VEGETABLE WASHER IS BEST

Quite a Job to Do This Work by Hand—Made Easy and Rapidly

Vegetables bring a much better price if they are clean when offered for sale. It is quite a job to do this work by hand but if a machine like the one shown in the drawing is constructed it can be done very easily and rapidly, writes J. J. Tolare, in Farm and Home.

A cylinder made of two round board ends connected by heavy wire is mounted in a water tight box. This cylinder is run by a small hand crank. The vegetables are put inside the box and the tank with water. The handle is turned and the dirt is very quickly washed off. The cylinder is made so as to be easily removed from the tank for cleaning. Two or three of these may be so arranged that they can be housed easily for putting the vegetables in and taking them out.

PITS WORKBENCH ON WHEELS

Can Be Drawn by Horse or Hitched to Another Vehicle—Gasoline Engine is Attached

The accompanying sketch shows how a handy workbench on wheels, which can be drawn by a horse or hitched on behind another vehicle and taken out on a job of work, says a writer in Popular Mechanics. A small gasoline engine hung on supports behind the bench makes a tractor saw.

A place is provided for all tools necessary to be used with any job.

CARE OF FARM WORK HORSES

Animals Should Be Pampered and Fed Generously to Sustain Vigor and Good Spirit

Horses employed for farm work should be pampered and should be fed generously so as to sustain vigor and good spirits. A man ill-fed and out of temper in your condition and feeble spirit requires much real hard work and it is a waste of time to hire an expensive hand to drive such a team.

The harness and particularly the collar, should be accurately adjusted to the horse. If the collar is either too tight or too loose it will not only seriously afflict his breathing, but will also cause him to be fed early in the morning and they should have a liberal feeding. The comfort and rest of the team will be vastly increased if the harness is entirely removed soon while they are feeding. Allow them plenty of time for a good meal and partial digestion before turning out to work for the afternoon. If in your policy to put them to work right after eating a heavy meal or upon a full stomach.

The extra quality of the goods that Peck, the tailor, makes up into his extra fine suits and overcoats, is the reason why he is such a popular tailor.

But it is not finish and in the appearance his clothes give a man there is none that can compete with him. Doubtless the wear and double the value of ready-made goods.
