A BODY BLOW.
Novelist's Experience With a Man Who Has Hit Her.
When He Dismissed.

A novelist who lives near Indianapolis once engaged an Indiana man who claimed to be a gentleman. That this claim was without basis of fact was soon evident to the employer, for the man proved very high priced — so much so, in fact, that the novelist was obliged to discharge him.

The man took his dismissal with such icy indifference that the novelist was somewhat startled. "You never before played that otherwise," said he to the man.

"Oh, I ain't aworry!" was the prompt answer.

"Indeed! Perhaps you won't do so well on you think May I venture to inquire just how you got on?"

"Well," answered the gentleman, "if the worst comes to the worst I may take up written books. Since I've been discharged, however, in the book yard an awfully bright man as I used to be — 'Lippincott's Magazine."

A Needed Shower.
"I ain't never had no shower," complained Mrs. Randall to her friend in the park as they lay on the sudden downpour.

"Yes, we need it badly," said the friend. "I thought we did! It's a good one! Why, our golden good, hygienic shower in the back yard is abiding for the want of rain! The sprinker can't take the place of rain, you know."

"Indeed! You tell this to just before! See how it rains! And to think that just when everything has to dry up and every one is praying for rain water! These are these people and sends us beautiful — Good heavens!"

"What's the matter with you? You're left the baby out in the yard!" —Circle.

Robbing Them Off.
"What's Zeke Crossley doing running down to the barn to such an excited state?" queried Elmer Handolph.

"Why, Zeke heard that one of the boys in town is going to be caught with a sack full of Zeke's own money," whispered the bird man.

"To tell! And I suppose Zeke is running down to lock the machine up so they can't get it!"

"Oh, no! Zeke's running down to present it to put the money in the deer so he won't break down and break up the eloquent!" —Chicago News.

Only One.
Margaret, who lives in the city, went to the country to visit some cousins. At breakfast the first morning there she was a bit of a body. Her cousin Margaret to show her cousins that she was familiar with country life carelessly remarked: "Ah, I see you keep a lot of 'Lippincott's Magazine'."

Summer Travel.
Chicago, Good! — All the way from Mrs. Good! You did it very hot traveling. I'm glad to hear that the Duster Trip — Not at all, madam. I was familiar with country life carelessly remarked: "Ah, I see you keep a lot of 'Lippincott's Magazine'."

A Pleasure to Please.
"What induces you to spend all your time in your country?" asked a friend.

"I'm economizing," answered Mr. Channing. "It's the only way I can stop the wear and tear of joy rides." —Washington Star.

Precocious Americans.
"What do you think of that boy to carry a hair like that?"

"I think it's a breaking him of the habit." Why, last year he carried a revolver!" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Quick Reply.
Jack-Reginald was sorely in need of a companion for his wife's boy to carry a hair like that?"

"I think it's a breaking him of the habit." Why, last year he carried a revolver!" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Man For the Millions.
Starting Reversal of Form.
Non-I never saw him sit as pomp as the man in the Plump! Huh! she would have a single in her car. It's a mole one — Chicago News-Work.

Far as He Got.
Eileen-Why he wanted three times what he was worth to get it."

Myrtle-Perhaps he wasn't paying me. He has been trying to say something — Modern Society.
