Palatine Board Proceedings.

The village board met in regular session Monday night with all members present and President Olms in the chair.

The treasurer's report for month ending October 31, showed a balance of $65.65 on hand.

The village collector's report showed a collection of $57.57 from water consumers for the third quarter.

Trustee Ost reported the completion of the new 6-inch well, which was flowing about 600 gallons per hour. He also reported that the base of stand pipe had been repaired and the pump house and reservoir roofs painted.

Trustee Putnam reported that the flagman and gateman had requested that the board give them permission to cease work after 6 o'clock from November 1 to March 1. The matter was referred to the chairman of the judiciary committee, Trustee Taylor, to investigate the responsibility of the village in case the prayer was granted.

The matter of better street lighting was brought up by the president and after some discussion the matter was referred to Trustee Horstmann, chairman of the police and lamp lighting committee.

Trustee Horstmann brought up the matter of unlicensed dogs in the village and upon investigation it was found that the ordinance relating to same was not sufficient and Trustee Taylor was instructed to present an amendment to the ordinances, which will compel the payment of taxes on dogs at any time.

Rev. Hardin Assaulted.

A number of people gathered at the Methodist church parlors Wednesday evening to surprise him on his birthday anniversary. Mr. Hardin suspected nothing of the affair and when he walked in among a host of friends, and was attacked by Dr. Wood with $15.50 in silver, he was completely at the mercy of the crowd. He soon recovered and heartily thanked the donors. A light lunch was served and a pleasant birthday party enjoyed.

The Palatine Athletic club held its annual election in the club rooms last Friday night and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Robert Mosser, president.
 A. G. Sutherland, vice-president.
 B. L. Smith, secretary.
 Sim Snider, assistant secretary.
 G. D. Stroker, treasurer.
 I. O. Clay, H. W. Harmening, members of the board of directors.

The following program was presented by the program committee:

Nov. 11. Duplicate whist.
 Nov. 16. Ladies' afternoon.
 Nov. 17. Literary society.
 Nov. 24. Ladies' afternoon.
 Nov. 25. Club smoker.

 Dec. 9. Duplicate whist.
 Dec. 14. Ladies' afternoon.
 Dec. 20. Entertainment.
 Dec. 23. Stag club.
 Dec. 28. Entertainment.

After the business meeting the members repaired to the Masonic hall where a sumptuous supper awaited them. Before partaking of same the group was photographed by Wm. Mosser and a good picture was obtained. The club then got down to a branch of work at which all were experts and oysters, chicken, potato salad, celery, fruit, cake and coffee rapidly disappeared. Mrs. Hunnerberg needed no words to tell her that the supper was appreciated.

Speeches were then in order and the president, Robert Mosser, called upon several members, who responded to toasts to the Palatine Athletic club.

They then retired to the Masonic hall proper, where they proceeded to enjoy themselves in various amusements. The organ pealed forth popular airs and everyone joined in the singing. The game of carpet ball proved fascinating and was thoroughly enjoyed. It was past midnight before anyone thought of leaving.

Altogether it was the most enjoyable event in the life of the club. May it enjoy many more such pleasant times.

M. E. Church Notes.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church will be held next Wednesday at 2 p. m. Rally round the work basket now, ladies, all who will help. The coming bazaar promises to be a great success.

The Junior League has passed to the supervision of Miss Hardin and is doing excellent work. The children are all invited to attend Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Delle Geggie of Duluth, Minn., will speak Sunday, morning and evening, on the subject of home missions. She appears to be a talented lady and the public is urged to turn out and hear her.

The prevailing question is, "Have you earned your dollar for the Experience social?" It is gratifying to see how many are working to make the social a success. Everybody is invited, old and young, to earn a dollar and give their experience. The money will go to the League for church work.

To Brother Smith, P. M. G.

Were it not for Palatine's determination and push we would gradually sink into oblivion. The railroad has snubbed and side-tracked us to its heart's content and now Uncle Sam is getting in his work. Sometimes we get mail and sometimes we don't, just as Uncle Sam takes a notion. Three times in succession last week our city mail was hung on Uncle Sam's gibbet and when his servant in the car saw its small size he probably thought it "not worth while" and slung it back into our park, anyway it didn't go. Postmaster Matthei has protested again and again about our poor mail service in the morning and the result seems to be that Uncle Sam has got spunky and is getting even by slighting us from both directions.

Place your orders for printed stationery at THE REVIEW office, if you want good paper and first-class work at moderate prices.

Dairy Notes.

Reports are current that more than the usual number of cows have been killed this year by being struck by lightning. Investigations reveal the strange fact that a large number of them were killed while standing by wire fences. The lightning would strike the wire and instead of grounding would run along the fence its whole length, and somewhere in its course would come near enough to the cows to affect them fatally. Had the lightning grounded as soon as it struck the wire the danger of striking the cows at all would have been small. It was evident that the posts in most cases acted as non-conductors or at least were so inferior to the wires as a conducting medium that the lightning hung to the wires. This will be an easy matter to remedy. A wire running down the posts every little way will be a means of conducting the electricity into the earth.

In a recent issue we took up the question of the Illinois law regarding the slaughter of tuberculous cattle. We cited the law that had been in effect for a number of years allowing an appraisal of all animals slaughtered. In the appropriation bill of the last legislature a clause was inserted that made more specific the manner of slaughtering such animals and the amounts of money that could be obtained from the state for them. It was taken into consideration that there was a great difference in the value of cows slaughtered dependent on the progress of the disease. One cow with a single tubercle in her not larger than a pea would be valuable as a milker for years, while a cow whose lungs were in an advanced state of decay would be practically worthless. Therefore all slaughtered animals are now divided into six grades or classes. Class A: All cattle that on slaughter are found to be free from tuberculosis. These are paid for at full value by the state provided the valuation does not exceed $75. B, C, D, E, and F, indicate the degrees of progress the disease has made in the animals. For B the owner recovers 75 per cent of the value; for C, 50 per cent; for D, 35 per cent; for E, 25 per cent, and for F 15 per cent.

The healthfulness of oleomargarine is a question that is constantly being considered. The difficulty of properly answering the question is increased by the fact that the oleomargarine of today is not necessarily the oleomargarine of tomorrow, and the oleomargarine that is turned out by one factory is not the same as that turned out by another. Chemists have now discovered that some oleomargarine contains paraffin, to give it firmer composition. Paraffin by itself is indigestible, and it may also be indigestible when incorporated with the fats that compose oleomargarine, but we are not yet certain of that point, for the reason that no one appears to have investigated what paraffin will do in such a combination. It may be less harmful than by itself or it may be more harmful. It may be that the union of paraffin with fat permits some of it to get through the tissues with the fat, and there it may work all kinds of mischief—or it may not. However, people do not care to take their chances on such uncertainties. It is manifestly the duty of the government to ascertain such facts for the people. If paraffin is to be sold as butter we should at least know what effect it will have when taken into the human system. We believe that every pound of oleomargarine that goes out should have stamped on the package containing it the ingredients that are used in its manufacture, including all preservatives.

Co-operative Dairying in Belgium.

Co-operative dairy societies had until recently not made much progress in Belgium, but during the past few years there has been a remarkable increase in their numbers, eighty-seven institutions of this character having been established in the year 1897 alone, says the British Dairy Farmer. At the beginning of 1898 there were 167 dairies in operation, supported by 17,022 co-operating members. An interesting feature of this development is the fact that it has taken place for the most part among the peasant farmers, the average number of cows owned by the co-operators being barely three per member. Butter is the principal product of these societies, and their output of this commodity in 1897 was valued at £355,000, while the value of their sales of cheese, milk, and separated milk was estimated at £10,500. The published accounts of one of these co-operative dairies situated at Oostcamp, Flanders, show that the average price realized for the butter produced and sold in the year 1897 was 1s. 0½d. per lb. The average price received by the shareholders for the milk supplied by them to the dairy was 3¼d. per gallon, but the profits on the working of the year amounted to an additional halfpenny per gallon, while the value of the separated milk returned to the members was calculated to be 1¼d. per gallon. In this society, which is typical of many others, the profits are divided as follows: One-half to the shareholders who hold one share for each cow they keep; one-fourth to the reduction of loan capital, 15 per cent to the reserve fund, and the remainder is distributed in the form of a bonus to the employees of the society.

Poultry Notes.

From Farmers' Review: This season has taught us that minks or weasels will catch chicks much more than either ducks or turkeys, after the poultry is any size. The reason is not hard to find. After turkeys get any size they invariably fly high to roost and the ducks make such a terrible racket whenever they are disturbed that it would take a bold mink to face the music. Next season we shall try the plan of hanging lighted lanterns among the coops; they are almost a necessity anyway, when one is fattening a flock of ducks. On dark nights they are in a constant uproar and of course do not do so well as if they were quiet.

Admirers of Blue Andalusians report them as being very great layers of large white eggs, and as being almost as beautiful in shape, plumage and carriage as birds. They are larger than Minorcas, the hens frequently weighing six pounds when in laying shape, which is a very good weight. They are also reported as being extra hardy, especially the young chicks. This will appeal to admirers of the Mediterranean class of fowls, as the Leghorn chicks, as a rule, are not very hardy.

Early chicks were the exception around and in this vicinity this year; and poor hatches the rule. This universal complaint of poor hatches is generally thought to be due to the extremely long continued cold of last winter. Turkeys and ducks were not affected by it, if this was the cause, for their eggs hatched well.

During the dry time this fall, have a large quantity of road dust gathered up and stored in a dry place. Get lots of it, for it will be needed before good out-door dusting places can be found next spring.

The last of this month is a good time to caponize the two-pound cockerels, if one can spare the room, there is no branch of poultry that gives better returns, except early duck, than capons. Caponize a few for your own use next winter, if you do not care to market them.

Aim, and don't miss your aim, to have the pullets and what hens you keep, in their permanent winter quarters by the end of this month. A later removal will cause a later beginning in egg producing and eggs in November, December and January are worth money.

Precocity of the Peacock.

Most books on these birds state that they only reach the adult state at three years of age. I should be much astonished if the peacock does not attain this age at one year, but I can affirm that the hen lays fertile eggs at the age of eleven months. I have before my eyes a hen which was born in July, 1898, and is now followed by two young birds. Possibly the precocity of these birds is not general, but the fact I give suffices to rectify an error found in works on zoology and breeding. It is of practical interest because it demonstrates that the rearing of peacocks and their propagation is a much more rapid work than generally believed. Nevertheless, I must remark that this hen, aged eleven months has only laid two eggs, whereas another older hen laid, at the same time, six fertile eggs. Thus laying amongst the birds becomes more abundant after two years of age. It would, then, be interesting to know whether the number of eggs may be yet greater. I must also remark that when confined one peacock suffices for several hens. So says a correspondent of L'Aviculteur.

Now is the time to buy blooded stock for use as breeders in the spring. It is always better to have one's own eggs than have to depend on eggs brought from a distance, no matter whether the eggs are to be hatched out under a hen or in an incubator. Eggs in transit are exposed to too many accidents. We have known a shipment to be delayed for days and come into the hands of the buyer in a half rotten condition. The men that are going into raising pure bred poultry for the first time sometimes hesitate as to whether to wait till spring and buy the eggs for sitting or buy the fowls and have them lay the eggs they want. The latter is by all means the more sensible course. A rooster and two hens will make a good breeding pen. The hens will lay enough eggs before spring to pay for themselves and the eggs will be had fresh for hatching. There will then be no doubt as to their fertility and purity of breed.

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS

RECORD OF HAPPENINGS FOR SEVEN DAYS.

Jealous Husband's Crime—Charged His Wife with Infidelity and Killed Her and Himself—A Horrible Tragedy in a Chicago Hotel.

Chicago, Ill.—A. H. Patterson, a special policeman employed by the Illinois Central road, killed his wife and himself in a room in Bartle's hotel, 363 State street. They had recently separated and the wife's conduct since then had aroused Patterson's jealousy. On the evening of the tragedy he called on her and persuaded her to accompany him to the hotel, where they were assigned a room. There was a quarrel, and the sound of a struggle, followed by three shots, was heard. When the police forced open the door of the room both were dead. Patterson had evidently planned the crime, for in the room were found letters addressed to a lodge of Elks, of which he was a member, and to the wife's parents. In them he stated that his wife had left his home for a life of shame, and that he would kill her rather than see her continue in it. In his letter to the Elks he said: "I am nothing but a poor fool, gone crazy after a woman. Brothers, good-by. I am off for the unknown."

"Mountain Dew" in Illinois.

Peoria, Ill.—The woods surrounding Little York, Warren county, are said to possess more moonshine whisky plants than any other section outside of Kentucky. Deputy United States Marshal S. O. Tripp and several revenue deputies seized a large still operated by George M. Osborn. It was three miles from Little York and half a mile from the main road in the woods. Several days ago a revenue agent located the still and removed the goose neck from the tanks and sent it to the Peoria revenue office. Collector Daugherty believes Osborn has been supplying the boot-leggers with goods, as there have been many complaints from this section. Osborn was bound over to await the action of the grand jury and was placed in the Lewistown jail.

Olson Died in a Hovel.

Galena, Ill.—Hover Olson, better known as Harvey Anderson, the big Swede, was found dead in his hovel, five miles from here. He had lived the life of a recluse for twenty-five years. Belonging to a wealthy family in Sweden, he was given a yacht by his father when 20 years old, and in it sailed around the world. He practiced law in Norway. Coming to America, he married and prospered. He enlisted in company B, Eighth infantry, Illinois volunteers, served two years in the civil war and was a pensioner. Domestic infelicities caused his retirement from society. Three sons live in the state of Washington. He was widely known in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

Greene County Fair Elections.

Carrollton, Ill.—At the annual meeting of stockholders and directors of the Greene County Fair association ten directors were elected as follows: John W. Flowers, Wrightsville; George K. Ashlock, Linder; Thomas M. Meek, Rockbridge; Albert R. Haven, Rubicon; Jacob G. Pope and George W. Witt, Kane; Donald Simpson, Jr., Carrollton; Willis Brooks, Woodville; Frank Vanderheyden and Lester Vinyard, White Hall. The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, George W. Witt, Kane; vice president, John Philip Kamm, Linder; secretary, S. E. Simpson, Carrollton; assistant secretary, Zeno Curnutt, Carrollton; treasurer, Robert W. Greene, Kane.

For Dividing a Judicial District.

Dixon, Ill.—Judge Sterns and State's Attorney Hurd of Freeport were in this city calling on the legal profession and circulating a petition for dividing the Northern Illinois district of the United States court. The division of the district will create a new United States judgeship, a United States attorneyship and several other important offices. The matter will be brought before congress at its next session.

Falls with $5,000,000 Liabilities.

Chicago, Ill.—Liabilities amounting almost to $5,000,000 are scheduled in a petition filed in the United States court by Levi R. Doty, a capitalist, who seeks relief under the national bankruptcy act. The petitioner is president of the Northern Fuel company and the Lehigh Coal and Coke company. His scheduled assets aggregate over $400,000, consisting principally of capital stock.

James Burwell's Body Found.

Hillsboro, Ill.—The body of James Burwell, who recently escaped from the deaf and dumb asylum at Jacksonville, was found near the Big Four track, about two miles from this city. His back was broken, and it is thought that he fell from a train. His relatives live at Nora, Jo Daviess county.

Growth of West Indian Trade.

According to government reports from Washington, our trade with Cuba and Porto Rico thus far has been encouraging in a high degree. Business, labor and society have not yet recovered from the effects of Spain's dominion and the destruction of war, yet for the first seven months of the present year the total exports of merchandise and the gold coin from the one part of Havana amounted to $18,985,570, and on this basis the total for the year will be fully $29,000,000. Of the total exports during the eight months $13,473,417, or 72 per cent, was to the United States, while Spain took $2,678,499, more than two-thirds of which was in gold coin, and France $1,487,910, of which fully one-third was in gold coin.

All but about $500,000 of the exports to the United States was in merchandise. As a further matter of interest and comparison the imports into the United States from Cuba from Jan. 1 to July 31, 1899, were greater than the corresponding imports for either of the entire fiscal years 1897 and 1898.

If the same ratio is maintained for the remainder of this year, the imports into this country from Cuba will exceed $32,000,000 and be more than double those of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898.

Professor Semon in his book "In the Australian Bush" characterizes the treatment of the natives by the settlers as constituting on the whole one of the darkest chapters in the colonization of Australia. "Everywhere and always," he writes, "we find the same process—the whites arrive and settle in the hunting grounds of the blacks, who have frequented them since the remotest time. They raise paddocks, which the blacks are forbidden to enter. They breed cattle, which the blacks are not allowed to approach. Then it happens that these stupid savages do not know how to distinguish between a marsupial and a placental animal and spear a calf or a cow instead of a kangaroo, and the white man takes revenge for his misdeed by systematically killing all the blacks that come before his gun. This, again, the natives take amiss and throw a spear into his back when he rides through the bush or invade his house when he is absent, killing his family and servants. Then arrive the 'native police,' a troop of blacks from another district, headed by a white officer. They know the tricks of their race and take a special pleasure in hunting down their own countrymen, and they avenge the father dead by killing all the blacks in the neighborhood, sometimes also their women and children."

"First off," the case of Mr. Walter L. Farnsworth, the Chicago confectioner who acquired 42 wives before his attention was called to the fact that he was playing way beyond the limit, is calculated to excite wonder and surprise. On reflection, however, it is not so very strange. Mr. Farnsworth is a Chicagoan and therefore possessed of boundless courage and tireless energy. So it is not remarkable that he should undertake the task of making the greatest collection of wives in the world. Then, too, it must be remembered that his business was a potent factor in the enterprise. With an inexhaustible supply of confection to draw upon, Mr. Farnsworth's facilities for accumulating wives seemed almost limitless. Had not some presumably envious person caused an injunction to be served on his towering ambition there is no doubt that Mr. Farnsworth would have won the world's championship as the most numerously married man.

The supreme court of Michigan has decided that Mrs. Merrie Hoover Abbott cannot legally hold the office of prosecuting attorney, to which position she was elected in Ogemaw county, in that state. The court held that there could be no question of the lady's ineligibility if a woman could fill the post of prosecuting attorney, she could aspire to any constitutional office in the state. The reports of the decision do not indicate the logic or law upon which the opinion was founded. Judge Moore gave a dissenting opinion in which he declared that "if a woman were capable of doing the work required of her in any office it would be hard to say that the common law forbade her doing so simply because she was a woman." The entire competency of Mrs. Abbott was not called in question. The decision is doubtless good law, but many women and some men will not regard it as good policy.

W. K. Vanderbilt has copyrighted the plans for his new $2,000,000 residence on Long Island. Those of our readers who contemplate building $2,000,000 houses will take notice that they are not at liberty to duplicate the plans of Mr. Vanderbilt's humble dwelling.

Cuba's latest census, that of 1887, gave a total population of 1,631,637, of whom 65 per cent were white. Army officers estimate that the census now in progress will show a population of 1,200,000, two-thirds white.

The expert way in which the Boers have been wrecking railroads in South Africa would almost lead to the belief that they had been trained in Wall street.

Canada and Our Canals.

The business interests of the state of New York are beginning to awake to the importance of the canal system recently completed by the Canadian government connecting Lake Erie with the Atlantic by way of the St. Lawrence river. The New York state commerce convention recently adopted a resolution to the effect that the "Erie, Oswego and Champlain canals ought to be materially improved to maintain the commercial supremacy of the state, thereby promoting the prosperity of its people."

There seems to be no doubt that the Canadian canal system designed to accommodate vessels of 14 foot draft, will divert considerable traffic from New York city to Montreal unless something is done to counteract the tendency.

The proposition is advanced that the people of New York, instead of placing dependence upon their state canal system, should co-operate with other interests tributary to the great lakes to secure the construction by the federal government of a deep waterway across the state of New York connecting the lakes with the Atlantic.

There is very much more in Kentucky than feuds and moonshine. Even in the heat of about the most bitter political campaign in its history the Blue Grass State retains its reputation for hospitality, as amply illustrated in the recent visit of Mr. Bryan to that commonwealth. When it was first announced that Mr. Bryan was going to Kentucky to make a series of political addresses, it was said that he would be hooted off the platform, pelted with overripe eggs and otherwise subjected to gross indignities. But nothing of this kind occurred. So far as the printed reports state he was treated with entire courtesy wherever he went. Kentuckians may fight among themselves and perhaps "pull their guns" upon somewhat too slight provocation, but they rarely forget the courtesy due to "the stranger within their gates." It would of course be absurd to say that Mr. Bryan was not welcomed to Kentucky by thousands who are attracted by his engaging personality and are in harmony with his political views, and it would be equally absurd to say that he did not encounter other thousands who are strenuously opposed to him in politics and wholly out of sympathy with his mission in the state. It is altogether gratifying that the prophecies that he would be discourteously treated were unfulfilled. Whether there be more votes in Kentucky for Goebel or for Brown or, for Taylor, blue grass hospitality remains abounding and unchanged.

Some of Spain's scholars are proposing the celebration of an anniversary which has a profound interest for Americans. While Spain's political connection with the western world is forever ended, her historical connection with it will endure. For centuries there has been a controversy as to who was the first missionary to land on this continent, and from documents recently brought to light the honor appears to belong to Father Juan Perez de Mac Marchena, a Franciscan friar. It seems to be established that he came over to the west side of the Atlantic with Columbus on the second voyage, in 1493, of the great navigator, and was the first man to raise the cross on the soil of the new world. Although the four hundredth anniversary of his appearance on this continent passed about six years ago, it is now proposed to fittingly celebrate the event. The work which Christian missionaries from Spain performed amid perils from wild beasts and wilder men in the new world two centuries and more before the United States was founded forms one of the most thrilling pages in American history.

An important national industry of France, Germany and Belgium is the cultivation of fruit trees along the highways. The annual revenue derived from the national roads of Saxony planted with fruit trees rose from $9,000 in 1880 to $42,000 in Belgium, according to the statistics of 1894, over 4,630 kilometers of roads were planted with 741,571 fruit trees, which furnished the almost incredible sum of $2,000,000. In France the production of fruit trees is estimated at $60,000,000. Why could not the experiment be profitably tried in this country?

Cecil Rhodes' project to construct a railroad from the Cape to Cairo is at least in temporary abeyance. However, if it should ever be built he knows where the steel rails, bridges and locomotives can be secured and delivered promptly on time.

Despite the reports regarding the large quantities of beer consumed by Oom Paul, Tommy Atkins probably knows by this time that he hasn't been summoned to South Africa merely to witness a few roof garden pleasantries.

Although the Pullman Sleeping Car company has swallowed the Wagner company, the obliging porter will be found, as usual, willing to brush you off for a tip at the end of the trip.

The name of General O'Beirne, the recently designated Transvaal commissioner in this country, is almost as Dutch as that of Lavinia Dempsey, the queen of the Holland Dames.

It is suggested that the ultimatum of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and President Kruger, properly classified and labeled, would be an interesting exhibit at the Paris exposition. The trouble is that space at the great fair is limited.

One can readily imagine the Prince of Wales waiting with more than ordinary interest for the appearance of Mrs. Langtry's forthcoming reminiscences. Quite naturally he will want to know how reminiscent she will be.

Large and Small Colleges.

The relative merits of large and small colleges are receiving not a little attention from educators and those interested in educational matters. The question is an important one and one upon which there is much room for sincere difference of opinion. In a recent symposium on the subject the views of a number of college presidents are given. The presidents of Colby, Williams, Tufts and Dartmouth place themselves on record as favoring the small college, while Dr. Hadley, the new president of Yale, pronounces in favor of the larger institutions.

President Butler of Colby says the smaller college is better for the development of individual and personal power, the training of the student to understand and estimate his own faculties and the gaining of self knowledge and self control. President Carter of Williams insists upon the importance of personal contact between the students and instructors. "My belief is strong," he asserts, "that the divisions in nearly all of the New England colleges at present are too large for the profitable instruction of undergraduates." The same idea is expressed by President Capen of Tufts, who finds in the greater aggregate attendance at the smaller colleges evidence that "a majority of the people believe in these institutions as on the whole the safest and best for their sons." President Tucker of Dartmouth says that the chief difference between colleges is not of numbers, but between the independent college and the university. He inclines toward the latter because it allows greater individuality.

President Hadley of Yale, while according to the smaller college most of the advantages it claims, expresses his preference for the large institution in the following terms:

The college must be large enough for a man to find companionship among those of his own kind. It follows that the more exceptional man the larger will be the college that he needs. If he goes into a place which is too small for him, he is likely to be overpraised as a genius or avoided as a freak—both equally undesirable extremes.

Apart from this the question of choosing a large or small college is like the question of settling in a large or small city. The man who goes to the large place takes more chances for good or for ill. He increases the possibility of first rate success. He also runs the risk of being overlooked in a crowd.

As between two colleges of equal merit otherwise the smaller is best able to secure a reasonable degree of development for all its members, while the larger is best qualified to give the highest opportunities to those who take full advantage of them.

Fred Taggart and wife of Waukegan are visiting relatives in our village this week. He was also thrown out of employment by the burning of the wire works plant.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McClain of Waukegan are visiting with relatives in our village. Mr. McClain was employed in the wire works, but was thrown out of employment last week by that destructive fire.

The big prize fight last Friday evening created a little commotion in our burg. The betting did not run very high as most of our local sports were favoring Jefferies, but not strong enough to give odds. Barber Monahan was the heaviest better on Jefferies and as a result won $5. Reports of the fight were received by telephone at the drug store.

Mrs. Wm. Hoeft, who had been sickly for the past few years, passed away at her home about two and a-half miles east of our village Sunday evening, aged 63 years and 13 days. Death came as a sweet relief to her sufferings. The funeral was held from the M. E. church at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon; Rev. Dutton officiating, after which the remains were interred in the Wauconda cemetery. A husband and five children survive to whom we extend our sympathy.

The following is the report of Judge Fitch's docket for the week ending Nov. 4: M. S. Ford vs. E. A. Langdon, suit for wages. Judgment rendered for $25.73; costs divided. E. A. Ford vs. E. A. Langdon, suit for wages. Settled before suit was called. G. W. Pratt vs. J. N. Freund, replevin road cart. Settled by dividing costs. W. J. Bangs vs. Ed Riley, replevin team. Change of venue taken from Fitch to Torrance by request of defendant. Trial by jury. Jury returned verdict of $12.23 damages for Bangs and costs of court.

A genuine old-time card party was held at the home of H. T. Fuller last Monday evening. Euchre was the game played and the pleasure reigned high until 2 o'clock, when Jas. Gainer, the cook, announced that supper was ready and the game stopped short. The supper consisted of oysters, with other necessary edibles and some very important auxiliaries to which all did ample justice and returned a verdict of perfection to their host. Those present were: Messrs. H. T. Fuller, H. Maiman, J. S. Haas, J. N. Freund, K. V. Werden, A. Graham, K. Griswold, J. M. Fuller, V. D. Kimball, G. W. Pratt, J. Gainer and C. Erickson.

Sunday morning Mrs. Margaret Kirwin passed away at her home in our village. She was in her 67th year and has spent all but nine years of her life in our village or immediate vicinity. Her life was one of toil and kindness, helping anybody all of her neighbors when in need of assistance, giving consoling words to the afflicted, until a few weeks ago when her strength began to fail and finally death came to relieve her of her worldly cares. Mrs. Kirwin was not as old a lady as one naturally supposed but hard labor had plowed its furrow. She was the mother of a large family, seven of whom survive. John, the eldest, is a resident of our village; James, who resides at Volo, conducts a blacksmith shop in our village, known as Kirwan & Fuller; Ed is a resident of Nebraska and Arthur, who until recently was conducting a creamery at Fox Lake, which was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago, is at present a resident of our village and the youngest of the boys; Mrs. Henry Dodner, the eldest daughter, lives in Nebraska and arrived in time to spend last week with her mother; Mrs. Wickwire, who resides at Oak Hill, Ill., and Miss Nellie the youngest daughter, is still home. The funeral was held from the Transfiguration Catholic church at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, Rev. Father O'Neil officiating, after which the remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery. To the bereaved relatives we extend our sympathy.

About Croup.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE INTERESTING TO YOUNG MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely and all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine.

Resolutions of Condolence.

Resolutions of condolence adopted by the Semper Fidelis society of Palatine Ill., on the death of the father of our sister members, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Harris.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Allwise Providence, in His infinite mercy, to remove from earth the beloved mentioned members' father, and,

WHEREAS, By this act of Providence, the family circle has been broken and a loved one gone to the abode from whence no one returneth, therefore be it

Resolved, That this society extend their sincere and heartfelt sympathies to the afflicted members in this sad hour of their bereavement, and commend them to Him for consolation, who doeth all things well, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to each of the afflicted, that they be spread on our minutes and a copy be furnished each of our local papers for publication.

Done at Palatine this 31 day of November, 1899.

"Oh, dear, yes!" assented Falkland readily. "It was the talk of London. Well, what have they discovered?"
 "Why, that a man who answers to the description of a suspicious-looking person who disappeared from England in rather peculiar circumstances at the time of all those forgeries is supposed to have left New York on the steamer City of Chicago on the 12th of this month; and, should this really be so, he ought to have arrived in Liverpool at the beginning of the week. Just as you were speaking of this Brown of London it struck me—"

"That he might be the forger himself? Ah, perhaps he is," exclaimed Evelyn, with a gleam of amusement in her eyes. "Let us all keep a careful watch upon him, and do our best to gain the reward which somebody has offered for him."

"Very well, Miss Eve; you may depend upon me to help you in your investigations. My services are at your disposal whenever you may require them," was Falkland's reply; but, though the words were uttered lightly, there was a sort of resolution lying latent beneath his apparent carelessness. "Only do not forget to take care of your own cheque-books, or in the meanwhile you may find he has been dipping pretty heavily into your exchequers as well. But goodbye for the present. I shall be coming again to see for which night you will like tickets for the theater, and then I will telephone down."

As the door closed behind the tall, rather gaunt, but at the same time prepossessing form of Gilbert Falkland, Lady Howard sank back in her chair with a sign of supreme satisfaction.

"Dear me, what should we do without that man? He is really too good all the troubles and worries inseparable from continental traveling. At home in England once more, fortune had thrown Mr. Falkland across their path again, and Lady Howard was only too pleased if he would still do anything for her, even if it were merely to arrange a drive or decide which of the pieces at the theaters was really worth seeing.

But Evelyn scarcely heard the sigh of contentment which had followed Mr. Falkland's departure. Her thoughts were running in quite another direction; for, in spite of the nonchalance with which she had laughed away Gilbert Falkland's observations upon the encounter with the man in the hall, his words had carried more weight than he had had the satisfaction of imagining.

At the time it had never struck her as peculiar that a man who was an absolute stranger to her should have been able to single out from the number of letters one in particular for her, thus showing that he knew her address perfectly. It puzzled her though, considerably now, especially as the idea flashed through her mind, as it had done before even as she stood in the hall that that letter was not lying among the others when she had first looked over the table. It had seemed a trifling matter at the time; she would never have troubled to think anything more about it if Mr. Falkland had not declared that this man must have known something of her name and had taken the earliest opportunity of trying to make her acquaintance.

But now, since he had told her what really villainous characters were constantly to be found at such quiet seaside hotels as the "Royal George," she began to realize that, if this Mr. Brown were one of the number, he would be capable of anything, and in troubling himself so much about us and our concerns."

Lady Howard spoke feelingly. Nobody could have ever taken the reins of government more unwillingly into her own hands than her ladyship had done upon the death of her husband three years before, when she had been left a rich but somewhat helpless widow, with a large estate and three growing children. In the years of her married life everything had devolved upon Sir Wilfred; and, though, as time wore on, she became more accustomed to her sense of perfect independence, and had actually consented to an additional care in the shape of the guardianship of her niece, her brother's child, she was still only too thankful if any one would relieve her a little of the weight of the responsibilities which hung so heavily upon her shoulders.

Consequently Gilbert Falkland, whom they had chanced to meet upon the continent for the first time only a month before, but who had introduced himself as one of the late Sir Wilfred's oldest friends, had found his attentions thoroughly acceptable to the widow; and, as it happened that he had been going by the same route as Lady Howard and her niece, he had constituted himself courier and guide, and had taken upon his own shoulders seeing her coming, had probably hidden her letter in order to obtain the necessary excuse for addressing her.

"Well, at any rate, he shall not speak to me again!" mentally resolved Miss Luttrell, as she stirred her coffee and buttered a piece of toast. "Mr. Brown of London is mistaken if he imagines that Aunt Lydia and I are two helpless individuals whom he can take in and impose upon as he likes. He had better try—that is all!"

CHAPTER IV.

Evelyn, however, had reckoned without her host. Later in the morning she was hurrying upstairs with a message to her aunt's maid, when, as she was somewhat breathlessly mounting the last flight, a tall figure, which she recognized at a glance as Major Brown's, suddenly appeared at the top of the staircase, which he was just about to descend.

Summoning all her dignity to her aid and with her head set proudly back, Miss Luttrell had prepared to pass on quickly without deigning him more than a coldly regal bow, when to her amazement, as his eyes met hers, he immediately paused before her.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Luttrell, but I believe I have found some lost property of yours. Did you not drop a handkerchief in the dining room last evening?"

It was a trifling question, certainly, still it sent the color flaming into the girl's cheeks.

"A handkerchief?" she repeated. "No; I am sure I did not"—with a decided shake of her head.

"Are you quite sure, though, because I feel certain it is yours—at least it has your initials on it?" he returned, producing the article in question and holding up the corner where the crest of the Luttrells was embroidered over the initials "E. C. L." "This is it. Is it not yours?"

Evelyn looked at it astonished. It was impossible to deny the ownership. "Oh, yes—it is mine!"

The admission was made with such reluctance that Major Brown was conscious of a feeling that in delivering up the handkerchief to its rightful owner he was rather under an obligation to her for deigning to accept it than that she owed anything to him.

He was therefore quite astonished at the polite but distant "thank you" which rewarded his efforts, and stood for some minutes lost in contemplation of the slight graceful figure as it retreated down a long corridor.

"It is no go, I am afraid, this time," he muttered half aloud. "Sambo's mistress has scented mischief already."

Yes, undoubtedly his scheme had failed. She had not been so blind as to believe that in both cases his effort to speak to her was merely chance; and the major realized with a sense of the keenest disappointment that, as matters stood, it was practically useless hoping to make the slightest progress toward a more intimate acquaintance.

There was nothing for it therefore but to let things take their own course for a day or two, in the meanwhile preserving such a strict silence, when chancing to encounter Miss Luttrell, as to disarm her of all suspicions, and then to trust to fate to throw her in some way across his path. At any rate, he was prepared to remain an occupant of No. 40, on the second floor of the "Royal George," even if he had to remain until doomsday for that auspicious moment to arrive.

Until doomsday! Yet, when only one hot sultry afternoon, one cool dewy evening, and one sunshiny morning had passed, Major Brown was thoroughly impatient.

It was the afternoon of the second day after his decision, and he was standing at the open window of the smoking room with a most dejected expression upon his face. It seemed such a hopeless case to imagine that by keeping aloof from her in this way he was making the slightest progress towards the stage of friendship at which he was resolved sooner or later to arrive. What should he do with himself? Go for a stroll in the town? Yes; anything would be better than dawdling away his time as he had been doing all the morning. He was on the point of withdrawing; when footsteps beneath the window and voices in slight but decided altercation arrested his attention.

"No; it is of no use—you are not to come! I want to have a quiet afternoon under the trees, so that I can read my book without any chance of an interruption. I have just reached a most exciting point, and I am dying to see how it all ends."

"But how can my presence affect your peace and comfort if I promise not to speak? Surely, if I bring plenty of literature of my own in which I am equally interested, you cannot object—"

"Yes; but I do. I know so well what would happen. Just at the most pathetic part, when the hero and heroine were plunged in the depths of despair, you would look calmly up from one of Reuter's most matter-of-fact telegrams, to discover me with tears streaming down my cheeks. No, Mr. Falkland—go into Saltcliffe, as you had arranged, buy a new flower for your coat and—"

But at that point the voices and footsteps passed out of hearing.

The Major shrugged his shoulders and knocked the ashes somewhat impatiently off his cigar as he suddenly found himself lost in a vague mental speculation as to how far those entreaties would fail or succeed. All the same, there was a slight frown upon his forehead as he turned away from the window; and, apparently forgetting his resolution to take a walk round the town, he threw himself into a low chair, to puff away at his cigar with renewed energy.

The hour of three had struck in loud measured tones before he roused himself again; and then, as though by instinct, he returned to his post at the window just in time to catch a glimpse of Miss Luttrell and a large white parasol disappearing across the lawn in the direction of an inviting clump of trees.

So the fellow had failed, after all! Involuntarily a smile rose to the Major's face, a particularly unsympathetic smile.

"Poor beggar!" he ejaculated.

PENSIONED A CHINESE.

Served on Uncle Sam's Ships for Fifteen Years.

Ah Yu of Shanghai, China, has been granted the first pension ever issued by this government to a native of the Celestial empire. This Chinese, who served with Admiral Dewey, although he was not in the battle of Manila, has been a faithful servant of Uncle Sam since July 23, 1884. Ah Yu served as landsman, mess assistant, and cabin steward, his last service being in 1897, when he was attached to Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia. In September of that year Ah Yu was sent to the hospital at Yokohama, suffering from lung trouble. Since then he has been operated on several times, but as his health did not improve he was discharged from the service. Shing Wu and Wong Soon Doo of Shanghai certify to the identity of Ah Yu, and the examining surgeon says the sailor Chinese is totally disabled for the performance of any labor. Ah Yu served on the Olympia, Baltimore, Charleston, Monocacy, Omaha and the Palos. The pension granted is for $30 a month, with back pension amounting to $510.—Washington Star.

THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Boer Forces Have Completely Isolated Ladysmith.

BRITISH IN HARD STRAITS.

War Office Unable to Get News from Gen. White or to Send Him Assistance—Joubert Planning an Attack on Pietermaritzburg.

Friday, Nov. 3.
No news from Ladysmith. London disbelieves Brussels report of Colenso capture and Ladysmith's complete investment. White has armored trains for purpose and strong force stationed at Colenso. Latter is surrounded by Boers with guns that could destroy armored train with. Military experts say Natal situation is worst army has faced in a century. If Joubert wins Colenso he should use railway to take Pietermaritzburg, where vast supply of ammunition is stored. At Bethulle 4,000 Boers are ready for incursion into heart of Dutch portion of Cape Colony. Force of 3,000 Boers on border of Zululand. Cronje's bombardment of Mafeking killed only a dog. Boers withdrawing from Mafeking and strengthening siege of Kimberley.

Saturday, Nov. 4.
Report of Colenso's capture seems true, though London doubts. Latest news from Ladysmith by pigeon post to Durban announced death of Lieut. Egerton of the Powerful. Continued artillery duel, in which several Boer guns were dismantled. British made a sortie and captured a Boer camp. Latest British news from Colenso, dated Thursday, reported large party of Boers before town, and skirmishes with slight casualties. If Colenso has fallen, White is entirely surrounded by Boers, with slight hope of reinforcements, and Joubert, holding railway, may draw off greater part of his forces for attack on Pietermaritzburg, where are enormous supplies of ammunition.

Sunday, Nov. 5.
Buller may not aid White. Sending of New South Wales lancers to Orange river country indicates intention to open campaign in west. Withdrawal of British from Stormberg Junction to Queenstown Point criticised. Former is an important strategic point, and with the British away the Dutch are likely to join Boers.—At least three forces of Boers are in Cape Colony. They hold Colesburg, Norval's Pont and Stormberg.

Monday, Nov. 6.
London is without news, "waiting for another carrier pigeon to arrive." White's sorties last week show he is holding his own; another sortie reported Thursday, with battle at Tatham's farm, in which Boers lost 800 men. Joubert supposed to be on way to Pietermaritzburg; London claims ample defenses, but said same of Colenso. Residents of Estcourt, chief town on way to Pietermaritzburg; warned to leave. Colenso was evacuated during night by British after skirmishes. When Boers opened fire at daybreak town was deserted. Situation as known is: White isolated at Ladysmith, Boers control only railway; Mafeking and Kimberley besieged; Free State Boers crossed Orange river; Boers invading Zululand; Basutos on verge of rising; uprising of Cape Colony Dutch threatened. Ladysmith garrison reported short of supplies. Buller will have 10,000 fresh troops by end of week.

Tuesday, Nov. 7.
Official news from Ladysmith is lacking. Many unconfirmed reports of British victories, one circumstantial tale being that Friday, when a large force of Boers had withdrawn toward Colenso, White attacked in rear; Boers held position on hill near Tugela river commanding Colenso. British shelled hills from rear; then infantry stormed position, cavalry swept around and caught retreating Boers between hill and river, killing almost every man. Same report declared White returned to Colenso and then sent armored train to repair bridge at that point. Colenso garrison had retired to Estcourt. Boer losses Thursday and Friday said to be 1,000 killed and wounded and 2,000 prisoners. One thing certain is that White and Joubert have been fighting and White is holding his own.

RINEHART'S INDIAN PICTURES.

In the summer of 1898 the Government Indian Bureau invited all tribes of Indians in this country to send delegates to an Indian Congress, and they gathered from far and near with their ponies and tepees and gaudiest trappings in the Exposition Grounds at Omaha. Never before had there been and never again will there be such a gathering. There were about five hundred of them, some partly civilized, but the greater portion picturesque in original savagery. Strange as it may seem at this late day many of the Indians declared that before coming to Omaha they had no idea what multitudes of white men there were or how hopeless it was to try to stand against them. This was probably the last time that so complete and spectacular a view of the North American Indian will be possible and those who had the privilege of witnessing it are to be counted fortunate. At the time of the Indian Congress a prominent photographer obtained permission to take the photographs of the most noted chiefs present and succeeded in obtaining a collection which never will be equalled. Mr. Rinehart, the photographer, copyrighted all these pictures and placed in a few art stores some hand-colored proofs which, notwithstanding their high price, sold at once, and these Indian pictures have become the fad of the year. The Chicago Great Western Railway has succeeded at large expense in obtaining from Mr. Rinehart the privilege of reproducing the best four of these pictures, Chiefs "Wolf Robe," "Loulson," "Hollow Horn Bear," and "Hattie Tom," and have incorporated them in an art calendar for 1900, which is pronounced the most artistic production yet attempted. The heads are 6x8 inches, one on sheet, wonderfully reproduced in all their original colors, and when framed make most striking and effective pictures, particularly suited for holiday gifts. Owing to the expense but a very small edition has been issued. They will be sold, however, while the supply lasts to any person sending 25 cents in stamps or silver, to cover the royalty charges and the expense of packing and mailing to F. H. Lord, General Passenger & Ticket Agent, 113 Adams street, Chicago.

The Baltimore and Ohio South Western Rail Road placed in service several months ago five large ten-wheel compound passenger engines for use on fast trains between Cincinnati and St. Louis. The performance of these engines has been eminently satisfactory and up to the highest expectation. The same line has also in service 50 consolidation compound freight engines which provide ample power for the entire line in addition to what was already in use. The compound engines were an experiment but hard service has proved that they are entirely successful and show a saving of 15 per cent in fuel as compared with simple engines of the same type. Exhaustive tests were made with both the simple and compound locomotives before the order for the entire lot was placed with the result vastly in favor of the compound locomotives.

Trouble in an Important Part of the Organization Affects All the Rest—A Perfectly Harmonious System Easily Thrown Out of Gear.

Organized labor has reached such a stage that anything affecting a particular branch of it draws all the rest into the difficulty.

It is exactly the same way with different organs of the human body. Work too hard, eat too much, drink too much, exercise but little, be a little irregular in any way, and the liver quits work.

Then the bowels become constipated and the stomach goes on strike. The heart is affected, the brain follows suit, and every part in the body is dragged into the trouble.

The only way out of it is to go at the source of all this—the liver. Square yourself with the liver and all will get back to regular natural work.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic make things right with the liver. They perfume the breath, prevent food from souring on the stomach, give tone to the bowels, strengthen the intestinal muscles, while they are cleaning and stirring up the liver to renewed activity.

No matter how long a case has been incurable, Cascarets are guaranteed to put things right as they should be, and set the whole machinery a-going. And you can get them at any drug store or by mail for price—10c, 25c, or 50c. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

"I am very grateful to you for your kindness and the interest you have taken in me, and truly believe your medicines and advice are worth more to a woman than all the doctors in the world. For years I had female troubles and did nothing for them. Of course I became no better and finally broke down entirely. My troubles began with inflammation and hemorrhages from the kidneys, then inflammation, congestion and falling of the womb and inflammation of ovaries.

"I underwent local treatment every day for some time; then after nearly two months the doctor gave me permission to go back to work. I went back, but in less than a week was compelled to give up and go to bed. On breaking down the second time, I decided to let doctors and their medicine alone and try your remedies. Before the first bottle was gone I felt the effects of it. Three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of her Sanative Wash did me more good than all the doctors' treatments and medicine.

"The first remark that greets me now is 'How much better you look!' and you may be sure I never hesitate to tell the cause of my health."—MRS. E. J. GOODEN, ACKLEY, IA.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate the advisability of extending Washington street east, made a verbal report. The committee was of opinion that it would not be to the best interest of the village to do anything in this matter unless a street could be opened up north and south, in this way giving an outlet to the proposed new street. Mr. Lageschulte offered to stand the expense of having the proposed street platted and graded if the village would accept it. Trustee Plagge moved that the committee be given more time to investigate the matter. Motion carried.

G. H. Landwer and Garret Freye addressed the board in reference to the opening up of Kilgoblin creek through Mr. Freye's property. The matter was referred to the street committee.

There being no further business the board adjourned on motion Trustee Peters.

Get in on the Ground Floor.
This applies to two classes of people. Those who are interested for the purpose of investment or speculation, and those who for any reason desire to change their business locations.

To any person in either class the new towns located and owned by the Chicago & North-Western Railroad company along its new lines of railroad now being constructed, offer the most tempting inducements.

Prices of lots in these towns are still absolutely on the ground floor, and are sure winners either for investors or locators.

The North-Western also owns nearly one-half million acres of splendid timber land, adapted to general farming, which is for sale at very low prices. Write for information to J. F. CLEVELAND, Land Commissioner, Chicago & North-Western Railway company, Chicago.

Resolutions of Lake County Bar.

On Thursday of last week there were introduced in the Circuit court of Lake county at Waukegan memorials to the late Francis E. Clarke and the late Orson H. Heath, both of whom were closely identified with the legal affairs of Lake county for the past decade.

The memorials offered are as follows:

For forty-four years the bar of the courts of Lake county numbered among its members Francis E. Clarke. His brethren at the bar pay affectionate and respectful tribute to his virtues, and ask that this memorial may be preserved in the records of this court so long graced by his presence.

From the year 1855 to July 29, 1899, Francis E. Clarke discharged the duties of the high office of attorney and counsellor, and to his credit and that of the profession of his choice, it may truthfully be said that never did he violate a rule of professional ethics, prove untrue to a client or recant to a trust. His professional career approached that of the ideal practitioner—manly, dignified, able and honest.

His character and life shall be a reminder and incentive that a record of whole-souled honesty is a richer legacy to leave behind us than the gold and jewels of material wealth.—Waukegan Gazette.
