Election Tuesday.
 Harvest home social Thursday.
 Rev. Frank Crane's lecture Friday.
 Mrs. Kate Swick returned from Iowa the first of the week.
 W. L. Hicks entertained his brother from Wauconda this week.
 Mrs. Stroker and daughters, Emma and Bertha, are visiting friends in Minnesota.
 Mrs. Dr. Frank Olms of South Elgin visited Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Olms and family over Sunday.
 Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson went to Georgia last week for the benefit of Mrs. Wilson's health.
 Mrs. Flora Hurd Joiner of Minnesota, with her two children, are visiting with Mrs. French.
 Many of the trains on this division have changed time. Look up the new time card and don't get left.
 Miss Agness Grosscoff of Irving Park has been a guest of her cousin, Bertha Horstman, this week.
 The boys were rather quiet on Halloween night, which was perfectly satisfactory to our citizens.
 Hosea Sawyer is teaching a rural school near Barrington. He commenced his duties last Monday.
 Rev. Frank Crane will lecture on "What will you do with it?" Come and hear him next Friday night.
 The Court of Honor initiated five new members last Thursday night, making a membership of about a hundred.
 Harry Catlow of Evanston surprised his friends by announcing his marriage to a young lady of that place in July.
 Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Garms attended the wedding of their son, Louis, in Minnesota the first of the week.
 Mrs. William Brockway celebrated her birthday anniversary last week. Eighteen relatives were present and enjoyed the occasion, as usual.
 Misses Sadie and Alma Voss celebrated their 9th and 7th birthdays, respectively, Tuesday of last week and invited a number of little friends to help celebrate the occasion.
 Miss Anna M. Jewell entertained the seniors and juniors of the High school with a Halloween party last Saturday night. A grand, good time is reported by those present.
 Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Frye wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted and comforted them in their late bereavement.
 Miss May Baker entertained a number of friends at her parents' home last Friday night. Miss May is taking a course of instruction in the millinery art at the Armour Institute in Chicago.
 Again that musical tone which proceeds from the railroad tower is cracked in two. John is waiting for a new one, when the approach of trains will again be announced in sweet melody.
 A band of Gipsy women took in the town Monday and begged at every place they could. These people should receive a cold reception from all, for just so long as they are supported in this way they will continue to disgrace our streets. The men belonging to the band were in the woods south of town while the women were begging for their support.
 Among those invited to attend the Harvest social in the Methodist church next Thursday night are: President and Mrs. McKinley, Chauncey Depew, all officers and soldiers of the army, the members of the navy, all civilians, Republicans, Democrats, Prohibitionists, Independents, married people, those who wish they were, boys and girls—old and young—and whosoever hath a quarter of a dollar. Chicken pie and beans will be on the bill of fare, besides many other eatables. You are guaranteed to be filled.

The following have been appointed judges and clerks of election for next Tuesday: M. Reynolds, H. Schirding, Chas. Nichols, Ira W. Frye, Frank Keyes and A. G. Smith.

The Democratic rally of Thursday night brought out a good crowd from both parties. Several candidates were present and made addresses, including Judge Prentiss of Evanston, who spoke in his usual manner.

The fire bell rang again last Friday evening. An oil stove which was turned over in John Umbdenstock's home, over Schoppe's store, blazed up considerably and was the cause of the excitement. The fire was easily smothered.

The following football games have been scheduled for the season: November 5, St. Charles, at St. Charles; November 12, Northwestern University Scrubs; November 19, Northwestern University Dentals; November 20, Tigers of Chicago.

Next Tuesday is the election and it is hoped that the people of Palatine will show enough interest in their country's welfare to come out and vote their convictions. A man who has no interest in elections shows a poor spirit of patriotism. Every one vote, and vote right.

The chancellor of Nebraska University says of Crane's lectures: "Unique, epigrammatic, humorous, eloquent—salt, pepper, beefsteak, brown bread, strawberries and cream—dawn, twilight, daylight—zephyrs, thunder and lightning. Makes one glad, sad, mad; hating his own meanness and that of others." Come and hear him.

Mrs. Frank Wilson and sisters, Grace and Nellie Campbell, have gone to Ravenswood to live, where they will establish a dressmaking business and take a few boarders. Mrs. Wilson is an old resident here and our people are sorry to lose her and her popular restaurant.

Mr. F. J. Filbert and family entertained two soldier boys this week. Mr. Chas. Ream of Hampshire, a member of the 6th Illinois, who was a campaigner in Cuba and Porto Rico, was a guest on Monday and Mr. Filbert's nephew, Mr. Chas. Decker, accompanied by his mother, was a guest on Tuesday, he being on his way back to Savannah, Ga., to join his regiment, the 49th Iowa, which has been ordered to Havana. Mr. Decker's home is in Jessup, Iowa.

A good sized crowd attended the Republican rally in Batterman's hall Saturday night and much enthusiasm was created by the speakers at times. C. S. Cutting made an interesting and logical address in his usual nice way and was heartily applauded at intervals. Senator John Humphrey and E. S. Alling made a few remarks and Hon. E. S. Taylor of Evanston finished with a hot address which made a fine finish to the meeting. The Palatine band furnished the music.

Palatine Wins This Time.

The Palatine Athletic Club football team won a contest with the Wheaton team on the local gridiron last Saturday. The Palatine team should have run up a nice score, but lack of team work made the scoring slow. Stroker played quarter in the absence of both men who have been playing the position, and he did good work. The individual playing of each man was good and by proper training the team will be as strong, if not stronger than last year. Much time was spent in wrangling during the game, which otherwise would have been counted in scores for Palatine. The boys have practiced hard for the game with St. Charles this afternoon and they hope to win. Mr. Benson will probably play with the team and John Fink and John Williams have donned the uniforms and have made the line a hard one for the opponents to move. A big crowd will go with the team this morning, which leaves on the 9:40 train.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Abial Frye.

Mrs. Abial Frye died at the home of her son, Ira W. Frye, Oct. 31, 1898, age 85 years. The funeral services were held at the house at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. F. B. Hardin, of the Methodist church, officiating. Sarah Carter was born in 1813 at Argyle, N. Y. In 1834 she was married to Abial Frye and with her husband she came to Palatine in 1869, where she had resided until her death. She has been a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church since 1880. She leaves two sons and one daughter to mourn her loss—Ira W. of Palatine, Frank of Troy, N. Y. and Emma of Manchester, N. H.

Rev. Joseph Addison Hallock.

Rev. Joseph Addison Hallock died October 31, 1898, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elenore Hague, 1034 Morse avenue, Rogers Park, Chicago. His varied experience antedates the memory of the oldest inhabitants, not only of our town, but of the state. As a minister, as an advanced thinker, as an aggressive and progressive force his influence helped to mold and form the spirit of Northern Illinois. As an early Methodist exporter and minister in Western Pennsylvania, he rode a circuit of six appointments, covering 3,000 miles a year, and to his joyous songs of praise, sung in the lone woods on horseback, the wolves howled a response. And still later, when slaves in Maryland started towards the light of the North star, he was one of the glorious band who engineered the road which was said to run underground, and his name is inscribed on the unwritten tablets with Lovejoy, Farnsworth, Eastman, Coddington. Later, when the way from the East to the far, far West, the methodical limits of which moved westward with ever varying boundary, he was a pioneer. As a home-maker and as a citizen he stood far in advance of the leading men of his time.

He was born in Peru, N. Y., June 1, 1811, being a descendant from Peter Hallock, one of the second landing of Pilgrims in 1640 at Hallocks Neck, Long Island. He attended college at Burlington, Vt., and was ordained as a minister at the age of 21 in the Methodist church. He remained with that denomination until about 1837, when his anti-slavery views compelled him to sever his connections with it and he embraced Congregationalism. He came to Illinois in 1842 and settled at Lake Zurich in 1844 on a farm, the deed of which bears the signature of President Jas. K. Polk.

He removed to Palatine in 1866 and from there to Chicago in 1868, where he remained until 1876 when he accepted a call at Benton Harbor, Mich. From there he went to Western Iowa in 1878. After about two years work there he transferred his labors to Florida and Georgia, working among the freedmen, who had interested him so much all his life. The last two years of his life was spent in Peotone and in and about Chicago among his children.

In 1837 he married Eliza Marie Brockway in Pennsylvania, who died at Lake Zurich in 1867 and is buried in Palatine cemetery alongside of her daughter Mary, who died in 1866 at Palatine. In 1869 he married Mrs. Lydia A. Morrell who, with the following named children, survives him: Minerva H. Kraemer, Robie H. Kleinman, Hon. Addison B. Hallock, Elenore K. Hague and Isidore M. Fountain.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?

Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care. No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.

Gray hair is starved hair. The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A Saw Guard.

In view of the fact that accidents with circular saws have always been alarmingly common, it is surprising that until very recently nothing has ever been done to protect persons who work about these saws. Of late a device has been employed that seems to promise immunity from at least a portion of the danger. It is a cap resting over the top of the saw, but in no wise interfering with its action. It is adjustable and leaves ample space for the handling of pieces to be cut. An arrangement of angles deflects the current of air which is created by the whirl of the saw to the table or the piece that is cut. This blows the sawdust entirely away from the front of the saw and enables the workman to follow the lines much more closely. It is a curious fact that the workmen themselves are the greatest enemies to guards of any kind that have been experimented with for this purpose. But as custom if not law holds the employer responsible to an extent for injuries received, it seems right and necessary that some protecting device should be adopted.

Shell Wilden.

A ROMANCE

"A man has no right to build such a house as this, and impoverish his family by so doing, unless he has means sufficient to leave them comfortably provided for," he muses impatiently. "This house must be a white elephant to Mrs. Wilden, and yet she cannot bear the idea of letting it, and moving into a place more suited to her means! Well, I can sympathize with her weakness, for, though the country round looks upon her late husband in the light of a selfish spendthrift, I dare say she still contemplates him as a departed saint." Then, no answer having come to his summons, he rings again, wondering vaguely at the great stillness which pervades the house.

Presently, however, that stillness is broken by the sound of heavy bolts being withdrawn, ending with a grating turning of the iron key; then the door is opened, and Susan stands revealed.

"I knowed it was you, sir, through peeping beside the window-blind," she explains with a slow broad smile, "or else I shouldn't ha' opened."

"Quite right, Susan," agrees Mr. Champley, stepping into the hall without waiting for an invitation—"quite right to be cautious. I want to speak to Miss Shell for a moment. Is she in?"

"Eh?" asks Susan, putting her hand behind her ear, and assuming a listening attitude—for she is a little hard of hearing, and the question is uttered rapidly.

Robert Champley again expresses his wish for an interview with Shell, and, what is more, the old woman's eyes being fixed steadily on him as he makes his demand, he feels himself growing red as he makes it. When Susan's face finally relaxes into a broad smile he feels that it would afford him infinite relief to box her ears.

"Miss Shell?" the old woman repeats, still smiling at the joke. "Her isn't here—her went away two hours ago."

"Went away—went where?" demands her visitor, looking bewildered. "Her's gone to join her ma and Miss Ruby, sure," explains Susan, in a tone which denotes that such a question almost merits contempt. "Her's main fanciful, is Miss Shell; and this morning she took it into her head all of a hop as her'd go to the moor, and carry along with her the wraps as was wanted. So nothing would do but she had me up a-helping pack at six o'clock, and running errands for books to the town till I'm fair off my legs."

"Oh, indeed—gone to the moor, has she? Well, I am very glad to hear it," answers Robert Champley, with a strange and unaccountable feeling of keen disappointment. "Mrs. Wilden, I know, was feeling anxious about her—this house is so lonely."

"No, I shan't be lonely," remarks Susan, who, only catching the last word, applies it to herself and her own affairs. "I've got permission from Miss Shell to have up my married niece and her baby to keep me company."

"A very good arrangement," remarks Robert Champley in a slow thoughtful voice; then he slips a half-crown into Susan's hand, and reluctantly retraces his steps down the weed-grown drive. "What a will-o'-the-wisp that girl is!" he muses, a little resentfully. "She might have told me she was going, and so saved me the trouble of this most unnecessary walk."

Man-like, he does not pause to consider that Shell—unless gifted with second sight—could have known nothing whatever of his intended visit, seeing that he himself decided on it only in the early morning.

He finds his brother still sprawling on the grass, still half hidden beneath the Times.

"So soon?" cries Ted, emerging with a tragic air. "I opine that your reception was not all your fancy painted it; and yet—let me investigate"—screwing up one eye in a scrutinizing way—"you look intact; there doesn't seem to be a bite out of you."

"Probably because Miss Shell was not at home," retorts Robert, with a lazy yawn.

"How providential! If I had known that I might have gone. But where has the bird flown? I trust not in this direction."

"No fear of that!" laughs Robert, a little sorely. "She has flown to Oakmoor."

"What a blessing she didn't take wing before we left!" muses Ted.

"What has the poor girl done to you that you should hate her so?" asks Robert, with a sudden burst of wrath.

Ted raises himself on his elbow and stares at his brother in solemn wonder.

"I say, the morning air doesn't seem to agree with you, old boy!" he remarks in a meditative tone. "I don't hate Shell; I know she is a brick to the children—they adore her; but, seeing that she does nothing but snub me when we meet—well, I don't adore her!"

"It is of no use to waste more words on the subject," says Robert, impatiently—"we are neither of use likely to see her again for a month or so."

"Tant mieux!" remarks Ted, placidly.

"If I couldn't pronounce French better than you do I'd stick to English!" said Robert, in a tone of irritation.

"Never mind—I shall set that all right when we are on the other side of the Channel," returns Ted, with comic confidence. "How is a fellow to speak French if he has never been abroad?"

"He needn't attempt it," says Robert, severely.

"H'm! I think I will retire behind the newspaper till the wind has changed quarter," remarks Ted, in loud confidence to the world in general.

"Well, I do feel out of temper," admits Robert, in a self-deprecating voice, as he turns and enters the house.

CHAPTER XII.

It is three o'clock. The early dinner is over at Gorse Cottage; as Violet puts it, the one excitement of the day has come to an end.

Before a freshly-lighted fire Mrs. Wilden sits enveloped in a white knitted shawl; she has established herself for an afternoon doze, and looks upon the whole tolerably comfortable. The same cannot be said of her niece Violet, who is established beside the low casement window in a folding American chair with carpet seat. A look of utter boredom mars her pretty face, whilst her pale pink costume is inartistically finished off by a woolen antimacassar—striped scarlet and black; she holds a book in her hands, but seems to be thinking rather than reading, and evidently her thoughts are not like her dress, rose colored.

"Good gracious me!" cries a laughing voice, suddenly breaking in upon the silence which has reigned in the room for the last half-hour. "What is the matter? Has everybody got colds or what, that you are all wrapped up like Egyptian mummies?"

"Shell," cries Mrs. Wilden, starting out of her half doze with a frightened look, "what has happened? Why have you come?"

"Only a freak of mine, mother dear! I just thought I should like a mouthful of bracing air!" laughs Shell, as she kisses her mother half a dozen times, and then turns a scrutinizing gaze all round the room.

Mrs. Wilden returns the kisses with interest—if one corner of her heart is warmer than another, Shell possesses that corner.

"I was afraid something had happened," she says, with her eyes still fixed lovingly on her daughter's face; "but I am very glad that you decided to join us—only you might have written, dear."

"You are welcome as the flowers in May," cries Violet, who has left her chair, and at this juncture gives Shell a cousinly hug, "only you were an awful goose to come! If I ever get back to Mudford, wild horses shall never drag me to a moor again."

"But what is the matter with the moor?" asks Shell. "I thought it perfectly lovely as we came along—so fresh and free and wild and breezy; then the village itself is so quaint—I could spend six weeks in sketching it."

"But I can't sketch, you see," yawns Violet; "and as to its being fresh and wild and breezy, why, it is like mid-winter. I doubt if I shall ever get thoroughly warm again. By the way, did you see Mr. Champley, and did you bring the wraps I asked for?"

"I did; and, what is more, I brought your velvetreen dress."

"You thoughtful darling! I believe I shall find courage to go out of doors again, now you have come."

"We certainly do find it very cold here," interposes Mrs. Wilden's gentle voice; and the house is so scantily furnished that one seems devoid of comfort."

"Comfort!" cries VI, with a laugh of scorn. "Do those American chairs represent comfort? There is no couch and no coal-box, the windows and doors are simply draught-traps, and the carpets are so full of holes one is in constant danger of tripping. Wait till you have seen the window curtains on a windy night—it is a case of perpetual motion—and, as a climax, I have only two blankets on my bed!"

"Poor, persecuted VI!" laughs Shell, much amused at her cousin's tragic face. "Oh, does Ruby stand it, and where is she?"

"Here she comes!" responds VI, who is standing with her elbows on the broad window-sill. "She has been over at Meadowcroft seeing to the children." As she speaks, Miss Wilden enters the room—she starts slightly on seeing Shell, but there is no look of welcome on her face.

"What brought you here?" she asks, imprinting a ceremony-kiss on Shell's upturned face.

"The carrier's wagon," answers Shell naively.

There issues a simultaneous exclamation of surprise and horror from the ladies present.

"What in the world induced you to come by the carrier's wagon?" demands Ruby, with a face the color of beetroot.

"The spirit of economy," answers Shell coolly. "I found a fly would be twelve and sixpence; I didn't feel justified in spending all that on myself, so I came with the carrier—I and the parcels together were only one-and-six."

"You were certainly not justified in becoming a disgrace to us all and causing the finger of scorn to be pointed at our poverty!" exclaims Ruby hotly.

"There was only one old woman besides myself," explains Shell calmly; "and I don't think she'll point the finger of scorn because she called me 'dearie' all the way, and seemed quite a pleasant old body."

"Don't scold her, Ruby—the child meant well," interposes Mrs. Wilden, with a smile at Shell. "And how did you leave things at home, dear?"

HOW TO TELL A HORSE'S AGE.

Much Experience Required and Many Things Have to Be Considered.

To distinguish merely between the young horse and the old, it is only necessary to remember a few salient facts. The first is that the milk teeth are present in the horse's mouth until he is between 4 and 5 years old. The second fact is that the "mark," or dark central depression on the surface of the incisors becomes gradually worn out, and in a horse over 8 years old has nearly always disappeared from the teeth of the lower jaw. The third fact is that the shape of the tooth is much wider from side to side than it is from front to back. As the horse becomes older the surface becomes progressively narrower, from side to side, and thus, instead of remaining always oblong, it becomes triangular, and then in very old animals flattened from side to side. In young horses, then, we judge the age by observing which of the milk teeth are present, and which have been replaced by permanent ones. To distinguish between the milk teeth and the permanent, remember that the milk teeth are smaller, whiter, and have a distinct neck. Until a colt is over 2 years old his teeth are all milk teeth, and the age is estimated from the amount of wear shown on the crowns of the teeth. Between 2 and 3 the first of the permanent teeth make their appearance, and when they are fully grown and in wear the horse is 4 years old. Between 4 and 5 the last pair makes its appearance, and now the horse has what is called a full mouth. So far both mares and horses are alike, but at or near 5 years old the canines, or "tusches," appear in the male sex only. Up to the end of this period the determination of the age is a comparatively easy matter, and any one who is at all observant can readily give the age of horses by looking at their teeth. After a full mouth is attained it is a more difficult matter, and the difficulty of accurately telling the age of old horses is greater in proportion to their age. So much is this the case that it is popularly supposed that it is impossible to tell the age of horses after they are 8 years old. This may be true to a great extent among the untrained and inexperienced, but to an expert it is not difficult to tell the age up to 15 years with a fair degree of accuracy, and after that age to approximate it within a couple of years. To do this successfully requires much experience and a careful inspection of all visible indications of age. To rely upon one only, such as the "mark," is to court defeat. All should be observed—the mark, the shape of the teeth, their length and the angle at which they meet those of the other jaw.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Money Spent for the Benefit of the Inhabitants of the Islands Will Be Paid Back by the United States, but That Is All.

The United States has demanded the surrender by Spain of the entire Philippine archipelago. The note presented by the American peace commissioners expresses the purpose of the United States to take the entire group of Philippine islands and to assume such proportion of the Philippine debt as has been spent for the benefit of the islands or their inhabitants in public works, improvements and permanent betterments.

It is also set forth that the United States will not assume any part of the Philippine debt that has been incurred by Spain for the furtherance of military or naval operations or to quell the insurrection of the natives.

In the German elections now in progress of secondary electors for choosing the members of the Prussian diet the scanty returns thus far received point to liberal gains.

Sioux City Police Disperse Riotous College Men.

At Sioux City, Ia., the police tried to break up a party of fifty students engaged in molesting residents near the Morning Side college. The students charged, but the officers checked them with a volley from their revolvers. No one was seriously hurt.

Occupation to Be Delayed.

The army of occupation will not go to Cuba until the latter part of November. The deaths of Col. Waring and Col. Beebe, who went to Havana to study the sanitary conditions, and the fact that they both had yellow fever, caused the war department to withhold orders for the departure of troops until there is no question as to their safety from the fever.

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

From the Mountaineer, Wallalla, N. Dakota.

The remorse of a guilty stomach is what a large majority of the people are suffering with to-day. Dyspepsia is a characteristic American disease and it is frequently stated that "we a nation of dyspeptics."

Improper food, hurried eating, mental worry, exhaustion, any of these produce a lack of vitality in the system, by causing the blood to lose its life-sustaining elements. The blood is the vital element in our lives and should be carefully nurtured. Restore the blood to its proper condition, dyspepsia will vanish and good health follow.

For example, in the county of Pembina, North Dakota, a few miles from Wallalla, resides Mr. Earnest Snider, a man of sterling integrity, whose veracity cannot be doubted. He says:

The Doctors Disagreed.

"I became seriously ill three years ago. The doctor gave me medicine for indigestion, but I continued to become worse. I had several physicians at intervals who gave me some relief, but the disease would return with all its accustomed severity.

"I read in the newspapers articles regarding the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally concluded to try the pills. I purchased six boxes. This was five months ago. The first box gave me much relief. I continued taking the pills, and after using four boxes was cured."

These pills are recognized everywhere as a specific for diseases of the blood and nerves. For paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and other diseases long supposed incurable, they have proved their efficacy in thousands of cases.

Afraid of Burglars.

Many and strange were the devices of our grandmothers for hoarding away their wealth, says Woman's Life, and even at the present time, despite the facilities offered by banks and burglar-proof safes, there are many women who will not intrust their savings to the keeping of another person, but who search for queer hiding places in which to deposit their possessions.

The stocking bank, the favorite hiding place of a past generation, has now become almost obsolete, except with a very few old-fashioned people in quiet, out of the way villages, yet there are many methods of storing away money and valuables equally as quaint which are still adopted by ladies.

Go South This Winter.

Perfect connection will be made with steamer lines for Cuba, Porto Rico, Nassau and West Indian ports. Tourist and Home-Seekers excursion tickets on sale at low rates. Write C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., for particulars.

In New Britain.

In the island of New Britain a man must not speak to his mother-in-law. Not only is speech forbidden to his relative, but she must be avoided; and if by any chance the lady is met, the son-in-law must hide himself or cover his face.

REGAINED HEALTH.

Gratifying Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Happy Women.

"I Owe You My Life."

Mrs. E. WOOLHISER, Mills, Neb., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I owe my life to your Vegetable Compound. The doctors said I had consumption and nothing could be done for me. My menstruation had stopped and they said my blood was turning to water. I had several doctors. They all said I could not live. I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me right away; menses returned and I have gained in weight. I have better health than I have had for years. It is wonderful what your Compound has done for me."

"I Feel Like a New Person."

Mrs. GEO. LEACH, 1609 Belle St., Alton, Ill., writes:

"Before I began to take your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer from womb trouble. Menses would appear two and three times in a month, causing me to be so weak I could not stand. I could neither sleep nor eat, and looked so badly my friends hardly knew me.

"I took doctor's medicine but did not derive much benefit from it. My druggist gave me one of your little books, and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel like a new person. I would not give your Compound for all the doctors' medicine in the world. I can not praise it enough."

Pierre Puvis de Chavannes, the French painter, is dead.

Chavannes was acknowledged the great master of mural decoration among the moderns. He occupied the distinguished position of president of the National Society of Fine Arts, the society that founded the Paris salon of the Champ de Mars. He was born at Lyons in 1825, of a noble Burgundian family, and he never was capable of adapting himself to republican ideas. His father was an engineer, and had set his heart upon the son following the same profession, but Puvis turned to painting while still in his early twenties. His success was entirely due to his own hard work, for he had small instruction. After some time spent in Italy, under the influence of Couture, he returned to Paris and in 1850 made his first exhibit at the salon. After this first success he seemed to fall and for the next nine years his works were rejected. In 1861 Chavannes discovered where his strength lay in painting the walls of his brother's country house. From that moment his fame was secure. A list of his noted mural decorations would fill a catalogue. But he did not, like most of his class, grow rich from his brush. His richest contract was that by which he earned $50,000 from his decoration of the Boston public library

Rev. W. B. Crewdson, President of the S. W. ## Aristocracy in America.

Professor Peck of Columbia college discourses pleasantly in the October issue of The Cosmopolitan Magazine on what he calls the "New American Aristocracy." By this, of course, he designates that minor body in society which, by virtue of superior wealth and alleged superior culture in mind and manners, attempts to lead America in social matters. He makes a happy hit in describing the failure of such an aristocracy to realize the highest joy of the assumed elevation of place: "The fact that is just now so depressing to our ready made patricians is the lack of any general recognition from the common herd, a general refusal to take them at all seriously. And this is fatal to an aristocratic ideal. It is all very well to feel intensely that you are a most superior person and that you are better than most of those you meet, but if you can't get them to think so, too, you will only half enjoy your lofty station; you will very often be made quite unhappy. When you go forth expecting to receive on every hand the deference due to your patrician rank and aristocratic manner and find that nearly every one regards you simply as a joke, what is the use of being a patrician? If the comic papers make all manner of fun of you and you are the subject of 'gags' upon the stage, if coarse, unfeeling persons of the lower orders attract your attention by saying 'Hey there!' and utterly forget to touch their hats and call you 'sir,' you might almost as well be just an ordinary p'ebian, for the true joy of being an aristocrat comes from the recognition of the fact by others—their admission by them of your superiority and of their own inferiority."

This irreverence for a pretended importance is the healthy outcome of the democratic ideal. The very fact of its existence on such an extensive scale is the best answer to those essayists who profess to see in America the growth of a distinct aristocratic class, such as exists in the old world. The vigorous self respect of the commons, based originally on the idea of political equality and branching thence into a thousand social ramifications, is too buoyant and elastic to underlie such an institution. The necessity, too, of the constant change of personnel in the so called aristocratic class, which has no traditions behind it, the perpetual flowing in through its boundaries of streams from the other class, deprive it of the dignity of isolation. No man has an overweening respect for what a little success will place in the palm of his hand.

Yet, on the other hand, there is no society in the world where there is such a passionate admiration of genuine superiority, where the rightfulness of higher place is often so frankly conceded, where hero worship is so easily kindled. The irreverence of the American spirit is the theme of frequent comment. But its most characteristic exhibition is in the pricking of air blown pretense, in its quick diagnosis of those things which merit the sting of mockery and contempt. Yet it is far more tolerant in this direction than sluggish in its recognition of those claims which are genuinely worth its admiration. Our democracy has proved itself perfectly consistent with our aristocracy, which properly means the recognized superior place of those who are worthy of it.

The American syndicate for Chinese railroad building, which will be financed by such backers as the Central Trust company of New York, the Rockefellers and ex-Vice President Morton, includes not a few Pacific coast speculators, one of the principal of whom secured the concession. This is of extraordinary value, involving the construction and equipment of a road from Hankow to Peking, about 300 miles, with the option of an equal distance in feeder lines. The syndicate receiving bonds to the extent of the entire cost of building and equipment, guaranteed by the Chinese government, and a percentage to cover cost of administration as well as a profit. Finally the Americans, who will have entire charge of management for 45 years, when the road becomes the property of China, will receive 25 per cent of the net income. The road being thus a charge on the income of China, is a pretty safe thing for the investors.

The man who has a great many friends is generally not capable of a deep seated and devoted friendship.

Organizing Civilization.

To govern well and wisely, even under the well established conditions of order and precedent, crystallized by the influence of use, often taxes more than common ability, but to plant and tend the germinal elements of social organization, to surround them with conditions parallel to those which foster cellular growth in the physical body, to do this in the presence of hostile elements, which always threaten to undo or retard the work, is the successful task of genius. It is the rarest achievement of administrative ability, for it demands creative power of imagination, sympathy, tolerance and infinite tact, as well as the strict sense of justice. A few notable examples come quickly to mind.

Sir James Brooke, known as the rajah of Sarawak, recreated a new order of life in Borneo among the fierce barbarian clans which made that splendid island, a reeking slaughter house through its incessant domestic broils and tribal feuds. Rajah Brooke created a district about Sarawak which became an object lesson of peace, thrift and happiness by his mild yet strict regulations, sanitary and governmental. The chiefs of the fierce head hunting tribes, won to allegiance by his tact and kindness, soon made him their arbiter and idolized him as little less than a demigod. He organized the stable conditions of civilized society out of primitive savagery. Sir John Lawrence, the great Anglo-Indian ruler, dealing with the inherited social and religious prejudices of three-score centuries, by his powerful and creative insight, his skill in adapting the old to the new established conditions of allegiance, which did more to save India to England during the great mutiny than did the armies of Campbell and Havelock.

In Lord Kitchener, whose great achievements in the African Sudan have recently called for the world's admiration, we have indications of a similar type of ruler. After smashing the Mahdist forces, his first thought is to establish a great school of instruction in the arts of practical science and industry among the fanatical Arab tribes, who have fed the dervish armies of Abdullah and Osman Digna. Here he would wean the leading men from their devotion to the narrow teachings of the Koran, by showing them what the civilization of the west would do for them and their country. But another example nearer home commends itself with irresistible force. It is that of General Wood at Santiago, Cuba. This American soldier, doctor, governor, has in a short time revolutionized conditions in the region which he administers. Commerce has revived, law is triumphant, peace has begun to exert her reproductive forces, tropical disease has been minimized, hostile and sullen forces have been placated and civilized order has been made to reign amid incipient chaos. His work, so ably done, has demanded powers far nobler and rarer than those which win great battles in the field.

The introduction of the bubonic plague into Vienna through the carelessness of an attache of a bacteriological institute is one of the most singular of recent events. Probably the disease will be speedily checked. One of its worst features is that it has aroused the anti-Semitic hate with the cry that the plague was purposely introduced by a Jewish doctor.

Two hundred soldiers forming a pyramid all waving the intertwined union jack and the stars and stripes and the apex a man waving a large banner of each nation—that was the sight seen recently at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and certainly one unparalleled in history.

Change of fashion is the tax which the poor levy on the rich. It is the people who have something to make by it who thus lead the gay world by the nose.

There is a difference between solitude and isolation in the effect on the human mind. The one vivifies and the other kills the spirit.

The newly discovered peak in Alaska, an American mountain from base to glacial summit hidden in the clouds, beats Mount St. Elias, hitherto the giant peak of the North American continent, by several hundred feet. We like the Briton, but don't propose to let him "best" us in anything, if it can be helped.

The padishah of all the faithful has managed to raise £600,000, it is alleged, to lavish presents on the German kaiser and his suit. Yet his faithful veterans and many of the officials remain unpaid. It is lucky for the sultan that the Turk is a patient, uncomplaining subject.

The agrarian war in Germany against American cattle and beef has produced what is little short of a famine. Prices have advanced 20 per cent, and large numbers of the urban population have been obliged to forego flesh food as a luxury. It is alleged that dog meat is openly advertised for sale in many markets. The Neueste Nachrichten, published at Chemnitz, a large manufacturing town, is named as a paper regularly containing advertisements for fat young puppies. Well, the Germans have the matter in their own hands. All they need do is to relax their absurdly vexatious and prohibitive inspection laws to the limits of reason. The United States is doing a brisk business at the same old stand and is prepared to sell live and refrigerated meats of all descriptions for cash or approved credit.

It is interesting to see sometimes the connection between trifles and great things. Dr Charles Merivale, dean of Ely and historian of Rome, was wont to say half seriously that it had fallen to him to preserve the empire of the East Indies to England. Dr Merivale as a boy had refused a writership in the East India company. In lieu of him it went to John Lawrence, afterward Lord Lawrence, and the most potent agency in saving India.

The Connecticut people are sore because one of the battleships now building is not to be named after the state. Secretary of the Navy Long's ingenious explanation that the Connecticutizing of one of the new monitors is a great honor, differing only as one bright star differs from another in a constellation, does not soothe the ruffled plumes of Hartford and New Haven. So the quills have been pretty active in editorial denials.

The large railroad companies are striving to obtain a mitigation for the benefit of the traveling public of the "sleeping car" robbery. It is time that the enormous profits of these plethoric corporations should be reduced more nearly to the level of other business.

A man out of place is like a dislocated bone. He suffers and makes suffering, and the misfortune is that there is so little surgery which can get at the trouble.

HON. CHAS. S. THORNTON.

Candidate for Judge of the Superior Court.

Charles S. Thornton has occupied so prominent a place in the public life of Chicago for so many years, that we take pleasure in presenting his portrait to our readers, as one of the notable candidates for judge of the Superior court.

Endowed with usual force of character, always in the forefront for the best interests of the community, he has gained a host of loyal friends and has enforced the respect of his opponents.

Mr. Thornton has practiced law in Chicago for twenty-five years and for many years he has been identified with educational interests, and has been a valuable member of the state and local boards of education. As corporation council for the city of Chicago, his administration of the great legal department of the city has been a marked success, and has added greatly to his reputation for legal ability and executive force. Under his direction of this department the city has won ninety-six per cent. of the multitude of cases thus far decided in the courts, which number at this date something like two thousand cases.

He is a member of the following organizations: Medinah Temple, Oriental Consistory, Montjoie Commandry of Knights Templars and other Masonic bodies, Odd Fellows, A. O. U. W., Knights of Pythias, National Union, Independent Order of Foresters and other fraternal societies.

Approachable, of even temper, of proven integrity, and the highest legal attainments, his elevation to the bench will be a distinct gain for the commonwealth.

The past life of Chas. S. Thornton is a plain guarantee that as a judge of the Superior court, he will be actuated by an abiding sense of duty and will so define and declare the law as to effectually conserve the public and private interest of the citizens.

Value of a Good Sneeze.

We all know from actual experience that a good sneeze is a wonderful loosener of nasal-bronchial mucus. Sir Dyce Duckworth comes forward in the "Practitioner" with the suggestion that the induction of sneezing be resorted to for the purpose of raising bronchial mucus. The idea is a good one, and worthy of being placed in practical operation. It has been explained how vomiting causes an expulsion of mucus or membrane from the respiratory passages, but sneezing appears to be quite efficient in doing this. Ordinary snuff, or any of the many simple nasal irritants, suffice, and may be blown into the nose of even a child without any danger.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Canadian Traveling Dairies.

A report of the committee of agriculture of Canada says: The mass of the people everywhere do not go to colleges, and if the women on farms are to be helped, you must carry the instruction to them. We try to make agricultural education available to all our people, and some of it unavoidable by them. We have what are called traveling dairies. A simple outfit for the making of butter is provided. It usually consists of a handpower centrifugal cream separator, a Babcock milk tester, a revolving barrel-churn, a butter worker, a pair of weighing scales, two thermometers, pails, strainers, dippers and a few other necessary utensils. The whole apparatus can be packed in boxes and loaded on a horse wagon or sent by train. The weight does not exceed 500 pounds. Usually one traveling dairy instructor, who is an expert buttermaker, and an assistant go together. The traveling dairy spends one or two—usually two—days at a place. A local committee arranges for a suitable lecture-room, which is frequently the town hall, and also for a supply of milk and cream. Two meetings a day are held, at which practical demonstration of the testing of milk and the making of butter are given. The instructor gives explanations as the processes are carried on, and an hour or so is given to a simple lecture and discussion. Two visits of a traveling dairy to a place bring about a marked improvement in the quality of the dairy butter. The women see the use of the apparatus, watch the methods of handling everything and learn something of the principles which underlie them. The neighbors who may not have attended the meetings of the traveling dairy learn from those who did. Of course, in many of the districts there are farmers' wives and daughters by the hundred who do not need such instruction, but many of these are the keenest students.

Propagating Olive Trees.

The method of producing olive trees now in vogue among European growers is to cut limbs as large as a man's arm from the trees, and from each of these start a new tree. An olive tree will not furnish more than three or four such limbs for propagating purposes. Another method is the old-fashioned one of planting seeds. This is the slowest method of making an orchard, and takes eighteen or twenty years. In California the plan is to use small cuttings. Olive trees for orchard planting used to cost $7 and $8 each. They can now be had by the thousands for 10 or 15 cents each. The cuttings, which come by hundreds from a full-sized tree, are about the size of a toothpick. They are propagated and rooted in sand in conservatories, in the same way rose cuttings are grown into rose bushes and rose trees. When the cuttings are rooted they are transferred in the warmer months of the spring to the out-of-door nursery, where they become trees three or four feet high in a year or a year and a half. The olive tree has an almost human gift of adaptation to its environment. It flourishes in a temperature that falls to 14 degrees above zero, and in the inland valleys of California, where the thermometer reaches 120 degrees, it grows, irrigated only by natural rainfall. It finds in the California foothills just as favorable surroundings as at its 4,000-foot level in Algeria and its Italian elevation of 3,200 feet. One joy of an olive orchard is that the care of it is practically nothing. Its fruit can be cured by simple primitive means, without any requirement of special experience, and the oil and pickles are easily kept or transported.

Odor in Milk.

While it is often true that what we call odor in milk comes from the filth of the stables, it is also true that there is an odor in the milk in any case, even in the milk of cows that are kept with the greatest of care. It was long ago discovered that every animal throws off a volatile oil, which evaporates about as quickly as it comes to the air, and this fine gas, produced by the change of the oil from a liquid to a gaseous form, is what assails our nostrils and is what we denominate odor. The pores that carry this volatile oil to the surface of the hide seem to be numerous and to be distributed well over the body. This is what makes scent in dogs of value. If it were not for this oil being constantly evaporated the dog would be of no value as a tracer. Many of the lower animals have their sense of smell so developed that they are able to detect a very small amount of this odoriferous oil.

Some of the tubes that carry this oil from the internal organs of the cow, where it is elaborated, have their orifices in the udder. This volatile oil thus gets into the milk, and the only way to get rid of it is to aerate the milk. The oil evaporates so rapidly that the exposure of the milk to the air, especially when it is exposed to the air in the form of small sheets or spray, results in getting it out of the milk. It also shows why the milk should not be at once covered and left covered. It is not a certain sign that the milk is dirty if there be an animal odor connected with it. But it is a sign that the dairyman does not know how to handle it.

Two Kinds of Butter.

Prof. C. S. Plumb of Indiana says: Two women drive to town, each with some butter to sell. They go to the same store. One places pound prints, neatly wrapped in special butter paper, before the store-keeper. The other puts on the counter unshapely lumps, wrapped in none too clean white cloth. That in the paper, on being unwrapped, is seen to be of a beautiful yellow color, of firm texture, with a flavor of the most appetizing character. The other, removed from its cloth, is unattractively white, somewhat soft, and with a flavor that but few people enjoy. One person receives 20 cents a pound for her product, the other 14. The store-keeper desires to buy the one of fine flavor and attractive to the eye, for such is always in demand. The other he can sell only as an inferior article, with a slow sale at that. Why should there have been so much difference in these two lots of butter? If you can learn how to make such butter as the woman received 20 cents a pound for, then you need not be ashamed to show it to your friends.

An Exhibition Coup.

Farm Poultry says: We have several requests for directions for building coops for exhibiting fowls at fairs and shows, and give above an illustration of such a coop. The illustration explains itself so well that but little by way of explanation is necessary. This coop is thirty inches high, thirty inches wide, and twenty-four inches deep—but these dimensions are by no means obligatory, as coops are built of various sizes, to suit the taste and purpose of the builder. We would urge, however, that exhibitors who supply their own coops make them roomy enough for the birds to be comfortable in; nothing is so certain to make the birds appear at a disadvantage as too close quarters. We would make a frame of one and one-half inch stuff—the ends, back and top being covered with stout serviceable duck, the floor being of half-inch matched boards, and the front being made of half-inch rods set into top and bottom of frame two and one-half inches apart, excepting that the two or three center rods are set into a sliding bed piece at bottom, and pass up through the top frame, giving access to the interior. The bed piece of the gate should slide upon the rods on each side. Short rods are set in the front, upon which to suspend cups for food and water. A curtain for the front, to be let down at night, and in day time be rolled up as in the illustration, adds to the neatness of the structure; and ornamental brass headed tacks to secure the duck ends, etc., improves the appearance. The rods in front look best if round, although eight square rods are very neat. Many owners of private coops keep them neatly painted.

Adaptation of Strawberries.

The great diversity of soils renders it exceedingly difficult to recommend varieties. Those which do well with me may not do well with you. If two varieties are set side by side, one fails, the other succeeds grandly; remove them both to another field and their success will be sometimes exactly reversed. It often happens that the same variety from another part of the country will do better; this has often been found true of the old standards, Crescent and Wilson. The only way you can determine definitely is to experiment with different varieties, bearing in mind that those sorts which do well over the greatest area of country will be the safest to plant largely, and that exhausted plants cannot be made to succeed anywhere. I do not believe there is any soil on which large crops of corn and potatoes do nicely where some variety of the strawberry will not do equally well, and this can be definitely settled only by testing.—R. M. Kellogg.

Rubber from Corn.—A new use for corn, it is claimed, has been discovered which will, if true, greatly increase the consumption of this grain. By a process of vulcanizing the oil of corn, the chemists say, that a product superior to that of the product of the South American rubber tree results, more resilient and lasting than the latter. The corn plant is being widened in its sphere of usefulness.

EVENTS IN ILLINOIS.

Seven Days' Doings in the Prairie State—Telegrams Received from Various Points.

Illinois Troops in Camp.

Savannah, Ga.—Colonel William J. Bryan of the Third Nebraska Volunteers has a mild attack of intermittent fever, according to Lieutenant-Colonel Maner, who is attending him. His condition is unchanged. Lieutenant-Colonel Vifquain is in command of the regiment. Colonel Bryan is at a hotel.

The Illinois regiments, with the exception of the Second, have finally got their camps in good shape and are rapidly getting back into the routine of camp life, which was broken by the move from Jacksonville and the consequent disorder. The Second is still clearing up camp, but everything will be in shape by tomorrow, and the drills will begin again. General A. K. Arnold and Lieutenant S. B. Arnold left for Huntsville, Ala., today, to which post General Arnold has been assigned. Colonel Andell of the Fourth Illinois and the staff officers of the regiment arrived this morning from Jacksonville. The band also arrived. Colonel Andell remained in Jacksonville after his regiment to look after the closing up of the provost guard records. The Fourth band will give afternoon concerts in the courthouse square. The weather is cold and bracing here and the boys need all the cover they can get. Some of them have been issued overcoats, but some are still without them.

Mayor Taylor Husks Corn.

Decatur.—Ten thousand to 15,000 strangers visited Decatur today to attend the Macon county corn carnival and free street fair. The weather was delightful, and there was a continual rush of people through the principal streets of the city all day, while tonight there was a great throng viewing the brilliant illuminations made by the merchants. About 3,000 Wabash employes from Forest, Springfield, Litchfield, Danville and other cities on the line of the road, with their families, visited the carnival today, and while they were here the chief officials of the company, including General Manager Ramsey, Messrs. Goodrich, McGee, Barnes, Shelah, Bruce, Raines and others arrived in the city on a special train. They were met by Mayor Taylor with carriages and a band, and given a royal reception. A tour of the streets was made, and then all went to the corn palace. The famous corn-husking match took place this afternoon in Central park, with Mayor Taylor, Sheriff Nicholson and State Secretary B. S. Tyler of the Grain Dealers' association as the contestants. It was one of the big things of the carnival, as the three men appeared in farmer outfits and worked to win, but the result was a tie, and the contest will have to be repeated tomorrow.

Mystery of the Masons.

An oval silver disk quaintly inscribed provided one of the interesting discussions at the meeting of the Ancient Society of Veteran Masons. This jewel, according to the story of Sir Knight Hamilton, was discovered in the ground underneath an old house about fifteen miles east of Nauvoo, Ill. The house was one that the Mormons built about sixty years ago. Prophet Joseph Smith was killed on June 21, 1844, and three years later the Mormons who survived his death packed up their traps and moved westward again, deserting their Illinois colony around Nauvoo. It is a well known fact among Masons that the Mormon colony at Nauvoo contained a lodge of Mormon Masons. It is believed that this silver slab was one of the principal jewels of this old-time Mormon lodge. An old-time Mason who read about the mystery said the disk is no mystery to him. He says it is well known and easily deciphered by that branch of Masonry known as Rosicrucians.

Cole County Farmers Meet.

Charleston.—The eighth annual Coles County Farmers' Institute convened in this city for a two days' session. Several prominent speakers are in attendance and some important subjects will be considered. James Riley of Thornton, Ind., will talk of "Practical Culture of Corn;" Fred N. Rankin of Athens, Ill., on "Economic Swine Feeding;" and Joseph Coombs of Arcola, Ill., of "Co-operation Among Farmers." There is a large attendance of farmers and visitors.

Illinois Centenarian Is Dead.

Waukegan.—This morning, at his home in the town of Benton, north of here, occurred the death of Samuel Voak, who was in his 100th year. He was by several years the oldest person in Lake county. Mr. Voak was a retired farmer, whose great age and until lately his good health were the wonder of all who knew him. He celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday a month ago with a family party. He leaves several children.

Verdicts in Virden Cases.

Carlinville.—The Virden coal miners riot jury, impaneled on Oct. 12, the day of the riot, returned verdicts this afternoon and was discharged by Coroner Hart. Verdicts were returned in nine cases, as follows: Albert Morgan, Thomas Preston, D. H. Killey, detectives of the Thiel agency of St. Louis; A. H. Breneman, Ernest Kintzner, Elias Smith, Edward Welsh, Frank Biljou and Joseph Ketterly. The inquests on the remaining four victims were not held in this county. The verdict in each instance was: "That deceased came to his death by gunshot wounds, in the hands of parties unknown to us."

No one in any case is censured or condemned in any way, and no suggestions or recommendations are made to the grand jury, that convenes in this city Nov. 9 for the purpose of investigating the causes of the riot and fixing the responsibility.

Capt. W. A. Chadwick Dies.

Friends of Capt. W. A. Chadwick of the Second Illinois Volunteers, who died at Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday, while on his way to Chicago, were greatly surprised to learn of his death. Capt. Chadwick had been very ill as a result of fever, but it was thought that he was on the road to a speedy recovery. Capt. Chadwick was the senior captain of the regiment, and was considered one of the finest line officers in the volunteer service. He was employed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago, having charge of the printing plant of that concern. Capt. Chadwick was 34 years old and married. His widow, who lives at 413 Belden avenue, supposed that he was passed the danger line and when the telegram announcing his death reached her she was prostrated by the shock.

Elects Officers for a Year.

Lena.—T. F. Dornblazer, D.D., of Dixon was elected president and Rev. J. K. Reed of Oregon, secretary of the Lutheran synod of northern Illinois at today's meeting. For the Women's Home Missionary Society of the same body Mrs. C. F. Fickinger of Dixon was elected president; Mrs. L. F. Dornblazer of Dixon, vice president; Mrs. G. W. Nycum of Mount Carroll, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Helen Barns of Orangeville, recording secretary; Mrs. M. M. Crozier of Lena treasurer; Miss Sophia Andreas of Dixon historian. Dixon, Ill., was chosen the meeting place of the annual session of the synod of 1899. This evening Homer W. Tope, D.D., of Freeport addressed the joint meeting on the subject of "Home Missions."

Lord, Chenoa; grand master first veil, M. C. Crawford, Jonesboro; grand steward, W. M. Orr, Chicago; grand sentinel, W. J. A. Delancy, Centralia.

Illinois Men of Finance Conclude.

Joliet.—The bankers of Illinois ended their two days' annual convention here Wednesday in a whirlwind of business and pleasure. They adopted resolutions declaring for "sound" money and an "elastic" bank currency, indorsing the good roads movement, praising the work of Secretary Gage of the treasury department and listening to the good tidings of prosperity from a dozen or more vice presidents from every part of the state. J. L. Hamilton, Jr., of Hoopston was elected president and made his inaugural address, and all the other officers for the year were elected. They are as follows: First vice president, H. H. Harris, Champaign; secretary, W. L. Moyer, Chicago; treasurer, A. B. Hoblit, Bloomington.

Goes 8,000 Miles to Vote.

Savanna.—Thomas C. Dawson, first secretary of the legation at the United States embassy at Rio Janeiro, passed through here on a long trip to cast his vote. Mr. Dawson lives at Council Bluffs, Ia., and when he reaches his home he will have traveled 8,000 miles. Mr. Dawson says that Minister Charles Page Bryan is popular in Brazil. Col. Bryan is located at Pelopalis, the mountain suburb where the president of the republic lives. Mr. Dawson, speaking of the Brazilian national celebration of independence, says that Col. Bryan is expecting the Oregon and Iowa to call at Rio Janeiro on Nov. 15.

Eggs in Cold Storage.

An inventory of the cold storage houses of this city shows that their stock of eggs at the present time is 425,000 cases, which will probably be increased to 450,000 cases before the houses close, about October 15th. As each case holds 30 dozen eggs, these 425,000 cases represent the enormous aggregate of 12,750,000 eggs. No eggs except those which are absolutely fresh and perfect are accepted by the storage companies. Those which are bought from firms who are known to employ expert egg testers, are taken without inspection, but in all other cases every egg is "candled," that is, held before a light strong enough to reveal any taint or imperfection. An expert can examine in this way twenty-five to thirty cases of eggs a day. The cold storage companies do a heavy jobbing business in eggs, and book their orders months ahead for delivery at a certain time. The business is so well organized that there are no waste products. Eggs which are not sufficiently fresh to pass muster by the experts are sold to the bakers in tenement districts, and even when they are absolutely spoiled there is still a market for them. Parts of these spoiled eggs are employed in the manufacture of photographic supplies and in the preparation of a kind of shoe polish. A disinfectant is also made from them. They are used in a process of tanning leather, and the shells have some value as a fertilizer. The states which rank highest as egg producers are: Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Dakota, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana. Among these Iowa takes the lead on account of the high quality of the poultry raised there. The cold storage houses will begin to dispose of their accumulated product about the first of January. They will then go out by the car load to all parts of the country, returning perhaps to the very localities in which they were purchased, and by the first of March not a case may remain.

A Pound of Pork.

1. It requires 13.80 pounds of skim milk to produce one pound of pork when fed with cornmeal, ration 1:1.47 to fattening hogs.
2. Skim milk could not be economically fed to fattening hogs unless it was a product which could not be otherwise utilized.
3. It required on an average 4 1/4 pounds of shelled corn to produce one pound of pork during an average period of four weeks, or one bushel produced 13 1/4 pounds.
4. It required 4 1/4 pounds of cornmeal to produce one pound of pork, or one bushel of cornmeal made into meal and fed will produce 12 1/4 pounds of pork.
5. When dry, shelled corn is more economical than cornmeal to feed fattening hogs.
6. It required 7 1/2 pounds or one bushel of ground oats to produce one pound of pork when fed with equal parts by weight of cornmeal.
7. One bushel of cornmeal is worth nearly three bushels of oats as food for fattening hogs.
8. Corn fed pigs gained 4 1/2 pounds per week and ate about 21 pounds of corn per 100 pounds of live weight.
9. Pork was produced during the cold weather, with corn at 28 cents per bushel, for less than 3 cents per pound.
10. Indian corn is the most economical pork producing material during the winter months in regions where extensively grown.—B. L. Myers, in Market Basket.

Conditions Affect Litters.—Breeders of swine desire to obtain the most prolific animals, but not all breeders have studied their business with sufficient closeness and accuracy to know that, while some strains are more fecund than others, all strains depend quite largely, in the matter of fecundity, upon the feed supplied to them and upon the general conditions in which they are kept. The sow that will drop a certain number of pigs, under certain conditions, can not be depended upon to maintain her average if the condition of her existence is changed for the worse. A sow that drops a small litter, when her surroundings are all bad, will often increase the size of her litters when her surroundings are improved.—Ex.

Keep a Flock of Sheep.—Sheep are especially adapted to a run-down farm and a run-down farmer. They require less capital than any other stock, and for the purpose stock is absolutely indispensable. A farmer who can't buy sheep can't buy any live stock at all. A small flock well cared for will run the farm up, eat up the weeds that disfigure it, and reimburse it for the fertility removed in the process of running it down, and if that don't put new life in the run-down farmer by putting money in his pocket, he is beyond the hope of recovery.—Ex.

Los Angeles Horse Show.—A great horse show is to be held in Los Angeles in January under the control of the Horse Show association of Southern California. It is reported that many entries have already been made. A pamphlet will shortly be issued by the association setting forth the rules and regulations and list of prizes to be offered.—Pacific Rural Press.

Biography.

Louisa Sophia Tegmeyer, nee Koch, was born at Welsade Kreisamt, Schaumburg Oltendorf, Germany, October 9, 1822, and died at Barrington, Ill., Oct. 31, 1898, at the age of 76 years and 21 days. She came to America in 1848, and after spending some time at Cleveland, Ohio, she came to Illinois, settling in the neighborhood of Palatine. She was joined in matrimony at Palatine in 1850 to her now bereaved husband, John Tegmeyer, with whom she shared the cares of a useful and christian life for 48 years, less one day. Their union was blessed with seven children—three sons and four daughters, of whom two sons and one daughter preceded their mother. The aged and bereft husband, one son and three daughters hope soon to meet her in the sweet by and by. She leaves a husband, four children, twenty-two grand children and many friends to mourn her departure.

Mother Mrs. Tegmeyer was converted 45 years ago in the Deer Grove church through the labors of the sainted Rev. Jacob Schafele, and remained a faithful church member to her death. She was an every-day christian and was a most regular attendant at all the church services.

She was taken sick about two weeks ago and suffered much during her last days, but all in a christian spirit. Her chair at home and place in church are vacant. Who can fill them? The church loses a very faithful and active member; Mr. Tegmeyer, a faithful and loving wife; the children, a praying and affectionate mother; the Ladies Aid society, an active member; the neighbors, a christian neighbor—but our loss is her gain.

We all hope to meet again where parting shall not be known.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at the Salem Evangelical church, Revs. Strickfaden, H. Meier and Caton officiated. Her remains were laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

There's a Tenderness

About our meats that is appreciated by the cook.

It is not necessary to pound the steaks with a mallet to make them yield up their juiciness. Nor to use great care in broiling or roasting.

Our beef, lamb, veal, mutton and pork is so good in itself that the chances of spoiling them in bad cooking are small.

Every piece of meat we sell is cut from prime, well fed and carefully handled animals.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack.
