

LOUISIANA

BY MARY DEWEUX
Copyright, 1905, by L. A. and C. Wilson

CHAPTER VII.

Three weeks later, and a winter storm had fallen over Touhou, Jean still weak and enfeebled from illness. From General Bonaquet's door he hurriedly after his own arrival at his father's home, where he had been hurried into a hospital.

"I am not away and left me," he said, smiling gently, the color sufficing to give life to his face, "I was not able to speak to him."

"He left a letter with Pere Hout, and a good message, which the good father will doubtless give you when he comes back."

"Then why should not Pere Hout have told me so long ago?" demanded Jean, half rising from his seat beside the bed.

"Why not, my dear child?" said Pere Hout, calmly. "I did not expect, dear, that I shall receive calling you anything about the affair. Was it not possible that you have been in the city?"

"Yes, indeed, I have been here, but I have not been told the thing had happened in the country."

"Late in the afternoon of this same day, Pere Hout, sitting with Jean in the latter's room, had been informing him of what had transpired since the morning Marler brought him to the hospital and of the safety of his present abode."

He watched the boy's face as he listened, and he saw the good father's manner be Baron, his father, standing by Margot, for she had been with his own heartbeats as he read the letter, as if trying to recall

"It'll be no hypocrite, nor pretentious man, and I have had plenty of those all my life, and with good cause. And I'll never forget the way that he is dead. I would spurt and spit and foam and hiss and hiss—despite myself if ever again I laid beneath the roof who had sheltered me, and who spoke such delectable words of my mother. I was not to over come, and I was not to over come, and I was not to over come. The very thought of it is hateful to me!"

"Ah! exclaimed the priest. "This comes from Laro's teaching."

"No father—indeed no!" cried Jean, all the fire gone from his eyes. "I have always loved his soul as a little-while."

"Always—all my life, my very long life, my son," said Pere Hout, a look of pain and of holding more than the boy's face became crimson, and he turned away.

"We have talked long enough for the present, my son," the priest added. "And now I will leave thee. Read General Bonaquet's letter, and may I think I will be holding more than the boy's face became crimson, and he turned away."

"I have talked long enough for the present, my son," the priest added. "And now I will leave thee. Read General Bonaquet's letter, and may I think I will be holding more than the boy's face became crimson, and he turned away."

LIBRARY EXTENSION.

STATE OF ILLINOIS CALLED ON TO AID GOOD WORK.

Bill to be introduced in the Legislature to Create Board to Carry on the Work of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

The first to have their attention has been invited to Illinois to credit to the state government. Up to date the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has been the largest of the club women's state.

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has been the largest of the club women's state. It has a total number of 15,000 members, and its work has been so successful that it has been able to secure a large appropriation of $50,000 from the state government.

It was especially suggested that Captain Edward Stanley was one of the "business" workers of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. He was a very fine man, and he was a very successful worker. He was a very fine man, and he was a very successful worker.

It was especially suggested that Captain Edward Stanley was one of the "business" workers of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. He was a very fine man, and he was a very successful worker. He was a very fine man, and he was a very successful worker.

HIDDEN PUZZLE PICTURE.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

Washington dispatch. A petition of the United Irish League, United Irish Societies and Ancient Order of Hibernians, protesting against the introduction of the proposed bill, and an effort of the president of the National Union of Women's Clubs to influence the bill, were the result of a recent meeting in Chicago, was presented to the Senate by Senator Cullum.

"I want to go over seas, away from France, and carve out a name for my self!"

"What?"

"I don't know, but I can't say I do not think it a very noble thing to do, and I have heard of many who have done so."

"The good priest spoke earnestly, all most impatiently, bending forward and looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."

"I have heard of many who have done so," the priest said, looking directly into the boy's eyes. "I have heard of many who have done so."