F. J. FILBERT DEAD.

Successors to the Wounds Inflicted by Dr. W. L. Lewis.

Frederick J. Filbert, one of Palatine's most widely known citizens, died last Friday night at 7:45 o'clock. Death was due to injuries received at the hands of Dr. W. L. Lewis, September 20, 1899, who inflicted the wounds in an attempt to rob the Palatine bank, of which Mr. Filbert was cashier. Mr. Filbert's wounds were considered fatal from the first, but after an operation he showed a phenomenal amount of vitality and he gradually grew better. His mental faculties were faulty, being unable to express himself in conversation. A second operation was found necessary and he again rallied and had hopes of recovery, but disease soon wore him away and he realized that death would soon come and he stated to his friends that he was ready to go. He arranged his funeral as follows: Masonic lodge to take full charge and the funeral sermon to be delivered by his former pastor and comrade, Rev. W. H. Smith, the text to be from 2 Timothy, 4th chapter, 7th and 8th verses, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the Righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but to all them also that love his appearing." He selected the following as pall bearers: W. L. Hicks, Thomas McMieking, C. H. Patten, H. G. Matthei, M. Richmond and Chas. Sigwalt. Every wish was carried out.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the Methodist church. After music by Foskett's male quartet of Chicago, Rev. James Lee, a former pastor, invoked the divine blessing. Rev. F. B. Hardin then read the scripture lesson. The quartet sang "Come Unto Me," and then Rev. W. H. Smith delivered an impressive sermon, speaking feelingly of the friendship with the deceased and his interest in church and other works. The quartet sang "I am With Thee" and then the friends were given an opportunity to view the remains.

The procession then formed and marched to the cemetery, where an impressive ceremony was conducted by the Masonic lodge. The floral pieces were many and beautiful. The lodge furnished a beautiful floral emblem, the Sabbath school a floral piece, the official board of the church a broken wheel, his children furnished a beautiful pillow, relatives, a beautiful pillow; the board of education, a triangular piece with open book on top; C. H. Patten, carnations and lillies.

Many acquaintances from abroad were present to attend the funeral and nearly a hundred masons were in line. The public school was closed in the afternoon so that the teachers and children could attend the services.

Frederick J. Filbert was born November 30, 1840, at Buffalo, N. Y. His mother died when he was but 5 years old. In 1846 he came with his father, brothers and sisters to Chicago, where they remained one year. They then moved to Long Grove and his father took up 160 acres of good land. In 1858 he came to Palatine and clerked for H. Rothschild until 1861, when he entered the store of Richard Turner as clerk. In 1862 he gave up this position to enlist for his country. He signed the muster roll of Co. E, 113th regiment, Ill. vol. inf. in the old Palatine Methodist church. He was wounded in the siege of Vicksburg, and was mustered out with the rank of first lieutenant. He returned to Palatine, where he married Miss Eva Fass. She died in 1875, leaving one son, now auditor of the Federal Steel company at New York. In 1878 he married Miss Susan Decker, who, with three children, Lillian A., Addie M. and Herbert L., survive. Shortly after his return from the war in 1865 he started the first drug store here, but sold out in 1876 owing to his health. He entered the employ of the county as a clerk in the recorder's office, then in the treasurer's office, then for five years as deputy county clerk, again deputy chief clerk in the treasurer's office under Col. George R. Davis and two years as deputy sheriff, being in the county employ 15 years. In 1883 he was appointed clerk of the entry warehouse of the United States custom warehouse in Chicago, which position he resigned to accept the position of tax commissioner for the Chicago & Western Indiana and Belt Railway companies. He then went into the real estate business in Chicago and 6 years ago he accepted the position of cashier of the Palatine bank of Charles H. Patten. He always took a prominent part in political and society circles. During his life he held nearly every township office. He was village clerk for four years and was village treasurer for several years. He was secretary of the school board and held the office of justice of the peace for 20 years. He was an active member of the Methodist church and held several trustworthy positions in this society at his death. He was a member of Palatine lodge A. F. & A. M. and served the lodge as worshipful master for five years and secretary for nearly 25 years. He was also a member of Palatine chapter R. A. M. and of St. Elma Commandary, Knight-Templars. He was also a member of the Union Veteran club of Chicago.

Candidates for Village Offices.

The following are candidates for village offices so far as we can learn. For President of the board, A. S. Olms. For Trustees, C. D. Taylor, August Kimmett and C. W. Ost. For Clerk, A. G. Smith. Other candidates are rumored. The caucus will be held this afternoon. A temperance ticket is being gotten up to be put on the ticket by petition.

Pilgrim, Chapter 6.

One of the very remarkable facts observed by your Pilgrim in Barrington is the large income of milk. It is brought in each morning by long processions of milk wagons from every road. A part is taken to the creamery, but a larger part is shipped to Chicago. From 8:00 to 10:00 A. M. the streets are literally covered with a dense cloud of milk teams.

This is suggestive of the dairy excellence of the region. It is the best investment of the farmers. In Egypt there is a sacred ox, but in Barrington the ox and his polygamous mates are immeasurably more sacred; for their value is not based on superstition, but on utility. Beef and milk are the panacea for both babe and pillars of society, and no apothecary ever mixed its equal in medical compound for health or purity. Good honest cream is a sweeter yellow than is the gold of Klondike. Old Homer sang about the poetical beauty in the "rolling eye" of the cow. And she is truly a philanthropist of unbounded generosity.

But this large milk shipment also suggests the vastness of a greater Chicago appetite. Two million throats are to be mollified by this lacteal fluid. Alas that Chicago taste is not confined to the bovine beverage! Alas for the liquid of the lake water hydrant which occasions the murder of millions of innocent animalculi at every draught.

CURRENT TOPICS

LOUD POSTAL BILL DEFEATED.

The house has again declared that it believes the passage of the Loud bill to amend the law regulating second-class mail matter will not result in the saving of $20,000,000 and upward annually, or that the saving, if made, would be at the expense of the enlightenment and information of the people by means of the publications that now find admission to the mails at the rate of 1 cent a pound.

The bill has three times been before the house—once, in the fifty-fourth congress, it was passed; in the fifty-fifth congress, and again last week, it was defeated. After adjournment, Mr. Loud, chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, said it was three times and out as far as he is concerned. If it be brought before the house again it must be by some one else.

The house spent four hours in its consideration. Mr. Moon (dem., Tenn.) made the principal speech against it, and Mr. Moody (rep., Mass.) the closing speech in its favor. Two hours were spent in amending the bill, and from the ease with which the bill was changed to meet the views of the opponents and the refusal of the house to order the yeas and nays on one proposition, it was believed that the bill would finally pass. But a motion to recommit prevailed by a vote of 148 to 96, a much larger vote against the measure than even its opponents had expected.

DEATH OF OSMAN PASHA.

Osman Pasha, the famous Turkish general, is reported dead, although full confirmation of the news is lacking. Although in recent comparative obscurity, Osman Pasha, as the hero of the siege of Plevna, will live in military history in a rank attained by very few of the world's greatest generals. One of the peculiar facts in his career was his alien birth, all of his biographers agreeing that he was not a Turk, although none of them agree as to his actual nativity. All Turkish generals of note, by the way, have during the last fifty years been foreign born. This is a curious reflection upon Turkey's weakness in producing great generals of her own, but is also a tribute to the shrewdness of successive sultans in drawing the best talent from other European armies. As the Ishmaelite of nations, Turkey has been a refuge for exiled military geniuses of other continental armies, and to this fact we may ascribe her present military prowess, which is still sufficient to command the respect of those nations that would make a meal of her if they dared.

FATE OF THE BOER REPUBLICS.

The fate of the Boer republics when the settlement shall be made in South Africa, assuming that England will defeat the Boers, is now a subject of discussion in England. The pertinent suggestion made by James Bryce in the Manchester Guardian the other day is attracting much attention and must give pause to the excited jingoes, who are for settling affairs in South Africa in a summary imperialistic fashion, without regard to the feelings or racial susceptibilities of the Dutch. Mr. Bryce calls attention to the fact that when the mines have yielded up their richest harvests, which must happen within a few years, the miners, stock jobbers, speculators and all the adventurers who have caused the present conflict will abandon the Transvaal, and then the British who remain will form but a small minority of the inhabitants and will be at the mercy of the Boers. Any harshness, injustice or narrowness exhibited in the terms of peace imposed upon the Boers now will inevitably lead to reprisals in the future and cause confusion and bloodshed.

THE PACIFIC CABLE.

There is general unanimity of sentiment both in congress and among the people at large in favor of a cable across the Pacific ocean. There is sharp difference of opinion, however, concerning the method of construction. It seems that no private corporation is willing to undertake the work without promises of assistance. The believers in the policy of private construction and control want the government to grant a subsidy, the size of which was fixed by the majority of the house committee having the matter in charge at $300,000 a year for twenty years. This would make a total subsidy payment of $6,000,000. The estimated cost of a cable running to Honolulu and Manila is $10,000,000. The believers in the government-ownership policy, prominent among whom is Congressman Mann of this city, think that the United States government should construct and operate the cable on its own account.

GOLDEN'S TESTIMONY IN.

Implicates Powers in Conspiracy to Murder Goebel.

Protected by a guard of fifteen soldiers, T. Wharton Golden of Barbourville, the star witness for the commonwealth in the case of Secretary of State Caleb Powers, charged with being accessory before the fact to the assassination of William Goebel, swore that men of high station not only plotted to have Goebel murdered, but actually contemplated the slaughter of other democratic members of the legislature, for the purpose of giving the republicans a majority in both houses. Golden's evidence was tremendously sensational throughout, and twice he broke down completely under the strain and required the services of a physician.

NEW PUERTO RICAN BILL.

Composite Measure Introduced by Senator Foraker.

On Tuesday Senator Foraker introduced the new Puerto Rico bill. It contains the original civil government bill reported by Senator Foraker's committee, the house tariff bill, the compromise suggested by the president, an amendment to put a tax of 5 cents on all foreign coffees coming into Puerto Rico, and several other amendments. It is a composite of most of the amendments proposed by republican senators, exclusive of the so-called "plain duty" free-trade demand.

Viola Called a Degenerate.

Dr. Cromwell, proprietor of Woodlawn sanitarium, Jacksonville, Ill.; Dr. Frank Norbury of Jacksonville, and Dr. Green of University Place, Neb., testified as experts on Tuesday in the trial of Viola Horlocker, charged with attempting to poison Mrs. Morey, her employer's wife. They gave it as their opinion that the defendant was a degenerate, and was unable to resist the insane homicidal impulse developed by the physical shock occasioned by the breaking off of her relations with Mr. Morey, and that to her the act did not appear to be wrong.

Kills and Sleeps Soundly.

"Nice time of night to arrest a man! Go back to your station and wait till morning. I want to sleep." Albert Stedger, 17 years old, said his when he was roused from deep slumber by policemen an hour after he had murdered William Hobson at 4414 Ashland avenue, Chicago. The boy committed the crime Monday night in defense of his mother. Hobson was the star boarder at the Stedger home. He insulted Mrs. Stedger, and her son struck Hobson on the head with a barrel stave. The blow was fatal, and the man died instantly.

Beckham Orders Out Militia.

J. C. W. Beckham, democratic claimant to the governorship of Kentucky, has ordered the state guards from Lexington and Winchester to Frankfort to protect the court there when the examining trials of Secretary of State Caleb Powers and others, charged with complicity in the killing of Goebel, begin. Mr. Beckham affects to have positive information that a large number of friends of Powers are coming from the mountains to Frankfort to rescue the prisoners and to kill all the democrats who oppose them.

Philadelphia Hospital Fire.

More than 150 men, women and children, all ill or hurt, all suffering, some dying, were carried from the Jefferson hospital, Philadelphia Thursday afternoon. Next door flames were raging, and the walls of the burning building were resting against the walls of the hospital. It looked for a time as if the whole hospital was going, but through the heroic endeavors of the staff and medical students the 150 patients were all rescued.

Uncle Sam Protector of Tutuilans.

Commander B. H. Tilley, commanding the Pago-Pago coaling station, and senior officer of the United States in the new Samoan possession, has officially notified the personal chief of Tutuila, on which Pago-Pago harbor is situated, of the transfer of that and adjacent smaller islands to the authority of the United States, and promising protection and assistance to the inhabitants.

400 Bank Charters Asked For.

Comptroller Dawes has prepared statistical statement showing the number of applications for the organization of national banks under the new banking law since Dec. 1, 1899. The total number is 400, most of them being for a capitalization of $25,000. In some cases two or more applications have been received from the same town.

Smallpox on the Increase.

There were 1,272 cases of smallpox in the United States the last week. The state showing the largest number of cases is Louisiana, with 2,015 cases; Texas comes next, with 517. California is the state least affected, having but three cases. New York at present has eleven cases, as against seventy-four for Illinois. Five of these seventy-four have been discovered in Chicago.

The above illustration shows one of those extemporized forts outside Mafeking which have enabled its plucky garrison to hold out so long, and which are a speaking testimony to the readiness of resource that is so characteristic of Col. Baden-Powell, whose fertile brain has directed the defense.

Boers recaptured Griquatown. British sent 5,000 men to attack Boer forces concentrating at Griquatown; if successful will endeavor to clear western border and advance to Mafeking. Cape Town reports that Kruger is determined, but other Boers are weakening. Boers falling back in Natal.

'T WAS INSANE INFATUATION.

Girl Friend of Miss Horlocker, Tells a Dramatic Story.

The testimony given by Julia Horlocker's friend and confidante, Eva Stewart, as a climax to other testimony introduced, carefully leading up to a point where these things should be presented to the jury on Friday, was sensational to a degree. It showed Julia's mad infatuation for her employer, and the latter's complicity. Miss Stewart recited the story as given her by the defendant without a falter, choosing her words with care, and uttering them with the precision of a trained elocutionist. The testimony of the witnesses for the defense was all in support of the theory of insanity.

Sensational Evidence in Horlocker Trial.

When the state rested its case Thursday in the Horlocker-Morey poisoning trial the prosecution had woven about the defendant a strong fabric of circumstantial evidence. The testimony of all of the witnesses was of a most damaging character, and the day was not without its sensational features, leading to an altercation between Mr. Morey and leading counsel for defense.

Schley at Bahia Brazil.

Admiral Schley, aboard the Chicago, arrived at Bahia, Brazil, today. The Chicago met the French steamer Bretagne disabled, and towed her into port. The Montgomery was last reported at Montevideo. The Wilmington is there also, being held in quarantine. She will join the flagship at Bahia, where ceremonies in honor of the American squadron will be held.

REID MADE DEWEY'S GUNS.

His Forceful Testimony Helps Cause of Strikers.

"Dewey fired the guns, but it took machinists to make them," was one of the forcible remarks uttered by Stuart Reid of New York, the national organizer of the Machinists' union, in his defense of the Chicago strike before the subcommittee of the industrial commission. Mr. Reid presented his case so forcibly and gave so much of the details of the present trouble that the committee thanked him repeatedly and cordially for his appearing before them. He was decidedly the best witness for the cause of union labor that has yet appeared, as his testimony contained much matter that the commissioners had been anxious to get at.

VIOLA TELLS OF HER LOVE.

Day of Sensations in Horlocker Poisoning Trial.

Monday was a day of sensations in the Horlocker-Morey poisoning case. At the morning session of court Mrs. George S. Hayes went on the stand and described how her sister had threatened to take her life last winter; how they had learned of the unfortunate girl's love for her employer. In the afternoon Viola herself took the stand and told the story of her relations with

Mr. Morey. While she virtually accused Mr. Morey of making love to her she exonerated him from all those things that her attorneys have sought to impress by innuendo upon the jury.

POWERS ON TRIAL AT LAST.

Troops of Democratic Claimant Surround the Courthouse.

The preliminary trial of Caleb Powers, republican secretary of state, charged with having conspired to bring about the assassination of William Goebel, who was shot at the capitol grounds Jan. 30, was begun in the Franklin Circuit court Friday morning. The militia ordered out by Beckham, democratic claimant for the gubernatorial chair, surrounded the courthouse. Several witnesses were examined, but their evidence did not show whence the bullet that wrought the death of Goebel came.

Another Arrest—Powers Held.

H. E. Youtsey of Newport, a stenographer in the republican auditor's office, and at one time private secretary to Gov. Bradley, was arrested Friday, charged with being accessory before the fact to the murder of Goebel. A motion to release Powers on bail was denied, Judge Moore saying: "I do not believe that Powers fired that shot which killed Senator Goebel, but I do believe, from the evidence, that he was in the conspiracy which resulted in Senator Goebel's death, and I therefore hold him without bail to await the action of the grand jury which meets next week."

To Bar Hawaii from Congress.

The same influences that have caused the sudden change of front on Puerto Rico have now commenced a fight on the provision in the Hawaiian bill for a delegate in congress for those islands. At a meeting of the house committee on territories Chairman Knox announced that he had a letter from a senator, in which an argument against a delegate was made, and in which the committee was also requested to amend the Hawaiian bill with a declaration that it was not the intention to make Hawaii a state of the union. However, the committee, after an exchange of views, agreed unanimously to stand in favor of a delegate.

Dreyer Saved in Nick of Time.

By a flank movement in the shape of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus executed at the last possible moment by his counsel former Banker Edward S. Dreyer Thursday afternoon escaped a trip to the Joliet penitentiary. Dreyer was seated in the smoking car of the 3 o'clock Chicago & Alton train, when Attorney Alfred S. Austrian walked hurriedly into the car and served on Jallor Whitman the writ issued by Judge Dunne commanding the presence of Edward S. Dreyer forthwith in the court room.

A SUCCESSFUL FARMER.

Began with Small Farm—Now Does Extensive Mixed Farming.

Within three miles of the town, going eastward, is the farm of Mr. W. Creamer, one of the municipality's largest and most prosperous mixed farmers. Mr. Creamer came to this country in 1880 and settled on a portion of the land which comprises his present enormous farm of 1,280 acres. In common with many others of a similar period, he experienced all the hardships and difficulties common to the absence of railway and market facilities. In no wise daunted, by energy, industry and indomitable will he was able to surmount all obstacles and has achieved an unparalleled success, and is known throughout the district as one of its pre-eminent farmers. His operations extend over 1,280 acres, two sections (the thought alone of so much land makes the eastern farmer dizzy); 800 acres of this is broken and the remainder is excellent pasture land and wood. This harvest he took off a crop of 500 acres of wheat and 200 of other grains. Four hundred acres are plowed and ready for wheat next spring. Mr. Creamer is, as has been stated, a mixed farmer of no mean proportions, having at the present time forty horses, sixty head of cattle and fifty pigs. The most modern farm buildings are found on his premises, the main building being a barn fifty-five feet square on a stone foundation, containing stabling for sixteen horses and a large number of cattle. The loft is stored with twenty-nine loads of sheaf oats for feed, and tons of hay; there is also a cutting-box. Another building of large dimensions is the granary, in which, after teaming large quantities to market, he still has stored 3,000 bushels of wheat. A crushing machine is in the building. There are a number of lesser buildings containing chicken house, pig pens and cattle sheds. The farm residence is a handsome frame structure of ample proportions; in connection with it is a woodshed. The water supply is unexcelled; besides house supply there is a well in the stables and a never-failing spring situate in a bluff, which never freezes. Surrounded by a thick bluff of poplars, extending in a semi-circle to the west, north and east, the winter storms are broken and accumulation of snow unknown. Added to his farming operations, Mr. Creamer conducts a threshing outfit for the season. His success is only one instance of what can be accomplished in western Canada.—Baldur (Man.) Gazette, Nov. 16, 1899.

There will be thousands remove to western Canada this year to engage in the pursuit of farming.

It Is a Fetcher.

Miss Talley—"Mr. Bringitt has such fetching ways." Miss Gaby—"He ought to have. He used to be a letter-carrier."—Baltimore American.

No man can expect to live with the virtuous and mingle with the vicious and keep pure.

How a Little Boy Was Saved.

Washington, D. C.—"When our boy was about 16 months old he broke out with a rash which was thought to be measles. In a few days he had a swelling on the left side of his neck and it was decided to be mumps. He was given medical attendance for about three weeks when the doctor said it was scrofula and ordered a salve. He wanted to lance the sore, but I would not let him and continued giving him medicine for about four months when the bunch broke in two places and became a running sore. Three doctors said it was scrofula and each ordered a blood medicine. A neighbor told me of a case somewhat like our baby's which was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I decided to give it to my boy and in a short while his health improved and his neck healed so nicely that I stopped giving him the medicine. The sore broke out again, however, whereupon I again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and its persistent use has accomplished a complete cure." Mrs. NETTIE CHASE, 47 K St., N. E.

HOME LIFE THE SUBJECT LAST SUNDAY.

The Duties of Parents to Their Children — "A Wise Son Maketh a Glad Father; but a Foolish Son Is the Heaviness of His Mother."

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this graphic way Solomon sets forth the idea that the good or evil behavior of children blesses or blights the parental heart. I know there are persons who seem to have no especial interest in the welfare of their children. The father says: "My boy must take the risks I took in life. If he turns out well, all right; if he turns out ill, he will have to bear the consequences. He has the same chance that I had. He must take care of himself." A shepherd might just as well thrust a lamb into a den of lions and say, "Little lamb, take care of yourself."

Nearly all the brute creation are kind enough to look after their young. I was going through the woods, and heard a shrill cry in a nest. I climbed up to the bird's nest, and I found that the old bird had left the brood to starve. But that is a very rare occurrence. Generally a bird will pick your eyes out rather than surrender her young to your keeping or your touch. A lion will rend you if you come too near the whelps; even the barnyard fowl, with its clumsy foot and heavy wing, will come at you if you approach its young too nearly, and God certainly intended to have fathers and mothers as kind as the brutes.

Christ comes through all our household today, and he says: "You take care of the bodies of your children and the minds of your children. What are you doing for their immortal souls?" I read of a ship that foundered. A lifeboat was launched. Many of the passengers were in the water. A mother with one hand beating the waves and the other hand holding her little child out toward the lifeboat cried out, "Save my child!" And that impassioned cry is the one that finds an echo in every parental heart in this land today. "Save my child!" That man out there says: "I have fought my own way through life. I have got along tolerably well. The world has buffeted me, and I have had many a hard struggle. It doesn't make much difference what happens to me, but save my child." You see, I have a subject of stupendous import, and I am going, as God may help me, to show the cause of parental solicitude and then the alleviations of that solicitude.

The first cause of parental solicitude, I think, arises from the imperfection of parents on their own part. We all somehow want our children to avoid our faults. We hope that if we have any excellences they will copy them, but the probability is they will copy our faults and omit our excellences. Children are very apt to be echoes of the parental life. Some one meets a lad in the back street, finds him smoking and says: "Why, I am astonished at you. What would your father say if he knew this? Where did you get that cigar?" "Oh, I picked it up on the street?" "What would your father say and your mother say if they knew this?" "Oh," he replies, "that's nothing. My father smokes." There is not one of us today who would like to have our children copy all our example. And that is the cause of solicitude on the part of all of us. We have so many faults we do not want them copied and stereotyped in the lives and characters of those who come after us.

The Matter of Discipline.
Then solicitude arises from our conscious insufficiency and unwisdom of discipline. Out of 20 parents there may be one parent who understands how thoroughly and skillfully to discipline; perhaps not more than one out of 20. We, nearly all of us, err on one side or on the other. Here is a father who says: "I am going to bring up my children right. My sons shall know nothing but religion, shall see nothing but religion and hear nothing but religion." They are routed out at 6 o'clock in the morning to recite the Ten Commandments. They are wakened up from the sofa on Sunday night to recite the Westminster catechism. Their bedroom walls are covered with religious pictures and quotations of Scripture, and when the boy looks for the day of the month he looks for it in a religious almanac. If a minister comes to the house, he is requested to take the boy aside and tell him what a great sinner he is. It is religion morning, noon and night.

Time passes on, and the parents are waiting for the return of the son at night. It is 9 o'clock, it is 10 o'clock, it is 11 o'clock, it is 12 o'clock, it is half-past 12 o'clock. Then they hear a rattling of the night key, and George comes in and hastens up stairs lest he be accosted. His father says, "George, where have you been?" He says, "I have been out." Yes, he has been out, and he has been down, and he has started on the broad road to ruin for this life and ruin for the life to come, and the father says to his wife: "Mother, the Ten Commandments are a failure. No use of Westminster catechism. I have done my very best for that boy. Just see how he has turned out." Ah, my friend, you have stuffed that boy with religion. You had no sympathy with innocent hilarities. You had no common sense. A man at mid-life said to me: "I haven't much desire for religion. My father was as good a man as ever lived, but he jammed religion down my throat when I was a boy until I got disgusted with it, and I haven't wanted any of it since." That father erred on one side.

Then the discipline is an entire failure in many households because the father pulls one way and the mother pulls the other way. The father says, "My son, I told you if I ever found you guilty of falsehood again I would chastise you, and I am going to keep my promise. The mother says: "Don't. Let him off this time."

A father says: "I have seen so many that make mistake by too great severity in the rearing of their children. Now, I will let my boy do as he pleases. He shall have full swing. Here, my son, are tickets to the theater and opera. If you want to play cards, do so. If you don't want to play cards, you need not play them. Go when you want and come back when you want to. Have a good time. Go it!" Give a boy plenty of money and ask him not what he does with it, and you pay his way straight to perdition. But after awhile the lad thinks he ought to have a still larger supply. He has been treated, and he must treat. He must have wine suppers. There are larger and larger expenses.

Result of Lax Discipline.
After awhile one day a messenger from the bank over the way calls in and says to the father of the household of which I am speaking: "The officers of the bank would like to have you step over a minute." The father steps over, and a bank officer says, "Is that your check?" "No," he says, "that is not my check. I never make an 'H' in that way. I never put a curf to the 'Y' in that way. That is not my writing; that is not my signature; that is a counterfeit. Send for the police." "Stop," says the bank officer, "your son wrote that."

Now the father and mother are waiting for the son to come home at night. It is 12 o'clock, it is half-past 12 o'clock, it is 1 o'clock. The son comes through the hallway. The father says: "My son, what does all this mean? I gave you every opportunity. I gave you all the money you wanted, and here in my old days I find that you have become a spendthrift, a libertine and a sot." The son says: "Now, father, what is the use of your talking that way? You told me to go it, and I just took your suggestion." And so to strike the medium between severity and too great leniency, to strike the happy medium between the two and to train our children for God and for heaven is the anxiety of every intelligent parent.

Another great solicitude is in the fact that so early is developed childish selfishness. Morning glories put out their bloom in the early part of the day, but as the hot sun comes on they close up. While there are other flowers that blaze their beauty along the Amazon for a week at a time without closing, yet the morning glory does its work as certainly as Victoria regia, so there are some children that just put forth their bloom, and they close, and they are gone. There is something supernatural about them while they tarry, and there is an ethereal appearance about them. There is a wonderful depth to their eye, and they are gone. They are too delicate a plant for this world. The Heavenly Gardener sees them, and he takes them in.

But for the most part the children that live sometimes get cross and pick up bad words in the street or are disposed to quarrel with brother or sister and show that they are wicked. You see them in the Sabbath school class. They are so sunshiny and bright you would think they were always so, but the mother looking over at them remembers what an awful time she had to get them ready. Time passes on. They get considerably older, and the son comes in from the street from a pugilistic encounter, bearing on his appearance the marks of defeat, or the daughter practices some little deception in the household. The mother says: "I can't always be scolding and fretting and finding fault, but this must be stopped." So in many a household there is the sign of sin, the sign of the truthfulness of what the Bible says when it declares: "They go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies."

Picking at Boys.
Some go to work and try to correct all this, and the boy is picked at and picked at and picked at. That always is ruinous. There is more help in one good thunderstorm than in five days of cold drizzle. Better the old-fashioned style of chastisement if that be necessary than the fretting and the scolding which have destroyed so many.

There is also a cause of great solicitude sometimes because our young people are surrounded by so many temptations. A castle may not be taken by a straightforward siege, but suppose there be, inside the castle an enemy, and in the night he shoves back the bolt and swings open the door. Our young folks have foes without, and they have foes within. Who does not understand it? Who is the man here who is not aware of the fact that the young people of this day have tremendous temptations?

Some man will come to the young people and try to persuade them that purity and honesty and uprightness are a sign of weakness. Some man will take a dramatic attitude, and he will talk to the young man, and he will say: "You must break away from your mother's apron strings. You must get out of that puritanical straitjacket. It is time you were your own master. You are verdant. You are green. You are unsophisticated. Come with me; I'll show you the world. I'll show you life. Come with me. You need to see the world. It won't hurt you." After awhile the young man says: "Well, I can't afford to be odd. I can't afford to be peculiar. I can't afford to sacrifice all my friends. I'll just go and see for myself." Farewell to innocence, which once gone never fully comes back. Do not be under the delusion that because you repent of sin you get rid forever of its consequences. I say farewell to innocence, which once gone never fully comes back. * * *

Necessity of Early Training.

Begin early with your children. You stand on the banks of a river and you try to change its course. It has been rolling now for 100 miles. You cannot change it. But just go to the source of that river, go to where the water just drips down on the rock. Then with your knife make a channel this way and a channel that way, and it will take it. Come out and stand on the banks of your child's life when it was 30 or 40 years of age, or even 20, and try to change the course of that life. It is too late! It is too late! Go further up at the source of life and nearest to the mother's heart, where the character starts, and try to take it in the right direction. But, oh, my friend, be careful to make a line, a distinct line, between innocent hilarity on the one hand and vicious proclivity on the other. Do not think your children are going to ruin because they make a racket. All healthy children make a racket. But do not laugh at your child's sin because it is smart. If you do, you will cry after awhile because it is malicious. Remember it is what you do more than what you say that is going to affect your children. Do you suppose Noah would have got his family to go into the ark if he staid out? No. His sons would have said: "I am not going into the boat. There's something wrong. Father won't go in. If father stays out I'll stay out." An officer may stand in a castle and look off upon an army fighting, but he cannot be much of an officer, he cannot excite much enthusiasm on the part of his troops standing in a castle or on hill-top looking off upon a fight. It is a Garibaldi or a Napoleon I. who leaps into the stirrups and dashes ahead. And you stand outside the Christian life and tell your children to go in. They will not go. But you dash on ahead, you enter the kingdom of God, and they themselves will become good soldiers of Jesus Christ.

A Personal Appeal.

Are your children safe? I know it is a stupendous question to ask, but I must ask it. Are all your children safe? A mother when the house was on fire got out the household goods, many articles of beautiful furniture, but forgot to ask until too late, "Are the children safe?" When the elements are melting with fervent heat and God shall burn the world up and the cry of "Fire, fire!" shall resound amid the mountains and the valleys, will your children be safe?

I wonder if the subject strikes a chord in the heart of any man who had Christian parentage, but has not lived as he ought? God brought you here this morning to have your memory revived. Did you have a Christian ancestry? "Oh, yes," says one man. "If there ever was a good woman, my mother was good." How she watched you when you were sick! Others wearied. If she got weary, she nevertheless was wakeful, and the medicine was given at the right time, and when the pillow was hot she turned it. And, oh, then when you began to go astray, what a grief it was to her heart!

All the scene comes back. You remember the chairs, you remember the table, you remember the doorsill where you played, you remember the tones of her voice. She seems calling you now, not by the formal title with which we address you, saying, "Mr." this or "Mr." that, or "Honorable" this or "Honorable" that. It is just the first name, your first name, she calls you by this morning. She bids you to a better life. She says: "Forget not all the counsel I gave you, my wandering boy—Turn into paths of righteousness. I am waiting for you at the gate." Oh, yes. God brought you here this morning to have that memory revived, and I shout upward the tidings. Angels of God, send forward the news! Ring! Ring! The dead is alive again, and the lost is found!

Feminine Strategy.

A—"Have you noticed that when Miss Gettinggold goes out for a walk with gentlemen she always invites them to that large oak tree?" B—"Yes; while there she tells them of the great number of centuries the oak has stood, and what are her twenty-five (!) years in comparison?"—Flegenda Blaetter.

PUERTO RICAN TARIFF STILL UP

Various Amendments Thereto Introduced—Senator Davis the Author of a Provisional Free Trade Measure—Routine Matters in House and Senate.

Thursday, March 22

Senator Foraker claims to be certain of enough votes to pass the Puerto Rican tariff bill and will push it to an issue within the next few days.

Secretary Root explains the granting of licenses to dredge the water front at Cape Nome is free to all.

Friday, March 23.

In the senate it was agreed to send the diplomatic and consular bill to conference. Passed the Puerto Rico $2,000,000 appropriation bill as amended in conference by a vote of 35 to 15.

The house passed the bill, introduced at the request of northwestern lumbermen, authorizing the secretary of war to make regulations permitting the running of loose logs, rafts and lumber on streams in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Passed 142 private pension bills.

Saturday, March 24.

The Puerto Rico relief bill, appropriating about $2,000,000, was signed by the president Saturday afternoon. At the same time the Foraker bill was referred for the purpose of separating the house 15 per cent tariff provision from the civil government measure. The former it is hoped to put on its passage on Thursday, amended so as to have the rate of duty apply only to exports to the United States "proper," and not to imports by Puerto Rico from this country.

Monday, March 26.

In the senate Mr. Foraker, in charge of the Puerto Rican bill, announced that, beginning with Monday's session, he would press the measure to vote as soon as possible. The Alaska civil code bill was under consideration during the greater part of the session. An amendment was agreed to fixing a license upon almost every kind of trade and commerce in the district of Alaska, the licenses ranging from $10 to $500 per annum. The measure had not been disposed of at the conclusion of the session.

The house entered upon the consideration of the army appropriation bill. Mr. Jett (Ill.) criticised the policy of rushing officers through the high grades of the army just previous to retirement. Mr. Cox (Tenn.) and Mr. Ridgely (Kan.) opposed generally a permanent increase in the army as prejudicial to the best interests of the country, and Mr. Meyer (La.) discussed the Philippine policy, opposing the retention of the islands.

Tuesday, March 27.

The senate agreed to the conference report on the pension appropriation bill. Devoted the rest of the day to the debate on the Alaskan civil service code bill and the Puerto Rico problem. In the house there was lively debate during the consideration of the army appropriation bill. The charge that the Puerto Rican tariff bill was the result of a deal for raising a republican campaign fund was again referred to by Mr. Pierce (Tenn.), but Mr. Hull declared the anonymous author of the charge would never dare to avow himself and be branded as a falsifier. Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) made an appeal for the extension of official sympathy to the Boers in their struggle for independence, and Mr. Lentz of Ohio delivered a scathing denunciation of militarism and the war in the Philippines. This attack aroused the indignation of Mr. Marsh (Ill.), who declared Mr. Lentz's speech was a disgrace to congress.

War Due to "Auntie" Plot.

Copies of official Filipino documents captured by the American troops have been sent to the senate by the president, in compliance with a resolution. This correspondence will be interesting for some of the anti-expansionists in this country, particularly Mr. Dausinger, secretary of the Single Tax club of Cincinnati, who sent a remarkable letter, under date of March 9, 1899, to the Filipino junta in Hong-Kong. This letter was captured with other Filipino records. It was forwarded through the Single Tax association of Toronto, and declares that "the war was commenced, and is kept up, without any pretense of consulting the American people, only at the will of the plutocracy which rules the government, and which hopes to find new fields for pillage in the Philippine islands—not content with what it obtains from the pillage of the American people. I hope for Gen. Aguinaldo and his patriotic army the greatest success against our army of subjugation, tyranny and oppression."

Busy Week for Congress.

The army appropriation bill will be taken up today and doubtless will serve for a text for a wide latitude of discussion on military affairs. The latter part of the week will be devoted to the naval, the agricultural of the fortifications appropriation bills.

In the senate, Puerto Rico, according to present indications, will step aside temporarily at the beginning of the week in order to afford Senator Carter an opportunity to secure consideration for his Alaskan code bill. The present condition of affairs in Alaska and the prospect of a still greater influx of people into that territory make the Alaskan legislation very important.

Apology in the Macrum Case.

Lord Salisbury has apologized to the United States for the opening by the British censor at Durban of mail addressed to former Consul Charles E. Macrum at Pretoria. The apology will be sent to the house committee on foreign affairs by Secretary of State Hay when Mr. Macrum's case against the state department is heard.

Leyds May Be Relieved.

It is said that one of the first acts of the Boer peace delegates now on their way to Europe will be to proceed to Brussels and relieve Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic agent, of his official position. It is said that the Boer presidents are thoroughly disappointed and displeased with Dr. Leyds' act.

JAMES DUNLAP "KING OF BANK ROBBERS."

James Dunlap, the bank robber who was arrested in Chicago Saturday night, has been taken to Wellington, Ill., to stand trial on a charge of robbing the Pate bank at that place. Some of the money and other articles found on Dunlap when arrested have been identified as having been in the bank safe when it was robbed. Dunlap, the police say, has refused to either admit or deny his connection with the Wellington robbery.

Naming Country Roads.

The Indianapolis Press notes that there is a movement in some sections of Indiana for the naming of country roads on the same plan as is now in vogue in designating the streets of a city. Wherever it has been mentioned, says The Press, it has been received with favor. While some obstacles might be encountered in carrying out a systematic plan for the naming of such highways it would be a good thing for the country generally and greatly facilitate the travel of strangers. The chief difficulty seems to be that there is nobody to look after the matter, nor is there any one to act as arbitrator in selecting names.

Where roads are confined within a given township the town board might be empowered by act of legislature to give them names; but, as is usually the case with main highways, where roads pass from one township to another there might arise confusion and conflict of authority. For roads wholly within a given county the board of supervisors might take up this work in connection with the township authorities. But here would arise another difficulty, as many important highways pass county lines, but the difficulties are by no means insurmountable and are far outweighed by the merits of the proposition.

The Good Roads association or the League of American Wheelmen of the different states might give the matter its attention and devise some scheme for systematic and comprehensive naming of country roads. Already there are throughout the country many important highways which, by common usage rather than any authoritative designation, bear distinctive names. For instance, the Boston post road, the Albany post road, the Rumson road in New Jersey and the Merck and Jericho roads on Long Island. The adoption of names for all highways and the erection of suitable signboards, the outlay for which would be comparatively trifling, would be a convenience and gratification to the traveler and would be the means of preserving whatever of historic interest there might be attached to them and likewise impart an individuality to the district through which they passed.

The opening of the new century bids fair to be marked by the holding of some notable industrial and commercial exhibitions in the United States. Buffalo is now actively arranging on a magnificent scale for the Pan-American exposition in 1901, and St. Louis is moving vigorously in the preparations for a great fair in 1902. Newark, N. J., now comes forward with a proposition to hold an industrial exposition in that city in 1902 whose plan and scope promise to be so broad and comprehensive as to attract the attention of manufacturers of other states as well as those of New Jersey. The initial suggestion of this enterprise came from the Newark Evening News, whose editor, Wallace M. Scudder, says: "The general and enthusiastic indorsement of it by all classes of citizens promises its realization. The manufacturing and general industrial interests of Newark have developed into really remarkable proportions in recent years and have induced a growth in business and population of which few outsiders are aware. I feel sure that such an exposition would be something approaching a revelation to most of its visitors. It would not probably be confined to Newark's manufactures as exhibits, although these alone would make a marvelous showing, but would include those of New Jersey and the country at large, particularly the adjacent states."

The death of Mr. Bloomer is announced from Iowa, where he had achieved considerable distinction in public life. The greatest fame which attaches to his name, however, came from his departed wife's bloomin skirts.

Thirty thousand people recently sang the British national anthem under Queen Victoria's window. Presumably her majesty is not one of that class of people who are annoyed by glee clubs.

Effie Shannon, the actress, was recently asked what she would do if she were a man, to which she aptly replied, "I wouldn't be a man for anything." This is a little straw, but it shows the way the wind is blowing. Some years ago it was common enough for girls to wish they were boys and women to wish they were men, but in these days we seldom hear these wishes expressed, and there is good reason why we should not hear them. Thanks to the enterprise and perseverance of a number of women whose names are familiar and to the wonderful growth of chivalry among men, the lot of women is becoming yearly more enviable. In those branches of society and industry which woman does not directly control she has indirectly almost a controlling influence. She is becoming the power both on and behind the throne. Let us hope that she will not use her power so arbitrarily as to reverse the old proposition and make boys wish they were girls and men wish they were women.

In the Hall of Fame which it is proposed to erect in connection with Columbia university in New York there are to be placed statues and tablets in the honor of "great Americans." In the lists of these great Americans thus far presented no one has yet suggested a single American woman. This is neither just nor courteous. Was not Molly Pitcher a "great American?" How about Barbara Frietche, Nancy Hanks, Lucretia Mott, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Abigail Adams, Frances Willard, Margaret Fuller, Mary Mitchell, Mary Lyons, Mary E. Livermore and others, enough to fairly fill the Hall of Fame? American women should certainly have their names inscribed upon any shrine dedicated to American greatness.

Whatever may be the merits of municipal ownership of public utilities it is not a bad idea to agitate the question about the time municipal contracts are to be let. This has just been strikingly illustrated in Helena, Mon. At a recent special election the city voted $500,000 to erect a municipal lighting plant. Frightened by this step, the Helena Electric Light company has appeared before the city council and offered to cut the price of city lighting in two and to reduce the price to private consumers. Here is a hint to other municipalities whose people are paying private corporations more than they think they ought for electric light, gas and water.

There is one community in the south at least which has learned the benefits of diversification. Its shipping point is Alvin, Tex., and the following figures, which we take from the Galveston News, show what it sent to market last year: Strawberries, 19,560 crates; dewberries, 2,580 crates; beans, 12,600 crates; tomatoes, 7,800 crates; plums, 2,200 crates; miscellaneous vegetables, 12,900 crates. Besides these shipments, there were six solid carloads of cabbages, Irish potatoes, etc., shipped by freight. The proceeds from this particular diversification amounted to the trifle of $86,680.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt says she believes the close of the twentieth century will see a woman president of the United States. Fortunately she gives us plenty of time to get used to the idea and to rearrange the social conditions to suit the needs of a "first gentleman of the land."

The people of New York and New Jersey are still discussing the preservation of the Palisades of the Hudson. It would seem to be about time something was done besides talk if this beautiful and historic scenery is to be preserved at all.

Emperor William wants to have his salary increased $1,000,000 a year. It is not believed, however, that he will throw up his job if the raise isn't granted.

Now comes another enterprising Kansas editor who proposes to run his paper for a week as the devil would. He probably refers to the printer's devil.

A Tennessee exchange says the name of that play "Leathersole" in which Miss Ollie Sapollo is appearing, is tough, whether the young woman is or not.

Cecil Rhodes is going to Europe, but he will probably not visit the Paris exposition. Mr. Rhodes is not popular on the continent.

There is sharp rivalry in New York for the position of dean of the faculty of getting hold of other people's money.

The dwelling house north of Golding Bros.' store, owned by Robt. Harrison and occupied by Dr. J. Dawson as an office and C. A. Hapke as a dwelling, was the scene of our first fire this year last Friday morning. It was about 8:30 o'clock and the doctor had just left on a country trip when Mrs. Hapke noticed a cloud of smoke coming into her apartment. She opened the door of the doctor's office and discovered to her dismay that the building was on fire. She ran from the house and gave the alarm, which was followed by the clang of the fire bell and the startled citizens came running from all quarters. The bucket brigade reached the scene a little ahead of the fire company, and by effective work kept the fire down until a line of hose was turned on which quenched it entirely. The fire is supposed to have started in the doctor's waste basket which stood behind the door in his medicine room, where the blaze was first discovered. He had emptied the contents of the basket into the stove with the exception of a few scraps of paper thrown in just previous to his departure and the probability is that a spark from the stove lodged in with the remaining paper and originated the blaze.

The doctor's loss is mostly in medicine and is estimated at about $200. His insurance ran out a short time ago and he neglected to have it re-insured. The damage to the building was estimated at about $50, fully covered by insurance in the Phoenix Ins. Co. of Brooklyn and was promptly adjusted by that company.

What to Do Until the Doctor Arrives.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany (N. Y.) dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. ## CHAPTER XIII.—(Continued.)

"Drunk! Not a bit of it. Did you ever see Torrovo drunk? I did not. I tell you it was a put up job. Torrovo knew you always looked at the invoices and tally, and he played this little game for you to see how well the boy wrote. He knew your anxiety to get the work done well would do the rest. But what's the use standing here talking? He's gone, and getting farther away every minute."

"We must follow—but in which direction?"

"In which direction? Why, in what direction would he go but toward his ally, Torrovo, the traitor? He has gone back to the 'Black Cat.'"

"He may have gone toward Buenos Ayres."

"Not he. What could he do there? I tell you, the bargain included the safety of Torrovo. The boy has gone back to join Torrovo, and the 'Black Cat' will sail for Buenos Ayres with these two precious fellows on board."

"I will order horses. We can reach the 'Black Cat' before morning. They will not sail till then. We may even overtake the boy."

Now that his stupor was over, Elvin could think and act quickly. He realized the danger in which he and his son stood as long as this intrepid and intelligent young American was alive and at large. He ordered horses to be saddled, and, after a drink to brace their nerves, father and son sat out on their errand—two men, to run down and kill a boy.

There was a moon, and the way was easily made. The horses were put to their utmost, and mile after mile was covered, but no Rob was seen.

Suddenly Starne drew up and called to Elvin.

suspicion as he looked from one to the other. He readily saw that something unusual had happened, and from their words he believed they had discovered Rob's identity and his own duplicity.

"You know well enough what I mean. You are a traitor."

"That is what the judge said when I was convicted. That was five years ago."

"Yes, you were a traitor to your friends then, and you are a traitor to your friends now. Did you think you could hoodwink us? I knew that boy was Horton's nephew."

"So did I," said Torrovo, stolidly.

"But you told me," said Elvin, choking with rage, and made worse by Torrovo's coolness; "you told me that he was your own nephew."

"Certainly—and so he is."

Both Elvin and Starne stood aghast at this. This was the most monumental cheek they had ever seen.

"He is Horton's nephew and mine also," said Torrovo, as if it was a matter of no importance. "You see, captain, Horton's sister married my brother."

"Liar!" shouted Starne. "Horton had but one sister. She is now in New York, and her name is Cleverdale."

"That is true, also," said Torrovo, with an imperturbability that was amazing. "She married Senor Cleverdale after my brother died."

"But this boy's name is Cleverdale."

"Yes, they gave him that. He was only a year old when my brother died."

"But you sent him to me to spy, and report all to Horton."

"Captain, you are mistaken. I did not send him to you at all. You saw his handwriting and took him. Did I say for you to take him?"

"Enough of this talk!" exclaimed revo's own safety depended on his keeping the boy with him and sharing the glory when we were all captured."

"It looks so. Well, I will have men out after him in the morning. He may even now be on the 'Black Cat.' If so, you will know what to do with him."

"Will I not?" replied Starne, with an evil laugh. "I'll kill him with his eyes open and looking at me."

The two men parted, Starne going on foot toward Black Cat Bay, and Elvin returning to his headquarters, leading Lemuel's horse.

But where was Rob Cleverdale, while Elvin, Starne and Torrovo were looking for him in vain?

He was on his way to the "Black Cat," as Starne suspected, but, being ignorant of the road, he had gone a little out of his way, and thus missed Torrovo.

Early in the evening, when Elvin thought he had gone to bed, the courageous young American had slipped out of the window, which was not more than five feet from the ground, and had fortunately chosen a moment when there was no one around to see him. Finding all clear, he had shaped his course as well as he knew how, for Black Cat Bay, and started off on a run. He kept up this gait for some time and then rested. There was no sight of pursuers, so he trudged on again, keeping the direction, as he thought, straight to the river. But he did not travel as straight as he thought he did. He made quite a detour to the north, thus missing Torrovo, but toward morning reached the river a short distance above the bay.

There was an island, quite a mountain, out in the river, which could be seen from the entrance to Black Cat Bay, and Rob could see it from the point where he met the river. From its position he knew he was too high up, and went down toward the anchorage.

The Tiger Got Out.

No circus menagerie is ever without its man-eater, you know," said the old wagon driver as reminiscences were in order. "We had ours when I was with Dan Rice, and the papers gave him such an awful reputation for ferocity that people dared not to come within ten feet of his cage. Of course I used to get off a lecture on him. According to my story he had killed and maimed thirteen different men, five horses, two camels and a rhinoceros. One day, after I had delivered the old stereotyped thing, that tiger pushed open the door of his cage and jumped out. Some one's carelessness, you know. There was a wild rush of people for the entrance, a general alarm outside the tents, and for a minute I was so scared that I couldn't even fall down. The tiger was looking around to see what he could tackle, when a mongrel dog not more than a third of his size came rushing up and sailed into him. True as you live, that dog humped that tiger three times around the tent, snapping at his heels all the time, and the Bengal got away from him only by leaping back into his cage. The affair got into the papers, and of course we got the grand guy all the rest of the season. It paid us, however. People who wouldn't think of going into the circus used to buy tickets to see that 'ferocious man-eater,' and he therefore brought us in more patrons than any other ten animals combined."

The Greatest Bicycle Town.

Denver, Col., enjoys the distinction of having more bicycles in proportion to population than any other city in the United States. Though Denver numbers only 160,000 souls within her city limits, she boasts of not less than 40,000 bicycles. Morning and evening alike thousands of bicycles may be seen on the streets of Denver mounted by men, women and children in every walk of life. Bicycles literally overrun things and they are used in every line of business, and street car companies say they have lost $1,000,000 annually in traffic since bicycles have become the rage. In fact, one company went into the hands of a receiver two years ago, alleging that the universal wheel had impaired its earning to such an extent that it could not meet its interest demands. The open weather and fine natural roads are largely responsible for the popularity of the wheel, as it is conceded that ordinary riders can use their wheels daily for 50 weeks out of 52 and not suffer any annoyance from mud or snow. Add to this the fact that neither lights, brakes nor bells are required and the agility required of the non-rider in taking care of himself can be appreciated. Denver is said to be the only city in the country where the bicycle vote controls elections on municipal issues.

As a Rival Looks at It.

"So he regards himself as a senatorial possibility," said one politician. "Undoubtedly," answered the other. "On what theory?" "I don't know, unless it's the theory that the unexpected always happens."—Washington Star.

Memories of Dwight L. Moody.

It was the wish of the late Mr. Moody that his biography should be written by his son, Mr. W. R. Moody, who has in his possession all of his father's papers and is preparing a very complete life of the great preacher, has consented to write especially for The Saturday Evening Post a series of anecdotal papers on his father's life and work, profusely illustrated with hitherto unpublished photographs. The first of these papers, entitled Moody as Boy and Business Man, will appear in the April 7 number of The Saturday Evening Post.

Charitable.

At the conclusion of a charity concert a gentleman proposes that the famous and pretty singer, Miss Bellini, allow the highest bidder a kiss to increase the proceeds. She agreed to this, amid the applause of the public. The gentleman, stepping upon the stage, takes the baton instead of the hammer, and begins in a loud voice: "Twenty-five dollars for a kiss! Who gives more? To the first—to—" At this juncture rises Mrs. Shopperly, wife of a merchant, and calls out: "I'll give three kisses for ten dollars!"—Fliegende Blätter.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. ## A Question of Advantage.

Man is distinguished from the beast by the power to speak his thoughts; the beast from the man by the power to keep its thoughts to itself.—Detroit Journal.

When Charles and Mary Lamb wrote their ever-loved Tales from Shakespeare, they omitted purposely from their inimitable work that class of plays which lay outside their purpose. In "Historical Plays from Shakespeare" Arthur T. Quiller-Couch has supplemented in a most admirable manner the work of the Lambs. The present work takes up the historical plays of the great playwright and in a delightfully easy manner interweaves history and the drama into a series of rhythmic sketches which though intended for a younger generation will give no less pleasure to their elders, especially to such as hardly care to read or re-read the plays, verbatim. The whole work is excellently done. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

To see a crowd of men and women scrambling on a street car at 6 o'clock at night is to become convinced of the credibility of the theory that man is descended from the monkey.—Philadelphia Times.

"BY JOVE, THAT'S TORROVO!"

"Hist!" he said. "There is a man coming this way on foot."

Elvin reined in his horse and sat looking in the direction indicated by Starne.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed. "That's Torrovo!"

And Torrovo it was, making his way on foot from the "Black Cat" to Elvin's headquarters.

CHAPTER XIV.

Elvin and Starne rode toward him slowly.

"Be ready for treachery," said Starne. "Have your pistol in your hand. This fellow must be up to mischief."

Torrovo saw them coming, but walked on as if he feared nothing. Even had he stood in fear of his life there was no place to hide.

"Well," said Elvin, maintaining an outward coolness he did not feel. "What are you doing here? I thought you were to go to Montevideo."

"True, Captain Elvin. I am going. But I thought perhaps my nephew would be done with his new duties by now, and, as he has become very valuable on board, I am taking a walk out to your place to get him."

"Your nephew? Ha! That's good. And have you not seen that dear nephew of yours tonight?"

"I have not, captain. Else why would I be walking out to see him now. I have not been near your place this night."

"No! And neither has he! Look here, Torrovo, what is this game you are playing?"

"Game? What game? What do you mean?"

Torrovo's black eyes glistened with

Starne. "You have told us a pack of lies. I know that Horton's sister was never married but once, and that time it was to Cleverdale. Torrovo, you are a traitor and you must pay the penalty. Where is that boy?"

"That is what I was going to ask you. You took him. I want him back. He is very valuable to me on the schooner."

"You will never see the schooner again!" shouted Starne.

Torrovo's quick eye saw the gleam of a pistol. He had none himself, but in the twinkling of an eye he had produced a long knife, and sprang upon Starne. Starne was still in the saddle, and all Torrovo could do was to slash at his legs. Starne aimed and sent a bullet into Torrovo's heart."

"One traitor less," he said, calmly, as Torrovo fell on the ground dead. "What a glorious liar that fellow was. He would have been worth something if he could have been trusted."

"But we are in a fine fix!" said Elvin. "The 'Black Cat' was due at Montevideo in two days to bring over General Quesada. Now we have no one to take command. We must have Quesada."

"I'll bring Quesada. The crew of the 'Black Cat' know me, and will obey me. I shall be missed in Buenos Ayres, but that won't matter. We will be masters there in less than a week. I will take the 'Black Cat' after Quesada. You lead my horse back. But you must find that boy."

"He must have gone toward Buenos Ayres."

"No, he will try to find the 'Black Cat.' Torrovo's anxiety proves that there was an agreement between them whereby the boy was to return. Tor-

CONFERENCE ENDED.

Conference of United Evangelical Church Finished its Work Tuesday.

The seventh annual conference of the United Evangelical church closed in Barrington Tuesday afternoon, after being in session over a week. The meetings were all largely attended and keen interest was taken in the proceedings. About a hundred ministers and delegates were in attendance.

On Saturday evening a lecture was given by Bishop C. N. Dubs, the newly appointed superintendent to China missions.

On Sunday morning at 10:30 a sermon was delivered by Bishop R. Dubs and the Sunday school classes were addressed by Revs. E. S. Woodring, S. L. Wiest, Emil Miller, Henry Schneider and S. F. Entorf. The afternoon ordination sermon was conducted by Bishop Dubs.

On Sunday evening a missionary sermon was held, addressed by Rev. S. L. Wiest and the church was well filled to listen to the address. Over $2,000 was received in pledges and donations during the evening to carry on the good work.

On Monday morning the question of establishing a college came up. It was thought by nearly all that the conference was unable to maintain a college, although about $11,000 have been subscribed for such an institution. The matter was referred to a committee to report Tuesday morning after discussing and debating on the matter nearly the whole day. In the evening the conference was addressed by Rev. Emil Miller.

On Tuesday morning the school matter came up again. After a good deal of discussion the proposition of the Des Moines conference was voted on and carried. The proposition is, in substance, that the Illinois, Des Moines and North-West Conferences jointly operate the college at La Mars, Iowa, now managed by the Des Moines conference. The other conferences, it is supposed, will take action on the matter when they assemble. After this question had been disposed of the bishop announced the appointments of the ministers. Rev. Strickfaden was appointed to succeed himself. Rev. Strickfaden has made many friends in Barrington among his parishioners, as well as people of other denominations, who are pleased to learn that he will remain here.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED, That we warn our people against the growing tendency to seek pleasure on God's holy day, either by feasting, secular visiting, engaging in or attending games, etc.; That we denounce unnecessary Sunday trafficking as un-Christian in the employer and unjust to the employe, and that we bemoan the frequency with which christian people so ally themselves with such unholy traffic as to patronize confectionery stores, ice cream parlors and barber shops on God's holy day, whereas the drift of the age is so licentious as to vitiate our social atmosphere, insidiously pollute our literature, and corrupt our art.

RESOLVED, That we denounce the license which public officials allow to vice; that we protest against the put-lishing of immodest and corrupting posters and pictures, and that we deeply regret the growing disregard of the sanctity of the marriage tie and the increase in divorces.

A resolution was adopted calling on Congress and the President, "in their use of civil and military powers in the newly acquired territory and islands, to suppress all saloons," and to abolish the canteen system in the United States army.

S. F. Entorf, Henry Schneider, and J. C. Plagge were selected as trustees for Western Union College, and $2,200 were subscribed for that institution.

Death of Mrs. Walthausen.

Mrs. Caroline Walthausen, nee Plagge, died at her home near Barrington on Saturday, March 17, of pneumonia, after an illness of several days. She was 31 years, 8 months and 17 days old at the time of her demise.

Mrs. Walthausen is a daughter of Henry Plagge and was born on June 30, 1868. She was united in marriage to Henry Walthausen on June 16, 1897, to which union one son lives to mourn her loss, besides a husband and two-step children. One sister, three brothers, a mother and father also survive. Mrs. Walthausen had many friends in Barrington and vicinity who regret her early departure.

The funeral services were held in the Evangelical Zion's church Sunday conducted by the pastor, Rev. Haller, in the German language, assisted by Rev. A. Strickfaden, pastor of the Salem church, in the English language. The remains were taken to Deer Grove cemetery for burial.
