To Organize a Dancing School.

An effort is being made toward organizing a dancing school in Barrington. A petition was started out for signatures yesterday morning and up to last evening had met with a ready response, over one-fourth of the names necessary having been placed thereon. The large class organized here two years ago is still fresh in the memory of many as one of the pleasantest and leading social affairs of the winter season. It is now hoped that a class of its equal will be organized this winter, and, if the excellent start already made is any criterion, the successful organization of the school is assured. Those who desire to join the class are asked to hand in their names at once, so that the school may be opened as early as possible.

Maiman-Smith Nuptials.

The marriage of Mr. Philip J. Maiman, one of Wauconda's prominent young men, to Miss Anna L. Smith of Chicago took place at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Chicago, at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, October 17, 1898. Messrs. H. E. Maiman of Wauconda and P. W. Spellman of Libertyville acted as groomsmen, while Misses Flora Fanelion of Chicago and Mathilda Meyers of McHenry acted as bridesmaids. After the ceremony the bridal party, together with the invited guests, repaired to the home of the bride, 1118 California avenue, where a bounteous repast was served. A large number of friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. The wedding gifts were many and elaborate.

On their arrival at Wauconda a dance was given in their honor and proved to be one of the pleasantest affairs which has occurred at that place for some time. The grand march, in which forty couples participated, was started at 9 o'clock that evening and was led by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maiman. It was well along in the wee sma' hours of morning when the party came to a close, and all reluctantly left for their homes, having spent a most enjoyable evening.

The happy couple will make Waukegan their home, where Mr. Maiman has for several years past been engaged in the sale of pianos, organs and sewing machines. Mr. Maiman is well and favorably known throughout Lake county.

The newly-married couple has the best wishes for the future of a host of friends.

It Hangs On

If it was only health, we might let it cling. But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time. And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A ROMANCE

Shell flushes crimson; the one wish of her girlhood has been to possess a volume of Tennyson all her own. Yet, now that she stands with the treasure in her hand, a strange perversity makes her feel more than half inclined to thrust it back upon the donor.

"It is very kind of you, Bob and Meg," she says, in a tone of angry impatience; "but I cannot think of accepting your present. Take it home and keep it until you are grown up—then you will be able to understand it."

"Don't you like it, then?" queries Bob, looking anxious and distressed. "Pa thought you would rather have a book; but I'll tell him to send you a watch instead."

This threatened alternative sounds so very alarming that Shell hastens to explain to the children her detestation of watches in general and her unbounded admiration of poets.

"What are you making such a chatter and fuss about, Shell?" interposes Ruby, crossing to her sister's side and taking up the volume in dispute. "Oh, only a copy of Tennyson!" with a contemptuous curl of her lip at the plain though handsome binding. "I wonder what induced Robert Champley to send you that? You have not been devoting yourself to his children."

"No, I should hope not," answers Shell, with emphasis. "Neither do I want any present—I shall return it."

"Return it? What conceited nonsense!" scoffs Ruby. "I suppose he thought some slight acknowledgment was due to you for playing with the children occasionally. If you want to make yourself absurd and conspicuous, of course you will return it."

On the next morning the Champley household take their departure for the moor. Ruby chances to be near the deserted lodge of the Wilderness when the wagonette—containing the two brothers, the children and the nurse—drives by.

She makes a dainty picture, standing in the shade of the chestnut tree in her pale-blue morning dress, and waving her handkerchief in token of adieu. The gentlemen raise their hats and smile, the children shout, the nurse gives a defiant snort, and the next moment they are out of sight.

"Two months of freedom!" thinks Robert Champley to himself. "On my return home I must make other arrangements."

CHAPTER IX.

"Mamma, there is a most enticing cottage to be let at Oakford," cries Ruby, glancing up excitedly from the paper in her hand. "Listen! Oakford. To be let, furnished, charming cottage residence—five rooms, large garden, every convenience, rent moderate, air bracing, close to moor."

"Yes, my dear," responds Mrs. Wilden in mild surprise. "Well, what about it? Do you know of any one wanting a cottage?"

"I thought it might suit us," replies Ruby, a little crestfallen.

"It certainly might if we wanted to go there," asserts Mrs. Wilden with a good-tempered laugh; "but, as you know, Ruby, I have a great dislike to leaving home."

"But, mamma, I think you require change of air," persists Ruby with unwearied affection. "You have been suffering so frightfully from neuralgia all spring. I am sure your nerves want bracing. Why not take this cottage for a month or so? Change is good for everybody."

Mrs. Wilden shakes her head, but not after a very determined fashion. "What do you say, Vi?" she asks, turning to her niece.

"Well, I really don't think I care two straws either way," answers Miss Flower lazily. "If somebody will pack my things I am willing to go, but I couldn't undertake to pack them myself."

"Now that just shows how much you need change," cries Ruby eagerly. "Your whole system wants stirring up—before we had been a week on the moor you would be as brisk as a bee."

"Should I?" says Violet, with a dubious laugh. "I very much doubt it; but I am willing to try the experiment."

Truth to tell, if Violet Flower consulted her own feelings, she would far rather remain in her present comfortable quarters; but Ruby having confided to her a scheme for visiting the moor if possible, she has promised not to oppose the plan.

There is a fair amount of resistance on Mrs. Wilden's part, but her energetic daughter overrules each and every obstacle as it is presented to her. Her eloquence is so great in advocating a change that one would wonder, to hear her talk, how they have managed to exist so many summers through at the Wilderness without acquiring all the maladies to which flesh is heir.

Shell is not present when the discussion takes place, but her indignation when the plan is unfolded to her is unbounded.

"You don't mean to say, Ruby, that you are actually thinking of following the Champleys to the moor?" she says, in a voice of such infinite scorn that Ruby flushes uneasily.

"What nonsense you talk, Shell!" she returns angrily. "You seem to have the Champleys on the brain. We are going to the moor because mamma is in need of bracing air. Is there anything so very extraordinary in that?"

"There is something extraordinary in your having selected the same village," answers Shell decidedly. "If mamma wants bracing air why not take her to the North of Devon?"

"Because rooms there would be frightfully expensive; whereas the cottage on the moor is a mere trifle," responds Ruby loftily.

This argument is unanswerable, for no one knows better than Shell that their income is not equal to any great additional strain. Feeling that any resistance she can offer will be futile, Shell shrugs her shoulders and leaves the room. Nothing remains to her now but to strike out a separate line of action for herself. She is fully determined about one thing—wild horses shall not drag her to Oakford.

When everything is fully arranged and packing is at its height, Shell startles the household.

"It will be very awkward having only three bed-rooms," Vi remarks in a grumbling tone, for the more she contemplates six weeks spent away from civilization the less she likes the prospect. "Of course the servants must have one; and then we must all cram into the two others."

"Not at all, dear," Ruby hastens to explain. "Mamma and Shell can have the big room, and you and I a little one each; as for Mary, she can do quite well with a chair-bedstead in the kitchen."

"How delightful for Mary!" laughs Shell. "It is to be hoped she has a strong liking for cockroaches and crickets."

"Now, please, Shell, don't go setting Mary against the arrangement," says Ruby imploringly. "Mamma, do ask her not?"

"Don't be alarmed," answers Shell, with a curious little laugh. "I have not the slightest intention of interfering with any of the arrangements at the cottage. They don't concern me in the least, since I shan't be there."

"Not be there—what do you mean? Of course you will be there!" declares Ruby, looking very much astonished.

"Not unless mamma insists upon it; and I am sure she won't," laughs Shell. "As you know, I have been set against the idea from the commencement, so I mean to remain here—'monarch of all I survey'—and have a right down jolly time of it all to myself."

"What rubbish!" cries Ruby impatiently. "Susan is going to be put on board-wages; and she is to give the house a thorough cleaning during our absence."

"Well, I can be put on board-wages too; and I certainly won't prevent Susan from cleaning the house. I shall be out all day long," responds Shell.

"Mamma, please make her go. It would seem so odd her not going," urges Ruby.

But Mrs. Wilden is too easy-going to oppose actively any of her children. Truth to tell, she rather envies Shell her coming solitude, and even expresses it as her opinion that it is a pity that dreadful cottage was ever taken. This rebellion on her indulgent mother's part is quickly talked down by Ruby, whose constant fear from the beginning has been that her scheme will ultimately fall through.

She knows that her mother would rather stay at home; she is fully aware that Violet is groaning in spirit over what she is pleased to term her "coming exile;" so she thinks it wiser on the whole to leave Shell to her own devices, lest enlarging on the theme should stir up revolt in other and more important quarters.

Then there comes a triumphant morning when, backed up by a vast amount of unnecessary luggage, Ruby carries off her three victims—for Mary can truthfully be reckoned in that category—to enjoy the bracing air and scant accommodation of Oakmoor.

Shell, as she stands on the doorstep and waves them a smiling adieu, looks the impersonation of mischievous contentment.

"Be sure to change the library books the moment you get them, and don't delay a single post in sending them off," entreats Violet earnestly.

"And any groceries we can't get there you must send by Parcels Post," adds Ruby.

"How the Oakmoor postman will bless you!" laughs Shell as she nods assent; and then, springing on to the step of the cab, she imprints a dozen hasty kisses on her mother's troubled cheek.

Why does she heave a sigh, notwithstanding the brightness of the morning, as she turns to re-enter the house?

CHAPTER X.

A week has passed. Shell has grown tired of her self-imposed solitude; the big, bare, echoing rooms have become hateful to her. Even the grounds seem changed and unfamiliar. The certainty that there is no chance of interruption to her lonely musings, at first so delightful, now seems to fill her usually cheerful spirit with a sense of depression. Until robbed of all companionship she never guessed what a sociable creature she was. Happy would she be if even the most inane and common-place caller would come to break the monotony of her endless days! But it is understood in the neighborhood that the family at the Wilderness are away; so from morn till night Shell wanders aimlessly about, with only the gray cat to bear her company.

It is evening. Shell is even more desolate than her wont. Susan has asked permission to go into Madford to make a few purchases, and already she has been absent over three hours. It is now seven o'clock, and the empty house seems to Shell's excited imagination like a haunted place. She fancies she hears hurrying through the passages. A door slams, and her heart stands still with fear. Shell however is not one to give way to morbid feelings, and, rousing herself from her book, she starts on a tour of inspection through the house, shutting all windows and securely barring all doors on her way; then, with a renewed sense of security, she returns to the drawing-room and determines to while away the time with music.

Shell is one of those sensitive folk who never play so well as when alone—she cannot pour her whole heart into her music when she has listeners. Now, with the house to herself, she soon becomes lost to her surroundings, and the room echoes to such heart-stirring strains as it rarely falls to one's lot to hear.

Suddenly however her music comes to an end, and her heart throbs with terror, for through the empty hall echoes the sonorous thunder of the big iron knocker.

Shell's first impulse is to take no notice—to hide herself or to make her escape by some back window; then her natural good sense returns, and she laughs in a nervous manner at her fears and with fast-beating heart advances into the hall.

"Is that you, Susan?" she asks, but without unfastening the heavy chain.

There comes no answer save a vigorous ring at the bell.

"Who is there?" demands Shell, this time in a firmer tone and one more likely to penetrate the thick oak panels.

"A messenger from Mrs. Wilden," answers a voice which is somehow familiar to Shell's ears.

With trembling hands she shoots back the heavy bolts, and, taking down the chain, opens the door. There she stands—pale, big-eyed, and scared-looking, before—Robert Champley.

"Oh, what a fright you gave me!" is her first involuntary exclamation.

"A fright! How so? What have I done?" queries her visitor, looking much surprised.

"Oh, nothing!" answers Shell, whilst the ghost of a smile flickers round her still colorless lips. "It was my own foolishness; but I was not expecting any one excepting Susan, and your knock frightened me. I suppose I must be getting nervous"—with a self-deprecating little laugh.

"Nervous? I should think so!" cries Robert wonderingly. He has taken her hand in greeting, and feels it cold and trembling in his warm grasp. "But surely you are not alone in the house?"

"Only for a short time; I am expecting Susan back every minute," explains Shell, who feels heartily ashamed of her late weakness.

Her visitor looks grave. "You ought not to be left alone in a house like this," he says very decidedly. "Why, you are trembling still!"

His words remind Shell that he still has possession of her hand—with a little impatient movement she withdraws it.

THE MAJOR'S EXPERIENCE.

From the Detroit Free Press.

One of the staunchest supporters of the deep-water way from the Great Lakes to the ocean is Major A. C. Bishop, of 715 Third Ave., Detroit, a civil engineer of wide experience and considerable prominence in his profession. He was assistant engineer on the Hudson River Railroad in 1880 and has since conducted large engineering operations. He has been located in Detroit since 1815, and has a large acquaintance among the business men and citizens of this city.

Two years ago, for the first time, Major Bishop was in the hospital. For two months he had the best of medical attendance but when he was discharged he was not like the Major Bishop of old. When asked regarding his health, he said: "When I had my last spell of sickness and came out of the hospital I was a sorry sight, I could not gain my strength, and could not walk over a block for several weeks."

Major Bishop.

"I noticed some articles in the newspapers regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which convinced me that they were worth trying and bought two boxes. I did not take them for my complexion, but for strength. After using them I felt better, and know they did me worlds of good. I am pleased to recommend them to invalids who need a tonic to build up a shattered constitution."

"A. C. Bishop." Subscribed and sworn to before me this eighth day of January, 1898. ROBERT E. HULL, Jr., Notary Public. The pure, powerful vegetable ingredients in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People supply the antidote for poisonous matter in the blood and add those elements needed to build up body and brains. Many diseases long supposed by the medical profession to be incurable have succumbed to the potent influence of these pills. They can be taken by young or old, being harmless in their nature, yet powerful in eliminating disease.

Family Resemblance.

Aunt—Who does your new little sister look most like, your father or your mother?

OLD-TIME MEMORIES.

Curious Meeting of a Yankee and a Rebel on Virginia Soil.

In the camp at Falls Church, Va., are a number of veterans who fought with Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley. From Falls Church to the Blue Ridge mountains, which separate the Shenandoah and the Loudoun valleys, is a trip of not more than thirty miles, says the Washington Times. The panorama of nature presented on one of these ridges is one of the finest in the world, and those soldiers now in camp, to whom the scene is familiar, have taken advantage of their nearness to the old fighting ground to visit it once again. Among those who made the trip recently was an officer of a western regiment, who took his wife with him. At Round Hill they hired a vehicle for the ascent of the mountain. The driver had been one of Mosby's men. As the officer and his wife were being driven along he indulged in many reminiscences of his experience in the valley during the civil war. There was just a little bit of vainglory in his narrative of personal adventures. Several times the man who was doing the driving touched up the horses a little viciously, as if he were in a bad humor. Once or twice he seemed on the point of breaking in on the conversation, but he reconsidered and held his peace. Finally the party reached a point in the road where the ascent in the mountain begins. The officer's face brightened up. "Do you see that hill right over there, dear?" he said to his wife, pointing to the place. She nodded. "Well, my dear, right at the foot of that hill is the very place where we cooked our supper that night I've been telling you about." "Yes, my darling," said the old driver, turning around, "and that is the very place where we uns ate your supper." "What," said the union officer, "were you one of that party of rebels that came down on us?" "Yes, I wuz. We sot up thar on top o' the hill and watched you-uns cook it, and when it was done we swooped down." "Well, tell me, my friend," said the union officer, "where on earth you fellows came from?" "Well, I'll answer that, stranger," said the old man, "ef you'll clear up a mystery fur me. Wuar in thunder did you-uns go to? My idee at that time wuz that you clim up the inside of sum tree."

QUEEN MARY'S PERMISSION.

Grants to an Earl the Right to Wear Two Nightcaps.

Among the musty state documents of Great Britain is one which every reader of Miss Strickland's "Lives of the Queens" inevitably giggles over, says the Memphis Scimitar. In the life of Queen Mary Miss Strickland reproduces a wonderful state document, in which her majesty grants special permission to one of her councillors to wear a night cap in her presence. This royal concession is made, presumably as a reward for valuable services rendered. The earl of Sussex was the nobleman thus honored. The earl was a valetudinarian and had a great fear of uncovering his head. Considering, therefore, that the colds he dreaded respected no persons, he petitioned Queen Mary for leave to wear a cap in her presence. The queen not only gave him leave to wear one, but two nightcaps if he pleased. His patent for this privilege is unique in royal annals: "Know ye that we do grant to our well-beloved and trusty cousin and councillor, Henry, earl of Sussex, license and pardon to wear his cap, coil, or nightcap, or any two of them at his pleasure, as well in our presence as in the presence of any other person within this realm, or in any other place in our dominions whatsoever during his life, and these, our letters, shall be sufficient warrant in his behalf." The queen's seal was affixed to this singular grant. Three persons in Great Britain alone enjoy the privilege of remaining covered in the royal presence—Lord Forester, Lord Kinsale and the master of Trinity college, Cambridge.

Venezuela Wants Immigrants.

The Venezuelan government has contracted for the importation of 15,000 families from the north of Italy. Lands and houses will be given them and they will be assisted in a financial way. It is expected that they will develop the cultivation of fruits and cereals and will pay special attention to the growing of vines and manufacture of wine. Each immigrant will get fourteen acres and it is asserted that this amount of land is too small for growing cereals. The United States consul at Caracas says that when the fruit-producing capacity of this cloud of immigrants is developed a market must be sought in the United States. There is none in Venezuela.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Goes Straight to the Cause of All Female Troubles and Assures a Healthy Maternity.

Mrs. M. SINGER, 104 Hudson Ave., Rochester, N. Y., writes to Mrs. Pinkham as follows:

"When I applied to you for advice I had been suffering some years from debility, nervousness, etc. I had had several miscarriages and was pregnant when I wrote to you.

"I am grateful to say that after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was considerably better, and after using three more it brought me where I am to-day. I am well, and the mother of a three-months' old baby.

"Doctors had failed to help me. I have no one to thank but Mrs. Pinkham and her wonderful remedy."

Mrs. ELLA DUNGAN, Reeder's Mills, Iowa, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I thank you for what your medicine and advice have done for me.

"I have a baby two months old. When he was born I was sick only fifteen minutes, whereas with my other children I was sick for two or three days, and also suffered with my left leg, and could get nothing to relieve the pain but morphine. My leg did not trouble me at all this time. I had no after pains and was not as weak as I had been before.

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly. May God bless you in your noble work."

Mrs. J. W. PRUETT, Medford, Oregon, says:

"My health, also the baby's, we owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. JOHN W. LONG, Wyoming, Iowa, writes: "I had shooting pains all over my body, was very weak and nervous. I could not straighten up. I wished to become a mother but was afraid I never could. Seventeen months ago I got some of your Vegetable Compound, and after taking half a bottle was much relieved. I took four bottles and was cured. Now I have a big baby boy which I feel I owe to your Compound. Many thanks for your kind advice."

An Interesting Experiment.

The recent plebiscite in Canada on the question of "prohibition" sustained that cause by a vote somewhat smaller than was expected, but still sufficient as an indication of public sentiment. The experiment of intrusting to the direct action of the people at the polls initiative for legislation is a novel one on this side of the Atlantic and shows a step toward the fundamental principles of socialism. There is no reason in itself why such a method of determining public action should not work happily. The "referendum" policy as practiced in Switzerland has always been that of submission of laws actually passed to the popular vote for a final indorsement. The Canadian measure reverses this, and we perceive a policy sought to be enforced on the lawmaking powers by the constitutional will of the people expressed in advance. The Dominion government, after sanctioning this initiative, should be deemed bound to carry out the expressed popular desire of the people. But it is intimated that there will be an attempt to evade it on account of the peculiar position of the premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was elected from Quebec, a province very hostile to the prohibition policy. The compromise hinted at is that the question shall be relegated to separate provincial action, and not be treated by Dominion legislation. Should this be true it will suggest the absurd and dangerous attitude which looks at a method of political reform as a thing which can be put on and taken off like a coat according to the weather or evaded by shrewd trickery.

The late Hooley scandal in the English peerage was dropped quite summarily as far as the law courts are concerned, but the papers have produced many pithy comments on the whole related question. It seems that a certain class of the peerage, of the type involved in Mr. Hooley's transactions, whose members are known as "guinea pig" peers, has long been in evidence. The Critic's list of those entitled to enter this order is quite formidable, and of course does not include a large number of the peerage who are honorably associated with companies of sterling merit. But the black sheep and the black list number 69 peers and 190 companies, an astonishing showing until one reflects that London is the greatest center of stock company promotion in the world. The companies have exploited a capital of £64,019,849, of which more than £54,000,000 belong to companies which have never paid a penny of dividend in cash or scrip. The Critic, coming down to details, cites among other examples one prize "guinea pig," the Earl of Donoughmore, who has been in 14 companies as promoter and director. The Critic goes on to say: "If we accept £250 per annum as the average amount of yearly fees received by the directors of a company which appeals to the public for capital—the fees vary from £100 to £500—we find that the Earl of Donoughmore took in fees during the years he was a director a larger sum than the shareholders of all the 14 companies received in interest for the use of nearly £3,000,000." How unfortunate for many an impetuous peer that the Hooley failure called such attention to this matter! It must have reduced many a "coronetted" income, at least for the time being.

Our consuls and consular agents in France report a great field there for an increase of American business if American merchants and manufacturers would go about it the right way, but a singular stupidity is attributed to most of them. Instead of sending their circulars, price lists, schedules and other descriptive matter printed in the French language, they send these important mediums of business in English, which not one French merchant in a score understands. The result is that this business apparatus finds its way to the wastebasket. The English speaking person everywhere appears to have the idea that it is the inherent duty of every one else to know English and that ignorance of it shows perversity of mind. Another drawback is that our merchants do not think to put prices, weights, measures, etc., into their equivalent French forms. On such little things often great results depend. Indeed all successful business is mainly accomplished in the administration of detail.

The English Language of the Future.

A fascinating theme for the speculation of students is found in the future evolution of the English language. Fixity is death, growth is life—that is the law of all organism in affairs of the mind and spirit as well as of the body. The evolution of modern English from the age and practice of Chaucer to the time of Shakespeare and his Elizabethan galaxy, and thence down to the period of Tennyson and Browning, Longfellow and Lowell can be studied as minutely as the victim of the vivisectionist's knife. The changes in the language in its accretion of words, even in some usages of construction, within a generation are quite noticeable. It is a sign of the magnificent vitality of our great tongue, alike in its written and spoken phases, that it responds so quickly to each intellectual and social need. Perhaps its very lack of a great and finally authoritative dictionary like that of Littré in French, made under the sanction of the academy, which is so tyrannical in its claims, is not without advantage.

Professor Brander Matthews of Columbia college, who has written with spirit and vivacity on kindred topics, has something to say on the future of English in the current issue of Munsey's Magazine. This critic is aggressively, even ferociously, American in his claims for this country as being the fated arbiter of the coming language. He says:

The English of the future will be the English that we shall use here in the United States, and it is for us to hand it down to our children fitted for the service it is to render. This task is ours, not to be undertaken boastfully or vaingloriously or in any spirit of provincial self assertion on the one hand or of colonial self depreciation on the other, but with a full sense of the burden imposed upon us and of the privilege that accompanies it. It is our duty to do what we can to keep our English speech fresh and vigorous, to help it draw new life and power from every proper source, to resist all the attempts of pedants to cramp it and restrain its healthy growth and to urge along the simplification of its grammar and its orthography, so that it shall be ready against the day when it is really a world language.

No doubt this responsibility rests in considerable degree where Professor Matthews puts it. But does he concede no share in it to our English cousins, to the influences which stir at the very fountain head of English speech? This is a little selfish in the pundit of Columbia. America has certainly greatly affected England in its habits, usages and modes of speech, and England has returned the pleasant compliment vigorously. If the one country has been Americanized, the other has been Anglicized in many familiar usages of life and speech. That this country adds fresh verbal wealth to English more rapidly than does the more conservative people is true. But the process is really reciprocal. It is sure to become more and more so in the future, for more intimate acquaintance and the sense of a common heritage are making constant strides. Englishmen are more particular in using and pronouncing words than we in America, if we are more prolific and creative. Both functions are needed by healthy growth. Let the spirit of co-operation extend to literature and language as well as to public affairs. The proper way to phrase Professor Matthews' prophecy is not that the new English will grow out of its American modifications, but that it will grow simultaneously by them and by British changes and by Australian variations. The United States will only play its big part, though that will be a great one indeed.

An amusing item in The Straits Budget describes a masquerade ball given by a Chinese club in Malacca. It goes to prove that John Chinaman is not always such a fossil as he is supposed to be. This society item was as follows: "Li Chin' Hi appeared as a courtier of Queen Elizabeth; Chi Kang Cheng as Henry II, with a pigtail; Koh Tiong Siew as a barrister; Chan Koon Cheng wore a dress entirely covered with stamps, as a Liverpool indigo merchant; Pan Chay Yan wore the kilt of a highlander; Lee Chim Giang was a fourteenth century gentleman; Lee Ching Bong went as George III, and Oh Seng Giap as the queen's coachman. But the most pathetic figure in the list is Chee Wang Cheng, who was absent. He was to have appeared as Napoleon Bonaparte." One marvels how the revelers managed the sacred pigtail on such an occasion.

The average reader thinks of the Aleutian islands as icebound rocks inhabited by barbarians and bears wearing heavy fur garments to keep off the winter cold. According to Governor Brady of Alaska, these islands are covered for nine months of the year with the most luxuriant and succulent grass and are certain in the future to support large herds of sheep and cattle. The Aleuts, too, are among the most docile, industrious and intelligent of American races.

Romance in Modern Life.

Prosaic as the world seems to have become in so many particulars, the passion for the romantic and unusual experience of things is always aglow at the bottom of men's thoughts. One of the curious literary phenomena of recent years is the extraordinary revival of the taste for tales of adventure. Publishers can scarcely print clean books of this kind fast enough to satisfy the public taste. The modern world, too, not only craves to read of strange adventure, fictitious or otherwise, but furnishes an ample stock of hardy and venturesome souls eager to undergo adventure, be it never so dangerous. At no time, for example, has the passion for exploration been so venturesome and assumed so many phases of experiment as in the present. The imaginative element as a factor in human experience is securing ample recognition as a dominant impulse.

No revelation of personal experience has ever more thoroughly fascinated the curiosity of English society than the alleged adventures of M. Louis de Rougemont. Even the grave and reverend seigniors of the British association have listened with enchanted interest to the story of the eloquent Frenchman, who has been called the modern Robinson Crusoe. There are skeptics, however, who insist that he should be rather designated the French Ananias. It is the saving fact that no imagination, however daring, would ever have devised so extraordinary a story, for fear that it would at once be disbelieved and the inventor ejected from society as a veritable Munchausen in flesh and blood. This is indeed the attitude of cold blooded critics, but the majority of judges find in Rougemont's coherence and intelligent grasp of the fitness of things something which baffles all attempts at doubting cross examination. De Foe's hero pales before this living narrator of castaway experiences on Pacific coral reefs and among tribes of Australian cannibals. It is fair to say that so far as investigation can vouch for the truth of M. de Rougemont's adventures it is in his favor.

The point of interest in the present connection is the bearing of the adventurer's story as an object lesson in the passion for romanticism, which kindles so easily and surely. It is what men do and dare and suffer, whether in a great cause or in pure love of adventure, which takes a more strenuous clutch on human interest than what they think. This is the common ground where men and women of every grade of intelligence meet and understand each other. It is not necessary to assume that action is the higher function of life, but all appreciate its modes in that thrill of flesh and blood which so instantly quivers delightfully. So we see a man like Lord Kelvin or Haeckel, fresh from abstract and erudite investigation, stand open mouthed before the daredevil adventurer Rougemont, listening with as much absorption as Desdemona listened to her sooty charmer. Even science and philosophy love the romantic. Darwin's greatest enjoyment was novel reading, and the most sensational sort of fiction at that.

Joaquin Miller's funeral pile has been erected by the eccentric poet near Oakland, Cal. Eight feet in height, it covers 100 square feet in area and is built of rough bowlders of unequal sizes. Or the top of this the poet will one day be cremated and his ashes scattered to the four winds of heaven if his will is carried out. This poetic fate is highly suitable to the career of the "bard of the Sierras."

"The Daughter of the Confederacy" is to have no successor. This is as it should be. But one person could legitimately have held that name beloved in the south.

It is man only that ever laughs, all the other animals living very seriously.

The ice and coal men are smiling a smole thus early—but lo, the lo—"nic" for ice cream.

Peter Nimskey, one of our efficient officers, took the train for the city Tuesday on business.

A mean Jubilee week. Those from here who intended to see the sights stayed quietly at home.

Emil Frank made a business trip "by" Chicago the first of the week, returning Tuesday evening.

J. C. Whitney has been employed at the Union Stock yards, Chicago, inspecting cattle. He expects to be employed in the city all winter.

The dance at Quinten's Corners last Saturday evening was fairly well attended. It appears that some unruly beings were present to participate.

Everybody seems busy, but then some of the boys find time to lie themselves away to see their best girl. "OBSERVABLE."

There appears to be great speculations in regard to saloons which are to be operated in the spring. We only hear such talk when the wind is at its highest.

Messrs. Wm. Tonne, Chas. Wewitzer, Gus Bollenbach, Gottfried Waltz, Luth Clifford and Wm. Knigge, attended the dance at Quinten's Corners Saturday evening.

The law suit of Ballenback vs. H. Daverman, before Justice Ficke last Monday, for assault, resulted in a fine of $3 and costs, which amounted to $9.50 for Mr. Daverman.

Wm. Ernesting entertained several days a host of his city friends, who came out to enjoy some sport in hunting. We all know that Will knows a thing or two about sport.

Zurich has within its fold many theatrical-inclined people who seem to be possessed of the qualities necessary to become performers. Now why not get up an entertainment of local talent? If not, why not?

Two Elgin sports came to Zurich for a lark the first of the week. They were held a short time on suspicion for stealing a rig from Huntley parties. The 'phones came into play and brought things to light to prove they were not the guilty ones, and they were released.

Henry Branding and Herman Schulz have taken the contract to gravel the roads inside the corporation. Talking about gravel, why wouldn't it be a good thing to have some of it done outside of the corporation as well?

Salem Craver of Spencer, Iowa, formerly of this place, having conducted a store some fifteen years ago in the building now occupied by G. Fiedeler as a meat market, visited with old friends in these parts the last few weeks.

R. D. Connaly of Waukegan has been here this week. Mr. Connaly has secured the contract of covering the ice houses with the famous Alspalt roofing, which is claimed to be superior to all other kinds on the market, and at a low cost too. Orders for same can be left with Al. R. Ficke. Sample of roof can be seen on Mr. Bruce's residence.

With the increase of scholarship at the school we will briefly state that the teacher, Mr. Hodge, has more than he can attend to; therefore, we agitate that he receive an assistant and grade the school. The system of teaching, the principal has, is one of imparting knowledge to the pupils without any hard exertion on the part of the scholars.

D. Huntington, candidate for county clerk on the Democratic ticket, was in Vernon township recently. Every one he met was enthusiastic and openly declared himself in favor of Mr. Huntington. Mr. Huntington has represented Ela as supervisor for many years and discharged the duties in a competent manner and is well liked by all who know him.

During the heavy wind and rain storm Monday afternoon Bruce's new ice house in the course of construction collapsed, destroying about $400 worth of building material. It is said that it was not properly propped. The Ottawa company, who took the contract, are the losers. A large force of men is now at work and the erection of the building will probably be rushed as it is getting late for building.

We can now see where gravel roads would be of a benefit. Just take a drive over the roads in our neighboring townships and see what they are enjoying and then look back at what we have to put up with daily. Farmers, one of the most essential things to the farm is good roads to the markets. The time to have good roads is now while you can enjoy them. Don't sit down and think they will come by and by—Agitate the question.

The Lake County unions were defeated at Arlington Heights last Sunday. The score was up to—psaw! we don't want to give it—but the Arlington's had an awful score. It was about like that first game of theirs with the B. B. Oil company. We are of the opinion that our boys did not play their usual game, being defeated not by Arlington's skill but through the Union's errors. We hope that the next game will bear us out in this statement. The score was 17 to 4.

Going Without Sleep.

It is an interesting question to studious people how long a man can go without sleep. A physician asserts that no healthy man can overwork because eventually nature will compel him to fall asleep at his task. A journalist recently claimed to have worked 72 hours without sleeping. Humboldt said that when a young man he required only two hours sleep each night, but that in his old age he found he really needed as many as three or four. Victims subjected to the Chinese torture of being kept continually awake die on or before the fifth day. By far the most inspiring example, however, is that of one of the saints, who is related to have lived 19 years without sleep and to have remained standing a large portion of that time.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Inscrutable Carlyle.

A lady who lived near Thomas Carlyle kept Cochon China fowls, and their crowing was such a nuisance that the philosopher sent a complaint to her. The owner was indignant upon hearing the appeal.

"Why," said she, "they crow only four times a day, and how can Mr. Carlyle be seriously annoyed at that?" Upon hearing of her attitude upon the subject, Carlyle replied, "The lady forgets the pain I suffer in waiting for those four crows."

Rather Mean.

"Did the old skinflint give you a reward for returning his pocketbook?" asked the policeman of the little newsboy who helps support his mother. "Naw, he tried ter make me pay for de advertisin 'cause I didn' return de stuff fore I knowed who it b'longed ter."—Detroit Free Press.

SUNK OFF ENGLISH COAST.

Steamer Mohegan Wrecked in a Furious Gale.

APPALLING LOSS OF LIFE.

Only Thirty-One Rescued of the Two Hundred Souls on Board—Lifeboats Unable to Render Assistance on Account of the Heavy Sea.

The Atlantic Transport company's steamer Mohegan, formerly the Cleopatra of the Wilson and Furness-Leyland line, which left London for New York Oct. 13, with 150 passengers and a crew of fifty, went ashore off the Lizard, on the coast of Cornwall, England.

Of the entire number of persons aboard when the ship foundered but thirty-one are alive. A part of this number are passengers, with a few members of the crew.

All the Falmouth tugs went out to render assistance, but none was able to approach the vessel.

The Mohegan was one of five vessels recently purchased from the Wilson and Furness-Leyland line by the Atlantic Transport company to replace the Mohawk, Mobile, Massachusetts, Michigan and Mississippi, which were sold to the United States government to be used as transports.

His three predecessors, taken in order going backward, were Benjamin Franklin Jonas of Louisiana, Judah P. Benjamin of the same state, one of the most noted of senators, and David L. Yulee of Florida. Mr. Simon will have to distinguish himself on the floor of the senate to equal any of his three eminent kin. Of the four Jewish senators only one was born in the United States. ## Seven Days' Doings in the Prairie State—Telegrams Received from Various Points.

Twenty Years a Prisoner.

Rockford, Ill.—Samuel Ensign, an engineer of the old-time Racine & Mississippi railroad, and a resident of this city many years ago, has returned, old and broken in health, with a sad story of imprisonment and suffering in Cuba. When Ensign left Rockford he went to Cuba, where he obtained a situation as an engineer in a sugar refinery. One night Ensign, with two fellow-workmen, resisted an assault being made upon a native woman by Spanish soldiers. The next morning all three were taken prisoners to Havana, where they were placed in Morro Castle. One of them died in seven months, and the other lived two and a half years. For thirteen years and five months Ensign alleges he was confined in the castle, allowed to speak to no one, and only walk through a corridor 240 feet long for recreation. At the expiration of that time he was taken out and set to work with a ball and chain on his ankle at constructing a plaza. At that he worked for more than five years. He became friendly with priests and attendants in a neighboring monastery, and one night was spirited away and placed on a man-of-war that finally landed him in Mexico. When placed in prison, Ensign claims he had certificates of deposit to the amount of $8,000 and $1,000 in money, none of which was returned to him.

Increase in Revenue Receipts.

The internal revenue receipts for Chicago for the last quarter were $1,035,153, as compared with $1,656,014 for the corresponding period last year. The stamp tax on documents and proprietary articles prescribed by the war revenue bill has contributed over $1,000,000. As the result of the $100 tax imposed on bankers, Board of Trade brokers, and others, the collection on list has risen from $7,736, for the quarter last year, to $190,877. The revenue derived from spirit stamps has increased nearly 300 per cent, despite the removal of several distilleries into another division. The comparative table follows:

Collection on lists...	$190,877	$7,736
Bear stamps sold...	1,707,641	958,066
Spirit stamps sold...	229,545	91,297
Cigar and cigarette stamps	145,507	128,200
Snuff stamps	12,466	6,140

Bryan to Harvey.

Chicago. — Col. William Jennings Bryan recognizes General Manager Harvey of the Democratic party and has endorsed his work. General Manager Harvey has received a letter from Col. Bryan dated at Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 2. It reads: "My Dear Sir—I inclose a pledge for monthly contributions to the cause of bimetalism until October, 1900, together with the installment for this month. I most cordially indorse the plan adopted by the committee and am confident it will result in the collection of a large fund for the circulation of bimetallic literature. Since our fight is in the interest of the 'plain people'—to use Lincoln's phrase—or the 'common people'—to borrow a Bible term—we must appeal to them for the means of carrying on the contest. The financiers can contribute large sums to support the gold standard because the monopoly of money gives them great pecuniary profit. Surely you can appeal with confidence to the millions who suffer from a rising dollar and falling prices. Having brought freedom to Cuba the American people can renew the struggle for the financial independence of the United States."

Galesburg Cheers Shafter.

Galesburg, Ill.—Thursday was the peace jubilee day of the street fair, and the chief event was the visit of Gen. Shafter. He arrived at 3 o'clock and was met by a parade in which four companies of the Sixth Illinois regiment—A of Rock Island, O of Abingdon, H of Monmouth and C of Galesburg—with Capt. McGarr in command, had the place of honor. An immense crowd greeted the general, and thousands were assembled at the reviewing stand. Mayor Cooke delivered a speech of welcome and Gen. Shafter responded at length, giving the chief features of the Santiago campaign and praising the army highly. At the conclusion of his remarks there was enthusiastic cheering for him and Col. Roosevelt. After a short reception at the Union Hotel the general and his party were dipped at the home of Lieut. Phillips and were then driven to the station to meet President McKinley. He then left for Omaha.

Chicago Man Chosen.

New York—E. H. Gary of Chicago, chief counsel for the Illinois Steel Co., has been elected to the permanent presidency of the Federal Steel Co. The directors were chosen as follows: J. Pierpont Morgan, New York; H. H. Porter, Chicago; Marshall Field, Chicago; Norman B. Ream, Chicago; E. H. Gary, Chicago; Robert Bacon, of the Morgan Banking House, New York; D. O. Mills, New York; Samuel Mather, Cleveland; Roswell P. Flower, ex-governor of New York; C. C. Cuyler, New York, and Nathaniel Thayer, Boston. The three men who filed the articles of incorporation in New Jersey are retained as nominal directors to complete the full board. It is expected, however, that in a few weeks John W. Gates, president of the Illinois Steel Co., and Samuel Spencer, president of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railway, will take the places of two of them. One of the projects that will be considered by the new Federal Company will be the establishment of a mammoth shipbuilding plant in or near New York for the construction of steel merchant vessels and men-of-war.

May Free Prisoners.

Chicago.—After the garbage question consider the prospect of turning loose upon the streets of Chicago 900 inmates of the house of correction," said a well-known attaché of the city hall. "The bridewell situation is as embarrassing as it is critical, and it is highly probable that Judge Tuley's decision regarding the power of the municipality in the matter of appropriations may unlock the heavy doors of the local bastille." This remark was called forth by the fact that Supt. Adolph Sturm called on Mayor Harrison yesterday and declared that he had been advised by Judge Tuley to release his wards if the bridewell appropriation has been exhausted as claimed. The venerable jurist insisted that the law was clear and that the city had no right to make any appropriations after the annual budget had been announced in the spring. It therefore appears that the only alternative is to close shop and "turn the rascals out." Judge Tuley is also said to have discouraged Supt. Sturm's proposition to purchase bridewell supplies on credit.

Favors Sanitary District.

Joliet, Ill.—Judge Hilscher has ruled that all evidence concerning the right of the commissioners of the Illinois and Michigan Canal to control the water power on the Channahon level shall be excluded from the testimony in the suit now being tried against the sanitary district of Chicago. This ruling aids the case of the sanitary district, as it narrows the issues to those named in the bill and answer. Attorney P. C. Haley, representing the sanitary district, said this evening that the case was progressing favorably and that the evidence for the district was much more complete and satisfactory than he had hoped for in advance. Both he and Attorney Hayes have every expectation of a decision for the sanitary district. It will probably be two weeks before the case is submitted to the judge.

N. M. C. Elects Officers.

Galesburg, Ill.—The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Illinois Y. M. C. A. began its session here Thursday. The convention was called to order in the Presbyterian church by W. S. Herrick of Chicago, president of the state association. The nominating committee reported on the following officers, who were elected: President, Ashley J. Elliott, Peoria; vice presidents, John Lass of Galesburg, J. J. Milne of Monmouth, A. K. Deblois of Shurtleff and W. S. Kenneth of Streator; secretary, A. C. Bridgman of Polo; assistant secretaries, T. R. Camp of Chicago, W. W. Dillon, University of Illinois. The report of the state executive committee was read by Mr. Herrick. It gave statistics of the year's work, of an encouraging nature. The work in the army camps was described as successful.

Ready for Mustering Out.

Springfield, Ill.—The physical examination of the men and the field and staff officers of the Fifth Infantry was completed Thursday, and the men now await the arrival of the paymaster and the mustering out officers. Col. Culver today received a telegram from Washington telling him the regiment might remain in camp until the 21st if it desired, but if it did so it would be without pay or rations after next Sunday. Gen. John McNulta of Chicago wired if the regiment desired to attend the peace jubilee he would furnish transportation and subsistence.

The Second, Fourth and Ninth Illinois regiments at Jacksonville, under Gen. Lee, which are to see service in Cuba along with the Eighth, now at Santiago, are becoming anxious to know how long they are to remain there. It is learned at the war department that the volunteers now in Cuba and Porto Rico and those that will soon be sent there are to remain until congress authorizes an increase of the standing army.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL, OUR AUTHOR GUEST.

Since Israel Zangwill came to America he has made himself amazingly conspicuous. He talked for the press about the Philadelphia production of "Cyrano de Bergerac," and his first lecture on American soil was by no means flattering to gentlemen who criticize play actors and plays for the daily newspapers. Zangwill is only 35 years old, but he has accomplished a great deal. Sprung from one of the poorest hovels in the Ghetto of London, he got his early education in the Jewish free school of the big town. He spent a few years teaching in the east end. His brilliant wit—brilliant even for a Jew, and Jewish wit is proverbial—attracted one of the Rothschilds, who offered to set him up in life. Zangwill rejected the offer. He preferred to win his way, and he has done it. He began his literary career as a writer of jokes at $5 per week. He has written several books, but "The Children of the Ghetto" is by far his best. No one but a Jew can know how very great that book is, and it is not every Jew who can appreciate it. But for those who know the life of the Ghetto it is Dickens and Shakespeare rolled into one. In certain quarters it is alleged that the Zangwill of today is a Jew only in blood—that the poor of his race hate him, and the orthodox revile him. Perhaps that is partly true. But it is not to be denied that the great mass of liberal Jews the world over admire Zangwill for his originality, his dash, his daring and his marvelous descriptive genius.

Overproduction of Poultry.

Overproduction of poultry and eggs is a possibility, but that such has at any time occurred is doubtful, says the Poultry Keeper. The fear that the market may be overstocked has deterred some from venturing largely in poultry, but such fears have never been realized. It is not unusual to find the market full at all times, not only of poultry and eggs, but of all kinds of produce; though there is a great difference in quality. It has been said of butter that there was no intermediate kind, as butter was either good or bad. If not of the best quality, it was of no value; and if a little inferior to the best, there was no place for it whatever. Such may be said of eggs also, and it may be extended to poultry. Quality regulates the price. A difference of only one cent a pound on poultry or a dozen eggs seems insignificant, but when a large business is conducted the difference is great. As long as there are several prices for the products the market is overstocked with the lowest priced articles only. The best will be in demand, and will sell for all that it is worth; but the term "best" means a great deal, for it includes everything pertaining to superiority. There is a large field open for those who aim to supply the market with the best; and every season they will find that they have room for improvement in order to excel. There is also much to learn in order to know how to provide the market with the best, and the market will accept it readily at all times and without regard to the quantity of inferior grades that may have been offered for sale. There is something more to look after than feeding and caring for the fowls. To produce the best, the hens must be of the best. This demands the use of the best breeds. No farmer can afford to raise chickens for market from the common stock, for the reason that no system of feeding will enable the inferior birds to equal their superiors. With the breeds for the purpose the market can be supplied with something choice, and there will be little or no competition. Overproduction of the best is a result not yet attained. It is anticipated by many, and as long as the farmers will not improve their flocks, the market will always demand more.

Mating for Size.

Mr. E. Cobb, in the Feathered World of July 29, makes the following remarks on mating for size and shape: "The male bird undoubtedly exercises a certain amount of influence in regard to the size and shape of the offspring; but to attempt to remedy—as so many amateurs do—the deficiency of size in their stock by the purchase of an extra large cock, is the wrong way to go to work. The hen has far more influence over both the size and shape of the progeny than the male has. Take a broad shouldered, deep chested cock and mate with narrow shouldered hens, deficient also in breast, and the result of such a union will be but little, if any, improvement. Had, however, the tables been turned, and the hens possessed the size instead of the cock, far greater improvement would appear in the offspring; but, as we before remarked, the male bird does exercise a certain influence. It will be found that by breeding from large hens and a cock deficient in this respect the pullets produced show a far greater improvement than is observable in the cockerels, and it is only by continuing the process of breeding from large hens that the cockerels will far outdistance the original cock. There is no question but what the best plan is to have size and shape on both sides; but if a deficiency must occur on one side or the other, do not let it be on that of the hens."

The above is truth undeffiled. We regret that a common practice among amateur fanciers is a tendency to breed from overgrown and abnormally large males. Many a fine cockerel, because he happens to be undersized, albeit correct in shape, is cast aside, and some big, coarse brute, because of his size, is selected to mate with an average lot of females. Mr. Cobb's advice should be carefully considered and followed.—American Fancier.

Tuberculin in Australia.—Mr. Cameron, veterinary inspector to the board of health, Victoria, has issued a report showing the result of his experiments with tuberculin as a test for tuberculosis in dairy cattle. Mr. Cameron expresses the belief that the test never fails if it be properly applied. Exhaustive experiments were made on the herds at the Leongatha labor colony. A number of cows reacted to the test, and on being slaughtered were all found to have tuberculosis. Forty showed no reaction, and fifteen months later were again injected, and showed no reaction. Two were slaughtered, and found to be free from tuberculosis. Mr. Cameron is satisfied that, if the whole of the dairy herds in the colony were tested, and the cattle affected condemned and slaughtered, tuberculosis in cattle could be easily stamped out.

The kitchen garden is not usually appreciated for the reason that the farmer does not keep an account of its returns.

Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But you can get DR. INCLINATION, DR. EXPERIENCE and DR. REASON to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."

Causes of Death.

An Austrian professor estimates that only 900 persons out of 1,000,000 die from old age, while 1,200 succumb to gout, 18,400 to measles, 2,700 to apoplexy, 7,000 to erysipelas, 7,500 to consumption, 48,000 to scarlet fever, 25,000 to whooping cough, 30,000 to typhoid and typhus and 7,000 to rheumatism. These averages of course vary according to locality. Smallpox does not even get a place in the list. Was this Austrian professor an antivaccinator?—London Globe.

Ways and Means.

Home Seeker (inspecting a flat)—How in the world are people to live in such little cubby holes as these?
Agent—Easy enough, mum. All you need is folding beds and camp chairs and self doubling up tables and a few things like that.
"Humph! I can hardly turn around in these rooms myself."
"I see, mum. It's too bad to be so afflicted, mum. You should take anti-fat."—New York Weekly.

The Syrians regarded the rose as an emblem of immortality, the Chinese planted it over graves, and in the Tyrol it is said to produce sleep. Rose leaves are sometimes thrown on the fire for good luck. In France and Italy it is believed that rosy cheeks will come to the lass that buries a drop of her blood under a rosebush.

One of the humors of the day comes from a large and prosperous western city. During the Centennial fair of 1876 the Spanish commissioner presented the public library of the town with a pair of the first Toledo blades. During the recent war they were taken from the wall which they ornamented and hid away in a dark closet. The flash of Spanish steel did not alarm our soldiers nearly as much.

There's a Tenderness

About our meats that is appreciated by the cook.

It is not necessary to pound the steaks with a mallet to make them yield up their juiciness. Nor to use great care in broiling or roasting.

Our beef, lamb, veal, mutton and pork is so good in itself that the chances of spoiling them in bad cooking are small.

Every piece of meat we sell is cut from prime, well fed and carefully handled animals.
