A SUDDEN DEATH

Gerhard Frye Died Monday

Evening of Heart

Failure.

One of the most sudden deaths, which has occurred in this community for sometime, was that of Gerhard Frye, who passed away Monday evening. He was never heard to complain until Monday, when he felt some uneasiness at the heart, which in a few hours of time caused his unexpected death.

The deceased was born in Schale, Kreis Tecklenburg, Germany, June 15, 1883, and died September 21, 1938, at the age of 55 years, 3 months and 6 days. He came to America at the age of about 21 years and has passed his life in and around Barrington ever since. His life has been one of hard labor and toil all the way through and has always commanded the respect and friendship of all who knew him.

In the year 1937 he was united in matrimony to Miss Catherine Mainers. Mutually they shared life's joys and sorrows ever since. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last year.

To this union were born four children, one son and three daughters, one daughter dying in infancy. Those surviving are: John Frye and Mrs. Henry S. Meier of this village and Mrs. Lydia Frye of Crystal Lake, who with the sorrowing widow mourn their loss deeply.

The funeral services were held this afternoon from the Zion Evangelical church, of which he has been a member ever since the society was in its infancy in the Deer Grove community. The Rev. J. Haller, of Chicago, formerly pastor at this place, officiated, assisted by the pastor.

The sympathy of the entire community was sent to the sorrowing widow and relatives in this hour of bereavement, for his absence will be felt in the home, the church and among the citizens. May the God of all mercy grant all a reunion above. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

Barrington Man, Receives Publicity.
Prof. William Dodge, one of the district superintendents of the Chicago schools, a son of Mrs. Julia Dodge of Main street and a brother of Alkerman John Dodge, was given a write-up in one of the Sunday papers with a good picture of himself published, also. His career as a teacher in Normal and Cook county schools was traced and his long service praised. He is considered one of Chicago's best public school professors. Mr. Dodge frequently visits his mother here on Sundays.

Abel Runaway.

Last Thursday afternoon while Mrs. Herman Abel and Miss Ida Klein were driving to their homes west of town, their horse was frightened by an automobile and became unmanageable. Miss Klein had gotten out of the carriage to hold the animal, but it broke away from her and ran, overturning the carriage and throwing Mrs. Abel to the ground under the rig. She is now suffering from bruises, particularly on the arms and neck, and is unable to be about.

A Hot Game.

An interesting and exciting game of ball was played on the Y. M. C. A. grounds last Saturday afternoon. The Larrabees, of Chicago, defeated the local team after twelve innings by the score of 5 to 4. The pitchers were: Y. M. C. A., Mickey, Larrabees, Hauselman.

Next Saturday the Y. M. C. A. team will tackle the Pettibone, a strong Chicago team. Hauselman will again oppose Mickey. Come and see a good game. Admission 10 and 15c.

Will Attend County Officers Meeting.
Supervisors George Quentin, Vernon L. A. Dayton, Waukegan, M. T. Lamoy, Cubert and County Clerk A. L. Hendes compose the special committee appointed by the chairman of the Lake county board of supervisors to attend the annual meeting of supervisors, county clerks and county commissioners of the state of Illinois to be held at Kankakee, October 13, 14, 15 and 16.

Supervisors Inspect County Farm.
The Lake county board of supervisors met at Libertyville Tuesday for its annual inspection of the county farm. The buildings are in excellent condition and modern conveniences have recently been added.

All Enjoyed Dance.

The number who attended the dance Friday night, including dancers and spectators, was reckoned as about one hundred.

Fred Stott planned the dance, which was public, with a view to providing this pleasure for those long deprived of it in Barrington. His hall with its new decorations makes a good sized and pretty dancing room and the fine music of O'Connor's orchestra of Chicago delighted all.

Lavender and white astor bouquets were handed each lady upon entrance and a lavender ribbon badge with an astor attached given each gentleman dancing.

The official board of the church in Barrington at its last meeting instructed the secretary to write the district superintendent, Dr. Cady, asking for the return of their pastor, O. P. Mattison, for the coming year. He has expressed a willingness to return.

New Postal Ruling.

Hereafter will be well for users of postage stamps to be careful that stamps are kept perfectly whole, as a stamp with the smallest portion missing will be as worthless as none at all, and letters containing such torn stamps will be held for postage office department, and it will be useless to kick against such odds.

New Bridge for C. & N. W.

The longest single leaf, double track, bascule bridge in America has been installed for the Northwestern line across the north branch of the Chicago river, near Kinzie street. It was opened to trains last Monday morning.

"Business Notice" ads produce results.

PALATINE.

Lester Groll who was arrested on suspicion of stealing over $200 on August 11 from the home of Willis Elm was brought to trial Tuesday afternoon before Judge Whipple. At the end of four hours hearing the judge took the case under advisement until the following morning, when he found him not guilty.

A New Choral Society.

At a meeting in the Salem church Monday evening the choir was merged into a new and enlarged organization under the name of "The Choral Society of the Salem church." As the name indicates the organization is to cultivate musical studies. Not only anthem work for use in the regular Sunday services is to be done but special concert occasions are in prospect. Edward Elliot of Evanston, who has a record of work in this line, has been engaged as director.

According to the report of the membership committee, forty or more members are in prospect. Any person possessing the necessary maturity of voice and wishing to secure the benefits of the vocal drill is eligible to membership. Membership in the chorus is not dependent upon membership in the Salem church. A monthly dues of $3c is required, putting the chorus upon an independent financial basis.

Miss Lydia Sodt was elected president, Miss Myrtle Plagge vice-president and Clarence Plagge secretary and treasurer. Herbert Plagge acted as temporary chairman of the business meeting Monday evening, and was largely instrumental in bringing the initial steps to pass which led to the organization of the chorus.

We look for splendid results in the Salem church. Friday evening at 8 o'clock is the first meeting of the chorus for drill.

SHEEN SPEAKS HERE.

Prohibition Candidate for Governor Addresses Barrington People.

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock Er. D. H. Richardson introduced to a crowd of about one hundred citizens of Barrington, the Hon. Dan H. Sheen of Peoria, prohibition candidate for governor. In his address, which was delivered from an auto in front of the Graft building, Mr. Sheen told of the advantages which a prohibition party would give to the people. He told about methods in the legislature, of which he was a member, and was loud in condemning the primary law. Mr. Sheen spoke for about thirty minutes, after which Joseph E. Anderson, of Lake Forest, candidate for representative from the eighth district, had a few words to say, soliciting the support of the voters at the coming election.

Mr. Anderson contradicted the statement made by Waukegan papers that he is timid. We can easily see how our brother editors made the mistake, which we could not well make after hearing from his own lips that he is not. However, when we think of it, he did not show any timidity in asking for votes.

The party left immediately after the speaking for Waukegan where they were due at 11:30.

Popular Village Attorney Weds.

Announcements have been received by friends in Barrington of the marriage of our village attorney, Howard Percy Castle, to Miss Sarah Elizabeth Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Edwards of Adrian, Michigan.

Details of the wedding are not known, but the ceremony was performed in the home town of the bride and they are now on a pleasure trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Castle will reside here and will be at home after January first in the former date residence on Main street, now occupied by Hay Cannon.

Mr. Castle has been living in Elgin, but after election will come to Barrington and live at Miss Eva Castle's temporarily.

Olson Not Robbed.

The report recently published in the country press in this vicinity, that A. J. Olson, of Woodstock, republican candidate for state senator, was among those held-up by a highwayman in Yellowstone Park, Colorado, is without foundation. Mr. and Mrs. Olson were visiting Yellowstone Park at the time of the hold-up but were not among the number that were required to part with their valuables.

Entertain Crystal Lake Lodge.

Fifty ladies of two camps of the Royal Neighbors of America held were entertained at dinner at Mrs. Carrie Kendall's on Tuesday; twenty-two of these were members of the Nunda Camp, No. 53, who were guests of the local camp, Mayflower, No. 2282.

In the afternoon a meeting was held at the downtown hall and the visitors gave a splendid exhibition in drill work.

An Inconistency.

There is a way to travel. And yet remain at home. It really is quite possible—Just use the telephone.

Barrington Review

M. T. LAMBY, Ed. and Pub.
BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS.

This certainly does not seem to be much of a year for suits.

Holland may decide to use some of its wooden shoes when it gets ready to spank Castro.

The smart set is not likely to take up smuggling as a fad in view of recent developments.

The woman mountain climber was lost just long enough to make a magazine article salable.

Boston bank arms all employees and insists on daily target practice. Yet some people think Boston is slow.

Preacher on vacation sends postal-card sermon to each parishioner every week. Here comes the mail-order church.

A Pittsburgh girl offers $450 for a husband. Too much to pay. You can pick one up for $139 almost anywhere.

A Georgia woman begins to be the original merry widow, though evidence is lacking that she is about 2,000 years old.

Mr. Rockefeller says he is not nearly so rich as he is popularly supposed to be. In other words, he does not quite own the earth.

Kentucky twins look alike, think alike, act alike, talk alike, write alike, and are duplicates through all the rest of the list. Hope they don't fall in love with the same man.

Pennsylvania man finds a dollar which he lost 14 years ago. And he's probably feeling sore because if he had put it out at interest he would now have four times as much.

New York is planning a theater to be exclusively for the managers and critics, the public being barred. The public will agree enthusiastically that in many cases this will fill a long-felt want.

New York is still searching for methods by which to make its subway traction system endurable as well as rapid. The best way would be to pull it up by the roots and construct a good one.

A clergyman of Bath, Pa., while on his vacation each sends a card to each member of his congregation a sermon printed on a postal card. Next year his parishioners may have their vacations so as to be out of town when he goes away.

There are scores of small crops which do not grow in the regular reports, and yet which add materially to the natural wealth of the country. Here, for instance, is California seedling which will not the raisers the sum of $1,250,000. And there are scores of other small fruits which swell the impressive total.

The fashionable wedding journey for British Columbia couples is a tour of the coast. The Canadian Pacific railway has just added to its steamship service a "honeymoon steamer." There are only 30 second-class berths on the steamer, since, of course, no bridegroom would accept inferior accommodations. Bachelors may use the cheap quarters.

Womans say one of the results of the extension of the franchise to women in Norway is that henceforth women employees in the postal service are to receive the same pay as men. Norwegian women are greatly rejoicing over this victory. They deserve the pay, whatever it is, but it must be remembered that even men's salaries or wages in that independent country are small. The American wage earner would cross-eyed at its postal remuneration.

The "engagement bracelet" is a plain flat band of pure gold which is fastened tightly on the wearer's arm by an invisible spring or a tiny lock and key, the latter being worn by "the other one." In the former case when once on, the bracelet cannot be removed except by a small needle especially manufactured to touch the spring in a minute to which is left for its insertion. Engagement bracelets may cost any price the fiancé chooses to give. Try one.

Formerly when a man wished to marry in France it cost him not more than $10 for the 12 separate certificates which he was compelled to secure before the ceremony could be performed. The Abbe Lemire concluded that this expense and the trouble incident to securing the certificates prevented many marriages, and succeeded in persuading parliament to change the law and simplify the marrying process. Since the new law went into effect, about a year ago, there have been nearly 9,000 more marriages than in any similar period since 1872.

In a big swim from the New York Battery to Coney Island the other day the women who participated seemed to have greater endurance than the men. Woman is certainly getting into the swim with both feet.

Henceforth any great event not only will live in song and story, but it will survive in the moving picture. The march and in the metallic tones of the 25-cent phonograph. With undying fame thus on tap there are strong temptations for the ambitious man to take a course in prize fighting.

SEEING THEM ALREADY

News Item.—A Large Black Snake Was Seen at Fairview Crossing Bryan's Path.

NEED NO SYMPATHY

AMERICAN FARMERS ARE NOT "OPPRESSED."

Bryan's Efforts to Create Feeling of Discontent Among the Agricultural Classes Not Likely to Be Very Successful.

Mr. Bryan's address to the Nebraska farmers at the Lincoln fair assumed that the farmers are an oppressed people, and pointed out some of the outrages committed upon the farmer by an insolent or inept national government.

What would the farmers think, he asked, if he were to tell them that for every dollar spent on the agricultural department, $25 was spent on the army and navy, and then he counseled them:

"Read the amount spent on ships and figures, if you can, what portion of that gets to the farmer."

This is a typical example of Mr. Bryan's thoughtless method of agitation. It would be difficult to say, of course, just what portion of the national expenditures upon the army and navy "gets to" the farmer or to the clerk or lawyer or physician or to any class or variety of American citizen; and it is monstrous, in making an address to an inland agricultural community remote from the ocean, to play to any hostility to the navy on the theory that the farmer does not care or is not willing to give just as strong and patriotic support to the country's navy as any other class of citizens. It is an insult to assume that farmers are so narrow as to object to proper expenditures for a navy if they cannot be convinced that the profit to the farming class from the appropriation is direct, immediate and to be measured in money.

The farmer has not been abused by the Roosevelt administration nor by the McKim or Cleveland or any other administration. If huge appropriations have not been made to farmers, they do not need them, and are certainly no more entitled to them than are the clerks, the school teachers, the business men and many other classes of workers. It is a thoroughly vicious notion to assume that the farmer or any other class of producers, is hostile to the government unless it may be shown that the government is always doing something for them. It is not the province of the government to be eternally supporting the people; it is rather the province of the people to support the government.

The farmers are not in immediate aid of larges. Their products have been extremely high for several years. When they need aid Mr. Bryan's notions are not calculated to help them. In 1898 he predicted doom for the farmer unless free silver triumphed, and asserted with the utmost confidence that the maintenance of the gold standard would drag down wheat, silver and wheat must flourish together. The silver fallacy died and wheat thrived, and so did the farmer. If the credit of the country had been impaired and the currency had been debased the farmer's plight would be sad to contemplate, and the farmer is likely to retire just as much profit from Mr. Bryan's present grandiose and impracticable schemes as he would have received from the adoption of the free silver folly.

Chief Cause for Worry. Col. Bryan laments the "discrimination" that has been going on against the farmer in electing senators from the soil to congress and the senate. What troubles him chiefly, however, is the discrimination which the whole American nation exercises against a certain farmer of Lincoln, Neb., in declining to elect him to the White House.

BRYAN ON CLEVELAND.

Wrote Eulogy of Ex-President Without Intending to Do So.

Mr. William J. Bryan describes in an article in Collier's some of the qualifications of the model president. He says he should have "moral courage." He should be able "to detect the sophistries" that are always employed by "special interests" seeking "unfair advantages." He should look on himself as "committed by his party to certain principles, and those principles are binding."

Mr. Bryan could have given life and emphasis to his observations by mentioning a president—a Democratic one at that—who possessed these presidential qualifications in ample measure, and who occupied the White House, have equaled Grover Cleveland in moral courage. He was an intense party man. He gloried in his party's triumphs and mourned in its defeats. He never faltered. Mr. Bryan never budged from the moral courage to stand up against his party when it went mad over free silver. He knew what he would be encountered, that most Democrats would vilify and curse him, and that his course would contribute to the defeat of his party. Yet he never faltered. Mr. Bryan never favored the public with any manifestation of a moral courage approaching that.

Cleveland was able "to detect the sophistries" of the silver mine owners and dishonest debtors who hankered after 50-cent dollars. He was not to be moved by the appeals of "special interests" for free-silver legislation. Certainly Mr. Bryan did not intend that his disquisition on the qualifications of a president should be read as a eulogy of Grover Cleveland, whom he greatly hated. Cleveland did much to prevent his election. But the intelligent reader will think of Cleveland rather than of Bryan when he reads the article.

BRYAN FORGETS SOMETHING.

Reputates Himself When He Attacks Republican Expenditures.

Our platform also calls attention to the fact that $6,000 now offers have been created, but it does not say that $6,000,000,000 a year as against an increase of 30,000,000,000 in the Cleveland and McKinley administrations.—William J. Bryan, at St. Paul.

Granted; what then? How did the increase come about? What started it? Whether it is tending? And why? The answers are plain on the face of things. Government inspection, government regulation, and government control have been expanded and extended as never before—that is the way and where and how.

Some of this expansion and extension has been for good; some of it for evil; but whether for good or for evil it has been the part of the Roosevelt policies which Mr. Bryan himself has applauded most heartily while it has been in progress—what he has ereen gone so far as to accuse the president of borrowing from the Bryanite Democracy.

It increases a civil list enormously. It piles up appropriations immensely, to control and regulate and inspect and supervise 50,000,000 of people, and Mr. Bryan must have realized this fact when he proclaimed the expediency of it all.

Why then complain of the consequences now, especially when in the same breath he advocates a further extension and expansion and expense by establishing the vast additional machinery of United States postal savings banks throughout the country? We can't have our cake and eat it! We can't transfer the individual burdens of private life to the United States government and then avoid giving the government the money necessary to carry the load.

The animal knocked him down, and when he had finished him but for the action of Mrs. Honey, who bravely came to the rescue and prodded the maddened animal with a pitchfork. Her repeated stabs, and the stung animal retreated. Honey was slightly injured and a good deal shaken by the adventure.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

This is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Fifty price cents per bottle.

SHE GOT HER MAN—HAPPY.

Indian Woman Not Likely to Be Left Far Behind in Life's Battle.

Writing of the famous Dean Kaye of Topeka, in Suburban Life, Paul A. Lovewell, says:

"Dean Kaye has had interesting experiences during his sojourns in the wilderness. Once an Indian woman came to his cabin."

"You marry?" she asked.

"Yes, you got the dean, I can marry folks. Have you got a man?"

"Again the woman grinned, and departed. About sundown she returned, dragging with her an apparently shamed and reluctant boy."

"Got him," she explained, "because the man knew no English, but the woman prompted him when he became necessary for him to give his assent to the dean's questions. When it was over the squaw paid the minister his fee and led her husband away in triumph."

EGOISM.

Mistress-Bridget, it always seems to me that the crankiest mistress gets the best cooking. After an interview with three or four persons who have paid out cash for treatment and who have told the collector they paid, it takes a mighty nerve on the part of the doctor to insist that he hasn't a dollar to his name."

A Doctor's Disadvantage.

"In one way," said a collector, "it is easier to get money from a doctor than anybody else who is slow pay. It is more difficult to get the part that he hasn't been able to make any collections himself since the first of the year. A doctor's reception room is open to all possible patients. A collector with a grain of ingenuity can find a way to worm out of the men on the waiting list information as to the terms of payment. After an interview with three or four persons who have paid out cash for treatment and who have told the collector they paid, it takes a mighty nerve on the part of the doctor to insist that he hasn't a dollar to his name."

Populous China.

The population of the Chinese empire is largely a matter of estimate. There has never been such census of the empire as that of the United States. Taken every decade in this country, the estimate of the Almanach de Gotha for 1900 may be taken as fairly reliable, according to that estimate, the population of the empire is, in round numbers, about 400,000,000. It is probably safe to say that the human beings on earth were stood up in line every fourth one would be a Chinaman.

AFRAID TO EAT.

Girl Starving on Ill-Selected Food.

"Several years ago I was actually starving," writes a Mr. girl, "yet dared not eat for fear of the consequences."

"I had suffered from indigestion from overwork, irregular meals and improper food, until at last my stomach became so weak I could eat scarcely any food without great distress."

"Many kinds of food were tried, all with the same discouraging effects. I steadily lost health and strength until I was but a wreck of my former self."

"Having heard of Grape-Nuts and its great merits, I purchased a package, but with little hope that it would help me—I was so discouraged."

"I found it not only appetizing but that it satisfied the craving for food without causing distress, and if I may use the expression, 'it filled the bill.'"

"For months Grape-Nuts was my principal article of diet. I felt from the very first that it had found the right way to health and happiness, and my anticipations were fully realized."

"With its continued use I regained my usual health and strength. To-day I am well and can eat anything I like, yet Grape-Nuts food forms a part of my bill of fare."

Story of an Island.

The recent plot by the government by Mrs. Russell Sage against it more than a little of land surrounded by the waters of the Hudson, for it adds to the government possessions at historic West Point an island with a unique history. "Constitution" island has long been one of the strange places of the lower Hudson. Formerly it was noted out to the stranger as a place of interest almost equal to that attaching to the home of Washington Irving and the castle of Edwin Forrest, the tragedian, further down the river. On this island lived and died Susan Warner, author of "The Wide, Wide World" and "Queechy," the first novel that has been called the most popular work of an American author, excepting "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Mrs. Warner wrote other books, several in collaboration with her sister, Anna Bartlett Warner, who is associated with Mrs. Sage in the gift to the government. But upon her first effort, "The Wide, Wide World," the fame of Susan Warner rests. A distinguished French critic called attention during its vogue to the fact that this novel was simply the history of the moral progress of a girl thirteen years old, yet its history was no greater than that of a nation. It was a matter of sentiment on the part of Anna Bartlett Warner that she owned this island remaining in the family until a chance offered her to sell it to West Point. When her sister died there in 1885 she was buried, as she had wished, in a grave near the "Cadet monument" in West Point cemetery. There is peculiar fitness, then, in the island becoming a part of the West Point reservation.

Japan and Our Merry Tars.

There is probably more horse sense than moral sentiment back of that "lil" which Japan put on the Yankams when the Yankams tars of the "lil" ship first start in to "do the town." What serve there the purpose of dance house and saloon in all other ports of the world will be closed, strong drink will be banished, and good times provided for the visiting bluebocks will not be likely to stir up ugly blood in either foreigner or native.

This action of the Japanese authorities will go a long way toward removing incitement to street riots, which usually occur when foreign sailors are in port. The mass of the Japs are known to be very sensitive in the matter of fraternization with people of the west, and our sailors go fresh from our Pacific coast cities and from Australian ports, where hostility to the Asiatics is openly avowed. Sailors are very human, and men in the navy, whether afloat or ashore, always act upon the notion that the dignity of the flag they serve is in it. We narrowly escaped war with Chile in 1890 as the sequel to a street row between our sailors and some Chileans in Valparaiso. Acute international feeling was behind that incident.

It is calculated that a comet now approaching the naked vision of the inhabitants of the earth will be identified as the celebrated comet of 1082, which bears the name of the eminent English astronomer Edmund Halley, who correctly predicted its return in 1758 and 1835. There are eighteen comets whose periodicity is established by the fact that their return has been actually observed, and Halley's is one of these. He identified the comet of 1082 with that of 1450, 1531 and 1607, and it has since been identified as a periodical visitor from the beginning of our era.

The Shaw case is not likely to die.

Demoralizing Prints.

Miss Maudie Summers of Cincinnati raised a vigorous protest against certain features which appear in some of the Sunday comic supplements of the city newspapers. Her strictures have received the support of many newspapers which do not offer in their pages anything that might be vulgar or demoralizing to set before the young, either in the shape of comic text or droll picture. Some newspapers issue a page or even a supplement for juniors which must be read by parents and teachers in instructing and entertaining children. These are good supplements, and what Miss Summers and those who agree with her object to are supplements for children.

Some comic supplements cater chiefly to adult tastes and go to extremes in depicting the license taken by the "bad boy" class. In fact, a boy who would act upon the suggestions for mischief which he sees in prints of this character would surely be invited into the wood shed. But fun may be had which is wholly free from harmful excitement and vicious tendencies, and where this is depicted the comic supplement may be wholesome for the entire family any day of the week.

We Must Set Fewer Fires.

On an average fire burned up nearly $200,000,000 a month of 1907, there were no great conflagrations like those of Chicago, Boston, Baltimore and San Francisco to swell the total. To this loss should be added the cost of fire fighting, which is about $200,000,000 a year, and the price of insurance protection, a big item, largely covered by the prevalence of fires.

Directly and indirectly the fire fund cost the United States about $200,000,000 last year, and the average per month was kept up for the first half of this year. Our fire fighting machinery in the exposed districts is probably the best that can be devised. We cannot stop the ravage once it is begun. But we might see to it that fewer fires are started. Fires are so often and so easily quenched when the right aids are at hand that many people get careless about handling sparks near inflammables. A match or a lamp may go wrong time and again without burning a house down, but that is no excuse for neglecting a single precaution. One slip may burn up a town and wipe out fortunes.

A Shaft by the Sawdust For Foster.

No danger of overlooking the tribute to America's ruler of immortal fame, Stephen Collins Foster, even if it be with him, as with the author of the "Hill," that countless localities ennobled by his verse shall be eager to honor him after his own is silent. "Seven Great Cities" voted for Foster dead. "Already 'My Old Kentucky Home' has earned Foster a monument in one state, and 'The Swannee River' is likely to be commemorated by a shaft to his gifted author in another state.

Foster was not born in Kentucky, neither in Florida, but in Pennsylvania. Doubt he does not belong to any one of these states nor to all of them more than to the whole Union, and it should not be difficult to raise a national fund to place a suitable shaft on the banks of the Sawdust. A shaft in the American slingers' hall of fame is the sure destiny of this prince among the world's popular melodists, and a few creative nations scattered here and there will have definite significance and be worth the cost.

The United States furnishes one-fifth of the lumber for the interior of the world. In an asylum he will be allowed to enjoy whatever privileges his conduct under such confinement seems to warrant.

Families having $3,000 to "put up" for one year's rent of six to twelve rooms can now indulge their New Yorkites to their hearts' content in Manhattan's newest apartment house. The fact that 172 families will find shelter under one roof is not calculated to check the demand at all, for in New York it's "the more the merrier."

Uncle Sam doesn't hesitate nowadays to be a connoisseur and has just declared that all whiskies are not good as he selected the eyes of a fine boned tradition.

From the way Wright's aeroplanes sleek to traveling in a circle it looks as though the getting there "has been" has no chance in aerial navigation.

Noise is sometimes discounted by the still hunt as a ringer in of surprises in a political campaign.

Politics and early Christmas shopping will surely be trying to pass on a single track this year.

America's First German Colony.

In the elaborate celebration of the founding of Philadelphia 225 years ago the establishment of the first German colony in America in a section which is now a noted suburb of that city at about the same time might well be treated as an extraneous incident and not of the importance. But to very many Germans throughout the country the year 1683 is memorable in the annals of their nationality on this continent, and Sept. 14 of that year is the exact date which some of them claim as "German day." Dates in October are also fixed upon as the beginning of the history of Germantown, on Penn's Tract, where stakes were planted by Germans for habitation to become the nucleus of the first German colony on American soil.

The early movements of Francis Daniel Pastorius, the leading spirit of the first German colony at the beginning, set as yet in obscurity, but it is recorded that on Sept. 14, 1683, he, with others, started his dwellings at Germantown. During October following formal permission was given for the settlement by Penn, and the settlement was established under the forms of law. At least three dates, Sept. 14, Oct. 4 and Oct. 24, are recognized by the German element here as the birthday of the colony which introduced a new and a powerful influence upon our early civilization, an influence which has grown with the growth of the nation. Other German colonies were attracted to Pennsylvania and, although they did not join Pastorius, initiated him and founded in various places separate and distinct colonies. These people were powerful factors in the early development of the country. At present there are nearly 2,000,000 natives of Germany here and 6,000,000 persons born here to parents who came from Germany. Approximately one-sixth of our total population is descended to the German people. When the colonial records shall have been cleared up it will be possible to fix upon one day for universal observance in commemoration of a notable event in the history of the republic.

Woman and the Flag.

Recently a young woman halted before the court parties whom she charged with desecration of the United States flag by putting it to use in advertising. The woman failed to become a martyr, for the court found her charge to be insufficient to guide jury and jury in determining what is a desecration of the flag. A bill which it is hoped will make it a simple matter to decide this question has been before congress for some time. The members of the three organizations of patriotic women represented at the recent Grand Army encampment are zealous in urging on the movement to protect the country's sacred emblem. Desecration of the flag is an improper use. One of the objects of two of these organizations—namely, the Woman's Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R.—is to supplement the work of the Grand Army proper and teach to the children and also to the adults of the communities in which they live the lessons of patriotism and love of country. Reverence for the flag is a wholesome and an inspiring sentiment, and it should be inculcated at the mother's knee. To be home, by teachers in the schoolroom and wherever men and women assemble as citizens regardless of their duties and privileges of citizenship. This is noble work for the American woman to initiate and to help along.

The lowest estimate of the number of G. A. R. veterans in line at Toledo this year is 8,000, a pitifully small number in the eyes of soldiers to represent a hundred thousand city councils. The problem is not difficult when the disturbers of rest are whistles, bells and other alarms which, instead of to summon a few scores of individuals to their tasks, become the sleep of thousands. Beyond that the question arises as to what constitutes an annoyance. Some courts have already been "up against" this very difficult problem and have gracefully refused, leaving the problem just where they found it.

In a land where the vast majority of people live by the work of their hands the celebrants of public holidays are necessarily working men and working women. Consciously or unconsciously out her prizes in the fatherland with out regard to the laborer's choice in the matter.

The two worst evils and the two growing most rapidly in this country are contempt of law and wholesome regulations and indifference to the value and sanctity of human life.

"A cheerful disposition is the best umbrella in the world," says a contemporary. Yes, only one is apt to have left it at home when it rains inopportunely.

Since the Kaiser is never caught without a chip on his shoulder, "he thinks he doth protest too much" about standing for the world's peace and all that.

Good roads come high, which may be the reason why they come so slow in some localities.

"Citizen" Bonaparte.

Most biographies of Napoleon Bonaparte which are read and remembered start with him as conqueror and emperor, and the picture remaining in the reader's mind is of a human phenomenon who was always masterful and great and at the same time stern and cruel. And he is supposed to have reached the pinnacle of power in a leap. Recently published memoirs of a contemporary, one Antoine Thibaud, who was a member of the revolutionary party of the Mountain which beheaded the French king and paved the way for a Napoleon, has opened up a neglected yet most interesting chapter in the career of the Corsican adventurer, showing him as "Citizen" Bonaparte, a man who could be public functionary and reformer, among his equals if not his masters.

The world is just now eager to get at the human side of the heroes of history—to know what else there was to them besides greatness and success—and this kind of thing is especially timely. It has always been cause for wonder among thinking men how a rank outsider, not only young in years, but a tyro in government affairs, dared to himself at the outset so many able supporters. Thibaud shows that at this period Napoleon was not alone modest, but actually underrated his own powers. Somehow he inspired confidence and was taken seriously by enthusiastic republicans as a patriot. Without doubt Napoleon's "chucky start" had much to do with his phenomenal rise to power. But he had many rivals in those early days, rivals who were his seniors and who were true Frenchmen of ability and reputation. He did not overtake them at the start, but won his way in the councils of state during those trying days, as he always did in the field of Mars—by sheer genius. To exhibit the workings of this genius in the days of the French republic is the aim of the pages handed down by Thibaud.

Looking Into Our Natural Resources.

The idea of conserving our natural resources seems to have taken deep root. Following close upon the approval of the governors of the states and the involvement of some of the great national organizations, the movement has spread all over the United States. New state conservation commissions have been reported to the national conservation commission at the rate of three and four a week, and many national organizations devoted to special lines of progress are coming forward with conservation committees of their own.

Various bureaus of the federal government are rapidly pushing work on the inventory of resources in order that a preliminary report may be placed before the national conservation commission as the next step in the work. Inquiries have gone out to special agents in the several fields of government service, to bureaus of statistics, to county and town authorities, to manufacturers and dealers, to transportation companies and to farmers. The inquiries relate to water, timber, and mineral lands, to crops and crop production, to irrigation, navigation, to water power, to land and water transportation, to timber and mineral resources and even to the condition of the country's live stock, game and fish. Upon the results of these inquiries Uncle Sam will base the first inquiry ever attempted of the nation's natural wealth.

It was inevitable that when bedlam New York set the example other cities would follow, and anti-noise ordinances have been taken up recently by a hundred towns and city councils. The problem is not difficult when the disturbers of rest are whistles, bells and other alarms which, instead of to summon a few scores of individuals to their tasks, become the sleep of thousands. Beyond that the question arises as to what constitutes an annoyance. Some courts have already been "up against" this very difficult problem and have gracefully refused, leaving the problem just where they found it.

The true political spellbinder can stand almost anything from his audience, but is more or less jarred when the morning papers merely mention that he "also spoke."

We never hear of the votes of dead men figuring on the side of the dead candidate. They are always charged up against the fellow who wins.

The man who recently started a yellow fever alarm "as a joke" ought to dream of fire and crush himself to death in his own panic.

Those who can only get wisdom with a rod should not take extra pains to stay young.

World Wide Penny Postage. ORDER NO. 1097.

The Postal Administration of Great Britain having occurred therein. It is hereby ordered, That, commencing on the 1st day of October, 1908, the postage rate applicable to letters mailed in United States, addressed for delivery at any place in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, shall be two (2) cents an ounce or fraction of an ounce.

Letters unpaid or short paid shall be dispatched to destination, but double the deficient postage, calculated at said rate, shall be collectible of the addressee upon the delivery of the unpaid or short paid letter.

G. V. L. MEYER, Postmaster General.

Behind this simple statement is a vast amount of legislation, the result of the significant accomplishment, set forth by the Postmaster General. It is eloquently prophetic of a world-wide postal system, for which the credit will be due to a Republican administration.

Sixth Universal Postal Congress.

The Sixth Universal Postal Congress convened in the city of Rome, Italy, April 7 and continued until May 20, 1908. Sixty-five countries, including the United States, were represented. The assembly was for the purpose of discussing the postal systems of all nations and, if possible, agreeing upon measures for the improvement in all practical ways, of the regulations governing international intercourse through the mails. The first congress of this kind met in Bern, Switzerland, in 1874.

The United States Postoffice Department was represented in this World Postal Congress by two delegates—the Superintendent of Division of Foreign Mails, as in previous postal congresses, and the Hon. Edward Ross-water of the Omaha Bee, who had also served in the preceding postal congresses.

Move for Universal Penny Postage.

At the Universal Postal Congress representatives of the United States proposed a universal two-cent postage to all nations. The Hon. J. Bennett Henthorn, M. P., who is the father of the two-cent idea in England, speaking of America's action at the Rome convention, in standing out for a universal two-cent postal rate, said: "The British members stood coldly by. They did not recognize that this was a great historic occasion, a worthy parallel of that solemn scene on July 4, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was adopted; for if the Americans are willing to adopt a penny postage to all parts of the world, it follows that they are willing to establish it to the British Empire and form with us a 'Restrictive Postal Union.'"

The Hon. Whitelaw Reid, America's Republican minister to the Court of St. James, presided over the work of the American delegation and solicited the friendly co-operation of the British government at a Fourth of July banquet speech in London in 1906. Mr. Reid said:

"The American people hoped for closer and cheaper communications with all other nations as the best means of promoting better acquaintance and perpetuating friendship. They were gratified to find that the British people of penny postage (Mr. Henthorn) at this moment focusing his efforts on what ought to be the easy task of penetrating the authorities on both sides of the Atlantic, that it was as cheap to carry a letter from London to New York as from London to Calcutta or from New York to Manila—and quite as useful."

American Representatives Lead the Way. So it has come to pass that the United States, under its Republican administration, has finally succeeded in entering into a convention with Great Britain whereby after the 1st of October this year, a two-cent postage rate will obtain between this country and England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. We already have such an arrangement with Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and our colonial possessions. This great accomplishment is universally recognized as the proper beginning which is to result in a universal two-cent postage rate around the world.

Important Things Accomplished. Two other important things that the Republican administration accomplished at the Rome Universal Postal Congress through its representatives, must not be lost sight of. One was the adoption of a universal return coupon stamp, in exchange for which, upon its presentation at a postoffice in another country, the person presenting it shall receive a postage stamp of the value of 5 cents, good in any country of the world, thus enabling people here to prepay postage at regular rates upon reply letters.

The other significant concession was that in all World Postal Congresses to be held in the future, the United States is to be granted an additional vote, in view of its island possessions; so that at all future congresses our country will be entitled to two votes, as against one vote each cast by every other nation in the world.

Practical Benefits to the People.

No doubt the Democrats may inquire as to what all this has to do with the welfare of American citizens. For their enlightenment and information it may be stated that, according to the United States census of 1900, the foreign born population in the United States at that time was 10,400,000. The population, born of foreign parents (one or both parents having been born in foreign countries) was 20,108,900, or a total foreign population of 30,508,900. The report of the Immigration Commissioner by years since then shows that 6,068,650 have since come to America, thus making out the total foreign population at the present time to 44,227,550. This does not take any note of increase since 1900 in American-born children, one or both of whose parents are of foreign blood. Estimating that only one-half of this number—21,013,840—write one letter to foreign countries every two weeks, or 20 weeks each year, we have 120,088,040 letters written annually, which, at the present rate of 5 cents postage each, amounts to an expenditure of $6,004,400 annually. Under the present postal law foreign correspondents may send letters to the United States "collect," but when they reach their destination the recipient must pay double postage. Figuring the double postage on the same basis, the foreign population of the United States pays during each year, for postage under the present system, $18,407,400.

Under the new and cheaper postal charges advocated by the Republican party, should the 2-cent rate become universal, the foreign population in the United States, to their direct correspondence, would only pay $3,240,570 annually for direct postage and $9,748,728, for letters sent to them from foreign countries "collect." In other words, this Republican measure will save the highly esteemed adopted citizens of our country, and those born here of foreign parents $12,098,254 annually, in the necessary correspondence with their loved ones abroad. But perhaps the Democrats do not think this is worth while.

Some Glaring Inconveniences.

At present an American can send a letter 5,000 miles by land—say from Mexico to Alaska—for 2 cents, but must pay 5 cents for a letter of half the weight sent 3,100 miles to England. An Englishman pays 5 cents on a letter crossing the Atlantic, 3,100 miles, and 2 cents on one crossing the Indian and South Pacific oceans, 10,000 miles, to New Zealand. All this is to be remedied on or about the first of October, by an enlightened Republican administration.

World is Ready for Reduction.

It will probably be but a short time after the conclusion between this country and England goes into effect, until the dream of a universal 2-cent letter postage, championed by the Republican party, will be realized. Australia, New Zealand and Egypt have already called for the 2-cent rate. The Emperor of Germany has said that if England establishes a 2-cent postage rate with the United States, he will have the many do the same. France, Italy, South Africa, Japan, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Sweden would need little more than an invitation to follow suit.

A 2-cent postal rate would bind all the South American republics and the United States still more closely together into a peaceful, reciprocal, progressive, civilized, which would mean a more rapid development of both American continents and a new application of the Monroe doctrine.

With these countries agreed, on the object desired, the continent of Europe alone would then be widely outside this comprehensive postal union, and then the continental powers would not long stand aloof from it.

It has remained for the United States to take the initiative in a move to reap the great glory of being the flower of a world-wide 2-cent postage. Millions of our citizens will feel almost as grateful for this beneficent act as millions of slaves did, when the Republican party broke the shackles that bound them to perpetual physical servitude.

"Where were we in the middle of the house of mystery which fronted, forbidding and gloomy as ever, on Montgomery street, and I was once again a prisoner in a box for the night?" he could snatch.

"At the earliest light of the morning was once more astrid, but half-remembered the place, and I was again made my dispositions for the day. I ordered Porter, Flatbush, Brown, Wilson, Lockhart and Abrams to wait for me at the Palace Hotel, and as they were still weak from his wound, I went to Phillips of the home guard, with a couple of his men, and gave them a couple of dollars to give instructions to look for Barkwright, in case he did not return. Barkwright I took with me to draw a hack drive to the Palace Hotel.

"There was a rattle of wagons and a bustle of departing guests as we drove to the courtyard of the famous house."

"I stepped out of the hack and looked about me anxiously. Was I to meet the man I had been told would come from some emissary of my hidden employer? No answering eye met mine as I searched the place with eager eyes. I saw no one, and some of the men all the burrying crowd had a thought of."

TWO WOMEN STOOD BEFORE

I saw that I had been early, and it was even now but 20 minutes to the hour.

The minute hand had not swept past the figure VIII when the door opened and there was a hurried step and two women came before me, leading a child between them. Both women were closely related, the child was muffled and swaddled till its features could not be seen.

One of the women was young, the other older—perhaps middle-aged. Both were tall and well-made. I looked at them for a moment before I recognized the younger for one of the Unknown, the player whose task had carried Henry Wilton to his death, who held my life in her hands. For a moment I thought of the battle with the power and hatred of Doddridge Knapp. It was the younger that I turned as the mortally wounded lay in the arms of the nurse. It was the older who spoke.

"Here is your charge, Mr. Wilton," she said in a low, agitated voice. A shadow of a smile came into the eyes of the peculiar perfume that had greeted me from the brief letters of the Unknown.

"I am ready for orders," I said with a bow.

"Your orders are in this envelope," said the Unknown, hurriedly turning a paper to me. "Drive the child to the hotel and read them on the way. You have no time to lose."

The younger woman placed the child in the hack.

"I am going, Valwright," said I, telling the younger unnecessarily. "I turned the jutting corner of the building and came under shelter by the ticket office. "But keep a close watch."

The other four retainers were in the passageway, and I called to the ticket seller for the tickets to Livermore. By the price I decided that Livermore must be somewhere within 50 miles, and marshaling my troop about the boy, marched into the waiting room, past the doorkeeper, through the sheds and on to the ferry boat.

I saw no sign of the enemy, and breathed freer as the last belated passenger leaped aboard, the folding ramp collapsed behind him and the steamer, with its prolonged hiss of the whistle, slid out into the yellow-green water of the bay.

"Keep together, boys," I cautioned my friends. "Has any one seen signs of the other gang?"

There was a general murmur in the negative.

"Well, Abrams, will you slip around and see if any of them got aboard? There's no such thing as being comfortable until we are sure."

With a shrug, the fellow in preparation and departure the orders I had given and received, and the work that filled every moment, I had been conscious of, he disappeared and was forgotten. I had surely neglected something. Yet for my life I could not see that we lacked anything. We had seven reinforcers, the boy was armed with a .45, and we were well armed and every man had his ticket to Livermore. But at last the cause of my troubles came to my mind.

"What's the matter with you, Doddridge Knapp? That little engagement in the stock market is casting its shadow before?"

"I have suddenly realized that the demands of my warring employers would clash here as well as in the conflict over the boy."

And all the wonderful feeling that filled my heart as I looked on the child and called up the memory of my murdered friend, I could not feel a pang of regret at the prospect that the child, the one I would have placed in hazard through any unfaithfulness of mine.

My uncomfutable reflections I could not check. I could not see the child and the forward movement of the passenger ship.

engers as the steamboat passed into the slip at Long Wharf.

"What ails you?" I cautioned my men. "Keep back of the crowd. Walnwright will take the boy, and the rest of you see that nobody gets near him."

"All right," said Walnwright, lifting the child in his arms. "It will take a while to get to the hospital."

"Where's the babe?" I asked, noting that only six of my men were at Landing.

"You sent him forward," said Lockhart.

"Not for all day."

"Well, he hasn't been seen since you told him to find out who's aboard."

"I tried to call him," I said, and growled. "But the next man that takes French leave had better look somewhere else for a job, for by the horn spoon, he's no part of my mine."

We marched off the boat in the rear of the crowd, I in no pleasant humor, and the others in a more or less of displeasure. And with some difficulty we found seats together in a forward compartment.

The train was the east-bound overland, and it seemed hours before the baggage was taken aboard and the train started. I sat in front of the engine, as my watch assured me that only ten minutes had passed when the engine gave the first gentle pull at the wheels.

"What ails you?" I asked, noting the girl's patience.

Use of Adjectives.

Certain adjectives are reserved for men and others for women. A man is never called "beautiful." Along with "pretty" and "lovely" that adjective has become the property of women and children alone. "Handsome" and the weak "good-looking" are the only two adjectives of the kind common to either sex. Even "belie" has no real masculine correlative in English.

He has been quite unable to obtain any clue but the family were called up by telephone the other evening and told to pay £5,000. The price of the urn would cost them £5,000 - London Globe.

House Fly a Mosquito Enemy.

Although the mosquito specializes on man, the house fly is equally and universally recognized as an enemy to be fought outright, scientists have come to regard the common house fly as a pest. The mosquito will spread only one or two diseases, but the house fly's only specialty is to spread germs. It carries in its legs and its mouth a hundred other germs which it drops its load of refuse in the gutter or milk.

We seldom worry about our flies going to spend their winter. But a lot of people would do it gladly, I doubt.

TWO WOMEN STOP BEFORE ME, LEADING A CHILD.

I saw that I had been early, and that it was even now but 20 minutes to the hour.

The figure still had not swept past the minute VIII when the door opened, there was a hurried step and two women stood before me leading a child between them. Both women were clad in black, and the child was muffled and swathed till its features could not be seen.

One of the women was young, the other an older—perhaps middle-aged. Both were tall and slender. I looked eagerly upon them, for one of them must be the Unknown, the hidden emperor whose death, who held my life in her hands and who fought the desperate battle with the power and hatred of Doddage's snapp.

The younger child turned the more likely to have the spirit of contest, but it was the older who spoke.

"Here is your charge, Mr. Wilton," said the older woman in a low voice. As she spoke I felt the faint suggestion of the peculiar perfume that had greeted me from the brief letters of the Unknown.

"I am ready for orders," I said with a bow.

"Your orders are in this envelope," said the Unknown, hurriedly thrusting a letter into my hand. "Be off with the boat and read them on the way. You have no time to lose."

The younger woman placed the child in my arms.

"Clifford," said I, eyeing the younger unfavorably. Will strangeness of the situation, and would speak no word.

Why was he put thus in my charge? What was I to do with this child? I reproached myself that I had not stopped the Unknown to ask more questions, to get more light on the duties that were expected of me. But it was too late. I was suddenly pulled up, and I saw that we were before the long, low, ugly wooden building that all square across the street from the center of San Francisco, through which the tide of travel must pass to and from the Golden City.

"Come out on both sides, Walnwright," I cautioned. "You carry the boy and I'll shoot if there's any trouble. See that you keep him safe."

There was nearly 10 minutes before the boat left, but the boys for tickets, the rush to check baggage, the shouts of hackmen and expressmen, the racket and confusion of the coming and going of the boats that centered in the ferry made us inconspicuous among the throng as we stepped out of the back.

"Here's a sight," Brown. "I saw catch a sight of two my retainers—'get' close about. Have you seen an thing—any signs of the enemy?"

"I haven't," said Fitzgub, "but I saw a sight of the enemy's boat, a gun over by the Fair Wind station there. Said he cut up Clay street before the rest of us caught sight here, maybe Abrams was off his head."

"Quite likely," I admitted as

An Englishman named Sheldoff while traveling in Sumatra heard from the natives of the existence of a snake. He found that there actually were such reptiles and that they had an anatomical peculiarity which enabled them to descend safely from high trees to the ground or water.
The African snake is less delicate than the American as an article of food, but it yields more generously in oil and is more easily crushed.

P. J. Daley, of 1247 W. Congress Street, Chicago, tells of a way to get strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters, that I feel it my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. Hunters say it is very rare for mother foxes to leave all their young in one place. It is their cunning habit to scatter the family, one and two in widely separated retreats. It is said, too, that foxes will not rob roosts close to their dens, but will go miles away for food and carefully hide their trails.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

Machinery of Congress Already Started for Postal Savings Bank Law.

A Safe and Sure Plan for the Convenience of the People and the Encouragement of Thrift.

"We favor the establishment of a postal savings bank system for the convenience of the people and the encouragement of thrift."

This is the declaration of the Republican national platform, and postal savings banks will without doubt be authorized by law and established as a part of our financial system by the action of Congress at its coming session, which will be convened in December. Indeed, much has already been accomplished towards the enactment of this law. At the last session of Congress a bill was carefully prepared which met with the approval of the Postmaster General, and was reported upon favorably by the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. This bill is now on the Senate calendar and can be acted upon as soon as Congress is convened.

The scope of the proposed law is set forth in the committee report, which is in part as follows:

Committee Report.
The purpose of this bill is to place at the disposal of people of small means the machinery of the Postoffice Department to aid and encourage them to save their earnings. The subject of postal savings banks or depositaries is not new in this country and it may be truly said to be quite familiar to the people of Europe and the British colonies. The property of establishing postal savings banks became the subject of discussion in England as early as 1807. Every objection to such use of the postoffice facilities urged in this country was vigorously pressed in the long-continued discussion of the subject in England.

For over fifty years private savings institutions waged bitter opposition to the growing sentiment in favor of postal savings banks, but notwithstanding such opposition in 1901 an act of Parliament was passed entitled "An act to grant additional facilities for depositing small savings with the security of the government for the due repayment thereof." That the alarm of private institutions was ill founded is amply proven by the recorded fact that the private savings banks increased their capital by more than ten millions of dollars in the first three years following the establishment of postal savings institutions.

That the postal savings institutions proved successful is satisfactorily attested by the fact that no backward step has ever been taken in England on this subject and by the further fact that in rapid succession the lead of England was taken by other countries. The primary purpose of these institutions is to encourage thrift, and a saving disposition among the people of small means by placing at their disposal in every part of the country ready facilities for the depositing of small sums, with absolute assurance of repayment on demand with a low rate of interest on a limited aggregate amount.

Postal Savings Banks Needed.
In certain parts of our country savings institutions are sufficiently numerous to accommodate the people, but such areas are quite limited, being confined to New England and New York. It is alleged that by reason of the number and location of savings banks there is one savings account to every two of the population of New England, whereas in all the country outside New England and New York the average is only one savings account to every 157 of the population. Taking such figures to be approximately correct and recognizing the fact that the people of all sections of the country are pretty much the same in habits, inclinations, and purposes, it must be obvious to the most casual observer that the people of the South, the Middle West, and the West do not save their earnings as do those of New England from the mere want of secure places in which deposits may be made.

To those who feel inclined to believe that the establishment of postal savings depositories will involve an element of paternalism it seems quite sufficient to suggest that the machinery of the Postoffice Department is now in existence and will continue to exist without diminution of expense whether such depositories are created or not and that the establishment of these depositories for the benefit of the people will not involve one farthing of loss to the Post-Office Department, but will probably, on the contrary, prove more than self-sustaining. Very slight computation will clearly demonstrate that the postal savings depositories can not burden the Post-Office Department with any additional deficiency.

If I am elected President, I shall urge upon Congress, with every hope of success, that a law be passed requiring a filing in a Federal Office of a statement of the contributions received by committees and candidates in elections for members of Congress and in such other elections as are constitutionally within the control of Congress. From Hon. Wm. H. Taft's speech accepting Presidential nomination.

Try Us Both.

Give our offers as fair a test as you do the other fellow's. That's all we ask. The fact that in a village of 2000 people we do the business of a city store proves, to some extent, that our goods and prices are not of the ordinary. A man might walk a block to save 5c but the saving must be more to get him to go 5 or 10 miles—and many of our customers come much farther. When they keep coming, they must feel that it pays them. We believe that it would pay you.

A talk to the People to Whom Cost makes no difference.
We can't interest the others. They like a thing in proportion to the price they paid. We can interest any careful buyer, if she will let us try.
First. As to style. This is merely a question of buying up-to-date goods and employing competent, experienced trimmers. We do both.
Second. As to what you will have to pay to get what you want. We guarantee that it won't cost you so much here. We are a city store in a country town.
