The 113th Regiment Illinois Volunteers Veteran association held its 18th annual reunion at Watska on the 1st and 2nd of October. It was estimated that six hundred people were in attendance.

The address of welcome to the comrades was delivered by Judge W. F. Schiller of Watska and other prominent speakers addressed the comrades. Don't Get Coal Crazy.

Let nobody become excited at sensational newspaper stories of a fuel famine and rush around bidding up the price of soft coal. There is absolutely no need to pay extravagant figures, says the Chicago Chronicle.

There is now and will be all winter an ample supply of soft coal at prices very little higher than obtained last year. The president of a well-known company makes the public declaration that he will furnish coal at $4 per ton. Hence the Chicago citizen who pays $5 or $6 or more is merely throwing his money away as the result of his unfounded fears.

The people of the big city are more fortunate than residents of suburban towns. Here we are paying now, before cold weather has settled in, $5.50 to $5.75 per ton for the bituminous article and threatened with an increase. There seems no good reason why such an advance in price should be inflicted upon suburbanites. Last year at this time local dealers were charging $4.50 per ton for the soft product. There has been no advance in freight rates and the supply is as great now as one year ago.

The consumer is the sufferer. As the Chronicle says "nobody is going to suffer from lack of fuel if the dealers sell their holdings at a fair margin of profit." This they will do in the city where there is strong competition. In the country towns the coal man is a monarch of the situation. You pay the price asked or go without the coal and that's all there is to it.

Way to Advertise.

John Wanamaker, who is both an advertiser and a newspaper publisher and therefore competent to speak from either standpoint, is credited with the following: "There is only one way to advertise, and that is to hammer your name, your location, your business, so constantly, so persistently, so thoroughly into the people's head that if they walked in their sleep they would constantly turn their faces toward your store. The newspaper is your best friend, in spite of your criticism. It helps to build up the community that supports you. When the day comes that the newspapers are dead, the people are near the edge of the grave with no one to write their epitaph."

COAL STRIKE STILL ON

Proposition to Resume Work Rejected by The Miners.

Influence on State and National Politics Feared by Party Leaders.

The great coal strike has become an intensely dispiriting factor in the congressional campaign. It has caused the people to remain aloof from political assemblages and ignore the efforts of candidates for seats in congress to engage their attention. Leaders of the two great political parties are at sea as to the influence the conflict now waging in Pennsylvania will have on the labor vote in the elections this fall and national battle in 1904.

That the miners are in the right there is no longer a question. That the issue is to be capital against labor is evidenced by the concerted action of the mine owners and managers of great railway systems. The strike has had an effect to advance the cause of organized labor many fold and set the public to thinking.

Whether for good or ill, it cannot be doubted that one of the notable effects of the anthracite strike has been the impetus it has given to the proposal that the government should own and operate the coal mines. Nor is the idea of such ownership and operation confined to socialistic theorists and dreamers. Whether realizing or not its ultimate effect upon future conditions, it is apparent that the great body of organized labor is favorable to the proposition. Besides, there are unquestionably many thoughtful and public spirited citizens, desiring that government should attain the highest end for which it is instituted, the greatest good to the greatest number, who are seriously asking themselves whether such a deplorable condition as that now occasioned by the shortage of fuel could not be averted by placing the coal mines under the control of the government. Among such citizens may be mentioned Dr. Edward Everett Hale, who, though he may not be a great political economist, is recognized as a man who seeks the highest good of his fellow men and whose opinions have much weight among people not ordinarily classed as visionary or impractical.

Advocates of this form of state socialism point out certain analogies. The salt mines of Austria are under government control, as are the gold and silver mines of many countries. In Australia a suggestion for government operation of the coal mines is under serious consideration. The right of the government under the law of eminent domain to take over upon payment of just compensation the coalfields of the country or any other private property deemed necessary for the public good and safety is not generally questioned. The question is as to its advisability, its feasibility and its economy, and it is a very serious question, which a good many people with empty coal bins are asking themselves.

That any considerable body of presumably intelligent and patriotic citizens should be asking such a question is significant. It indicates a trend of sentiment, whether salutary or injurious, which has been vastly accelerated by the danger of a fuel famine that must be taken into serious account if conditions prevail under which a few score of mine owners and a few thousand miners can place in jeopardy the interests of millions of people.

A Common Disease.

Garget is one of the commonest diseases among dairy cows, and in nearly every case it is caused by neglect of the simplest precautions. A cow that has lost the use of a portion of the udder by an attack of garget may regain it in coming in the next time if proper care is taken. As soon as any milk is found in the udder it should be drawn twice a day until the calf is dropped, when the calf should be permitted to suck three times a day only until the udder is in good order. If the calf should not draw from the injured quarter this should be milked out. It is always advisable to milk a cow before she calves if there is milk in the udder and the udder becomes full and hard.

led alive under eight feet of earth. Drew claims that he was under a hypnotic spell, but those who witnessed the burial and resurrection and followed the experiment during the week claim that the man was not hypnotized, but that his exhibition of nerve was a marvelous one. These people claim that Drew consented to be buried under the ground and that for the six days he has managed to spend his time watching the faces of the curious spectators. Drew was taken from his temporary grave with a great deal of ceremony, and after he had been released from the coffin one of his friends made a speech in which he said that no man had ever been able to spend so long a time under ground without suffering from the experiment."

To C. & N. W. R'y Co.:
At a meeting of the board of trustees of Barrington, the clerk of said board was instructed to request, in writing, the C. & N. W. R'y. Odd Fellows Fine Lodge Room.

Eight weeks ago there was instituted in this village a lodge of that ancient and honorable order—Independent Order Odd Fellows. The lodge was instituted with a charter membership of 25 but has grown so rapidly that the meeting room—Sod's hall—is found by far too small to meet the demands of the society.

The board of trustees has been in search for a place to house the society for some time past and at last secured a five year lease of Stott's hall which is being remodeled to meet the wants of the lodge. The alterations, now in progress provide for two large ante rooms and property room on the east side of the entrance and on the west side a reception room, cloak rooms and parlor, the latter opening into the assembly room through large folding doors. The petitions are all of lath and plaster. The lodge room proper is 62x42 feet in the clear giving ample space for floor work.

The decorations, furniture and carpets are to be the best grade, in keeping with the rich trappings already possessed by the lodge, said by the furnishers, Foster & Son., Chicago, to be the best purchased by any subordinate lodge outside the wealthy lodges of Chicago and large cities of the state.

November 1st Barrington Lodge No. 856, will take possession of one of the handsomest and most convenient lodge rooms in this part of the state, and their friends will be allowed to inspect it. This village is to be congratulated on having within its confines an organization with the energy and progress shown by the Odd Fellows.

BERRIEN COUNTY HAS GREAT YEAR

Income From Fruits and Berries Helps Lift Many Mortgages.

SHIPS GRAPES TO CALIFORNIA

Eighty-Five Hundred Acres of Apples Yield $112,500, While Half the Crop of Michigan Pears Brings $24,000—Ships 100,000 Bushels of Peaches.

Berrien county, Michigan, has set a new record for fruit producing, and leads the counties of the middle west in point of quantity and variety. Its market has been extended to all parts of the United States.

Every variety of fruit has been successful excepting peaches; and many mortgages have been lifted from farms in the fruit belt as a result of this year's business alone.

Owing to the increase in acreage for peaches, the county has produced more peaches than many counties claiming to be big peach producing districts, but the crop was not nearly up to standard, on account of unseasonable warm rains last fall, resulting in a green growth, allowing trees to go into winter quarters with partly developed buds, and, for the first time in the history of Michigan, Berrien lost its reputation as the greatest peach growing county in the state.

The last season has been the most profitable in berries and small fruits that this section has ever known.

Great Yields of Berries. The acreage in strawberries was 2,600. There were 275,000 cases of strawberries shipped, from which the growers realized $275,000, an average price of $1 per acre prevailed. The raspberry acreage was 2,750. The yield was 115,000 cases. The blackberry acreage was 2,900 acres, yielding a crop of 165,000 cases. Raspberries and blackberries commanded an average price of $1 per case. The price realized from berries alone was $555,000.

Owing to unseasonable rains, the crop of grapes in this county was a trifle lighter than usual, but, considering the big increase in grape acreage, Berrien county is nearing the close of the largest grape harvest in its history. Michigan grapes have been shipped by the trainload to the northwest and as far as the Pacific coast. The grape yield is in the neighborhood of 1,250,000 baskets of eight pounds each. Grapes brought an average of 11 cents per basket. The estimated amount paid for Berrien county grapes is $137,500.

Total Receipts $1,000,000. The apple acreage this year is 8,585. A conservative estimate of the yield is 450,000 bushels. The average price is 25 cents a bushel, making the value of the yield $112,500. Half of the pears raised in Michigan this year come from Berrien county, there being a total acreage of 1,750. The crop has been 32,000 bushels, the average price being 75 cents a bushel, and the total receipts $24,000.

There are 305 acres of plums, with a shipment of 5,000 bushels. The receipts have been $4,000.

GERMANY'S CROPS BADLY DAMAGED

Rain Causes Grain in Shock to Sprout, Rendering It Unfit for Bread.

SAMPLES ARE OF POOR GRADE

Quantity is of Usual Proportions, but Quality is Inferior, Forcing the Output into the Still or to Be Used for Feeding.

Germany may be able to maintain her embargo upon American meats, but the indications are that she will be a big purchaser of American breadstuffs during the coming year. Latest official crop bulletins from the empire, according to advices received at the state department at Washington, show that the cereal product of the empire has been very seriously damaged by excessive rainfall and cool weather. The conditions were favorable for an unusually heavy crop of all the cereals up until the end of July. Then, as the time came for the wheat and rye to ripen, the cold, wet, cloudy weather kept back the harvest long after the usual date, and, when the work of gathering in the grain finally began, greatly complicated the task of saving the crops.

Grain is Exposed to Elements. In many fields the rye and wheat has been cut and laid in swaths or put up in shocks, exposed to rain and storm, until the grain has been seriously damaged by sprouting. The first samples of the new crop rye which have been received at the new produce exchange in Berlin are almost without exception damp, more or less unripe, and, even when artificially dried, of inferior grade. While, therefore, the German grain crop this year will be up to the full average in quantity, its quality has been more or less seriously damaged, and large quantities of rye, which should have been used as breadstuff, will now be distilled or used for feeding animals.

Damage is Great. It is yet too early to estimate closely the extent of this damage, but accounts from all parts of the empire indicate that it will be considerable.

The crop experts of the agricultural department are keeping close watch upon the reports from foreign countries. The agricultural exports from the United States last year were about $100,000,000 in value less than in 1900. The certainty of a bumper grain crop in this country and poor crops abroad assures a strong demand for export grain and consequently good prices for the products of the American farm for another year at least.

URGES ELASTIC BANKING POLICY

Shaw Also Advocates the Establishment of the Metric System.

PROSPERITY AND REVENUES

Government's Income is Affected by Conditions in the Business World, Hard Times Tending to Bring About Treasury Deficits.

In a speech at the laying of the corner stone of the new New York custom house Secretary Shaw advocated a more elastic banking policy and the adoption of the metric system. The ceremonies were made impressive by the presence of prominent men representing leading mercantile and industrial organizations and detachments of militia and regular troops. Former Secretary of the Treasury Gage also spoke. Secretary Shaw said in part:

"Our foreign commerce, like the productive and consumptive capacity of our people, has increased more rapidly than our population. Since 1860 our population has multiplied by two and one-half, while our foreign commerce has multiplied by three and one-third. Thus our very prosperity redounds to the advantage of those across the seas, who supply that which we do not produce.

If History Repeats. "Not only is this true, but the public revenues are dependent in a great measure upon our prosperity. In 1894 we had a deficit in round numbers of $70,000,000. I have had the actuary of the treasury department carefully estimate the probable result of the conditions existing in 1894 were repeated, and the people of the United States were to produce, to import, and to consume in the same proportion per capita that they did in that year and of the same class of goods, and he estimated our annual deficit, under the present revenue laws of the United States, at approximately $90,000,000.

For Metric System.

"We labor under a disadvantage as compared with some other countries in our standard of weights and measures. Sooner or later we must come to the metric system, and in my judgment, the sooner the better. But we have the advantage over all other great commercial countries in our monetary denominations. I wish I might say in the monetary system. But the dollar, dime, cent and mill are the natural complement to the metric system of weights and measures. So soon as all our forms of money shall be made by statute interchangeable with gold, when the 60 per cent flat in the silver shall be protected as well as the 100 per cent flat in the greenback; and when the possessor of any form of our money shall have the right to have it tested by the standard, then will exchange on this Western metropolis be as acceptable the world around as drafts written in less convenient forms of money."

Money Follows the Flag.

United States money followed the flag to Porto Rico and, he declared, it would not be many years until the prices current of the surrounding islands would be written therein and all balances settled on exchange in New York. Sooner or later, he said, United States money would be current in the Philippines and it would be carried thither to the continent beyond, and the prices current of the Orient would be written in United States money.

The secretary contended that our commerce with the South American republics was not what it should be and he recounted some of the disadvantages to which he attributed this fact. In conclusion he said:

"Give us a currency as secure, a banking policy as elastic, a system of weights and measures as convenient as our rivals, give us non-partisan support to such measures as will establish lines of steamship communication with countries in South America, South Africa, and the islands adjacent, give us the Isthmian canal and we ought to be able to maintain such relations to the commerce of the world as will conserve the peace and good will of all nations, while we carry beneath every sky a language that breathes liberty and patriotism and the object lesson of a flag that stands for equal rights and justice according to law.

FEDERATION ADDS MANY MEMBERS

Over 200,000 Join the National Body in the Past Four Months.

JOURNAL IS ON SOUND BASIS

Monthly Publication More Than Pays Expenses—Controversy Between Woodworkers and Piano Makers is to Be Aired.

Washington special: The executive council of the National Federation of Labor decided against the Chicago Federation of Labor in the dispute with Typographical Union, No. 16. The Chicago central body will be required to rescind its order suspending the local union, and the union is requested to elect delegates to represent it in the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Another important decision was the revocation of the charter of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, which failed to comply with the decision of the executive council in regard to its controversy with the International Association of Machinists and the other metal trade unions.

Adds 200,000 Members. The report of the secretary and treasurer showed the American Federation of Labor to be in excellent condition; that an increase of more than 200,000 members has been gained in the last four months; that the official magazine, the American Federationist, is on a sound basis financially and otherwise; that there are now more than 900 volunteer organizers throughout the country and thirty salaried organizers directly employed by the American Federation of Labor and 240 organizers employed by unaffiliated national unions.

Hear From Miners.

Reports were received from various organizations indicating their progress and growth, the most interesting report being that of the miners, stating that the situation of the strike is well in hand, that the response for financial aid is fairly good, and urging further contributions to maintain the families of the men on strike.

The International Longshoremen's association made application for a new charter under the name of International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' Association of America. Inasmuch as this would extend its jurisdiction to trades and occupations already organized and which organizations have protested against the change in title and jurisdiction, the executive council decided to recommend to the convention of the Federation at New Orleans in November next that a special committee be appointed to consider the entire matter.

To Hear Controversy.

In the matter of the controversy between the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International union and the Piano and Organ Workers' National union, the representatives of both organizations were notified to appear for the purpose of ascertaining whether the agreement reached between the organizations last December has been faithfully complied with.

An application for charter from the package freight handlers was received and orders referred to a special committee to be appointed at the New Orleans convention.

He closed his eyes and in a few moments was unconscious. When he awoke he found the strange hermit at his side bending over him and gazing eagerly into his face. He turned slowly away and went back to the fire.

A moment later he brought him some meat and said:

"You had better eat; you are weak." This was quite a long sentence for the hermit, and he paused after speaking to rest. Paul took the broiled steak and ate sparingly. It was very juicy and nutritious, and he began to feel stronger in a few moments after he had finished. The hermit meanwhile had resumed his seat on a large stone in front of the fire.

There was now another expression on his face. It was an expression of sadness. The more Paul studied the features of this strange man the more mysterious they seemed. He lay for a long time looking at him and asking himself a thousand questions. Then he grew weary of gazing and thinking and closed his eyes. Consciousness had almost slipped away when a movement in the cavern caused him to again open his eyes. The hermit was preparing to leave.

He took up the rude lamp, in which burned some kind of oil, and went to the opposite side of the cavern. He set the lamp on a flat stone, and putting his hand into a sort of crevice in the rocky wall pulled forth something. It was in a roll. He unrolled it and gazed at it intently.

From where he lay Paul saw that the object when unrolled was part of a tanned hide of some sort of an animal.

"I hope he will leave it," thought Paul. "If he does I will examine it. There is writing on it, and it may contain some clue to this Klondyke mystery that so nearly drives me mad."

All the movements of the hermit were slow and deliberate. He went carefully toward the entrance of the cavern. Long Paul lay on the couch listening for the slight tread of the moccasined feet, but he came not back.

"He has gone!" said Paul. He rose to a sitting position and gazed about the cavern.

After a few moments he rose to his feet. With a wildly beating heart he began his tour of exploration. The oil lamp had been left burning on a square stone, and he picked it up and went along the great natural corridor for some distance until he came upon a great chamber with lofty ceilings.

He began to search for the crevice in the rock where he had seen the man place the skin on which was the writing. Paul found the roll and drew it out.

It proved to be a piece of walrus hide covered all over with strange pictures and hieroglyphics such as the Indian picture writers use. It was almost round, and he could find no beginning nor end to it.

The report of a gun near the mouth of the cavern caused him to thrust the walrus hide into the crack and hasten into the deeper recesses of the cavern.

CHAPTER IV.

Meeting a Friend With Bad News. It is necessary at this point in our story to return to Clarence Berry's party, which we left on the top of the Chilkoot Pass in a raging storm. All through that terrible night Clarence Berry lay thinking of his young wife, whom he had packed away as comfortable as possible in that terrible height in the frigid zone. Day dawned bright and clear and he arose early and called to his wife:

"Ethel, Ethel, are you alive?"

There came no answer until he had pulled away some of the packages that formed her apartment; then he heard her voice answering:

"I am all right, Clarence."

"Thank God!" ejaculated the husband. "I feared you had perished during that terrible storm."

Dick and "Hemstitch," the Esquimaux, were self-constituted cooks, and prepared a breakfast of a pot of boiled beans and a little coffee, which froze on the slightest provocation.

When breakfast was over two sleds were loaded with supplies, and without dogs or any one to draw them, started down the mountain. Two weeks were consumed in reaching Lake Linderman. Here they were detained another week, completing a boat with which they could make their way down the river.

One night, after a day of arduous toil, they camped at the foot of a mountain protected from the north wind by a steep precipice. The dogs had been unharnessed, fed and lay sleeping about the sleds. The tired Indians, having had supper, were stretched before the fire. Ethel, attired in furs, sat on a sled which had been drawn up before the blazing logs. Her proud husband declared she looked like an angelic Esquimaux queen.

Dick reclined on the skin of a musk-ox telling a story in which there was blended Bovey slang and western dialect. Suddenly one of the dogs started up and gave vent to a low growl, cutting the story short. The guide gave a sharp whistle and seized his rifle. The others at once laid their hands on their guns and stood on the defensive.

A few moments later a large object could be seen in the distance slowly advancing toward them. Owing to the dim, uncertain light all at first were of the opinion it was a bear, and one or two cocked their guns and stepped out a short distance from the light to get a better shot at the animal. The guide suddenly called:

"Hold! It's a man!"

"Course it is," growled a voice in the distance. "What did ye think it was—a walrus?"

A man clothed in furs, holding a rifle in his hand, came forward and advanced toward the fire.

Ethel rose trembling with fright at the appearance of this strange apparition, and clung to the arm of her husband.

"Who is he?" she whispered. "Where did that terrible man come from?"

Though the question was not intended for the ears of this strange man, he heard them, and in a voice like the deep tones of far-off thunder he answered:

"I am from the Klondyke, where you seem to be going; a place where gold can be raked up by the handful."

"Who are you? What is your name?" Berry asked, advancing toward the Klondyker and extending his hand toward him.

"I am called Glum Ralston," he answered.

"What are you doing here?"

"Hunting for a friend." By this time Clarence Berry had clasped his hand and brought him near the camp fire, where he bade him be seated and tell his troubles.

"I hain't much at spinning yarns," the ex-sailor answered. "My friend was robbed on the Klondyke a few months ago, an' at the same time laid up for repairs."

Ethel grasped her husband's hand and mentally ejaculated, "It was Paul."

She listened with the keenest interest to the story of Glum Ralston, and tears gathered in her eyes. She knew the missing companion was none other than Paul Miller, whose fate would perhaps never be known.

"Oh, heaven, poor Laura! how shall we break this terrible news to her, Clarence?" she sobbed. The young husband made no answer, and Glum Ralston, lighting his pipe, proceeded to smoke in silence.

CHAPTER V.

THE WALRUS HIDE.

Paul Miller ran two or three hundred paces into the cavern until it grew so dark he had to grope his way and he came to a halt.

From around a projecting stone he turned his gaze back to the chamber which was lighted by the lamp.

He saw the hermit come at a run toward the inner chamber, three men pursuing him. They were so close on him that he halted by the side of the couch and turned at bay. A third man at this moment appeared on the scene and seized his arms from behind and hurried him to the cavern floor.

Paul Miller had all along watched the exciting contest. He started toward the chamber, where they were tying the hermits' hands with strips of walrus skin, and was almost near enough to call out when he suddenly halted and gave them a stare.

"They are the robbers themselves!" he gasped in a whisper. "What in heaven does this mean!" He quickly slunk away behind some masses of rock, broken from the side of the cavern.

Completely concealed from the actors in this singular drama, Paul was enabled to observe all that went on. There seemed to be only violence enough on the part of the captors to effect the capture of the hermit.

When this was effected they began pleading with him to do something, or make some revelation. After a few words, the captive became silent and sullen. His captors plied him with many questions and he refused to answer any of them. At last, leaving him in charge of one man, the other two began to search the cavern.

When they came near Paul he crouched in the smallest possible space and scarce dared to breathe.

One of the two searchers was the very man whom he had chased up the mountain side.

As they passed one of them mentioned a name which caused him to start so violently as to almost discover himself to them. It was Lackland.

Lackland was the wealthy banker and speculator of his own town, who had been a rival for the heart and hand of Laura Bush. What did these mysterious men of the Klondyke know about him, or what had he to do with them?

Almost maddened by despair Paul fell upon his knees and furiously beat his breast with his hands while the captors led the prisoner away.

They had taken up the oil lamp and carried it with them, and Paul was soon in total darkness. In his fit of desperation he rose and followed them. At the entrance of the cavern he halted and gazed off after the captors and prisoner. A thousand tumultuous emotions swayed his heart, and again in despair he beat his breast with his hands.

"Oh, cruel, cruel fate! Why did I not know he was my friend and defend him!"

He gazed helplessly at the little party until they had disappeared from his view and then threw himself upon the floor of the cavern in despair. But his better judgment came to his relief and starting up he seized the lamp and started back toward the fire to light it. It seemed an age before the faint glow from the dying embers told him where the fire was. He at last reached the spot, and with a pine stick raked the living coals together. Laying on two or three smaller sticks he blew them into a blaze and lighted the lamp.

After a short rest he was prepared to travel, but he remembered the walrus hide, with its mysterious hieroglyphics, and determined to take it with him. He was unable to make out anything from the hide, and rolling it up thrust it in one of his capacious pockets, and taking some of the provisions left in the cavern, went out and buckled on his snow shoes to leave the place forever. He tramped until night and then spreading a blanket on the snow slept soundly. A snow fell during the night, and when he awoke he shook off the white gown of nature and ate some of the roasted moose meat he had brought with him.

For over a week he wandered about in the wilderness, subsisting on fish he caught in the river and a deer which he shot, but not seeing a human being. Paul had no compass to steer his course, and was often lost among the mountains.

One day he came upon a fresh trail in the snow as if a party with Indian porters, dogs and sledges had made their way over the snow toward Forty Mile Camp.

He sat down at the side of the path to rest and think. A slight crunching of snow but a short distance from him caused him to look up, and he saw a man coming on snow shoes, a rifle on his shoulder. A single glance at those familiar features, and he cried:

"Glum—Glum Ralston!"

The solitary traveler paused, started back in surprise, clutching his gun for an instant as if he would use it; then dropping it on the snow, gave vent to a whoop that would have done credit to a wild Indian, and bounding forward had Paul about the neck, crying:

"Crack-lash alive, by th' trident o' Neptune."

"Where have you been?" asked Paul.

"Cruisin' about lookin' for you," he answered. "Where you been?"

Paul told the story of his adventures, concluding with his escape from the cave.

"I have found the mystery about me thickening all the time, and this walrus hide covered with strange pictures and hieroglyphics is the chief of all mysteries."

Glum Ralston took the walrus hide, unrolled it, and gazing at it with wildly dilating eyes which indicated his strange interest, demanded:

"Where did you get it?"

"From the hermit."

"Th' hermit—the hermit—the man that owns this hide—the man who saved you, is my old captain!" cried the excited prospector with a shout.

"Where is he? Where is he! It's my old captain—I'll go home to Kate yet. Where is he? Where is he? Where is he?" he shouted almost fiercely, while Paul was too much dumfounded to utter a word.

"Be calm, Glum, and explain what you mean!" cried Paul.

Holding up the piece of walrus hide, Glum said:

"I've seen this before."

"Where?"

"On board the 'Eleanor.'"

"Who had it there?"

"The red-skin as had the stran' o' gold nuggets about his neck."

Paul's interest in the walrus hide increased. The old man continued in a gleeful tone:

"Oh, he lives, he lives! I will find him, tell him I've been true to him all these years and take 'im home."

Suddenly he became more composed, and, turning his eyes on Paul, asked: "Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"What! you have seen him and let him escape?"

"I could not help myself; they came and dragged him away."

Biggest Cigar in the World.

Paymaster General Bates of the army possesses the largest cigar in the world. It is sixty-three inches long, and as large around as a man's arm at the thickest section.

Its composition includes twenty-two classes of Philippine tobacco. The huge cigar is the gift of Major W. H. Comegys, of the pay department, who sent it to the paymaster general with this note:

"I send you the largest cigar you have ever seen—at least, the largest I have ever seen. It is made of a number of the finest brands of tobacco grown on the islands. This was manufactured at San Fernando do Union, in Union Province, P. I. The case is also a curiosity. It may be called a family cigar, as all smoke it, and the grandmother is supposed to finish it or the cigar to finish the grandmother."—Washington Correspondence St. Louis Republic.

Beautiful Mummy Blue.

Hamlet reflected curiously upon the fact that the body of a great ruler might yet come to be used to "stop a hole to keep the wind away," but modern ingenuity has discovered more useful, if not more honorable, uses for the bodies of departed emperors. Manufacturers of artists' colors now often use mummies in making their colors, and it is almost certain that a small percentage of some ancient Egyptian rulers went to compose some of the colors used by various R. A.'s in painting their portraits for this year's Academy. Mummies were usually preserved in bitumen or the best pitch, and this blended with the bone of the mummy gives a peculiarly beautiful tint, especially in brown or dark blue. The export of mummies is now forbidden, but one will last a manufacturer for years. The colors so made are principally used by portrait painters.—London Tatler.

Wins Many Prizes.

Hon. H. G. McPike, of Alton, one of the best known horticulturists in Illinois, claims the honor of having captured more prizes at the Illinois state fair than any other individual exhibitor in the fruit prize contests. Mr. McPike captured twenty prizes and took home over $60 in prize money. His new grape the McPike, was instrumental in getting most of the prizes for the Alton horticulturist.

Developing a Mining Center.

It seems that Southern Illinois is destined to become a mining center for soft coal. Besides the extensive mines already in operation there are movements on foot to establish mines at Irvington, Ashley, Huey, Shattuc, Bartelso and Tamalco. Thousands of acres of coal rights have been purchased and the agents are still in the fields picking up additional acreage.

Destroys Many Bridges.

A creek near the Deleahy place in Foster township is giving the road and bridge department of the county board much trouble. The board of supervisors has now authorized the construction of a bridge there that will withstand the frequent floods in the creek. No less than a dozen bridges have been built over the erratic stream, and the efforts of the road commissioners to keep the road passable have been almost useless.

Poor Prices for Berkshires.

A public sale of Berkshire swine was held at the state fair grounds at Springfield, under the auspices of the American Berkshire association. Jerome A. Leland was manager of this sale, which was a disappointment to its promoters. Only about forty head of Berkshires were disposed of, these selling at an average price of $35.

On Superannuated List.

Rev. Otto Breuhaus, who has been pastor of the German Evangelical church at Cordes, has resigned from the pastorate. Rev. Breuhaus has been pastor for thirty-seven years and has been placed on the superannuated list of Evangelical pastors. He will go to Elmhurst, Ill., where he will reside with his son.

Injury to Aged Man.

W. P. Askins, engineer at the Illinois Southern railway planning mill at Sparta, while working with a drawing knife accidentally cut a gash about four inches long in his left leg just above the knee. Mr. Askins is 82 years of age.

Spending His Nickels.

John Gambrell, a well-to-do farmer of Fairmont, went to the bank and asked for $20 in nickels. He said he wanted plenty of small change to spend while in Washington attending the G. A. R. encampment.

To Stock Quarries With Fish.

The state fish commissioner has expressed a willingness to stock the quarries in Huntington county with black bass, application for the spawn having been made by fishermen in the vicinity.

HOG'S BONE CAUSED MUCH PAIN

Surgical Operation to Remove Spare-rib Swallowed Years Ago.

Arnold Cressy, the Alton man who underwent a surgical operation for the removal of a piece of spare-rib bone from his intestines, is reported as being somewhat improved in condition. Cressy swallowed the bone ten years before it became necessary to remove it because of the obstruction it formed in his intestines. At the time he swallowed the bone Cressy suffered great pain and at frequent intervals as the bone would become dislodged and move downward the man suffered severe pain. It required the ten years' time for the bone to pass through the man's body and at last it reached a point where it was necessary to remove it by a surgical operation.

Buys Coal Rights.

Deeds have been filed for record at Hillsboro conveying to George H. Harris about 3,540 acres of coal rights in Bois d'Arc and Pitman townships, the consideration amounting to $69,054. Harris is understood to be the representative of the Burlington railroad.

Methodist Assignments.

The following Methodist ministers have been assigned to charges in Montgomery county: Coffeen, W. W. Randle; Donnellson, Charles Koehler; Fillmore, J. W. Webster; Litchfield, J. N. Eason; Litchfield circuit, Samuel Albrecht.

Factory Girls' Union.

The factory girls of Mattoon have organized a union, with the following officers: President, Miss Kate Powers; vice president, Miss Rose Vaughn; secretary, Miss Theresa Savage; treasurer, Miss Pearl Walker.

Trainmen to Meet.

A union meeting of railway trainmen will be held in Flora Oct. 17. J. R. Dodge of Cleveland, O., vice grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, will deliver an address.

Consolidates 'Phone Lines.

T. J. Friend has consolidated the various telephone lines in Clay county under one management. The lines are being improved and Flora will be made the center of the system.

Octogenarians at Reunion.

Reuben Wilkinson and Fletcher Haines of Taylorville attended a reunion of Mexican war veterans in Springfield. Both are past 80 years of age.

SECOND IN RANK.

Charles J. Fellows, of Chicago, the new vice-president of the Illinois state league of Republican clubs, is superintendent of car service of the Chicago & Alton railroad. His home is at 6565 Yale avenue, Chicago. He has been identified with the People's Republican club of the Thirty-second ward for a number of years.

Needs More Room.

Since the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway company has had charge of the Jacksonville-St. Louis road, the business has so rapidly increased that the Centralia yards and freight facilities are inadequate to handle the business. More yard trackage and more freight sheds are needed and will be provided in the near future. Whole trains of coals are taken north and trains of grain are brought down and sent to the seaboard from Centralia by both the Illinois Central and the Southern routes.

Tootache Causes Death.

Millard Brown, aged sixteen years, who died at his home near Centralia, was afflicted with toothache which resulted in blood poisoning.

Elder's Headquarters.

Rev. Millikan, who has been pastor of the Nashville Methodist Episcopal church, has removed to Murphysboro, where he will make his headquarters as presiding elder of this district, to which position he was appointed at the recent conference held at Waverly.

Accidents to Farmers.

W. B. Osborn, of Carrollton, had one finger torn off in a corn shucker, and Dennis Reece had one hand badly injured in a threshing machine. Both men are prominent farmers.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1902

Remember and register October 14 or 28 if you want to vote this fall.

The unhappy consumer is beginning to inquire how he is to pay for the high-priced coal with which to cook the beef that he is unable to buy.

If the furniture trust lately organized is not stronger than some of the furniture sold on the installment plan it should be an easy matter to smash it.

Clarence Darrow, the well-known Chicago lawyer, says: "The law furnishes more and better opportunities for getting into politics and the penitentiary than any other profession." Mr. Darrow is in politics but has not applied for initiation in the second degree.

The candidate who splatters lithographs of himself over dead walls and in other public places invites unerring retribution. No sane man will vote for an individual whose portrait depicts a cross between a microcephalous idiot and a porch climber—and that is what most campaign lithographs look like.

To be sure the war is over in the Philippines, but the administration would be justified in putting it down once more, just to demonstrate the truth of the statement. It is a peculiar kind of warfare that ceases on the opening of a political campaign and is renewed as soon as the campaign is closed.

The title of a discourse delivered by a Chicago divine, one of the liberal belief, last Sunday evening, was "The Failures of the Creator." We have not read what the speaker made out of the subject, but in our opinion if the Creator ever made a failure it was no doubt due to an attempt to make an editor who could please all his subscribers.

The obduracy of the mine operators, their refusal to consult the public interest, and their impudent assumption of divine authority for their acts—these are the things which have brought them face to face with a growing demand that their power be taken from them and restored to the people. The time for trusts, combinations and syndicates to hold sway in this country is fast drawing to a close. The political party taking a band of trust magnates under its protection, or a political leader who advises his party to "stand pat" in support of a policy allowing such a condition of affairs to exist, is doomed to ignominious defeat.

The good wife never before found it so hard to supply the household needs from her husband's earnings. She cannot keep the dinner pail full, and her heart sinks when she looks at the empty coal bucket and realizes that winter is near. The wife of the business man finds that her weekly allowance will not provide as good a table as heretofore, and she is troubled because she does not understand the cause of her financial stringency and dislikes to task her husband to increase the allowance which has sufficed for years before. What is the cause? It is because a system of trusts have fattened owing to a protection of which they should have been deprived years ago. Wipe the trust from the face of American soil by electing to congress who will support the policy advocated by President Roosevelt in his address at Providence. The Mark A. Hanna kind of a republican won't do at this stage of the game.

If the great political leader, "Billy" Lorimer, is to be believed, and there are many who consider his word good in making a political forecast, General Apathy has command of the voters this fall. "There is no question about the apathy of the voters this fall and this is especially true in Cook county. All this talk of 30,000 majority for our ticket is a long way from the present indications. This talk about certain congressional districts in this county having a republican plurality of 5,000 or 6,000 is misleading, and you might as well cut such estimates in two at the outset. The notion, that has taken possession of some of you, as to pluralities in such districts as the 6th, 7th and 9th, is all wrong. The majorities of two years ago were made up of gold democratic votes who are now talking tariff, the money question having been settled. If we can't do better at the next registration I don't know what will become of our ticket," said Mr. Lorimer. The democrats are also complaining of the lack of interest in the campaign. What does it mean? Have the voters lost faith in the leaders or are they disgusted with the candidates thrust upon them by machine rule of both republicans and democrats?

Wants Men For the Navy.

It is stated that Secretary Moody will ask congress for authority to increase the navy by 3,000 men. This is regarded as necessary for the new ships and cruisers which are being turned out for our fleet of war vessels. Every first class battleship and cruiser calls for anywhere from 500 to 800 men and officers. Such a warship as the Oregon has a complement of almost 500 men, while the new armored cruisers, such as the Colorado, will require no less than 45 officers and 777 enlisted men to make up their full complement. As the number of ships in the navy increases, therefore, it is plain that the number of men must also be advanced.

Where and how to get the men appears to be a problem which the navy department is having some difficulty in solving. Although recruiting stations have been established all over the country, the navy has not been able to fill up its present quota of 25,000 enlisted men. This is not surprising. Able-bodied men who can pass the rather rigid examinations for entrance to the navy find very little to attract them in wages that begin at $13 a month.

Possibly if the country was less prosperous recruiting might pick up, but to the average American there is nothing attractive in enlisting in the navy, with its strict discipline, for only about a third of the wages that can be earned outside. Of course sailors are boarded free and are given medical attendance and a number of other necessities and comforts without charge, but even this does not make up to the laborer the loss of liberty and the lower rate of wages.

This cannot fairly be attributed to lack of patriotism, but to the fact that in times of peace the navy offers to the enlisted man neither the emoluments nor the chances of advancement which he may reasonably expect in civil life.

College Students and the Penal Code.

A dispatch from Cambridge, Mass., says that the annual rush of sophomores and freshmen was the wildest, most humorous, exasperating "rough house" that Harvard has ever known. After the rush the hilarious students took possession of the town, holding up street cars and utterly demoralizing traffic and transportation. The dispatch says the "fun" lasted for more than an hour.

The public is usually inclined to view with a good deal of leniency the pranks of college boys and to give them the largest latitude for the overflow of their exuberant spirits. But there is a limit beyond which this sort of thing ought not to go.

Acts of disorder on the part of students similar to that reported in Cambridge are of frequent occurrence in the college towns throughout the country and are the source of much discomfort and annoyance to many people who have not had the advantages of a liberal education and do not possess a high appreciation of college humor, as expressed in coarse horseplay, petit larceny, assault and battery, disorderly conduct and the like. There is no reason why the college student should not be as amenable to the penal code as the ordinary citizen.

Chicago furnishes an interesting illustration of what can be accomplished in the public interest by one man if he is determined, persistent and incorruptible. Since 1899 Alderman Henry F. Eldmann has been devoting himself to an effort to compel the street railway lines of the city and its suburbs to grant half fares to school children. Many of his attempts to bring about this end resulted in discouraging defeats. He finally secured the passage of an ordinance directing the collection of only half fare from school children, but there was doubt as to the legality of the ordinance, and the companies at first refused to obey it. Mr. Eldmann persisted, however, and was preparing to take the matter into the courts when a day or two ago the companies gave notice of surrender, agreeing to make only the half fare charge. The incident shows what public sentiment, accompanied by definite action, can do even with street railway companies.

Matriculation reports show that more girls than ever before have entered the colleges this fall. A good many of them are going to college because their parents are well off and it is the fashionable thing to do, and a goodly number are going with a serious purpose in view and a determination to gain all that will help them to noble and useful lives. And the same is true of the army of college boys who are just now interesting themselves in football and other studies.

Possibly some of the South American countries think that if they make trouble enough they will succeed in getting annexed to the United States, so that they may be forced to keep the peace.

The question is, Will Wall street remain relieved, or is the relief habit growing upon it so that it must have its periodical nerve tonic from the government treasury?

Fall openings indicate the close of the year.

The Passing of Finland.

The recent imperial coup d'etat of Russia, as the result of which the autonomous privileges of Finland are altogether suppressed, marks the tragic and pitiful end of a nation's life. From the time it was acquired from Sweden by Czar Alexander I. the grand duchy of Finland was until recent years practically a free state, the people cheerfully accepting the Romanoff rulers as their grand dukes. As late as 1889 Finland was described as the "freest and best governed part of Russia." It was the pet duchy of the Russian crown, and its regiments were accounted the best and faithfulest, ever ready to fight for the czar with a feeling of personal ownership in him and his family. But for reasons which are difficult to understand the present czar has seen fit to disregard the solemn pledges made by Alexander I. in 1800 and renewed by Alexander's successors, adopting a policy toward the Finns, who were among his most loyal subjects, which has removed one right after another until now they are stripped of the last shred of their cherished nationality.

Since the process of the Russification of the formerly autonomous grand duchy began there has been large migration of Finns to this country and Canada, and now that the process is completed there is likely to be a wholesale exodus. Like the Scandinavians, the Finns are patient, industrious, frugal and orderly folks and are readily assimilated with the composite mass of our people, being Lutherans in religion and of a notably friendly disposition toward our laws and institutions. We can well afford to bid them welcome to our shores, greeting them with pledges of freedom and security that will never be broken.

Britain's Latest Turmoil.

The United Kingdom is now in very much of a turmoil over what is known as the education bill, upon which Premier Balfour has apparently staked his parliamentary fortunes. The bill in brief places the control of the public schools in the hands of the Established Church of England, and against this the nonconformists naturally protest with great vigor.

The indications are that despite the protests of the entire nonconformist body, which embraces many of the leading Liberal statesmen, the education bill will be forced through at the autumn session of parliament, but its passage will be only the beginning of the trouble. Solemn declarations that the law will be disregarded and that the school rates will not be paid have been made by the leading dissenting bodies, and should collection be enforced by penal process there is likely to be such a turmoil in the United Kingdom as to unseat the Balfour ministry. No ministry indeed could survive in the face of the wholesale arrests of usually law abiding citizens who had chosen to enter so drastic a protest against episcopal control of the public schools.

The question is mainly of interest in this country as arousing curiosity as to whether Balfour has "dugged the pit" into which he and the present parliament will tumble during the next twelvemonth, and inciting wonder that any nation as enlightened as Great Britain should cling to an obsolete mixture of state, church and school that can only hinder progress in government, religion and education.

The London Express prints an article indicating that a considerable number of Englishmen have no conception of what the Monroe doctrine is. A London barrister interrogated on the subject observed, with a superior smile, "My dear sir, I have not the time to offer a long explanation to a layman of the jurisprudence of the United States as expounded by Mr. Justice Monroe," and waved his interrogator away. A city man on being questioned averred that he had but a poor opinion of "these confounded American quack medicines," while another remarked, with an air of profound wisdom, that it was one of Mr. Pierpont Morgan's little games. He couldn't remember the exact details, though he had seen them in a newspaper. A fourth gentleman believed that Monroe was the commander of a United States warship, whose favorite motto was, "Shoot first and explain afterward."

It is gratifying to read that 1,200 public schools have just been opened in Porto Rico with 50,000 future citizens of the republic in attendance. This is good American news and a hopeful sign of Porto Rico's desire to become a peaceful, prosperous and progressive state of the Union.

A burglar who broke into the Y. M. C. A. building in Madison, Wis., left a note in Latin explaining why he did the job. Education is certainly making great progress in this country.

Peru has settled its boundary dispute with Bolivia, but this is only one of three or four quarrels of the kind that have been troubling South America for years.

It is stated as a curious fact that there is a newspaper in Illinois printed by lunatics for lunatics. But is this such an unusual thing after all?

Of first-rate common lumber, not less than one (1) inch in thickness and sawed to the uniform length of four (4) feet, eighth (8) inches, laid upon four (4) stringers, not less than two (2) by four (4) inches, the ends of which shall rest upon and be nailed to cross bearings two (2) by six (6) inches, four (4) feet, eighth (8) inches long, with good and sufficient bearings between, and the boards shall be securely nailed with ten-penny nails and the outside stringers shall not be more than two (2) inches from the ends of the boards; all work and material shall be first-class and subject to the approval of the street commissioner of the village of Palatine.

SECTION 3. The owner of any lot, lots or piece of ground in front of or alongside of the said proposed sidewalk shall be allowed thirty (30) days after this ordinance shall have been published in which to construct said sidewalk in front of or alongside of his lot, lots or piece of ground, as hereinbefore specified, and may thereby relieve the same from the special taxation herein provided to be levied thereon for the construction of the said sidewalk. Said materials and construction shall accord with the specifications herein and shall be under the supervision and subject to the approval of the street commissioner of the village of Palatine.

SECTION 4. So much of said sidewalk as shall not be constructed and laid by said owners within the time aforesaid, shall be constructed and laid and the materials therefor furnished by the said village of Palatine, and the cost of the materials and construction of said sidewalk shall be paid by special taxation of the lot, lots or parcels of land contiguous to the proposed sidewalk so constructed, by levying the whole of the cost thereof upon such lot, lots or parcels aforesaid, in proportion to their respective frontages upon said sidewalk.

SECTION 5. SECTION 6. Upon the filing of the said bill of cost and the list above provided, the village clerk shall prepare a special tax list against the lot, lots or parcels aforesaid and the owners thereof, respectively ascertaining by computation, the amount of special tax to be charged against each of the lot, lots or parcels and owners thereof, on account of the construction of said sidewalk and according to frontage of said lot, lots or parcels contiguous to the said sidewalk which said special tax list shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the village of Palatine.

SECTION 7. The clerk shall thereupon issue warrants directed to the collector of the village of Palatine, for the collection of the amount of the special tax so ascertained and appearing from the said special tax list to be due from the respective owners of the lot, lots or parcels of land, and said collector shall thereupon proceed to collect such warrants and make returns thereof, together with the moneys collected, to the clerk of the village within sixty (60) days from the date of their issue. All money collected and paid over to the said clerk shall be by him immediately paid over to the treasurer of the village of Palatine.

SECTION 8. Upon the failure to collect any part of such special tax as heretofore provided, it shall be the duty of the clerk, within ninety (90) days after the filing of said special tax list, in his office as aforesaid, to make a report in writing to the county treasurer of all such special tax, which report shall contain a list of the lot, lots or parcels of land contiguous to the said sidewalk upon which such special tax shall be unpaid, the names of the respective owners thereof so far as ascertainable, the amount due and unpaid upon each tract, and shall be accompanied by the oath of the clerk that the list is a correct return of the lot, lots or parcels on which the special tax levied by the authority of said village of Palatine, for the cost of the construction of such sidewalks, remains due and unpaid, and that the amounts therein stated are due and unpaid and have not been collected in whole or in part. The county treasurer shall thereupon appeal for judgment against and shall sell the lands for the non-payment of the said special taxes.

SECTION 9. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force immediately on and after its passage and publication.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

It is said that the frigate bird can fly an entire week without stopping to rest.

Some of the cats in Liberia are of a bright red tint, and they are very conspicuous in the moonlight.

The cry of a young seal when wounded or about to be attacked resembles that of a child in distress, and tears flow from his eyes.

The common herring is the most difficult of all marine creatures to catch alive for an aquarium. A whale is the most difficult to preserve alive.

Cranes, storks and wild geese fly fast enough to make the trip from northern Europe to Africa in a week, but most of them rest north of the Mediterranean.

A fox is dainty as well as crafty and prefers the tongues of lambs for food. He has been seen to chase sheep until they, on becoming tired, hung out their tongues, which he then tears off and eats.

A caterpillar cannot see more than a centimeter ahead—that is to say, less than two-fifths of an inch. The hairs on the body are said to be of as much use as its eyes in letting it know what is going on around.

Her New Jacket.

A naval officer engaged in ordnance duty on a home station was given to talking in his sleep. One night he awakened his wife by starting up in bed and exclaiming in accents of pitting distress:

"She must have a new jacket! I must manage to get one for her!"

The wife, knowing her husband's slumbers had never before been disturbed by the requirements of her wardrobe, became vastly agitated and gripped him by the arm.

"William! William!" she breathed earnestly into his ear, hope meanwhile rising high in her breast. "Who is she?"

"My three inch gun!" sighed the overtaxed ordnance man.

THE FEAR OF DEATH

IT SHOULD FIND NO LODGMENT IN ANY RATIONAL MIND.

Yet This Dread of Meeting the Inevitable is so Universal That Our Entire Social Fabric is Largely Built Upon It.

Do we dread death on the same principle that half a flock of sheep leap through a certain hole in a fence—because the other half has done so? For unless the fear be traditional and hereditary it is hard to account for it.

Death is a change, occupying a moment, from one form of life to another. Whether it come in the course of nature or by accident or design, it is seldom painful; never probably so painful as a bout of the toothache. It brings us from a condition of bondage and uncertainty at best to one of freedom and security. But often it is a change from slavery, both physical and moral, to emancipation comparatively perfect, or, if we hold the materialist view, to everlasting unconsciousness. The spiritual state is emancipated from the inertia of matter and the tyranny of space; therefore thought will be present, and a man's surroundings as to both thing and person will be inevitably such as are most desirable to him. The evil will be emancipated from the opposition of the good, and the good will not be grieved and hampered by the machinations of the evil. The whole chapter of accidents which here looms so large will there be eliminated. Time, which now makes us long for the arrival of an appointed hour and now dreads its too speedy coming, will be no more. But we shall measure life by its intensity and by its opportunities. In other words, we shall be the makers of our own times and seasons.

Death takes us from a world of effects to one of causes. The soul is made of will and thought, and, as we may daily perceive, it is only the obstruction of material conditions that prevents us from immediately accomplishing our desires and beholding the realization of our thoughts. Again, death is inevitable to all and to any one who chooses is at any moment attainable. By what logic can our fear of it be defended?

Yet we fear it so much and so universally that our entire social fabric is built largely upon that fear. Our law makes death the supreme penalty. Our funerals are occasions of mourning, and the medical profession, one of the most numerous extant, spends its existence in combating death. We seek eagerly all nostrums or elixirs that promise us continuance of life. We ascribe supreme merit to the soldier who risks his life for his country or to the individual who sacrifices it for others. We laud the stoicism which affects to despise death, but which bases the virtue of that despising upon the acknowledged terror of the event. Our humanitarians spend sympathy and money in attempting to prolong the miserable condition of the poor and diseased. We shudder to hear of a vast natural calamity like that of Martiniqne or of avoidable accidents such as are furnished daily by railways and other instruments of civilization. And all the while it is the survivors who suffer, if any one does, though they, too, are soon comforted by time or the insurance companies. The dead man, the man who has entered upon the new and spiritual life, whom we absurdly pity, is free, and his troubles are over.

Suicides, it is true, are said to increase with civilization. But few philosophical suicides occur. The majority are induced by dread of life overcoming dread of death. It may be doubted if suicide be ever the act of a man at once perfectly brave and thoroughly sane. The value of this life—and it is a real value—is in the discipline and experience it gives, which it is our honest and sensible duty to improve to the utmost and to the last. Life may be interesting and arduous; it may be disappointing and irksome. It is very seldom if ever uniformly and positively agreeable. Fear, on the other hand, is one of the worst and basest of evils, and fear of death the most irrational. It must have originated in sheer ignorance and thoughtlessness. It ought to vanish before our modern enlightenment and sagacity, and with its disappearance will appear social changes that cannot but be revolutionary and salutary.—Julian Hawthorne in Brandur Magazine.

Dangerous Criminals.

"Why," said a lady reproachfully to her husband, "you know when I say Denmark I always mean Holland!" Perhaps the city girl in the following story, told by the Philadelphia Telegraph, allowed herself a similar latitude of expression:

She was sitting on the porch, lazily rocking to and fro and watching the fireflies flitting about through the shrubbery. Suddenly she turned to her companions and said in a musing tone:

"I wonder if it is true that fireflies do get into the haymows sometimes and set them afire."

Everybody laughed at what was apparently a pleasantry, but the young lady looked surprised.

"Why," said she, "it was only yesterday that I saw in the paper an article headed 'Work of Firebugs.' It said they had set a barn on fire. Really."

MURDERED AND BEHEADED IN TOUGH NEW YORK SALOON

The remains. Later the body was identified by Walter Craft, of Glen Cove, as that of his father. The murdered man was about 51 years old, and was a manufacturer of refrigerating machinery in New York.

Tobin, who is charged with the murder, was arrested hiding in the house. The police also arrested Alexander McAnerney, the bartender; Robert Kelley, a porter in a Chinese restaurant in the building, and several women who were known to be frequenters of the place. The police say that Tobin's real name is Thomas Kelley, and that he is a brother of the porter. They also learned that Craft attempted to get a check for $1,250 cashed before he went to the Empire.

In his story to the corner McAnerney said the man who was killed exhibited a big roll of bills and Tobin suddenly told him he lied and struck him over the head. He dragged him down stairs.

"I followed him to the cellar," McAnerney continued. "I watched Tobin drop his burden and begin to hack at the man's neck. He chopped and chopped, and when the head refused to come off he began to saw it with the cleaver. Suddenly he turned around, and, discovering me, he said he would cut my head off too."

As McAnerney related the story Tobin jumped to his feet and said it was McAnerney who murdered the man and not he.

James B. Craft, a wealthy resident of Glen Cove, was murdered and his body decapitated in a tenderloin resort, known as the Empire Garden Cafe, in West Twenty-ninth street, within a few doors of Broadway, New York. All the evidence goes to show, the police say, that Craft, who had been making the rounds of the tenderloin, displayed a large amount of money in the Empire, and was killed by one of the waiters known as Thomas Tobin for the purpose of robbery. The police also say that knockout drops were first administered and that the victim was then dragged into the basement and killed with a cleaver.

The odor of burning flesh attracted the attention of the occupants of the upper part of the house and led to the discovery by detectives of the nude and headless body of a man in the basement.

The charred head was discovered a few minutes later in the furnace, in which a fire had recently been made, with the evident intention of destroying all possibility of identification of

STONE SENDS TROOPS TO GUARD THE MINES

Entire Force of Pennsylvania State Militia is Ordered to Report for Duty.

Governor Stone has ordered the entire national guard of Pennsylvania into the anthracite coal fields. Ten thousand armed men will attempt to open the mines that have been idle during the last twenty weeks.

While the council of war that decided upon this radical action was being held John Mitchell, president of the United Mine workers, was holding a secret conference with Frank P. Sargent, who had been sent by President Roosevelt to discuss new plans for settling the strike. The action of Gov. Stone is believed to have been taken without consulting President Roosevelt's wishes and seems likely to thwart the President's latest move in the interest of peace.

Settlement of the great battle between the coal operators and their employes seems as far off as ever.

This is the first time the entire division has been placed in the field for strike duty since the Homestead riots in 1892. When all the troops are on duty there will be about 10,000 men in the field.

The real reason which impelled Gov. Stone to take this action will probably never be generally known. Evidently he did not decide upon this plan until the last minute, as Adj. Gen. Stewart had to be summoned from Washington to attend the council.

MITCHELL DECLINES TO ORDER MINERS BACK

Does Not Feel Justified in Taking Radical Step Suggested by the President.

A request from President Roosevelt that the anthracite coal miners return to work, and promising a full investigation of the differences with the operators, was answered in the negative by John Mitchell, as representative of the men.

That the miners will abide by the decision of their leader is considered certain. Reports from all points in the anthracite district indicated that few favored a return to work until the operators at least have met the men half way.

The proposition of President Roosevelt that he would do all possible to secure a settlement between the workers and employers, if the latter would return to the mines, was communicated to President Mitchell at Buffalo. He declared the plan impossible, and word was sent to the nation's executive through Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, now in Washington, that the question of resuming work on such terms could not be entertained.

RECORD CROP OF APPLES.

New Mexican Orchard Yields Its Proprietor an Annual Fortune.

"Out in New Mexico last week I saw, near Roswell, in that territory, the biggest apple orchard I ever laid eyes upon," said Mr. R. P. Zurn of St. Louis. "The orchard is the property of Mr. J. J. Hagerman, the noted miner and railway contractor. It comprises 68,000 trees and occupies a tract of 640 acres. The orchard is maintained by a perfect system of irrigation, and every tree was laden with fruit—as beautiful apples as grow in any part of the United States. Mr. Hagerman told me that he had been offered $1 a tree for the whole crop, but had refused it, and expected it would net him over $100,000. This was not unreasonable, seeing that the previous year he had made as high as $54 from a single tree."—Washington Post.

The welcoming hosts were led by the general's daughter, Consul Emma Booth-Tucker, who was in command of twelve large steamboats that sailed out to meet Gen. Booth's ship. More than 1,200 salvationists were on board, and the music of their bands and hymns must have been a refreshing sound to the ears of the veteran leader. After Gen. Booth landed he was escorted to headquarters by a parade, in which all the members of the army in New York joined.

GAVE BACK THE MARBLES.

Characteristic Anecdote Told of Archbishop John M. Farley.

The Right Rev. John M. Farley, the recently appointed archbishop of the diocese of New York, began life just as any other boy would. He was devoted to all outdoor exercises, and excelled in most of them, though his forte, in those youthful days, was probably marbles. It is not on record that he ever was beaten.

One day he returned home with his clothing torn and his face spattered with the blood that still dripped mournfully from his diminutive nose. It transpired that his opponent in a game of marbles, angry at his own losses, and at John's easy good humor, had picked a fight with him—and had been thrashed. The unusual part of the story is what follows.

When, at the end of a ten-minute mix-up, John Farley found himself on top of the heap (he disentangled himself, and emptying his pockets of his winnings, said:

"These little things made you fight. Take 'em. Perhaps they'll heal your wounds."

A Supervisor's Story.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 6th.—Mr. George P. Penfold, Supervisor for the first ward of the city of Lockport, has written the following letter for publication to the newspapers:

"It gives me great pleasure to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Kidney Trouble.

"My kidneys troubled me more or less for years and treatment by local physicians only gave me partial and temporary relief.

"An old friend, knowing my trouble, advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills telling me at the same time how much they had helped him.

"I used altogether six boxes and found a permanent cure.

"This was two years ago and I have not since been troubled in any way with pains in the back or any of the many other distressing difficulties arising from diseased kidneys."

Where the Fault Was.

When Mayor Low was at Great Barrington last autumn, resting from the fatigue of a strenuous political life, he enjoyed several drives about the Berkshire country, says the New York Times. On one of these he observed a milestone indicating the distance to Stockbridge as four miles, when he knew they were within a much shorter radius of that town. Said Mr. Low to the driver:

"What's the matter with that milestone?"

"Oh!" was the keen response promptly given, "the milestone's all right, only it's in the wrong place!"

A GREAT SUFFERER FROM RHEUMATISM.

Cured by St. Jacobs Oil. Mr. E. G. Moore, of 7, Phillips Street, Kingsland:

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years, during which time I tried many remedies, from which I received but very little relief. Being advised to use St. Jacobs Oil, I did so, and am happy to say that after a few applications I felt great relief, and continuing its use I can now say I am perfectly well. St. Jacobs Oil is, in my opinion, a thing which should be in every household."

What a blessing, and what hours of suffering, pain and misery would have been saved had Mr. Moore adopted the wiser course and used St. Jacobs Oil at first, instead of wasting time and money on worthless embrocations and nostrums with which, unfortunately, the market is flooded. The public should not lose sight of the fact that St. Jacobs Oil has conquered pain for more than fifty years, and it isn't going to stop doing the same thing now or at any future time.—Fifty years' record of pain conquering is a record to inspire confidence.

Reason of "Auntie's" Prejudice Against Mulatto Child.

There was a jovial party at the Cotton Exchange a few days ago, occasioned by the return of several buyers who had made an extended trip through the cotton belt. George Ameridge said that while riding out from Savannah on horseback he saw a typical Southern matron outside a white-washed cabin, while on the lawn in front a bevy of young colored children were playing. There were eight of them altogether, seven of the number being very, very dark, while the eighth one was light complexioned.

"You've got some fine-looking children there, Auntie," he said.

"Deed I hab, boss," she replied. "Dere ain't any better pickaninies in de whole state of Georgia den dat first seben, but dat eighth one, dat mulatto, she done make me more trouble dan de whole oder seben put together."

"In what way?" I asked, and she replied: "Cause she done show dirt so easy!"—New York Times.

The Ingenuous Inventor.

The market is overrun with substitutes for this food and that," asserts the capitalist, "I see no justification for backing your new health food."

With a naive smile the inventor turns to him and suggests:

"But it may also be used as a substitute for coal."

Then the capitalist displays unusual activity in sending for patent attorneys and clerks to draw up articles of partnership.

SHOWING THE WAY.

Most of our readers know all about the aches and pains of a bad back, very few people are free from sick kidneys, as the kidneys are the most over-worked organs of the body and "go wrong" at times no matter how well the general health may be. The trouble is so few understand the indications of kidney trouble. You are nervous, tired out and weary, have stiffness, twinges and twitches of backache pains, but lay it to other causes; finally the annoyance and suffering attendant with urinary disorders, retention of the urine, too frequent urination makes you realize the seriousness of it. At any stage you should take a remedy that will not only relieve but cure you. Read the following and profit by the lesson it teaches:

C. J. McMurray, a resident of Freeport, Ill., address 47 Iroquois St., says: "I have greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills to-day than I had in the fall of 1897, when I first took that remedy and it cured me of an acute pain across the back and imperfect action of the kidneys. Since I made a public statement of these facts and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends and acquaintances, thoroughly believing as I did both from observation and experience that they would do just as they were represented to do. I am still pleased to re-endorse my statement given to the public shortly after I first began to use the remedy."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine, which cured Mr. McMurray, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Jealousy of Male Owl.

Last year a pair of large brown owls had a nest in a wood close to the shore at Milford Haven, Pembrokeshire. On several occasions the cock bird not only violently attacked dogs frequenting the wood, but also resented people passing its haunt. This year the birds again built in the same vicinity, and the male bird has repeatedly attacked dogs, and has several times flown most viciously in daylight at people walking along the road. He tore a boy's ear recently, and his last performance was to knock a man down.

PORTUGUESE EAST AFRICA
NOW A BRITISH POSSESSION

Portuguese east Africa, which Great Britain is reported to have purchased under an agreement entered into ten years ago by Great Britain, Germany, and Portugal, has an area of 301,000 square miles and a population of 3,120,000. Its ports are Delagoa bay, which has a railroad connection with the Transvaal, and whose possession is Britain's principal object in buying the territory; and Beira, from which there is a railroad line in to Rhodesia, 222 miles in length, and which may go into Germany with the northern part of the territory. The possession of Delagoa bay gives Great Britain a port for the Transvaal and a naval base on the west coast. Commercially the territory has great promise, particularly in mining. Thousands of gold claims have been staked out by Britishers under concessions from Portugal, and their development awaits only improved transportation facilities. Rubber, ores, wax and ivory are the principal exports. Imports have in late years amounted to $7,500,000, and exports to $800,000 annually. Portugal has received from the territory in revenue $5,000,000 annually, of which three-fifths has been expended in its administration.

"FIGHTING JIM" JOUETT DEAD.

His Splendid Record as Admiral of United States Navy. Rear Admiral James E. Jouett, U. S. N., retired, died at his home, the Anchorage, Sandy Spring, Md., last week. He was 74 years old and had a long and distinguished career. He was retired in 1890.

Rear Admiral James E. Jouett, "Fighting Jim" Jouett, was born at Lexington, Ky., Feb. 27, 1828. He entered the navy as a midshipman in 1841. His brilliant career really began on the night of Nov. 17, 1861, when as lieutenant of the United States frigate Santee, he led a hazardous boat expedition against the confederate warship Royal Yacht, off Galveston, Texas. He captured and destroyed the Royal Yacht, and in the hand-to-hand encounter on her decks, when he and his gallant men boarded her, he received a severe pike wound in the arm and side.

Jouett was made a captain in 1874, a commodore in 1883 and a rear admiral Feb. 19, 1886. In 1885, while in command of the naval forces on the north Atlantic station, Jouett, by his prompt, firm and judicious course during the rebellion on the Isthmus of Panama, restored order, re-established transit, prevented great destruction of property and loss of life and was instrumental in bringing about a surrender of the insurgent forces in the United States of Colombia, reflecting great credit upon this country and himself.

FOUND PONY EXPRESS FORT.

Up in Mountains of Nevada, 30 Miles From Nevada.

J. A. Snedaker, a mining engineer of Denver, while traveling in Eureka county, Nev., 30 miles from the railroad, found one of the stations of the old overland trail. It was used for the pony express. It is built of light gray lava stone. The roof is of cedar poles, covered with earth, and the sides are pierced with holes, through which a besieged garrison could take a shot at an approaching enemy. An old corral stands near the stationhouse, and the surroundings are in all respects typical of those days.

The overland trail passed in front of the station, and Mr. Snedaker followed it for 20 miles across mountains and through valleys which now present a scene of desolation.

Fifty years ago an almost continuous tide of humanity swept by, and rude stones now mark the graves of unfortunates who met death far from friends.

Over this route tens of thousands of gold hunters rushed toward the Pacific, and later the stage coach swung over the alkali deserts and corduroy bridges.

Snedaker proposes that the state of Nevada should preserve this unique relic. New York Journal.

Ambassador Meyer reported on his way to this country for the purpose of retiring, and who has just left London for his post at Rome, with the evident intention of again taking up his diplomatic work, was appointed to the court of Victor Emmanuel in December, 1900. He had no previous diplomatic experience, but is a man of large means and wide business associations. Born in Boston forty-four years ago, he was educated at the public schools and entered politics by way of the Boston common council in 1889. He afterward served as a speaker of the Massachusetts legislature and member of the national Republican committee.

Bank of England's Balance.

The grand balance, or scale, used in the Bank of England is probably the most wonderful piece of mechanism to be seen anywhere. It stands about 7 feet high and weighs probably two tons. This scale is so perfectly adjusted that it can weigh a grain of dust or 400 pounds of gold. A postage-stamp placed on one of the two weighing portions will move the index 6 inches. If the weight placed upon the scale is beyond its capacity an electric bell is set ringing, the machine declining to execute a task of which it is incapable.

OPPORTUNITIES IN RAILWAY BUSINESS.

With the object of encouraging the railroading ambition of village and country young men, the Chicago and Alton railroad has recently established an employment bureau. The reason for this step is the great and steady demand for young blood in the service.

With the exception of service with the government, a great railroad offers the widest field for congenial employment. Indeed, the qualifications which a young man must possess, and the examination which he must pass, to secure entrance into the railroad service, are stronger than the test made by the government. Having successfully passed these, a young man can feel that there is a sort of covenant between him and his employers to the effect that he is satisfactory material to fill the position which he is given, and may reasonably expect advancement. In the matter of promotion, ability and merit are, of course, first considerations, but seniority is always considered, all other things being equal. The old day of personal relationship and politics has passed; the railroad field lies invitingly open to the young man with ambition and energy.

Speaking generally, if a young man is physically strong, morally clean, has average capability to work and think, and, above all, firmly believes that railroad work will prove congenial, my advice to him is to enter the employ of a railroad company. If, upon the other hand, a young man realizes that he does not possess the foregoing essentials, he would better keep out.—J. H. Barrett, General Superintendent Chicago and Alton Railroad.

Revenge is Sweet.

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter from Congressman White, of North Carolina.

PE-RU-NA IS A HOUSEHOLD SAFEGUARD.

No Family Should Be Without It.

PERUNA is a great family medicine. The women praise it as well as the men; it is just the thing for the many little catarrhal ailments of childhood.

The following testimonials from thankful men and women tell in direct, sincere language what their success has been in the use of Peruna in their families:

Louis J. Scherrinsky, 103 Locust street, Atlantic, Iowa, writes:

"I will tell you briefly what Peruna has done for me. I took a severe cold which gave me a hard cough. All doctors' medicines failed to cure it. I took one bottle of Peruna and was well."

"Then my two children had bad coughs accompanied by gagging. My wife had stomach trouble for years. She took Peruna and now she is well."

"I cannot express my thanks in words, but I recommend your remedy at every opportunity, for I can conscientiously say that there is no medicine like Peruna. Nearly everyone in this town knew about the sickness of myself and family, and they have seen with astonishment what Peruna has done for us. Many followed our example, and the result was health. Thanking you heartily, I am."—L. J. Scherrinsky.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes:

"I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

Peruna protects the family against coughs, colds, catarrh, bronchitis, catarrh of the stomach, liver and kidneys. It is just as sure to cure a case of catarrh of the bowels as it is a case of catarrh of the head.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N. C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives, Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it so an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

Peruna is an internal, scientific, systematic remedy for catarrh. It is no palliative or temporary remedy; it is thorough in its work, and in cleansing the diseased mucous membranes cures the catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

The court's decision sustains the provision in the bylaws that certificates lapse if payments are not promptly made.

An editor is a failure if he runs a sleepy paper, and a "smarty" if his paper is spicy and up-to-date. He is a fool if he fails and a rascal if he succeeds. He either writes it wrong or does not write it at all. He charges too much for his paper and offers insult when he asks for his money. He is a good fellow to have around at weddings and funerals, but his paper is not what it ought to be. Half his readers could run a better newspaper than he, but they won't. Oh, the average editor is wrong every way, and he needs fixing.

Barrington is now without a public hall, with the exception of the assembly room in the village building which is not adapted to any purpose but meetings of the board of trustees and holding elections. Stott's hall having been leased for a term of years to the local lodge of Odd Fellows the promoters of dances and political meetings must go out of business. It is possible that some enterprising citizen, or a number of citizens, may decide that the time has arrived to erect a hall, one that will meet the public demand and prove a credit to the village. Barrington is the only village of 1200 inhabitants in this section of the state without a public hall.

A singular occurrence, and one which we would scarcely credit, if not known to be a certainty, occurred in the vicinity of Arlington Heights not long since. September 5 when Amos Baker threshed his grain, a dog owned by Freeman Starbuck was covered up in the straw pile. The dog's whereabouts was unknown, and it was supposed to be dead. Just three weeks from that date (Sept. 26) Freeman went out working around, heard a noise in the straw and on investigation found the dog in the straw and alive. Although very weak from three weeks fasting the dog is still living.

From reports it seems that the case in which Henry Roloff was the defendant and Chicago Commercial Co. the complainant, is by no means closed. Mr. Roloff insists that he was the victim of a conspiracy; that he has evidence to substantiate the charges of malicious persecution and efforts to railroad him to the penitentiary and that Medill, who swore out the complaint against him and several citizens of this village who appeared as witnesses for the state, will be prosecuted to a finish. Attorney Morris, the well-known colored member of the Chicago bar, has been retained by Mr. Roloff and it is said that there will be interesting developments when the case comes to trial. Mr. Roloff says he never committed the act charged against him and wishes to clear his name of any stigma attached to it and show the public how he was persecuted and for what cause.

Edward Hunsinger of Chicago, a nephew of G. Heimerdinger, was visiting here Thursday.

Fred Kirschner attended the meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge held in Chicago Wednesday.

Will Jayne has secured a position in Chicago and will remove his family to that city in the near future.

Fred Stott, who has been in New York state the past week on business, returned home yesterday.

John A. Fay and Ed Dodge of Edgerton, Minnesota, made a pleasant visit to their grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Dodge, during the week.

Dr. M. F. Clausius and family are now settled in Palatine. The doctor has tired of regular army life and will resume practice in our sister town.

Rev. Tuttle was called home Tuesday from the Methodist conference in session at Austin, to officiate at the funeral of Mrs. Millie Page Meyers.

Fred Sommerfeld, who removed to the vicinity of Ocean Springs, Mississippi, last fall, has sold his property in that section and will return next week to his former home in Lake county.

Mrs. Millie Page Meyers.

The angel of death has again entered our midst and summoned to the great unknown land one who had for nearly twenty-four years, been a beloved and esteemed member of the community. In the passing away of Millie Page Meyers, which occurred Sunday night, October 6, the church with which she was connected loses an earnest member, the home that she had presided over but one short year, its brightest ornament. A mother and father are bowed down with grief and the light of a husband's love has gone out.

Millie Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Page, was born in Barrington January 7, 1879. All her life had been spent amid the surroundings of this village. Here she attended the schools and churches, here, by the gentle, loving disposition which was a prominent feature in her make up, she attracted a large circle of friends who regard her death as a personal affliction. Since early childhood she had suffered of a spinal trouble which was the direct cause of her death.

She was a great lover of home and until her marriage to Henry W. Meyers, which took place September 11th, 1901, she was her mother's constant companion, lavished with love and attention.

Six years ago Millie Page united with the M. E. church and since that time has given the help her health would allow to church and Sunday school work. She was also a member of the W. R. C.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Tuttle. The edifice was overcrowded by friends and associates whose sorrow at the going out of the life of her whom they had loved since early infancy, was clearly marked. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

The sympathy of our people goes out to the husband who is deprived of a loving companion; to the parents who laid away their idol and to the brothers, George and Clarence, who have lost the tender affections of an only sister.

The husband, parents and brothers of Millie Page Meyers desire to extend their heartfelt thanks to all who have assisted them in their great bereavement.

Funeral of James Sizer.

All that was mortal of James Sizer was consigned to rest in Evergreen cemetery Sunday afternoon. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Thomas W. Sweeney Post, G. A. R. of which he was a member. The poet attended in a body as did the W. R. C. From the home on Williams street the body was borne to the Baptist church where a large assembly had gathered to pay respect to an old resident and esteemed citizen.

Rev. C. D. Mayhew conducted the service and delivered a discourse which treated of the life of deceased and the honor due his memory as one who had gone forth at the call in defense of his country's honor. He gave to the stricken widow and children words of sympathy and comfort found in the teachings of the Master, such as could not fall to lighten their burden of sorrow.

At the cemetery the service was the simple ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic.

At the grave Comrade Colby offered the following tribute:

"Our deceased comrade was a lover of liberty and firm believer in a democratic form of government. In his early manhood he left his mother country and came to America to escape service in the Crimean war. In the days when this nation was threatened with disruption he enlisted on the Union side and for three long and weary years fought to help crush the slavetolders' rebellion; fought that a free government with the consent of the governed should not 'perish from the earth.' He freely risked his life in defense of his adopted country, and no doubt his untimely death was ultimately caused by injuries received in the service, his horse falling upon him when in line of duty. Although he served in the humble station of a private soldier 'he did what he could.'"

James Sizer was born in Cambridge-shire, England, March 15, 1838. He came to America in June 1855, locating in the vicinity of Lake Zurich. In 1861 he responded to the call to arms and enlisted in Co. G., 13th Ill. Vol. Infantry and served until Oct. 31st, 1864, when he received an honorable discharge. In 1866 he was united in marriage to Anett Hawley who survives him. Four children was the result of their union, three of whom survive. For the past 20 years the deceased had resided at the home on Williams street in this village.

The family of the late James Sizer desire to thank all who so kindly assisted them during the protracted illness and upon the death of their loved one. To Thomas Sweeney Post and the W. R. C. and Rev. Mayhew are they deeply grateful.

Marriage of Matilda Krahn.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Krahn of this village, Saturday afternoon, October 4, a pretty home wedding was solemnized, Miss Matilda Krahn taking the wife of F. Robert Otto of Chicago. Only immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present and Rev. C. D. Mayhew of the Baptist church performed the ceremony.

The bride is well and favorably known to our people and for the year past has resided at Janesville, Wis. The groom is an industrious, well to do Chicago business man. Mr. and Mrs. Otto departed on a wedding trip to New York City and other eastern points. They will reside in Chicago. The many friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Otto in this village tender congratulations and wishes for a prosperous and happy future.

McHenry County Democrat Sold.

John Duffield's old reliable newspaper the McHenry County Democrat, has passed out of his possession into the hands of a stock company composed of Attorneys Jackman, Lamley, Barnes, Casey and Joslyn and Messrs. Geo. Murphy and Charley Lemmers. Charley Lemmers, for a number of years in charge of the Woodstock Sentinel, will be manager of the publication, which will be independent republican in politics and named The McHenry County Republican.

Now look out for war. The Sentinel is owned by Luman T. Hoy, secretary of the Republican State Central committee, Messrs. Bagley and Jewett and others, known in McHenry county politics as "the Woodstock ring." What Charley Lemmers, who has been Hoy's man for 12 years, don't know about the "combine" is not worth knowing. Lumley, Jackman and Murphy have axes to grind and there will be music.

Mr. Duffield will be missed from this field of journalism. He always hewed to the line, giving his opinion freely, and admired by political opponents for his frankness.

Bob Burdette pays the following tribute to women: "True, she cannot sharpen a pencil outside of commercial circle or tie a package to look like anything save a crooked section of shoes; but land of miracles, see what she can do with a pin; she cannot walk many miles around a pool table with nothing to drink, but she can walk all night with a fretful baby. She can ride 500 miles without going into the smoking car to rest and get away from the children. She can enjoy an evening at home without smoking half a dozen cigars. She can endure the distraction of a house full of children all day, while her husband sends them to bed before he has seen them an hour. A boy with a sister is fortunate, a fellow with a sweetheart is happy, and a man with a good wife is more blessed than them all."

Dislocated His Hip.

Operator Lynch, on duty nights at the E. J. & E. signal tower, met with a severe accident Tuesday night. Feeling drowsy he went out upon the platform surrounding the tower and sat down on the railing. The woodwork gave way and Mr. Lynch was precipitated to the ground, a distance of 18 feet, dislocating his left hip. Mr. Lynch was to go to Iowa next week to assume a position there.

Political Notes.

If you wish to vote this fall you must register. The dates for registration are Tuesday, October 14 and Tuesday, October 28.

Dan Healy is trying to convince the agriculturists of Cook county that what he does not know about farming he does know about running the sheriff's office. Mr. Healy has held some kind of an office in Cook county for the past 20 years and always served acceptably and it looks as though he had an excellent chance to get the best office in the gift of the people of the county.

In company with other papers in Lake county The Review has stated that A. J. Raymond of Wauconda township was out as an independent candidate for the office of county treasurer. We abstracted the item from the Waukegan Sun. Mr. Raymond emphatically denies the statement and says he is a republican and not of the kicking and bolting class, but believes in majority rule. That is the kind of a party man that the people admire.

Now the politician tells us, as he takes the lowly stump, how he'll antidote the troubles of this nation on the jump; and he tells how the wickedness of office he will purge—and as to some great disaster, he will drag us from the verge! Oh! the many things he'll do he keeps repeating o'er and o'er! But we can't help recollecting that we've heard these things before!

The Waukegan Gazette reads the riot act to Senator Mason because that gentleman feels hurt at the action of the Lake county republicans in not endorsing his candidacy for U. S. senator for a second term. The Gazette says that it is informed that Senator Mason said that the "slush fund" was used to defeat resolutions in favor of him. While it seems hardly probable that the senator ever made any such a statement, there is no doubt that he and his friends had some reason to believe that the emissaries of Mr. Hopkins, and that gentleman himself being at the Libertyville convention, had worked the shell game. It was known that the majority of delegates from Waukegan were Mason men, and not only that but the county central committee, at its meeting last spring, had endorsed Senator Mason for reelection. The opposition to Senator Mason was in the country towns and not in Waukegan and lake shore cities and villages. With the Gazette, we do not believe that the much-talked of "slush fund" played any prominent part in the defeat of resolutions endorsing Senator Mason, but the senator has good and sufficient reason to feel hurt at the action of those whom he counted as friends. The writer reported the Libertyville convention, and was possessed of information before the permanent organization was effected, which is foundation for the opinion that Mr. Mason's chances for securing a representative from Lake county went too pieces when A. K. Stearns and his lieutenants failed to keep faith with Palmer Montgomery and allowed the seven votes of Wauconda to get away.

E. J. Murphy, warden of the state penitentiary at Joliet, will entertain the members of the Eleventh District Editorial association in the prison tomorrow. It is unnecessary to state that the brethren of the Eleventh district will feel perfectly at home inside the bastille. Next week they will tell the readers of their papers about the "excellent management of our state penal institutions under the present administration." A singular thing, is it not, that the members of that association are "particular friends" of Governor Yates? Then the Chicago Inter Ocean has the audacity to remark "there is no politics in this visit of the association." Certainly there is not. A blind man could see that—and George Wheeler Hinman of the I O is blind—politically speaking, because he regards as evil every man who differs with the intense partisan teachings of the paper he controls.

The Young People's Missionary society of the Salem church held their annual business meeting last Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. S. Gleske; vice-president, Amanda Schroeder; recording secretary, Esther Lageschulte; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Schroeder; treasurer, Sam Naeh; program committee, Luella Plagge, Esther Lageschulte and Fred Grabenkort.

Again the village board of trustees has requested the Chicago & North-western Railway company to place a flagman at the Walnut street crossing and are given five days to comply with the request, so the flagman is due Sunday morning. If the company pays as little heed to this request as it has to three former ones there will be no flagman at that crossing. Why not secure the services of Constable Greenberg and instruct him to get the flagman. He gets what, he goes after.
