OVERLAPPING TAXATION

A recent summary issued by the United States Treasury department serves again to call attention to the extent of overlapping taxation imposed by the federal and state governments and once more brings up the query: "Where will it all end?"

According to this summary, in 1935 the federal government collected $2,271,400,000 from all tax sources—corporate taxes, income taxes, excise taxes, corporation taxes, gasoline, liquor and tobacco. From these same six sources, the various states collected $1,400,000,000. Total burden to the nation's taxpayers on these six sources alone of over three and a quarter billion dollars.

The problem is one of growing seriousness, yet its practical solution is as yet far from a goal. There is no agreement between the federal and the various state governments regarding what type of taxes ought to be reserved exclusively to the federal government, and no agreement regarding the equitable division of any tax. For example, the federal government taxes the individual up to 75 per cent of his income and the state government comes along and taxes his income some more.

Out of the middle, two indispensible facts have become increasingly clear to the overburdened taxpayer. One is that a tax levied by one government on the same source of income quickly be abandoned. The other is that regardless of the inequities of tax division as between the state or the federal government, it is the taxpayer himself who suffers the most.

CURBING THE COURTS

In view of the many trial balloons which have gone up from various quarters in recent months dealing with constitutional amendments to enlarge the powers of the federal government or legislative action to curb the powers of the supreme court, the indifference or columns of members of the legislature to the issue have a deep underlying significance. The extent of this significance will become better known as congress moves further into the session as the legislative program unfolds. It is not unlikely that the hands down new decisions affecting legislation enacted in the last few years.

That most members of congress are not taking the issue of the proposals to alter the basic structure of the political system was evident, however, almost from the time that they began to return for the new session. One interesting sign of the opposition to the proposals is the fact that congress as follows: When the country was at the bottom of the depression the people were ready to try anything. They were like the football team that is behind and starts throwing everything at the wall. The condition was so bad that it couldn't be worse. Now, with business constantly improving, and with those who desire to work finding jobs in increasing numbers, the people find that the American government system is capable of righting itself without radical innovations.
