Wilber Nacher Meets with a Painful Accident.

Wilber, the 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Nacher met with a painful accident on Friday of last week. While at play Wilber, unnoticed, discovered a box, which was supposed to have been out of his reach. He climbed up to where it was and took from it one of the cartridges used for the explosion of dynamite to play with and which had been stored in the box for some time. The little fellow's fun was soon brought to an end for that day, at least, when later he found a few matches. Not knowing that the cartridge was anything harmful, he lit one of the matches and placed the blaze to the cartridge held in the other hand. The cartridge exploded and the little fellow's hand was left in a horrible condition. The thumb and two fingers of one hand were mangled to the first joint of each, while his face was quite badly spotted with powder.

A doctor was hastily called and his wounds were dressed.

Wilber is now able to be around and is getting along nicely, but it will be some time before he will regain the use of his hand.

League Rally.

The Epworth League rally held Sunday evening at the M. E. church was one of the most interesting and enthusiastic meetings held this season. A large congregation was present to enjoy the services. Good singing was a feature of the service that everybody enjoyed. The meeting was presided over by Vice-president H. A. Harneden of the league and the following papers were read:

"The Kind of People we Want in our League," by B. Beinlich.

"Private Devotions," by Allie Meyers.

"An Echo from Toronto," by Mrs. Ream.

After these papers the Rev. T. E. Ream gave a short address on the grand work, both spiritually and politically, that the young peoples' societies of the United States are accomplishing.

A good hand-shake closed the rally to the glory of God.

Y. P. E. M. Society Will Picnic at the Camp Grounds.

One of the most pleasant picnics of the season will be given at the camp grounds, one mile south of Barrington, by the Young Peoples' Evangelical Society of the Salem church on Wednesday, September 1. Games and races of every kind will be had, including a grab bag, in which a prize will be in store for everybody. The Barrington Military band will furnish music during the day. The celebrated Album quilt, which has been but recently completed, will be sold to the highest bidder at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Womens' Missionary Society has decided to appease the appetites of all who may attend and at noon will serve lunch on the grounds at a reasonable price. Everybody is cordially invited to come and enjoy a day's outing.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhea.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Your grateful friend, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by A. L. Waller, Barrington and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

On a recent visit to the Spring Lake creamery, we could not help noticing how neat, sweet and clean everything is kept. All the paraphernalia of butter and cheese making are kept scrupulously clean and in perfect order. Mr. Gibson finds a ready market for all the product of the factory. The Spring Lake creamery butter is a favorite with Algonquin consumers.—Algonquin Arrow.

Millinery Opening.

September 1, 2, 3 and 4, will be opening days at Miss Gretton's. Call and see the latest styles in fall millinery. Special for opening days will be the "Dakota" walking hats and the new "Cowboy" hats, that are so much the rage for present wear.

Charles Seip and Rob McCabe took in the Woodstock fair Wednesday. Charlie had his flyer in one of the races and it showed up well in the first two heats.

Henry Wildhagen commenced his duties behind the counter for H. C. Matthei yesterday morning and John Meissner goes to Richmond Sunday to stock up his new store there.

Rev. H. L. St. Clair of Arlington Heights will occupy the M. E. church pulpit tomorrow morning. Rev. J. C. Butcher will discourse in the evening on "The Foolishness of Preaching."

The ball game between the Unions and the Chicago Unions resulted in a score of 22 to 17 in favor of the colored gentlemen. The game attracted a large crowd and proved an interesting one.

The Ela Cornet Band has arranged for a big picnic to be held at Lake Zurich tomorrow. A ball game between the Wauconda Independents and the Unions will be one of the attractions.

The prospects for a good foot ball team are brightening. The boys have been out two nights this week and several new candidates were on the field. Election of officers will probably occur in a week or so.

The creamery at Elk Grove, owned by J. Sigwalt of Arlington Heights, was burned to the ground Monday night. The fire started in the ice house, located in the rear of the factory, in some mysterious manner.

The Wauconda Independents will cross bats with the Unions on the grounds at Barrington this afternoon. This game between two rival teams will be an interesting one as both are bound the other team shall be beaten. Peters will twirl for the Unions.

Rev. J. C. Butcher is in demand these days for missionary addresses. He was at the New Lenox camp meeting this week where he preached a sermon and gave a missionary address. Tomorrow morning he gives a missionary address at Arlington Heights.

Upon returning to his senses he told me, with great excitement, that he had again seen Madeline; moreover, this time he had seen a man with her—a man who had placed his hand upon her wrist and kept it there; and so, according to Carriston's wild reasoning, became, on account of the contact, visible to him.

He told me he had watched them for some moments, until the man tightening his grip on the girl's arm, endeavored, he thought, to lead her or induce her to follow him somewhere. At this juncture, unaware that he was gazing at a vision, he had rushed to her assistance in the frantic way I have described—then he awoke.

He also told me he had studied the man's features and general appearance most carefully with a view to future recognition. All these ridiculous statements were made as he made the former ones, with the air of relating simple, undeniable facts—one speaking the plain, unvarnished truth, and expecting full credence to be given to his words.

XII.

It was too absurd! too sad! It was evident to me that the barrier between his hallucinations, dreams, visions, or whatever he chose to call them, and pure insanity, was now a very slight and fragile one.

But before I gave his case up as hopeless I determined to make another strong appeal to his common sense. I told him of his cousin's visit to me—of his intentions and proposition. I begged him to consider what consequences his extraordinary beliefs and extravagant actions must eventually entail. He listened attentively and calmly.

"You see now," he said, "how right I was in attributing all this to Ralph Carriston—how right I was to come to you, a doctor of standing, who can vouch for my sanity."

"Vouch for your sanity! How can I when you sit here and talk such arrant nonsense, and expect me to believe it? When you jump from your chair and rush madly at some visionary foe? Sane as you may be in all else, any evidence I could give in your favor must break down in cross-examination if an inkling of these things go about. Come, Carriston, be reasonable, and prove your sanity by setting about this search for Miss Rowan in a proper way."

He made no reply, but walked up and down the room apparently in deep thought. My words seemed to have had no effect upon him. Presently he seated himself; and, as if to avoid returning to the argument, drew a book at hazard from my shelves and began to read. He opened the volume at random, but after reading a few lines seemed struck by something that met his eyes, and in a few minutes was deeply immersed in the contents of the book. I glanced at it to see what had so awakened his interest. By a curious fatality he had chosen a book the very worst for him in his present frame of mind—Ghehrst's recently published life of William Blake, that masterly memoir of a man who was on certain points as mad as Carriston himself. I was about to remonstrate, when he laid down the volume and turned to me.

"Varley, the painter," he said, "was a firm believer in Blake's visions." "Varley was a bigger fool than Blake," I retorted. "Fancy his sitting down and watching his clever but mad friend draw spectral heads, and believing them to be genuine portraits of dead kings whose forms condescended to appear to Blake!"

A sudden thought seemed to strike Carriston. "Will you give me some paper and chalk?" he asked. Upon being furnished with these materials, he seated himself at the table and began to draw. At least a dozen times he sketched, with his usual rapidity, some object or another, and a dozen times, after a moment's consideration, threw each sketch aside with an air of disappointment and began a fresh one. At last one of his attempts seemed to come up to his requirements. "I have it now, exactly!" he cried, with joy—even triumph—in his voice. He spent some time in putting finishing touches to the successful sketch, and then he handed me the paper.

"That is the man I saw just now with Madeline," he said. "When I find him I shall find her." He spoke with all sincerity and conviction. I looked at the paper with, I am bound to say, a great amount of curiosity.

No matter from what visionary source Carriston had drawn his inspiration, his sketch was vigorous and natural enough. I have already mentioned his wonderful power of drawing portraits from memory, so was willing to grant that he might have reproduced the outline of some face which had somewhere struck him. Yet why should it have been this one? His drawing represented the three-quarter face of a man—an ordinary man—apparently between forty and fifty years of age. It was a coarse-featured, ill-favored face, with a ragged ruff of hair round the chin. It was not the face of a gentleman, nor even the face of a gently nurtured man; and the artist, by a few cunning strokes, had made it wear a crafty and sullen look. The sketch, as I write this, lies before me, so that I am not speaking from memory.

Now, there are some portraits of which, without having seen the original, we say, "What splendid likenesses these must be." It was so with Carriston's sketch. Looking at it you felt sure it was exactly like the man whom it was intended to represent. So that, with the certain amount of art knowledge, which I am at least supposed to possess, it was hard for me, after examining the drawing and recognizing the true artist's touch in every line, to bring myself to accept the fact that it was but the outcome of a diseased imagination. As, at this very moment, I glance at that drawing, I scarcely blame myself for the question that faintly frames itself in my innermost heart. "Could it be possible—could there be in certain organizations powers not yet known—not yet properly investigated?"

My thought—supposing such a thought was ever there—was not discouraged by Carriston, who, speaking as if his faith in the bodily existence of the man whose portrait lay in my hand was unassailable, said:

"I noticed that his general appearance was that of a countryman—an English peasant; so in the country I shall find my love. Moreover, it will be easy to identify the man, as the top joint is missing from the middle finger of his right hand. As it lay on Madeline's arm I noticed that."

I argued with him no more. I felt that words would be but wasted.

XIII.

A DAY or two after I had witnessed what I must call Carriston's second seizure we were favored with a visit from the man whose services we had secured to trace Madeline. Since he had received his instructions we had heard nothing of his proceedings until he now called to report progress in person. Carriston had not expressed the slightest curiosity as to where the man was or what he was about. Probably he looked upon the employment of this private detective as nothing more useful than a salve to my conscience. That Madeline was only to be found through the power which he professed to hold of seeing her in his visions was, I felt certain, becoming a rooted belief of his. Whenever I expressed my surprise that our agent had brought or sent no information, Carriston shrugged his shoulders, and assured me that from the first he knew the man's researches would be fruitless. However, the fellow had called at last, and, I hoped, had brought us good news.

He was a glib-tongued man, who spoke in a confident, matter-of-fact way. When he saw us, he rubbed his hands as one who had brought affairs to a successful issue, and now meant to reap praise and other rewards. His whole bearing told me he had made an important discovery; so I begged him to be seated, and give us his news.

Carriston gave him a careless glance, and stood at some little distance from us. He looked as if he thought the impending communication scarcely worth the trouble of listening to. He might, indeed, from his looks, have been the most disinterested person of the three. He even left me to do the questioning.

"Now, then, Mr. Sharpe," I said, "let us hear if you have earned your money."

"I think so, sir," replied Sharpe, looking curiously at Carriston, who, strange to say, heard his answer with supreme indifference.

"I think I may say I have, sir," continued the detective; "that is, if the gentleman can identify these articles as being the lady's property."

Thereupon he produced, from a thick lettercase, a ribbon, in which was stuck a silver pin, mounted with Scotch pebbles, an ornament that I remembered having seen Madeline wear. Mr. Sharpe handed them to Carriston. He examined them, and I saw his cheeks flush and his eyes grow bright.

"How did you come by this?" he cried, pointing to the silver ornament.

"I'll tell you presently, sir. Do you recognize it?"

"I gave it to Miss Rowan myself." "Then we are on the right track," I cried, joyfully. "Go on, Mr. Sharpe."

"Yes, gentlemen, we are certainly on the right track; but after all it isn't my fault if the track don't lead exactly where you wish. You see, when I heard of this mysterious disappearance of the lady I began to concoct my own theory. I said to myself, when a young and beautiful—"

"Confound your theories!" cried Carriston, fiercely. "Go on with your tale."

The man gave his interrupter a spiteful glance. "Well, sir," he said, "as you gave me strict instructions to watch a certain gentleman closely, I obeyed those instructions, of course, although I knew I was on a fool's errand."

"Will you go on?" cried Carriston. "If you know where Miss Rowan is, say so; your money will be paid you the moment I find her."

"I don't say I know exactly where to find the lady, but I can soon know if you wish me to."

"Tell your tale your own way, but as shortly as possible," I said, seeing that my excitable friend was preparing for another outburst.

"I found there was nothing to be gained by keeping watch on the gentleman you mentioned, sir, so I went to Scotland and tried back from there. As soon as I worked on my own lay I found out all about it. The lady went from Callendar to Edinburgh, from Edinburgh to London, from London to Folkestone, and from Folkestone to Boulogne."

I glanced at Carriston. All his calmness seemed to have returned. He was leaning against the mantel-piece, and appeared quite unmoved by Mr. Sharpe's clear statement as to the route Madeline had taken.

"Of course," continued Mr. Sharpe, "I was not quite certain I was tracking the right person, although her description corresponded with the likeness you gave me. But as you are sure this article of jewelry belonged to the lady you want, the matter is beyond a doubt."

"Of course," I said, seeing that Carriston had no intention of speaking. "Where did you find it?"

"It was left behind in a bedroom of one of the principal hotels in Folkestone. I did go over to Boulogne, but after that I thought I had learned all you would care to know."

There was something in the man's manner which made me dread what was coming. Again I looked at Carriston. His lips were curved with contempt, but he still kept silence.

"Why not have pursued your inquiries past Boulogne?" I asked.

"For this reason, sir, I had learned enough. The theory I had concocted was the right one after all. The lady went to Edinburgh alone, right enough; but she didn't leave Edinburgh alone, nor did she leave London alone, nor she didn't stay at Folkestone—where I found the pin—alone, nor she didn't go to Goulogne alone. She was accompanied by a young gentleman who called himself Mr. Smith; and, what's more, she called herself Mrs. Smith. Perhaps she was, as they lived like man and wife."

Whether the fellow was right or mistaken, this explanation of Madeline's disappearance seemed to give me what I can only compare to a smack in the face. I stared at the speaker in speechless astonishment. If the tale he told so glibly and circumstantially was true, farewell, so far as I was concerned, to belief in the love or purity of woman. Madeline Rowan, that creature of a poet's dream, on the eve of her marriage with Charles Carriston, to fly, whether wed or unwed mattered little, with another man! And yet, she was but a woman. Carriston—or Carr, as she only knew him—was in her eyes poor. The companion of her flight might have won her with gold. Such things have been. Still—

My rapid and wrongful meditations were cut short in an unexpected way. Suddenly I saw Mr. Sharpe dragged bodily out of his chair and thrown on to the floor, whilst Carriston, standing over him, thrashed the man vigorously with his own ash stick—a convenient weapon, so convenient that I felt Mr. Sharpe could not have selected a stick more appropriate for his own chastisement. So Carriston seemed to think for he laid on cheerfully some eight or ten good cutting strokes.

Nevertheless, being a respectable doctor and man of peace, I was compelled to interfere. I held Carriston's arm whilst Mr. Sharpe struggled to his feet and, after collecting his hat and his pocketbook, stood glaring vengefully at his assailant, and rubbing the while such of the wales on his back as he could reach. Annoyed as I felt at the unprofessional fracas, I could scarcely help laughing at the man's appearance. I doubt the possibility of anyone looking heroic after such a thrashing.

VETERANS GATHER AGAIN.

Annual Encampment of the G. A. R. at Buffalo.

SUCCESSFUL REUNION SURE.

Large Attendance of the Old Soldiers—Citizens of Buffalo Very Enthusiastic in Their Reception—Enormous Parades.

Old soldiers poured into Buffalo by the thousands Tuesday. They came to the G. A. R. encampment by regiments and battalions, by corps and divisions.

The chief event of the proceedings proper was the formal opening of Camp Jewett at 4 o'clock. There was a splendid parade of civic bodies at night and a public reception to Major T. S. Clarkson, commander-in-chief.

The illuminations were displayed and the visitors were delighted with their gorgeousness. Dozens of bands were on the streets playing old war tunes, and the citizens came out by the hundred thousand to enjoy the pageant of light and color and rhythm.

Commander-in-Chief Clarkson's arrival at his quarters at the Iroquois hotel and his reception constituted the first event of the week of the encampment.

During the morning the women's headquarters at 256 Delaware avenue were formally opened.

EXCURSIONISTS ARE HURT.

Fatal Wreck on the Outskirts of Lima, Ohio.

A score of excursionists were injured in a railway smash-up at 10:30 Friday night in the outskirts of Lima, Ohio. At least three of them are expected to die.

The wreck occurred at the junction of the Lima Northern and the Lake Erie and Western roads in the eastern portion of the city. A Lake Erie freight crashed into a Lima Northern special passenger train carrying a large number of excursionists on their return from Toledo. The Lake Erie engine was knocked off the track and badly demolished, and two coaches of the Lima Northern were overturned. Relief trains were hurried to the scene and all physicians in Lima were pressed into service.

Neither train stopped at the junction. The Lake Erie engine dashed into the second coach. It was filled with passengers. The engine was sent into a wheat field fifty feet from the track.

ELECT A NEW YORKER.

Joseph C. Hendrix Chosen President of Bankers' Association.

At Thursday's session Joseph C. Hendrix of New York was elected president of the American Bankers' Association. For the vice-presidency the candidates were Frank W. Tracy, president of the First national bank of Springfield, Ill., and George H. Russell, president of the State savings bank of Detroit. Mr. Russell was elected by a vote of 205 to 120 for Mr. Tracy.

Resolutions were adopted calling upon congress for the appointment of a currency commission. A committee was appointed to urge this matter. The convention then adjourned.

Desert Uncle Sam for Gold.

The gold fever has seized the members of the revenue marine service. Three of the crew of the cutter Perry, which met the gold-laden steamer Portland at Dutch harbor, deserted and started for St. Michael. They stole a boat from the Northern American Commercial Company, robbed the store-room of the Perry and boldly went out on the open sea for a 700-mile journey to St. Michael.

Prosperity in Lumber Camps.

The coming season in the lumber camps in Michigan will be a record-breaker in activity. There will be three more camps at Gogebic, employing at least 150 men. Wages in the lumber woods will be from 20 to 30 per cent higher than last season. Men are very scarce.

ADVICE TO FARMERS.

Proper and Advantageous Way to Sell Farm Products.

The independent shippers of grain to Chicago begin to realize that they have a common obstacle to surmount. The professional grain shippers over a dozen big states tributary to Chicago number an army. Many of them have grown rich from the farmers' wagons by a 25 years' stay at their stations. Some of them have private banks, some have bought farms, all are prosperous. This house has not a word against these people. It is not doing business with them. It is doing business with an army of farmers. It has given producers the best practical help since the railroads made the big central markets possible. If 10,000 farmers have discovered that they have no further use for 1,000 country grain buyers, they have a perfect right to go past them, fill their own cars, and ship their own grain. Many years ago farmers discovered that the old reaper and the old double shovel one-horse corn cultivator were too slow. They left them in the fence corners and bought improved machinery. The manufacturers did not kick. They met the demand with self-binders and riding sulky plows. The world has grown tired of many old things. The farming world is getting tired of paying others to do what it can do itself. If farmers wish to desert the local shippers (who may have been needed 40 years ago), no amount of muleishness on the part of the shippers can stop them. Grain shippers have an organ to keep up their courage. Their publication has again filled its columns with abuse of the farmers' commission house. It is a case of sore toe. They howl because they are hurt.

The farmers understand this sort of warfare made on the house which has put them in touch with Chicago. Their letters to us show that they believe this fact, viz., that if there is enough in grain shipments to fight for, the farmers want that margin. All that is now needed to spread direct shipments is some well-developed opposition. Farmers are in a frame of mind to do about as they please this year. We welcome any fair and honorable attention from the paid organ of grain shippers, and will see that its attacks are well spread before independent shippers and independent thinkers in a thousand farming communities. We have assurances that our efforts in behalf of farmers will be fully appreciated and reciprocated. Any man or any house may be glad of a fair criticism from the enemy with such an army at his back, but unjust, malignant attacks, made with the intention of vilifying and injuring us, are different. Farmers never were in better temper to demand their full rights and full profits for their labor than they are to-day.—H. H. Carr.

A ROMANCE OF BUTTE.

By Lue Vernon.

YOU ask me to tell you a story, boys," I said to some old musicians and companions who had come to wish me "a long and happy life."

They were spending the evening in our new home. The night was cold and we had gathered round a cheery blazing fire to have a chat, as we had in days of yore, before I was married.

"Yes, you were always a good hand at spinning, Frank; tell us something about your honeymoon," and the boys smiled a little.

"Well," I replied, with a smile, "it may not be very long, but I think you will agree that it is interesting, and even exciting. However, you know that Amber and I went to Butte to spend the first month of our married life and to visit her father and mother, who lived there.

"Of course we meant to see as much of the great mining camp as possible, and one night resolved to pay a visit to the new opera house. It was then that I witnessed the tragic occurrence of which I am going to tell.

"A very beautiful and young prima donna had just taken the town by storm. Having only a week's engagement en route to San Francisco, she and her husband had taken apartments in the very hotel at which we were staying, and of course we heard a great deal about her. Her lovely recherche toilets had been daily canvassed by the ladies and very unanimously voted 'lovely,' while the gentlemen were one and all agreed that a face so witching and beautiful, or a voice so thrilling and sweet, had rarely if ever been known in the lively mining camp of Butte.

"Her husband had whetted public curiosity almost to fever heat by his mysterious behavior. For, whenever she went out driving or to the theater, there he was, neither smiling nor seeming to utter a word, yet watching her every movement, and always by her side. Rumor had it that he was only a mercenary rogue, who, foreseeing the splendid career before the gifted and talented actress and singer, had befriended and pushed her forward in her profession until she had mistaken gratitude for love and married him, only to find out that he was a keen, cynical wordling, caring for her no more than for others she knew not of, whose lives he had blighted.

"The reason of his marrying her seemed simply to gain possession of her earnings. Lately, however, he had fits of sullenness and jealousy, and rarely allowed her to go out of his sight. Some of the gossipers averred that this was because of the attentions of a young banker of good family who stood high in Butte, who had been deeply smitten by the charming and gifted woman, and who, had she been unfettered, would willingly have laid his life and his fortune at her feet.

"As it was, however, her handsome lover and wealthy suitor was to be seen every night wherever and when-

A GHASTLY BULLET WOUND.

Every Saturday Polly has to scour the spoons. That is all that mamma asks her to do, and it does not take much time, but Polly has always dreaded it so long beforehand, and grumbled so while she rubbed them, that it seemed like very hard work indeed. Every week it was the same old story, and you would think that the little girl was asked to clean the family plate in some old mansion.

But last Saturday mamma heard her laughing all by herself in the kitchen, and asked what she was doing.

"Making mirrors, mamma!" shouted Polly gleefully.

So mamma came to see. Polly was rubbing away on a spoon, and when it grew quite bright and shiny, sure enough, there was a little mirror in the bowl of the spoon, and such a funny Polly reflected there, with very fat cheeks and very small eyes, and no hair. When she moved her head her cheeks grew thin, and her eyes as large and round as an owl's. How Polly did laugh!

Then she scoured another spoon, and soon there was another tiny looking-glass, and another queer little Polly, as funny as the first.

When she had twelve of these droll little mirrors her work was done, and she was surprised to find that it was only play, after all.

with red, vindictive eyes, which might have warned her that the fiend within was fully aroused.

"I know the love letters which you gloat over when alone, that he sends concealed in those bouquets. But dare to look either at him or them tonight, and I will not be responsible for the consequences."

"Miss Glyndon shrugged her shoulders, but did not reply, thinking it only jealous raving. This, then, was the position between those two on the evening when Amber and I went to hear the brilliant songstress in her famous role of Marguerite in 'Faust.'

"We got good seats, almost facing the stage. The performance that night was to be patronized by the Odd Fellows on account of the benefit which Miss Glyndon was giving to help build a hospital, and, as usual on such an event, the house was crowded. All went well. The house filled, and the gifted prima donna could not have looked better. She was indeed 'a sight to make an old man young,' and the audience listened spellbound to her marvelous voice. I had already pointed out to my wife the handsome banker at the one side of the stage of the opera house and Miss Glyndon's grim, sardonic looking husband (Mephistopheles I called him to myself) on the other.

"The theater was small and the distance across at the extreme ends not great, so that every movement of Marguerite could be easily noted. When the curtain fell after the garden scene the enthusiasm of the house knew no bounds, and after repeated calls the pale young actress was led before the curtain, while showers of bouquets fell from all parts of the house. The banker, as usual, had thrown his, and she, either out of mischief or tempted to bravado by some evil spirit, singled it out, and with a brief, sweet glance at the box whence it came, held it to her while she bowed her acknowledgments.

"Instantly there rang out the sharp report of a pistol shot, followed quickly by a second, the spectators were horrified to see Marguerite fall, while the crimson blood flowed freely from her side, making a long, red trail on her quaint white satin gown with its jeweled girdle. Immediately all was uproar. I remember seeing the flying figure of the banker clearly defined in the glare of the footlights as he leaped forward beside the dying girl.

"While many followed the young banker, others made for the box whence came the fatal shot, and there they found this modern Mephistopheles with the smoking pistol still in his hand, extended on the floor, with a ghastly bullet wound in his temple—dead.

"On the front of the box was found a paper, on which was written in pencil:

"I am tired of life, and the doctors say my end is near, but she shall not live to be happy in his smiles. One glance tonight and it shall be her last. I have sworn it."

"The hapless girl was carried to her room and one of the leading doctors brought to her aid, but nothing could be done. Slowly her life blood ebbed away, and in half an hour all was over. She only regained consciousness for one brief moment, and, looking up into the anxious eyes of the handsome banker as he bent over her, she murmured the one word 'Forgive.'

"Thus expressing the wish that the man who had brought her to her untimely end might be forgiven for the crime he had committed.

"Then, with a slight pressure of the hand and a look of love, which until now her marriage vow had restrained her from showing, she sank back and expired.

"The tragic spectacle of that dying actress on that brilliantly lighted stage and the excited emptying of the crowded theater will ever remain indelibly photographed on my memory."

Polly's Mirrors.

Every Saturday Polly has to scour the spoons. That is all that mamma asks her to do, and it does not take much time, but Polly has always dreaded it so long beforehand, and grumbled so while she rubbed them, that it seemed like very hard work indeed. Every week it was the same old story, and you would think that the little girl was asked to clean the family plate in some old mansion.

But last Saturday mamma heard her laughing all by herself in the kitchen, and asked what she was doing.

"Making mirrors, mamma!" shouted Polly gleefully.

So mamma came to see. When she moved her head her cheeks grew thin, and her eyes as large and round as an owl's. How Polly did laugh!

Then she scoured another spoon, and soon there was another tiny looking-glass, and another queer little Polly, as funny as the first.

When she had twelve of these droll little mirrors her work was done, and she was surprised to find that it was only play, after all.

Won the Test.

Willie Gasson, aged 16 years, was drowned in the canal at Dayton, Ohio, while bathing. The boy and a number of companions were experimenting as to who could stay beneath the water the longest. The Gasson lad failed to come to the top in one of these ventures, and it is supposed that he was taken with cramps and burst a blood vessel.

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 1/4 as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

The success of an educational institution is indicated in no small degree by the numbers who give it their patronage from year to year. A consultation of the record books of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass., reveals a student membership of something like 60,000 since its founding, with a present attendance of from 1,500 to 2,000 annually. This evidence, when taken in connection with the careful work done at the Conservatory, is convincing proof of the efficiency of the school and makes it little wonder that its reputation is world-wide.

MRS. CURTIS, NEW YORK,

Tells Her Experience With Ovaritis.

A dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with an occasional shooting pain, indicates inflammation. On examination it will be found that the region of pain shows some swelling. This is the first stage of ovaritis, inflammation of the ovary. If the roof of your house leaks, my sister, you have it fixed at once; why not pay the same respect to your own body?

Do you live miles away from a doctor? Then that is all the more reason why you should attend to yourself at once, or you will soon be on the flat of your back.

You need not, you ought not to let yourself go, when one of your own sex holds out the helping hand to you, and will advise you without money and without price. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your symptoms. Her experience in treating female ills is greater than any other living person. Following is proof of what we say: "For nine years I suffered with female weakness in its worst form. I was in bed nearly a year with congestion of the ovaries. I also suffered with falling of the womb, was very weak, tired all the time, had such headaches as to make me almost wild. Was also troubled with leucorrhœa, and was bloated so badly that some thought I had dropsy. I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and several of her Blood Purifier, and am completely cured. It is a wonder to all that I got well. I shall always owe Mrs. Pinkham a debt of gratitude for her kindness. I would advise all who suffer to take her medicine."—Mrs. ANNIE CURTIS, Ticonderoga, N. Y.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The Dawning of Prosperity Lends Its Vigor.

There are a few residents in the county who well remember the first fair in 1853, and who have always been in attendance at the annual fairs since its early date, when, to enhance the agricultural and stock raising pursuits, the people launched upon the tide of life the Lake County Agricultural Society. Each year the premium list has been revised until at the present time our county is placed at the top of the long list of county fairs in Illinois, as a successful institution in every respect, and paying suitable premiums on all classes of agricultural products, domestic manufactures, etc. And these old residents who were instrumental in organizing the society, now look with pride upon the result of their efforts in years past.

As usual the management this year has looked well to the procuring of an attraction which will please the people. The balloon ascension, hippodrome races, bareback riding, etc., are things of the past. Realizing that the people desire something new and novel, the executive board has engaged the one attraction which seems to be leading all others this season—Happy Jack, the lone pacer. Who has not heard of this wonderful little horse, or his counterpart—Marion Mills, who not only delighted but won the hearts of thousands of people at Washington Park July 24? Happy Jack will be at the Lake county fair September 15, 16 and 17, and will pace, without rider or driver, each day. This guideless wonder has a record of 2:00 and will probably show a fast gait at the coming meeting of our society. The true intelligence of a well bred race horse will be seen in Happy Jack, and here is offered to the people of Lake county, right at their doors, what others have traveled miles to witness. The management is to be commended for selecting so good an attraction for 1897.

Twelve good races are promised the people, and the purses being liberal, there is no doubt that those interested in turf matters will be well satisfied. Already there are some good horses in training on the fair grounds at Libertyville, and entries are arriving daily. The track has the reputation of being the best in northern Illinois and is considered a very fast half-mile course.

The base ball and bicycle enthusiasts have been taken care of. Good purses have been offered, and the bicycle race Friday, September 17, at 11 o'clock a. m. should prove of great interest to wheelmen. The race is a free-for-all and three miles in length. The base ball games each day will be hotly contested and Lake county's best players will be seen on the diamond.

There is but one thing needed now to push the fair of 1897 to the topmost rung of the ladder, and that is a big attendance. Go yourself, take the children, see what a great county you live in, and help to make the name of the Lake County Agricultural Society go forth as that of the most successful institution of its kind, not only of Illinois but of the great west.

IT COSTS A GOOD DEAL OF MONEY

What One Fraternal Order Has Done for the Sick.

The local Woodmen are seriously contemplating dropping the sick benefit feature of the order. At the last meeting J. H. Stickling introduced a resolution to that effect. This is the result of a controversy that has been going on for some time. During the past year there has been an unusual amount of sickness among members of the order and several deaths. For a time there were from sixteen to twenty members on the sick list, which meant an expense of from $16 to $20 a day, which soon exhausted the fund and caused considerable criticism of the committee. In order to settle the matter, Stickling, who is a member of the committee, introduced the resolution and it will be voted on at the meeting held Friday evening, at which time all of the members interested will have an opportunity to express themselves.—Elgin Courier.

France and American Students.

The Sorbonne is by no means satisfied with simply allowing its students to listen to courses of lectures. It therefore provides on a large scale a system of conferences or cours fermes, which are designed to drill the student in special problems and questions, as well as for explaining and developing in detail those subjects which the professor cannot fully dwell upon in his regular course. The instruction here is given mostly by assistant professors, but it must not be inferred from this title that they are tyros in science. In the department of mathematics the teachers at the Sorbonne include men who, in addition to holding a very high rank among the mathematicians of the world, have displayed that force and elegance in treating their subject which has long been a feature of French science and who have prepared textbooks unequalled for clearness and precision.

Heretofore admission to these courses has been mostly confined to holders of the French baccalaureat, but there is no regulation absolutely requiring this qualification. If any American student who has taken his bachelor's degree wishes to enroll himself at the Sorbonne as a student, he will experience no difficulty except that arising from the increasing numbers who flock thither for instruction. At a conference at which the writer was present the number attending was so great that any individual must have felt himself somewhat at a disadvantage.—Professor Simon Newcomb in Forum.

An exceedingly interesting law case has grown out of the coal strike. In some instances the railroad companies, being out of coal, "confiscated" what they wanted from the coal companies—simply took it without permission. They claim that in their capacity as public carriers and conveyers of the United States mails they had the right to do this under United States law. The Lake Erie Iron company has sued the Lake Shore railway for thus seizing coal. This is a test case, and the decision will stand accordingly. If United States law can force coal owners to let railway companies have fuel, then it can also order striking miners to go to work on the plea that their idleness stops the transportation of the mails and interferes with other necessary public business.

The Outlook does not approve of the appointment of John Russell Young to be librarian of congress. It says he is nothing but "a somewhat brilliant and fairly successful bohemian." That is neither here nor there. But if the Outlook had a few people on its respectable staff that could write as readably as John Russell Young can, its circulation would be larger. Some people seem to think that newspaper men deserve neither consideration nor offices and that they are incapable of high scholarship.

It was a strange coincidence that just at the time when the seal industry of Alaska ceased to be profitable to the United States the marvelous richness of the territory in gold should be discovered.

A curious bill has been introduced into the British house of commons. Its object is to provide safety guards for all cutting machines used on farms, notably the so called chaff cutter, which has taken off a limb for many a stupid or careless British farm laborer. A federal law compelling the use of safety guards on agricultural cutting machines in America would seem very odd.

A grim looking monster enough is that locomotive engine lately built to run 100 miles an hour. Philadelphia is called a slow town by New York, but if this engine is successful New York will be glad to take Philadelphia as a pacemaker. The 100 mile an hour engine stands 16 feet above the ground and is of the kind called friction geared.

Somebody asks who is the author of the quotation, "The more I know of men the better I like dogs." It was Ouida, the novelist, who said that.

Representative Stokes of North Carolina has introduced into the national house a bill to prohibit members of congress, cabinet officers and chiefs of departments of the United States government from obtaining free transportation over railroads. Does Representative Stokes perhaps think such a bill can be made law?

It is not widely known that Queen Victoria rules over more Mohammedans than the sultan of Turkey, over more Jews than there are in Palestine and over more negroes than any other sovereign who is not a native of their country.

Just at the time when the earthquake occurred recently in the eastern and middle states it was cabled that Mount Vesuvius was again in eruption. There is some strange connection in disturbances of the earth's crust the world over.

G. N. Fitch started for Buffalo Monday morning to attend the G. A. R. Encampment held there this week. Mr. Fitch is a very enthusiastic old soldier and we hope that he will have a very pleasant trip and we have no doubt but that he will as a trip through the East is pleasant at any time especially on such an occasion as this.

The teacher's institute held at Waukegan this week was well attended by Wauconda teachers. Those who attended as near as we know at present writing are viz: Mae D. Geary, Nellie Kirwan, Estella Grace, Cora Davlin, Jennie Green, Mary Freund, Lillian Tidmarsh, Mabel Mullen, Mary Courtney, Laura Courtney, Lulu Sensor, John Hodge and F. J. Grosvenor.

The ball game at Hill's Point last Sunday, Libertyville vs. Wauconda, was a smooth walk-away for Wauconda as was expected. Each side run in several scores but our boys seemed stronger in that line than Libertyville and consequently easily won the game. Shields held the box down for Wauconda, Broncheon playing in center field. The pitching was rather wild and a number of the visiting team were given their base on balls. The result of the score was Wauconda 24 and Libertyville 12.

The Juniors have now started playing ball and from the way they played Wednesday shows that they fully understand the game. They played the Barringtons at Barrington Monday and were beaten by a score of 16 to 16 but Wednesday the Barrington boys came down and the Juniors were prepared and the result was a first-class game of ball all the way through, our boys coming out victorious by a score of 15 to 9.

WILL CONVINCIVE EVERY ONE THAT THE PLACE TO

BUY WHITE LEAD, LINSEED OIL,

MIXED PAINTS, VARNISHES, HARD OILS, LIME, BRICK, CEMENT, Etc., is at

J. D. LAMEY & CO.'S,

Prices are low. Parties desirous of doing painting will find no better time to do so than right now. Linseed Oil is now down to a remarkable low figure, as is also White Lead. It looks reasonable that prices can not hold down to so low a point but for a short time; in particular that of Linseed Oil. Nearly every one is aware of the rise in price of all grains, which include flax, of which Linseed Oil is made. Prices can not get lower—they are as low as they can get.

 A number of our young people are talking of spending the fall and winter months in attending the Metropolitan Business College of Chicago. We can not too strongly commend this course. We only regret that others do not go and do likewise. Some of the best families in Barrington have patronized that excellent college and, we believe, all have been pleased with the result. O. M. Powers, principal of the college, puts out no representations concerning his institution which are not strictly correct.
 The Board of Education announces Monday, Sept. 6th, for the opening of our public schools. This year will inaugurate the full four years' course in our High school, which will be similar to that pursued in the Chicago schools. Our High school will be accredited with the principal colleges and universities in the northwest and a diploma from our school will be accepted for admission without examination or further preparatory work. The attention of parents and pupils of surrounding towns and districts is especially called to this fact and their patronage solicited.—Palatine Review.
 "Let me give you a pointer," said M. F. Gregg, a popular conductor on the Missouri Pacific railroad. "Do you know that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy cures you when you have the stomach ache? Well, it does." And after giving this friendly bit of advice, the jolly conductor passed down the aisle. It is a fact that thousands of railroad and traveling men never take a trip without a bottle of this Remedy, which is the best remedy for bowel disorders in the world. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

CORN IS THE GIANT GRASS.

It takes a strong, compact, durable machine to harvest it.

The McCORMICK Vertical Corn Binder.

" " at Hampshire, Ill.

And at divers other times and places too numerous to mention.
The McCormick Vertical Binder replaced one hundred Flat Binders last year. (Names and dates can be furnished on application.)
 The Flat Binder has been beaten twice this year and the McCormick is ready to enter any fair trial that can be held, in all conditions of corn, and there demonstrate its superiority in the important points that constitute a practical corn binder for every day use.
 1. Mechanical construction, compactness, strength and durability.
 2. Opening a land.
 3. Picking up the down row.
 4. Forming square butted bundles that can be shocked and stacked and fed to the Thresher.
 5. Tightness of binding.
 6. Draft (to be tested when each Binder is binding tight bundles of good size).
 7. Ability to take up and bind down corn.
 8. Least number of ears broken off.
 9. Ability to attach a bundle carrier. Carriers to be shown in the field.
 10. Freedom from neck weight and side draft.
THE McCORMICK VERTICAL CHALLENGES ANY SIDE BINDER on all the points that make up the practical, successful Corn Binder that will give value received to anyone who buys.

Beloit, Wis.—C. E. Willard, a young married man, was killed at the Fairbanks-Morse shops by being caught in a revolving shaft.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Master Mechanic H. H. Schrieber saw John T. Long, a workman in the Cincinnati Southern railway shops, killed by the handle of a jack striking him in the head. Schrieber fell over in a fainting fit, and his physicians say he cannot survive.

Green Bay, Wis.—In the burning of a residence at Bay settlement, twelve miles from here, Mrs. Joseph Leclair was burned to death.

Paris, Ill.—Henry McKinney, alias Henry Brown, was arrested on a farm near this city. He had escaped from a jail at Greenfield, Ind.

Springfield, Ohio.—The business portion of Catawba, twelve miles east of here, was destroyed by fire. The loss amounts to $18,000, and insurance to half as much.

Cairo, Ill.—Three negroes were instantly killed and eight injured by the explosion of a boiler at the brickyard of W. R. Halliday. The dead are: Ruley Bradley, Gideon Ricks and Henry Schiller.

Oakland, Cal.—Miss Mary McLean, daughter of Rev. J. K. McLean of the Pacific Theological Seminary, has accepted the chair of professor of English literature in Stanford University.

Joliet, Ill.—A freight train consisting of an engine and nine or ten cars was wrecked near Centerville on the Coal City branch of the Alton. Three men were injured.

Havana.—Dr. D. M. Burgers, United States sanitary officer here, has been seriously ill since his return from Washington. The chances are that he will not recover.

Galena, Ill.—Michael Cole, a farmer, was fatally wounded by an unknown assassin, who lay in wait a few paces from his home and shot him in the back. Cole is dying and there is no ciew to his assailant.

Chambersburg, Pa.—The safe robber who was shot and killed at Canton, O., by a policeman at the Canton Savings bank was George Gerbig, of Chambersburg, better known as "Cooney."

Green Bay, Wis.—In a fire which burned the residence of Joseph Le Clair at Bay settlement, twelve miles from here, Mrs. Le Clair was burned to a crisp. The fire is supposed to have started from an accident to a lighted lamp.

Havana.—A special dispatch from Madrid says there is no doubt the Spanish government will be willing to extend the commercial treaty with the United States.

Sherman, Tex.—J. W. Bailey, congressman from the fifth district, has authorized the announcement that he will not become a candidate for a seat in the senate to succeed Senator Mills.

Buenos Ayres.—It is officially announced that a very large crop of grain is anticipated in the Argentine Republic, the grain under cultivation covering larger areas than ever before. The wool clip, it is further stated, will be heavy.

New Orleans, La.—The former government boat John A. Dix, recently turned over to the Louisiana naval reserve, sank at the foot of Jackson street.

Springfield, Ill.—Gov. Tanner has issued a proclamation calling for a special election to be held in Calhoun county, Tuesday, Nov. 2, for a county judge to succeed Judge John Zahrl, resigned.

Mascoutah, Ill.—Miss Minnie Braun, of Belleville, fell head foremost into six feet of water in a cistern, and for thirty minutes struggled for life. She finally managed to climb to the top.

CASUALTIES.

Ottawa, Ill.—W. Lange, formerly a prominent architect of Denver, was killed by a Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific train near Marseilles. Lange had wandered away from his brother's home in Chicago while suffering from brain trouble.

Warsaw, Ind.—George Sherburne, wife and young child were struck and instantly killed by the limited express on the Nickel Plate near Kinsey, this county. They were driving across the track.

DIES BY GARROTE.

MURDERER OF THE PRIME MINISTER OF SPAIN EXECUTED.

Condemned Complain Bitterly of the Visits of the Many Priests—Description of the Spanish Instrument of Death—May Be Used for Torture.

Michel Angiollo or Golli, who shot and killed Canovas Del Castillo, the prime minister of Spain, at the baths of Santa Agueda, on Sunday, Aug. 8, was executed at 11 o'clock Friday morning, according to the sentence of the court martial imposed upon him, after his trial on the previous Sunday, which sentence was confirmed by the supreme council of war.

Angiollo heard calmly the news that he was to be executed, but he appeared to be surprised at and bitterly complained of the frequent visits of the priests, declaring that they would obtain nothing from him. He declined to enter the chapel, saying he was comfortable enough in his cell.

An executioner from Bourges performed the garroting, just prior to which a priest exhorted the anarchist to repent, to which Angiollo responded: "Since you can not get me out of prison, leave me in peace. I myself will settle with God."

The garrote, on which Golli died, is named after its inventor, a Spanish ironworker, who witnessed a bungling execution of a relative on the gallows, which was the method employed in Spain up to about thirty years ago for carrying out the sentence of death. Garrote wondered that a more expedi-

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION.

Junior Members of the Presbyterian Church Meet at Indianapolis.

At Thursday's session of the Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian church Treasurer W. J. Stewart presented his annual report. The following officers were elected: Chairman, C. F. Wishart; secretary, Miss Ella Collins; press secretary, Orville Wilson; treasurer, W. J. Stewart.

The report of Rev. W. P. Wishart, junior secretary, showed a gain of thirty-nine organizations during the year. The membership has increased from 8,902 to 10,440, a gain of 1,538. The aggregate contributions of the boys and girls in the junior unions and Endeavor societies this year amount to $4,529, as against $3,762 last year.

The ninth annual convention of the Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church closed at Indianapolis Sunday evening. It is believed that the union of the northern and southern churches now will not long be delayed.

Fire at Ortonville, Minn.

Ortonville, Minn., passed through a fiery ordeal Thursday night entailing a loss of upward of $250,000. Nine buildings are in ashes and more than thirty firms and individuals are losers in sums ranging from a few dollars to several thousands. Several small boys playing started the fire.

Majority Object to Fusion.

The county conventions of the Populists of Nebraska to select delegates to the triangular state convention of the three silver parties Sept. 1 were held Saturday night in all the counties of the state. The returns show a majority of delegates opposed to fusion.

IOWA POPULISTS.

State Convention Nominates Charles A. Lloyd for Governor.

The Iowa middle-of-the-road Populist convention nominated the following ticket: For governor, Charles A. Lloyd, Muscatine; for lieutenant-governor, D. H. Perkins, Lyon county; for supreme judge, J. A. Lowenbury, Ottumwa; for railway commissioner, L. H. Griffiths, Cass county; for superintendent of public instruction, Capt. William Blaize, Knoxville.

The platform approves the Omaha and St. Louis Populist platform; declares for the initiative and referendum; demands the employment of the idle workmen on public works, to be paid for in bonds at 4 per cent, and demands reduction of railway rates and in official salaries.

Lutheran Synod in Session. The third biennial session of the general evangelical Lutheran synod, comprising the states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and most of the northwestern states, opened Thursday at Watertown, Wis. The following officers were elected: President, A. F. Ernest of Watertown; vice-president, the Rev. C. Ganzewitz of St. Paul; secretary, the Rev. A. Schroedell of Winona, Minn.; treasurer, the Rev. Mr. Knuth of Milwaukee.

Big Fire Near Paulsboro, N. J. The main building of the J. H. Thomas & Sons company's fertilizer manufacturing plant, on Mantua creek, near Paulsboro, N. J., was burned Sunday. The loss is estimated at $250,000, upon which there is about $100,000 insurance.

Want to Renew the War. A meeting of over 3,000 people held at Athens Sunday adopted an address to King George, urging him and the government to reject the proposed peace treaty between Greece and Turkey and to resume the hostilities which were interrupted by the truce.

Are After Anarchists. Italy, Austria, Russia and Germany have accepted the proposals of the Spanish government to adopt international measures against anarchy. It is expected, says the dispatch, that the United States, Great Britain and Switzerland will refuse to co-operate.

Many People Hurt. A great strike in the building trade was begun at Buda-Pesth Monday. More than 20,000 men are involved. The strikers had several pitched battles with the police. Two hundred persons have been injured, some dangerously.

CAMPFIRE SKETCHES.

GOOD SHORT STORIES FOR THE VETERANS.

The Man Who Shot Booth—Boston Corbett Did Not Prove Successful as a Lecturer—First Pair of Army Shoes Were Two Sizes Too Large.

A Hillside Graveyard.

PUSH the little gate aside, I leave behind all human pride, For here the grass is waving wide. And underneath in quiet lie, With faces to the silent sky, The villagers of times gone by.

With careless eye I read each name From dull oblivion's heavy blame.

Vain hope! They cannot come again; They hold no place in field or glen, Nor in the daily talk of men.

Only, perchance, when nights are long, And fires in shepherds' coats are strong, Between the pauses of a song.

A name or two may rise and fall, But half-remembered at the call, A moment's pause, and that is all.

Enough: they lived their little life, Where pleasant ways and speech were rife, Far from the city's grinding strife.

A simple faith to soothe and guide Was theirs from youth to manhood's pride, And closed their eyelids when they died.

I pace a little further on, Then pause beside a simple stone, Where all the grass is overgrown.

A simple stone, whose records keep The tender names of those that sleep, Unheeding time that still will creep.

With dull, slow footsteps over all They sleep, nor answer any call, Close to the old, gray churchyard wall.

I read each name through misty tears, Their pilgrimage of weary years, With all its little hopes and fears.

At length I reach my father's name, An open space beneath the same That waits for mine—that space I claim. —Alexander Anderson ("Surfaceman.")

Reminiscence of the War.

New York Press: "The first pair of shoes I had in the army," said the old soldier, "were two sizes too big for me. I wore sixes; my first army shoes were eights. I didn't take them from choice—I got the nearest I could to my size. We were being fitted out from head to foot for the first time—that was when we were mustered in—and the required number of pairs of shoes, of assorted sizes, had been delivered to each company. When I got at them they were culled over so much that there was nothing left smaller than eights.

"I didn't think it would be possible for me to wear a shoe two sizes too big for me, but I tried a pair on. They were brogans, having flaps, with two eyelets on each side, lacing over the instep with leather shoestrings. They tied snugly, so that the heel and often part of the shoe, and the sole, did not shuck on my foot. The forward part of my foot felt as though it were outdoors, but I thought they might do. I had to have a pair of shoes and I took them.

"I wore those shoes for months, and with the greatest comfort. They were enormous, or they looked so to me. As soon as I began to wear them the thick leather of the uppers humped up into big, round ridges, with valleys between them, across the top, giving the top of the shoe a sort of fluted or corrugated effect. These corrugations remained always just the same as long as I wore the shoes. They were not what you would call a handsome shoe, but, as I said, they did not shuck around on my feet, and they were mighty comfortable.

"But it doesn't follow that after that I always got shoes two sizes too big for me; as a matter of fact, I didn't; but I always got shoes plenty large for me; plenty, and found comfort in wearing them.

"Sometimes we used to draw boots; cavalry boots. And it was kind o' fun to get boots. I remember very well the first pair of boots I drew. I think I felt (perhaps in a little maturer sort of way, though not so much so, either) about as much pleased over that pair of boots as I did with my first red-tops when I was a boy. To get on a pair of cavalry boots sort of made a man feel a little bit less like a plodding infantryman, and a little more like a cavalryman; it gave him a sort of horse-and-saber touch. But this was only as he walked down the company street after drawing the boots from the quartermaster; the next day, on picket, the boots were the same to him as shoes would have been.

"Still there were men who preferred boots and always drew boots when they could get them. But, for myself I like shoes better. A mounted man, of course, wants boots; but according to my notion the most comfortable thing for an infantry soldier to wear is a good, roomy shoe that can be made snug enough somewhere so that it won't shuck on the foot."

Man Who Shot Booth.

It will be remembered that Boston Corbett, the man who killed J. Wilkes Booth, lived for many years in Cloud county, Kansas. About ten years ago he was elected doorkeeper of the Kansas house of representatives and while holding that position went crazy and was sent to the asylum. Later he was released from custody and went off to Texas, where it is presumed he died.

The discussion now going on in the periodicals over the death and burial of Booth recalls to the editor of the Concordia Empire that, something like a dozen years ago, the ladies of the Presbyterian church in that town seized upon the idea of having Corbett give a lecture upon the killing of Booth, and a committee was appointed to wait upon him. One of the committeemen was the editor of the Empire, and he thus describes what followed:

"We found him at home in his dug-out, a kind of hole in the side of a steep hill with a brownstone front and a roof of brush, clay and clapboards. There was but one room and the furniture was an old stove, a table, a chair, a home-made bed, a trunk, a box or two, a well-worn Bible, and a variety of firearms. Mr. Corbett had received a pension of several hundred dollars a short time before and invested what he had not given away to others that he thought might be needing money in a flock of sheep. A herd of antelopes would have served him just as well—he had no practical knowledge of the use of sheep. He was very hospitable, told us much of his history and readily consented to deliver a lecture on the capture of Booth and his experiences in Andersonville.

"A packed house greeted him on the night set. By way of introduction the choir sang a song. Some sentiment of the song set him off on a regular sermon (he was in the habit of preaching occasionally) and for nearly an hour he talked, but failed to either capture Booth or get to Andersonville. At last the pastor reminded him that he was to talk of Andersonville and Booth. He apologized for his forgetfulness, and in about a dozen words told that he was captured and landed safe inside the walls of Andersonville prison. The first man he met was an old acquaintance, who told him that over in a certain portion of the prison they were holding a prayer meeting. He went directly to it. Then he talked for half an hour about the prayer meeting, which, as far as his description went, might have been held in Cloud county or the backwoods of Arkansas.

"Being reminded again that he was forgetting all about the capture of Booth, he apologized, and said in substance: 'We surrounded the barn in which we found he had taken refuge. We demanded that he surrender, but he refused. We then set fire to the barn. By the light he saw one of our men and raised his revolver to shoot him. I was peeping through a crack, saw him raise his arm, and to keep him from killing one of our men I fired and killed him. The bullet went into his head in nearly the same course as his bullet had entered Lincoln's head.' This is as full a history as he saw fit to give of an incident that had called forth many long articles during the last thirty years, and about which none knew more than did our neighbor, Boston Corbett."—Kansas City Journal.

Growth of the German Navy.

The growth of the German navy since 1872 has been extraordinary. According to figures quoted in the reichstag, the increase in naval expenditures since that date has been 527 per cent, says the Fortnightly Review. The outlay of the North German confederation in 1870 was only £1,201,000; in 1885 that of the German empire stood at £2,119,000; while at the date of the Emperor William II.'s accession it was £2,700,000, which by last year had risen to £4,315,000. The proposals of the German admiralty for the present year involved an expenditure of £6,450,000, of which more than £6,000,000 has been voted by the reichstag. During the present reign—in a period, that is to say, of nine years—no less than eighty-six new units have been added to the fleet. But yet neither Kaiser William nor Admiral Hollmann is satisfied. Like Oliver Twist, they are asking for more, and are making it very obvious that they intend to get more. The program of ships to be commenced during the next four years was not, indeed, a particularly large one. It involved the construction of four battleships, six large cruisers, six smaller cruisers and thirty-six torpedo craft. What probably alarmed the reichstag was the hint that war was coming at no very distant date, and the scarcely veiled pretensions to dispute with England the command of the sea. The demands, too, were suddenly put forward and public opinion had not been fully prepared for them. The consequence was that the public and the reichstag were bewildered and refused to be rushed into a great outlay for an obscure end.

Justice is the key note of the world, and all else is ever out of tune; it is the idea of God, the ideal of man, the rule of conduct writ in the nature of mankind.—T. Parke

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Temptations.

AND it came to pass that about this time of the year a certain man findeth himself without shekels, and he casteth about that he may have the wherewithal to purchase food and raiment, for no man would lend him more until he first paid what was due.

And as he goeth up and down upon the face of the earth, seeking how he might get gold without labor, he passeth by the place of the man who selleth milk.

He stoppeth in the street, for behold he heareth the sounds of strife, and when he goeth into the house of the milk dealer he findeth that the milk dealer refuseth to take the milk that the farmer had brought, for it was sour, and the farmer was exceeding wroth.

Then this man goeth into his home and saith to his wife, "Eureka," which being interpreted means, I have a soft snap, and he telleth her to go unto the physician, and get an omer of a certain kind of acid. Now an omer is ten cents' worth.

Then this man getteth ten boxes and writeth on each one Sweetaline, and he putteth a tenth part of the omer of his acid in each box, and goeth unto the land of the farmers.

And when he meeteth the farmer, whose milk had been sour, he showeth him one of the boxes, and telleth him to put a tenth part of the substance in the box into the milk, and it will keep sweet for the space of three days.

And the farmer paid the man an ephah, which is ten omers, and he did unto his milk as the man saith, and behold it was sweet unto the third day, as the man had said.

Then after three days, cometh again this man and sayeth unto all the farmers, why now trouble ye yourselves to keep clean the vessels wherewith ye carry your milk to the city, or wherefore do ye labor scrubbing your milk pails? Behold, for the sum of an ephah I will sell unto you a substance which will keep dirty milk clean.

color, especially strong in comb, lobe, hackle and saddle, a dark undercolor preferred. To him mate hens of a shade darker than standard, with small, evenly serrated standing combs; a trifle brick on wings is no objection, as it will give a brighter color on wing bows of the cockerels. Shafting on the back will also help that black stripe in the saddles. The pullets raised from this pen will be too dark for exhibition, but they will be a great help in breeding cockerels the next season. The male at the head of the pen mated to produce the pullets should be from a pullet strain, and bred directly from an exhibition hen. His color is a trifle light, comb large, but evenly serrated; if thin near the top, all the better; hackle well striped, but none in saddle; undercolor of hackle and saddle may be light gray or white; wing bows should show more purple than red, as too much red shows signs of being bred from a brick hen. To him mate exhibition females having light brown penciled with darker brown on back and wings, all one shade, free from shafting on back and brick on wings. These hens should have the large comb, lying over, but firm and strong on the head, so it does not lie close to the eye and face. The cockerels raised from this mating are the birds to use for breeding females the next year. By breeding Brown Leghorns in this manner we have two distinct lines of blood, and they should never be crossed. The Buff Leghorn is the most recent acquisition to the Mediterranean class. It is a beautiful bird, and one that will win its way wherever bred. Buff-colored birds have many admirers, and those who have bred them are pronounced in their praise of their qualities. Besides having the general characteristics of the Leghorn type, the Buff Leghorn cock has rich buff-colored hackle and saddle, in shade from lemon to cinnamon, but of even solid color in keeping with the rest of the plumage; the back and wing bow exactly match the plumage; tail is of the same general tint,

And some of the farmers hearkened unto the man, and bought of him, but others said: "We will not do so, for behold we have read that this substance that you sell is poison to children."

But there were enough farmers, who cared not for the children of other people, to buy large numbers of boxes of sweetaline, and the man got gold, yea much fine gold, for he selleth his stuff unto this day.—National Stockman.

Standard Varieties of Chickens.

In mating Brown Leghorns opposites must be considered. Should the male be fine in all points except comb or leg select females strong in this point to mate with him. The most successful breeders use a double mating, one pen to produce exhibition birds of each sex. Fine birds, both cockerels and pullets, can be bred from the same pen by using slightly different types of females. The same male often will breed the finest of both exhibition cockerels and pullets, but it is a rare case to have a female breed both sexes of a remarkable quality. When two pens are used, at the head of the pen mated to produce the cockerels place a fully developed cock with no serious fault, standard but richer, deeper buff is preferable, the standard giving for tail a rich, deep buff or copperish bronze. The remainder of the plumage is of a slightly lighter shade, but even in color throughout, with no semblance to a patchy or mottled plumage. White and black feathers in plumage are objectionable; solid white or solid black feathers will disqualify the bird. The hen is of the same color as the cock.

Where shade cannot be secured from trees for your fowls, try planting a patch of sunflowers. Very soon the ground will be completely shaded and it will be noticed that chickens prefer sunflower seed to any other.

Don't be afraid to let your poultry hunt for their food. They enjoy the job and it is healthier for them.

ILLINOIS NEWSLETS.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Aurora.—The corner stone of the new United Evangelical church, at the corner of Clark and Fourth streets, was laid Aug. 15.

Sycamore Telegram.—The firemen's tournament held here was largely attended. Sycamore took first money. Second money was divided between Geneva and Batavia.

Mount Vernon Telegram.—Messrs. Crackel & Co., dry goods dealers, have sold their stock of dry goods, shoes and notions to George Hall and John and Isaac Goodbourn of Grayville, and the latter took possession of the store.

Dixon Telegram.—Adolph Hoffert of Arlington, Ill., while here last night tried to throw himself in front of an engine at the Illinois Central depot, but was prevented by the train crew. He was arrested and confined in jail.

Clinton Telegram.—Benjamin Howard of Kenney, this county, died suddenly. Mr. Howard was in his seventy-eighth year. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, being lieutenant of Company E, Fourth regiment Illinois volunteers.

Litchfield Telegram.—Mrs. Joseph Strehle, wife of one of the most foremost business men of this city, was thrown from a buggy and so badly injured that her life is in danger. She received a broken arm, broken jaw, besides internal injuries.

Morris.—A special election was held in Grundy county to fill the vacancy in the office of state's attorney, the outgoing attorney, S. C. Stoughs, having resigned to accept the office of county judge. E. L. Clover was the Democratic and George W. Huston the Republican nominee. A very light vote was polled on both sides, and the election is close. Huston is probably elected by a majority of 150.

Quincy Telegram.—Porter M. Parks, 13 years old, hanged himself in a room on the second floor of the family residence here. He had been disobedient, and his mother, it is said, sent him to the room as a punishment. The body was found hanging from the top of a closet door by a strap, its feet being off the floor. The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased had accidentally hanged himself.

Aurora.—Aurora business men are up in arms against the Salvation Army on the ground that the crowds attracted by the street meetings interfere with traffic and hurt business. The army persists in holding its meetings at the corner of Fox street and Broadway, the business spot in town, and the merchants finally invoked the aid of the city council in the matter and caused General Booth's warriors to meet elsewhere.

Joliet, Ill.—The state board of pardons has been in session at the Joliet prison for two days interviewing convicts who are entitled to parole, provided they have fulfilled all the requirements of the parole law. The list of eligibles contains the names of over 200 Cook county criminals that have been sent down since 1895. The board has not given out any information about who it will parole, but will return to Springfield, and from there at an early date give the result. There are a large number of second, third and fourth termers, principally from Chicago, convicted of crimes that entitle them to be kept there from ten to twenty years. It is generally thought that the board will refuse to parole any of these, but will award paroles to first term convicts who can show a clean prison record and whose friends are ready to furnish them with steady employment in case they are restored to liberty. The uncertainty as to the time of their release from prison under the parole law causes a great deal of unrest and anxiety to the 1,400 inmates.

Insurance rates have been thrown wide open again at Waukegan, Ill. Rates were declared off there some time ago because the agencies of Judge Jones and C. T. Heydecker refused to join the board. There was extreme demoralization for a while until a committee from the Illinois state board went there and had the fourteen other agents to agree to abide by the tariff as far as each other's business was concerned, but to fight the two outside agencies, together with Granger, Smith, Miller & Co., who write from Chicago. The outside people became tired and a truce was struck. This week, however, owing to several causes, the war opened again with even greater fury. Yesterday circulars printed in flaming red letters were scattered all over the town by D. M. Erskine & Sons, which read in part as follows: "Cut rate Fire Insurance—Rates are suspended. We will name unheard of rates on all desirable business, including mercantile buildings and stocks of goods. We are the leaders of low prices in the strongest companies, etc."
