are going to say. You, a man of science, ridicule everything which breaks what you are pleased to call the law of nature. Yet take all the unaccountable tales told. Nine hundred and ninety-nine you expose to scorn or throw grave doubts upon, yet the thousandth rests on evidence which can not be upset or disputed. The possibility of that one proves the possibility of all."

"Not at all; but enough for your argument," I said, amused at the boy's wild talk.

"You doctors," he continued with that delicious air of superiority so often assumed by laymen when they are in good health, "put too much to the credit of diseased imagination."

"No doubt; it's a convenient shelf on which to put a difficulty. But go

"The body is your province, yet you can't explain why a cataleptic patient should hear a watch tick when it is placed against his foot."

"Nor you; nor any one. But perhaps it may aid you to get rid of your rubbishing theories if I tell you that catalepsy, as you understand it, is a disease not known to us; in fact, it does not

He seemed crestfallen at hearing this. 'But what do you want to prove?" I asked. "What have you yourself seen?" "Nothing, I tell you. And I pray I may never see anything." After this he seemed inclined to shirk the subject, but I pinned him to it. I was really anxious to get at the true ing questions with which I plied him, stition which seemed utterly childish and out of place beside the intellectual faculties which he undoubtedly pos-

Yet I was not altogether amused by his talk. His wild arguments and wilder beliefs made me fancy there must be a weak spot somewhere in his brain-even made me fear lest his end might be madness. The thought made me sad; for, with the exception of the eccentricities which I have mentioned, I reckoned Carriston the pleasantest friend I had ever made. His amiable nature, his good looks, and perfect breeding had endeared the young man to me; so much so that I resolved, during the remainder of the time we should spend together, to do all I could toward taking the nonsense out of him.

My efforts were unavailing. I kept a sharp lookout upon him, and let him fall into no more mysterious reveries; but the curious idea that he possessed, or could possess, some gift above human nature, was too firmly rooted to be displaced. On all other subjects he argued fairly and was open to reason.' On this one point he was immovable. When I could get him to notice my attacks at all, his answer

"You doctors, clever as you are with the body, know as little of psychology as you did three thousand years ago." When the time came to fold up my easel and return to the drudgery of life, I parted from Carriston with much regret. One of those solemn, but often broken, promises to join together next year in another sketching tour passed between us. Then I went back to London, and during the subsequent months, although I saw nothing of him, I often thought of my friend of the autumn.

III.

N THE spring of 1865 I went down to Bournemouth to see, for the last time, an old friend who was dying of consumption. During a great part of the journey down I had for a traveling companion a welldressed gentleman-

We were alone in the compartment and after interchanging some small civilities, such as the barter of newspapers, glided into conversation. My fellow traveler seemed to be an Intellectual man, and well posted up in the doings of the day. He talked fluently and easily on various topics, and, judging from his talk, must have moved in good society. Although I fancied his features bore traces of hard living, and dissipation, he was not unprepossessing in appearance. The greatest faults in his face were the remarkable thinness of the lips, and his eyes being a shade closer together than one cares to see. With a casual acquaintance such peculiarities are of little moment, but for my part I should not choose for a friend one who possessed them, without due trial and searching proof.

At this time the English public were much interested in an important will case which was then being tried. The reversion to a vast sum of money depended upon the testator's sanity or insanity. Like most other people, we duly discussed the matter. I suppose, from some of my remarks, my companion understood that I was a doctor. He asked me a good many technical questions, and I described several curious cases of mania which had come under my notice. He seemed greatly interested in the subject.

"You must sometimes find it hard to say where sanity ends, and insanity begins," he said, thoughtfully.

"Yes. The boundary line is, in some instances, hard to define. To give, in such a dubious case, an opinion which would satisfy myself. I would want to have known the patient at the time he was considered quite sane."

"To mark the difference?"

"Exactly. And to know the bent of the character. For instance, there is a freind of mine. He was perfectly sane when last I saw him, but, for all I know, he may have made great progress the other way in the interval." Then, without mentioning names, dates or places, I described Carriston's peculiar disposition to my intelligent listener. He heard me with rapt interest.

"You predict he will go mad?" he "Certainly not. Unless something unforeseen arises he will probably live and die as sane as you or I."

"Why do you fear him, then?" "For this reason. I think that any sudden emotion-violent grief, for instance—any unexpected and crushing blow-might at once disturb the balance of his mind. Let his life run on in an even groove, and all will be well with him."

My companion was silent for a few moments.

'Did you mention your friend's name?" he asked.

I laughed. "Doctors never give names when they quote cases." At the next station my companion left the train. He bade me a polite adieu, and thanked me for the pleasure my conversation had given him. After wondering what station in life he occupied I dismissed him from my mind, as one who had crossed my path for a short time and would probably never cross it again.

short time and would probably never Although I did not see Charles Carriston I received several letters from him during the course of the year. He had not forgotten our undertaking to pass my next holiday together. Early in the autumn, just as I was beginning to long with a passionate longing for open air and blue skies, a letter came from Carriston. He was now, he said, roughing it in the Western Highlands. He reminded me of last year's promise. Could I get away from work now? Would I join him? If I did not care to visit Scotland, would I suggest some other place where he could join me? Still, the scenery by which he was now surrounded was superb, and the accommodation he had secured, if not luxurious, fairly comfortable. He thought we could do no better. A postscript to his letter asked me to address him as Cecil Carr, not Charles Carriston. He had a reason for changing his name-a foolish reason I should no doubt call it. When we met he would let me know it.

This letter at once decided me to accept his invitation. In a week's time r, arrangements for leave of absence were complete, and I was speeding northward in the highest spirits, and well equipped with everything necessary for my favorite holiday pursuit. I looked forward with the greatest pleasure to again meeting Carriston. I found him at Callendar waiting for me. The coach did not follow the route we were obliged to take in order to reach the somewhat unfrequented part of the country in which our tent was pitched, so my friend had secured the services of a primitive vehicle and a strong shaggy pony to bear us the remainder of the journey.

Questions in Bee Keeping. 1. Is it the old or new queen that goes out with the swarm?

2. Do you clip one or both wings of the queen?

3. If drones are killed how is it best accomplished? How repress the rearing of them?

4. When sections are not finished in the fall flow of honey can the bees be fed and cause them to finish them? If so, do you advise this plan?

Answer: 1. The old queen goes with the first swarm and a young queen with each after-swarm.

2. A bee has four wings, a large one and a small one on each side. It is sufficient to cut the large wing on one side, and better than to cut a little from all. L. A. Aspinwall reports that he has cut off about an eighth of an inch from the wings on both sides of virgin queens, and finds they become fertilized all right, showing they can fly with that amount cut from both sides. (He does this to secure fertilization from his own drones rather than to have them fly off to a distance.) But if the same amount be cut away from one side only it throws them out of balance when they attempt to fly and they tumble to the ground. If you cut off just the one large wing take off all you can conveniently. With only one wing cut away, the defect is scarcely noticed, so that if you care greatly for the beauty of your queens you will cut only one wing. But the very fact that such clipping is not so readily noticed makes it objectionable to one who has much work in the apiary, so I prefer to cut off all I can conveniently from both wings on one side, then I can tell at a glance whether a queen is clipped or not.

3. You can kill drones by means of a drone-trap in front of the hive, catching them in it and then destroying them. A better plan is to slice the heads off the drone-brood after it is sealed. Much better than either is the plan of having no drone-comb in the hive. Fill every frame full of worker foundation. But bees are sometimes so desperately in earnest about rearing drones that they will work a few drone-cells in every possible place, and will even build some cells on worker base. G. M. Doolittle thinks it better to allow them one or two square inches of drone-comb in the hive, and this satisfies them, and gives the beekeeper no trouble to find it, so he can slice it every two or three weeks.

4. Most bee-keepers decide that it is not easily practicable, and not profitable.-American Beekeeper.

Practical Sheep Husbandry.

Young animals cannot digest solid food until they have their grinding teeth through. It will be wise to avoid feeding young lambs any grain until are thus far advanced, say American Sheep Breeder. A little meal, salted, may be given, however, by the hand, to tame them, and prepare them for feeding in this way by and by. It is a good thing to have a good fresh cow on hand when the young lambs are appearing. A few drinks of the new milk may save many a lamb. Later in the season preparations should be made for a good supply of cabbage and turnips for the flock. These are for next winter's feeding, when they will go far to keep the flock healthy. It is a wise precaution to separate the lambs from the older sheep as soon as possible, to avoid the infection of the young things by the numerous parasites carried by the old sheep. These, by their greater natural hardiness, do not suffer from them as the weaker lambs will. Some ewes are poor milkers, for, although the feeding may be the same, some will milk better than others. But we may be sure the milk is made from the food, and some extra good feed may help the ewe to do better. This is a point to be taken note of by the shepherd, so that the less productive ewes may be helped out with a more liberal supply of feed. Alternate pastures are a great help to the flock. Sheep love change, and naturally are wandering in their habits. A freshened pasture, therefore, will greatly help them as a change now and Spraying.

Utah experiment station publishes the following:

I. Spraying is undoubtedly effective and pays if fruit raising does.

II. Spray thoroughly and spray when it will do the most good and not before nor after.

III. For fungous diseases spray with some copper salt, a simple solution of copper sulphate, 1 pound to 15 gallons of water, before the buds swell; later with the Bordeaux mixture, and as the fruits nears maturity use the ammoniacal solution of copper carbonate.

IV. For insects which gnaw spray with Paris green or London purple, 1 pound to 200 gallons of water, applying it when the enemy is seen at work or earlier if he works within the plant.

V. For insects which suck the plant juices spray the insect itself with kerosene emulsion and be sure that each one gets its share.

VI. The aphis or apple-root louse is successfully combated by applying tobacco dust about the roots of the affected tree. The cost is about two cents per tree.

VII. Neither spraying for insects nor for fungous diseases injures the fruit for use as food.

Thompson's Indolence.

James Thomson, the author of the 'Seasons" and the "Castle of Indolence," paid homage in the latter admirable poem to the master passion or habit of his own easy nature. Thomson was so excessively lazy that he is recorded to have been seen standing at a peach tree, with both his hands in his pockets, eating the fruit as it grew. Another time, being found in bed at a very late hour of the day, when he was asked why he did not get up, his answer was, "Troth, man, I see nae motive for rising!"

'Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It cures painful, swollen, smarting feet and instantly takes the sting out of corns and bunions. It is the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Allen's Foot-Ease makes tight-fitting or new shoes feel easy. It is a certain cure for sweating, callous and hot, tired, aching feet. Try it today. Sold by all druggists and shoe stores. By mail for 25c in stamps. Trial package free. Address Allen S. Olmstead, Le Roy, N. Y.

No Doubt About It.

Daughter-Both Mr. Cheerible and Mr. Lovelorn have proposed, and I don't know which to marry. Mother-Accept Mr. Cheerible, dear. He is the best natured man I ever saw. Daughter-What makes you think so, mamma? Mother-I've noticed that he laughs at his rival's jokes even.

Abating the Nuisance.

Mr. Grump-If Lucy doesn't stop banging that piano I'll send her to the conservatory. Mrs. Grump-But I always thought you didn't like music. Mr. Grump-That's the reason, and I've noticed that a girl's desire to play diminishes in exact ratio with her acquisition of a musical education.

Real Warm Weather, Rest and Comfort. There is a powder to be shaken into the shoes called Allen's Foot-Ease, invented by Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y., which druggists and shoe dealers say is the best thing they have ever sold to cure swollen, burning, sore and tender or aching feet. Some dealers claim that it makes tight or new shoes feel easy. It certainly will cure corns and bunions and relieve instantly sweating, hot or smarting feet. It costs only a quarter, and the inventor will send a sample free to any address.

Thousands Set Out for the Gold Fields of Alaska.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN SAIL.

Large Amount of Treasure Brought Down from the Klondyke by the Steamer Portland-Order to Be Preserved in Mining Camps.

One hundred men took passage from Seattle, Wash., on the steamer Al Ki Monday, most of them starting on what is called the overland trip to Klondyke. Among the crowd were many wellknown men who have long been identified with the growth and development of the northwest.

The amount of treasure brought down from the famed Klondyke by the steamship Portland is now placed at $1,500,000, and there is good reason to believe that the sum was nearer to $2,000,000.

At present only miners' laws rule the gold camps, but next year Dawson City will be incorporated and municipal officers elected. The miners are determined on one thing, howevernamely, that order will be preserved at all hazards. No sure thing gamblers will be permitted in either Dawson City or the diggings.

Exports of Merchandise Heavy. The monthly statement of the exports and imports of the United States makes the remarkable showing that never before in the history of the country have the exports of merchandise, which include practically all the exports except gold and silver, reached so high a figure as during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1897, nor has the excess of exports over imports ever been so Rich Gold Discoveries in Alaska. Just across the Alaska boundary in British territory has been discovered a gold mine of such vast extent and such unbounded wealth that the mines of Golconda are eclipsed. known Yukon district.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETS.

Great Convention of Church Workers at Toronto, Canada. Delegates to the convention of the Epworth league overwhelmed Toronto. Canada. The opening meetings were held Thursday. A. S. Hardy, Premier of Ontario, warmly welcomed the visitors, as did also Rev. A. Carmen of Toronto. Replies were made for the Methodist Episcopal church by Bishop W. X. Ninde of Detroit, and for the Methodist Episcopal church South by Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald of Nashville. Four monster meetings were held in the evening. Bishop John P. Newman delivered a lecture on the advance of Christianity, in the course of which he criticised the press, stating instead of doing good it served up for our breakfast a hash of crime, murder and scan-

A telegram expressing congratulations and encouragement was received from President McKinley.

Members of the Epworth League in cession at Toronto, Canada, devoted Friday to prayer meetings and missionary rallies. The Epworth cabinet decided by unanimous vote to meet in Indianapolis in 1899.

Five monster farewell rallies Sunday night closed the greatest convention the Epworth League has ever had. At Massey's Music Hall the greatest meeting was held, the building being crowded to its fullest capacity by over 5,000 persons. Other meetings were held at the Metropolitan Church, at Cook's Church, at the Pavilion and at Broadway tablernacle.

Silver Resolutions Adopted.

W. J. Bryan made a powerful speech before the trans-Mississippi congress Friday for the free-silver resolutions as against the indorsement of McKinley's bimetallic commission, by a minority report. The majority report for free coinage was adopted by a vote of 244 to 46. Hugh Craig of California was elected president.

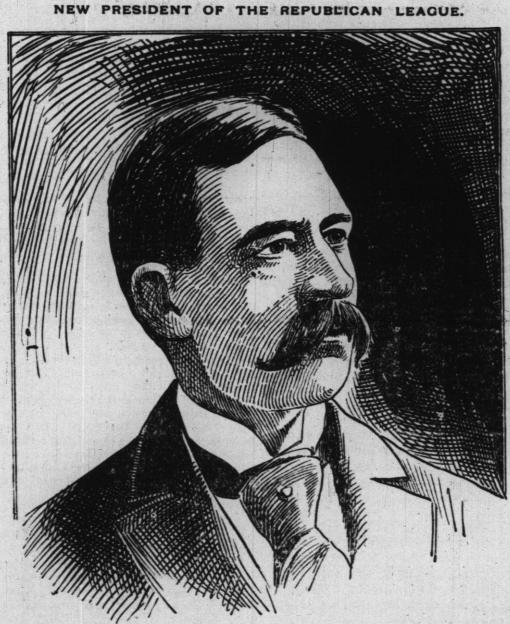

International Bimetallic Conference. There is every indication that an inernational monetary conference will be held in the United States, with Great Britain as a participant. This is the probable result of the visit to Europe of the special monetary envoys recently appointed by President McKinley.

Forest Fires in California.

Forest and field fires have done much damage in various parts of California. Near the town of Red Bluff about a dozen residences have been burned, cattle ranges destroyed and standing crops threatened. The loss is over $100,000.

WOMEN! DON'T WAIT.

If You Have Any of These Symptoms Act at Once.

Do you know the reason why you will go to the hospital, my poor friend?

Because you have allowed yourself to go from bad to worse. You did not know that that heat, swelling and tenderness in your left side were all signs of congestion of the ovary.

Any intelligent woman could have told you that congestion is fatal to the

you will have to undergo the operation of ovariotomy, the cutting out of the ovary.

Yes, you will recover, at least I hope you will; but you will never be quite the same woman again. Congestion of the ovaries is fatal to health. If you have any such symptoms be advised in time; take a medicine of specific powers! You can find none better than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared especially to meet the needs of woman's sexual system.

You can get it at any good druggist's. Following we publish a letter from woman in Milwaukee, which relates how she was cured of ovarian trouble: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-I suffered with congestion of the ovaries and inflammation of the womb. I had been troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation from a girl. The doctors told me the ovaries would have to be removed. I took treatment two years to escape an operation, but still remained in miserable health in both body and mind, expecting to part with my reason each coming month. After using one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash I was very much relieved. I continued to use your remedies until cured. The last nine months have been passed in perfect good health. This, I know, I owe entirely to the Vegetable Compound. My gratitude is great, indeed, to the one to whom so many women owe their health and happiness."-Mrs. F. M. KNAPP, 563 Wentworth Ave., Milwau-

300000000000 How Old are You?

You need not answer the question, madam. for in your case age is not counted by years. It will always be true that "a woman is as old as she looks." Nothing sets the seal of age so deeply upon woman's beauty as gray hair. It is natural, therefore, that every woman is anxious to preserve her hair in all its original abundance and beauty; or, that being denied the crowning gift of beautiful hair, she longs to possess it. Nothing is easier than to attain to this gift or to preserve it, if already possessed. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. It does this by simply aiding nature, by supplying the nutrition necessary to health and growth. There is no better preparation for the hair
