William Burrill of Chicago, formerly of this place, has through Willard M. Smith, his attorney, filed a bill for divorce against his wife Ina Viola on the charge of willful desertion.

The High School ball team went to the Heights last Saturday to play the local nine and came back with a defeat by one score. This makes two games each for the teams and they are going to play for the championship this afternoon at this place.

The board of assessors and board of review have reduced the value of real estate in Cook county to an enormous extent. Palatine's assessments have been reduced from $531,564 to $365,641 making a reduction of $165,923. The town of Wheeling reduced from $423,708 to $337,123.

Mrs. E. Fenton returned from Chicago last Friday accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Jacobson and children and Mrs. John Jacobson, who will visit with her. They enjoyed an outing at Lake Zurich Saturday. Mrs. Jacobson's son, Lawrence Elisha, was baptised in the Methodist church Sunday morning by Rev. F. B. Hardin.

Very low excursion rates to Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, via the Chicago, Union Pacific and North-Western line, on June 19, 20, July 3, 9, 17, and August 1, 7, and 21, good returning until October 31, also very low rates on the same dates to Glenwood Springs, Salt Lake City, Ogden, Deadwood and Hot Springs. Quick est time. Best service. Apply to agents Chicago & North-Western Ry.

George Gray's shepherd dog was taken from his barn Wednesday night and George got out warrants for the arrest of Otto Schmidt, a former butcher here, and Mr. Dage of Wheeling. Constable Andermann, George Gray and W. A. Putnam went to Wheeling and served papers on Dage and he was arranged before Justice Whipple late Thursday night. The case was postponed to Wednesday to allow the constable to serve papers on Schmidt.

Taylor Has Another Birthday.

A merry party gathered at the home of C. D. Taylor Wednesday evening August 15, to celebrate a birthday anniversary of our village sage. A shade of mystery surrounds the facts as to the number of the anniversary, his wife claiming 45 years on his substantial back, while the trustee maintains that she overdrew the account by ten counts. Certainly handsome Dewey's looks bear him out in his contention, although old settlers say he has celebrated twenty anniversaries in Palatine and was quite a boy when he settled in our hamlet. The affair was a complete surprise to Duke. The crowd came early and staid late, passing the time with progressive cinch and such jollity as only a Palatine party can dispense, not forgetting to do justice to the toothsome refreshments that came in due course.

Appropriate prizes were awarded the winners of the cinch tournament, Mrs. Robert Esterbrook taking ladies' prize and J. W. Hipwell the gentlemen's prize, while Bob Mosser and Miss Eva Tuttle carried off the booby honors.

Dewey was the recipient of several handsome presents, besides hearty congratulations from the men and fonder offerings from several of the fair sex.

Among those present were Mrs. Eva Tuttle of Barrington, Miss A. Jean Noely of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hipwell of Berwyn and the following Palatine people: Mr. and Mrs. Arps, Mr. and Mrs. Harmening, Mr. and Mrs. P. Knowe, Mrs. Esterbrooks, Mr. S. Snyder, Mr. Robert Mosser.

The personal property tax list for Palatine is another queer looking schedule this year. We find that although Palatine is filled with pianos very few people consider them worth anything and people wearing diamonds which must be paste. We give a few schedules from the list which will be of interest to the public:

Notice.

The corner stone of the new church at Lake Zurich will be laid with appropriate services, in German and English, August 26, at 2:30 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend. Let us show the world that we are really in earnest about this good work. We look for a large gathering and a good collection. J. C. HOFFMEISTER.

Annual Outing.

Members of the Illinois Press Association are enjoying their annual outing at Put-in-Bay Island, Ohio, this week. Many editors accompanied by their families and invited friends are in attendance. The transportation companies and hotels have a certain degree of affection which they bestow upon the men who furnish the public with the latest news of the world, and just now the poor, overworked editors are being overloaded with hospitality. The place where, at present, so much intelligence is packed away is one of the finest summer resorts on Lake Erie. Hotel Victory, the headquarters of the Association, is one of the finest summer hotels in this country. It has all the attractions desired, and is noted for its perfect arrangement, costly furnishings, beautiful location and enchanting surroundings.

Every opportunity for rest and genuine enjoyment is at the command of the Illinois editors, and there is nothing on earth too good for them. May each and every one of them return to their arduous duties benefited by this short respite from care and worry of which the country editor has more than his share.

Railroad Farm Lands for Sale.

In Northern Wisconsin on the North-Western line. Low rates and easy terms of payments. About 400,000 acres of choice farm lands. Early buyers will secure the advantage of locations on the many beautiful streams and lakes, which abound with fish and furnish a never ending and most excellent water supply, both for family and for stock.

Land is generally well timbered, the soil fertile and easy of cultivation. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Superior, Ashland and numerous other thriving cities furnish good markets for farm produce.

EXPRESS TRAIN IS ROBBED.

Messenger Lane Killed—No Clue to the Perpetrators.

The Pennsylvania express, leaving Cincinnati at 8 p. m., Friday evening, was robbed before the train reached Columbus, and Express Messenger Lane was found dead in his car when the train reached the capital city. This was the first intimidation the trainmen had of the robbery, and they are not able to indicate at what point between Cincinnati and Columbus the tragedy occurred. Lane's revolver was found by his side with three chambers emptied. The safe was rifled of its contents, and the door indicated that it had been blown open. No details are available here. Lane lived in Columbus. It is supposed the robbers jumped off the train as it slowed up coming into the union station at Columbus. The utmost mystery veils the affair. Lane was about 28 years old. The officials of the Adams Express company give no statement as to the probable amount of money secured by the robbers, but it is reported to be about $45,000.

Fitzsimmons Defeats Ruhlín.

With a left hook on the jaw Bob Fitzsimmons put out Gus Ruhlín, "the Akron giant," after two minutes and ten seconds fighting in the sixth round at Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night. Ruhlín fell forward on his face like a chunk of heavy timber and was carried to his corner a limp mass of flesh and bones, trailing blood as he went. It was seven or eight minutes before he was revived sufficiently to come forward and shake hands with his vanquisher. After the fight Ruhlín became unconscious in his dressing room, but was revived and taken to a Turkish bathhouse, where he again collapsed. A physician was summoned, who made an examination and said that the fighter was not seriously injured internally. He revived and asked for a drink of water and again lapsed into a sort of stupor. Blood at this time was trickling from his ears and nose. The fight itself was so fast and furious as to surprise every one. It was a genuine, old-fashioned prize fight, with the difference that it took place right in the heart of the city of New York.

Prison for Conspirators.

Verdicts of guilty were returned in Judge Brentano's court at Chicago against all the defendants in the Knights and Ladies of Security conspiracy case. The penalties as fixed by the jury are as follows: James O'Brien, a fine of $2,000; Nora O'Brien, a fine of $500; Dr. Michael N. Regent, a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment in the penitentiary; Delia Mahoney, a fine of $500 and imprisonment in the penitentiary. The regent case, as the cause just tried is called, has been one of the unique trials in Cook county, and has lasted sixteen days. The burial of one man under the name of another for the alleged purpose of obtaining insurance was the basis of the prosecution. The defendants were members of Illinois Council 420, Knights and Ladies of Security, and charged with a wholesale conspiracy to obtain money fraudulently from the society. The unusual number of death benefits demanded by the Illinois council aroused the suspicions of the supreme officers at Topeka, Kas., and investigation was made.

Tried Suicide by Bumping.

Emil Marquardt, a pioneer of Arizona, who for years has been the sole occupant of a small island in Salt river near Phoenix, had trouble with a band of five Indians Tuesday night. He claims they were destroying his fish by giant powder. When they passed near his cabin he opened fire, and the Indians rode off hurriedly and held a pow-wow a short distance away. Marquardt believed he mortally wounded one of the redskins. He was arrested and put in jail, and officers have gone to the scene of the shooting to ascertain whether the Indian was killed. Marquardt attempted suicide yesterday by bumping his head against the iron door of the jail cell. Before attempting to end his life Marquardt made out a will, leaving his island and stock to a former sweetheart in Virginia.

Viscaya Islanders Fight.

Reports from the Viscaya islands show that there has been increased activity among the insurgents there during the last six weeks. The American losses in the Island of Panay last month were greater than in any month since January last. General Mojica, in Leyte, and General Lucban, in Samar, are harassing the garrisons, shooting into the towns during the night and ambushing small parties, firing and then retreating upon the larger bodies. The insurgents possess an ample supply of ammunition and are organized to a considerable degree.

Poisoned by Crazy Mother.

Mrs. Mary E. Scales, recently out of the asylum at Creston, Iowa, gave her 2-year-old daughter laudanum, from the effects of which the child died. She attempted to administer the same drug to her 6-year-old son, but he escaped and gave the alarm. She then locked herself in the house and took a fatal draught of the same drug.

TWO ROBBERS ARE KILLED.

Bullets And Fire Are Used on Highwaymen.

ONE DIES IN FLAMES.

Desperadoes Who Held Up the Union Pacific Train Meet Their Death After Fierce Fighting Near Goodland, Kan.—Three Deputy Sheriffs Shot.

The two men who Sunday last robbed a Union Pacific train in Colorado and killed a passenger, were surrounded by officers of Goodland, Kansas, three miles east of that place Friday morning. As the result of a fierce battle which followed both of them are dead, one by bullets and the other by fire. J. Briggs, owner of the Commercial hotel of Goodland, and George Cullins, a member of the posse, were severely wounded, and another of the pursuing party, name unknown, was wounded slightly. The Union Pacific Kansas City-Denver train was robbed between Limon Junction and Hugo, Col., ninety miles east of Denver, last Sunday morning, many being relieved of their money and valuables, and W. J. Fay, an aged man who resisted, was killed by one of the robbers. The robbers dropped off the train at Hugo and escaped. They were traced to the Bartholomew ranch three miles east of Goodland and a posse consisting of Sheriff Walker, J. B. Riggs, George Cullins, E. C. Biddison and several others, all heavily armed with rifles and revolvers, went over to the Bartholomew place from Goodland. Walker and Riggs were the first to dismount. They proceeded to the house where the robbers were. One of the Fatal Storm in the East.

The family of James Brown, a tailor, of New York, and two young girls of the same city, nine persons in all, were struck by lightning at Highbridge Sunday afternoon and were taken to the Fordham hospital, all seriously injured. The surgeons there say that several of them will die. Four persons were killed in Queensborough, N. Y., and two others stand very little chance of recovering from the injuries they received. Thomas robbers caught sight of them and gave the alarm. No sooner had Walker, a moment later, begun kicking the door than he was met by a volley of shots from inside. The remaining members of the party quickly lined up around the house, and for ten minutes bullets whirred at a lively rate, the rifles of the pursuers pouring a deadly fire in the direction of the robbers. The robbers returned the fire strongly, and Riggs soon fell, hit in the breast and back. Finally one of the robbers jumped through a window and made off in the smoke. Before he had gone half a dozen steps he fell in his tracks, shot to death. Sheriff Walker in the meantime had forced his way toward the house and was intent on getting inside. In the smoke and confusion Cullins got in the way of Walker's gun and was shot in the back and seriously wounded. One other man was hurt during the battle. While the men were removing Cullins the lone robber made his way to a sod kitchen near by and barricaded the door. After the fight in the morning the citizens armed themselves and went to the ranch. The man inside the house was armed with a rifle, and a too near approach to the house drew his fire. About 4 o'clock some men, by crawling through a cornfield, got to a shed near the house, and from this place threw two railroad fuses into the roof of the house, setting it on fire. It was not many minutes until the entire building was in flames, but the robber made no sign, and if he was not shot by a bullet from the many that were fired at the house from the outside he found his death in the flames. The man in the house had a large roll of bills, but these, with the robber's two valises, were burned. Each of the men was about 30 years of age and of the desperado style, having threatened to shoot several farmers who refused to keep them. The house on the ranch, with its contents, was valued at $1,200 and will be paid for by the county. The two citizens, Riggs and Cullins, shot in the fight in the morning are doing well and will recover.

CRIME DUE TO LOVE.

Blood-Curdling Deed of the Man Who Killed Messenger Lane.

The man who killed Express Messenger Lane and robbed the Adams Express company's way safe on the incoming Panhandle train Friday night was arrested at Columbus, O., Sunday, and has made a full confession of his crime. His name is Charles R. H. Ferrell, and he was an employe of the Adams Express company until three weeks ago, when he was discharged. One thousand dollars of the money stolen he gave to his sweetheart, asking her to keep it for him, as he had saved it out of his earnings. This money was recovered. Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, the beautiful young daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago, and had not since been able to secure employment. He said the need of funds for his approaching marriage was what impelled him to commit the crime. The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his affianced and in her company when placed under arrest. Ferrell is 22 years of age, and has a splendid physique, being six feet in height. Lane had permitted him, as an acquaintance, to ride in the express car, and Ferrell shot him three times in the back. The confession shows the crime to have been heartless and blood-curdling.

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Cascarets Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an ax to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Are you easy? Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try and sell you a substitute for CASCARETS is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the CASCARET substitute. Remember CASCARETS are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

Queer Combination of Names.

Some queer combinations of names arise in cases at law. A Mr. Driver in a southern state was accused of stealing hogs from a Mr. Pig. There was a witness of the name of Hamm and lawyers with the suggestive names of Miles and Chew in the case. Another recent case was headed "Bridge vs. Ford." Others bore the titles "Bridges vs. Shallcross," "Just vs. Wise," "Tanner vs. Skinner."

Best for the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

"MY OWN SELF AGAIN."

Mrs. Gates Writes to Mrs. Pinkham, Follows Her Advice and is Made Well.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For nearly two and one-half years I have been in feeble health. After my little child came it seemed I could not get my strength again. I have aches and the severest pains in my limbs and top of head and am almost insensible at times. I also have a pain just to the right of breast bone. It is so severe at times that I cannot lie on my right side. Please write me what you think of my case."—Mrs. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., April 25, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as advised and now send you a letter for publication. For several years I was in such wretched health that life was almost a burden. I could hardly walk across the floor, was so feeble. Several of our best physicians attended me, but failed to help. I concluded to write to you for advice. In a few days I received such a kind, motherly letter. I followed your instructions and am my 'old self' again. Was greatly benefited before I had used one bottle. May God bless you for what you are doing for suffering women."—Mrs. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., Oct. 6, 1899.

A Household Name.

William Clark, president of the celebrated thread manufacturing concern of Rhode Island died last week in his residence at Watch Hill. He was seized with a sudden weakness of the heart consequent upon an extremely severe attack of indigestion.

Mr. Clark was extensively known in the world of trade. He had been a manufacturer of spool cotton in this country since 1864, when he came over from Scotland for the special purpose of erecting mills for the firm of Kerr & Clark of Renfrewshire, in Scotland, of which he was a member.

William Clark.

This firm had been founded by Mr. Clark in 1851. Thirteen years later a joint stock company was formed, and while many of the shares were owned in England and Scotland, numerous wealthy Americans were interested in the enterprise, which, with its new plant in New Jersey, was a great success from the start. The original name of the concern was the Passaic Thread Company, but this was afterward changed to the Clark Thread Company. Mr. Clark still remaining the general manager and director, a post which he filled until nine years ago.

At that time Mr. Clark determined to build factories of his own, and the plant at Westchester, R. I., arose. It was thoroughly equipped from the beginning. Its founder was ably assisted by his two sons, Robert and William, who, when they left college, had entered the shop and in time had mastered the thread industry.

The working man's village, which is an adjunct of the Clark factory, is a notable example of the company's fair dealings with its employes. Mr. Clark leaves a very large estate.

Falcon Island Reappears.

Falcon island, in the Pacific ocean, which originally emerged from the sea after the eruption of a submarine volcano near Truga, and remained above the surface for precisely thirteen years before vanishing two years ago, is reported by the British cruiser Porpoise to be reappearing and to be a serious menace to navigation. It was nine feet out of water at the end of May and may be a mountain now, for all anybody knows.

AS THE WORLD MOVES ROUND

American on China's Gods.

General Fred Ward, the American soldier of fortune, who in the '60s organized and led the "Ever-Victorious Army" of China which suppressed the great Tai-ping rebellion, still holds a place in the affections of every patriotic Chinaman. At the death of Ward the Chinese erected a temple in honor of the "Invincible American," and to this day Chinese warriors burn incense before his shrine when they are about to begin a campaign. So it has come to pass that among the inhabitants of the Chinese Olympus there is at least one Yankee god. Before going to China, to which country he shipped as a sailor before the mast, Ward served as a soldier in the Crimean war, and in several filibustering expeditions against Nicaragua and other Central American countries. His great ambition was to enter West Point, and when he failed of an appointment he threw himself into the employment of any government that would give him active service in the field. He left the United States just too soon to take part in the civil war.

Ambassador to Italy.

Ex-Gov. Roger Wolcott, of Massachusetts, appointed ambassador to

EX-GOV. WOLCOTT.

Italy, to succeed Mr. Draper, has left this country for his post of duty. Ex-Gov. Wolcott comes from one of the old and honored families of the Bay State and is in the prime of life. He is a fine specimen of physical, intellectual and moral manhood. His political life began in the State Legislature and so ably did he perform his duties there that in 1892 he was elected lieutenant governor. In 1893, '94 and '95 he was re-elected and on the death of Gov. Greenhalge in February, 1896, he became acting Governor. In 1895 he was elected Governor. He now enters the ranks of diplomacy, where his tact and talents will show to best advantage.

Killed by Horse.

Miss Teresa H. Blake, a beautiful girl popular in Boston society and an accomplished horsewoman, went to the Holloway stock farm near New Rochelle to buy a hunter and jumper. She chose a handsome bay and saddled it for a try at the hurdles. At the third hurdle the horse stumbled, threw her over its head and fell upon her, killing her almost instantly. Miss Blake had ridden since she was a child, and was a skilled tennis and golf player as well.

Miss Blake.

The Peril of Electricity.

This has been called the electric age. The praises of the mysterious fluid which now does so much work for man have been sounded by orators and poets. Civilization, it is declared, has been advanced a hundred years by harnessing the forces of the lightning. Now come calmer minded men to point the other side of the picture. For if electricity has done much to relieve man of labor and to make life easier, it is also responsible for much destruction both of life and property. Every new electric invention adds one more danger to the many which now beset the residents in crowded cities, where such inventions are chiefly used. Statistics on the subject, recently gathered, are fairly startling.

"Portable" Egg-Beater.

Ernest R. Godward of New Zealand has designed the egg beater pictured below, which he claims has the advantage that it can be operated by the cook while walking about and attending to other duties, being taken up and laid down at will. The interior arrangement of the beater is arranged to cut all parts of the egg as the beater is shaken in the hand, there being two sets of spiral blades placed inside the casing, with a flat spiral cutter at the center. The ends are closed by two caps, which are provided with washers to prevent leakage, and are held in place by screw threads or other convenient fastenings. By providing a removable cap at both ends the utensil can be more readily cleaned. When it is desired to use the utensil, one cap is removed and the eggs poured in, after which the cap is replaced and the beater is shaken lengthwise in the hand. The device can be made of tin or glass, and the cutters are mounted in cups attached to the end caps, which allows the whole mechanism to be easily removed for washing.

White Defends Wilhelm.

Andrew D. White, American ambassador to Germany, has returned for a brief vacation to this country.

Andrew D. White.

"China is the all-absorbing topic of interest in Germany just now," said Mr. White. "But I don't think that the kaiser is a bit more interested in the subject than are his people. The kaiser's opinion about his divine rights as monarch necessitates an Ambassador White guage to his soldiers, which is likely to be misinterpreted if viewed from any standard less than absolutism. The kaiser regarded Baron von Ketteler as his personal servant, just as he regards every other man in government service. The baron's death at the hands of the Chinese was not only an affront to Germany, but a personal insult to the kaiser, which he can only avenge by sending more of his personal servants of the army and navy to strike a blow at Von Ketteler's murderers."

A Begging Pony.

The begging dog has become common, but a few days ago a begging pony, for the first time, was seen upon the streets of London, where it stands all day long and collects money for the widows and orphans of the British soldiers who have lost their lives in the South African War. The pony's name is Pretty Good, and a steady stream of copper and silver coin is won by it from the passing crowd.

THE WAR WITH THE BOXERS

Severe Battles in the Empire of China.

MANY NATIONS TAKE A HAND.

Li Hung Chang Appointed as Envoy Plenipotentiary to Negotiate for Peace Allied Troops March on to Peking—Crisis Is at Hand.

Thursday, August 9.

Message from Chaffee said allies occupied Yangtsun on Monday; list of casualties; indications Chinese resistance is feeble, but fear of massing of Chinese troops at Tung Chow; General Terauchi, Japanese, said allies would have 50,000 men Aug. 15 for advance; Black Flags preparing. French press furious at appointment of Count von Waldersee to command allies; he will reach Chicago about Sept. 1 en route to orient; understood to be kaiser's choice; Austrian and French ministers heard from. Rain may prove more potent enemy than Boxers; floods around Peking likely to impede troops; advance of allies not to halt; reports of missionary murders. Cipher dispatch from French ministers, Aug. 6 at Shanghai, saying envoys averse to leaving Peking and foreign forces should be ample. United States ready to protest against land grabbing; will withdraw troops when Americans are safe. Losses of allies in recent engagements 1,130 men; Russians 600, Japanese 410, and British 120. Admiral Dewey said war is on between United States and China. Sir Robert Hart still conducting business of imperial customs. Austro-Hungarian legation and archives burned on June 21. Placards in Canton say "Kill all."

Friday, August 10.

Minister Conger informed what relief is being sent; his message from Peking revealed tricks of Chinese in trying to make legations leave capital; powers in accord as to necessity of escort; envoys' refusal to leave Peking indorsed; more powers accept Count Waldersee as commander-in-chief; he will sail from Italian port to Shanghai; Baroness von Ketteler safe. Russian advices said 12,000 Chinese troops are marching from provinces towards Peking and Tientsin; Russians captured New Chwang; expect long war. Li Hung Chang, according to Shanghai dispatch, ordered to negotiate for peace; powers suspect Chinese diplomacy; will not modify relief plans. German naval society will aid press to get news from China expeditiously. Admiral Seymour may land troops at Shanghai for defense of city. Third battalion of Fifth Infantry started from Fort Sheridan for orient.

Sunday, August 12.

China expressed disposition toward peace; Emperor issued edict appointing Li Hung Chang envoy plenipotentiary to negotiate for peace; cessation of hostilities ordered pending settlement. The United States has informed China that it will not negotiate with Li Hung Chang until previous demands are complied with. Vice Admiral Courrejels reports Hankow missionaries in great peril; three more Baptist chapels destroyed at Swatow, Kwang Tung province. President Loubet addressed at Marseilles French troops bound for China; "Spare not" to be their motto. Shots exchanged between defenders Italian legation in Peking and Boxers; killed, 1; wounded, 2. Washington received belated dispatch from Conger saying, "Able to hold on till Chaffee relieves." Disturbance reported at Tatung, on the Yangtse.

Monday, August 13.

Allied forces believed to be at Peking's gate; the American commander in China cabled his arrival at Ho-Si-Wu, thirty-three miles from Peking, Aug. 10; much enthusiasm in official circles; it is believed Chaffee is now in Peking; another dispatch described unfortunate battle of Yang-Tsun. Dr. Leonard of the Methodist Missionary society received reports of safety of many missionaries. Berlin Catholic paper obtained news of murder of fifty missionaries and 8,000 converts. Missionary Hawes arrived at Pittsburg; had narrow escape at Wei-Hsein. State department gave out a full reply to China's peace proposal. General Barry cabled he proceeded to Taku on the Indiana. Details of the Yang Tsun battle show the Americans suffered heaviest losses. British and Russian guns by mistake fired on the Fourteenth United States Infantry. Sir Claude MacDonald, British minister in Peking, reports the situation as desperate.

Tuesday, August 14

General Lenevitch telegraphed to St. Petersburg that allied troops advanced to within sixteen miles from Peking; since leaving Yang Tsun on Aug. 8 had skirmishes with Chinese troops, who fled in panic; Chinese forces concentrating at Angui and Hsiang Hossino; battle expected in latter place. Negotiations proceeding between commanders and Chinese government for the handing over of foreigners in Peking to allied army. Department of State received message from Minister Conger, not a reply to telegram, which it refused to publish. Unknown speech of German emperor to his troops published, in which he opposed any partition of China. President Loubet gained popularity by speech to troops bound for China. Women missionaries returned to Chicago had narrow escape from Boxers. Account of Japanese valor at battle of Pietsang. French will join the British in defense of Shanghai.

Death of C. F. Huntington.

Collis P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific railroad, and multi-millionaire, died at Pine Knot Lodge, his luxurious camp in the Blue mountains region, at 11:55 Monday night. Huntington went into the woods last Thursday afternoon and was in apparently excellent health. Death was probably due to heart trouble. Some of the many interests with which he was connected are the California Pacific railroad, Detroit Gas company, Fuente Coal company, Galveston and San Antonio Gulf railroad, Guatemala Central railroad, Louisiana Western railroad, Metropolitan Trust company, Mexican International railroad, Louisiana and Texas railroad, Newport News Gas and Water company, New York, Texas and Mexican railroad; Old Dominion Land company, Old Dominion Steamship company, Oregon and California railroad, South Pacific Coast railroad, Southern Pacific company, Southern Pacific Railroad company, Western Texas and Pacific railroad, and Western Union Telegraph company. Russell Sage estimates Huntington's wealth at $20,000,000. Persons who were on intimate terms with Huntington agreed with Sage that $20,000,000 was a liberal estimate of the value of his estate. In addition to his other vast interests, Huntington enjoyed the reputation of being one of the largest, if not the largest, single landowner in the country.

Anarchist's Buy Detectives.

Malatesta, the anarchist, who is considered by the Tribuna of Rome to be the leader of the regicide conspiracy, is represented as having said in an interview in London:

"Sig. Sarraco (the Italian premier) is our best friend. He pays the detectives such small salaries that we can buy them cheaply. A few francs and a handful of cigarettes and you can buy an Italian detective. The Spanish police are the cheaper; the Italians come next, and then the Russian, American, French, and English in that order. The German detectives are the dearest because they are the most stupid. With all their arrests they have not arrested any real revolutionist. We shall shortly establish in Italy economic equality and social brotherhood. Then the whole world will follow the example of Italy."

A Cool and Refreshing Occupation.

While the people of a good part of the United States are sweltering in heat, it makes one rather envious to read of Lieutenant Peary, the Duke of Abruzzi and Captain Sverdrup in their refreshing and invigorating chase after the north pole. The thought of these navigators battling their way over miles of polar landscape thickly studded with real icebergs forcibly appeals to us just now, not so much from a romantic aspect or from the importance of their several missions as exploring feats as from the conclusion that whatever else may happen to them they will certainly be able to keep cool.

Lieutenant Peary, the American explorer, has been in the arctic regions for three successive summers, and it is presumed that by this time he has started for the pole from Cape Joseph Henry, where extensive preparations have been made for a three years' cruise. Lieutenant Peary's plans have been laid with military precision, as they largely consist of slowly pushing his supply depots farther north every summer and of maintaining communication between them. He is at present well protected from Ellesmere Land to Cape Joseph Henry, and with three years' supplies on the Windward he will be enabled to carry out his plans along the systematic lines he has originated. The Duke of Abruzzi, an Italian explorer, has started from Franz Josef Land and is following out the lines of the Nansen expedition of 1895. His route lies over what Hansen described as "a sea of frozen breakers," and it is calculated that he must cover 500 miles in sledges and in boats. The plans of Captain Sverdrup, the Norwegian, for the summer are to continue his explorations around northwest Greenland.

With the temperature ranging from 5 to 50 below zero it is evident that whatever reports come from the far north concerning these venturesome gentlemen they will not at all events figure in the humidity column.

The war department some time ago received a report from Captain Malory, military attache of the American legation at Peking, to the effect that the Chinese government had purchased 400,000 stands of arms from German manufacturers alone during the present year. This fact strikingly illustrates the extent of China's preparations for war. Lord Roberts said shortly after the close of the China-Japan war that the Chinese, with military training, would make good soldiers and would give the armies of other nations a stubborn fight if occasion arose. His statement was ridiculed at the time, but the fight thus far put up by the Celestials in the present trouble indicates that the British field marshal was not far wrong. With a population of 400,000,000, or about one-third of that of the entire globe, China presents to the world a military problem not easy of solution. The subjugation of the vast empire is an undertaking of greater magnitude than many have doubtless supposed. The powers would do well not to underestimate the difficulties of the task before them.

The record of the export trade of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, constitutes a most remarkable chapter in the annals of our foreign trade. According to official abstracts just issued by the treasury department, the exports for the year indicated amount to $1,394,479,914. The steady increase in exports in the past few years has been one of the most impressive features of our trade development. They advanced from $807,538,165 in 1895 to $882,606,938 in 1896, to $1,050,993,556 in 1897, to $1,231,482,330 in 1898, to $1,227,023,302 in 1899, to $1,394,479,214 in 1900. These are significant and gratifying figures.

According to reports, the natives of New Guinea love the Englishman, particularly when cooked with fresh vegetables and properly seasoned.

A really strenuous set to between Prince Tuan and Prince Ching would add materially to the comfort of the foreigners in China.

The United States consul at Frankfurt reports that the people of Switzerland are discussing annexation to the United States. Norway and Sweden will probably want to come in next. They have been sending over a good many people to explore the promised land, and they seem to like it. Let them come over and get themselves annexed by due process of naturalization. As a rule the Scandinavians and such of the Swiss as have come here have made good citizens, and the latch-string hangs out for them.

A Reading (Pa.) man buried one wife on Tuesday and married a second on Thursday, with the double honor of having celebrated the first funeral and the first wedding in a new church edifice. He is entitled to the record.

The new North German Lloyd liner Deutschland holds the record for maiden trips across the Atlantic. In all probability by the time she gets to be an old maid of the sea there will be many faster young ones.

The Chinese dowager empress persistently refuses to remain dead while there is so much excitement going on.

There is a suspicion in some quarters that the wily Li Hung Chang is dealing from the bottom of the deck.

The next number on the programme of the European concert is likely to be a Chinese chorus.

In the hurry of preparing for war the czar of Russia appears to have inadvertently used his famous disarmament policy for gun wadding.

It is now said that Mr. Astor feels that he has not been treated in England as well as he expected to be, and he is consequently disgruntled. Mr. Astor should get naturalized in some Asiatic country, where obsequiousness and toadyism are studied as a fine art.

It is said that all the Chinese diplomatic and consular representatives in the United States are ready to leave the country. However, the government may decide to file them away for future reference.

The men who make the news about the Chinese royal family are in danger of overdoing the thing and killing off all their best characters.

The cannon crackers should prove an important feature in China's implements of war.

The First Early Evening Paper.
The plan of this Paper not being generally known, the Proprietors most respectfully take the Liberty of submitting the following Sketch of it to the perusal of the Public.

The Noon Gazette will be regularly published every day at Twelve o'Clock and will contain all the actual news of the Nine Morning Papers, cautiously and faithfully selected from them. Every Species of Misinformation and Untruth will be guarded against with the utmost care, and the Communication of real authenticated Intelligence only will ever be the grand Object of this Print.

Besides the Advantage of having all the News of the Nine Morning Papers comprized in one, the Noon Gazette will contain a Postscript with every Article of important Intelligence that may arise on the Morning of its publication, so that as well as a universal Morning Paper, this Print will be found little, if at all, inferior to any Evening Publication.—From The Noon Gazette and Daily Register, 1780.

Some Ink and a Shirt.
I once remember having a noted London doctor out at sea for a little amateur fishing. He would like to see a loligo cuttle caught, he said. I warned him of what was likely to happen when gaffing was on, but he did not care. "Surely," he said, "I can dodge such guesswork as this must be for so short a time."

I felt dubious as to the result, seeing his white shirt was a prominent object through his having such an open vest. Finally a cuttle took the bait, and as I drew it toward us the doctor lost all thought of himself and his adornments in his admiration of the movements and the beautiful eyes of the creature when in an instant, as I gaffed it, the whole ink charge struck him in the throat and sadly blackened his white habiliments.—Contemporary Review.

The Law in the Case.

The law regarding the removal of weeds such as burdock and thistles, passed by the last legislature, is a good one and should be strictly enforced. It provides that between July 1 and August 20 every farmer is required to remove all the weeds along the highway contiguous to his property. For this work he is entitled $1.25 per day and the amount will be credited on his road tax. If the work is not done by August 20, the supervisor is empowered to get the work done and have the same charged to the property owner.

Labor, Capital, Anarchy, Justice.

The following is going the rounds of the press: An editor works 365 days per year to get out 313 issues of a paper; that's labor. Once in a while some one pays him a year's subscription; that's capital. And once in a while some son-of-a-gun of a dead beat takes the paper for a year or two and vanishes without paying for it; that's anarchy. But later on justice will overtake the last named creature, for there is a place where he will get his just deserts; that's h-l-l.

PEPSIN SYRUP CO.
DEAR SIRS—I feel it my duty to write to you and let you know how much good your medicine has done for me. Twenty-three years ago I was taken with some kind of stomach trouble and I tried everything I heard of. They did me but little good. Three years ago neuralgia set in on me and I got so poor and weak that I could hardly walk—couldn't work any. My husband received a book through the mail, advertising your medicine, and he sent our little boy to the drug store to get one of your ten-cent bottles. I began to use it. It is strange to say, but it's the truth, the second dose I took gave me lots of relief. I kept on using it till I used it nearly a year and now I am nearly as strong as I used to be and can do any kind of work. I recommend it to all, for it seems to me it would cure anybody. I have gotten several to use. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and they all say it has done them so much good. God bless Dr. Caldwell and his medicine for doing me so much good.
Yours with respect,
MRS. ISABELL WHEELER.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan were pleasant callers here last week. Mr. Heydecker is again a candidate for renomination for state's attorney for our county. He has served the county well during his term of office.

The large bills announcing our first market day are now out and are being placed in conspicuous places through this and adjoining counties. In order to make our first day a grand success extensive advertising is the most essential part of the program to let the people know that we are going to have such a day and, once established, means success. Don't forget the first day Wednesday, September 5.

Prof. Hodge has again returned from the East and was calling on friends here Monday. While spending his vacation at home he attended the Chautauqua summer school at Chautauqua, N. Y., and reports very beneficial returns. He will teach the Rockefeller school the coming year and we commend the school board upon securing such an able man as Mr. Hodge for their instructor.

Miss Edith Brand was tendered a most pleasant surprise party at her home Tuesday afternoon by about twenty of her young friends, it being the sixteenth anniversary of her birth. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent at various social games and amusements until about 5:30 o'clock, when refreshments, consisting of ice cream and fruit, were served, after which all departed wishing their fair hostess many returns of the pleasant event. Many pretty and useful gifts were presented.

A Testimonial from Old England.
"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale by all druggists, Barrington; A. S. Olms, Palatine.

In the Desert

A Story Illustrating the Horrors of War

By H. B. WELSH...

CHAPTER I.

"Of course, 'rare, pale Margaret's name will be on the list tomorrow! Has any one present a single doubt on the subject?"

The speaker was a little red-haired girl, with a small, prettily-tinted face, and a pair of curling, disdainful lips. She was one of a group of girls who stood in the quadrangle of the Medical College for Women in the ancient city of Edinburgh. One of the classes was just over, and the students were filing out.

"Why so positive on the subject, Tottie?" asked another student, a tall and somewhat delicate-looking girl. "It isn't always the most likely who pass."

"Oh, but Margaret Crawford, you know!" exclaimed pert little Tottie, with an uplifting of her fair eyebrows. "Why, the professors all think she's unparalleled in the history of creation! Did you hear old Cormall yesterday, when Mary Cunningham kicked up that awful row? 'Ladies, I am ashamed of you—ashamed of you!' Miss Tottie nodded her ruddy head in imitation of the professor's solemn and ponderous manner. "There is not one lady whom I can trust in the whole class—except, of course, Miss Crawford." That of course put the whole matter in a nutshell. Well, I must say I shouldn't like to be held up as the model girl of any class or of any profession!"

"Don't be afraid, Tot—you'll never have that to fear!" cried another shrill young voice. "But, I say—lowering its sharp tones—"haven't you heard, gir's, that there's something odd—well, shady, I suppose, is the word—about Miss Crawford's father?"

"No!" cried half a dozen eager voices. "What is it, Minnie. Do tell us! I always thought there must be some reason for Miss Crawford's aloofness," added one of the voices when the others ceased.

"Well, it was only by accident I heard it," said Minnie Whyte, glad of an opportunity to air her superior knowledge. "It was through a friend of the pater's—never mind who. He began to speak about the big failure of the Western Bank—you remember it, two years ago. They were all a bad set connected with it," said he, "and the manager of the Glasgow branch was as bad as any of them, though he got off scot-free. His name is James Crawford, and he's now in quite an influential position in a Lancashire town—Bolton, I believe it is. Of course that Miss Crawford's father—"

"Hush—sh!" ran through the little group, and the speaker sank into suddenly confused silence.

A girl emerged from the door, and was now walking across the quadrangle, close to where the group of girls were standing. She looked at them as she passed and nodded, smiling; but there was something forced and unnatural about the smile, and every girl there felt certain she must have overheard what was said.

"She heard every word," said the little red-haired girl in a low tone. "Well, we can't help it—it isn't our fault. I really don't see that a girl with disreputable connections should put on the airs that Margaret Crawford does. To see her walk across the quadrangle one would think that the whole college belonged to her!"

It is wonderful how unjust and uncharitable women can be to each other.

For some reason or other Margaret Crawford was not liked at the college, and her fellow-students were ready enough to believe anything to her discredit, or that of her people, without making any effort to find out the truth.

"She thinks at least that Dr. Cleland belongs to her!" said Minnie Whyte, with a little laugh. At which some of the girls frowned, for Dr. Paul Cleland was one of the outside lecturers, and as he was young and not unhandsome—half of the girls were in love with him.

Meanwhile Margaret Crawford walked on.

The girl was proud, as she had been judged; but at that moment her proud heart felt as if it would break in two. She knew she was disliked and distrusted by her fellows, and why?

Because her position was one which compelled her to keep at a distance from them, and to avoid making any of those friendships which girls are always ready to make, and sometimes just as ready to break. Margaret Crawford knew the aspersions that had been cast on her father's character, and, though she believed that they were utterly false—for she loved her father as few children do—yet, in her proud, independent way, she resolved that she would never allow these aspersions to be shared by any one else save only herself.

She walked through the quadrangle and out into the broad, level street. It was a day in April, and balmy and warm with the breath of newly-arrived spring. The sun shone warmly in Margaret's eyes as she took her westward way, and for a moment the girl's heart thrilled with the hope and joy that the mere sense of living brings to all young creatures in spring.

She had gone to the end of Forest road, and was just turning into the meadows, whose budding trees and greening grass seemed to Margaret the most beautiful thing she had ever seen, when a rapid step sounded behind her, and the next moment a voice spoke her name.

"You are going home, Miss Crawford, I see. Is it not a charming day?"

Margaret might be proud and self-contained, but she was not as complete mistress of herself as people supposed, else she would have been able to keep back that deep blush that rushed to her cheeks, and to conquer the wild, sudden beating of her heart.

"Yes, it is lovely—the first really spring-like day we have had," she said, as she quietly gave him her hand. Paul Cleland walked by her side as if he had a right to do so, and almost in silence they went on towards the "Middle Walk," as it is called, of the Meadows.

Though Cleland was a tall man, whose upright figure and long strides were more like those of a soldier than a student, Margaret was nearly as tall as he. She was finely built for a woman, and the dignity and grace of her carriage were almost queenly. Her fair, pale face, with its features clearly cut as a cameo; its dark-gray eyes, shaded by long, straight, dark lashes; its penciled, level eyebrows; its mouth, both proud and sweet, was a contrast to Cleland's dark, strong-featured, square chin and brow—not exactly a handsome face, but the face of a strong man.

"So you will know all tomorrow?" he said at last, as if he were pursuing a thread of thought. "I suppose you do not feel at all anxious as to the result?"

"I confess to feeling a little anxious," Margaret answered. "I have been expecting to pass; but now I am beginning to see what a dreadful thing it would be if I did not. It is so easy to fail sometimes."

"You will not fail. Don't let that thought worry you," said Cleland quickly. He paused a moment; then, with one swift glance down at the graceful, fair head crowned with its dark sailor hat, said, in a lower and deeper voice: "This is a matter of great importance to you, I see. May I ask, in the event of your passing, what you are going to do?"

"I am going to remain in Edinburgh for a time. Dr. Knight has promised to use his influence to get me into one of the hospitals," Margaret answered, readily enough. "When I feel that I have gained as much knowledge as I can there, I am going back to Lancashire—Bolton or Bury, probably—there to start for myself."

"And so I am never to see you any more?" Cleland asked, in a dangerously quiet voice.

Margaret started a little; the shadow of a quiver passed over her lips.

"I don't think that follows, Dr. Cleland," she said, trying to speak as quietly and as composedly as before. "As long as I am in Edinburgh, I—I hope I may still see you occasionally. You have been very good to me—you have helped me a great deal. Do not think I am ungrateful to you for all your kindness—undeserved and disinterested kindness as it has been."

"I do not want you to be ungrateful, and I don't want you to think anything I did to help you was disinterested," he exclaimed, his voice suddenly becoming passionate with emotion. They were in a very quiet part now—in the narrow lane, with ivy-covered wall on one side and a railing on the other, which led up towards the terrace in which Margaret had her lodgings. He paused, compelling her to do the same, faced her, and, suddenly taking both her hands in his, held them close. "Margaret, Margaret, can't you guess the truth? I love you with all my heart! I have loved you, I think, from the first time I saw you. Do you remember one night two seasons ago when I had just started lecturing? It was a Sunday night, and I was at St. Giles; there was a famous preacher there. By chance, as it seemed—but it was not chance, Margaret—I went into the very pew in which you were. I had no hymn book, and you offered yours, so gravely, so sweetly, without any proud reserve or coldness. I remember the hymn. It was 'My Times Are in Thy Hand.' It has been a favorite with me ever since. Margaret, I have loved you since then, with a love that has grown stronger and deeper, until it seems like a part of my being which I can't tear away. There is no other woman in the world—there never will be any other woman in the world—for me but you. Margaret, do you love me? Can you ever love me.

The words were poured forth so rapidly, so passionately, that Margaret was quite unable to stem their torrent. She stood quite still, without word or emotion, her face very pale; only once or twice that shadow of a quiver passed over her lips again. When at last Cleland paused, and looked into her face eagerly, searchingly, as if for his answer, Margaret made an evident effort to speak. "Though twice she opened her lips, no words came.

Her voice was very low when at last they did come.

"Dr. Cleland, you have done me a great honor—the greatest honor I ever expected to receive; but I should be repaying you badly indeed if I gave you the answer you ask for. You forget what I am. My father's name has been dragged through the dust. There are many people who still believe he was guilty, though he has escaped from the punishment of the law.

"Only today I overheard my fellow-students discussing the point. Whatever he is in truth—and I, his daughter, believe him innocent of the disgraceful crimes with which he was charged—in the eyes of the world he is still looked upon as one who only escaped public disgrace by accident or his own ingenuity."

"Margaret, do you think so little of my love as to imagine I am not willing to take upon myself whatever burden you may have to bear?" demanded Cleland, in a low voice. "My darling, if you know him to be innocent, so do I. Listen to me, Margaret; you have never heard the story of my past. My father was in business for many years. It is now about ten years since he died, and he died by his own hand."

Margaret uttered an exclamation. "He was in difficulties and foresaw nothing but ruin before him. It was a fearful affair. It killed my mother; she died soon after. I was left, the eldest of three boys. I was just starting my career then, and the knowledge of my father's fearful end nearly unnerved me for the future; but I managed to pluck up courage for the sake of the others. They are both off my hands now; but sometimes it was a hard struggle.

"I am not a rich man, Margaret, but I have sufficient to keep my wife in comfort. My darling, you will not refuse now? I shall not handicap you, Margaret; you can pursue your calling after you come to me if you are set upon it. I love you too much. I respect you too much, to set any restrictions upon you. Only promise to love me, to be for me only—as I will be for you all the days that we both shall live—and I shall be content."

Margaret stood silent, with drooping head; but a soft color had slowly dawned in her cheeks. Her heart cried out to her to yield. She loved Paul Cleland—oh, surely never woman before had loved any man as she did—and all the womanhood in her longed to cast itself on that strong protecting tenderness of his, which would guard her against all the world. To be his, to have him as her own—it seemed to Margaret no earthly happiness could be greater than this.

As he looked down at the downcast face, and saw the soft color creeping into it, Paul Cleland's heart beat high with hope, and, bending down, he whispered:

"Margaret, answer me only one question, and I shall be satisfied meantime. Do you love me?"

It seemed to both as if the west wind blew more softly, as if the birds ceased singing, the leaves paused in their rustle, until her answer came.

It came at last, a low murmur, hardly more than a breath—"Yes."

And then Margaret felt those strong, loving arms about her, and her head drawn down to that shelter that, it seemed to her now—or, the pity of it!—was to be her resting place forever.

Warnings of Mental Fatigue.

Edward Thorndike says that mental work is not a simple matter of mental energy or quantity of positive or inhibitory nervous discharges, but of their direction as well. Mental fatigue is not like physical fatigue and requires different treatment. Its warning signs are more complicated, less efficacious, and therefore more often neglected. The warnings that we do have are not measures of the degree of inability, but indefinite and at present ill-understood signs of danger. The degree of mental inability does not vary proportionately to the amount of work done without sufficient rest, but increases much less quickly up to a certain amount of mental work, and then may increase much faster, so that one straw of mental work may then break the camel's back.

The ship is to be put into commission April 1, 1902.

Gen. Miles' Uniform.

The new uniform of lieutenant-general, which has been built after designs made by Gen. Miles himself, promises to create a reform in Europe which will bring the old-style military dress of high rank up-to-date. Gen. Miles' new regimentals are something to shame the antique styles of the continent and Great Britain.

While abroad the American commander was impressed by the coats worn by various officers in the imperial army of Russia. On his return he set to work mentally to invent a uniform for his own wear. The concrete result is a noble creation of the art of the military tailor. The coat is of a rich dark blue material, illuminated with triple rows of buttons. There are collars and cuffs of dark blue velvet, and the cuffs are three inches in depth. There are gold epaulets, with solid crescents, bearing three stars instead of two, as under the old regime. The shoulder straps, of dark blue, are four inches long, bordered with gold embroidery, and on each strap are three stars embroidered in silver. In selecting his headgear and that of his staff Gen. Miles has followed the Russian fashion, and on great occasions he will wear the cap which, in Europe, seems to be the symbol of a great and terrible power. The illustration is after a photograph recently taken.

A New Duke.

Duke Charles Edward of Albany, now the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, is the son of the late Prince Leopold, youngest son of Queen Victoria. Leopold died in 1884, three months before the birth of his son. The mother before her marriage to Prince Leopold was the Princess Helen of Waldeck-Pyrmont, sister of the Queen of Waldeck-Holland. Young Prince Leopold Duke of Albany, was far removed from the throne of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha until the death last year of the crown prince of the realm and the solemn abdication of all his rights by the Duke of Connaught, Victoria's third son. The new ruler is 16 years old, and during his minority the regency will be held by Prince Ernest of Hohenlohe-Langenberg, a son-in-law of the late Prince Alfred.

Improvement Is Needed.

Although we lead the world in aggregate wheat production, in yield per acre we are far behind the most enlightened countries of Europe, and stand next in order, and but little above, the average attained by the miserable ryot of India or the but lately emancipated serf of Russia. Although we make millions of pounds of the best butter and cheese in the world we still expend time and energy in producing tons of stuff hardly worthy the name of butter. We still have to build up our reputation in many markets where it has suffered by the unscrupulousness of some of our farmers and shippers. — International Monthly.

FIFTEEN KILLED BY A TRAIN.

An Omnibus Load of People Crushed to Death.

RETURNING FROM A FUNERAL.

Accident Happens at a Sharp Curve on the Leigh and New England Railroad Near Slatington, Pa.—Train Was a Fast Special.

Fifteen dead and several seriously hurt, some fatally, is the result of a grade-crossing accident Sunday afternoon on the Leigh and New England railroad, near Slatington, Pa. Several families were wiped out of existence and many homes were rendered desolate. Seven persons are lying in hospitals, most of whom cannot recover. Out of a party of twenty-four only three escaped. The dead are: Eli Demaley, aged 70, of Slatington; Mrs. Eli Demaley, his wife, aged 65; Mrs. James Kern, his daughter, aged 32; Samuel Mummy, aged 60, of Walnutport; Mrs. Samuel Mummy, his wife, aged 58; Mrs. Elias Sourwine, a widow, aged 53, of Slatington; Mrs. William Kane, aged 51, Walnutport; Miss Carrie Smith, aged 22, of Walnutport; Mrs. James Minnich, aged 33, of Walnutport; Mrs. Tilghman Kuntz, aged 35, of Walnutport; Mrs. Stephen Reinhard, aged 60, of Slatington; Mrs. Susan Choen, aged 67; Mrs. Alfred Rhorig, Walnutport; Mrs. Robert Selbert, Walnutport; David Kern, 5-year-old son of Mrs. James Kern. The injured are: Miss Dizler of Walnutport; will die. Mrs. William Resch, hurt internally; may die. Louis Kuntz, seriously; may die. Miss Carrie Nagle of Walnutport, internal injuries; may die. George Minnich; probably die; Bryan Walp, Walnutport; may die; Miss Alice Nagle, will recover. The omnibus, driven by a man named Peters, was returning to Slatington from a funeral the occupants had been attending at Cherrysville. The coach belonged to Henry Bittner of Slatington, and the dead and injured were nearly all relatives of Sophia Schoeffer, at whose obsequies they had been present. The train was a special, and consisted of an engine and one car. At the point at which the collision occurred there is a sharp curve in the road, and the omnibus came along at a good rate of speed, the occupants unconscious of any impending danger. As the vehicle swung around the curve the engine and car came in sight. It was too late to stop either the omnibus or the train, and, as the driver of the former whipped up the four horses to cross the track ahead of the train, the latter crashed into its middle. The occupants were thrown in all directions, bruised and bleeding. The fifteen dead were killed outright. Physicians and a special train were sent for, and the injured were taken to South Bethlehem. No watchman is employed to warn teams or pedestrians of approaching trains, and those living in the vicinity say it is impossible to hear a train coming. A peculiar feature of the accident was that the horses drawing the omnibus escaped unhurt.

Ship Americans Back Home.

The department of state at Washington is in receipt of a dispatch from the consul general of the United States at Cape Town, dated July 9, further relating to the shipment of American citizens as muleteers at New Orleans on British transports. In this instance Mr. Stone remarks that he sends home free all who apply to him, but adds: "I no sooner clear one vessel than another comes into port with more Americans, who have been so foolish as to ship with mules for this country. Over 500 have arrived and further shipments of these muleteers ought to be prevented. The means used to obtain men at New Orleans, as told by the men, are simply disgraceful."

Socialist Editor Arrested.

Max S. Hayes, editor of the Cleveland Citizen, a socialist weekly, and nominee of the Socialist Labor party for the Vice Presidency of the United States until he withdrew in favor of Judge Harriman, was arrested while addressing a street meeting at Cleveland. The meeting was one of protest against the twenty-five-year extension of Senator M. A. Hanna's street railway company's franchise. Hayes spoke bitterly against Mayor Farley. The police say they arrested Hayes for using bad language, but Hayes and his friends say he said nothing but what was proper, and insisted the arrest was because he abused the mayor. Hayes was released on bail.

Town Threatened by Fire.

Sparks from a passing locomotive set fire to a field of grain near Davis Junction, in Ogle county, Ill. It burned fiercely for three hours, threatening the destruction of the village. Assistance was summoned from Rockford, a distance of twelve miles, and by hard work the flames were placed under control by plowing around the fire. Many acres of grain were destroyed, the loss to the farmers being heavy.

EXTRACT OF BENNE PLANT.

It Is Nature's Own Remedy.

First used by the Mississippi river steamboat men in the "early forties," who drank their "Benne Teed" from the hands of the colored "aunties." They steeped the leaves in hot water, and the verdict of these steamboat men was that it "did the business."

In 1841, James and Constance Maguire secured some of these miraculous leaves, and, upon investigation, discovered that they are identical with the Sesam. Ind. (Benne-Leafes), and as the same indicates, native of India, containing a mucilaginous substance of soothing and healing properties. Nature here furnished a remedy for diseases such as Colic, Cholera, Morbus, Diarrhoea, Dysentery and kindred ailments. After experimenting, the Messrs. Maguire succeeded in chemically combining the use of the Benne-leaves with other vegetable substances, and so furnished a remedy that has saved thousands of lives.

Birthplace of Dr. Johnson.

The announcement that the Litchfield City Council has purchased the birthplace of Dr. Samuel Johnson, in Market square, is not the first sign of the town's appreciation of its most illustrious son. In 1767, at a common hall of the bailiffs and citizens, it was ordered (without solicitation) that lease of the ground upon which the house stood should be granted to the doctor for a term of ninety-nine years at the old rent, which was five shillings, and that no fine should be paid. Johnson also had a high opinion of his native town. "Sir," he said to Boswell, "we are a city of philosophers; we work with our heads, and make the boobies of Birmingham work for us with their hands." It was in Litchfield, too, that Johnson fell in love with an actress who played Flora in "Hob in the Well."

THE BOXERS OF CHINA

are attempting to solve a gigantic problem, but they are going about it in the wrong way and will never succeed. Some people, in this country, seem to think that they have as great a puzzle on their hands in selecting a location for a home. They will certainly go about it in the wrong way unless they inspect the beautiful farming country on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway in Marinette county, Wisconsin, where the crops are of the best, work plenty, fine markets, excellent climate, pure, soft water; land sold cheap and on long time. Why rent a farm when you can buy one for less than you pay for rent? Address C. E. Rollins, Land Agent, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

A BANKER'S DISCOVERY.

What to use when you are sick is a very important subject. In a large number of cases it is far better to call a physician than to experiment with a large number of remedies now on the market. There are remedies sold, however, which produce wonderful results, far surpassing any doctor, but to separate these from the worthless class is a very difficult task.

In Topeka, Kansas, there is perhaps one remedy which is revolutionizing the practice of medicine. A gentleman by the name of Dr. W. W. Gavitt, who for a number of years has been in the banking business, has been experimenting and has made in the last few years, it is said, some most wonderful discoveries for old chronic diseases, especially kidney, liver and stomach troubles. The western papers are full of comments. It is causing a great sensation with the doctors and invalids. A two cent stamp would likely bring you all the particulars.

An Esthetic Diversion.

NEBRASKA THE LAND OF PLENTY

I wonder why it is that so many men spend their days working hard on rented farms, barely making enough to get along, with no great prospect ahead of owning their own homes, when within a few hours' journey is a land of plenty—Nebraska—where all kinds of grain and fruit can be raised with the least amount of labor; where cattle and hogs fed on corn bring a handsome profit; where the climate is healthful and churches and schools abound; where land is cheap and can be bought on very easy terms.

Think of this, and if you want information about the country send to me for "The Corn Belt," a beautifully illustrated monthly paper that tells all about Nebraska, and also for "The West Nebraska Grazing Country," an interesting illustrated booklet containing a large sectional map of Nebraska.

On the first and third Tuesdays of each month during the balance of this year cheap excursion tickets will be sold over our road to Nebraska, so that people may go and see for themselves. Ask your ticket agent about this.

The doctor expects to go as soon as his business affairs can be closed, possibly the first part of next month. He has enlisted for one year, but will remain longer if the work suits him. This position will give him a chance to see the world and a knowledge of surgical work that he could not accrue in a life time here.

The W. R. C., with a number of invited guests, spent an enjoyable afternoon at the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson at Lake Zurich. The lake proved very attractive to the braver ones and the women proved themselves far superior to the men in skill with the oars. The timid ones passed the time very pleasantly at the cottage with various games, which were closely contested. Mrs. Robertson was, as ever, a genial hostess and her supply of good things was bountiful and fully enjoyed by all. The Mission Circle will meet with Mrs. Cannon Tuesday, August 28.

We notice that a large number of our exchanges have put on a dress of political plate—editorial columns and all. It is used as original matter and is astonishing how the minds of men run in the same channel, even to misspelled words and misplaced figures. We note the editors of McHenry county papers and the editors of Christian county journals have been inspired and used exactly the same language in expressing their opinions of the political situation. Great is the man at the head of the literary bureau of the campaign committee. What a boon to the editors unable to express themselves on important questions.

Perhaps It's True.

Chicago papers publish articles of length relative to the differences existing between rural towns and that city on the question of consolidation. They say the villages are now willing to consolidate and that the federation heretofore so bitterly opposed to centralization have changed tactics. The Chronicle says:

"Rural taxpayers who organized to fight the consolidation of the city and county may now unite in securing the passage of the plan that excited them to rise in opposition. The members of the Federation of County Towns, after studying the measure which the Civic Federation or citizens' committee on consolidation is promoting, discovered it contained a provision that permits the country villages to retain autonomy. The thing they hated before they met it they now profess to love, and are willing to lay their presents at its feet. State Representative Thielman, chairman of the Federation of Towns, is now considering the names of the members of his body in order to select five to confer with the citizens' committee with reference to an agreement upon a united campaign. The suburbanites, the villagers and the farmers saw visions of city grandeur in country quietness, and with a background of appalling taxes. They intended resisting to the death the scheme of annexing them to the city by the subterfuge of abolition of county government."

It was understood by the members of the delegation from Barrington who attended the conference held at the Briggs House, that consolidation meant abolition of town governments. It did mean just that, when the matter was first agitated. But the Civic Federation of Chicago noted the opposition and framed the act that seeks only to do away with such county offices as are needless and expensive, and to place like county and city affairs under the direction of one department. It would mean the abolition of the county commissioners, the county court, the county treasurer, the county comptroller or any other function in which the city and county maintain separate offices and place them under one management.

The scheme now presented by the Chicago end of the movement contains a provision for the separation of that city from Cook county and the creation of two counties out of the suburban towns. In this the Civic Federation has adopted the plan of the opposition. The original body of anti-annexationists adopted that idea sometime before the citizens' committee recognized it. The bill is so drawn that if the city votes in favor of consolidation and the towns outside votes against it Chicago becomes a county, and rural towns may choose whether they remain as one county or divide as two. The promoters of the consolidation scheme are bound to get rid of some of the superfluous machinery of the government of Chicago and are determined that the outside towns shall assist them. "The taxpayers of rural towns don't feel like paying for the erection of new county buildings which expense would fall heavily upon them should they divide the county," says the Tribune. That is not the truth. We believe the people in this end of the county will welcome a tax for new institutions in preference to consolidation. Mr. Thielman may have experienced a change of heart, but he will have trouble convincing many others that Chicago is not trying to bait us "verdant ruralites" and use us to pull their chestnuts out of the fire. The Civic Federation proposes to dictate terms and put up the bogie man of increased taxation to round up support. Speaking for Barrington township we say let well enough alone. We desire to remain rural.

The bill which Chicago papers refer to as "what captivated the ruralites" was drawn by the citizens' committee, and reads as follows:

The general assembly may provide for subordinate local government by districts within the present or future limits of said city; also for local control of schools, police, fire protection, libraries, public lighting, improvement of streets, sidewalks, parks, sewers and waterworks in any territory hereafter added to said city; also for a graduated rate of taxation for city purposes in such territory and for exempting such territory from city taxation for the purposes above enumerated and permitting the districts therein to levy local taxes therefor, and in any act for the extension of the limits of said city submitted as hereinafter provided, the general assembly shall provide for local control of schools, police, fire protection, libraries, public lighting, improvement of streets, sidewalks, parks, sewers and waterworks in all cities, villages or incorporated towns in the territory added to the city of Chicago by such act, and for local taxation and exemptions from city taxation as above specified in the case of districts, but such local control and exemption from taxation may cease at any time by a majority vote of the legal voters of any district voting thereon at a special election held therefor.

The above reads smoothly but there is nothing captivating about it.

Don't Miss It.

Today has been set apart by the B. S. & A. C. for the date of their annual jubilee. Everyone residing in this section of earth is aware of the fact that the Barrington social organization spare no expenditure when it comes to arranging an entertainment, and the hundreds who were guests of the Club last year, are only awaiting another opportunity to partake of the lavish hospitality sure to be given out on this the third annual meet.

Numerous picnics have been held this year in this vicinity but none have offered such a complete program as that which will be carried out at Oak Park, on the shore of beautiful Lake Zurich, today. There will not be a dull moment from the the hour that Old Sol brightens the grounds until fair Luna has ceased to cast her silver sheen o'er the bosom of the lake. The boys will distribute pleasure in large quantities and not a guest will be allowed to escape a share of enjoyment. Transportation facilities provide comfort and excellent service at reasonable rates. The Woodmen band will give concerts during day and evening and O'Connor's celebrated orchestra from Chicago, will hold forth in the dancing pavilion. You cannot afford to miss this event.

A Pretty Home Wedding.

Mr. Albert Kampert and Miss Maud Adams were united in the bonds of matrimony, Thursday evening August 16, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Adams, of Spaulding, Rev. T. E. Ream, of Rockford, officiating.

The home was tastefully decorated for the occasion; parlor and sitting room being festooned with garlands of smilax, the dining room and tables embellished with pink and white carnations.

The bride was gowned in white silk with pearl satin trimmings, natural flowers as ornaments. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of relatives and immediate friends. A wedding dinner was served following the ceremony, congratulatory address delivered by Rev. Ream and vocal and instrumental selections furnished by several guests.

The contracting parties are well and favorably known to our people, Mr. Kampert being one of the highly respected young men of Barrington, and his bride endeared herself to Barringtonians while filling the position of teacher in our public school. They embark upon the sea of matrimony mid pleasant surroundings and have best wishes of a large circle of friends for their future happiness and prosperity. Mr. and Mrs. Kampert departed Friday morning for St. Joseph, Mich. On their return they will be at home at the residence of Fred. Kampert, where everything is in readiness to commence housekeeping.

Matrimonial.

Mr. Enoch Brandt, and Miss Kate Kampert were united in marriage at the parsonage of the Salem church Tuesday August 14, by the Rev. A. Strickfaden.

The groom is a son of H. A. Brandt and the bride a daughter of Mrs. Mary Kampert. The happy couple have a large number of friends in Barrington and vicinity who wish them a full measure of joy in their new life.

Surprise Party.

One of those enjoyable surprise parties in which the young people delight was tendered Harry Kirschner at his home three miles northwest of this village Monday evening. A fine program of entertainment consisting of music and speaking was rendered. Mr. Fred Kirschner, in his usual comical manner, rendered a few old-time selections which brought on convulsions of laughter. Miss Maud Cowden, in a most pleasing manner, rendered a number of vocal selections. Refreshments were served after which amusements were carried on until the wee sma hours reminded those present that pleasant sociability must cease. All in attendance report a most enjoyable occasion.

"We Know His Power."

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary to the 47th annual exhibition of the McHenry County Agricultural Board, to be held at Woodstock Aug. 28-31. Secretary Wright admits the power of the press in adding the following to the card of invitation: "This holder belongs to the press. We know his power. If he gets into trouble report him to headquarters, not the police." That relieves us of the only excuse we had for not attending. It's a very graceful act on the part of the handsome secretary and the fraternity will surely appreciate it—especially Brothers C. A. Lemmers and John Dufield. Mr. Wright is a great hustler and has a large amount of faith in the lever that moves the world. That's why the McHenry county exhibition is one of the most successful in this state. It is properly advertised.

Picnic at Lake Zurich today. Get there.
