It seems to us that no village should let July 4th go by, this year without some sort of a celebration. We are in the midst of a war for liberty, against oppression and cruelty, with our navy winning at every engagement, and it is just the time to get up a good rousing old-fashioned celebration. Everyone is filled with patriotism these days, and want something of this kind to let off steam. Someone start the ball a rollin' in Palatine and let us celebrate in the good old way—foot races, horse races, base ball, games of various kinds, and a grand display of fireworks in the evening. Let the band play and the eagle scream in Palatine on July 4th.

DELEGATES TO THE CONVENTIONS.

The following candidates are to be voted on as delegates to the Republican conventions next Tuesday.

State convention—W. J. Filbert, delegate and W. E. Daniels alternate. County convention—Herman Dierker, H. J. Stroker and C. E. Julian delegates, and I. O. Clay, H. P. K. Bicknase and Henry Schroeder, alternates.

The judges of election are M. Reynolds, John Allard, Alfred Hanns. Clerks: Ira W. Frye and A. G. Smith.

Memorial Day Observed.

Palatine people observed Memorial Day in an especially interesting and patriotic manner last Monday afternoon. The business portion of the town was resplendent with bunting and flags. When the school children marched into the church, headed by the Palatine Military band, they found seats reserved for them, the rest of the edifice being filled. After the band played a memorial march Rev. J. C. Butcher offered prayer, followed by a song by the entire audience, assisted by the church orchestra. Mr. Butcher next presented the church with two silk and one bunting flag in behalf of the citizens which were accepted by F. J. Filbert. After a song by the large choir the chairman, Mr. Baldwin introduced the speaker, Rev. W. H. Smith of Genoa, who gave a thrilling and patriotic address suitable to the occasion. His oration was interspersed with short stories and interesting anecdotes. Mr. Smith is thoroughly in sympathy with the present attitude of our country in regard to Cuba and Spain. He was frequently interrupted by the applause of the audience. The church was neatly decorated with the national colors, with portraits of the past and present heroes adorning the walls. Flowers were in profusion. The procession then formed in line to march to the cemetery. The band led, followed by the old veterans, and lastly came the pupils from the public school carrying flags and flowers, the whole making a very imposing procession as it wended its way to the resting place of the nation's dead. The usual ceremonies were gone through with at the cemetery and after the graves at the German cemetery had been decorated the procession marched to the church where it broke ranks. Taken altogether it was one of the best Memorial Days that our village has ever observed. The committees can feel proud of their efforts.

The committees on Memorial Day met in the church parlors Thursday night to make their reports. The Treasurer's report showed a balance of about $15 in the treasury. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Arps of the decorating committee for her work. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. R. Baldwin, President; C. E. Julian; Vice President; Mildred Hicks, Secretary; J. W. Thurston, Treasurer.

TOPICS OF TODAY

HUMOR OF THE WAR.

As we get a clearer view of the alleged Anglo-American alliance, it is not entirely objectionable. A Russian paper, edited by the czar, tells us all about it. He says that England has for ten years stood alone in Europe with Russia, France and Germany gradually closing in on her.

Long ago England saw what was coming and J. Bull turned to Uncle Sam. But he found that the latter could give him no countenance as an ally. So J. Bull's fit of despair continued until the beginning of the Hispano-American war.

UNCLE SAM'S COMING TASK.

There is a widespread tendency in Europe to borrow trouble over what the United States is going to do, with the Spanish islands when it gets them. Great Britain is as much exercised over this matter as any of the rest of the European powers.

RUSH THE MANILA EXPEDITION.

General Merritt is doing all he can to get the second body of troops started for Manila, but no date has been set for their departure, yet the Monterey, that powerful coast defense vessel which is to be sent to the Philippines, is "expected to leave" about the end of the week.

OUR COLLEGE BOYS AND GIRLS.

The regular season is at hand when the hard-working paragon opens his rapid-fire batteries upon the "sweet girl graduate" and the "college boy philosopher." These two subjects have become as much a necessary part of his trade as are the talkative barber and the irascible mother-in-law.

BETTER TIMES.

The influence of the tremendous war expenditures of the government, it is complained, is not felt as yet by the working classes of the country. This is offered as an explanation of the fact that the retail trade fails to exhibit the life which is supposed to be inseparable from war times.

DEWEY IN LUCK.

Admiral Dewey has been made the recipient of a great honor. In due course of time he will receive a copy of engrossed resolutions announcing that he has been elected an honorary member of the Cook County Democracy.

CASUALTIES.

Valparaiso, Ind.—A child of George Coplin, of Hebron, was scalded to death. Portland, Ind.—Mrs. Thomas Gaunt was thrown from a wagon and her neck was broken. Pittsburg, Pa.—The Henderson-Johnston's company's storage warehouse was destroyed by fire. The loss was $200,000.

FOREIGN.

London—Sir Lyon Playfair, baronet, died in this city. He was 70 years old. London—In 1888 the deposits of the Irish savings banks were $15,000,000. In 1898 the amount has risen to $31,165,000. Pekin—Prince Kung, president of the council of state, is dead.

CRIME.

Creston, Ia.—Robert Woods struck George Munger over the head with a neck yoke, fatally injuring him. Joliet, Ill.—Dr. Fred Robinson shot himself through the forehead. Temporary insanity. Terre Haute, Ind.—S. J. Slade was brought here on a charge of bigamy. He admits his guilt.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Anderson, Ind.—The American wire-nail plant and the Anderson package plant have resumed. Peoria, Ill.—The sugar works' strike has been settled. The old superintendent has been discharged. Denver, Col.—Biddle Reeves, of the firm of Reeves & Clewes, real estate brokers, was found dead in his room. Apoplexy caused his death.

Hair Dressing Was Important. They paid much attention to the hair in the England of the dying sixteenth century. Thus we find this passage in Green's "Quip for an Upstart Courier": "Then comes he out with his fustian eloquence, and making a low conge, saith: 'Sir, will you have your worship's hair cut after the Italian manner, short and round, and then frount with the curling yrons, to make it look like a half moon in a mist, or like a Spanyard, long at the eares, and curled like to the two endes of an olde cast periweg? Or will you be Frenchified with a love-lock down to your shoulder, wherein you may wear your mistress favour?'"—Boston Journal.

Big Money for Patents. A patent for fastening kid gloves has yielded a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars for its fortunate owner, and the inventor of a collar clasp enjoys $20,000 royalty a year as the reward for his endeavor. A new kind of sleeve button has made $50,000 in five years for its patentee, and the simple twisting of safety pins in such a way that there is no danger of the point sticking in the child promises to enrich its owner beyond any of his early dreams of wealth.

Mystery of a Printer's Death.

A coroner's jury at Chicago was unable to determine whether Harry G. Purdy, a printer, living at Morgan Park, had committed suicide or been poisoned. Mrs. Atwater, his sister, said that he left home May 21 and returned Tuesday in a sick and dazed condition. He said: "I guess the boys have done me up this time," adding that he had slept the night before in Oakwoods cemetery.

HISTORY OF THE WAR.

Important Events Reviewed and Condensed Into Reliable Form for Our Readers.

Tuesday, May 24.

Two hundred and eight Illinois national militiamen left Chicago for Key West to join Sampson's fleet.—B. M. Shaffner was appointed by Governor Tanner to command the Illinois naval militia. His title is captain. He was removed from the same position by Governor Altgeld.—It was reported by cable that the German consul at Manila had tried to break the American blockade for the purpose of landing provisions. He threatened to employ the two German cruisers there against the Americans if necessary in carrying out his plan. Admiral Dewey declared that he would fire on the cruisers if they attempted to break the blockade. The German consul then abandoned his project.—The navy department received a cable message from Admiral Dewey announcing a serious state of affairs in Manila as a result of the scarcity of food. Foreign subjects are leaving the place as riots are feared.—The battleship Oregon arrived at Jupiter, Fla.—Reports received at the navy department indicated the Spanish fleet is effectually bottled up at Santiago.—The Fourth Regiment Illinois volunteers was ordered to leave Camp Tanner for Tampa.—There are persistent rumors in London that the American squadron have destroyed the Spanish Cape Verde fleet. Officials in Washington say no word has been received on the subject.—Foreign residents of Manila flee to Cavite to gain protection of the American fleet. Fears of an outbreak on the part of the Spanish soldiers.—Cabinet officials decide that Gen. Merritt for the present shall not disturb the existing form of government in the Philippines.—Starvation and suffering in Cuba reach an alarming state and people are dying by hundreds.—Gen. Blanco concentrates all his forces in the coast cities and prepares for defense against American attack.—Senor Pulgarciver informs Madrid chamber of deputies that Spain's finances are in a satisfactory condition. The Rothschilds of London have made another loan to the Spanish government.—Canton (O.) ministers petition Secretary Alger to prohibit bars in the soldiers' camps.

The isolation of Cuba and Puerto Rico from Spain is now believed to be complete. Capt. Goodrich of the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis telegraphed the navy department that he had succeeded in cutting the cables at Santiago de Cuba and at San Juan de Puerto Rico. His operations were conducted before Santiago on Wednesday last, and from that moment Blanco's only means of communication with Madrid was through the Puerto Rico line. Yesterday Capt. Goodrich succeeded in effectually closing this channel, and at the same time putting an end to all connection between the two colonies and their sovereign.

The following troops are reported ready for duty at Camp Alger: First New Jersey volunteer infantry, Second Ohio volunteer infantry, Sixty-fifth New York volunteer infantry, Sixth Illinois volunteer infantry, Sixth Massachusetts volunteer infantry, Eighth Ohio volunteer infantry, Thirteenth Pennsylvania volunteer infantry, Twelfth Pennsylvania volunteer infantry, Eighth Pennsylvania volunteer infantry, One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Indiana volunteer infantry, Sixth Pennsylvania volunteer infantry, Ninth Ohio volunteer infantry, two troops of New York cavalry.

President McKinley issued the following proclamation calling for 75,000 more volunteers: "Whereas, An act of congress was approved on the 25th day of April, 1898, entitled 'An act declaring that war exists between the United States of America and the Kingdom of Spain'; and, Whereas, by an act of congress, entitled, 'An act to provide for temporarily increasing the military establishment of the United States in time of war and for other purposes,' approved April 22, 1898, the president is authorized, in order to raise a volunteer army, to issue his proclamation calling for volunteers to serve in the army of the United States. Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, by virtue of the power vested in me by the constitution and the laws and deeming sufficient occasion to exist, have thought fit to call forth and hereby do call forth, volunteers to the aggregate number of 75,000 in addition to the volunteers called forth by my proclamation of the 23d day of April, in the present year; the same to be apportioned, as far as practicable, among the several states and territories and the District of Columbia, according to population, and to serve for two years unless sooner discharged. The proportion of each arm and the details of enlistment and organization will be made known through the war department. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington this 25th day of May, in the year of our Lord, 1898, and of the independence of the United States, the 122d." Volunteers asked for in second call: Illinois, 4,828; Pennsylvania, 6,462; New York, 7,500; Massachusetts, 2,194; Alabama, 1,500; Arkansas, 1,215; California, 1,942; Colorado, 785; Connecticut, 885; Delaware, 189; Florida, 460; Georgia, 1,905; Idaho, 140; Indiana, 2,582; Iowa, 2,264; Kansas, 1,672; Kentucky, 2,045; Louisiana, 1,164; Maine, 763; Maryland, 1,166; Michigan, 2,622; Minnesota, 1,724; Mississippi, 1,295; Missouri, 3,246; Montana, 314; Nebraska, 1,447; Nevada, 83; New Hampshire, 451; New Jersey, 1,773; North Carolina, 1,551; North Dakota, 275; Ohio, 4,348; Oregon, 598; Rhode Island, 426; South Dakota, 1,110; South Carolina, 498; Tennessee, 1,837; Texas, 2,538; Utah, 255; Vermont, 330; Virginia, 1,673; Washington, 706; West Virginia, 834; Wisconsin, 1,965; Wyoming, 138; Arizona, 108; District of Columbia, 770; New Mexico, 204; Oklahoma, 84.

A courier direct from Brigadier General Rafael de Cardenas, commander of the insurgent forces in Havana province, arrived at Key West. He reports that there has been no difficulty in maintaining communication between the coast and the interior.—General Cardenas has been enrolling men at the rate of twenty per day, most of them coming from Havana city. The insurgent forces in that province now number 3,000, better mounted and armed than ever before. They move almost up to the outskirts of the city.—According to the courier the Spaniards have massed their troops in the cities and on the coast, abandoning offensive operations against the Cubans.—The insurgents are pinched for food, but will wait eagerly for the order to co-operate with the United States army in a movement against the Spanish troops.—Admiral Cervera is bottled up in Santiago de Cuba Bay. It was he who was called the Napoleon of strategy and the Nelson of the sea. For many days he eluded the guns of Sampson, and street corner strategists were loud in his praise. Then this wonderful Cervera made a "dash" for Santiago de Cuba Bay. He got into it safely without being blown up by his own torpedoes. On this tremendous victory the Spanish crown telegraphed its congratulations. Cervera's next great feat was to laugh on the other side of his mouth—a feat which, it is believed, he is yet performing and which he may continue to perform indefinitely. For getting into Santiago de Cuba Bay is one thing. Getting out of it is another. Notably: The bay is six miles long and some two miles wide. It has a very narrow neck, this bottle of Cervera's. And the opening or channel is not wide enough to admit the passage of more than one ship at a time. This terrible Spanish squadron, which will probably go down in history with a fame equal to or exceeding that of King Philip's armada, is apparently doomed. Three eras are in prospect for it. It will be sunk by the Spaniards, it will be destroyed by the Americans, or it will be captured and added to the United States navy. Whatever fate awaits it its uses for Spain are at an end. Admiral Cervera in his bottle has not been congratulated by the Spanish crown on his prospects of getting out. Or if he has he has declined to communicate the fact to the daily press. Now, the town of Santiago de Cuba is cut off from the rest of Cuba. It has no railroads. It is walled in by high hills. Back of it Garcia is burning up its suburbs. In front, American warships stripped for action. In the bay Admiral Cervera "bottled up!"

Thursday, May 27.

Word comes from Key West that the bombardment of Havana is expected to take place at any moment.—After a long equip at a personal expense of $75,000 a light battery of mountain artillery.—A suspicion was expressed at Key West and elsewhere that Admiral Cervera's squadron had left Santiago de Cuba before the arrival of Commodore Schley.—The Spanish government ordered the commanders at all ports to take charge of all vessels of 1,000 tons and over to be used as auxiliary cruisers.—News reached Key West that last Tuesday the cruiser Marblehead delivered 30,000 rounds of ammunition to the insurgents near Cienfuegos and Wednesday destroyed four Spanish block-houses.

Definite news of the American squadron operating in Cuban waters was received this afternoon fully confirming the general situation. Commodore Schley is off Santiago de Cuba, and definite information as to the exact situation in so far as it affects Admiral Cervera's squadron expected tomorrow.—Rear Admiral Sampson is in a position to proceed quickly to the assistance of Commodore Schley with any or all of his ships on receipt of definite word from the Commodore, and at the same time he remains within striking distance of Havana.—If, however, Commodore Schley reports positively that Admiral Cervera is bottled up at Santiago de Cuba, the naval view is that he will be permitted to finish the business at that point with the ships now under his direct command.—Admiral Sampson has some of his ships in the Bahama channel. His known purpose is to intercept the Spanish fleet if it attempts to reach Havana.

Business is at a standstill in Havana. Few mercantile transactions are effected. Everybody avoids transactions, and it is publicly announced that all operations will be considered void. Most of the business houses on Obispo street, the main business street of the city, are closing up. There is talk that some have been nominally transferred from their present owners, who are Spaniards, to Cubans and foreign individuals to avoid confiscation, which is generally expected.—Spaniards who have property are willing that Spain should accede to the demands of the United States, but the lower classes, who are daily instigated by Blanco, are fully prepared to meet all emergencies, and, in fact, are anxious that the American invasion should begin.—Havana has been fortified to meet a land attack, and all the cavalry forces are concentrated in Havana province, chiefly in the northern part.—Supplies are getting scarce, so much so that "Lavana," the largest and best wholesale grocery, cannot fill large orders. Only small ones have prompt attention at advanced prices. The prices of goods are subject to hourly raises. Most articles have advanced in prices from 150 to 300 per cent. Even well-to-do people are deprived of some of the necessities of life.—As for the poor, they are deprived of everything and are in the same boat with the concentrados.—The general impression is that the ex-drid that thirty American warships are off Cardenas.—Three Spanish agents try to blow up the new mortar battery at Key West, and when they are challenged fire on the guard and escape.—Two military balloons purchased in France arrived. They are to be used by the flying squadron for making captive ascensions from warships.—The United States gunboat Zafre reached Hongkong from Manila, reporting all well on American fleet.—The Astor battery of light artillery was assigned to service in the Philippine Islands.—Roosevelt's regiment of Rough Riders received orders to report as soon as possible to General Shafter at Tampa.—President McKinley nominated twenty-two army officers as follows:

To be Brigadier Generals—Colonel Robert H. Hall, Fourth United States Infantry—eight brigadier generals for the victory. Colonel Edwin W. Sumner, Seventh United States Cavalry. Colonel Peter C. Hains, corps of engineers, Colonel George L. Gillespie, corps of engineers, Colonel Marcus P. Miller, Third United States Artillery, Colonel Jacob Kline, Twenty-first United States Infantry, Lieutenant Colonel Oswald H. Ernest, corps of engineers, Lieutenant Colonel Loyd Wheaton, Twentieth United States Infantry, Lieutenant Colonel Arthur MacArthur, assistant adjutant general, Lieutenant Colonel Henry C. Hasbrouck, Fourth United States Artillery, Lieutenant Colonel John C. Gilmore, assistant adjutant general, Lieutenant Colonel Wallace F. Randolph, Third United States Artillery, Major Joseph P. Sanger, inspector general, Frederick D. Grant of New York, One Hundred and Forty-fourth New York Volunteer Infantry, Harrison Gray Otis of California, Henry M. Durfield of Michigan, Charles King of Wisconsin, Lucius F. Hubbard of Minnesota, George A. Garretson of Ohio, William W. Gordon of Georgia, John A. Wiley of Pennsylvania, William A. Bancroft of Massachusetts, William J. McKee of Indiana, Francis V. Greene of Seventy-first New York Volunteer Infantry, Charles Fitz-Simons of Illinois, Joseph K. Hudson of Kansas, James Rush Lincoln of Iowa, Colonel Michael V. Sheridan, U. S. A., assistant adjutant general.—Other army nominations were: Signal Corps—To be captains: John B. Inman of Illinois, George W. Butler of Maine, Thomas F. Clark of Massachusetts, First Lieutenant Gustav W. Stephens, Sixth United States Artillery; Frank Lyman, Jr., of Iowa, George R. Gyger of Ohio, Frank L. Martin

Saturday, May 28.

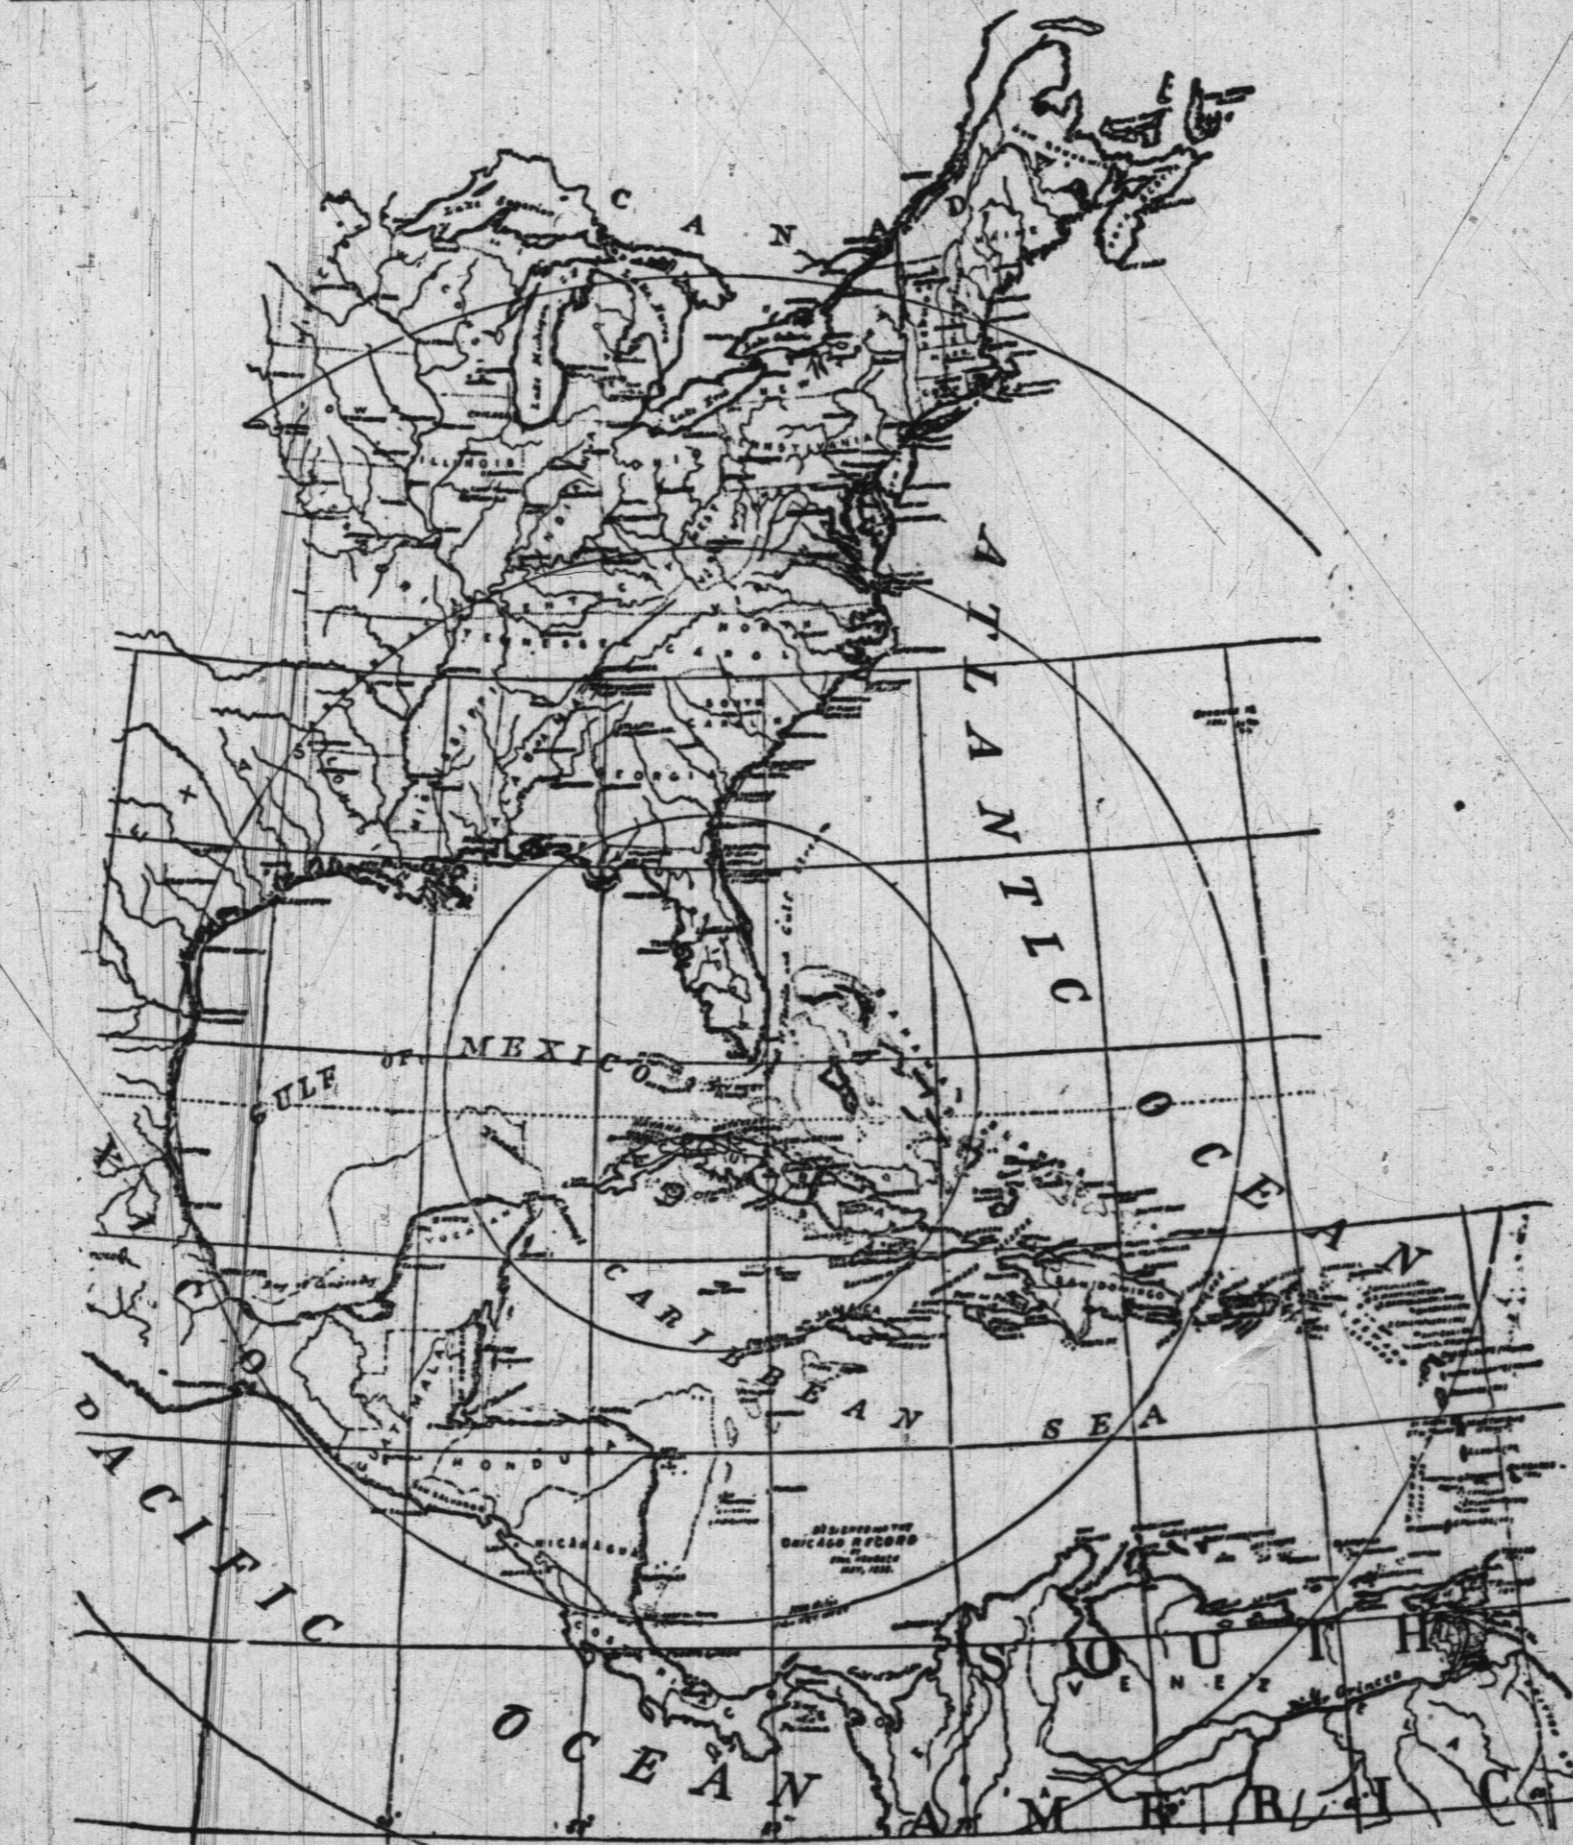

The Seventh regiment Illinois volunteers (of Chicago) left Camp Tanner for Camp Dunn Loring, Virginia. The departure of the First cavalry Illinois volunteers was delayed until Monday.—The Montana troops for service in the Philippines reached San Francisco and the South Dakota troops started from Sioux Falls.—The president appointed ex-Senator Butler of South Carolina major general of volunteers, the nomination being confirmed by the senate. James R. Wadley of Texas, Nelson Cole of Missouri, and William C. Oates of Alabama were nominated brigadier generals.—President McKinley, Secretary Alger and General Miles reviewed the Second army corps at Camp Alger, Falls Church, Va.—The second detachment of the Illinois naval militia, including 215 officers and men from Chicago, Aurora, Quincy and Alton, left for Key West.—It was reported from Madrid the Cadiz fleet had sailed, destination unknown.—Up to the hour of closing the navy department still believed Cervera's fleet was at Santiago.

Sunday, May 29.

Reported in Washington that orders have been issued for Gen. Shafter to embark the regular soldiers and some of the volunteers now at Tampa on transport ships. Admiral Sampson is waiting at Key West to convoy the troops, but it is not known whether they will be landed at Puerto Rico or Santiago.—It was announced by the navy department this morning that definite word had been received from Commodore Schley that Cervera's squadron is in Santiago harbor.—Blanco cables that twelve American warships off Santiago Saturday have disappeared, going westerly.—Preparations for dispatching the second expedition to Manila are being hurried forward at San Francisco.—Authorities at Washington have little doubt that Cervera is at Santiago, and it is believed the only way he can be overcome is by a siege.—Cruiser Columbia is sent to dry dock because of an injury received in a collision with a British steamer, which was sunk.—Col. Roosevelt's rough riders start from San Antonio, Texas, to Tampa.—The First Illinois cavalry goes to Chickamauga and leaves Camp Tanner vacant.

Monday, May 30.

Gen. Miles left Washington for Tampa, accompanied by his staff of thirty-four persons.—It is reported in Washington that troops are to be sent at once from gulf ports to invade Cuba.—Eight regiments now at Chickamauga—the Third Illinois, First Ohio cavalry, Second Nebraska, 157th Indiana, Second and Sixty-ninth New York, First District of Columbia and Fifth Maryland—are under orders to proceed to Tampa as soon as possible.—All doubt seems to have been dispelled as to the imprisonment of Admiral Cervera's fleet in the harbor at Santiago. It is believed he is now completely at the mercy of the Americans.—British steamer Restormel is captured by the St. Paul while trying to enter Santiago harbor with cargo of coal intended for the fleet of Admiral Cervera. The captain of the English ship admitted that the cargo was for the Cape Verde fleet now in Santiago. The Britisher and all hands were towed into Key West with the "Union Jack" at half-mast. She will not be released, as were former captured vessels flying the British flag. Cardenas harbor has been completely closed by the Spaniards since the attack of the Winslow and other American torpedo boats. This fact was demonstrated by the attempt of the English steamship Myrtilene to enter the port to take on a cargo of sugar. The Myrtilene had begun to take on cargo when war was declared, and she was ordered out by the American gunboat Machias. The steamer's owners claimed that under the blockade proclamation she was entitled to thirty days to load, and Secretary of the Navy Long gave the ship permission to return and complete her cargo. She found, however, that the harbor was filled with sunken obstructions and she could not get in.—Madrid cable: The papers continue to talk of the possibilities of peace.—El Globo publishes an article, supposed to be inspired by Moret, the late minister of the colonies, advocating peace, which has attracted great attention, but the discussions show as yet nothing tangible.—Madrid—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Manila dated Thursday last, May 24, says the town of St. Thomas is in a state of insurrection. The rebels, it is added, have burned a number of houses and have murdered the commander of the volunteers, a priest and other Spaniards.

Garcia's officers confer with Secretary Alger and Gen. Miles and tell of Cuba's insurgent forces.—States readily respond to the second call for volunteers.—Sixth Illinois troops leave Camp Tanner for the south.—The Fourth infantry regiment, Illinois volunteers, Colonel Casimer Andel commanding, left Camp Tanner for Tampa, Fla.—President McKinley accepted the offer of John Jacob Astor to organize and isting condition of affairs cannot last long without an uprising of the lower classes, as the government compels the troops to be supplied first, exhausting the food supply rapidly.—If the people had a chance to leave fully 75 per cent of the population of Havana would take advantage of it. Many families are trying to get to the coast, as they have been told that the blockading American ships will take them off.

Letter from Tampa says 10,000 men have sailed for Cuba and ere this have effected a junction with the insurgents.—Senator Gorman, in a speech on the war revenue bill, denounces the recent decision of the Supreme Court on the income-tax law.—Government charters the China and Colon, capacity 2,500 men, for the second relief expedition to Manila.—Gen. Blanco telegraphs to Madrid that Cervera's squadron is at Santiago, but definite information has not reached Washington. It is also reported to Ma-

That "Navy For Defense."

We have the most distinguished naval commander of this time, Admiral Dewey. We have also the most distinguished writer on sea fighting and naval warfare, Captain A. T. Mahan. In Harper's Monthly Captain Mahan punctures gloriously that favorite bubble of certain editors and statesmen in this country, a "navy for defense only." It is a fine phrase politically, but will not survive the ordeal of a definition.

The captain agrees with all thinking Americans that the true policy for our country is not the aggressive but the peaceable one. But even the peace advocates are agreed that we should protect our coasts. For this, they say, let us have a navy only large enough for defense. This would mean in the military sense a "navy that can only await attack and defend its own, leaving the enemy at rest as regards his own interests and at liberty to choose his own time and manner of fighting." On this style of national defense Captain Mahan's graphic comment is, "A man's defense against a snake if cornered, if he must have to do it with, is not to protect himself, but to kill the snake."

It will be right enough if we extend the meaning of the word defense in the political sense to include those large interests which are inextricably intertwined now with the existence of our Republic, such as our interest in keeping European nations from getting control of any more territory in the western hemisphere or from obtaining control of the isthmian canal. This interpretation of the needs of our defenses Mahan accepts, but this means the permanent maintenance of a powerful up to date navy. The logic of events seems to be forcing this upon us. Captain Mahan says:

It is a thoroughly accepted principle that mere defensive warfare means military ruin and therefore national disaster. It is vain to maintain a military or naval force whose power is not equal to assuming the offensive soon or late, which cannot first or last go out, assail the enemy and hurt him in his vital interests.

About Concentration.

The lively young editor of the New York Evening Journal quotes Lord Rosebery's remarks on the enormous power of mental concentration possessed by Gladstone. Rosebery said, "There never was another man in the world who at any given moment and on any given subject could devote every resource of his intellect without the restriction of a single nerve to the immediate purpose of that subject."

Then The Evening Journal editorial writer adds out of his own head this fatherly advice:

Get that into your heads, young men. Blow the cigarette smoke out of your brains, fix your feeble gray matter on what you have to do and keep it there. Accustom yourselves to continuous mental effort in one direction, and you may make a high class railroad conductor if not a Gladstone.

Concentration is the great thing in this world, the very greatest thing except genius, and the marvelous mental salad called genius almost always has concentration for its main ingredient.

Concentration! Remember the word. Strive for the quality.

A London paper, which is almost the only exception to those that express sympathy with us, says Europe believes that America is only trying her strength on Spain, trying it on a dog, as it were, and if she succeeds in downing the dog, will go on in the road of aggression, attack the outlying property of other powers and take possession of it. Doubtless Spain has spread this story, but it shows how little the powers of Europe understand us. We stand by the Monroe doctrine as the Englishman stands by the British constitution. The historic message of President Monroe in 1823 makes distinctly the statement that we shall not meddle with the territory already possessed by European nations in the western hemisphere, but we shall consider it an act of hostility to us if they try to get any more. We do not want any more territory merely for the sake of enlarging our borders. The land hunger of the overcrowded nations of Europe we know not.

It is a satisfaction to just people generally that Helen Gould is prosecuting with vigor the perjurer who instigated the suit of Sarah Ann Angell against the Gould estate on the ground that Sarah Ann was Jay's first wife. If examples were made of a few more of the blackmailers and adventurers that swarm around the rich, it would be for the good of the country.

The Jews Remember!

Hebrew newspapers in America are taking warm interest in the war with Spain and urging the young men of their race to volunteer and fight for the United States. Some of the wealthy Jews have given money to the government to prosecute the war. Hebrew citizens of the United States are always patriotic. They know better than any other people what it is to be persecuted and oppressed, and they appreciate a country where all citizens are free to pursue their callings as they choose. But at present they are unusually enthusiastic for the success of the United States arms. A writer in The Jewish Press says his people in America "pray daily in the sacred language of the prophets for the victorious progress of Uncle Sam, whose disinterested intervention on behalf of freedom and civilization will add a glorious page to history."

The Jews all over the country hope and pray and expect that the present war will result in the downfall of Spain. Why? The Hebrew race does not forget. Four hundred years ago in Spain their people were subjected to the bloodiest persecution that even the Jew had ever known. The writer in The Jewish Press speaks of the bondage in Egypt and adds, "But what is the Egyptian tyrant in comparison with the Spanish inquisitors who roasted us alive for the crime of being born of Jewish parents, who burned our homes and finally exiled us in the name of Christianity, which we have given to them, in the name of the meek Nazarene, the great peasant teacher, who was only a Jew?" The Jewish Gazette says that of the 300,000 persons put to death by the Spaniards then "perhaps the greatest part of the victims were Jews."

These things happened 400 years ago, yet the remembrance lives and burns in the breasts of the descendants of those who suffered. It should be a warning to any nation against doing injustice. The Jewish Gazette is glad that the United States has opened a war on "that horrid of religious intolerance and bloodthirsty persecution which is known as the kingdom of Spain." It says:

It is sinful to think of revenge, but the Jewish people cannot help remembering Spain. At last this country is at war with Spain! The hour of Spain's end has struck, and its awful career of brutality is nearing an end. It is fitting, indeed, that to this glorious land of liberty should be assigned the duty of punishing that iniquitous land of tyranny, cruelty and bigotry. May the punishment be terrible, for it has been deserved! And in this hour, when freemen are shouldering muskets to fight in a holy cause, what is the duty of our brethren? Can they forget the martyrs of the inquisition? Can they forget the rack, the wheel, the auto da fe, the stake and the flame? Can they forget the holy men and women, the flower of our race, who died with "Shema Israel" on their lips? Can they forget those who died for God and Judaism? Can they forget the expulsion when 50,000 perished in one day? No! No! "They have forgotten to forget—they have forgotten to forget!"

We Are Hustlers.

The editor of The Century mentions rather disapprovingly the everlasting hurry and action of all phases of American life. Society in our large cities is one gallop the season through, without breathing space for anybody who is unfortunate to be caught in its whirl. The spirit of our national life is that of one who is hurrying to catch a train, whether we are engaged in business or pleasure. The Century is not altogether right in deprecating this spirit of hustle. We have not much time for repose, but do we need it? Our climate, our bright electric atmosphere, is developing a new race. The American can do in one day what it takes old world people two and sometimes three to accomplish. We think quickly; we act quickly. What other nation on the face of the earth without any standing army could have got ready for war so rapidly as we did? Nevertheless The Century is quite correct in calling attention to the real home life that exists in many American families in an inner circle, beyond the wear and tear and glare of the "American fortissimo."

Life in our villages is probably richer, healthier and more interesting than it was a generation ago, and a reaction from this living in the street, as it were, toward the simpler joys of home is sure to come. Moreover, in the heart of every great city there are men and women who by sheer force of character are realizing an ideal of repose, holding their thresholds against the engulfing storms of the outer world. The sensational newspaper comes not near them, and the society reporter does not wait at the door for the names of their dinner guests. They bear a share in the good works of the day, but they do it only by withdrawing from the senseless demands of a fashionable life. And they are all the better prepared for public and family duties by rigidly guarding for themselves a little domain of leisure. It is in such secluded hours, rescued from the clash of the world, that life grows deep and strong, in moments of meditation or in communion with loyal friends, good literature and inspiring music.

One of the most pleasing sights in this Union just now is an American millionaire who is a robust patriot and all round manly man and not a dude and a milk and water traitor.

Abolishing Caste In America.

There is a jolly possibility in the plan suggested by Mr. Charles Ferguson in The North American Review, a plan by which the writer thinks he could do away with our shoddy social aristocracy in America and make the people of our republic really equal in opportunity as the Declaration of Independence presupposes them to be.

Mr. Ferguson's idea is clothed in dignified language, as becomes a philosopher, and it is a little hazy in its direct application, but he who will may pick up the plan and apply it in his mind to his acquaintances, if not to himself, and see how it looks. Mr. Ferguson's idea is "voluntary servitude" for the rich. He says it is not wealth which directly is responsible for the caste system in America, but the power which wealth gives to its possessors to own those who have it not. He supposes the case of our being all rich, every mother's son and daughter of us. Suppose we all had plenty of money, who would be cooks and bootblacks? Suppose we all had our carriages, who would be our coachmen? We should all have to do our own cooking, black our own boots and take care of our own horses. We should be on exactly the same social footing, even as the ancestors of our American aristocracy were, even as many well to do farm families are today.

Mr. Ferguson proposes in his fine language, therefore, that a number of self sacrificing upper class people shall go into "voluntary servitude" and begin to wait on themselves. Step up and groom your horse, Mr. Vanderbilt! Go down into the kitchen, Mrs. Astor!

During some years when American exports are very large not much gold comes to the United States to pay for them. In such years the foreigners who buy our goods send instead of gold our own securities, stocks, bonds and various kinds of paper. But during the present fiscal year, in spite of the war, the estimated gold coming into the country from abroad is $100,000,000, more than in any year before in our history. It shows that we are rapidly paying off our debts to foreigners and drawing money from them. We are ceasing to be a debtor nation. America is a happy country.

The American who just now will haggle with the government to get an extortionate price for goods it needs deserves to have his pitiful little wares confiscated and to get nothing at all for them.

A western woman inventor, who devised the fireproof helmet for firemen, urges the government to adopt a small skull cap and a breastplate, arm pieces and thigh pieces of aluminum, painted the same color as the uniform. The metal is now down to less than 50 cents a pound, and a complete outfit would not weigh more than five pounds. The saving of life and limb would more than repay the cost a thousand times over. The same metal, she says, should be employed for canteens, rifle stocks, knapsack frames, flagstaves, drum frames and tent poles.

Here are a few reasons why Friday is considered unlucky: It was on Friday that Adam sinned; that he was chased from paradise; that Christ was crucified; that Cain killed Abel; that Etienne was stoned; that the innocents were killed by Herod; that Peter was crucified and Paul decapitated; that John the Baptist's head was cut off; that the children of Israel were chased across the Red sea; that heaven will close and hell open; that marriage was first consummated; that Lamech took two wives; that all but one-seventh of the fruits of the earth and of the light of the sun and moon were taken away; that briars, spiny and venomous plants issued from the ground; that the deluge covered the earth; that the confusion of tongues occurred; that the tower of Babel was begun, and that the plagues came to the king of Egypt. ### CHAPTER XXXV.—(Continued.)

They had seen nothing of John Blantyre since his abrupt dismissal. The earl had been told that he had left Mere Cottage, but that he was living at Court Raven. That piece of intelligence did not trouble him; the unjust steward was part and parcel of the past—a past he was beginning to think of with regret. Nevertheless, John Blantyre lived only for his revenge.

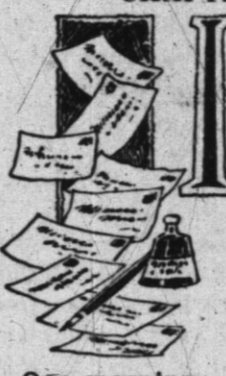

Autumn came with its golden wheat, its ripe fruit, its gorgeous beauty of coloring. The spirit of improvement was at work at Ravensmere; already the obnoxious cottages had disappeared, and in their places clean, healthy, well-drained dwelling-houses were springing up. Lady Caraven worked hard, allowing herself little rest, and the earl was filled with wonder at her systematic method.

They worked together. She made their duties so pleasant to him that he would not for the world have renounced them. Husband and wife became, as the earl said, good companions, good friends. They had many interests now in common—the improvement of the estate, the building of model cottages, the education of the young, the relief of the aged and distressed. With a thoughtful look in his blue eyes the earl would sometimes say to his wife: "I cannot imagine why I thought all would try to understand what attracted him. He had a frank, careless, easy way of expressing himself. Often, when she heard him, her face would suddenly grow pale even to her lips. If he loved at all, he must love her.

Lord Caraven discerned nothing of this, but Sir Raoul was more deeply versed in human nature; and he saw that the young countess was beginning to love her husband with a passionate love. He did not know whether to be pleased or sorry—whether her love would ever be returned. Yet, he could not feel surprised.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

It was almost autumn, and people were saying to each other smilingly that summer seemed unwilling to go. The wheat was standing now in great golden sheaves, the fruit hung ripe upon the trees.

One morning a letter came to Ravensmere. It was from Lady Hamilton, to say that she was returning from Cowes, where she had been staying some time, and would be glad to pay her promised visit.

Lord Caraven's first sensation on reading the coquettish little note was not one of unmitigated pleasure. They had been spending a very happy week alone, the earl, the countess and Sir Raoul—a week that he had thoroughly enjoyed because the greater part of it had been spent in the open air with his wife and Sir Raoul. They had been watching the builders' progress, watching the improvements; and the earl was more pleased than he would have cared to say at seeing once more a smile on the faces around him. He did not feel quite sure at first that he cared for the coming interruption. He gave the letter to Lady Caraven.

"If she comes," he said, "it is pretty certain we must invite a party to meet her."

The young countess looked up. "We are a party," she told him—"we are three."

Lord Caraven laughed. "Three is a very small number, Hildred. What would Lady Hamilton say if she came here and found that we had not invited any one to meet her? Raoul and I would be exhausted by the amount of homage we should have to pay. Lady Hamilton is the very queen of coquettes."

"I do not like coquettes," said Lady Caraven, curtly.

"It would be wonderful if you did," laughed her husband. "Dark-eyed and dark-haired women like you, Hildred, are generally severe; golden hair and blue eyes take naturally to flirtation. But that is no settlement of our difficulty. There is but one course open to us—to write and say that we shall be delighted. You will write, of course?"

"If you wish it," said Hildred, quietly.

"Then we will draw up a list of people to invite while she is here. We must have some eligible men."

"What does she want eligible men

THEY WORKED TOGETHER.

this so tiresome before, or what gives me so much pleasure to do it now."

No one was more gratified than Sir Raoul. He exulted in the fact that his predictions were fulfilled.

"I always thought a good woman's influence boundless," he said; "and now I am sure of it."

But he was not misled; he saw exactly how things were—that the earl had started with the conviction that his wife was an unformed school-girl, and that, though believing her now to be a very clever woman, he still retained much of his early impression. Lord Caraven had accepted the fact that he did not love her with a lover's love, and that their marriage was a fatal mistake into which his own folly had led him—and he had not changed his opinion; he absolutely never thought of love with reference to her. They were good friends, with one common interest—that was all.

But with Hildred it was not quite the same thing. She had once loved him; and now, as his better nature appeared, she began to care for him again. Not that she ever betrayed such a feeling to him. She was kind, affectionate, patient; she devoted herself to his service; but no word indicating a warmer feeling than friendship ever escaped her lips. She did not even own to herself or know that she was beginning to love him.

One day, after luncheon, when some visitors were staying with them, the conversation turned on a certain Lady Hamilton, who had just returned, a widow, from India.

"Lady Hamilton was one of your early loves, Ulric, was she not?" said Sir Raoul, laughing.

"I suppose so," replied the earl, carelessly. "I had a great many early loves, if one may believe all the stories told. Do you know what my opinion is?"

"No," answered Sir Raoul, "I do not."

"I do not believe that I have ever loved at all—that is, using the word 'love' in its best and highest sense."

"Then it is for want of appreciation," said Sir Raoul, curtly.

Neither of them knew that Hildred had overheard the few chance words, but they had pierced her heart as with a two-edged sword.

A kind of jealousy that she could not understand took possession of her. If, on looking at pictures or photographs, Lord Caraven praised one or thought it pretty, she would examine it in detail to find out if possible what he admired in it. If, in speaking of any lady friend or visitor, the earl expressed his admiration of her, a vague unrest would come over his wife; she letter, yet it had to be done with all the graceful courtesy imaginable. Then the earl made out a list of people whom he thought the brilliant young widow would like to meet.

"There," he said—"we have an eligible marquis, a court favorite, a millionaire, a philosopher, and a soldier. Surely between them her ladyship will receive homage enough."

His wife noted with infinite satisfaction that he had not mentioned himself. Evidently he had no idea of paying homage to her; but the words, "one of the youngest, prettiest widows in England," had made a disagreeable impression on her. She could not tell why, but she had an unpleasant foreboding that evil would come from the widow's visit, evil both bitter and sore.

"There is another thing, Hildred," said Lord Caraven—"Lady Hamilton must have amusement. You will have to lay aside your work for a time and attend to it. We must have a ball—a grand ball, not a mere dancing party—we must have dinner parties and picnics, a regular round of entertainments."

"And my work must stand still!" she interrupted, regretfully.

"I am sorry for it, because I know that your heart is in it; but rank and position have duties that we cannot ignore. When a lady like Lady Hamilton volunteers a visit, it is necessary to receive her with all courtesy. You will be able to do something, but not much."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

It was the evening of the day on which Lady Hamilton was expected. Several of the guests invited to meet her had already arrived, and the young Countess of Caraven anxiously expected her visitor. She had a strange kind of foreboding about her.

"I wonder," she said to Sir Raoul, "if some people do bring misfortune with them. I have an idea that Lady Hamilton will bring evil to me."

Sir Raoul laughed, and told her in his simple chivalrous fashion that a beautiful woman could bring only sunshine and happiness; but the young countess sighed.

"Helen of Troy did not bring much sunshine," she said, "and she was beautiful enough."

"But," objected Sir Raoul, "there is a difference; Lady Hamilton has not her fatal loveliness. Times have altered; no woman's face, I think, will ever cause another thirty years' war."

The young countess resolved upon being armed at all points. Her maid felt that at length her mistress was doing justice to herself. She was that evening very difficult to please—no dress was pretty enough; she chose one at length of purple velvet, long, graceful, and made after a picturesque fashion that Hildred particularly affected—cut square so as to show the beautiful neck and shoulders, with wide hanging sleeves, fastened with a diamond knot on the shoulder—a dress that was the triumph of good taste; no ribbon, no flowers, no ornaments nor trimmings marred its grand simplicity. She wore nothing but diamonds with it—a small tiara that crowned the queenly head, a necklace round the white throat, a small cross on the white breast, and a bracelet on one of her beautifully molded arms. Nothing could have been more magnificent, in better or simpler taste.

Sir Raoul looked delighted when he saw her. "Lady Hamilton may be very fair," he thought, "but she will not look like Hildred."

The earl did not notice either her face or her dress; he admired her skill, her genius, but he was certainly not in love with his young wife.

It was with some little curiosity that the young countess went to meet her guest. Lady Hamilton had been shown into a pretty little boudoir, where she awaited her hostess; and these two women who were so strangely to cross each other's lives looked almost eagerly at each other.

Lady Caraven saw before her a tall, graceful, lovely blonde, whose sunny eyes and golden hair were bright and beautiful, whose red lips smiling showed teeth like pearls. After returning in the most musical of voices the greetings of her hostess, she requested that she might be shown to her room.

She was in some measure just what Lady Caraven had expected to see. She appeared in the drawing-room two minutes before the announcement of dinner was made, and then Hildred examined her more critically. Her entrance made a sensation amongst the gentlemen. Hildred stood watching the scene, watching the pretty maneuvers of the royally beautiful coquette, and how soon they took effect.

Hildred sighed as she turned away. This was the kind of beauty that her husband loved—blonde, tall and graceful.

A GREAT REMEDY.

Greatly Tested.

Greatly Recommended.

The loss of the hair is one of the most serious losses a woman can undergo. Beautiful hair gives many a woman a claim to youth which would be utterly wanting if the locks were short and scanty. It is almost as serious a loss when the natural hue of the hair begins to fade and the shining tresses of chestnut and auburn are changed to gray or to a faded shadow of their former brightness. Such a loss is no longer a necessity. There is one remedy which may well be called a great remedy by reason of its great success in stopping the falling of the hair, cleansing the scalp of dandruff, and restoring the lost color to gray or faded tresses. Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor is a standard and reliable preparation, in use in thousands of homes, and recommended by everyone who has tested it and experienced the remarkable results that follow its use. It makes hair grow, it restores the original color to hair that has turned gray or faded out. It stops hair from falling, cleanses the scalp of dandruff, and gives the hair a thickness and gloss that no other preparation can produce.

Mrs. Herzmann, of 355 East 69th St., New York City, writes:

"A little more than a year ago, my hair began turning gray and falling out, and although I tried ever so many things to prevent a continuance of these conditions, obtained no satisfaction until I tried Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor. After using one bottle my hair was restored to its natural color, and ceased falling out."—Mrs. HERZMANN, 355 East 69th St., New York City.

"I have sold Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor for fifteen years, and I do not know of a case where it did not give entire satisfaction. I have been, and am now using it myself for dandruff and gray hair, and am thoroughly convinced that it is the best on the market. Nothing that I ever tried can touch it. It affords me great pleasure to recommend it to the public."—FRANK M. GROVES, Fausdale, Ala.

SCHLEY ATTACKS SANTIAGO

Fortifications of the Cuban Port Bombaraded.

FULL DETAILS UNOBTAINABLE.

American Squadron Has Been Blockading the Place for Days—Important Expedition Landed on the Island Without the Spaniards Offering Opposition.

A dispatch just received from Santiago de Cuba states that the American squadron, under command of Commodore Schley, which has been blockading the port for a number of days, began to bombard the fortifications at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the evident intention being to reduce them in order to get at Admiral Cervera's squadron at anchor in Santiago bay.

There is great excitement in Santiago, the Spanish residents, notwithstanding the repeated boasts of the military and naval officers, fearing that the Americans will soon be in possession of the city.

Owing to the height of the hill on which the Morro castle is located, it was impossible for the Americans to run in shore and elevate their guns to a sufficient height to do any damage. Consequently the big ships with the heavy rifles stood some distance off shore, from where they could pour in a more effective fire, while the smaller vessels, nearer the shore, devoted themselves to attacking the sand and mortar batteries on the shore beneath the Morro.

Some of the shells from the big rifles went clear over the Morro, landing in the Estrala point battery, Santa Catalina fort, and the other fortifications on the same side of the entrance as the Morro, but to the northward of it.

The firing of the ships was apparently directed principally against the Morro, the fort of La Socapa, on the opposite side of the entrance, and against Punta Gorda, which, though some distance from the entrance, could be reached by an almost straight fire from the sea.

The forts relied bravely to the fire, but, so far as can be learned, did not appear to do any great damage.

The dispatch intimates that some of the Spanish warships took part in the engagement, but this cannot be verified. It was stated some days ago that two or three warships of Admiral Cervera's squadron were lying some distance below the city, and it is possible that they may have been engaged.

Whether or not the Americans entered the bay is not known. It is reported that they did, but this is doubted, as it is scarcely supposed that Commodore Schley would attempt to run the forts through a channel known to be filled with both electrical and contact mines. Again, had he forced the passage of the forts, and passed over the mines unharmed, it is certain that he would have at once proceeded to the city and engaged the Spanish warships, and the batteries.

During the fighting a number of troops were hastily dispatched from the city, and it is judged from this that the Spanish losses in the batteries must have been heavy, and that the artillerymen were needed to man the guns.

The dispatch states that the Americans were compelled to retire after the battle had lasted about two hours, but this is doubted, as it is known that the fortifications at Santiago are hardly strong enough to cope satisfactorily with such a powerful squadron as that commanded by Commodore Schley.

It is certain, however, that the firing ceased shortly after 4 o'clock. Just before it ceased the cannonading was the heaviest of the day.

Important Expedition Landed.
The steamer Florida successfully landed a most important expedition on the coast of Cuba about twenty-five miles east of Havana, Thursday morning, May 26. There was nothing in the nature of interruption.

To Fill Illinois Regiments.
It is estimated that it will take 2,612 men to fill up the Illinois regiments in the field, this number being part of the 4,826 men that Illinois is called upon to furnish under the second call.

Spaniards Are Getting Weary.
The Spaniards are getting weary of the war. A distinguished member of the Silvela party very candidly admitted that it would be a good thing for Spain if she were free from Cuba.

Will Cut French Cables.
American warships will sever cable connections with Martinique and Hayti, cutting off communication with France, if Spanish agents use the cables.

Reviewed by the President.
The president reviewed the Second army corps of the volunteer army at Falls Church, W. Va.

Heavy War Appropriations.
Thus far the amount of money appropriated by congress for the war reaches $219,335,000.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

GORMAN IN FAVOR OF BONDS.

Maryland Senator Speaks for an Income Tax and the Issue of Bonds—House Passes the Bill Providing Medals for Dewey and His Men.

Friday, May 27.

The house passed by a unanimous vote the senate joint resolution authorizing the secretary of the navy to present a sword of honor to Admiral Dewey and bronze medals to the officers and men of the Asiatic squadron, in memory of Dewey's great victory.

In the senate Mr. Gorman (Dem., Md.), denounced as "infamous" the decision of the supreme court declaring the income tax law of 1894 as unconstitutional. Mr. Gorman made a powerful argument in favor of the issuance of bonds to raise funds with which to prosecute the war.

Senator Lodge offered an amendment to the war revenue bill in the words of the Newlands resolution providing in direct terms for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands.

Tuesday, May 31.
Under unanimous consent some unimportant private bills were passed in the house.

The senate remained in secret legislative session for three hours. The entire time was given to a rather free discussion of the Hawaiian question. It was decided not to pursue the subject further except behind closed doors.

HOW RELIEF CAME.

From Cole County Democrat, Jefferson City, Mo.—When la grippe visited this section about seven years ago Herman H. Eveler, of 811 W. Main St., Jefferson Mo., was one of the victims, and has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. He is a well-known contractor and builder, a business requiring much mental and physical work. A year ago his health began to fail and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives today is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely. I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation decided to give them a trial.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. I feel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and anyone that is afflicted with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration and general debility will find that these pills are the specific. HERMAN H. EVERER." Subscribed and sworn to before me a Notary Public, this 24th day of May, 1897. ADAM POUTSONGO, Notary Public. Mr. Eveler will gladly answer an inquiry regarding this if stamp is enclosed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure people troubled with the after-effects of the grippe because they act directly on the impure blood. They are also a specific for chronic erysipelas, catarrh, rheumatism and all diseases due to impure or impoverished blood.

Finding a Grave with an Egg.
The Miau-tze, a tribe in Asia, will not bury a man until they have first tested the ground with an egg. This operation is curious. While the body is being prepared for burial a number of Miau-tze, including the male relatives of the deceased, go out to the appointed spot, bearing a large basket of eggs. Stopping down one of the natives lets an egg drop softly on the ground. Its breaking is considered an ill omen and another spot is selected. In this way the party often wander about for hours, dropping eggs until one strikes a place where the shell does not crack.—Washington Star.

The Omaha Exposition of 1898
Beats the Centennial Exposition which occurred in Philadelphia in 1876 away out of sight and is next to the World's Fair at Chicago in importance to the whole country. Buy your excursion tickets over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y. An illustrated folder descriptive of the Exposition will be sent you on receipt of 2-cent stamp for postage. Address Geo. H. # "I DO MY OWN WORK."

So Says Mrs. Mary Rochette of Linden, New Jersey, in this Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"I was bothered with a flow which would be quite annoying at times, and at others would almost stop. I used prescriptions given me by my physician, but the same state of affairs continued.

"After a time I was taken with a flooding, that I was obliged to keep my bed. Finally, in despair, I gave up my doctor, and began taking your medicine, and have certainly been greatly benefited by its use.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has indeed been a friend to me. I am now able to do my own work, thanks to your wonderful medicine. I was as near death I believe as I could be, so weak that my pulse scarcely beat and my heart had almost given out. I could not have stood it one week more, I am sure. I never thought I would be so grateful to any medicine.

"I shall use my influence with any one suffering as I did, to have them use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Memorial Day Was Observed in Barrington,

The people of Barrington and vicinity honored the brave dead in a fitting manner Monday.

The day was bright and clear—just such a one as made one feel that even nature took an interest in the services.

It was about 10:30 o'clock when the Band headed the G. A. R. boys, commanded by A. S. Henderson, and the column marched to the school house, where it was augmented by several hundred of little lads and lassies, each carrying a little flag—the emblem of Liberty.

From here the procession wound its way towards Sott's hall, where it was joined by the members of the Modern Woodmen and Knights of the Globe, and amid martial music marched to Evergreen cemetery, followed by many hundreds of citizens, to do honor to the comrades who stood shoulder to shoulder in defense of the Union when trouble came in the 60's.

There was not a grave in the cemetery—under which reposed a soldier—that did not receive its token of respect, a beautiful bouquet of fragrant flowers.

From Evergreen cemetery the graves in the German cemetery were treated likewise.

Nor were the unknown soldiers forgotten, for the W. R. C. looked after them, and did so in a most impressive manner, in Evergreen cemetery. Beautiful bouquets were planted, and songs sang. Dr. D. H. Richardson read a poem in an artistic style. His clear voice could be heard very plainly at the farthest end of the crowd, and he was listened to intently.

After dinner the audience again assembled and proceeded to Grove avenue, where a large platform had been erected, and where the following program was rendered;

Music by Barrington Military band. Drill and song by school children. Prayer by Rev. Strickaden of Salem church.

Recitation by Alec Boelmer. Solo by Dr. C. H. Kendall. Opening address by Rev. T. E. Ream.

Selection by Double Quartette composed of Messrs John C. Plagge, Theodore Suhr, Frank A. Wolhausen and F. E. Lines, and Mesdames George Stiefenoefer and John Kampert, Misses Alvina Myers and Pearl Perry.

Oration by Rev. Col. VanHorn of Rockford. Duet by the Misses Strickfaden. Remarks by Rev. Hageman. Selection by Double Quartette. Music by Band.

Rev. Col. VanHorn eclipsed all previous occasions by the interest and patriotism he aroused by his masterful oration. It was one of the best addresses ever delivered in Barrington.

The school children in their drill marched with a martial air that bespoke sturdy warriors for the future. Their singing and drill showed that great care had been taken to train them and that the little ones had been very apt pupils.

The singing by the double quartette, Dr. Kendall and the Misses Strickfaden was of an especially meritorious character.

Not West Pointers.

We regret it when so able an authority as The Outlook is caught napping, but a recent editorial in its pages says that during the civil war the north spent two years in learning how to fight and in discovering and educating its generals. Then it adds, "At the end of that war every man who had secured a first place in either army was a graduate of West Point." Let us see. On the Union side there was General Alfred H. Terry, who secured a first place if any man ever did, an able fighter and tactician. There again was General Miles, now the head of all the armies of the United States. He won brilliant distinction during the war. Once more there was that self educated soldier Mr. Rutherford B. Hayes. He was a brave enough leader to get himself severely wounded in battle and to rise to be a major general. Afterward his countrymen trusted him enough to make him president of the United States. H. C. Corbin, the present adjutant general of the United States army, is another soldier whose military education was got in actual service and not West Point.

On the Confederate side we recall at this moment General N. B. Forrest, along certain lines the ablest cavalry leader on either side during the civil war.

We certainly do not belittle the value of a West Point education. An officer is much better equipped when he has it, provided always it does not make a military snob of him, in which he is better without it. But where, for instance, did Washington get his training for war? There were generals before West Point was founded.

There is no reason to doubt the good will of Great Britain to us. It is not out of place, therefore, to call attention of Canadians to the fact that although that arch spy Polo has gone home he arranged for the secret Spanish service to be conducted precisely the same as before from the safe vantage of Quebec. That Du Bose, who was first secretary of the Spanish legation in Washington, has taken a house permanently in Quebec should be taken note of by Canada and England. Du Bose can send his cipher dispatches to his master in Spain, revealing every movement of this government, the size of our army and fleets, their whereabouts and other facts which can be used to our injury. The United States this moment is full of spies in the pay of Spain. It is Spain's way of doing business. England should not let them make report to their employers through her territory.

President F. B. Thurber makes in the New York Journal a valuable suggestion to the bakers and people of America. The price of flour has been raised, therefore bakers must suffer loss or raise the price of bread. Mr. Thurber says: Mix corn flour with the wheat flour to make a loaf of bread. This mixture makes a sweeter, more nutritious bread than wheat flour alone. It has been tried in Europe with advantage by those who were endeavoring to make a market for our corn there. The corn wheat loaf is delicious, and the people will like it. Corn is cheap and can be ground as fine as wheat flour. If the bakers, with the knowledge and approval of their customers, add it to the wheat flour in mixing the bread, they will not be obliged to raise the price of the loaf.

At the beginning of the century, when we had a navy equal even to that of England, as navies went then, the cost of a large and complete warship, called a frigate in those days, was from $200,000 to $300,000. Our largest and most formidable frigate was the old Constitution, which was of 1,575 tons and carried 44 guns. Our whole navy at that time did not cost so much to build as one first class battleship now does.

Something new in the annals of war is a matron for a regiment, in which capacity Mrs. Susan A. Glenn of Washington, a soldier's widow and mother of a soldier in the present war, goes to the front.

Abraham Lincoln was one of the great men who believed in prayer, and himself prayed habitually, but quite privately to himself.

Moral of Wyckoff's Wanderings.

The intensely interesting story of Walter A. Wyckoff's wanderings still continues in Scribner's Magazine. At the last writing he was in Chicago yet and was just quitting a situation which he had got at $1.50 a day.

There is a moral to the Wyckoff sketches which perhaps he himself did not intend to convey, but it is conspicuously present. In brief it is this: Stick to your job. So far as we remember, Wyckoff was in no instance discharged from any employment he had obtained. He left it voluntarily to go in search of new fields and new experiences. That was part of his plan. Nevertheless in half a dozen cases if he had simply remained in the place he had obtained to do unskilled labor, he would have been there still earning wages that at least would have made him a living. His bitter experiences came because he left the employment he had found to go in search of fresh experience.

Mr. Wyckoff probably illustrated in a different way from what he intended one phase of the situation in reference to unemployed labor. Like Mr. Wyckoff, other men want to move to new places. The impulse of wandering comes over them and they do not resist it. If they stuck to their work and kept their eyes open and their habits good, there would at least half the time be opportunity for them to rise to a better plane of existence.

The mighty association of united chewing gum manufacturers, in convention assembled, has resolved not to protest against a government tax on its product. Patriotic gum boilers! They can afford not to protest, for well they know they will not lose anything. Come war, come peace, come weal, come woe, the universal bicycle girl will still have her chewing gum to wag her jaws on, whether it cost a cent or 2 cents the mouthful. Still and ever will the underside of the restaurant and ice cream table be dotted and embossed with the wads of gum, more or less masticated, of the girl who sticks them there and forgets them. Even though chewing gum may come high, we must and will have it still. The boys and girls will chew all the more industriously if they know they are performing a patriotic duty and helping the government thereby. Come on with the chewing gum tax.

A poem ought to be written on the man in the military mast. If you look at the picture of a man-of-war, you will see far up in each mast one or two places where a steel rim has been built around. Inside these steel rims are cannon and gunners. The place of the gunner in the military mast is the most dangerous of any on the whole ship. That grim, steel inclosed disk is the target at which the enemy's shot and shell are aimed.

France indeed has need to pocket her spite and jealousy of us at present, even if she secretly cherishes any such feelings toward us, which it is to be hoped is not the case. France would be loser to the extent of some millions of dollars annually by indulging in hostile remarks concerning us. American tourists spend money like water there and American merchants are lavish importers of French goods.

It is like Spain, after the United States had declared we would not resort to privateering, to take up and put in practice this vanished relic of the warfare of barbarous nations.
