WHERE IS OUR CIVIC COOPERATION?
Concentrated public interest is vitally important at this time in the consideration of proposals to change the village zoning ordinance and map. Any proposals of changes that are adopted effect in all and whatever steps the board of appeals takes should be guided by the desires of residents of the community. Unless it is given the support necessary, the board can hardly be expected to draft a long-lived policy that will work for the mutual benefit of Barrington and its residents.

The board of appeals consists of local persons who serve without pay and who attempted to render a civic service to the interest and betterment of the community. It is not their duty, but it is not infrequently the desire of private owners here, in determining a future policy that will conform with public interest. Lack of cooperation with a civic body results in disintegration of the purposes for which the unit was organized and ultimately brings about a disorganized community.

The deficient interest in the matter of zoning, which, after all, is really a primary impetus to the development of Barrington, can best be pointed out by a count of the attendance at a public hearing held Friday night. The session was held in the village hall and was attended by exactly nine persons out of the some 3000-odd who reside here.

By virtue of the small attendance at the hearing Friday night, residents of Barrington stand indicted on a charge of neglecting civic pride and duty in their attitude toward redemption, however, for the board of appeals took no action at the hearing and will hold another one in the near future. In the meantime, the board will welcome suggestions and offers of aid in helping to create for Barrington a workable, efficient zoning plan.

Barrington is experiencing its best home-building program in the last several years and it is to be maintained. Some assurance must be offered prospective builders that the neighborhood they select will not materially change insofar as type of homes is concerned. Also, we must guarantee that the zoning will be protected. A uniformity of zoning should provide these requisites, but residents must say first what is needed.

It is to be regarded as an unhealthy sign that there is a wide-spread apathy among residents at large in connection with governmental operations are concerned. Cooperation with representatives elected to serve us is the surest and only method of obtaining an efficient government.

This WEEK IN WASHINGTON

By RALPH E. CHURCH, Representative, 10th Congressional District.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—While one may expect certain legislative developments, there is no doubt that the Senate will shortly consider its general appropriations bill. It is expected to proceed to a consideration of the details for possible amendment. A bill which may have some controversy attached to it is the bill for the administration of the Federal Reserve Bank, which is expected to be passed by the House of Representatives.

The substance of this agreement is filled with instances of English and French aggression, but their colonial possessions were obtained by conquest and were not simply seeking to protect what they acquired. It has been pointed out that they wrote the Treaty of Versailles, making the map of Europe to their own satisfaction, and imposed a punitive peace on Germany at the end of the war. It has also been said that the refusal of the United States to join the League of Nations was due to the fact that the United States should have been invited to the League of Nations.

The Senate debate seems to have gone through three stages. At the first stage, the bill was confined to what is the best policy for the United States. At the second stage, the bill was confined to what is the best policy for the United States. At the third stage, the bill was confined to what is the best policy for the United States.

It is expected that this general bill will be passed by the House of Representatives. It is also expected that the Senate will pass the bill. The bill is expected to be passed by the House of Representatives.

YOUR FARM CUMM

By BILL RUSK

Howdy, Farm Friends! It seems that the fall has been taken out of us and we walk, price prices and prices. The thing of which we need for making productions of price trends in this year is a study of the trends in the 1930's. The trends in the 1930's have worked back very close to the trends in the 1920's. The trends in the 1920's were the result of price that were really the result of the trends in the 1910's.

The smaller black-white tree, which once and bears more than 100 pounds of fruit, is being planted in this area, as far as is possible. The most recent report on statistics and log price shows that the most valuable timber species in this area is the black-white tree. The most valuable timber species in this area is the black-white tree.

The trend can be planted, produced and harvested in a substantial amount of farm crop. It is expected that the trend can be planted, produced and harvested in a substantial amount of farm crop. It is expected that the trend can be planted, produced and harvested in a substantial amount of farm crop.

When crop insurance is more popular with Illinois farmers this year, it is due to the fact that the Government has taken steps to make it more popular. The Government has taken steps to make it more popular. The Government has taken steps to make it more popular.

Compared with 1,244 policies in 1938, there were 1,444 policies in 1939. This is a significant increase in the number of policies. This is a significant increase in the number of policies. This is a significant increase in the number of policies.
