Remove the Cobblestones.

A drive over roads in the townships of Cuba and Barrington will satisfy $175 75 20 07 anyone that road commissioners are doing good work in improving the 31 71 highways. There is one thing, how-1 75 ever, which they neglect to do, and 58 95 that is to remove the cobblestones 23 61 from graveled roads. It has been demonstrated that a gravel road is a good one to travel on, but it needs care. To allow it to fill up with large 7 20 cobblestone is to render it unfit for a 6 30 driveway.

The rocky road to Dublin is spoken 6 00 of as a terror to beast and vehicle, and from the condition of sections of a number of roads in this vicinity we 14 80 should judge the commissioners were 5 25 trying to imitate the highway to that historic Irish city. # Killed During a Parade-

While the Memorial day procession was en route to the cemetery at Bethany, Mo., A. Miller ran up behind his brother-in-law, John T. Price, who was marching in the procession, and shot him twice with a revolver. The first shot entered his back and the second, fired after he had fallen into the arms of his marching comrade, went through his head, killing him instantly. Miller fled, pursued by every man in the procession. He went directly home, and as the leaders of the pursuing crowd started to enter the door he shot himself. His wound is not fatal. Price was a wealthy farmer, 65 years_old; Miller is 50 and dissipated. He owed Price, and Price wrote him asking him to pay. He replied with a threat to kill Price and commit suicide.

Plague at Hong Kong.

The epidemic of bubonic plague is increasing at Hong Kong. The cases among the Asiatics during the past month averaged forty a day, and those among the Europeans twelve. Considerable discussion is going on as to the misgovernment of the colony. The epidemic now prevailing is attributed to the bad drainage system, the intense overcrowding of houses, and the lack of an efficient municipal administration. The medical staffs of the board of health are scandalously undermanned, and the government is inactive. Many Chinese are leaving, and the Europeans are sending out calls for indignation meetings.

Desperate Attack by Delarey's Boers Who Were Finally Repulsed, Leaving 35 Dead on the Field-Lord Kitchener Seads Regretful Report.

On the anniversary of Lord Roberts, entry into Johannesburg Great Britain has been startled by the receipt of news of desperate fighting and heavy British losses within forty miles of the Gold Reef City. The battle of Vladfontein, on the Durban-Johannesburg railroad, reported by Lord Kitchener Friday, is the most serious engagement since Gen. Clement's reverse at Magaliesburg. It shows Gen. Delarey is in no way daunted by the capture of eleven of his guns by Gen. Babington six weeks ago. The garrison of Vladfontein, apparently largely composed of yeomanry, had 174 men put out of action. That their assailants came to close quarters and suffered heavily is shown by the number of dead left on the field,

The dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, May 30, is as follows: "Gen. Dixon's force at Vladfontein was attacked yesterday by Delarey's forces and there was severe fighting. "The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy loss, leaving 35 dead. "I regret that our casualties also were severe.

"The killed and wounded numbered 174.

"Four officers were killed."

JAMES A. HERNE IS DEAD. Noted Actor-Author Expires at His Home in New York.

James A. Herne, the well-known actor and playwright, died at his home in New York City Sunday afternoon of acute bronchitis and pneumonia after an illness of more than two months. Mr. Herne was taken ill in Chicago while playing in "Sag Harbor," a play of his own composition. He went at once to his home, took to his bed and never arose. In personal popularity Mr. Herne was one of the most prominent players on the American stage. He was identified in the mind of the public with the noble characters he portrayed behind the footlights. And this was not a misconception of the man's mental and moral stature, for he wrote his own plays. The noble and generous characters which drew tears from the eyes of his audiences were the creations of the mind and sympathies of Mr. Herne himself. The two plays of Mr. Herne which won for him such fame as will be his are "Hearts of Oak" and "Shore Acres." He never or seldom produced plays that were not of his own make. The result was that he used his power as a playwright to convey the lessons of morality and of sympathy which he felt it his duty to preach to his fellow men. In private life Mr. Herne had a heart of oak and a generous and open hand. For two generations he had been a player and he was something over 60 when he died. His first engagement was

The victims, all of whom were Philadelphians, were: Mazie Kennedy, aged 18; Maud Rutter, aged 19; Mamie Sullivan, aged 21; Florence Bond, aged 21; Bertram Osmund, aged 19; Roy Ricker, aged 18; Florence Densmore, aged 19. The one saved is John Moore, aged 21. The party was composed of members of the Elm Social club, one of the numerous associations in this city organized for the promotion of picnics and other social functions. The above-named persons, most of whom resided in the southern section of the city, organized a picnic for the day. They embarked in gayly decorated wagons early Decoration day and pitched their camp at Rose Glen, along the Schuylkill river, on the northern outskirts of Philadelat Troy, N. Y., which paid him $6 a phia. The party separated after dinner for a row on the river, and those above mentioned decided to go in one boat. Heavy rains had made the muddy stream quite high and the current was much swifter than usual. All the girls were huddled in the stern, one of the boys was rowing, and the other was sitting in the bow of the boat. After reaching the middle of the river and finding the current too swift for comfort, the boat was rowed toward shore. All this time it was carried slowly down stream. The boy doing the rowing decided to go through the locks and as he approached the dam he was told by the lock-keeper not to approach any closer. The warning was not heeded, and the young oarsman kept on rowing until he found that the lock was closed. He attempted to turn the boat, which was then about fifty feet from the dam and twenty-five feet from shore, but he turned the wrong way. A moment later the boat was in the swiftly moving current. Realizing then for the first time that they were in danger, the girls began Many small articles had been missed increase of about 1 cent over ruling screaming, and the oarsman lost conrecently, among others hay forks, barb prices. ### Football Coach Arrested.

Arrest on a charge of kidnaping was the greeting accorded Dr. Wylie G. Woodruff of Philadelphia, 'one of the star football players of the University of Pennsylvania five years ago, and Mrs. Edith Moyer of Lawrence, Kas., when they arrived in Portland, Ore., Friday. The warrant sworn to at Kansas City, Mo., by Mr. Moyer, accused the couple of kidnaping his baby daughter, Myrtle, who was with her mother and who was taken into custody with the couple. "I don't understand what the matter is," said Dr. Woodruff, when arrested. "I came here to make my home in Oregon. This arrest is an outrage, and I propose to make some one suffer."

Alabama Mob Hangs a Negro.

Frank Reeves, a negro, was hanged by a mob between Georgiana and Dunham, two small villages in Butler county, Alabama. The negro had assaulted Miss Ada McMillin, and while attempting to drag her from a buggy was frightened away by men who had responded to the young woman's screams for help. Reeves was captured and confessed his crime. A mob took him to a bridge near by and after tying a rope around his neck forced him to jump off.

Oil Struck Near Tacoma.

The first oil found in the state of Washington was struck Thursday at a depth of 200 feet, in a well being driven near Tenino, by the Puget Sound Petroleum company. At the depth named drilling had to be discontinued because of the rapid oil seepage, which turned the bottom of the well into mud. It will be begun again when a larger boiler is secured from San Francisco. The discovery indicates that the coast oil belt extends from California to Puget sound. Geologists believe the strata containing the largest quantity of petroleum will be found several hundred feet lower here than in California. Seven other test wells are being driven in western Washington.

It seems impossible to wear these goods out and a piece of the linen wrought in the soft, thick cottons which are absolutely fast colors is like an heirloom. The designs are Oriental, typically Indian, Egyptian and Bulgarian in character and the soft shades of the German dyes are Oriental as well. There are no aggressive colors. The shades may be selected to harmonize or contrast with the furnishings of a room and the effect in either case will be one of added elegance and beauty.

The stitches for this work are all simple and no difficult shading or blending of colors is used. # OLD LONDON WINE HOUSES. They Have Long Been Conspicuous in the English Metropolis.

The phrase "wines from the wood" is said to have been coined by the gentleman who, forgotten himself, is perpetuated at "Short's" in the Strand. This famous wine house, founded in 1726, already hears the thunder of the county council's pickax on its flank and in about two montas, we learn, it will disappear to the eye. But the cellars of "Short's" are another matter. These extend across the Strand to the Somerset house and to a considerable distance in other directions. In their labyrinths an eighteenth century employe is said to have lost his way and never to have been seen again. And the take goes that once a year, in April, mysterious bells ring below and a moaning sound wanders among the immemorial bins. A new "Short's" will, of course, replace the old, and meanwhile attention will doubtless be drawn to the career of the original Mr. Short. He seems to have been a character as well as a good man of business. He would not serve his customers with more than one glass of wine at a visit and attempts to obtain a second glass by slipping out at one door and entering in masquerade by another are said to have been not worth making. Mr. Short died rich and his successors have borne other names. But "Short's" is "Short's" still, and even Somerset house will hardly seem the same until it is again faced by its monosyllabic neighbor. Among the host of public houses about to be demolished for the Strand improvement is one in Catherine street which bears the unique sign of the Two Spies. Of course, it is a Bible sign and refers to the Israelites' invasion of the promised land. To judge from such signs and the alliance between beer and Bible would seem more ancient than political confederacy between the publican and the parson of these later days. There are seven Adams and Eves in London and five Noah's Arks, and, of course, connected with that, five Olive Branches. There are two Jacob's Wells and one Job's Castle and one Samson's Castle. Strangest of all, but not the least appropriate, is Simon the Tanner, in Long lane, Bermondsey, the seat of the tanning industry in South London .-London Chronicle.

Occasions in Washington.

Ordinarily the ambassadors, ministers and other foreign diplomats stationed at Washington attire themselves modestly and give little evidence of the "pomp and ceremony" which surround them on state oc on such occasions as the New Year's reception at the White House they appear resplendent in magnificent uniforms and blazing with jewels and insignia, of rank. Baron Hengelmuller, the minister from Austro-Hungary, on state occasions, appears in red trousers, high black boots and black velvet cloak richly jeweled. Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, has received so many decorations that the front of his court coat literally blazes with gold and jewels. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister for state ceremonials, wears a dress of purple silk trimmed with white fur, over which he wears a heavy silken, fur-trimmed cloak. In the front of his silk turban he wears a magnificent diamond. The South American diplomats wear a uniform resplendent in red and goid. Lord Pauncefote's coat is of scarlet, with gold collars, frogs and slashes. The Siamese minister blooms in robes of richest brocaded satins and a silken scarf of wonderful hues. The uniform of the Persian minister is the most gorgeous ever worn in America. All in all, a state occasion in Washington brings together a number of costumes which in richness and variety are equaled nowhere else this side of the Atlantic.

How Enccessful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm - A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

May Chicks.

Of all months in the north May is pre-eminently the best for hatching chicks with hens, writes J. H. Davis in the Poultry Tribune. The incubator and brooder plays an important part earlier in the season when early hatched birds are desired as market poultry. But during a three years' residence in Ohio, the best birds I raised in Polish, Hamburgs, Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, were hatched in May. My incubator Plymouth Rocks, hatched in March, were marketed at twelve weeks of age, so I had no chance of knowing what they were when grown.

All my May chicks were incubator hatched and brooder raised, and they made vigorous growth and were beauties by the time winter came. May is the best month to hatch Polish, Houdans of any of the non-sitters. The chicks of the non-sitting breeds are very sensitive to cold and are easily chilled and die. But when hatched in May, when the weather becomes settled and warm, they grow fast and there is little mortality except such as is usual- that is, the weaklings die off, whether hatched with hens or incubators. I will say here that my brooder chicks always made a better average than the hen hatched chicks, and the average mortality being much less in the brooder flock than with those with hens.

If you hatch with hens, good nests, good eggs and good attention are the requisites for a start. Whitewash the nests inside, put in a few inches of earth, then sprinkle in plenty of sulphur, (no, use insect powder.-Ed.) then put in your straw or chaff and you are ready to start. Do not make the nest too deep, but rather shallow, since in a deep, round nest the eggs pile on top of each other and get broken. Sprinkle the hen once a week with insect powder, but do not disturb her. As often as possible, when she is off the nest, look to see if any eggs are broken, and if so, wash them with warm water, wipe dry and get the hen back on the nest as soon as possible. It is best to set several hens at the same time if possible; then divide the chicks among half the hens and reset the rest.

For twenty-four hours after they hatch give no feed, then provide shallow drinking pans, fixed so the chicks will not get wet, and give them water and an allowance of bread crumbs, cracker crumbs or corn bread. Keep up this diet for a week or more, when pin-headed oatmeal-the old-fashioned oatmeal-may be added to the ration. Plenty of corn bread, ortmeal, water and lettuce will keep them growing right along. Don't neglect the lettuce. Plant a big patch of is, nothing is better for the chicks or for fowls confixed in yards. For the chicks cut the lettuce fine with a pair of shears and feed it often. They will eat it greedily; see that they have a daily supply all through the season.

There was, however, abundant moisture during the season. "Can the sex of birds or animals be controlled?" is a subject just now claiming a good deal of attention. We notice that some of our contemporaries are inclined to scoff at the men that are trying to solve this question. To such we would say, "Remember that Darwin and Drummond and other great scientists have spent time on this problem and not entirely without results." The variations in the relative birth rates indicate that there are hidden principles that govern them. Just now one of the men working on the clues he has found promulgates the theory that hard conditions of life with meager food and care tends to a production of males, while an abundance of food and good surroundings and gentleness increase the number of females over the males. He claims to be proving this by keeping part of his fowls under hard conditions, and caring for and feeding the other birds in the best possible manner.

Some Forage Plants for Summer Feed The pasturage tests of a number of annual forage crops made in 1898 were with a few exceptions duplicated in 1900, the intention being to note such variation as might be induced by a difference in climatic conditions or in the individual preference or aversion of animals for a certain feed. The crops tested were rye, oats and peas, Indian corn, millet, sorghum, Kafir corn, and cowpeas, as representing the annuals, also alfalfa and cwnless brome-grass. Records were kept of the amount of pasturage afforded, and the effect of the feed upon the production or milk and butter fat.

The following are some average results for the two years: The crops giving the largest amounts of pasturage were rye and sorghum, Indian corn and millet gave less pasturage than any of the other annual forage plants. Alfalfa and awnless brom-grass gave the least pasturage ci any, the former affording considerably more than the latter. It must be borne in mind, however, that the annuals may be pastured during only a certain period of each season, while the alfalfa and brome-grass furnish feed early and late. Cowpeas and alfalfa increased most largely the yield of milk and butter fat. Next to these came rye, oats and peas, sorghum, Kafir corn and awnless brome-grass.

Cowpeas produced an actually greater quantity of milk and butter fat from a given area of land than any other crop. A comparison was made o, the amount of feed produced and the effect upon the yield of milk and butter fat when certain crops were pastured and when they were cut and fed. The crops so tested were alfalfa, sorghum, and Indian corn. In the c each of these, from two to three times as much feed was procured from a town, Jefferson county, the county seat given area of land when the crop was cut and fed as when it was pastured. The same tests indicated that the average daily production of milk and butter fat was greater for the same feed when it was pastured than when cut and fed. This on an average amounted to 1.17 times greater butter tat production from the pastured than from the soiled crop.-T. L. Lyon, Nebraska Experiment Station.

_____ CABEER FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

The strenuous life of today demands entirely recovered from the effects of that a young woman, no less than a young man, shall have definite ideas concerning a career, and that her educational work, and particularly her college training, shall be along the line of preparation for such career. At least this is the opinion that is entertained by the up-to-date girl and her family, and the number of young women who are yearly entering the professions or fitting themselves for business life proves that the contingent of the community which believes in professional or business careers for women is a large one and steadily growing, says the Brookilyn Eagle. There is one woman in town-a prominent worker in clubs and philanthropic associations-who has carved out a career for herself in a literary way, and is desirous and even anxious that her boys and girls shall have a definite life work. Three of the children have pretty well defined ideas as to what they desire to make their life work, including the elder girl, who is yet at college.

The remaining child, the second daughter, has no settled opinions as to "career." and her mother, in discussing her children's futures with a friend, said recently, in response to her visitor's comment upon the prettiness of this young girl. A young woman was the other morning arraigned before Magistrate Cornell in New York, charged by a policeman with being a disorderly character.

The prisoner pleaded hard to be let go, and denied that she had been guilty of any disorderly conduct. The judge saw the stains, and locking at the girl remarked: "Cigarettes! Five dollars!"

War Demands Speed.

In modern war plans there is no limit to speed. Year by year the naval contracts call for greater swiftness and larger ease in maneuvering. Already a torpedo boat has reached a speed of over 40 miles an hour, and some of the great ships under construction are expected to make between, 20 and 30 knots. In the army thought and resource are being concentrated upon the problem of handling troops more quickly. The Boers have taught the British many costly lessons, and the experience which Spain gained from the United States will not soon be forgotten.

Dairy Items.

"The higher the temperature of the cream at churning the poorer the quality of butter," is coming to be an accepted principle of butter making. It is therefore of no use for a man to use a churn that can churn only at high temperatures, like some of the whirlwind and cyclone churns now being so extensively advertised. Low temperatures for churning are the only ones that should be recognized. . . . . . .

At the Ontario Experiment Station butter churned into granules like clover seed contained an average of 11.15 per cent of moisture; perfect to such dairy farmers whose dairies, granular butter contained 11.44 per cent; large granular butter contained 10.85 per cent, and butter churned into grains like corn had an average of 11.57 per cent of moisture. This should set at rest the claim of some that the of the medical officer of health. That amount of water in butter is naturally from 15 to 20 per cent, as seems to be the claim in some of the English and Irish courts.

Poultry Briefs.

One poultry raiser says that while the care of chicks and the feeding have much to do with the mortality, yet in his mind the greatest cause of mortality is lack of stamina in the breeding stock. He certainly has hold of a truth, but his statement of it must be modified to be generally accepted. Given ordinary care and full protection from lice and animals of prey his statement is near the truto. But, with the protection absent, there is no room for comparison. The writer of this has known a couple of cats to butcher a whole coop ful. of half-grown chicks that had all the stamina imaginable.

Do not delay to put in some forage crop for the poulry if you expect to keep them confined this summer and have a yard large enough to divide and give chance for the plants to develop. Try some rape. The seed costs little and can be secured of any first-class nurseryman. The writer has tried it and knows that it will pay. The man that writes about the cultivation of rape will tell you that the ground should be well-prepared. But this is not always necessary. The writer

Certificated Dairies.

Certificated dairies are among the latest developments of muncipal life; says "London Dairy." The town council of Plymouth leads the way, at the instance of Mr. J. A. Bellamy, who induced the council to pass the following resolution by thirty-four votes to fifteen: "That the medical officer of health be authorized to issue annual certificates to those dairy farmers both within and without the borders of the borough, who, being suppliers of milk, cream or butter to the inhabitants of Plymouth, express themselves willing to permit the inspection of .neir farms by the medical officer of health whenever he shall think fit. That such certificates be granted only cowsheds, premises, and farms generally are in a thoroughly sanitary condition, and whose milk carts, cans, and all other plant appertaining to their business shall satisfy the requirements a list of dairy farmers to whom certificates shall have been granted be advertised for the information of the Plymouth public every three months, and that all other details as to the carrying of this scheme into effect be left to the sanitary committee."

An outbreak of typhoid fever in the town gave rise to Mr. Bellamy's idea, and if it has the effect of preventing a similar calamity no one will have a right to complain. Yet it is not at all clear that the power to issue certificates will relieve the town of all possible taint of infection, and we are disposed to question the wisdom of sending a medical officer of health hither and thither, when a large town's supply of milk is necessarily drawn from a wide circle both within and without his jurisdiction. The power to issue implies a power to withdraw a certificate, but there is, we imagine, no intention to prohibit the sale of milk from uncertificated dairies. or those whose certificates have been cancelled. Voluntary measures of this kind may possibly contribute to the purity of the milk supply, but we confess not to view the proposal with much hopefulness.

Examine carefully all small seeds. such as clover and timothy, before buying, to make sure that numerous weed seeds are not being smuggled in.

Following the rule of next in order of seniority, Justice Magruder presides as chief justice at the June term of the Superior Court, which is in sesssion at Springfield. Justice James B. Ricks of Taylorville, the newly elected member of the bench, representing the second judicial district, has taken his seat. He succeeds the late Justice Jesse J. Phi'lips of Hillsboro. Wednesday morning resolutions bearing upon the death of Justice Phillips were presented before the court by Judge S. P. Shope. The most important case to come up at the present term is the appeal presented by the state board of equalization in the mandamus proceedings instituted against the board members of the Chicago Teachers' Federation.

The Joint High Commission Again. According to a statement made by Premier Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Canadian parliament, it is inferred that the joint high commission for settling the controversies between this country and Canada' will reassemble in Washington and endeavor to come to an agreement. The commission was originally appointed in 1898 at the request of the Dominion government and was composed of commissioners from the United States, from Canada and from Newfoundland, with Baron Herschell as chairman of the commission on the part of Great Britain. Baron Herschell died two years ago, and it is intimated that Lord Rosebery will be appointed in his place.

The first meeting of the commission was held in Quebec in 1898, and adjournment was taken to Washington. The questions formulated and submitted for consideration were 12, the principal ones being:

Fur sealing in Bering sea and the waters of the north Pacific ocean Atlantic and Pacific coast fisheries ters of the common frontier.

The delimitation and establi kan-Canadian boundary.

Alien labor laws applicable to the subjects or citizens of the United States and Canada.

The mining rights of the citizens or subjects of each country within the territory of the other.

Readjustment of customs duties applicable to each country to the products of the soil or indus-try of the other upon the basis of reciprocal equiv-

Transportation across intermediate territory; intermediate transit by sea and natural or artificial waterways.

Transit of merchandise from one country to be delivered at points in the other beyond the fron-

It was understood that progress had been made informally toward settlement of some of the questions involved, but the first three clauses were the principal stumbling blocks. The proceedings, however, were interrupted by the insistence on the part of the Canadians that no formal agreement could be effected on any point until there were recognition and settlement of the Canadian claim to a large part of the mainland of southern Alaska between British Columbia and the sea and a modus vivendi agreed upon to cover a small part of the territory where a conflict on mining claims was threatened.

It is eminently desirable that all the

The Independence of Cuba. The republic of Cuba will soon take its place in the sisterhood of nations as an independent political entity, subject to certain limitations exacted by the United States, whose war with Spain made "Cuba libre" a present possibility. The Cubans might ultimately have won their independence from Spain without the aid of the United States, but it is reasonably certain that a victorious end of the struggle for freedom which has continued almost since the earliest settlement of the island would not have come so soon had not the United States intervened to put a stop to an intolerable situation.

The acceptance by the Cuban constitutional convention of the conditions required by the United States, known as the Platt amendment, opens the way for the speedy recognition of Cuba's independence. The limitations thus placed upon Cuba's sovereighty are briefly these:

1. That the government of Cuba shall never enter into any treaty or other compact with any foreign power or powers which will impair or tend to impair the independence of Cuba nor in any manner authorize or permit any foreign pow er or powers to obtain by colonization or for mili tary or naval purposes or otherwise judgment i or control over any portion of said island.

2. That said government shall not assume a contract any public debt to pay the interest upo which and to make reasonable sinking fund pro vision for the ultimate discharge of which the or dinary revenues of the island after defraying the current expenses of government shall be inade

3. That the government of Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to inter-vene for the preservation of Cuban independence the maintenance of a government adequate for th protection of life, property and individual lib erty and for discharging the obligations with re spect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris of the United States, now to be assumed and under taken by the government of Cuba

4. That all acts of the United States in Cubs during its military occupancy thereof are ratifie and validated, and all lawful rights acquire thereunder shall be maintained and protected.

5. That the government of Cuba will execut and as far as necessary extend, the plans already devised or other plans to be mutually agreed up on for the sanitation of the cities of the island, t the end that a recurrence of epidemic and infec tious diseases may be prevented, thereby assuring protection to the people and commerce of Cuba well as to the commerce of the southern ports the United States and the people residing

6. That the Isle of Pines shall be omitted from the proposed constitutional boundaries of Cuba and the title thereto left to future adjustment by treaty. 7. That to enable the United States to maintain the independence of Cuba and to protect the people thereof as well as for its own defense the overnment of Cuba will sell or lease to the United States lands necessary for coaling or naval sta-tions at certain specified points to be agreed upon with the president of the United States.

To the third clause of the Platt amendment the Cuban convention made this addendum: That the interrention referred to "shall suppose nelther sovereignty nor a protectorate and shall only last sufficiently long to establish normal conditions. Said intervention, it is also understood, shall not have the right to interfere in the government, but only the right to preserve independence." An addition to the seventh clause says that "it shall be understood that the naval stations do not give the United States the right to intervene in the interior government, but are established with the sole purpose of protecting American waters from foreign invasion directed against Cuba or the United States." In conclusion it is provided that the government of Cuba suggest a treaty of commerce based upon reciprocity. The longest steamship route in the world is the one which was established between Tacoma, on Puget sound, and Liverpool via the Suez canal. This is much more than a voyage half round the world, since the distance to Liverpool from Tacoma by proceeding directly eastward is much shorter than by going directly westward. Besides this, a great deflection from the direct route has to be made in order that the steamships may pass through the Indian ocean and enter the Red sea. It is probable that a line of this kind would find it difficult to profitably maintain itself if it were not for the possibilities of obtaining freight for intervening ports, as it is the intention of the steamers to stop at the Philippines, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon and one or two different points on the shores of the Mediterranean sea. The establishment of this line is another instance of the great and growing activ-2,074,600, which is a gain of a little less ity of the commerce of the Pacific ocean, which is becoming every year more and more a thoroughfare of American trade.

Safeguarding the Country's Rivers, The growing interest with which the inland water courses of the country are being regarded by the legislative bodies of the several states is illustrated in the passage at the late session of the New York state legislature of a bill by which $1,500 was appropriated to be spent in co-operation with the United States geological survey in the study of the rivers of the state and the measure ment of their flow. The conditions under which this appropriation was made are that the government will appropriate a like amount for work in the state and conduct the investigations. This is not altogether a new move on the part of New York state, as an appropriation of $1,000 for work of the same nature was made last year. Other states have also passed similar measures, and a bill by the state forester of Pennsylvania is now in preparation which if passed will place $2,000 in the hands of the United States geological survey, who will add a like amount and conduct a similar line of work on the Pennsylvania rivers. In the last few years also all of the New England states and a number of other eastern states have entered into a like co-operation with the government for the investigation of the rivers within their borders

The value of this work, which can obviously be carried on more economically and thoroughly by the federal government than by the several states independently, can be understood when it is realized that upon the results and figures obtained from these investigations depends the solution of such questions as the availability of given streams for the water supply of our rapidly growing towns and cities, for protection against undue pollution from sewerage and manufacturing refuse, for the location and development of many valuable water power advantages and for furnishing reliable data for use in legal controversies which have been and are being continually brought from the misuse of the waters of the streams. In short, it is a work necessary for the safeguarding of the country's water resources.

The recent launching of the battleship Ohio at San Francisco recalls the fact that it is not the first United States war vessel to bear that name. The old sailing line of battle ship Ohio was launched at the Brooklyn navy yard on May 22, 1820, and was designed and constructed by Henry Eckford. It did not go into commission until 1888 and on its first cruise, bound for the Mediterranean, flew the broad pennantsof Commodore Hull. It also served in the Mexican war and was the flagship of the American fleet in the finally sold to Israel M. Snow of Green-In his day the Ohio was queen of the navy. Austrian naval commission, by permission, took its model, as, according to a journal of the cruise, "the king of Austria las ordered a ship to be built as like it as possible." The problem of "governing the orient on western principles," so urgent just now for the American people, is discussed in the June Forum by Professor Paul S. Reinsch, who contributes toward its solution a thorough but popular investigation of the oriental temperament and an account of the political experiments of the leading European nations in the management of alien races. He shows the difficulty of imposing upon any conquered country in the east the institutions of the conqueror and goes so far as to say that my western nation which would maintain successfully an oriental empire must to a certain extent modify the exigencies of oriental life. He regards the application of progressive methods to the static society of the OFFIGE, Lageschulte Block. east as fraught with the greatest danger to the peace of the world.

points in controversy should be speedily and amicably settled, but until the Canadians are inclined to approach the boundary question in a somewhat more reasonable and conciliatory spirit than has hitherto characterized their attitude there would seem to be little need of further conference of the high commissioners.

The Yale Alumni Weekly prints some tabulated statistics which are of unusual interest as showing the results of the new elective study system. The figures show that while the relative amount of instruction in languages has not materially declined in 18 years the modern languages and English have gained at the expense of Greek and Latin, that mathematical studies have declined nearly 50 per cent in importance, while the sciences have gained somewhat, and that the study of historical and social science has increased more than enough to balance the decline in that of philosophy. The experience of Harvard is similar to that of Yale. Of the class of 1888 1.11 per cent dropped ancient languages as soon as they entered college, while in the class of 1900 over 40 per cent dropped them. In the class of 1888 42.2 per cent dropped mathematics, and 72.9 per cent of the class of 1900 did the same. Apparently the classics and mathematics are on the wane in the higher institutions of learning.

One day, after vainly endeavoring to

Why Girls Cannot Throw.

A great deal of fun is poked at girls because they cannot throw a stone or a snowball and hit the person or thing they are aiming at. The general idea as to why girls cannot throw as well as boys is that they have not acquired the knack by practice as their brothers have. Another explanation is given by a medical man which tends to show that girls could never learn the knack, however much they tried.

When a boy throws a stone, he crooks his elbow and reaches back with his forearm, and in the act of throwing he works every joint from shoulder to wrist. The girl throws with her whole arm rigid, whereas the boy's arm is relaxed.

The reason of this difference is one of anatomy. The feminine collar bone is longer and is set lower than in the case of a male. The long, crooked, awkward bone interferes with the free use of the arm. This is the reason that girls cannot throw well.

CHAPTER VIII.-(Continued.) Just then the door opened and Mildred entered. She came in swiftly, and advanced so rapidly toward the chimney-piece that, until she was within a foot of him, she was not aware of his presence there, and acknowledged her surprise by a sudden start and exlamation cf alarm.

"I beg your pardon," he said; "I did not mean to frighten you."

· Even as he spoke a wild determination to know the worst from her own lips without loss of time seized upon him.

"I came for a book," explained Mildred, hurriedly. "Ah, here it is! In confusion I hardly remembered where I had left it."

"Can you spare me a few minutes?" asked Denzil, without giving himself liberty to think further.

"Certainly," answered Mildred, in a tone of marked surprise. "But do you nct think that another time would be then went on to her room. more convenient? You see"-glancing at the clock-"how late it is? The an hour, and we shall not be ready."

"I will not detain you long," he said -two or three minutes at the furthest. Indeed, a few words will comprise all that I have to say. You must have for yourself---"

"Stay," cried Mildred, faintly-"do not go on! You have said enoughbelieve me-"

"It is too late now to stop me," interrupted Denzil, passionately. "I must go on and tell you the one thought that occupies me day and night. Reject me-despise me, if you will, only hear me."

To this, although he waited as if in expectation, she made no answer. Perhaps, had she then once more forbidhis peace. But she kept complete silence.

They formed a curious picture, standing there in the old-fashioned dresses they had not had time to remove; Denzil in white satin breeches and rich ruffles and carefully-powdered hair, Miss Trevanion as "La Valliere." with her trailing embroidered satin robe, her fair hair also thinly powdered, and her soft white arms half gers from his clasp as she spoke, and with the action a small turquois bracelet fell to the ground. Involuntarily Denzil stooped to pick it up, and, as she held out her hand to repossess herself of it, he slipped it round her arm and fastened it there once more. Then, a reckless feeling coming over him, and the small white hand he loved with such hopeless fondness being so well within his reach, he bent his head, and pressed a tender, despairing, lingering kiss upon it, after which he almost flung it from him and walked away. What a sad, final farewell it seemed to him! As for Mildred, she made no further sign, but left the room as noiselessly as she had entered it.

In the hall she encountered Mabel, radiant and white-robed, who said: "What-not yet dressed, Mildred?"

And Mildred answered, "I shall be down presently," quite calmly, and ball was at its height. Denzil was there, as calm as ever, and apparently in excellent spirits, at the end of the room, conversing with her mother and old Blount. He was laughing, but his mirth was not overstrained, neither was his manner in any wise different from what it usually was; and, indeed, only one intimately acquainted with him would have noticed a certain den him, he might forever have held bright gleam and glitter in his eyes which betokened feverishness. It had come off, and it was now indeed Denzil's last night at King's Abbott for some time to come. He had been shooting steadily all the morning, with the vigorous intention of warding off all cares and vexations that might arise to harass and disturb his mind: but as the night drew on, and the hour of departure approached more closely, his self-imposed sternness gave way, and he began painfully to understand how bitterly he should miss the sight of the cold, exquisite face of Mildred Trevanion during the two months that must elapse before he could avail himself of the pressing invitation he had received from Sir George and Lady Caroline, to come and stay with them again as soon as ever Christmas should be over their heads.

"So you are really about to leave us to-morrow?" said Frances Sylverton. "I can scarcely bring myself to believe it. You have made yourself so completely one of us that I do not know how we are to get on until we see you again.'

"Is that from your heart?" asked Denzil, lightly, but with an understratum of extreme earnestness. "When I am far away I shall like to believe it was." Then, changing his tone to one somewhat lower, he added, "For myself I cannot bear to think of this securely fastened, an awful sense of time to-morrow evening; all will be

"And so you have actually made up your mind to go by the early train, Mr. Younge?" called out Miss Deverill from an opposite sofa.

"Well, the best of such decisions is,' went on Miss Deverill, "one gets over one's last speeches and adieus the night before, and so can commence the journey in the morning free and unfettered.

"I should call that the worst of it, not the best." said Miss Sylverton, softly." "I could not bear to leave a house with no one ready to bid me 'good-by,' or to wish me a pleasant

"But still, as final farewells must be said one time or the other. I think I should prefer them at the very last moment," said Frances. "Confess now, SPORT IN WESTERN CANADA. While the Farmer's Grain Is Ripening and His Stock Growing Fat He May Have Plenty of Shooting.

There is probably no country on the American Continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds everywhere and nowhere does it afford such perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: "There is one particular spot where I saw a man drop seventy mallards one morning and bring them an to bag, too, for they dropped in oper water or on flat prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to gold out. You can hear the prair:e chicken crowing like barn-door fowls, and a little to the northeast is a hit of marshy ground, cattle-poached and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight Still, the neighborhood is wellsettled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse, where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized prices. A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over, and down on the flat, hoggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee deep in water on the summer evenings ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach, broken now and then by the wierd banshee-cry of strange water-fowl." Particulars regarding settlement of the lands of Western Canada can be had from any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns.

The trial at Boston of the libel suit for $150,000 of Mrs. Josephine C. Woodbury against Mrs. Mary Baker G. Mr. Hanna said he was first reader of the church subject to Mrs. Eddy's approval, as provided by a bylaw. He is editor of the Christian Science Journal and of the Sentinel. Mr. Peabody handed him a copy of the May (1899) Arena, and called his attention to an article in it, written by Mrs. Woodbury. Over this article the lawyers had a long argument as to its admissibility, Mr. Elder, for the defense, alleging irrelevancy of the article to the promise of Mr. Peabody that he would connect Mrs. Eddy with the excommunication of Mrs. Woodbury. Mr. Peabody argued that the Arena article was an incident bearing on the

Lost His Suit.

Here is the strange experience of a North Front street merchant, says the Philadelphia Record. Prior to getting married about two months ago, he had his tailor make him a very fine suit for evening dress. The material was of the best imported broadcloth and the suit was lined throughout with the best silk. The fit was an excellent one, and the young benedict was very proud of this swallow-tail suit. Soon after returning from his honeymoon a very intimate friend of his bachelor days called and asked for the loan of the suit, saying that he wanted to attend a reception, and would be sure to return the clothes promptly. The merchant found it impossible to refuse and granted, his friend's request. Three weeks elapsed and the clothes had not been returned. The merchant called at his friend's house to inquire the cause. His surprise may be imagined when he was told that his. friend had been dead for almost a week. After expressing his sorrow he gently broached the subject of his dress suit. "Why, we found the suit in his closet and buried him in it." was the reply. Now Mr. Merchant is mourning a dear friend and an expensive suit of clothes.

A Blacksmith's Strange Experience.

Goodland, Kan., June 3.-N. E. Albertson, our leading blacksmith has been a great sufferer from rheumatism. He was so bad that he could not sleep for the great pain in his arms and shoulders. He had been afflicted for years, but lately he was so much worse. that he thought he would have to give up his shop altogether.

Then a strange thing happened. As friend of his recommended a new medicine called Dodd's Kidney Pills, said to be a cure for Rheumatism. He commenced to use them, and at once began to recover. His pain has all left him, and he is a well man today, and entirely free from any symptom of Rheumatism.

To say that he is thankful, is putting it very mildly. He is delighted.

Dodd's Kidney Pills deserve credit for having cured this very severe and almost hopeless case.

From recent reports, there does not seem to be anything that they will not cure, as very bad cases of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, kneumatism, and Heart Trouble, have been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, even after having been given up by our best doctors.

"Then, as you will have it," she cried, losing all moderation, "take from my own lips 'No.' "

There was a long pause. Denzil's face was as white as death. Miss Trevanion's scarcely less so; while the hand that lay upon the table appeared which she leaned upon it.

"Do you say that because my father earned his money by trade?" asked Denzil, slowly.

"It cannot matter now," she answered, coldly.

"Yes, it does," he went on, excitedly; "and I believe, from my heart, that that is the reason. Denzil tried hard to find some suitable words in which to clothe his appreciation of her unwonted graciousness, and to beg that, for his sake, she would not put herself to such an inconvenience-but in vain; his brain seemed in confusion, and he could only mutter "Thank you" in a hurried, unnatural manner, quite foreign to his usual courteous self.

EATING AND BODILY HEALTH.

Two French Medical Investigators Believe We Eat to Die.

Doubt as to whether we eat to live will you go and tell Mabel that I want | or eat to die has been dispelled by certain French medical investigators, who have proved to their own satisfaction that we eat to die. One of these scientists recently read a paper before the Academy of Medicine, in which he advanced the theory that appendicitis is often the result of intestinal poisoning caused by influenza. Another investigator in discussing the same subject declared that the disease is caused by worms or other parasites that are swallowed with raw fruits and vegetables and in impure water. Two other French investigators have discovered by test that rabbits which have been compelled to fast for a week are proof against the attacks of bacilli injected into their systems, while rabbits that have received their regular rations quickly succumb to disease. This is probably explained by the theory that the digestive agents of the body when not employed in the assimilation of nourishment from food will be in fighting trim for the task of "doing up" any microbes that may enter their bailiwicks. Prophylactic action in line with this theory would destroy the business of the butchers, grocers and bakers during times of epidemic, but it would also destroy the fasters in the course of time, and thus prove the converse of the dictum that we eat to die. There is no doubt as to the illeffects of over-eating; and opinion is

PATHETICLIFE STORY

THE DISAPPOINTING CAREER OF FRANCES RAYMOND.

Actress and Writer Has Had a Hard Road to Travel-Courted Death and the Curtain Fell on a Scene of

The final chapter of the pathetic life story of Frances Raymond, a woman of rare beauty and undoubted ability who has sought to make a name for herself on the stage and in literature and who, after bright prospects in both fields, had failed, was written last week when she successfully courted death. Mrs. Raymond's handsomely attired body was found Sunday in her fashionable apartments in New York after life had been extinct several hours as a result of asphyxiation.

Frances Raymond was for a brief time in her life of 32 years an actress. Her stage career closed in 1894 after she had attained a small degree of success and she then devoted her talents to literature. She was possessed of an active, brilliant mind and after three years placed in the hands of publishers a novel which many critics praised highly. It did not take with the reading public, however, and her efforts went for naught. Her failure to achieve fame on the stage or as a writer was most depressing to Mrs. Raymond and she became melancholy and morose. The final disappointment which blasted all her hopes was the unhappy termination of a love affair. A young physician who had been devoted to her at the time of her deepest tribulation and whom Mrs. Raymond loved deeply deserted her and then she apparently lost all interest in worldly affairs and determined upon death as a release from her trials.

Mrs. Raymond had been married and divorced. Her name before she appeared upon the stage was Mrs. M. Schaffer, she assuming a portion of the name of Franklin Raymond Wallace, a Montana millionaire, who educated her for the stage career, and

"COMMUNITY OF INTEREST."

Some of the Effects of the Great Rallroad Changes Which Are Occurring. "Community of Interest" seems to be the watchword among the great railroad corporations, nowadays, and certain persons who are apt to decide upon topics of general interest, especially new ones, without thinking upon the facts, have supposed that this meant an arrangement of interest only to the railway companies participating in the deals, traffic arrangements, leases, etc., which show in the stock transactions and engage the thought and ability of traffic and passenger agents. It is undoubtedly the financial interest of the corporations which moves their officers to enter into contracts, but the consideration of this topic necessarily includes that of the convenience, comfort and attractions which they can offer to their patrons. If competition be less intense, and rate wars be relegated to the dead past. it means that more attention will be paid to those inducements which will bring business to up-to-date lines of transportation. An instance of the early profit of the public is most worthy of mention. Under the plan of arrangements known as "Community of Interest" very close relations have been established by the Missouri Pacific System with the Denlines diverging from junction points. So that now, for the first time in the railway history of the country, a passenger may take train at St. Louis and remain therein until he has reached San Francisco. The route is one of the most popular because of its great scenic beauty, and because it gives the traveler the benefit of variety of altitude and climate, taking him across the smiling plains of Kansas into the through her most noted mining localities, and by the great inland salt sea, where a great religious organization has builded a city of magnificence in an casis of the desert, and whose political power has been maintained in spite of the objections of the concentrated power of the United States and in the face of all the obstacles which have ever, from the dawn of Christianity, contended against its establishment by any sect or creed.

These places are of great interest to the traveler of today, and since they may be visited with such ease in, the magnificent trains of this monster system of railway, the tide of tourist traffic is being turned to them by natural selection. The Missouri Pacific and the Rio Grande reach all points in Colorado, Utah and the West, and thus

Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life-health.

Lucy Annie Heiser.

If all the tired women and all the nervous women, and all the women that needed a tonic would read and heed the words of these fair ladies who have spoken right to the point, how many invalids would be prevented and how many wretched lives be made happy.

Peruna restores health in a normal way.

Peruna puts right all the mucous membranes of the body, and in this way restores the functions of every organ.

From Mrs. Amanda Shumaker, who has charge of the Grammar Department of the Public Schools of Columbia City, Wash., also Past Grand of Independ-ent Order of Good Templars, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

Columbia City, Wash "I can speak only good words of the repeated benefits I have had from the use of Peruna.

"Too constant application to work last winter caused me to have severe head and backache and dragging pains. I could not stop my work, neither was I fit to go on. Reading of the bene-ficial results from the use of Peruna I purchased a bottle and within a few days after using it, began to feel better. 'I constantly improved and before the seventh bottle was completely used, all pains were gone, my strength was restored, and I now seem ten years' younger.

"If I get tired or feel bad, Peruna at once helps me, and I feel you deserve praise for placing such a conscientious medicine before a suffering public."

Mrs. Amanda Shumaker. Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass., writes:

"I suffered for 3 over a year with general weakness and debility, manifested especially in severe backache and headache.

"My physician prescribed different. medicines, n o n e of which seemed to help me any until a club associate advised me to announcement try Peruna as it cured her of constitutional headache and stomach troubles. I at once ordered a bottle and before it was used, felt greatly improved.

"I have taken four bottles and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies. Several of my friends are using Peruna with beneficial results, especially in cases of troubles with the kidneys and other pelvic organs, together with weaknesses peculiar to women.'

Peruna is a specific for the catarrhal derangements of women.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman. giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The life of Mrs. Raymond was one of many adventures, each of which, it seemed, resulted disastrously. Through her whole career ran a vein of romance and, though her affairs of love were few, she was disappointed in each and the last determined her to seek release from earthly care in the seclusion and peace of the grave.

After the punishment was over and the shackles loosened an evercoat was thrown over the man's bleeding back and he was taken back to the jail where ointment was applied.

The Japs Have Great Endurance.

The Japanese are a Spartan race. Many things besides their resistance to cold prove it. The most of them live in simplicity) They can go a long time without food. The coolies perform marvelous feats of strength and endurance; they draw a "jinrikisha" all day or carry travelers over the steepest mountains. Every summer a colony of foreigners go to Mt. Hei-eizan near Kioto. Their camp is several miles up the steep mountain side, but early each morning the Japanese bring up the mail, fresh vegetables and milk, and women often carry trunks to the summit on their heads. In the upper classes the old "samural" ideals inculcated endurance, courage and simplicity.

Dyspepsia

Most people eat more than is good for them. The stomach tries to digest all that's put into it, but if repeatedly overloaded, it goes on a strike. That's indigestion. Rich, over-sweet, indigestible food weakens the stomach and makes it unable to take care of the material put into it. More food taken into a weakened stomach than the stomach can digest, stays there, forms gases and rots, bringing on all the horrors of dyspepsia. The only way to cure dyspepsia is to clean out the digestive canal with CASCARETS. Keep it clean with Cascarets, eat light food sparingly, and give the stomach a chance to rest up and get strong again.

Obituary.

Mrs. Rudolph Karschnick passed away at her home on Chestnut street Wednesday afternoon after having been a sufferer for five months of the dread disease consumption. She was born in Pamitz, Germany, May 1874, and came to America with her parents when a child. Her maiden name was Rika Wagner and eight years ago she was united in marriage to Rudolph Karschnick, making this village her home since. Two children, a girl of six years and boy of four years, were the result of this union, and with the husband, John and Henrietta Wagner, father and mother, a brother and sister, are the family who mourn her death. Mrs. Karschnick was a believer in the Lutheran faith.

THE "CAN BILL" A LAW.

Governor Yates having affixed his autograph to the Can Bill passed by the legislature, leaves it a full-fledged hold memorial services for deceased and more, a necessity. To President law long sought and worked for by the Milk Shippers Union. This is the first law to be placed on the statute books of Illinois directly in the interest of milk shippers and demonstrates what can be done with a little push and perseverance. It affords a great measure of relief from what in the aggregate has been a great loss as well as a great nuisance, and the thieves who made a buisness of destroying cans for the solder and tin will now think twice before doing it, as well as the peddler who melted the name plate off and then sold them back to the farmer.

It is due to the shipper, says the Milk News, to ponder over this, our first important victory, and learn from it that we can accomplish something by having a united force that means something. The law provides for the registration of the shippers trade name or mark with the secretary of Samuel Wardlow of Hebron called state for a fee of $1, after which it is an offense for any one to have your caus in his possession without your !! permission, punishable by fine of $5 to $50 for the first offense and $50 to $200 for second or subsequent offense, and to be confined in the common jail un-

Guide Boards a Necessity.

There should be a law making it obligatory for the board of highway commissioners of each township to erect and maintain guide boards on the public highways at cross roads. In this section there are what appear to be main traveled roads running in every imaginable direction, and the traveler who is not familiar with the country, finds himself in a quandary when he arrives at a cross roads or at a point where the forks run in nearly the same direction, as they do on roads running to Wauconda, Dundee and Cary. It is difficult to find where he is at. On the roads leading out of Barrington there is not a guide board of any character to inform the weary wayfarer of the right direction to the next town. One can always find a "kind hearted and obliging" citizen willing to direct but the next thing is to remember "red barns," (they are all red in this
