PORT ARTHUR IS SEALED
Japanese Plan to Bottle Up Russian Fleet Said to Have Been Successful—Channel Made Impassable.

Port Arthur is sealed. The Japanese plan adopted by the Russian fleet to enter the Russian sea, while the harbor or strait was closed, has succeeded. It is now reported that the strait is a mine of field for a long time. A report reached here today that the channel had been rendered almost impassable, and that it was impossible for torpedo boats to enter. It is believed that the Japanese have now made no attempt to enter the channel.

It has for some days been known that Admiral Togo planned to try to block the harbor by chaining a mine to the harbor by chains a mine under protection of the guns of the Russian fleet. The ships, having crossed the mine, were blown to bits at a spot just outside the channel. The mine was blown to bits by the Russian fleet. This is supposed to be the method adopted, though no details are given.

The Russian fleet, which hounded the sea from the first to the last of the Japanese fleet, was destroyed on the 13th of the month. The Russian fleet was destroyed on the 13th of the month. The Russian fleet was destroyed on the 13th of the month.
