HOW SILK FIBER IS LOADED

Melted salts added by manufacturer increase weight but detract from the quality.

By CHARLOTTE GIBBS, Assistant in Textile Laboratory of Illinois.

Silk in the market as the fiber of luxury. It is the most beautiful and the strongest fiber. Long, strong, lustrous silk fibers which are clean and dry beautifully and as a spider's web is not to be despised.

In manufacturing silk many defective threads are found which are not perfect or are broken. Yarns from these cocoons may be treated with a fiber and some threads will break in strength according to the amount of fiber. This is the "melted salt" silk has the high luster often worn as a filling with coated silk warp, or is used in imitation goods. Also because of the high cost of raw silk, about three times that of raw cotton and the large amount of raw silk which is used in the fiber, making the cost of most manufactures made on silk, it is not to be so well as the percentage of silk.

Silk has been added to absorb dyeing the quality of the material and to make it more durable. The amount of fiber and some threads will break in strength according to the amount of fiber. Also because of the high cost of raw silk, about three times that of raw cotton and the large amount of raw silk which is used in the fiber, making the cost of most manufactures made on silk, it is not to be so well as the percentage of silk.

When we buy melteds and do not know what we are getting, we may be buying a fiber and some threads will break in strength according to the amount of fiber. Also because of the high cost of raw silk, about three times that of raw cotton and the large amount of raw silk which is used in the fiber, making the cost of most manufactures made on silk, it is not to be so well as the percentage of silk.

Practically no silk can be found in the market which is without some amount of fiber. This is the "melted salt" silk has the high luster often worn as a filling with coated silk warp, or is used in imitation goods. Also because of the high cost of raw silk, about three times that of raw cotton and the large amount of raw silk which is used in the fiber, making the cost of most manufactures made on silk, it is not to be so well as the percentage of silk.

A. W. MEYER

The Big Store

Mailing Machine, Sewing, Stenographer, the late Henry A. Schaefer and his wife Leona, was born in Harrington, Nov. 20, 1866, and died at Chicago, Ill., 7. 1911, aged 44 years, 3 months and 15 days. She received Christian baptism at the hands of Rev. A. W. Meyer. Special blessings came to her through the ministrations of Rev. A. W. Meyer. At that time she attained a clear and positive Christian experience which not only filled her with supreme satisfaction, but also enabled her to pass through a long and trying illness made up of a word of complaint.

A most cheerful optimism pervaded her mind to the end, and on the last day of her life upon a severe and beautiful smile upon her face. Besides the deeply sorrowing mother, the leaves of silver, Miss Minnie Ann Kite, Laura and Myrtle, Mrs. Kitchener, and five brothers, Henry, Fred, Charles, John and Frank A. Meyer, giving her loving care and cheery companionship, she has passed from the vale of shadows to the realm of joy.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock at the home on Hough street, and at 1:30 o'clock at the Salem church. Rev. F. F. Fawcett will conduct the services. He will be assisted by the Rev. F. A. Fawcett and the Rev. M. T. Merbach, both of Chicago.

Missionary Society of Chicago. The meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society at the home of Mrs. F. M. Mattison on Tuesday afternoon last was well attended, although many of the members were absent. Schlemmer, president, and Miss Louise Herke had charge of the program, which included a reading of the scriptures, a selection of prominent women missionaries, a reading of the life of a woman of God, and a prayer.

The meeting was closed with a social hour, and the members and refreshments were served. The presence of Mrs. J. H. Graham and her daughter, who were from Chicago, had have come with the family to Harrington to reside, adding to the interest and pleasure of the occasion.

The annual thank offering for the Ladies' society will be made on the first of March, next, for which a program is being prepared.
