LIGHT OR NO ELECTRIC LIGHT

Electric Light Company Wants to Dispose of Its Plant to the Village.

WHAT WAS DONE AT THURSDAY'S MASS MEETING.

A Good Committee of Business Men Appointed to Look the Matter Up and See What Can Be Done by the Village Towards Securing a Plant and Running It in Connection With the Water Works.

On Thursday evening a mass meeting was held in the new village hall for the purpose of determining whether our citizens want electric lights or not. As the case stands the company that operates the electric light plant at present has intimated that if they could not dispose of the plant before March 1st they would remove the plant.

"The plant could," it is argued by the company, "be run in connection with the water works plant at a profit while without it it is a losing venture."

President Boehmer of the Village Board acted as chairman and Clerk Powers as secretary. Messrs. S. Peck, Dr. Richardson, John C. Plagge, L. F. Schroeder, August Landwer, Dr. Kendall, Fred E. Hawley, J. W. Kingsley, W. T. Stott, Lawyer McIntosh, M. B. McIntosh, C. F. Meyer, Fred Frye, Dr. Charles Ott and G. H. Landwer made a few remarks. They all agreed that electric lights ought to be owned by the village providing a plant did not cost too much, but they wanted the village to buy no more machinery and appliances than was absolutely necessary and what it did buy to be of the best grade. If the present plant contained anything that was first-class and if it could be bought at a reasonable figure then buy it. After a volley of questions and answers had been disposed of a committee of seven was appointed to look up the matter and report at a future mass meeting what the company has to sell, how cheap, what terms, what was needed by the village, etc. The committee is composed of S. Peck, Carl Meyer, Fred Hawley, Dr. Kendall, Jerome Kingsley, Dr. Richardson and Fred Frye.

The ideas advanced by the speakers, taken from a business standpoint, were good.

After the mass meeting the committee took possession of the hall and organized, with Fred Hawley as chairman and Dr. Richardson as secretary. They decided to consult the village attorney and see in what way the village can purchase a plant legally.

Funeral of Mrs. Edwin Smith.

The remains of Mrs. Edwin Smith were brought from Shelton, Iowa, on Monday and laid to rest in the Palatine cemetery.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of J. W. Smith at noon, Rev. J. C. Butcher, pastor of the M. E. church, officiating. A large number of relatives of the deceased were in attendance.

Mrs. Smith was a daughter of John Kitson, deceased, a sister of Joseph Kitson and Mrs. John Wilson of Palatine and James Kitson of Barrington.

On June 16, 1839, she was united in marriage to Edwin Smith by Rev. Cooper. They lived in Palatine until 1872, when they moved to Chicago, and from there removed to Iowa in 1884, where Mr. Smith commenced to practice medicine. Mrs. Smith was 49 years of age, and leaves a husband, two daughters and a son.

Among those from abroad who attended the funeral were Mrs. Jordan and Wright Kusun of Chicago and John Kitson of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Two New Musical Societies.

The Palatine Amateur orchestra has been organized as follows: Frank Knigge and Geo. Zimmer, 1st violins; Miss Della Knigge, 2nd violin; Miss Blanche Schirding, cornet; Arthur Knigge, clarinet; Miss Lydia Knigge, pianist. Palatine has some of the best musical talent and more of it than can be found in any town of its size.

A Letter From Klondike.

On Tuesday evening the Young People's Alliance of Zion's church, Barrington, held one of their delightful meetings.

The first number of the program was a song by the society, followed by President Fred Plagge reading the scripture, and after another song by the society, offering an earnest prayer.

Walter Plagge in a clear and pleasing manner read a humorous selection entitled: "Sam Weller's Valentine."

The recitation, "The Missing Reek," was ably rendered by Miss Ida Wiseman.

Herman Gieske sang a beautiful solo in an excellent manner.

Miss Amanda Troyer then read a letter which was supposed to have been written by a party of six Barrington young ladies who were on their way to Klondike. The letter told all about the trip, and was spicy and amusing. The letter stated that the fair tourists were bent on staking out claims. It is to be hoped they will return with much wealth.

Miss Minnie Gieske's vivid description of a certain young lady fitted so well that the answer came at once from several of those present.

The selection by a quartette composed of Misses Minnie Plagge and Esther Wiseman, and Messrs Herman Gieske and Fred Plagge was fine.

Miss Alta Gieske's recitation entitled "The Fishing Party," was given in a quaint and excellent manner.

The instrumental music furnished by Miss Luella Troyer was charmingly executed.

A closing song by the society ended a very interesting and entertaining meeting.

DIPHTHERIA IN WINNECONNE.

How It Was Stamped Out, After the Modern Treatment Had Failed.

Thirty-three cases of diphtheria were reported at Winneconne, Wisconsin, and the schools were closed.

Of the thirty-three cases twelve were subjected to so-called modern treatment; four of the twelve thus treated died, a death rate of 33.1-3 per cent.

Mr. J. Ulrich, a resident of Winneconne, had observed the marvelous success Muco-Solvent had met with and in his enthusiastic way induced many mothers to use it. His own family was one of the first infected, Muco-Solvent being used to the exclusion of everything else with splendid results.

Compared with other treatments, its success was so very pronounced, that Muco-Solvent was generally adopted, with the result that by its use alone the other twenty-two cases recovered, not one proving fatal where Muco-Solvent was depended on.

We recommend its presence in every home, for all throat troubles. In averting developments of diphtheria, scarlet fever and croup, it is unequalled.

Upon receipt of the price, $1 per bottle, the Muco-Solvent Company, 356 Dearborn street, Chicago, will express it, charges paid. This makes a splendid article for agents to introduce in their locality, as it is backed by overwhelming and convincing testimony. Forty-page book free.—Chicago Opinion.

She Knew Which.

"Mary," said Mr. Thomas, when a silence fraught with unpleasant meaning had followed his first altercation with his young wife. "Yes?" said Mary, interrogatively. "When a man and his wife have had a difference," said Mr. Thomas, with a judicial air, "and each considers the other in fault, which of the two do you think should make the first advance toward reconciliation?" "The wiser of the two," said Mrs. Thomas, promptly; "and so my dear, I'll say at once that I'm very sorry." It occurred to Mr. Thomas that it might have been as well for him to make the first advance, after all, but he thoughtfully refrained from saying so.—Youth's Companion.

SPRAYING FRUIT TREES.

The question of spraying fruit trees to prevent the depredations of insect pests and fungus-diseases is no longer an experiment, but a necessity.

Our readers will do well to write Wm. Stahl 416 E. St. Quincy, Ill., and get his catalogue describing twenty-one styles of Spraying Outfits and full treatise on spraying the different fruit and vegetable crops, which may be had for the asking and contains much valuable information.

Superfluous Women in Convents.

The problem of the superfluous woman was solved a long time ago by the Roman church in a graceful way. The daughters of many noble European families who did not marry and found society a bore have retired to convents and taken the vows of nuns. Of these several are of the noted English house of Howard, two are sisters of the present Duke of Norfolk, and one is a sister of the present Lord Clifford. Lady Frances Evelyn Bertie, sister of the seventh Lord Abingdon, is also a nun. Dozens of girls of families untitled but of gentle breeding have taken the veil and are living in the seclusion of convents doing good works.

CHAPTER XIV.

THREE weeks had passed since the night on which Hildred had heard the true story of her marriage. She had tried hard to conquer the love of her husband which had begun to spring up in her heart. She tried hard to do her duty, to school herself in the knowledge that for her life was to be without love. But it was hard. She was young and impressionable; the earl was handsome and fascinating. There were times when an irresistible impulse came over her—an impulse to beg him to love her. She resisted it, and every time she did so resist her heart grew colder and harder. It is difficult for a flower to blossom in blighted cold—the buds drop, the perfume dies. It requires the warmth and brightness, the kisses and smiles of the sun to bring it to perfection. So it is with a half-formed character like Hildred's—the sunshine of love and happiness would have brought it to a fair and blooming maturity. The chill of neglect and indifference changed it.

"Lord Caraven," said Hildred one day, "who is the person—gentleman, I should say, perhaps—who comes here so often?"

"Do you mean John Blantyre, my faithful friend and steward?" he asked laughingly. "He comes every day."

"Is that his name? I do not like his face."

"Why not, Hildred?" he asked.

"It is not the face of an honest man, unless Nature has for once made a mistake in her own handwriting."

"It is not a handsome face, certainly," said the earl; "far from it."

"I am not speaking of mere beauty of feature—and perhaps I judge him harshly," she replied. "But it does not seem to me an honest face. I would not trust the man for—do you trust him, Lord Caraven?"

"I trust him implicitly—indeed, I do not believe I ever overlooked his accounts."

She looked at him in wonder.

"Never overlooked his accounts! How very careless of you!" she said.

"I am not careful by nature," he told her, laughing.

"But," she observed, earnestly, "such carelessness is wrong. You put a terrible temptation in his way by not keeping a check upon him."

"I suppose," said Lord Caraven, indolently, "that I find it easier to let myself be robbed a little than to look after matters for myself."

The dark, eloquent eyes, as they were raised to his, expressed a great deal.

"What do you do with your life?" she asked. "It seems to me that you have no idea of duty."

"Nor have I. I know well what to do with my life—I enjoy it."

"There can be nothing more to add," said Hildred. "But if I were you, Lord Caraven, I should look after my accounts."

She thought a great deal after that conversation. It had opened her eyes more fully to her husband's character than anything that had passed before. She decided to study him.

Was he generous? She thought at first that she might say "yes." They were riding one day, and they met a poor woman begging with a little child in her arms; she was poor, hungry, all in tatters, with pinched face and sad, weary eyes, a pitiful spectacle of want and destitution. As they passed by the earl took out his purse and literally emptied it on the ground at the woman's feet. She looked dazed and bewildered at this sudden bounty of fortune. He did not wait for any thanks, but rode on.

"I wish," he said, "that I could collect all the poor people in the world together, and make them rich."

"Was that generosity?" she said to herself. "Yes, it must be."

They rode on until they came to a small cottage—one belonging to the Ravensmere estate—at the door of which stood a man still young but crippled and bent double with rheumatism. A little cry of pain came from Hildred's lips as she saw him, but the young man's eyes were fixed with an evil light on the earl's face.

Hildred stopped to say a kind word to him; the cripple came out and stood in front of the earl's magnificent horse.

"My lord," he said in a hoarse voice, "I have you to thank for these"—pointing to his shrunken limbs—

"and for these, also"—pointing to his useless hands.

"What do you mean?" Lord Caraven demanded, his face flushing with anger.

"I mean this, my lord—that I was a strong young man when I took this cottage and brought my wife home here; now," he cried, in a sudden passion of despair—"now look at me."

"What have I to do with that?" asked the earl, angrily.

"This much, my lord—I spent all my bit of money on this land; I had none left for repairing the house—your house, my lord. The water came in at the roof and at the windows—the wind blew through the doors. I begged to have it repaired; I have sent more letters than I could count to agent and landlord. Neither has attended to me. If I had had the money I would have done it myself, but I had not. I have had a sick wife and sick children, but never a shilling to spare for the broken roof, and your heartlessness has reduced me to this."

"Stand aside," said the earl, angrily; "you men are never contented—never satisfied—stand aside."

"My lord," cried the man, "the horses in your stables, the dogs in your kennels, are better cared for than I—they are better housed. If I die—and his voice changed to a cry of despair—"my death be upon your head!"

"You are an impertinent fellow!" cried the earl. "Out of my way, or I will ride over you!"

"Pray—pray listen to him, Lord Caraven!" cried Hildred.

But the earl turned angrily to her.

"You do not understand these matters; you must not interfere," he said—a set of idle rogues!"

"Stop, my lord," cried the man, his face paling—"stop. Be satisfied with taking my health and my strength—leave my character alone. I am no rogue; I am an honest, hard-working man."

"Honest, indeed," cried the earl. "There is not one honest man among you."

The evil look deepened on the man's pale face.

"I will not answer, my lord," he said, with quiet dignity. "I am asking a favor; it is life to me. I have no money to leave the house; if I remain in it as it is it will be certain death to me. My lord, it is but a few pounds—very few—do not refuse me!"

But Lord Caraven's face grew crimson with anger.

"I shall do nothing of the kind. And let me tell you that I consider it a great piece of impertinence for you to stop me in this fashion; I have an agent to manage my affairs—go to him. Out of my road, and take care you do not stop me again."

"STOP, MY LORD."

The man went away and the earl rode on. Was he generous? Only a few pounds, and for that a life must be sacrificed.

"Mind, Hildred," he said, sharply, "you are not from any mistaken notion of generosity to interfere; if you do I shall have to repair every house on the estate."

And she wondered to herself whose idea of generosity was mistaken—his or hers.

CHAPTER XV.

HILDRED'S heart sank lower and lower—every day brought her some fresh revelation of her husband's character which was utterly unendurable to her. The worst trait of all was that he seemed to her, as it were, to lounge through life. He literally did nothing—no useful occupation ever seemed to attract him. He never read, he never wrote. If any letter of importance required an answer he passed it to her or threw it aside. If the agent brought the accounts he said in his indolent manner, "Lay the books down—I will see to them soon;" but he never looked at them. He had but one idea, and that was amusement. No idea of work ever seemed to occur to him—self-indulgence and indolence were all that he cared for.

Would he never change? Would he remain selfish, self-indulgent, indolent, to his life's end? The contrast between what he did and what he should have done appalled her—she hardly cared to think of it. The estate was neglected and uncared for; the tenants were oppressed; appeals for mercy and for justice were made to him in vain. The farmers were all dissatisfied; the only person who really seemed to approve of matters as they stood was John Blantyre; the steward, the man whom Lady Caraven instinctively disliked. He was always smiling, bland, and suave; he had a habit, while talking to Lord Caraven, of rubbing his hands—a habit that used to annoy and irritate the young countess exceedingly. He was quite pleased if threats were made by the servants and the laborers that they would appeal to the earl. He had a fashion of saying, "You can try it—you will see what the earl says;" for the earl had but one answer to everything—complaint, excuse or prayer—and it was, "Go to Blantyre"—indeed the order had become quite a byword on the estate, "Go to Blantyre" being considered as equivalent to something far more dreadful.

No more painful life than Hildred's could have been imagined. Ravensmere was gay enough; they saw plenty of visitors, they had balls and dinner parties; their visitors were gay, worldly, brilliant people, who came to enjoy themselves for a few days, and did not care to enter into the cares and trials of their hostess. With them she was gay and brilliant—she would show nothing of the anguish that never left her; they should not go away and talk about "Lady Caraven, the wife whom her husband did not love," whatever it cost her, and the effort was at times terrible.

The earl saw her only at those times, and he smiled significantly.

"Women have no heart," he said, scoffingly. "This girl is just as happy as though she had the most loving husband in the world. She has what she wanted, and she seems to enjoy it, too."

Of the noble, womanly pride that disdained all complaint; of the brave spirit that fought so resolutely with her longing for happiness and her longing for love, he never even dreamed.

"I begin to think," said the handsome earl to himself one day, "that I have not done so badly after all. If I had married for love or anything of that kind, what trouble I should have had, what reproaches, what tears—and a woman's tears! I would sooner face untold hardships. I should have had all the uncertainties of love; now I am spared it all, and my house is presided over by a queenly mistress. Taking everything into account, I consider I am a fortunate man."

So he said in his blindness; but the time was to come when he would awaken from that blindness with sudden, passionate pain.

When the month of May came round he decided upon going to London. Halby House was prepared for them, and the handsome earl's friends made ready to receive him with open arms. He had been welcome in his penniless state, and, having married a wealthy heiress, he was now doubly welcome. Those who had won money from him before looked forward to winning more; those who had gambled and bet with him before looked forward to a renewal of those delights. He would be welcome.

The elite of the fashionable world were not sorry to receive their favorite again. The rumor that Halby House was to be thrown open, that the young Countess of Caraven was very beautiful, that the earl's revived prosperity would enable him to vie with the best party-givers in London was good news. The only one indifferent to it was the young countess herself—and she would fain have hidden her sorrows from all eyes and remained at Ravensmere.

The Foolish Chimney Sweep.

Not being able "to see himself as others saw him," the sweep broke the mirror that reflected his own blackness into hundred bits and walked down the street more content. But a man accosted him with the remark that his face was black as soot. "Oh, what a dunce I am," cried the sweep, greatly irritated, and, going to work at once with plenty of soap and water, both his temper and his looks were greatly improved.

THE NEW WORLD.

Interest is Aroused in the Canadian West.

The exhibits of grains and grasses, roots and vegetables, the product of the fertile lands of Western Canada, which were made at the several state and county fairs in some of the Western states this fall, have awakened considerable interest in the lands which the Canadian Government has opened for settlement, and which are given free to settlers. The agents of the government, who are to be found in these states, are flooded with inquiries regarding the conditions on which these lands may be secured. Large numbers have located on these lands during the past year, and send back to their friends most encouraging reports. They say they have entered on an era of prosperity, and are well pleased with both the agricultural possibilities and the climate. The provinces of Manitoba, Assiniboia and Alberta are, specially adapted to diversified farming. In some parts the country is specially adapted to stock raising, and it is being profitably pursued. In these parts snow seldom remains a week at a time, the warm breezes from the ocean affecting the climate thus favorably. When the desirability of these lands is fully known there will be a rush such as has scarcely ever before been known. Information as to low railway rates, illustrated pamphlets, etc., will be forwarded with pleasure by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, if you are not in possession of the name of an agent of the government.

RECENT MEDICAL DISCUSSION.

Wonderful Cures by Thyroin V. V. Creating Widespread Interest.

Owing to the recent discussion in the Jackson County Medical Society of Missouri in regard to the wonderful success obtained by the use of Thyroin V. V., a reporter called on the Van Vleck-Minter Co., Chemists of Kansas City, having heard of the wonderful cures they had performed, and was shown through their extensive laboratories, where they manufacture the gland remedies which are causing such a sensation in the medical profession as well as among the many thousands who were and are suffering from chronic diseases. These remedies are prepared from the glands and nerve centers taken from young and healthy sheep, and the letters they have received from grateful people of both sex is proof positive that they have nature's own remedy, and hence the most perfect and positive in action. They have surprised the world by curing goitre, idiocy, nervous diseases, insanity, stunted growth, indigestion, rheumatism, fat, starvation and all kinds of chronic troubles caused by poor nutrition. The success they have made from the Thyroin V. V. is a sure guarantee of the success they will make from all the other elements taken from the same source. They have a staff of the most eminent physicians and chemists in the country, each a specialist in his own particular line. The number of clerks and stenographers in their employ is evidence of the great success they so well deserve. Mr. Van Vleck showed the reporter specimens of sputum from consumption, and also evidence of cancer, tumors of all kinds, and germs of many diseases they have cured. He was also presented with their beautiful blue book, called New Life, which they are pleased to send upon request free of charge to all suffering humanity. All letters addressed to Van-Vleck-Minter Co., at their home office in Kansas City, Mo., or No. 114 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., will be considered strictly private and secure prompt attention.

A JOYFUL MOTHER OF CHILDREN.

Mrs. Pinkham Declares that in the Light of Modern Science no Woman Need Despair.

There are many curable causes for sterility in women. One of the most common is general debility, accompanied by a peculiar condition of the blood.

Care and tonic treatment of the female organs relieve more cases of supposed incurable barrenness than any other known method. This is why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has effected so many cures; its tonic properties are directed especially to the nerves which supply the uterine system. Among other causes for sterility or barrenness are displacements of the womb. These displacements are caused by lack of strength in the ligaments supporting the womb and the ovaries; restore these, and the difficulty ceases. Here, again, the Vegetable Compound works wonders. See Mrs. Lytle's letter, which follows in this column. Go to the root of the matter, restore the strength of the nerves and the tone of the parts, and nature will do the rest. Nature has no better ally than this Compound, made of her own healing and restoring herbs.

Write freely and fully to Mrs. Pinkham. Her address is Lynn, Mass. She will tell you, free of charge, the cause of your trouble and what course to take. Believe me, under right conditions, you have a fair chance to become the joyful mother of children. The woman whose letter is here published certainly thinks so:

"I am more than proud of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and cannot find words to express the good it has done me. I was troubled very badly with the leucorrhoea and severe womb pains. From the time I was married, in 1882, until last year, I was under the doctor's care. We had no children. I have had nearly every doctor in Jersey City, and have been to Belvia Hospital, but all to no avail. I saw Mrs. Pinkham's advertisement in the paper, and have used five bottles of her medicine. It has done more for me than all the doctors I ever had. It has stopped my pains and has brought me a fine little girl. I have been well ever since my baby was born. I heartily recommend Mrs. Pinkham's medicine to all women suffering from sterility."

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

How baldness begins.

How to prevent it.

Every person, male or female, shrinks from baldness. It adds to the appearance of age and is a serious discomfort. The cases are rare when the falling out of the hair may not be stopped, and a new and healthy growth of the hair promoted. The hair grows in the scalp like a plant in the soil. If a plant flourishes, it must have constant attention; it must be watered regularly and find its food in the soil where it is rooted. It is so with the hair. Neglect is usually the beginning of baldness. Dandruff is allowed to thicken on the scalp. The hair begins to loosen. The scalp loses its vitality. The hair, insufficiently nourished, begins to fade and to fall. The instant need in such a case is some practical preparation which, supplying the needed nourishment to the scalp, will feed the hair, give it strength, and so produce a strong and healthy growth. All this is done by Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, the most practical and valuable preparation for the hair that can be obtained. It tones up the scalp, deals away with dandruff, stops the hair from falling, restores the original color to gray or faded hair, and gives an abundant and glossy growth. Those who are threatened with approaching baldness will be interested in the following voluntary statement, made by Alderman S. J. Green, of Spencer, Iowa. He writes: "About four months ago, my hair commenced falling out so rapidly that I became alarmed and being recommended Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor by a druggist, I resolved to try this preparation. I have been now using it for three months, and am much gratified to find that my hair has ceased falling out and also that hair which had been turning gray for the past five years has been restored to its original color, dark brown. It gives me much pleasure to recommend this dressing."—S. J. GREEN, Alderman, Spencer, Iowa. Those who are interested in preserving and beautifying the hair will do well to send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook. A story of cures told by the cured. This book of 200 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Cowboys to the Front Again.

Spurs are jingling, long locks are waving, white soft hats and high heeled boots are making their appearance in the western towns again, and with a whoop la! the cowboy vaults into his old haunts. The reason is the cattle business booms once more. It even gives promise of assuming its old proportions, when many of the "cattle barons" made a fortune of $1,000,000 in a few years. The rise and fall in price of a commodity is something not always easy to understand. On the one hand, we were told five years ago that the cattle business of the west and southwest was overdone, that there were too many beeves raised and put on the market, so that the price went down below where the money received for a steer paid even for the cost of raising him. On the other hand, however, all the time that the meat producers were making this plaint the price of beef in the older parts of the country declined at retail not one cent. Somebody must have been making money in the meat business even then. However that was, though, the price of meat to the producer went down till it drove many of the great cattle barons into bankruptcy.

The boom years of the old time cattle range were from 1882 to 1888, when one man owned sometimes a herd of 30,000 to 40,000. The regions of greatest prosperity were in New Mexico, Arizona and Texas. The drop began in 1889. The lowest notch was reached in 1893 and 1894. It was rather odd meantime that during the years of the greatest depression in the cattle business the farmers of Nebraska, Illinois and Missouri were burning their corn for fuel because its price was so low that it did not pay the freight charged for shipping it. In 1896, when the cattle trade began to revive, the farmers of the corn belt saw a great light, as it were. It suddenly occurred to them to buy beef cattle from the western ranges and fatten them for the eastern market with the surplus corn. Now this industry—fattening beeves for market, "finishing off," as it is called—has assumed gigantic proportions. Farmers no longer burn their corn. They drive it off in the shape of live beef at a good round price per pound.

Those who get the most money for the cattle are, however, the shippers. These are the men who buy the half fattened cattle in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, ship them by rail to the corn belt and sell them to the feeders. One cattle shipper, Mr. Gillett of Woodbine, Kan., is said to have cleared $50,000 in this way last year. The cattle business of the new boom is on a better and more humane basis than the old one was. It is also here to stay. The demand for good beef is steadily increasing at home and abroad.

A naughty old girl is Eliza Brooks of Stroudsburg, if the story told on her is true. Eliza is 60 years old, and a month ago she was married to an old gentleman of 78, who took her to his heart and home on her representation that she was a widow and had laid Brooks away in the cold, cold ground in 1873. Where Brooks really was all this time does not appear. He was not dead though. It is likely that he would have kept his whereabouts a secret till the day of judgment if Eliza had not married again. Shortly after she took her second partner, however, a letter arrived from Brooks in Brooklyn inquiring for his "long lost wife." When she sought solace with another, Brooks suddenly remembered that he had a "long lost wife" and in the amiable fashion some married men as well as women follow, sought to "devil" Eliza. Now she will have to stand the consequences of making oath that Brooks was dead when he wasn't. For shame, Eliza, at your age too!

The postmaster general has made a decision in regard to postmasters, who fail to notify the publishers of subscribers who move or fail to take their papers from the office, to the effect that such postmasters shall be held responsible for the amount due upon subscription. The new postal law also says that anyone subscribing for a paper and refusing to pay for it, shall be liable to criminal prosecution.

After a long deliberation the Lake County Soldiers' Monument committee came to a decision at its meeting at Waukegan last Friday night, selecting design No. 4 sent from A. D. Ordway, architect of Battle Creek, Mich. The design is a heavy granite circular shaft, surmounted by a bronze or granite figure. Four panels representing the four different classes of soldiers, infantry, etc., adorn the base. It is a beautiful structure, and the design cost $150. A few minor changes are desired by the committee, and to that end Mr. Ordway was wired to confer with the committee. The monument selected is 53 feet in height and 13 feet 6 inches square at the base. Bids will be advertised for at once.

We observe there has been repudiation of county bonds recently in some parts of this land. A county that has any regard for its own good name cannot afford to repudiate its bonds, issued of its own free will and accepted in good faith by those who gave up their money therefor.

There is a hot time in one or another of the old towns of Germany every night nowadays. Seventy editors are already in jail for leze majesty, and there are a number of outlying places not yet heard from.

When a state, county or city repudiates its bonds, there is always one remedy for its creditors. They can sue and recover the amount of their loss in the United States courts.

THE MONARCH CHAINLESS.

A Bicycle Gearing Absolutely New, Novel, and Practical.

In their indiscriminate haste to announce the making of chainless wheels, some manufacturers have tumbled over each other in the endeavor to be in front. To be in front is a spasm, to "keep in front" is sustained energy. To utter a truism is one thing, to live up to it is another.

The spirit of the aphorism of the Monarch Cycle Manufacturing Company, "Ride a Monarch and Keep in Front," is well illustrated in its latest product, The Monarch Chainless. Alive to the times, the company will produce a chainless bicycle which has been proven by repeated tests to be superior in its class, in every particular.

Two surfaces that will roll on each other will transmit motion from one to the other. If the surfaces are comparatively smooth, the motion is transmitted by friction. But, when the surfaces are provided with projections, the motion, although it is unchanged in nature, is transmitted by direct pressure, and it is irregular unless the acting surfaces of the projections are carefully and exactly shaped to produce an even motion. It is the difficulty which is experienced to produce these perfect projections, when bevel gears are used which leads the experienced mechanic away from them. Long experience in Sewing Machine manufacture has taught the Monarch Company that whatever transmission was used, bevel gears were not to be considered if easy running was to be thought of. The result has been a driving gear which is excellent in its easy running qualities.

The mechanism is simple. The crank axle and hub gears somewhat resemble the familiar sprocket wheels, the noticeable difference being the teeth which are closer together and V shape in cross section instead of four sided. The shaft connecting the two is provided at each end with a pinion having roller pin teeth which run in and out of the wide angle openings between the gear teeth. Each set of gears is enclosed but should they from any cause be exposed the action of the pin teeth is such that they are self-cleaning, forcing mud and dirt out from between the teeth. One of the chief objections urged against chainless wheels by mechanics is that should the rear frame become twisted or out of line, there would be a consequent binding of the mating gears. The Monarch chainless is entirely free from this objection inasmuch that the junction of the pinions and gears form a type of the ball and socket joint, thereby permitting free running under the conditions usually met with in bicycle riding. A particular advantage which this gear has, and which gives it the highest efficiency, is the direct lift as against the end thrust which is common to all bevel gearing. This end thrust is a prominent factor in friction and frame strain.

Another point to be counted in favor of the Monarch gear is, that it is not of delicate construction although comparatively light in weight.

As stated by Grant, the well known authority on gears, "The pin gear is particularly valuable when the pins are made in the form of rollers for then the minimum of friction is reached." The friction between the tooth and pin, otherwise a sliding friction at a line bearing is, with a roller pin, a rolling friction. When properly made, there is no form of tooth that is superior to the roller pin tooth.

While the Monarch company is warranted from the study of experts in placing its chainless machine on the market as the best type of that class, its faith in the chain wheel is in no way diminished. It will continue to keep them in the forward ranks of that type of bicycle which is yet the choice of the majority of the people. In line with the general policy of the Monarch company, the price of its chainless will be $100.00, which will give a complete line, including chain machines, ranging from this price to $40.00.

When the stars were not shining bright,
And the wind was blowing a furious gale
That proud Mr. Yale
Marched to the post-office for his mail.

I desire to attest to the merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as one of the most valuable and efficient preparations on the market. It broke an exceedingly dangerous cough for me in 24 hours, and in gratitude therefore, desire to inform you that I will never be without and you should feel proud of the high esteem in which your remedies are held by people in general. It is the one remedy among ten thousand. Success to it.—O. K. Downey, editor Democrat, Albion, Ind. For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

It ought not to be a very difficult job for a good chowder artist to put Major Paty du Cham in the soup.

On the morning of February 20, 1895, I was sick with rheumatism, and lay in bed until May 21st, when I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first application of it relieved me almost entirely from the pain and the second afforded complete relief. In a short time I was able to be up and about again. A. T. MOREAUX, Luverne, Minn. Again the fact is emphasized that the modern man-of-war is most dangerous to those who operate it.

A man stands no chance of being elected to the mayorship of a city unless he enjoys the confidence and esteem of his neighbors. Geo. W. Humphrey is the popular mayor of Swanton, Ohio, and under date of January 17, 1896, he writes as follows: "This is to certify to our appreciation of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My family and neighbors have tested it, and we know it is an excellent remedy for coughs and colds. George W. Humphrey." Sold by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

E. B. Samuels, county clerk of Hickman County, Clinton, Kentucky, testifies that he suffered for years with horrible pains in the back, kidneys and bladder—was treated by many physicians—they gave him no relief—he got so he could hardly stand alone—Utah Kidney Beans, he says, completely cured him. There is roughly estimated to be as much Placer Gold in the Placer Gravels of North and South America as there is Gold now in use in the world—four thousand millions of dollars (4,000,000,000).

As fast as this Gold can be produced there is an instant and world-wide market for it. Unlike wheat, cotton or iron, the market for Gold has never been glutted.

The Sterling Placer Company

is now engaged in the manufacture and installation of Labor-saving Placer-working Machinery that will mark an era in Gold production. Its machines are worked by twelve men. Each machine does the work of 1500 men. They reduce the cost of placer-working to 10 cents per cubic yard. In 60-cent gravel, in which a machine is about to be set running, the Gold output will run $900 per day or $270,000 per year.

This Placer gravel is owned by the company. It owns eighty-seven million ($7,000,000) cubic yards of Placer Gravel that averages 50 cents per cubic yard. Deduct 10 cents for working, and its net profits in sight are thirty-four millions eight hundred thousand dollars (34,800,000).

If the one machine is re-inforced by four more, this body of Placer gravel, owned clear and free of debt by this Company, will last over thirty-eight years. The profits can be easily calculated by anyone with a sharp pencil to be as great as calculated in the above tables.

The Sterling Placer Company has arrangements in force to acquire ownership of the plant where its machines are being built. This is near Chicago, and has a value of over $100,000.

This Company is free of bonded or mortgage debt.

It pays as it goes.

To avoid borrowing money it offers a limited amount of its Treasury Stock, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 cents per share. The total capitalization is absurdly small, only two and a half millions, in view of the magnitude of its properties. The Gold is as self-evident in its existence as trees in a pine forest.

The money will be used first to ship and put at work the machine now ready and to build more, after a few thousand dollars of current bills are taken care of.

The Sterling Placer Company is a stockholders' company, and will be run for their profit. It has no bonds nor bondholders.

We expect to make the men rich who join with us at this eleventh hour, as Rockefeller and Edison enriched their associates. The sale of stock will be discontinued when 100,000 shares are sold.

As showing the Gold value of our Placers, we will add that $750,000 was spent in a vain attempt to work a small portion of them by hydraulic methods. But a freshet carried away the dams in twenty-four hours.

As to the financial standing of the Treasurer, he refers to Dun and Bradstreet (see Mitts & Merrill, manufacturers of machinery, Saginaw, Mich.), to any bank in the United States and Canada, and to the Second National Bank, Saginaw, Mich., and the American Commercial and Savings Bank, Saginaw, Mich. Remittances for stock may be sent to the last-named bank, or direct to the Treasurer.

All practical minute questions about the subject, full details and cuts of our machinery, the facts as to a crude machine on our models, but far less efficient, that now take out $500 daily, description and maps of our property FURNISHED FREE ON APPLICATION.

Chicago Office, 880 Old Colony Building, Chicago. Parties may here meet Mr. H. B. Quick, Chief Engineer of the Company, see samples of gold which Mr. Quick has personally taken out of our placers, and arrange for the inspection of our machinery at rest or in motion.

Mr. Quick will be remembered by many Chicagoans as the mechanical engineer who superintended the installation of the machinery in the Leiter Block occupied by Siegel, Cooper & Co. and who also installed the machinery in the power house of the Intramural Elevated Road inside the World's Fair Grounds at Chicago in 1893.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

VOTE MONEY FOR INDIANS.

Appropriation Bill Passes the House—Motion to Restore the Free Homestead Law—Nearly $8,000,000 Disposed of by the Measure.

Thursday, Feb. 10.

The house was in a very bad temper and the whole session was consumed in filibusterink. Finally, when it became evident that no progress could be made with the bills presented, an adjournment was taken until Monday.

During almost the entire session of the senate the Indian appropriation bill was under discussion. The reading of the bill was completed, and all of the committee amendments were adopted. Subsequently several amendments of a minor character were attached to the measure.

Friday, Feb. 11.

Consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was resumed in the senate and, after being amended to some extent, the measure was passed. The most important amendment was that offered by Mr. Pettigrew which, if finally enacted, will restore the free homestead law so far as it relates to Indian lands ceded to the United States, for which lands the settlers have been obliged to pay the purchase price paid to the Indians. The bill carries appropriations aggregating nearly $8,000,000. The senate adjourned until Monday. The house was not in session.

Monday, Feb. 14.

The house adopted a resolution of inquiry unanimously reported by the foreign affairs committee calling on the state department for information as to the condition of the concentrados in Cuba and the progress made in Spain's effort to induce the Cubans to accept autonomy.

In the senate the amendment of Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.) to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents was reported adversely by the foreign relations committee. Senator Pettigrew made a long speech opposing the annexation of Hawaii. Senator Proctor of Vermont followed with a brief speech in favor of the treaty.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Proceedings of Senate and House.

Governor Tanner Feb. 10 signed the primary election bill, which is now a law in force. The bill as amended by the house was passed by the senate with forty senators voting in the affirmative. The bill making the primary law compulsory where it has been adopted was passed. The house resolution asking for a conference committee to adjust the differences of the revenue bill was received and accepted.

In the house the McGinnis telephone bill was again recalled to second reading for slight amendment, and was then made a special order for next Tuesday.

There was no quorum in either senate or house Feb. 14. Both branches adjourned till next morning.

IOWA LEGISLATURE.

Measures of Importance Introduced at Des Moines.

The house Feb. 10 passed a resolution by Mr. Stallcup of Sac county, requesting the Iowa members of congress to oppose the pooling bill. Mr. Farley of Kossuth has introduced a 2-cent fare bill.

The woman suffrage resolution did not come up in the house Feb. 11, being crowded out by other matter, much to the disappointment of many women who came to hear the discussion. It was set for a special order Feb. 15.

President Potter Re-Elected.

The national assembly of the league of American Wheelmen elected Isaac B. Potter of New York president. Other business: Assigned the 1898 assembly to Providence, R. I., the birthplace of the league. Defeated the amendment providing for the admission of professionals to league membership. Defeated the amendment providing for the admission of negroes to membership. Adopted a plan for a junior membership.

Wanted Loud Bill Amended.

The National Editorial association will hold its annual meeting at Denver Sept. 6. Recommendations were adopted that the Loud bill now before congress for revision of the postal laws be amended so as to allow 10 per cent of the circulation of a paper to be sent through the mails as sample copies at newspaper rates.

Baltic Canal.

The great canal, the total length of which will be nearly 1,000 miles and which is to connect the Baltic with the Black sea, is to be commenced in the spring, the surveys being nearly completed. The new waterway is to be 217 feet wide at the ordinary water level and 117 feet at the bottom, its depth being 28 1/2 feet. Of the whole length of the canal 875 miles will be canalized rivers, leaving only 125 miles for the excavator. The total cost of the canal will be $100,000,000.

A Favorite Calendar.

With the approach of a new year most people discover the need of a new calendar. This fact accounts for the great number of these articles that burden the mails at this time. Among them all the one which suits us best is that published by N. W. Ayer & Son, Newspaper and Magazine Advertising Agents, Philadelphia. The 1898 edition has just arrived and been put in commission. Perhaps its chief attraction is that the figures are clear enough to be read across a room. It is, however, a most handsome specimen of the printer's art, while its business talk always interests business men. We are not surprised to learn that the edition has been doubled in recent years. Its price (25 cents) includes delivery by mail to any address in perfect condition.

Co-operation in Great Britain.

Official reports to the British government show that at the end of 1896 the 1,674 co-operative societies had 1,421,136 members, and conducted transactions amounting to £59,692,864. These societies had 26,873 persons employed in production and 37,703 persons in distribution. The societies had a capital of £21,587,364 and the profits were £6,254,108.

WASHINGTON REFUSING A DICTATORSHIP.

have pulled the stroke oar at New London, or pitched for the college nine.

The officers were conversing in a group. No one had as yet spoken the decisive word. Colonel Knowlton appealed to a French sergeant, an old soldier of former wars, and asked him to volunteer.

"No, no," said he. "I am ready to fight the British at any place and time, but I do not feel willing to go among them to be hung up like a dog."

Captain Hale joined the group of officers. He said to Colonel Knowlton:

"I will undertake it." Some of his best friends remonstrated. One of them, afterwards the famous Gen. William Hull, then a captain in Washington's army, has recorded Hale's reply to his own attempt to dissuade him:

"I think," said Hale, "I owe to my country the accomplishment of an object so important. I am fully sensible of the consequences of discovery and capture in such a situation. But for a year I have been attached to the army, and have not rendered any material service, while receiving compensation for which I make no return. I wish to be useful, and every kind of service necessary for the public good becomes honorable by being necessary."

He spoke, as General Hull remembered with earnestness and decision, as one who had considered the matter well, and had made up his mind.

Having received his instructions, he traveled fifty miles along the Sound as far as Norwalk, in Connecticut. One who saw him there made a very wise remark upon him, to the effect that he was "too good looking" to go as a spy. He could not deceive. "Some scrubby fellow ought to have gone." At Norwalk he assumed the disguise of a Dutch schoolmaster, putting on a suit of plain brown clothes and a round broad brimmed hat. He had no difficulty in crossing the Sound, since he bore an order from General Washington which placed at his disposal all the vessels belonging to congress. For several days everything appears to have gone well with him, and there is reason to believe that he passed through the entire British army without detection or even exciting suspicion.

Finding the British had crossed to New York, he followed them. He made his way back to Long Island, and nearly reached the point opposite Norwalk, where he had originally landed. Rendered, perhaps, too bold by success, he went into a well known and popular tavern, entered into conversation with the guests, and made himself very agreeable. The tradition is that he made himself too agreeable. A man present, suspecting or knowing that he was not the character he had assumed, quietly left the room, communicated his suspicions to the captain of a British boat anchored near, who dispatched a boat's crew to capture and bring on board the agreeable stranger. His true character was immediately revealed. Drawings of some of the British works, with notes in Latin, were found hidden in the soles of his shoes. Nor did he attempt to deceive his captors, and the English captain, lamenting, as he said, that "so fine a fellow had fallen into his power," sent him to New York in one of his boats, and with him the fatal proofs that he was a spy.

September 21st was the day on which he reached New York—the day of the great fire which laid one-third of the little city in ashes. From the time of his departure from General Washington's camp to that of his return to New York was about fourteen days. He was taken to General Howe's headquarters at the Beekman mansion, on the East River, near the corner of the present Fifty-first street and First avenue. It is a strange coincidence that this house to which he was brought to be tried as a spy was the very one from which Major Andre departed when he went to West Point. Tradition says that Captain Hale was examined in a greenhouse which then stood in the garden of the Beekman mansion.

Short was his trial, for he avowed at once his true character. The British general signed an order to his provost marshal directing him to receive into his custody the prisoner convicted as a spy, and to see him hanged by the neck "tomorrow morning at day-break."

Terrible things are reported of the manner in which this noble prisoner, this admirable gentleman and hero, was treated by his jailor and executioner. There are savages in every large army, and it is possible that this provost marshal was one of them. It is said that he refused him writing materials, and afterwards, when Captain Hale had been furnished them by others, destroyed before his face his last letters to his mother and to the young lady to whom he was engaged to be married. As those letters were never received, this statement may be true. The other alleged horrors of the execution it is safe to disregard, because we know that it was conducted in the usual form and in the presence of many spectators and a considerable body of troops. One fact shines out from the distracting confusion of that morning, which will be cherished to the latest posterity as a precious ingot of the moral treasures of the American people. When asked if he had anything to say, Captain Hale replied:

"I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country!"

The scene of his execution was probably an old graveyard in Chambers street, which was then called Barrack street. General Howe formally notified General Washington of the execution. In recent years, through the industry of investigators, the pathos and sublimity of these events have been in part revealed.

A few years ago a bronze statue of the young hero was unveiled in the New York City Hall Park. It is greatly to be regretted that our knowledge of this noble martyr is so slight; but we know enough to be sure that "I ONLY REGRET THAT I HAVE ONE LIFE TO LOSE," he merits the veneration of his countrymen.

Washington as a Dresser.

In his youth, and even during the revolution, Washington was a good deal of a dandy. He gave his tailors minute instructions as to the number of button holes desired on his coat front, and for the cutting of the waist. He had a weakness for blue and purple broadcloth, silver and lace trimmings and ruffled shirts. During his later years, however, Washington dressed more modestly, and always in good taste. In his personal appearance he was exceptionally clean and neat. He is described as tall and well proportioned and of commanding presence. His feet were unusually large. Though he wore false teeth and his large-featured face was colorless and pitted from smallpox, he was considered handsome. His carriage was always dignified and graceful. Prominent Englishmen, Frenchmen and Americans of that period who saw him frequently and under varying conditions, unite in declaring his deportment "easy, erect, and noble."

Washington was fond of a good time with congenial companions, as is shown by an expense account entry in his diary now preserved in the state department at the national capital, which reads: "To jamboree at Charlottesville, N. C., £13."

Washington and the Ladies.

A marked characteristic of Washington from his schoolboy days to his retirement from public life was his fondness for pretty girls and beautiful women. That he suffered not a little because of his experiences with the fair sex is indicated in a letter he wrote to a relative when he was about 60 years old. He acknowledges that approval of the premature engagement of his ward, it would "in a great measure avoid those little flirtations with other young ladies that may, by dividing the attention, contribute not a little to divide the affection."

NEWS OF ILLINOIS.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF LAST SIX DAYS.

Ex-Gov. Altgeld Plans a Love Feast—Chicago Police Have a Battle with Disreputable Students—Minor News of the State.

Altgeld Plans a Love Feast.

East St. Louis special: The Democratic state central committee, of which Judge Kramer is a member, has proposed a demonstration in this city for Feb. 21. The congressional, senatorial and county committees of all the counties of southern Illinois will be present, as well as the wheel horses of the party. It will be given out that besides a love feast such questions as the constitutionality of the late senatorial apportionment and the best means for attacking it will be considered. It is well known that behind all will be the strong arm of John P. Altgeld, who fears, according to the best authority, the rise of other leaders and purposes to win in the approaching nominations at all hazards. The Democratic splits in East St. Louis and St. Clair county will be patched up, if possible, and a general bid will be made for the Populist vote.

The Wheat Corner.

Chicago special: After a bitter and interesting struggle between the bulls and the bears, wheat has started another rise. It is expected that the May option will reach the dollar mark in a short time. It is now known that Leiter is disposing of large quantities of his enormous holdings of cash wheat. He sold one million bushels the first of the week, and it is positively stated that he has arranged for the shipment of 2,500,000 more for Liverpool by way of New York. It is understood that he received $1.17 a bushel for this wheat. It is generally conceded that there is a general shortage in all the foreign ports, and the long continued rains in Argentine have cut off the large surplus expected from that country.

Fought the Follies.

Chicago: Two thousand students of the Rush Medical college, Chicago College of Dental Surgery and Marquette school had a desperate fight last evening at Harrison and Wood streets with forty policemen. The students engaged in a snowball fight when a few policemen interfered. The students then joined forces and attacked the police, who were obliged to summon reinforcements. The students howled and jeered officers and pelted them with snow balls. The police made two arrests, but the prisoners were taken away from them by the students. Brandishing their clubs and revolvers the police finally chased the students inside the college doors. Twenty-five students were arrested. Two policemen and four students were badly injured in the fight.

State Items.

Kankakee: Daniel G. Lee, a Manteno farmer and stockraiser, has announced himself a candidate for representative against Speaker E. C. Curtis. Mr. Lee represents a faction of republicans bitterly opposed to the county organization. Unless conditions change materially, Curtis will be renominated at the county convention in March. Meanwhile his opponents are straining every nerve to organize.

Mrs. Alvina Becker committed suicide Wednesday afternoon at her home, 23 Bickerdike street, Chicago, by taking strychnine while despondent over her ill health.

A verdict for $500 damages was returned by a jury in Judge Gibbons' court in Chicago against the West Chicago Street railway for injuries sustained by Mrs. Elizabeth O. Calahan in an accident at the entrance to the old Van Buren street tunnel Feb. 15, 1896. Broken glass cut her body in several places, she said, and the shock to her system was the cause of a long period of illness.

The Drug Clerks' association of Illinois has elected the following officers: President, W. F. Eggers; vice president, H. Wilmarth; secretary, H. O. Jones.

Galesburg special: The grand jury's investigation of the chicken fight here proved a complete failure. Not an indictment was returned, and to the surprise of all the body adjourned when the officers were serving subpoenas for witnesses. The principals are known and the failure to indict creates indignation.

For beating a horse drawing a heavy load James Ryan was fined $5 by Justice Bradwell in Chicago.

Joliet: A convict who was being brought down from Chicago to the prison on the 12:08 Alton train Tuesday escaped from the officer who was with him, slipped one of his handcuffs, jumped from the train and made good his escape.

A BEAUTIFUL GIRL'S AFFLICTION.

From the Republican, Versailles, Ind.
The Tuckers of Versailles, Ind., like all fond parents, are completely wrapped up in their children. Their daughter, Lucy in particular, has given them much concern. She is fifteen, and from a strong, healthy girl, three years ago, had become weak and kept falling off in flesh, until she became a mere skeleton. She seemed to have no life at all. Her blood became impure and finally she became the victim of nervous prostration. Doctors did not help her. Most of the time she was confined to bed, was very nervous and irritable, and seemed on the verge of St. Vitus' dance.

Discussed Their Daughter's Case for Hours.

The doctor came and was surprised to see such an improvement. He told us to keep giving her the medicine. We gave her one pill after each meal until eight boxes had been used when she was well. She has not been sick since, and we have no fear of the old trouble returning. We think the cure almost miraculous."

MAKING GLOVES LAST.

Lining of Fine Oil Silk Is a Protection Against Perspiration.

A plan which adds greatly to the life of kid gloves has just been brought out in New York. A manufacturer of fashionable gloves, who occupies a little shop in Fifth avenue, has hit upon something that makes a glove perspiration proof. So many of his customers complained about ruining their gloves that he set to work to find something to eliminate this trouble. It occurred to him to line a pair of gloves with very thin oil silk, of which fine dress shields are made. He tried lining the inside of the palm and fingers and found that he had a glove which perspiration could not penetrate. His customers are enthusiastic over his discovery. They say he is a true philanthropist, or, what is better, a genuine humanitarian, or else he would never have given them the benefit of a discovery which is bound to be detrimental to his sales. The manufacturer's discovery will be welcomed by a large number of women of both large and small incomes in Chicago and elsewhere who have been unable to keep well gloved because of the annoying affliction mentioned.

LETTERS FROM THE RESTORED.

Many Wonderful Cures Recorded, Hoping that Others May Be Benefited.

The manufacturers of the remedy called "5 drops," which is guaranteed to cure rheumatism, neuralgia, asthma, and kindred ailments, have received thousands of letters regarding their medicine, many of which have been published. The following is a sample of these letters:

Oct. 10, 1897, 630 Main St., Springfield, Mass.

Dear Sirs—I can not express my gratitude to God, also to you, for the benefit I am receiving from "5 drops." I walk around my room without a crutch, which I have had to use a long time. I firmly believe that with faith, patience and perseverance, "5 drops" will get the better of all diseases. My doctor says it is indigestion has made me bloated so, but his medicine does not seem to reach my case. Respectfully yours, Mrs. A. Spring.

The producers of "5 Drops," who are the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., 167-169 Dearborn street, Chicago, have decided to continue for another 30 days an offer which they made some weeks ago, namely, to send a sample bottle of "5 Drops," prepaid, for 25 cents. They state that this is done as they know even a sample bottle will convince one of the value of their remedy. Also, large bottle, 300 doses, for $1.00, and for the next thirty days, three bottles for $2.50.

This Sounds Like Boston.

"Why don't you read to me instead of keeping the papers all to yourself in gloomy silence?" said Mrs. Snaggs to her husband. "Very well, my dear," replied Mr. Snaggs, who always strove to please. "I'll read you this article on 'Manners in Congress.'" "Thank you, but I do not care for purely speculative disquisitions."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

GENERAL WASHINGTON

wanted a man. It was in September, 1776, at the city of New York, a few days after the battle of Long Island. The swift and deep East River flowed between the two hostile armies, and General Washington had as yet no system established for getting information of the enemy's movements and intentions. He never needed such information so much as at that crisis.

What would General Howe do next? If he crossed at Hell Gate, the American army, too small in numbers, and defeated the week before, might be caught on Manhattan Island as in a trap, and the issue of the contest might be made to depend upon a single battle; for in such circumstances defeat would involve the capture of the whole army. And yet General Washington was compelled to confess:

"We can not learn, nor have we been able to procure the least information of late."

Therefore he wanted a man. He wanted an intelligent man, cool-headed, skillful, brave, to cross the East River to Long Island, enter the enemy's camp, and get information as to his strength and intentions. He went to Colonel Knowlton, commanding a remarkably efficient regiment from Connecticut, and requested him to ascertain if this man—so sore needed could be found in his command. Colonel Knowlton called his officers together, stated the wishes of General Washington, and, without urging the enterprise upon any individual, left the matter to their reflections.

Captain Nathan Hale, a brilliant youth of 21, recently graduated from Yale college, was one of those who reflected upon the subject. He soon reached a conclusion. He was of the very flower of the young men of New England, and one of the best of the younger soldiers of the patriot army. He had been educated for the ministry, and his motive for adopting for a time the profession of arms was purely patriotic. This we know from the familiar records of his life at the time when the call to arms was first heard.

In addition to his other gifts and graces, he was handsome, vigorous and athletic, all in an extraordinary degree. If he had lived in our day he might

Mrs. Almira Paine is Dead.

Mrs. Almira Paine, mother of C. O. Winter of Barrington, died at Whitehall, Ill., on February 12th, and the remains were brought to Barrington and laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery on Tuesday. Rev. T. E. Ream, who officiated at the funeral services, voiced the sentiments of all who had the pleasure of Mrs. Paine's acquaintance when he said:

"MRS. ALMIRA PAINE CALLED BY THE ANGEL OF DEATH.

"Mrs. Almira Paine was born at Campton, in the State of New Hampshire, on May 31, 1816, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Vidder, of Whitehall, Ill., on February 12, 1898, being 81 years 8 months and 12 days of age.

"In the year of 1855 she came to the State of Illinois, and has resided in the vicinity of Barrington ever since, where she made a great many warm and loving friends who can never forget her beautiful christian life.

"Of her immediate family and relatives Mrs. Paine leaves two sons, C. O. Winter, a well known citizen of this place, and Edwin Winter, a prominent railroad official of St. Paul, Minn.; and two daughters, Mrs. Gates of Evanston and Mrs. Vidder, of Whitehall, Ill., besides many other relatives near to her. All these sorrow because of her departure, but rejoice also because of a blessed memory of her life; but not only her own family and near relatives miss the smiling face and christian voice, but all who knew her feel that a very dear friend has gone from their midst. Mrs. Paine was a true, sympathetic, christian, of a happy and loving disposition. She loved and encouraged and assisted all things that were good."
