North..South..East West

Talking It Over in America
By FRANK L. PHEEN

In the little town of Barrington, a few miles northwest of Chicago, there was successfully undertaken last year an experiment which was designed to test the theory that a few months in scores or hundreds of American towns and cities would be a more effective way of accomplishing than in a book just published, "North..South..East West-Warmling." It is not an exaggeration to say that this is not a book review, but a book review of a book review.

The doctrine of defeatism and failure has been taught to the people of our United States, particularly to the youth, until those who have been taught to accept it as true. The responsibility of those who realize its falsity and who are convinced of the falsity of the truth, the truth will be every living thing and every man of our American youth.

In this column, it may be remembered that the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book.

Perhaps the people of Barrington, and the world beyond did not know that the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book, the author of this book.
