A SAD ACCIDENT.

Little Esther, the Joy of the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seip of Palatine, Meets With an Accident That Cuts Short Her Young Life in an Unusual Manner.

Esther, the 15-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seip of Palatine was drowned Monday just before noon.

Mrs. Seip was busy washing the clothes, and had taken the little girl with her on several occasions while hanging up the washing in the back yard. The last trip she made from the house to the yard she supposed the little girl was in the kitchen with Mrs. Schweitzer who was preparing the dinner, but when she returned to the house she found the little girl head foremost in a butter tub filled with water, it's little feet off the floor.

The grief-stricken mother immediately picked up the child, and her heart-rending cries were immediately responded to by a number of neighbors and friends reaching the sad scene. Medical aid was at once summoned, but the efforts of science were of no avail, as the little soul had already taken its flight from its earthly home.

Deputy Coroner Milan Reynolds held an inquest over the remains Tuesday, and after the facts as above stated had been heard a verdict of accidental drowning was recorded.

The funeral services were held at the home and St. Paul's church Wednesday afternoon, Rev. J. A. Harder officiating. A large number of friends from Palatine, Lake Zurich and the surrounding vicinity attended the funeral.

THE PRICES OF MILK.

Condenser Pays the Same as It Did Last Year—Butter Company's Prices Are a Trifle Higher Than Last Year's—A Great Many Farmers Dissatisfied and Will Ship Their Product to Chicago.

The New York Condensed Milk company Thursday contracted for milk at the same prices as were paid last fall, namely: October and November, $1.10 per hundred pounds; December and January, $1.15; February and March, $1.10. This is an average of $1.112-3, or $0.0946 1-6 per gallon, equal to $0.7593 1-3 per eighth gallon can.

It is said the company will get all the milk it desires, notwithstanding some patrons did not sign, as they say they can obtain $1 per can for milk shipped to responsible parties in Chicago. One farmer who has been taking to the condenser says he will hereafter send his milk to Chicago, and that he knows of thirteen who did not sign contracts. The feeling he expressed was that as feed is fifty per cent higher than it was a year ago they ought to receive more for milk, when pastures are poor and it is now necessary to feed. He says they expected at least 80 cents per can. In September, 1895, the condenser paid an average of $1.31 per hundred.

The New York company's contracts at Carpentersville are the same as in Elgin. About the same amount is expected to be received, although fewer patrons will furnish it.

The Elgin Butter company contracted for milk at an average of 82 cents per hundred, or 55 76-100 cents per can, or 6 79-100 cents per gallon. This price is nearly 2 cents a gallon more than was paid last fall, when producers received 5 cents per gallon.

The condensing factory at St. Charles contracted for about 350 or 400 cans of milk daily.—Elgin Advocate.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schultz, Living Three Miles and a Half East of Lake Zurich, is Destroyed by Fire Wednesday Morning of Last Week. Residence Will Be Rebuilt.

The residence of Louis Schultz, located about three and a half miles east of Lake Zurich, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning of last week.

About 1:30 in the morning the hired man, sleeping on the second floor of the residence, near the stairway leading from the pantry, was awakened from his slumbers by the stifling smoke that made its way up from the floor below. He immediately aroused Mr. and Mrs. Schultz, who had barely time to rescue the little children before the house was completely enveloped in flames.

The fire, it is supposed, started under the pantry on the first floor. It was but an hour's time before the building was in ruins. Mr. Schultz' loss is about $1,200 on the building, and $500 on household goods. The amount of insurance carried was $1,100 in the Ela Mutual Fire Insurance Company. The family is at present sheltered at the home of one of the neighbors.

The contract has already been let for rebuilding.

Commencing with Monday, September 13, the cider mill of Wm. Hobelin, located 1 1/2 miles northeast of Barrington, will be in operation. Cider will be made on Mondays only. Bring on your apples. 21w4

LONG GROVE'S LOSS.

This Thriving Little Village Given a Blow That Would Stagger Most Villages, but It Only Tends to Infuse Her Thrifty Citizens with Enthusiasm for the Future.

Long Grove, a thriving little village about eight miles east of Barrington, is suffering from a severe loss which befell it.

Last Saturday the principal prop, the one that gave support to the town by bringing the farmers of the surrounding country within her borders and thereby bringing their trade to the local merchant and mechanic, was knocked from under it by the burning of the Long Grove creamery about noon on the above day, leaving nothing to mark the place of a once flourishing business except the bare foundation walls and smouldering embers. The farmers for miles around, who took milk to this creamery, are now compelled to take the principal product of the surrounding farms to neighboring factories; thus, for a time at least, besides placing many of the farmers in that vicinity to an inconvenience, the business men of that flourishing little burg will keenly feel the effects of the loss of its chief industry. But Long Grove is not made of the material to sit down and moan over her loss. The little burg is inhabited by well-to-do people and is situated in the midst of a prosperous community, whose people vow that the factory will be rebuilt as speedily as it is possible for the mechanics to use the hammers and saws.

The fire was first discovered at 11:30 a. m. by one of the residents of the village, who noticed an unusual amount of smoke issuing from one of the buildings and which, upon investigation, proved to be a fire in the barn near the creamery. The barn was located between the factory and an ice house; each of the buildings being not much more than a rod apart.

The alarm was soon given and the inhabitants turned out en masse to render what aid they could, but the fire that had started in the barn had already gained such large proportions that it was impossible to bring it to a halt before the factory on one side and the ice house on the other were also enveloped by the flames. Three horses were in the barn and were cremated.

When it was found impossible to save the factory from fire, all hands turned their efforts toward rescuing as much as possible of the property in the building. All of the cheese and a large part of the household effects of George Quentin, who conducted the creamery, and resided on the second floor of the building, was saved. Mr. Quentin's loss will easily foot up to the amount of $500, on which there was no insurance. The cheese factory, barn, ice house and the machinery contained in the factory is estimated to have been worth at least $6,000, on which there was but $2,000 insurance.

It was very fortunate for the village that the wind on that memorable day was from the south-west, thus blowing the heat and flames from the main part of the town, which was in close range of the factory. The heat was so intense that it was with difficulty that the farm residence of a Mr. Badke, located across the road and several rods east of the factory, was saved. Flying embers, together with the strong heat, hurled by the winds from the burning factory, kept a force of men busy for a time to save the residence. The stockholders of the factory held a meeting Monday to discuss the question of rebuilding, and agreed to meet again at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon, September 24, to take some action in regard to the matter. As the meeting occurred so late in the week, we were unable to get any particulars as to the outcome of the gathering. There is but little doubt, judging from common sentiment in the early part of the week, but what the factory will be rebuilt.

It is presumed that the fire originated from some stray sparks issuing from the smokestack.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Ordinary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Sycamore.—Waterman hall, the Chicago diocesan school for girls, at Sycamore, Ill., begins its ninth year with one-third more pupils than last year, leaving but few vacancies. The patronage is largely from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Downing and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wyatt of Potomac, riding in a double buggy, were crowded into a ditch by the driver of another vehicle. Their buggy was upset and the horses ran away. All sustained serious injuries. Those of Mrs. Downing will probably prove fatal. The men who caused the accident are not known, but if found they will be arrested.

Springfield.—An all-day silver picnic was held on the state fair grounds Thursday, under the auspices of the Sangamon County Silver Club. During the forenoon a Dr. Taylor of Chicago spoke to the 200 or 300 people in attendance. In the afternoon ex-Congressman Charles A. Towne of Minnesota spoke to a larger crowd. At night quite a large crowd heard Messrs. Towne and ex-State's Attorney James M. Graham.

Belvidere telegram: The New York condensed milk company opened its books today to contract for a supply of milk for the next six months. It offered $1.10 per 100 pounds for 200,000 pounds of milk per week. At the price offered it was only able to contract for about one-half of this amount. Farmers complain they are unable to furnish milk of requisite quality for this price; although the figure is 4 cents above that of last year. It will be a bad blow to the dairy interests of this section.

Kankakee.—William T. Gougar, former postmaster of Kankakee, has instituted suit against C. S. McNichols, C. E. Carter and Congressman Cannon, alleging libel and placing damages at $5,000. McNichols and Carter are proprietors of the Momence Press-Reporter, and an article appeared in that paper a month ago stating that the reason Gougar had been removed from the post office was because he was short in his accounts. This was false and the paper failed to retract, the proprietors claiming that the information came from the successful candidate for the office and through him from Cannon.

Bloomington telegram: Many cases of typhoid fever are reported in this region, more than at any time in many years past. There are some in this city. One family has lost the father and mother, and several of the children are prostrated. In the country cases are numerous, and there have been a number of fatalities. There are also a number of cases of old-fashioned fever and ague. The doctors ascribe these diseases, which are unusual in these times, but which were prevalent in the early days, to the fearful and long continued heat and the rank growth of vegetation. There have with in the last week been several deaths in the country from diphtheria.

Rev. Dr. John Henry Barrows, who is to succeed Rev. Frank B. Vrooman as pastor of the Kenwood Presbyterian church, Chicago, may have a $300,000 structure to preach in. This is the plan being set on foot by a number of this energetic parishioners. Dr. Barrows will formally take charge of the congregation Sunday, when the arrangements will be related to him in detail. He accepted the call extended to him two months ago, but waited until he reached Chicago after an extensive tour of India before taking definite action. The church structure at Forty-fourth street and Lake avenue has been recently repaired and will be tenable for at least another year.

Bloomington telegram.—The fifteenth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor adjourned to meet in Decatur next year. Officers were elected and important revision of the constitution made prior to the close. The new president is M. G. Palmer of Peoria, the president of the Peoria Typographical union, and leader of the Peoria delegation. While he was an active candidate for the position, his election was in the nature of a surprise, as it was confidently predicted that A. Cattermull of Chicago would win. The latter was Palmer's only opponent. The Chicago delegation was compelled to be satisfied with the secretary-treasurership, P. F. Doyle defeating Walter Bush, who sought reelection. Millard Lloyd of Bloomington secured the third prize, that of delegate to the national convention of the Federation of Labor, which meets in Nashville next winter. Woodberry of Chicago was his only opponent. U. G. Hinman of Springfield was chosen vice president by acclamation. The new executive board consists of J. R. Holmes, Springfield; J. O'Donnell, Bloomington; J. W. Burke, Glen Carbon; L. Fribourg, Decatur; F. G. Buck, Peoria, and J. A. Hopper, Quincy.

Bees and Horticulture.

I have lately had my attention called to the fact that there was a great difference in the yield of honey from colonies located only from one to two miles apart, writes Mrs. L. Harrison in Rural World. Judging from this, orchardists, farmers and gardeners, will not get the full benefit of their crops of fruit, vines and clovers, if they do not keep bees upon their own fields. Especially is this true, if the weather should be foggy and damp during the blooming season. Specialists in bee-culture know that a good place to locate an apiary is near large orchards, seed farms, alfalfa or alsike clover fields, pickle farms, etc. Those who raise cucumbers under glass, find they must have bees in their green house or their cucumbers will not set. Those who are engaged in these pursuits, unless there are large apiaries near them, should cultivate bees as well as fields. "He who would live at ease, should cultivate both fruit and bees." It would be better for the welfare of our country if bees were more equally distributed. Very large apiaries are not as desirable as that every orchard and farm should have sufficient workers to gather the nectar, and fertilize the bloom. It is not necessary that every farmer should be a skillful apiarist, and secure large crops of honey, but he should keep bees in large hives, well protected from the intrusion of stock. Where horses and other animals have been injured by being stung it was usually the result of carelessness. Hives should be well protected, and not placed near hitching posts, nor drinking places.

Plant for Bees.—Bee-keepers who have experimented along this line claim that it does not pay to plant for honey alone; but there are many crops and trees that can be grown, that have a dual value, such as the clovers; alsike and white. What is more beautiful upon a lawn than the linden or basswood? Sweet clover, Melilotus alba and Melilotus officinalis, are yearly gaining in favor, as food for stock and bees, and are fast rooting out dog-fennel and other noxious weeds, from roadsides and waste places. They thrive on gravelly knolls, railroad embankments and rocky hillsides.

Cull Out Breeding Hogs.

We would advise swine breeders to cull more closely than has been the practice, says A. L. Mason, in a contemporary. We think that at least one-third should be culled, and if half could be culled it would be better. We have known breeders who have sold every male in the herd for breeding purposes, even where they got as low as $4 or $5 a head for them. This is a mistake. It is not only a detriment to the business, but necessarily lowers the standard. The quality of pigs sold for breeding purposes should be up to a good standard, and they should be sold at a profit above what the pig would be worth for the pork barrel. All pigs sold for breeding purposes should have excellent bone, reasonably well marked, free from swirls, and have a good, breedy appearance. They should not only possess good action, but should be gentle and of kind disposition.

Prospects for Mutton Production.

C. F. Curtis, superintendent of the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station, says: "It has been shown by experiments at the Iowa station that while well-bred cattle coming 2 years old, being fattened under favorable conditions, will make 123 pounds of increase in weight from 1,000 pounds of a given kind of feed, good lambs under 1 year old will make 138 pounds of increase in live weight from 1,000 pounds of a similar ration; and the mutton in this case sold for more than the beef. In this comparison no allowance is made for the value of droppings of cattle or the fleece of the lambs. This showing does not argue against the economy of beef making. It only reveals more clearly the fact that mutton production ought to become a permanent, well-established feature of Western agriculture, and that farmers and feeders ought more generally to avail themselves of this outlet for the surplus of grain and hay crops."

Milk as to Alkalies.

Milk is an opaque whitish fluid, having an opalescent, bluish tint in thin layers, and a specific gravity averaging between 1028 and 1034. It is a natural emulsion, consisting of little globules of fat invested with coatings and casein and suspended in a solution of albumen, milk sugar, and salts. The reaction of milk is variable, woman's milk and that of the vegetable eating animals being normally alkaline, but that of the meat eating is acid with the former, however, it is often possible to obtain a double reaction, both acid and alkaline, owing to the presence of an acid sodic phosphate and of an alkaline disodic phosphate. Milk becomes acid on standing, owing to the conversion of part of its sugar into lactic acid; and at the same time the fatty globules rise to the surface, forming a layer of cream, some of these globules also being freed from their protein envelope. If a milk upon standing in a warm place for a few hours is alkaline, look upon it as suspicious for tuberculosis, etc.

Chicago butter holders are preparing to export a good deal of the butter now in their hands.

WANTS CUBAN WAR ENDED.

Gen. Woodford Speaks Plainly to Spain.

OUR COMMERCE IS INJURED.

United States Minister Credited with Making a Strong Presentation of the Case—United States Will Be Justified in Interfering.

A dispatch from San Sebastian to the Temps of Paris says that in his interview with the duke of Tetuan, Spanish minister for foreign affairs, the U. S. minister to Spain, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, did not present any claim for indemnity, but confined the interview to a moderate phrase in the statement of the great injuries commerce and industry had suffered in the United States through the prolongation of the Cuban war. Gen. Woodford is said to have added that Secretary Sherman had desired him to declare to the Spanish government that it was evidently impossible for Spain to end the rebellion in a reasonable time, and, further, that if the war was continued Cuba would be devastated and of no utility to Spain or to the Cubans.

In conclusion, the United States minister is reported to have insisted courteously but firmly upon the necessity of terminating the war, declaring that if it was not terminated by the end of October the United States would feel justified in taking measures to secure the independence of Cuba.

PRINCESS KAIULANI COMING.

The Princess Kaiulani of Hawaii, who visited this country in 1893, and whose pleasing personality made a favorable impression on all who met her at that time, has been in Europe since then, and has just returned on a second visit. In view of the fact that affairs in Hawaii are attracting much attention, and that the ex-queen of that country keeps herself before the public, the movements of the young princess will be watched with close attention. Kaiulani is the niece of ex-Queen Liliuokalani, who became queen when her brother, Kalakaua, died in 1891. Prior to her elevation to the throne she was known in Honolulu as Mrs. Dominis. On attaining the new honors she named Kaiulani, the daughter of her sister, who had married a Mr. Cleg-horn, as her heir to the royal title, since which time Kaiulani has been known as a princess, and has been looked upon by many as the future queen of the Hawaiian islands. She is several shades lighter than her royal aunt, her features are more regular, and in her looks and bearing the Caucasian strain has left a refining trace. The young woman has traveled much since she left this country for England, and reports received from the various places where she has been stopping show that she was as popular with Europeans as with the few Americans who made her acquaintance. She will pass some days in Washington.

PART II.

"Now, Richard, think very carefully. You speak of the missing finger joint. We doctors know how many people persuade themselves into all sorts of things. Tell me, did you notice the likeness before you saw the mutilated finger, or did the fact of the finger's being mutilated bring the likeness to your mind?"

"Bless the man," I said. "One would think I had no eyes. I tell you there is no doubt about this man being the original of the photo."

"Never mind—answer my question." "Well, then, I am ashamed to confess it, but I put the photo in my pocket, and forgot all about it until I had recognized the man, and pulled out the likeness to make sure. I didn't even know there was a printed description at the foot, nor that any member was wanting. Confound it, Brand! I'm not such a duffer as you think."

Brand did not retaliate. He turned to his friend and said gravely, "To me the matter is inexplicable. Take your own course, as I promised you should." Then he sat down, looking deliciously crestfallen, and wearing the discontented expression always natural to him when worsted in argument.

It was now Carriston's turn. He plied me with many questions. In fact, I gave him the whole history of my adventure. "What kind of house is it?" he asked.

"Better than a cottage—scarcely a farm-house. A place, I should think, with a few miserable acres of bad land belonging to it. One of those wretched little holdings which are simply curses to the country."

He made lots of other inquiries, the purport of which I could not then divine. He seemed greatly impressed when I told him that the man had never for a moment left me alone. He shot a second glance of triumph at Brand, who still kept silent, and looked as if all the wind had been taken out of his sails.

"How far is the place?" asked Carriston. "Could you drive me there after dark?"

At this question the doctor returned to life. "What do you mean to do?" he asked his friend. "Let us have no nonsense. Even now I feel sure that Fenton is misled by some chance resemblance—"

"Duce a bit, old chap," I said.

"Well, whether or not, we needn't do foolish things. We must go and swear information and get a search warrant, and the assistance of the police. The truth is, Richard," he continued, turning to me, "we have reason to believe, or I should say Carriston persists in fancying that a friend of his has for some time been kept in durance by the man whom you say you recognized."

"Likely enough," I said. "He looked villain enough for anything up to murder."

"Anyway," said Brand, "we must do everything according to law."

"Law! I want no law," answered Carriston. "I have found her as I knew I should find her. I shall simply fetch her, and at once. You can come with me or stay here, as you like, doctor, but I am afraid I must trouble your friend to drive me somewhere near the place he speaks of."

Foreseeing an adventure and great fun—moreover, not unmoved by thoughts of revenge—I placed myself entirely at Carriston's disposal. He expressed his gratitude and suggested that we should start at once. In a few minutes we were ready and mounted the dog cart. Brand, after grumbling loudly at the whole proceeding, finished up by following us, and installing himself in the back seat. Carriston placed a parcel he carried inside the cart, and away we went.

It was now nearly dark, and raining very heavily. I had my lamps lighted, so we got along without much difficulty. The roads were deep with mud; but by this time the snow had been pretty nearly washed away from everywhere. I don't make a mistake in a road twice, so in due course we reached the scene of my upset. Here I drew up.

"The house lies about five hundred yards up the lane," I told Carriston; "we had better get out here."

"What about the horse?" asked Brand.

"No chance of any one passing this way on such a night as this, so let us put out the lamps and tie him up somewhere."

We did so, then struggled on afoot until we saw the gleam of light which had been so welcome to me two nights before.

It was about as dark as pitch; but, guided by the light, we went on until we stood in front of the house, where a turf bank and a dry hedge hid us from sight, although on such a night we had little fear of our presence being discovered.

"What do you mean to do now?" asked Brand, in a discontented whisper. "You can't break into the house."

Carriston said nothing for a minute, then I felt him place his hand on my shoulder.

"Are there any horses, any cows about the place?" he asked.

I told him I thought that my surly friend rejoiced in the possession of a horse and cow.

"Very well. Then we must wait. He'll come out to see them before he goes to bed," said Carriston, as decidedly as a general giving orders just before a battle.

I could not see how Brand expressed his feelings upon hearing this order from our commander—I know I shrugged my shoulders, and, if I said nothing, I thought a deal. The present situation was all very well for a strongly interested party like Carriston, but he could scarcely expect others to relish the prospect of waiting, it might be for hours, under that comfortless hedge. We were all wet to the skin, and, although I was extremely anxious to see the end of the expedition, and find poetical justice meted out to my late host, Carriston's Fabian tactics lacked the excitement I longed for. Brand, in spite of his disapproval of the whole course of action, was better off than I was. As a doctor, he must have felt sure that, provided he could survive the exposure, he would secure two fresh patients. However, we made no protest, but waited for events to develop themselves.

More than half an hour went by. I was growing numbed and tired, and beginning to think that we were making asses of ourselves, when I heard the rattle of a chain, and felt Carriston give my arm a warning touch. No doubt my late host had made sure that his new door fastenings were equal to a stronger test than that to which I had subjected the former ones, so we were wise in not attempting to carry his castle by force.

The door opened and closed again. I saw the feeble glimmer of a lantern moving toward the outhouse in which my horse had been stabled. I heard a slight rustling in the hedge, and, stretching out my arm, found that Carriston had left my side. In the absence of any command from him I did not follow, but resumed the old occupation—waiting.

In a few minutes the light of the lantern reappeared; the bearer stood on the threshold of the house, while I wondered what Carriston was doing. Just as the door was opened for the boor's readmittance, a dark figure sprang upon him. I heard a fierce oath and cry of surprise; then the lantern flew out of the man's hand, and he and his assailant tumbled struggling through the narrow doorway.

"Hurrah! the door is won, anyway!" I shouted as, followed closely by the doctor, I jumped over the hedge and rushed to the scene of the fray. Although Carriston's well conceived attack was so vigorous and unexpected that the man went down under it; although our leader utilized the advantage he had gained in a proper and laudable manner, by bumping that thick bullet head as violently as he could against the flags on which it lay, I doubt if, after all, he could have done his work alone. The countryman was a muscular brute and Carriston but a stripling. However, our arrival speedily settled the question.

"Bind him!" panted Carriston; "there is cord in my pocket." He appeared to have come quite prepared for contingencies. While Carriston still embraced his prostrate foe, and Brand, to facilitate matters, knelt on his shoulder, sat on his head, or did something else useful, I drew out from the first pocket I tried a nice length of half inch line, and had the immense satisfaction of trussing up my scowling friend in a most workmanlike manner. He must have felt those turns on his wrist for days afterward. Yet when we were at last at liberty to rise and leave him lying helpless on his kitchen floor, I considered I exercised great self-denial in not bestowing a few kicks upon him, as he swore at us in his broadest vernacular in a way which under the circumstances, was no doubt a comfort to him.

We scarcely noticed the man's wife, while we rendered her husband helpless. As we entered she attempted to fly out, but Brand, with the promptitude which, I am glad to record, intercepted her, closed the door, turned and pocketed the key. After that the woman sat on the floor and rocked herself to and fro.

For some moments, while recovering his breath, Carriston stood and positively glared at his prostrate foe. At last he found words.

"Where is she? Where is the key, you hound?" he thundered out, stooping over the fellow and shaking him with a violence which did my heart good. As he received no answer save the unrecordable expressions above mentioned, we unbuttoned the wretch's pockets and searched those greasy receptacles. Among the usual litter we did certainly find a key. Carriston snatched at it, and shouting "Madeline! Madeline! I come," rushed out of the room like a maniac, leaving Brand and me to keep guard over our prisoners.

I filled a pipe, lit it, and then came back to my fallen foe. "I say, old chap," I said, stirring him gently with the toe of my boot, "this will be a lesson to you. Remember, I told you that civility costs nothing. If you had given me Christian bed accommodation instead of making me wear out my poor bones on that infernal chair, you could have jogged along in your rascality comfortably, so far as I am concerned."

He was very ungrateful—so much so that my desire to kick him was intensified. I should not like to swear I did not to a slight degree yield to the temptation.

"Push a handkerchief in his mouth," cried Brand suddenly. "A lady is coming."

With right good will I did as the doctor suggested.

Just then Carriston returned. I don't want to raise home tempests, yet I must say he was accompanied by the most beautiful creature my eyes have ever lighted upon. True, she was pale as a lily—looked thin and delicate, and her face bore traces of anxiety and suffering—but for all that she was beautiful—too beautiful for this world, I thought, as I looked at her. She was clinging in a half-frightened, half-confiding way to Carriston, and he—happy fellow!—regardless of our presence, was showering down kisses on her sweet pale face. Confound it! I grow quite romantic as I recall the sight of those lovers.

A most curious young man, that Carriston. He came to us, the lovely girl on his arm, without showing a trace of his recent excitement.

"Let us go now," he said, as calmly as if he had been taking a quiet evening drive. Then he turned to me.

"Do you think, Mr. Fenton, you could without much trouble get the dog cart up to the house?"

I said I would try to do so.

"But what about these people?" asked Brand.

Carriston gave them a contemptuous glance.

"Leave them alone," he said; "they are but the tools of another—him I cannot touch. Let us go."

"Yes, yes. But why not verify our suspicions while we can?"

Just like Brand! He's always wanting to verify everything.

In searching for the key we had found some papers on our prisoner. Brand examined them, and handed to Carriston an envelope which contained what appeared like banknotes.

Carriston glanced at it. "The handwriting is, of course, disguised," he said carelessly, "but the postmark shows whence it came. It is as I always told you. You agree with me now?"

"I am afraid I must," said Brand, humbly. "But we must do something about this man," he continued.

Hereupon Carriston turned to our prisoner. "Listen, you villain," he said. "I will let you go scot-free if you breathe no word of this to your employer for the next fortnight. If he learns from you what has happened before that time, I swear you shall go to penal servitude. Which do you choose?"

I pulled out the gag, and it is needless to say which the fellow chose.

Then I went off and recovered the horse and cart. I relighted the lamps, and with some difficulty got the dog cart up to the house. Carriston must have exactly anticipated the events of the night. The parcel he had brought with him contained a bonnet and a thick warm cloak. His beautiful friend was equipped with these; then, leaving the woman of the house to untie her husband at her leisure and pleasure, away we started, the doctor sitting by me, Carriston and the lady behind.

We just managed to catch the last train from C—. Not feeling sure as to what form inquiries might take tomorrow, I thought it better to go up to town with my friends, so, as we passed through Midcombe, I stopped, paid my bill, and gave instructions for my luggage to be forwarded to me. By six o'clock the next morning we were all in London.

In this workaday world few women are so placed that physical exertion is not constantly demanded of them in their daily life. Mrs. Pinkham makes a special appeal to mothers of large families whose work is never done, and many of whom suffer and suffer for lack of intelligent aid.

To women, young or old, rich or poor, Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., extends her invitation of free advice. Oh, women! do not let your lives be sacrificed when a word from Mrs. Pinkham, at the first approach of weakness, may fill your future years with healthy joy. Mrs. A. C. Cuba Gains More Prominence.

The Waukegan Daily Herald of September 18 says: Contracts amounting to $1,300 for graveling roads in Cuba township have been let during this year. Hurrah for Cuba! Let other townships keep up with the pace set by this hustling up-to-date township.

Waukegan merchants are exceedingly wrathful over the new move of P. D. Armour. Not satisfied with furnishing meat to every town within striking distance of Chicago, the great packing king has started to invade these districts in another way by putting a dairy and creamery butter car on the road and starting out salesmen soliciting orders.—Elgin Advocate.

ORDINANCE NO. 59.

Be it ordained by the President of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington, Counties of Cook and Lake, and the State of Illinois.

Section 1. That in consideration of the benefit that will accrue and result to the Village of Barrington from the construction and operation of an electrical plant, there is hereby granted unto the Barrington Electric Company, its successors or assigns, the privilege of erecting, maintaining and operating an electrical plant or works, and the erection of machinery for the same, and erecting poles and electrical conductors in the streets, alleys, public squares, parks, across bridges, standing streams of water or sidewalks; and also to place wires underground in such streets, alleys, parks, public squares, and sidewalks of the corporation aforesaid, as are now laid out, extended or enlarged for the purpose of supplying electrical currents for heating, lighting, illuminating, chemical and mechanical purposes for the term of fifteen years and after the passage of this ordinance, and in consideration of the benefits that may accrue from the granting of this franchise, the said Barrington Electric Company, its successors or assigns, agree to furnish without cost to the Village of Barrington electrical currents for the lighting or illuminating of its council chambers during the life of this franchise, provided that said corporation of Barrington shall have the option to buy said electrical light plant and all the appurtenances thereto belonging at any time that Board of Trustees of said corporation may elect in the manner following: The Board of Trustees to appoint one arbitrator and the Barrington Electric Company one, these two to appoint a third, the decision of these three men to be final and all parties to abide thereby.

Sec. 2. In constructing, repairing or operating the said electrical plant or works the said Barrington Electric Company, its successors or assigns shall use every reasonable and proper precaution to avoid damage to personal property, and shall at all times respond to the Village of Barrington and save and keep harmless said village corporation from damage and expense occasioned by any act of said company in the construction, operation or repairing of said electrical plant.

Sec. 3. Whenever any street, alley, public square or place shall be opened or any hole or trench dug therein for the purpose of said grantees, its successors or assigns, they shall within ten days thereafter repair said street, alley or place opened, and maintain the same in as good condition as it was before, and on failure to do so the said village corporation will have the right to have the same done and the said grantees, its successors or assigns, shall pay the corporation the amount expended and ten per cent. additional for making such repairs.

Sec. 4. That the said Barrington Electric Company, its successors or assigns, shall furnish incandescent lights at a price not to exceed sixteen cents for one thousand Watts, as shown by the readings of a standard Watt-meter. They shall charge a rate not to exceed nine mills per hour for each one-half Ampere of current at one hundred and ten volts consumed, and they shall furnish twelve hundred candle power arc lamps at a price not to exceed six dollars per month and two thousand candle power arc lamps at a price not to exceed eight dollars per month for eleven o'clock service, with the exception of Saturday nights, which service shall extend until twelve o'clock.

Sec. 5. That the Barrington Electric Company is hereby authorized and instructed to furnish, deliver and secure to the Village of Barrington electric lighting for corporate purposes for lighting its streets, alleys and other public places in the manner and under the conditions and provisions as expressed in this ordinance. Said Barrington Electric Company shall furnish the said Village of Barrington thirty-three incandescent electric lights of thirty-two candle power each in such places and on such streets and alleys in the said village as the President and Board of Trustees of said village shall direct. And shall thereafter furnish and deliver to the said village, in the manner hereinafter specified, such number of electric lights as the President and Board of Trustees shall direct, not less, however, than two at any one time.

The poles for carrying the wires of said company shall not be less than twenty-five feet in height, and placed in said streets, alleys and public places of said Village of Barrington in such position, place and condition as directed by said President and Board of Trustees of said village.

Sec. 6. The Barrington Electric Company shall operate and furnish said lights from dusk to eleven o'clock P. M. every night in the year, except bright moonlight nights. If the said lamps shall not be burning for any reason whatever at the time when such lamps should be burning under this contract, then such time may be deducted pro rata from the payment to be made by said corporation as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 7. Whenever the said Barrington Electric Company fail or refuse to furnish such electric lights as herein provided or shall fail or neglect to furnish good light or refuse or neglect to comply with any of the provisions of this ordinance for and during the period of thirty days at any one time after being notified in writing so to do by said Board of Trustees, then this ordinance shall at the option of said Board of Trustees of said Village of Barrington be declared null and void, provided, however, that this ordinance shall not be declared null and void if the said Barrington Electric Company shall furnish to said Board of Trustees reasonable grounds or excuse for such failure to comply with or to perform any of the provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 8. Sec. 11. It is understood and agreed that the power plant is to be located in the Village of Barrington and that the street lights shall be in operation on or before the expiration of ninety (90) days, after the signing of this ordinance.

Sec. 12. The said Barrington Electric Company shall file, in writing, its formal acceptance of its terms and conditions of this ordinance, together with a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of Three Thousand ($3,000) Dollars, with securities to be approved by the President of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Barrington, conditioned that the said company will observe, perform and carry out all the provisions of the said ordinance and will forever indemnify, save and keep harmless the Village of Barrington from any and all expense, loss, damages, costs, charges and liabilities in any way arising from or growing out of the rights and privileges hereby conferred upon said Barrington Electric Company, provided, however, that the giving of said bond or the recovery of a judgment or judgments thereon by the Village of Barrington shall not be construed as measuring or limiting the liability of said Barrington Electric Company to said Village of Barrington, under a provision of this ordinance and such bond shall be a continuing liability, notwithstanding any such recovery or recoveries.

Try the game of "nine pins" or the "bending contest" on a bicycle. Place nine bottles or pins in a row five to six feet apart; then go through without knocking any of them down. Each player has five chances, the player knocking down the most pins loses. It is fun and also good exercise trying to keep your balance on the wheel.

Jefferson Grays vs. Wauconda Independents is the program at the Oak Park picnic grounds, Lake Zurich, tomorrow. The purse of $25 offered will no doubt prove a great incentive for the players of the two nines to exert their utmost strength to win the game. Owing to the fact that the opposing nines are so evenly matched it will be hard for the "sports" to pick the winner.

The fire which destroyed the residence of Louis Shultz Wednesday of last week and which came very near cremating three human beings, is the work of incendiaries from all accounts. Mr. Schultz was insured in the Ela Mutual Fire Insurance company.

We predict for the Wauconda base ball team the championship of Lake county. They are playing excellent ball of late, as the games at the fair show. The "cracked-up" Everett team was not in it one bit.

J. D. LAMEY & CO.'S,

Prices are low. Parties desirous of doing painting will find no better time to do so than right now. Linseed Oil is now down to a remarkable low figure, as is also White Lead. It looks reasonable that prices can not hold down to so low a point but for a short time; in particular that of Linseed Oil. Nearly every one is aware of the rise in price of all grains, which include flax, of which Linseed Oil is made. Prices can not get lower—they are as low as they can get.

WAR WITH SPAIN IS IMMINENT.

The United States and Spain may go to war over Cuba. Indeed, it is more than likely that diplomatic relations, now at a high tension of excitability, will snap at any moment, and that hostilities will at once thereafter begin. There can be but little doubt that Spain is anxious to fight. Not that the Spaniards want revenge, but because Cuba has already almost exhausted its power, and they want the work finished by a first-class nation. It would never do to have Spain reduced by a mere colony which would be the inevitable end of the war in Cuba. That is the reason that Spain is anxious to pick a fight with us. She knows that it will not last long, that Cuba will be annexed and that the United States will assume debts. Spain is deeply indebted to the money kings, who, seeing that she is sure to be beaten in Cuba, will no longer use their influence to prevent a greater war. The only hope of the creditors of Spain is through some other power. If, for instance, the United States vanquishes Spain they will stand some show of getting their money. Already Spanish securities are being unloaded in New York via Wall street. These securities will be worth par when Spain has been whipped. They would come under the heading of war indemnity.

Following are some of the latest dispatches on the subject. They certainly point to approaching war with Spain:

Warships Are Active.

Washington Special: President McKinley's Cuban policy may be a decidedly pacific one, but it is none the less a fact that there has been quietly managed a concentration of warships such as has never before been seen on the Atlantic coast. A rumor was current on Wall street today that a ship of war had been ordered to the harbor of Havana, and as a result telegrams poured in here asking for particulars. The rumor was, of course, entirely without foundation, but the story simply reflects the fact that the stock speculators are at last waking up to the fact that the United States is ready to aid Cuba at short notice if need be. At the navy department it is said that the ships will be kept out of Cuban waters until they are needed, but there is no longer any attempt to conceal the fact that the strongest fleet ever put together in this country is today within a few hours' sail of Cuba, and ready to be put to work off Havana at a few days' notice.

A Formidable Fleet.

The fleet which has just concluded its evolutions off Fortress Monroe consists of the double turret monitor Puritan, with 16 guns; the battleship Indiana, 16 guns; Massachusetts, 16 guns; Texas, 8 guns; Maine, 10 guns; Iowa, 18 guns; cruisers Brooklyn, 20 guns; New York, 28 guns; and the dispatch boat Dolphin. Admiral Seward has under his immediate command, fresh from sea, one monitor, five battleships and two cruisers, with a total in the main batteries of 116 great guns, a force far in excess of anything Spain has in Cuban waters and quite sufficient to blow Havana into kingdom come. Besides these there are at New York the cruisers Cincinnati, Detroit, Marblehead and Montgomery and the monitor Terror, with a total of 45 big guns. At Norfolk, ready for use, is the monitor Amphitrite, with 6 guns. The cruiser Lancaster, with 12 guns more, is on its way to Boston from Montevideo. Of the light draft gunboats, the Nashville and Helena are on the Florida coast, the Annapolis is on its way, and the Wilmington is at Norfolk. This gives immediately available for any emergency a formidable fleet of three monitors, five battleships, seven cruisers and four light draft gunboats, which, for reasons best known to the president and his advisers, are in condition for service at a moment's notice. This fleet would have a total armament of 209 big rifles, to say nothing of the secondary batteries. It would be amply sufficient to blockade Cuba, and the weight of metal is far heavier than anything Spain has in or could send into Cuban waters.

New York Fleet Ready.

In addition to this fleet of heavy-weights there are now assembled at New York the torpedo boats Porter, Ericsson, Cushing, Foote, Stretto and Dupont. They and the ships of the North Atlantic squadron will be kept in West Indian and gulf waters during the winter months. If all is well they will cruise as usual, but if there should be a crisis in Cuban matters the American fleet would be "lying around loose" in the immediate vicinity. Navy department officials make no secret of the fact now that while there is no purpose of making the slightest threatening demonstration, care has at last been taken that the North Atlantic squadron should be today stronger in fighting ships than at any time since the war.

HOW WE WILL FIGHT.

Course to Be Pursued by This Country in the Event of War.

New York Special: The news that Captain Jose Sobral, the naval attaché of the Spanish Legation, had been spying around our coast fortifications and navy-yards, has aroused the navy department to the formation of a plan of campaign against the fleet that Spain is bound to send in case war is declared.

In greater part it was worked out nearly one year ago at the Naval War college by Captain A. T. Mahan, now retired, Captain Henry S. Taylor of the battleship Massachusetts and Lieutenant Singer, chief of the Bureau of Naval Intelligence. It has been brought to the last detail within the last three days by the staff of the naval intelligence bureau.

The North Atlantic squadron now cruising off the capes of Virginia will be the fleet to meet and do battle with the modern Armada of Spain. This squadron in point of armor, speed and weight of metal that can be thrown in broadside in a given time, is the strongest ever gathered under the United States flag, and it compares favorably with any squadron of the world's great powers.

The First Move in the Game.

The Secretary of the Navy knows at every hour of the day just where it is located, and the dispatch boat Dolphin lies at Washington with steam up all the time. If, for instance, war should be declared today, the Dolphin would go flying out with dispatches to Admiral Seward sending him to Hayti, to the alternative ports (which are also coal-any fighting. In fact, if any battleship come out after them they are to run out of danger and then return to their watch.

If one of the Spanish boats should break down the whole armada would have to wait, for no boat would dare attempt limping back to Spain alone. One or two of our scouts could easily be spared in such emergency to send it to the bottom. The Spanish fleet will have to come straight across the Atlantic until it reaches about 55 degrees west longitude. Its coal capacity will prevent any tortuous or dodging course. From there it has a choice of three lanes to Havana, or possibly Santiago de Cuba on the south coast of the island, where it must go for coal.

Scouts on the Lookout.

On the pointing of the armada for any of these three lanes the commander of the "scouts" will detach one by private long distance signal (about fifteen miles), and it will start off under full steam to the Admiral of our main or defensive fleet. Any one of our six could get to Hayti eighteen hours in advance of the Spanish fleet, and it would signal its news that the enemy's fleet, so strong, at such an hour, in stead of trying to remedy the situation he has issued orders, which I have read, to destroy utterly the towns of La Sierra, Arimao, Las Auras, San Anton, Los Guanos, Arriete, and Punta Gorda, in Santa Clara Province, all in the neighborhood of the City of Cienfuegos. The only reason he gives for this barbarity, which will leave homeless thousands of people, is that the Spanish troops cannot defend those places against the raids of the insurgents. It is the beginning of Weyler's policy to reduce Cuba to ashes before surrendering it to the Cubans.

At Josca, Matanzas Province, another train has been blown up with dynamite, the armored car being shattered by the explosion. Ten Spanish soldiers were killed. The other cars were sacked by the Cubans.

A large number of cattle have been seized by the insurgents near Bacnino, Santa Clara Province. The Spanish Battalion of America was escorting them, and its lieutenant-colonel has been court-martialed by orders of Weyler.

At the Tunicu river, near Sancti Spiritus, in the same province, Spanish forces of the Battalion of Arapiles had an engagement with the insurgents on ing stations) of Samana Bay, on the east coast, or Mole St. Nicholas on the west coast. Both have cable communication with Washington for further orders.

Then the commerce destroyers, Columbia and Minneapolis, would be sent straight away to the coast of Spain, and the four American liners, St. Paul, St. Louis, Paris and New York, would be summoned to the Brooklyn navy yard to have five-inch guns placed upon the twelve platforms with which each is equipped. These six "scout" or observation ships would be told off to watch the ports of Cadiz or Terrol, the only places in Spain where fleets can be utilized. They are not supposed to do such latitude and longitude, at such speed, was coming on such a course.

This scout would signal this about fifteen miles off port, saving from forty-five to sixty miles, and dash back at full speed again with whatever instructions the Admiral might give. Four or five hours later another scout would come in with fresher details, and a few hours later still another. Then the Admiral of the main fleet could get under way with the assurance of intercepting and engaging his enemies at just the point he might select.

In case the first battle should turn in favor of the Spaniards our coast fleet, mobilized at Key West, could keep them from following up the success. This fleet would include the double turreted monitors Amphitrite, Terror and Minatonomoh, the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, the five vessels in the torpedo boat flotilla, and the light draft gunboats Helena, Wilmington, Nashville and Annapolis.

The heavy monitors alone, fresh for service, could keep back the short-coaled and battle-weakened Spanish battleships.

If our main fleet should defeat the Spaniards in the first battle this coast squadron would be sent across the straits of Florida to engage the fortifications of Havana.

CUBA ALMOST IN ASHES.

Weyler Issues Orders to Destroy Seven Towns in Santa Clara.

Havana, via Key West, Special: At Los Palacios, Pinar del Rio Province, thirty-two persons died from hunger on last Saturday. The majority of the population are starving and crowd the streets, demanding relief from the Spanish authorities. Los Palacios, before the war, had at least 2,000 inhabitants. Now there are not over 800.

The same awful condition exists over all the Province of Pinar del Rio. Reports from the capital of the province are no less terrible. A magistrate of the Audiencia (judge of the Superior court) writes thus to a friend in Havana:

"Within a week all our resources will be exhausted, and then I don't know how we will keep soul and body together."

Gen. Weyler is heedless of the condition of the desolated provinces. Instead of trying to remedy the situation he has issued orders, which I have read, to destroy utterly the towns of La Sierra, Arimao, Las Auras, San Anton, Los Guanos, Arriete, and Punta Gorda, in Santa Clara Province, all in the neighborhood of the City of Cienfuegos. The only reason he gives for this barbarity, which will leave homeless thousands of people, is that the Spanish troops cannot defend those places against the raids of the insurgents. It is the beginning of Weyler's policy to reduce Cuba to ashes before surrendering it to the Cubans.

At San Puriales, Santa Clara also, another fight took place the same day between the Spanish forces under Gen. Montaner and the insurgents under Col. Smiley. After three hours the insurgents retreated. Losses on both sides were heavy and the Spanish Major Vivar was seriously wounded.

A decisive victory was won on Sept. 9 near Artemisa, Pinar del Rio, by the insurgents, under Gen. Pedro Diaz, over the Spanish battalion of Vergara. The battle was fought at a place called Damaso Campo. After a heavy fire the insurgents charged the Spanish lines and a hand-to-hand encounter ensued, with the complete defeat of the Spaniards. The Spanish retreated in disorder to San Jose and the Cubans followed them to within sight of the town.

Cattle are being sent into Havana from Punta Rosa, Fla., to supply the capital.

All the reports about the election of president of the Cuban republic are considered here to be premature. The general assembly of representatives held at Gualyamarillo, Puerto Principe, agreed before voting for the president to decide first about the reforms to be made in the constitution and the new powers to be bestowed upon the president himself. This discussion was a matter of several days, and if the election has taken place the results are not yet positively known.

Driven Away by the Tank Method.

Listerville, W. Va., has discovered a new cure for drunkenness which has struck terror to the hearts of the old soaks and the young soaks. It is claimed that this method shows a bigger percentage of cures than any other remedy ever offered to an anxious public. Whenever a resident of Listerville gets his package, he is hauled to an old gas tank on the outskirts of the village. Into this he is shoved ungently and then the boys of the village roll the tank about the streets for an hour or so, beating campaign tunes on the tank with able bodied clubs. When the subject is removed from the tank he is thoroughly sober, very repentant and ready to take any sort of a temperance pledge the good citizens of Listerville may shove at him.

We are sorry that we cannot give the itemized estimate this week, but will do so next week, when we will also publish the sizes of pipes which will be laid in the different streets if Persons & Huston's plans are adopted.
