Electric Road Coming.

Several promoters of an electric line to run from Chicago to the lake region north-west of here were in our village last Saturday to' look over the route from Palatine and determine the best road to take. They consulted with a number of business men here Miss Clara Davis, formerly of this and assured them that the line was place, has been visiting old acquaint- sure to come in this direction, but did not know which road to enter or leave the village, as each had its advantages. Their idea is to start from Oak Park and run nearly direct north-west, and perhaps go through Schaumberg before striking Palatine. From here the road is laid out to run through Lake Zurich, Wauconda and through to Fox Lake. It may be that these promoters will not go ahead with their plans, but if they do not it is certain that Palatine will have an electric line connecting with Chicago before many months.

When such road does come we can look for a small-sized boom, as it will bring Palatine in close touch with nearby inland villages and give us a short-cut to the popular, near-by resorts. The scheme to build to these lakes is agitated by a number of promoters and will be a rich investment for those who first secure the right-of-way.

Senator Mason never has intimated by what method he expects to retain his seat in the senate, but politicians are beginning to think that independents in the next assembly will settle the senatorial contest and that Illinois may see a repetition of the historic Logan-Davis fight.

Senator Mason's insistent claim that Congressman Hopkins will not be the choice of the Illinois legislature for the senate when that body votes next winter, coupled with movements for independent legislative nominations, has led to the suspicion both in republican and democratic circles, that there will be another struggle in this state similar to that of 1877 when Justice Davis of the U.S. supreme court was elected senator over that favorite son, Gen. John W. Mackay, the last of the great Bonanza kings of America, and a multimillionaire, died suddenly at his London residence, 6 Carlton House terrace, July 20.

Mr. Mackay's body will be brought to this country at once and laid beside that of his son, John W. Mackay, Jr., in Greenwood cemetery, in one of the most beautiful mausoleums in

For twelve years his was the life of the ordinary miner, with the disappointments and the hardships that began with the coming of each new day and did not end with the sinking of the sun. Fortune smiled on him in 1872. It was then he came upon the Comstock lode, and with Fair and Flood and O'Brien set about amassing the wealth that helped him to emi nence from where all the world viewed him and marveled at his progress to the summits of success.

From the active struggle of the mining camp this indefatigable worker moved upon San Francisco. There, no work presenting for his hands to do, his brain grew the more active, and he planned the Bank of Nevada. with headquarters at San Francisco.

experiences Mr. Mackay met and married the widow of Dr. Bryant. When the stress of his early days was past he turned his attention to gaining some of the pleasures of life that are to be had in society, and after he deserted the West for New York he spent considerable time abroad. He was a man who made many friends, and held them close to his side during the rest of his life when they once proved themselves true. The Cosmopolitan Magazine, in a review of his rise from obscurity to fame and unmeasured prestige published in its issue last May, summed up his career in the following words: "All things considered, Mr. Mackay is an extraordinary figure, and when he passes away there will be left no other so perfect representative of the stalwart founders of the business structure of the western slope. Huntington, Stanford, Hearst, Flood, O'Brien, the Crockers and others of their class have nearly all closed their remarkable records. Of all such records perhaps no one is more remarkable than that here briefly outlined. No man better than he exemplifies the happy coincidence of good, health, good mind, good courage and of the silver that was buried beneath good luck."

Officials Have Difficult Prob- Convention Adopts Plan Prolem to Solve in Dividing the Cash.

Secretary Wilson Sends Funds to the Three Anthracite Districts to Be Distributed Among the Strikers and Their Dependents.

The problem of collecting and disributing $500,000 a week among the striking coal miners is presenting many difficulties.

There are now some 100,000 workers of all classes in the region who are idle and in need of aid, and the union officials estimate that there are dependent upon these some 499,670 persons. The $500,000 it is hoped to raise each week will provide not quite 85 cents a week for each. There are also, according to the union figures, some 429,830 persons dependent upon the 50,000 adult strikers who have already left the region and obtained work elsewhere.

It has not yet been decided if these are eligible to aid from the union, but the majority will certainly apply for it and insist upon getting it, although they may, getting aid from the strikers at work in other places, not demand as much as those who have no

In the strike of 1887-'88 in the Lehigh region, which lasted for six months, the 14,000 miners managed to live on a strike fund which did not quite reach $140,000, and, although at the end of that time, when they returned to work, there were numerous demands for more food and clothing than could be provided, old miners say they do not recall that there were any cases of suffering, although many of the strikers were hard pressed.

W. B. Wilson, national secretary tions are payable, and who will distribute the funds, said that the office force will be increased immediately, so there will be no delay in handling the money.

Distribution of Fund. The defense fund is to be distributed among the three anthracite districts according to their membership. Wilson says that district No. 1 will probably receive 53 per cent; No. 9, 35 per cent; and No. 7, 12 per cent. District No. 1 has more members than both Nos. 7 and 9. The money will be sent from Indianapolis to the secretaries of the anthracite districts and distributed by them among the strik-

MINERS AGAINST GENERAL STRIKE

posed by President John Mitchell.

FIRST $50,000 IS SENT OUT TO RAISE $1,000,000 MONTHLY

Sympathizers Asked to Contribute to Fund to Be Raised Assessment for Anthracite Workers and Their Families.

The United Mineworkers of America in session at Indianapolis voted against a general strike in sympathy with the anthracite strikers, adopted President Mitchell's plan for taxing all miners to support the strikers, making only a few modifications, and adjourned cheering and predicting victory for the strikers.

The convention issued a long appeal to the public, setting forth the miners' side of the big strike and appealing for aid for the strikers.

The recommendations brought in by the special committee and unanimously adopted by the convention are as

"1. That the national treasurer be authorized and directed to immediately appropriate $50,000 from the funds of the national treasury and place it at the disposal of the officers of districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9.

"2. That all districts, subdistricts, and local unions be appealed to to donate from the surplus in their treasury as large an amount as they can afford.

Levy an Assessment.

"3. That an assessment of 10 per cent be levied on the gross earnings of all members of local unions in districts Nos. 6. 8, 12, 19, 23 and 25, and an assessment of $1 per week upon all members of local unions in districts No. 2, 5, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 20 and 21.

"4. The assessment shall be paid direct from the local unions to the national secretary, and the local unions will be held responsible for the payment of the same.

"5. An assessment of 25 per cent will be levied upon the wages, salary, or percentage received from the organization of all national, district, and subdistrict officers and organizers.

"6. The assessment shall begin with the 16th of July, 1902.

"7. All contributions made from the national office to the anthracite region will be divided pro rata to each anthracite district in accordance with the number of miners and mine laborers in each of them, as shown by the most recent coal reports.

"8. That the following circular be issued to the American people."

The following amendment, submitted by President Nichols of anthracite district No. 1, was included:

Will Seek Work.

"That each local umon in the regions that are at work select a committee, which shall secure work for as many of the men on strike as possible in the locality where the local union is situated and that the local inform secretaries of the strike districts of the number of men needed, the kind of work, wages and arrangements for transportation. That the same propositions be submitted to all local unions in the American Federa tion of Labor. "9. That the circular to our local unions shall include a recommendation that committees be appointed to canvass the business men and other citizens of their localities for subscriptions."

The address of the convention to the public says in part:

"The struggle in the anthracite region will be continued until our demands have been granted or a competent board of arbitration has declared that we are wrong.

Appeal for Arbitration. "We appeal to the people at largeto bring all possible pressure to bear on the officers and stockholders of the anthracite coal carrying railroads and other anthracite coal interests to treat considerately the apeals of their employes for arbitration. "The care of 150,000 men and their families in a protracted struggle such as this is likely to be will require the expenditure of a large sum of money in the purchase of food.

"We need more money for that purpose, and we appeal to every trade union and trade unionist, to every citizen whose interests are involved, and to every lover of fair play, to assist us in raising $1,000,000 per month from outside sources as long as the strike may last.

"We believe that with this amount of money, together with the amount received from our own members, we can continue the struggle until justice has been secured for the anthracite

TERRIFIC WIND KILLS THIRTFFN

Hurricane Strikes Baltimore and Does Great Damage to Property.

PLEASURE CRAFT TURNS OVER

Father Sends Wife and Children to the Cabin for Protection and All Lose Their Lives When the Disaster Occurs.

Baltimore (Md.) dispatch: Thirteen persons perished and millions of dollars' worth of property was destroyed by a hurricane which swept through Baltimore.

The storm broke shortly after noon and came almost without warning. The wind swept all before it. Roofs were sent whirling like so many cards, trees were stripped and uprooted, buildings were wrecked, fences blown down, and big windows in the business houses smashed. St. Mary's Star of the Sea church was demolished, entailing a great loss, while the roof on the Merchants and Miners' steamboat pier was blown off, permitting the water to leak in and causing the goods there to be damaged to the extent of $400,-

Breaks Up Camp Meeting.

In North Baltimore, where a camp meeting was in progress, a tree blew over on the tent causing it to fall. The worshipers were buried under the canvas, and one man was killed and many hurt. It was along the water that the greatest loss of life occurred. Being an extremely warm day, the shore resorts were liberally patronized by pleasure-seekers. All of the fishing boats along Middle and Black river were taken, while Spring Gardens and adjacent Patapsco streams were alive with pleasure crafts of every description.

When the storm came up, almost without warning, boats were tossed about and cries for help could be heard coming from every direction.

Boats Rescue Many. Tugs and steamboats put out to the rescue, but so thick was the weather and so choppy the seas that the efforts of the life savers proved futile for a time. The vessels picked up dozens of survivors from captized boats. The list of dead so far ascertained follows: Roy Bateman, Joseph Cain, John Cain, Thomas Carroll, William Cornish, Harry McCormick, James B. Post, Theodore C. Parker, Charles Schaeffer, Mrs. Mary Schuler, Harry S. Schuler, Olive Schuler, Charles

Storm of Short Duration.

The hurricane exhausted its fury in less than fifteen minutes. It was in the residence portion of the city, along the river front, and in the harbor, where the wind spent its violence.

The weather bureau reports that the storm was more in the nature of a whirlwind than a tornado. The wind blew at the rate of sixty-four miles an hour and the rainfall was 56-100ths of an inch. The first indication of the storm was apparent at 1:25 p. m., and the sun reappeared at 1:45.

Bateman and the Cains were out in a rowboat on the river with three other companions. The boat was capsiezd, three being drowned and three being rescued by the tugboat Edna V. George.

Gaught in Cabin.

The drowning of Mrs. Schuler and her children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, his brother-in-law, Joseph Cook, and his wife, were sailing in a thirtyfoot catboat. When the storm came Schuler and Cook took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin. The hurricane overturned the boat. Mrs. Schuler and her children were trapped in the cabin. Cook saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat, and Schuler saved himself in the same way, after making frantic efforts to get at his imprisoned wife and children.

Cling to Rudder.

Thomas Carroll, with four other young men, were out in the harbor in a rowboat, which capsized. Carroll was drowned, while his four companions clung to the rudder of the steamship Chatham until rescued by the tug Mary.

While the storm was at its height a boat's crew from the German steamer Breslau picked up two men from a boat which had been capsized off Wolf

At Tolchester James B. Post and Theodore C. Parker, both of Baltimore, were drowned. They, with four companions, were rowing in the bay when the storm struck. The other occupants of the little craft clung to it until rescued.

The gas reservior in South Baltimore, containing 300,000 feet of gas. was blown over, the gas exploding, without injuring any one, the damage being placed at $15,000.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., special: President Roosevelt is in receipt of a let ter from Senator John L. The President much regrets Senator McLaurin's decision, as he believes that McLaurin's senatorial experience and his career as attorney general of South Carolina would have rendered him a particularly good addition to the court of claims.

The President now is uncertain what he will do about Senator Mc-Laurin. It is understood that he is anxious to appoint him to some position in recognition of his services. Senator McLaurin's letter is couched in the most positive terms and evidently was based upon a newspaper article accompanying the letter which stated that the senator had sold himself for the prospect of getting such an office as that offered to him.

Census Report on Condition of Agriculture in 1900.

Washington dispatch: The census bureau has issued a bulletin giving the condition of agriculture in the United States for the year 1900. It shows that there were at that time 5,739,657 farms in the country, which were valued at $16,674,694,247. Of this amount $3,560,198,191, or over 21 per cent, represented the value of buildings, and $13,114,492,056, or over 78 per cent, represented the value of lands and improvements other than buildings. The value of farm implements and machinery was $761,261,550 and of live stock $3,078,050,041. These values, added to the value of the farms, gives a total value of farm property amounting to $20,514,001,838.

DECLINES POSITION SIX MILLION

Farmers in Illinois, lowa, and Missouri Are Made Penniless.

TORRENTS DESTROY THE CROPS

Most Abundant Yield on Record Is Wiped Out by the Rising Waters of the Mississippi-Levees Threaten to Break.

Keokuk (Ia.) special: Flood losses in the Mississippi valley south of Keokuk are estimated at $6,000,000. with the situation continuing to grow worse and every prospect that this amount will be increased two or three millions. Everywhere throughout the section the most abundant crops ever known are under water deep enough to float a steamboat, and farmers who ten days ago were wealthy are to-day penniless and homeless.

The most of this loss is on the Missouri side of the river, between Keokuk and Hannibal. All this territory was practically covered with corn a fortnight ago estimated to make seventy-five to a hundred bushels to the acre. The loss is total. Experience is that if the water stays forty-eight hours it kills corn even four inches under the surface, and every stalk wet by waves perishes from rotting roots. Much of that back from the channel looks to the casual observer as if it would recover when the flood subsides, but a month will see it an brown and sear.

River Is Rising.

The river is rising all the time, six inches during the day in the immense area of 700 square miles, and the worst to come by an extension of the flooded area by the water passing levees it is now topping.

The chief flood thus far is on the Missouri side, from Keokuk to Louisiana, with Canton and West Quincy as centers of the country hurt the worst. On the Illinois side are three continuous levees for forty miles from Warsaw to Quincy above the water and thus far safe, but farmers are afraid of crevasses from muskrat holes, and every rod of the redoubt is watched day and night. The breaking of these levees would flood 175 square miles in Illinois and destroy $2,000,000 to $3,-000,000 worth of corn. The levees below Quincy are in the same situation, except that they are lower and less Levees Disappear.

Opposite Quincy in Missouri is still another center of special devastation. North twelve miles to La Grange and south to Holton large prairies are well under water, reaching from the Illinois bluffs to the Missouri bluffs, at least ten miles.

Levees hastily thrown around farms have disappeared in a fierce current rushing from above through the draw of the Burlington bridge, carrying everything before it. Lone Tree prairie, ten miles square, is deserted, the population having flown to Quincy and the bluffs on the Missouri side. rabius river, fifteen miles above Hannibal, is high and furnishing a route for the Mississippi to flank and reverse the levee, as the Fox river does forty miles up the Mississippi. This flanking movement makes even the highest Missouri levees ineffective. Around La Morte, Silverton, Busch Station, Clemens, Ashburn, north of Hannibal, there is more wheat than at other places, and all in the shock is mostly washed away. The chief crop there is corn, however, and there is the same ruin as at other places.

Des Moines Raging. The Des Moines river at its mouth is nearly two miles wide, and the island delta covered with farms, is entirely under water. Gregory is submerged except the white church, in which services was held. The praying congregation from the country reached the house of God by the railroad track, which is still above the flood in a waste of waters miles wide. Other towns and cities on the islands are beyond the danger line.

The Des Moines river is now stationary at its mouth. Reports from Ottumwa show a fall of two feet. Points between show a fall also. The Mississippi here shows a stage of 15.4 feet, the highest since 1897.

The consideration was $500,000 cash and 7 cents per ton for all ore now shown up (about 5,000,000 tons) and all yet to be found. The lease provides for the payment to the feeholders of a royalty of 20 cents per ton on all ore mined, which makes the total consideration considerably over $3,000,000, it being estimated that the tract contains fully 10,000,000 tons

Duval spurred his horse after the runaway cow, and before he could check his mount the horse stumbled over the prostrate cow, and Duval was thrown to the ground. He was unable to move and his cries for help did not reach the ears of any one but his faithful horse, who stood unable to help him, and unwilling to leave his helpless master. Duval was found lying on the ground by a member of the family who went to the pasture to drive the cows home. He was unconscious and had suffered excruciating pain.

There is apparently a strong and growing tide of immigration into Canada, particularly into the northwestern provinces. These figures are for "declared settlers," a term which seems to exclude the Yukon miners and adventurers. The largest increase in population is in Manitoba, British Columbia and the territories, and apparently the immigrants propose to make their permanent homes in those districts, which are yet but thinly populated, but capable of supporting a vast population. Aside from those who go over the border from the United States, nearly all of the immigration into Canada is from the United Kingdom and northern Europe. The Italians, who have ranked first or second with us for several years, are not numerous enough to be separately classified. In 1899 the Russians were heavily represented through the colonization of 7,000 Doukhobors, and there is still a notable immigration from Russia and Finland, the Finns coming to escape Russian persecution in their native land. Another remarkable influx is that of Poles from Galicia, a province of Austria, from whence they are driven by reason of oppressive political condi-

While there is undoubtedly a very large unrecorded immigration from Canada to the United States, offsetting in large measure the number leaving this country for the Dominion, the statistics indicate that our neighbor across the border is forging ahead in the acquisition of foreign population in a manner quite surprising to those who have not studied the trend of immigration during the past few years.

Occasionally some Canadian utters a protest against the assumption by citizens of the United States of the designation "Americans," By so doing, it is said, we attempt to convey the impression that we are the whole thing on this continent. Well, we are pretty nearly, but in a broad sense we are no more Americans than are the residents of Canada, Mexico or Peru, and there is perhaps no good reason why we should attempt to copyright the title. Our difficulty in finding a proper word to express our nationality arises from the fact that our nation has an unadjustable and somewhat cumbersome name. Of course we cannot call ourselves United Statesians, and there seems to be no other word that happily expresses the proper meaning. Manifestly it is now too late to change the name of our country even if we desired to do so, and since we have chosen or had thrust upon us a badge of citizen ship which would indicate that our nation is coextensive with the whole of America there would seem to be but one way out of the dilemma, and that is for Uncle Sam to annex all of the new world to his domain and thus make the name "American" geograph. ically consistent with the facts. How would the Canadians like that?

It is announced that the Montana young woman who prays to the devil and writes profanity with such cheerful frequency that she is described by enthusiasts as having "laid bare a human soul" has accumulated profits from the sale of her book which will enable her to attend a woman's college. That she has a desire to acquire a college education is a hopeful sign. As she progresses she will doubtless become as much ashamed of her silly book as any one and write no more stuff concerning "the naked soul." In that event she may be forgiven for what she has already inflicted upon the public.

Regarding the statement some one has made to the effect that the church is "losing ground" the secretary of the Church Building society at the Presbyterian general assembly said, "Tell the carpers we're building fifteen churches a week." If the churches are being filled, the answer is pretty conclusive.

Numerous theatrical importations from Europe are already announced for the coming season. If this keeps up. American dramatists may be compelled to demand a tariff on plays.

THE GREAT JOKE, DEATH.

Funny Side of Dying Often Treated of In Literature.

"Death," said a publisher, "has been treated humorously in our literature often. Indeed I am quite sure that a collection of many thick volumes might be made under the title of 'Death's Funny Side.' Thomas Hood was one of our best writers of this sort of verse. Don't you remember his ballad on the young sailor who died heartbroken over his girl's unfaith? The last stanza was:

"His death, which happened in his berth, At forty odd befell; They went and told the sexton, and The sexton tolled the bell.

"Hood did another ballad on the subject of a soldier who lost both legs in battle, who was in consequence jilted by his sweetheart and who then hung himself. Now, that is rather tragic, is it not? It has a bizarre but none the less poignant tragic note. Guy de Maupassant indeed once handled almost this same situation, but he hanalled it from the opposite viewpoint, and don't you remember how he narrated the first, the crucial, meeting of the lovers after Ben Battle's double amputation?

"But when he called on Nellie Gray She made him quite a scoff, And when she saw his wooden legs Began to take them off.

"This treatment drove Ben to de-

"So round his melancholy neck A rope he did entwine And for the second time in life Enlisted in the line.

"And there he hung till he was dead As any nail in town; For, though despair had cut him up, It could not cut him down.

"There is a tremendous literature of humorous epitaphs. There must be, I fancy, 10,000 of these, but two of them are all I can recall. The first goes:

"Here lies the body of mild Maria; She went one day to start the fire, But the wood was green,

So she used kerosene, And now she's where the fuel is drier. "The other is grimmer:

"Life is a lie, and all things show it; I thought so once, and now I know it. "Then there are songs on the side splitting aspects of death, some of which have caused tender hearted ladies to double up with mirth. 'Johnny Jones and His Sister Sue' is one such song, and I bet that six people out of ten in America know it by heart. "Yes," the publisher concluded, "under the title of 'Death's Funny Side' an anthology of many, many volumes could be made. The anthology should be bound in black pigskin, with grinning skulls and crossbones tooled in gold on it."-Philadelphia Record.

A Matter of Principle,

"Why is it," says the girl, "that in giving an account of an accident they always give the age of the person injured? I can see the sense of their talking about blonds and brunettes, a mustache or full beard if it is a man or a red, green or blue gown if it is a woman, for that is a means of identification for acquaintances and friends who may be interested. They don't even put the age in the death notices now, but if you meet with an accident out it comes in all the papers in town. But they will never publish mine. I have it on my mind every time I cross the street, and when there is a particularly bad crowd I say to myself, "Now, remember, if you are run over here, no matter how badly hurt, you are to remember never to tell your age. It's a matter of principle." - New York Times.

Rejected Fortunes.

Professor Bell had a strenuous time over his invention of the telephone. He took the first working model of his instrument to John A. Logan and offered him a half interest for $2,500. saying that it would do away with the telegraph and that there would be millions in it. Logan replied: "I dare say your machine works perfectly, but who would want to talk through such a thing as that, anyway? I advise you to save your money, young man." Bell then offered a tenth interest to an examiner in the patent office for $100 in cash. It was refused. That tenth interest was worth $1,500,000 in fifteen years.-Pearson's.

Rather Airy.

"There is an acquaintance of mine," remarked the doctor, "who gives himself airs because he was given up to die thirty years ago and has kept himself alive till now by taking oxygen." "How old is he now?" asked the professor.

"Over eighty." "He's what you would call an oxygenarian, is he?" said the professor, looking at him with half shut eyes .- Chica-

"It is a pretty name," the impressionable traveler murmured; "but tell me why do they call you Manita?" There was an arch smile on the savage maiden's face.

TWO ODD FISHES.

The Changeable Pink Hind and the Rainbow Hued Parrot Fish, The clear, limpid waters that surround Bermuda and the West Indies He above coral reefs covered with plants and animals, many of which are brilliant in color as a rainbow. They look like glimpses of fairyland, and as your eye wanders from one wonder to another you catch yourself striving to peek just around some corner into a strange nook, half hoping to see a bevy of mermen and mermaids sporting and playing within the crannies. Here is a patch of pale green sea lettuce, there a group of great purple sea fans, yonder some golden corals standing out like a shelf or branching like a tree, while among them all swim lovely fishes that take the place of the fairies that should dwell in this 11 35 magic land and fascinate you by their gorgeous colors and their graceful, wavy motions.

There is a great green "parrot fish," as brilliant in color as his namesake the bird, showing himself boldly and swimming along slowly, secure from the fresh grass of springtime, and each one is bordered by a pale blown line. His fins are pink, and the end of the tail is banded with nearly every color of the rainbow. He is showy, but this showiness serves him a good purpose. His flesh is bitter and poisonous to man and probably so to other fishes as well, and they let him well alone, for they can recognize him afar off, thanks to his gaudy dress.

Underneath the parrot, lying on the bottom, is a "pink hind." You notice hime and as the parrot passes over him he suddenly changes to bright scarlet and as quickly resumes his former faint color. Had the parrot been looking for his dinner and thought the hind would make a good first course this sudden change of color might have scared him off, just as the sudden bristling of a cat makes a dog change his mind. Then the hind is disturbed at night, he gives out flashes of light to startle the intruder and send him away in a fright.-Professor C. L. Bristol in St. Nicholas.

THE HOLY CITY.

Jerusalem Still Resembles a Great Fortress of Middle Ages.

Jerusalem is literally "builded upon its own heap." Below the houses, courts and paved streets of the present unkempt city are the distinguishable remains of eight older cities-those of Solomon, Nehemiah, Herod, Hadrian, Constantine, Omar, Godfrey, Saladin, Suleman-writes Walter Williams from the Holy City to his paper in Columbia, Mo.

Jerusalem has been besieged twentyseven times, a record of vicissitude unparalleled in the history of the world's ciites. It has been burned, sacked, Illinois. razed to the ground, its inhabitants of every faith put to the sword, all the woes uttered by its own prophets against it have come to pass, yet Jerusalem still resembles a great fortress of the middle ages. Seen from the Mount of Olives, its massive gray walls, its flat roofed houses, its mosques and churches with their cona marvelous picture, beautiful, sublime, unfading, from the picture gallery of the mind.

The city itself has narrow, dirty streets. The water supply for its 70,-000 people comes in a four inch pipe. The open courts are few and small, and the houses are bunched together with no regard for room or cleanliness. Some houses are underground and others on top of the high inclosing walls. The people are fanatical, ignorant, selfish. There is much to detract from the ideal city, but despite all this and more Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives is the same in its essential details, the same in the framework of its setting, the same in fascinating suggestion, as the Jerusalem of which David sang and over which Jesus wept.

Points About a Good Horse.

There are some points which are valuable in horses of every description. The head should be proportionately large and well set on. The lower jawbones should be sufficiently far apart to enable the head to form an angle with the neck, which gives it free motion and a graceful carriage and prevents it bearing too heavily on the hand. The eye should be large, a little prominent, and the eyelids fine and thin. The ear should be small and erect and quick in motion. The lop ear indicates dullness and stubbornness. When too far back, there is a disposition to mischief.

Hid Her Love.

Charles Dickens, though he married Catherine, one of George Hogarth's three daughters, in 1836, was later devotedly attached to her sister Mary. Why he did not marry Mary in the first place is not certainly known unless it be that Mary, a young woman of great loveliness of character, had successfully concealed her own affection for Catherine's betrothed in order to save her sister from disappointment.

Percy Fitzgerald, a friend of Dickens,

Percy expressed this idea in an article in Harper's Magazine entitled "Dickens In His Books."

The great virtue about the really clumsy man is that he never exhausts his capabilities. When you think that the bedrock is reached, there is still a should exist, the clumsy man asks after his health with great particularity and will not be satisfied until he receives a full and detailed reply. Should there be any incident in your past which everybody has generously agreed to forget it is the clumsy man who seizes the one, the inevitable opportunity, when the club is at its fullest and says loudly: "Somebody was talking the other day about that unfortunate Mrs. Drew Miller was here from little affair of yours in '95. > When on meeting him you say casuually and with no desire for information. "How are you?" he insists on giving you complete data, and he is as full of small complaints as a refractory pauper. It is only fair to add that he will ask affectionately after the colds of yesteryear, and his favorite locale for this is at the corner of a drafty street. He might be subsidized by influenza or he might get a commission on sore throats from his eagerness to pin you into the most dangerous position that can be discovered.

One desires an adequate amount of sympathy in distress, but our man always goes a little beyond this point. You are growing thin, and he says that you are wasting away to a shadow. You are growing stout, and he tells an unamusing anecdote about apoplexy. He can be more critical than a hairdresser if occasion gives the least excuse.-Philadelphia Ledger.

A UNIQUE DORMITORY.

At this time the chancellor of the University of the South, an old friend of Dean Hoffman, was on a hunting trip with him in the mountains of North Carolina.

"We are badly in need of a dormitory down at Suwanee," said the chancel

The chancellor was greatly pleased and made all the arrangements to move the hotel, when, to his astonishment, the citizens of the town obtained an injunction against its removal on the grounds that the botel in a way was public property and that to remove it would leave the town without any hotel accommodations. A legal fight followed, but the university won out in the end. So the University of the South revels in the luxury of the most unique dormitory in the world. New York Times.

WATER RIGHTS INVIOLATE.

Springs and Wells In Palestine Are

Protected by Severe Laws. Water is the most precious thing in Palestine, and the laws which protect springs and wells are very severe. Most of the wells are artificial. Rich men at very great expense have chiseled basins and reservoirs out of the rocks to receive the flow from springs, and in many places where no springs could be found they have drilled through the limestone a hundred feet and sometimes twice that distance to the artesian basin.

None but very rich sheiks can afford such an expenditure. Nevertheless, they have not only been the greatest benefactors of their fellow men, but those who have sunk wells and built fountains have erected monuments to their fame more enduring than palaces or temples or shafts of granite.

The temple of Solomon has vanished forever, but the pools which he walled up with masonry and filled with water still remain. The wells that Abraham and Jacob drilled in the rock as acts of piety as well as power are as immortal as their names and will live forever as long as men feel thirst.

According to a just custom of the country, water rights could never be forfeited. No man who owned a well might refuse his neighbor water for his family or his flocks, but the lord of the spring was inviolate. No creditor or enemy could take his water rights away from him. To injure or fill up a well was an unpardonable crime. When the Philistines threw earth and stones into the well of Abraham, they intended to challenge him to a war of extermination. These customs and regulations remain today .-Chicago Record-Herald.

THE ARABS OF YEMEN.

A Story Which Throws a Strong Light on Their Character.

The Times of India tells the following story to show the character of the Arabs of Yemen. A man of Zaraniks who several times cut the telegraph lines and who was punished more than once was caught on one occasion by an Arab sheik in charge of the lines. The shelk intended to send him to Meedy for imprisonment, but the wife of the accused came in and stood as a guarantee for his future good behavior.

The shelk accepted the bail and released him, but shortly afterward he ascfin resorted to his old practice of cutting the wires and bolted away to another village at a distance of a day's march, where he had another wife. The sheik then sent for his first wife, who stood security for him, and told her he would disgrace her among the Arabs if she failed to bring in her hus-

The woman asked the shelk not to 'spread the black sheet" (a custom of the country when any one commits a breach of trust) until the following day. She started that night, taking a sharp dagger concealed under her clothes, to the village where her husband was staying. She found him asleep in his abode and stabbed him, cut his throat and carried his head back to her home. The next morning she went to the sheik and presented the head of her husband, saying: "Here is your criminal, and I am freed from the bail. Please do not affix the black sheet."-London Telegraph.

As the total trackage is estimated at twelve miles, the city's income from the franchise will be $31,-080 per annum for the first ten years and $62,160 for the remaining fifteen

Now that the Boer-British war is over comes the harvest of South African peerages and lesser decorations. It is pretty safe to say that few of the new crop of dukedoms, earldoms and baronies will have Dutch names. For instance, there will be no Duke of Magersfontein, no Earl of Spion Kop and no Baron Tugela.

The French government has offered a reward of 5,000 francs, or about $1,-000, for the arrest of the Humberts. This seems a rather small sum for the apprehension of the perpetrators of a twelve million dollar swindle.

Once more the gunmaker is ahead, and the armor plate manufacturers must begin the struggle again. Herr Krupp has produced a "peacemaker" which can penetrate the thickest and best armor plate.

There is one thing at least in which France and Germany are in perfect accord, and that is that cordial relations with the United States are very much to be desired.

CHAPTER VIII .- Continued. "Very well," she concluded, with a flash of determination in her bright eyes, "then I shall go alone. Thank Heaven. I know how to row a boat!" As she turned toward the door the form of Count Leon glided between.

He was smiling suavely, for a man may smile and still be a villain. "Pardon me, mam'selle; it would be madness in this sea," he said.

She looked at him steadily. The boat was as motionless as a house, and the manifest absurdity or his declaration was so apparent that there could no longer be any doubt regarding what was meant. The girl turned pale, as though overwhelmed with a sudden sense of her helpless condition.

It was now Merrick's turn. The situation had resolved itself so that the plans of the enemy had been exposed, and his opportunity to enter Merrick hurled his whole weight against the hinged catapult, so that it shot inward with tremendous force.

There was a collision. Count Leon came out of it second best, for the door held its own, while he sprawled upon the floor in an inglorious manner. Score one for the intruder. Of course, every person at the table was up by this time, and a battery of eyes looked to see what was to follow this assault on Villebois. Merrick stepped into the cabin.

His appearance was so warlike that it at once created a tremendous sensation-exclamations from the men, cries from the women.

Sir Lionel was almost petrified with astonishment at thus seeing a stranger aboard his yacht, anchored so far away from the shore, but, realizing that a duty awaited him, he pean and foreign circles-men and wo bristled up and turned fiercely upon men famous in their way are so plenthe intruder.

"Good boy!" said Jones, enthusiastically.

Merrick drew a breath of relief. It was time they were going. "Will you trust yourself with me, Constance?" asked Merrick.

And presently he saw her, looking sweeter than ever, in company with a stern, military gentleman, and his wife, possibly old friends, whose interest in the "Little Lady of the Diamonds" could date back to her life in South Africa.

It was just at this time, however, that Jones made up his mind to begin operations, and, accordingly, Merrick was forced to the tables in order to watch his play, it being necessary that he should keep in touch with every move, in order that when the occasion came for him to get into the game he would know just what had been done and what bold strokes were to be played in order to make a successful raid on the bank.

Other men had no doubt led desperate charges in the face of almost certain death, without the least sign of flinching, where cannon thundered all around and grim foes waited to receive them with bayonets whetted for their blood-or hunted the lordly tiger of Bengal in his native jungles, ready to stake their cunning and life against that of the striped terror of the tropics; but rarely has the privilege been given to any one to engage in so remarkable an adventure as that which now engrossed the attention of our two comrades

The enemy against whom they pitted themselves had defeated his cohorts and slain his thousands—he had never known but one serious defeat, and that was now overwhelmed in the three adventures that have befallen past, so buried as to be quite forgot

It was the old story of David and Goliath again.

Jones had made a start.

He scorned the roulette wheel and such minor methods of treating with Fortune's favors, and seated himself at the table where the croupier dealt the cards, plying his little rake amid the piles of gold and calling out the decrees of fate in that cold, passionless voice that had sounded the doom of so many desperate wretches.

At trente et quarante Jones meant to accomplish his judgment.

The stakes could run from a very small amount up to twelve thousand francs, the usual limit.

Jones had thrown himself into the breach, and he carried something more effective than the deceptive glasses of poor old Quixote, who chose to imagine every inoffensive windmill a knight armed cap a pie and defying him to mortal combat.

For Jones had the combination that had years ago sent a deadly spasm through the heart of all gamesters in Europe.

Merrick's heart was beating a little more rapidly than its wont, but he soon quieted the inward tumulf. If they were to succeed all emotion must be crushed with an iron hand. Jones began modestly.

Of course, he won. (To be continued.)

Count Von Zeppelin Ruined

Count von Zeppelin, who has the distinction of having built the largest of all airships, has been financially ruined by his aeronautical experiments. Unable to obtain means for carrying out his new projects, he is now breaking up the old framework of his airships in order to sell the aluminium of which they are composed. Zeppelin is 67 years of age. He was a military attache of the German embassy in the United States during the civil war and made several balloon ascensions from battlefields of the south in 1863. He was the leader of the famous cavalry raid in France in 1870, which marked the commencement of hostilities of the great Franco-Prussian war.

Airship to Cross the Sahara.

The aeronautical problem which is just now receiving most attention in France is a voyage across the desert of Sahara. M. Deburaux considers it absolutely practicable to travel from Tunis to the Niger by means of the winds blowing in that region. He declares himself ready to make the experiment. Up to the present time his ambition has remained unrealized. for the reason that the necessary funds have not been forthcoming. To construct and equip a balloon with a carrying capacity of several passengers would entail a cost of about $160,000.

COULD STAND THE COLD.

Much Food for Thought in Pathetic Remark of Little Child.

"Every ticket has its story," said a man acquainted with the pawnshops. It was a bitter cold day, and a mite of a boy, not over nine years old, had come in, wrapped in his overcoat. This he peeled off, and deposited it upon the pawnbroker's counter. "Give me a dollar 'n' quarter?" he asked in pleading tones.

"Dollar," said the money-lender. "Oh, please give me a dollar 'n a quarter.

"Can't do it. Dollar." The boy was almost crying, and he begged earnestly for the sum he asked. "I want to get my sister's coat out," he said, as he laid down eight cents as interest money. This proposition the pawnbroker accepted, and the boy went shivering into the cold, with his sister's coat.

"Is your sister going to a dance tonight?" a bystander asked him.

"Ne, sir, mem's been sick, an' Maggie had to hock her coat for feed She's got a job, now, an' she's got to have a coat to go to work in. I don't mind the cold; I'm used to it."-Philadelphia Telegraph.

What Might Have Been. Sonoma, Mich., July 21st.-Mr. Deles Hutchins of this place says: "If I could have had Dodd's Kidney Pills 25 years ago I would not now be crippled as I am."

Mr. Hutchins spent from 1861 to 1864 in the swamps of Louisiana as a northern soldier and with the result that he contracted Rheumatism which gave him much pain till Mr. Fred Parker, the local druggist, advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first two boxes did not seem to help him very much, but Mr. Parker, knowing that Dodd's Kidney Pills would eventually cure him, pressed Mr. Hutchins to continue and by the time four boxes were used the short sharp, shooting pains which had tor tured his back, hip, and legs were entirely gone. Mr. Hutchins says: "I can not tell you how much better I am feeling. If it were not for the way my hands, feet, and knees are drawn out of shape I would be about as good as ever."

An Every-day Matter.

There are some circumstances under which it is easy to write a letter for another person, and others under which it is well-nigh impossible; but not all people agree on what the circumstances are.

Natural Development.

Scientists for some years past have been pursuing their investigations along the lines of physical development without the aid of drugs or mechanical appliances of any kind and have succeeded in fully demonstrating its value in all cases of mental depression induced by a sedentary occupation, overwork, werry, insufficient exercise, etc. Perhaps the most notable expenent of this theory is Prof. Sylvester J. Simon, 14 Quincy St., Chicago, who has devoted years to the study. Nervous patients, scarcely able to get about, have called on him and after taking his treatment for a few weeks have shown marvelous improvement. The treatment is so simple and the results in all cases so apparent that our readers would do well to investigate it by writing him for free literature and testimonial letters from persons whom he has successfully treated.

It Is Said Medical Men Are Now Satisfied as to the Results of This Wonderful Cure. Physicians from all parts of the United States and Europe are arranging for a conference in Chicago to determine the limits of the new goat lymph treatment. Reports of seemingly miraculous cures of obstinate diseases by the use of goat lymph have attracted the attention of the profession and a move is to be made for the general adoption of the treatment, which has progressed beyond Chicago physician, in speaking of the project. said:

"There is no longer any doubt but that goat lymph when properly administered will effect cures in locomotor ataxia, paralysis, primary dementia, chronic articular rheumatism and some forms of tuberculosis. Records kept at the headquarters of the Goat Lymph Sanitarium Association in Suite 27, Auditorium Building, amply prove this. The medical profession is slow to accept any new form of treatment unless the proof is absolute, but Dr. Gilbert White, the medical director of the association, has convinced us of the virtues of the lymph, and it will undoubtedly adopted as a standard remedy.

"Medical scientists have hitherto classed such diseases as locomotor ataxia, paralysis, and primary dementia as incurable, but it is now well established that cures may be effected with goat lymph. One of the strongest features of the treatment is that it not only conquers disease, but it restores the functions of youth to aged people."

Ironing a Shirt Waist.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or the home servant cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: To iron summer shirt waists so that they will look like new it is needful to have them starched evenly with Defiance starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth, to be laid away two or three hours. When ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and the sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear apply the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, after first raising each one with a blunt knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired by the fire or in the sun before it is folded and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Corn Makes Excellent Progress, Though Flood's in Iowa, Missouri and Illinois Cause Great Damage-Condition of Oats Satisfactory.

The United States weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is

The lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys and lake region have continued to suffer from excessive rains, which have also interrupted farm work in the Ohio valley and in portions of the middle Atlantic states and New England. Much injury to crops and other property has resulted from overflows in Iowa and portions of Illinois, Missouri and Michigan.

The corn crop has made splendid progress in the states of the central valleys, except in Iowa and limited portions of Missouri and Illinois, the condition of the crop in Iowa being fairly good on well-tilled uplands, but great damage has resulted from floods on the river bottoms of the southern and eastern portions of that state and in northern Illinois. Highly favorable reports are received from Nebraska, Kansas and the greater part of Missouri and Illinois, and a decided improvement in the condition of the crop in the Ohio valley is indicated.

Rains have interfered with the harvesting of winter wheat where unfinished in the extreme northern districts, and have also been unfavorable for thrashing in the central valleys, while considerable wheat in shock in the lower Missouri valley has been damaged. Harvesting continues in California and has begun in Oregon, where wheat is filling nicely.

Spring wheat has advanced favorably in the principal spring wheat states, but has sustained injury in scattered localities from hailstorms.

Oats harvest is finished in the southern states and is in progress in the central valleys. The general condition of the crop continues satisfac-

EXCURSION BOAT

Lower Missouri and Upper Fifty Passengers Drown 100 Feet from Shore in the River Elbe.

Collision Causes Boilers to Burst and the Scene Is Changed to a Desperate Struggle for Life by Panicstricken People.

Scenes of horror aboard the excursion boat Primus, sunk by the Hamburg-American line tug Hansa, while going down the Elbe, are detailed by eyewitnesses. The excursion steamer had 190 members of the Eilbeck Male Choral society on board and was returning to Hamburg after a river excursion. The accident happened at 12:30 o'clock in the morning, near Nienstedten, 100 feet from shore. The Hansa returned to Hamburg, bringing those it rescued.

Divers who are searching for the bodies of the victims have already found forty-five. Great crowds are gathered along the foreshore, near the scene of the accident, and there are heartrending scenes when the bodies of the dead are recognized by rela-

Boilers Explode. Survivors describe the collision as occurring with dramatic suddenness. The band was playing on deck and many couples were dancing and others singing when the crash came like a thunderbolt. A great, blinding pillar of flame seemed to rise out of the water. The Primus immediately gave such a list that no one aboard of her was able to keep his feet. Those below crowded the companionways in their efforts to reach the deck. Most of those in the saloon were drowned. In the midst of the panic the incoming waters reached the furnaces. The boilers exploded and many were mutilated by pieces of flying metal.

Many Show Bravery. The panic was horrible. Most of the men fought for their lives regardless of their neighbors, yet many deeds of heroism are reported. One man carried his little son, who was sleeping below, to the upper deck, and, with his wife holding one arm and the boy on his back, he swam ashore. Two youths saved three girls by supporting them in the water.

One rescuer was drowned by others clinging to him in desperation and dragging him down. Several were able to seize ropes that were thrown out from the Hansa, but before they could be hauled aboard they were pulled off by frenzied maniacs and all were drowned in the confusion. Whole families disappeared. In one case a husband, his wife, six children, mother and father-in-law were all drowned.

Boat Was Old.

The Primus was the oldest passenger boat on the Elbe. She was built in 1844, but was quite seaworthy. She was ninety feet long and a paddlewheel boat. The Hansa which was built in 1881, is of 528 tons burthen. and 500 horse power. She was for merly an ice-breaker.

Captain Petersen of the Primus swam ashore. He and Captain Sachs of the Hansa both surrendered themselves to the police.

The Hamburg-American Steamship company has issued a circular saying that the night was clear and the moon was shining. At about midnight when near the landing stage at Nienstedten the Hansa sighted the red light of the Primus.

Cause of Collision. Both were steering absolutely clear of each other. When the Primus was about 450 feet distant from the Hansa she suddenly put her rudder hard aport and attempted to cross the Hansa's bow. She changed her course so suddenly that a collision was unavoidable. The Hansa immediately reversed her engines, but forty-five seconds later the crash came.

The Hansa, realizing that the hole she had made in the Primus would cause the latter vessel to sink, tried to drive her ashore, but this was impossible. She rescued fifty persons. The Primus sank in four fathoms of water. Owing to the explosion of her boilers she probably broke in two, for nothing of her is visible.

Capt. Petersen says he changed his course in order to avoid a smaller steamer on his starboard side. He intended to pass under the Hansa's

PELVIC CATARRH

Palpitation of the Heart, Cold Hands and Feet, Sinking Feelings---Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably, not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it | The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another con-sumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic infiammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great ca-tarrhal tonic Peruna. Congressman

THE COST OF LIVING

Compared With Six Years Ago Increased-Prosperity General But Wages About Stationary.

Editor Review:-On several occasions of late there has appeared in the columns of your live and interesting paper, the assertiot that while the country was enjoying great prosperity the laboring man was little, if any, better off owing, as you say, "to increased cost of living." to grow fat and seem to suffer no hardship, thus contradicting your state-SUBSCRIBER.

questions. It is often that a man, when about to prove or disprove the Treasurer; Superintendent of Schools. statements appearing in the public press, surveys his own condition and ing of the County Central committee uses that as evidence. Subscriber has, we believe, followed that rule. In the that primary elections or caucuses be first place whatever statements may called for each of the said primary have appeared in these columns were districts. It is therefore recommenmade, not from the study of local conditions but from general conditions said county on Friday, August 22nd, about the country. The situation in 1902 at the usual hour. The representhis village is no criterion to judge by tation for each primary district will for the reason it is not a manufacturing center and but few men dependent candidate for president in 1900. The on their daily toil for a livelihood are districts will be entitled to delegates to be found within its limits. . It has been said, and we helieve it is true, that there are more retired menthose living on the income from valuable farm lands and other properties, in this village than any place of its size in northern Illinois. Subscriber is one of that number and is affected so generally parceled out to his class during the few years past.

That prosperity is abundant we are willing to admit, but that it is confined to the favored few is a fact that is clearly proven by the discontent among the wage earners of the country. The great mass of the people of the country live on stated wages. The man living on his wages finds his daily expenses much greater than formerly van and Robert Reichel. owing to the increased price of commodities, while his wages remain the same. We have such eminent authority as President Roosevelt for the statement that the cost of living-in the home of the toiler-is 22 per cent more than the cost six years ago.

There are few necessaries of life that have not advanced at least 10 per cent in cost within the past year and many necessaries have advanced 40 or the republican county convention. 50 per cent. There is no record, according to Commissioner Wright of Ravinia, Ill., July 7, 1902. the bureau of labor statistics, pretty good authority, there has been no corresponding increase in the amounts received by any, except one or more of the skilled trades, iron workers and machinists, wage earners in the United States. Some of the salaried men such as corporation clerks and bank employes, have been advanced. None of the fruits goes to the common day laborer who is trying to live on his earnings.

The statement that there are now few or no idle men is true. In that respect our prosperity has been a benefit to others aside from the combinations of capital, but that is the limit. The wave has not increased the means of a livelihood enjoyed by those who had not been idle before the prosperity talked about arrived.

follow the the path marked out by President Roosevelt and progressive leaders of the republican party; if he will judge from condition of things outside his immediate surroundings, where the population continues to grow fat" because they toil not, he will find that the Review is preaching the truth.
