

"Fifty Roads to Town" at Catlow Sunday, Monday

"Wake Up and Live" Showing; "Cafe Metropole" Here Wednesday

Today's flash from the motion picture front is a good-news flash. For "Wake Up and Live," the musical featuring Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and Alice Faye which opened yesterday at the Catlow theatre, is by all odds the sweetest, most glamorous and gaudiest musical ever made.

The mystifying trick of locating their engraving plant on board a luxurious private yacht, owned by an ostensibly respectable citizen, serves to conceal for a time the counterfeiting activities of a clever gang, the final routing of which is depicted in "Midnight Taxi," coming Saturday.

Double featured Saturday night is "We Have Our Moments," starring Sally Eilers and James Dunn. Norman Taurog, who directed both Elton Sumerly and John Qualen in "Reunion," with the Dionne Quintuplets, is reunited with these two popular players in "Fifty Roads to Town," starring Don Ameche and Ann Sothern, which opens Sunday.

In "Fifty Roads to Town," a laugh-spiced romance of two snow-bound young people who find themselves marooned in a mountain cabin, Taurog is in his element as the master of amusing and thrilling situations.

Author of more best-selling novels than any living American writer, Harold Bell Wright, creator of "It Happened Out West," coming Tuesday to the Catlow, strikes a new note in Western adventure photoplays.

"That I May Live," starring Rochelle Hudson, Robert Kent and J. Edward Bromberg, is on the double feature bill Tuesday with "It Happened Out West."

A gay and lighthearted Continental romance, luxurious as orchids on ermine, smart as the Rue de la Paix, merry as the third glass of champagne, romantic as moonlight on the Seine, "Cafe Metropole" opens Wednesday for a three day run with Loretta Young, Tyrone Power and Adolph Menjou in the starring roles.

Suburban Building Maintains Monthly Record of Increase

New building in the Chicago suburban region in May again produced one of the largest totals of the past six years, according to a survey made by Straus Securities corporation. The amount, $3,592,954, has been exceeded only three times since January, 1931, and continues this year's extraordinary gains over last. The May figure of this year exceeds that of May a year ago, which was $2,291,331, by over $1,300,000, or 57 per cent.

In the five months of this year permits have been issued by 59 suburban communities to the amount of over $15,000,000, as compared with approximately $9,500,000 in the same period last year.

Building permits issued by the city of Chicago in the past five months total approximately $13,275,000 as against the $15,000,000 of the suburban region. In May, the city issued permits to the amount of $2,355,150, which when compared with the $3,592,954 of the 59 communities reporting to the survey demonstrates the fact that building in the suburban towns continues to lead that in the city.

In comparison with April, which was the first $4,000,000 month since 1929, suburban building fell off, the April figure being $4,424,193. Analysis of the returns from the individual towns shows that in some communities building was better in May than it was in April, notably in Elmhurst where there was a jump from approximately

$50,000 in April to $78,000 in May;	Forest Park	163,785	10,396
Forest Park with an increase from $11,000 to $164,000;	Highland Park	257,805	67,020
$24,000 to $26,000;	LaGrange	55,950	29,500
Niles Center,	Lake Forest	34,783	37,164
$6000 to $40,000;	Libertyville	1,500	1,240
Western Springs $23,000 to $32,000;	Lombard	2,050	1,865
and East Chicago $43,000 to $118,000.	Melrose Park	23,516	275
But the trend in most communities was downward, and this would be more apparent in the total for the region but for the fact that the $500,000 addition to the plan of the Electro Motive corporation at McCook threw in a half-million dollar item to stem the falling tide.	Mt. Prospect	17,800	40
Details of the survey are as follows:	Oak Park	127,410	127,170
	Libertyville	67,888	42,325
