To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played on the piano by Henry Wichman, the bridal party, with little Lilla Blood, sister of the bride, carrying a basket of flowers, left the house and entered the orchard. They stood under a flower decked arbor for the ceremony.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a white satin-trimmed chiffon gown and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls.

Miss Virginia Richter, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of peach lace and a wreath of flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of gladioli and lilies of the valley.

Following the single ring ceremony read by Rev. H. E. Koenig, pastor of St. Paul church, the bridal party and about 50 invited guests and relatives motored to Twin Lakes where a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents.
