

Free Speech

How Far Can It Safely Go

By JAMES F. MURKHEAD

THE natural instinct of every believer in liberty must be to speak with fire: "Let the truth be spoken though the world be thereby shattered," is a doctrine which has been held by the very best, but the presumption must be in favor of absolute free speech, just as the exemption not expressly reserved to the federal authorities in the American constitution belongs to the sphere of the states. The moment's reflection, however, shows that this attitude is not always practicable in a world of imperfection. There are some things we should all admit that must not be said in public. That entirely open, but the limited and restricted freedom of action than any member of the human frame. The pure idealist must yield the floor to the practical statesman.

It seems obvious that we can raise no absolute standard other than what legitimate free speech may include or of the right of the authorities to suppress it. The Anglo-Saxon distrust of general principles (as noted by Lord Morley) seems to apply here with peculiar aptness, and here, if anywhere, we are justified in bringing philosophical truths to the aid of practical politics.

Speech must be had in every case to all the conditions: to the state of the political or social condition at the moment; to the nature of the audience as to age, intellect or discipline; to the known record of the speaker; to the worth of the immediate good obtained by expression as compared with the ultimate loss through widespread publicity, and to the probable extent and violence of the apprehended evil and the greater or less difficulty to be anticipated in checking it when it is started.

One is obliged to allow the government to make any general definition of incendiary speech, no freedom of speech must be liberally construed in the interests of a higher social development.

If for no other reason than the dread of ridicule the authorities should take care not to place themselves in the position of the London Times, which severely reproved Mr. Darwin for "revealing his particular zoological conclusions to the general public when the sky of France was red with the incendiary fumes of the commune."

Origin of Species by Mutation

By HAROLD PICKETT

All the other animal types also seem to have been well characterized when they first made their appearance.

The theory of the origin of species by mutation, when applied either to the origin of the animal kingdom or to the origin of the human race, during which existing races were brought gradually to their present condition.

Hat Pins are Really Menacing

By ALTON E. GASSO

It may seem incredible that in a civilized community women will wear such dangerous weapons in their hats.

If they must wear them, why not have the sharp projecting ends protected by some kind of shield?

Would it not be a good thing for the city fathers to take notice of this pestiferous and dangerous weapon by any desire to be frivolous, but as a victim of the hat pin he would be glad to save some other person from a like injury.

Infection in Public Water Troughs

By S. GOLDSTEIN

As a veterinary surgeon I heartily agree with those who believe the public watering troughs should not be abolished. However, the fact must not be overlooked that the Veterinary association was the first to suggest the abolition of the public water trough is a source of infection and that a great many horses contract that most dreaded and fatal disease, glanders, by drinking from them.

However, this danger of infection could be reduced to a minimum if the city authorities would compel the owners of the troughs to have the troughs cleaned at all times. By doing away with the troughs we deprive many a poor working horse of his only chance to get water for a whole day, as a large proportion of the transfers feed their horses away from home and very few carry pails.

STATE HAPPENINGS

London—Hundreds of Old Fellows and Rebekahs from 25 cities and 15 counties gathered here to attend the special sessions of the grand lodge of the Order of the Rebekah, the grand master, and John H. Wilson, grand secretary, of the Grand Lodge of the Order of the Rebekah, past grand master, chief of ceremonies, and other officers of the order.

Chicago—The annual convention of the Illinois State Dairymen's association, Dr. J. N. Wright, state veterinarian, was the first of a series of meetings to be held here in the city of Chicago. The association is a national organization, and its purpose is to educate the public as to the value of dairy products and to protect the dairy industry from the effects of tuberculosis. The association will also hold a series of lectures on the subject of tuberculosis in Illinois here. He said that the disease is now being introduced into a dumping ground for diseased cattle purchased in other states. He urged a law to prevent this.

Chicago—The Illinois state police were reorganized by the governor. The new organization is headed by Chief of Police Carlisle. He has named several officers to the various divisions of the force. The new organization is expected to be in operation by the first of the month.

Chicago—Disappointment over the result of the election of the city board of directors was expressed by the friends of the late Mayor Daley. They felt that the board was not as good as they had hoped for. They also expressed their disappointment over the result of the election of the city board of directors.

Chicago—The city board of directors has decided to purchase a new building for the city hall. The building is to be located on the corner of Madison and Dearborn streets. The board also decided to purchase a new building for the city hall.

Orene M'Dooble and His Stone Uncle

By Ellis Parker Butler

Illustrated by Peter Newell

One of the most cruel cases of heartlessness ever known is that of Orene M'Dooble and his stone uncle. Orene is a young man who has just come to light, and several of our countrymen have been killed and joined to write a Black Hills letter to Orene M'Dooble, advising him to move into the next county or take the consequences. We think he will.

AND A NEW SCHOOL EVERY SCHOOL DAY.

The above opinion about representative government is the one which the statement was made not long ago by the Hon. J. G. Thompson, who made the remarkable discovery that such was the case. There is not a district in the country where the statement in any of the three provinces of the Dominion of Canada is not true, but has its school, and the railways are not only to be found in the mines apart, around which grow the towns, some of which are the result of the government's own efforts. Schools are largely maintained by public funds and the expense of running them is not a nominal sum.

The return of the grain produced for Central Canada for 1909 is now in hand. The figures show the value of the crops to the farmers of that country is about 110 million last year, American farmers who have been from the United States, will participate largely in these splendid returns, and they comprise those who have gone from nearly every State in the Union.

One of the many proofs that might be put forward showing the immense wealth that comes to the farmers of Central Canada is seen in the sum that has been advanced for the past two or three months by the farmers of that country. It is a sum of $100 million, or more, and is being worked over for two or three months. It is said that fifty thousand people in the Dominion of Canada are now busy with the holiday season visiting their old homes, and the figures show that the British, some of the Continent, others to their friends in Eastern Canada, and the many thousands who visit their relatives in the States. The amount of money that has been advanced upward of two million dollars. Some of the money is being used to pay for the holidays, and some is being used to pay for the holidays.

A PROPOSAL

How-ever! You always need to be happy in your own mind. If you have a proposal to make to a lady, you should be prepared to make it in a simple and direct manner.

He Ravaged Out of the Yard in Less Than a Second, and a Minute Later Saw Him Disappear Over the Hill.

It was a very interesting case. A man named John Smith was seen to enter the yard of a house in the city of Chicago. He was seen to enter the yard, and he was seen to enter the yard. He was seen to enter the yard, and he was seen to enter the yard.

Why People Suffer

Why people suffer is a question that has troubled many minds. The answer lies in the nature of the human mind and the way it is affected by the world around us.
