

Lyons Will Urge State Radio Net Before Assembly

State wide cooperation in coping with criminals will be in operation during 1931 if the plans outlined by State Representative Richard J. Lyons of Mundelein are approved by the legislature when it goes into session on Jan. 7.

Representative Lyons will introduce a bill asking for the establishment of state wide communication, either a short wave length radio system or teletype, for all state, county and municipal policing forces. This system will be based to some extent on the communication system now in operation in Michigan.

“Week of Prayer” Services to Open on Monday Night

The Salem Evangelical, St. Paul's Episcopal, First Baptist and Methodist Episcopal churches will observe a "Week of Prayer" from June 10th to 16th in a series of union meetings to be held at the four churches alternately.

The "Week of Prayer" has been observed by these four churches annually for several years and has proved a considerable interest. "Week of Prayer" will be the specific topic for consideration during the series of meetings, which begin at 8:30 o'clock on each evening from Monday evening to Friday evening inclusive.

This grand-daddy of the modern self-binder conceived by Cyrus Hall McCormick one hundred years ago, will be on exhibition in front of Miller Bros. store, 107 E. Station street, next Wednesday.

old timers, perhaps, will remember using similar machines. There may be some who have worked with machines not a great deal different. These are the reaper, forerunner of the modern grain harvester or self-binder. It was one hundred years ago in the harvest time of 1831 — Cyrus Hall McCormick came to this country with his reaper. This machine probably cut 8 to 10 acres of wheat a day, exact width of the knife on the top of 1831 is in doubt. The blade which helped McCormick make his name in this country is in his evidence that the knife was about 4 feet long. Barrington's population continues to grow. That is the inference to be drawn from year-old statistics compiled by Village Clerk A. C. Brandt.

There were 94 births in Barrington in 1930, the clerk's records show, and 50 deaths. In 1920 there were 78 births and 75 deaths. In 1923, 75 births and 39 deaths.

Peachblow ware is the most valuable of Chinese pottery. It belongs to the Chinese potteries which are transmutation glazes embracing a type of flame color. These glazes differ from red to a delicate pink, which is peachblow. Peachblow products have realized prize amounts in salesrooms, and many of these pieces are exhibited in museums. They are no longer made. Originally, peachblow was made in King's Chin and has been considered as a perfect example of potter's art.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS

Many who read this column are flushed with a glow of pride about this time when they think of the good resolutions they are going to put into effect.

New Year's resolutions are not to be lightly considered, but it is well not to put too much faith in them. Sometimes they are the vapors of auto-intoxication; rainbows after the storm; chimes that we have placed upon our heads too soon.

There is more power in resolution. If a man can overcome himself he has conquered his worst enemy. He will have to use both fists to knock himself out and both feet to kick himself out; he will have to get himself down and sit upon himself before he can be himself.

It will be unpleasant, and difficult, but worth while. Resolutions are apt to fail before it, or be entirely forgotten, but resolution can do it and have force to spare.

WHAT'S AHEAD FOR THE FARMER?

One of the thinking farmers in this country is Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, who owns and operates the famous Mississippi Farm of 4,800 acres. Despite his 70 years he is bristling with ideas and interest.

"The curse of America has been a strange one," says Governor Lowden in an energetic and illuminating idea in a current magazine. "No other country has ever suffered from it. We have had too much of everything—too much coal, too much oil, too much iron, too much money, and of course too much grain."

"But the time is going to come when there will not be too much grain any more. Farm leaders have been trying to get farmers to reduce their acreage and thus cut their crops. But they have never succeeded. Now nature is about to take that problem in hand, and she will automatically remove many millions of acres from cultivation before long."

"We are wiping out our farm lands slowly but surely. We are depleting them by constant cropping. And erosion is destroying them three times faster than cropping. Eighty-five per cent of all land in cultivation is suffering from erosion—that is, the top soil is carried away by the forces of nature, rains and tides and winds."

"You have seen the murky waters of the Mississippi? Well what makes them murky? Good farm land suspended in that mighty current. How much is it worth? There are 7,500 million cubic feet of soil suspended in that river, and the phosphorus and potassium therein are worth 4,500 million dollars."

"And all of this has been washed from the farms in that great fertile Mississippi valley. How long can the land stand it?"

"There are many intelligent farmers in this country who understand this and have been conserving their farms. And every year, as foolish farmers drop out because their lands are no longer worth working, the lot of intelligent farmers becomes better."

"I sincerely believe that this factor in the situation is powerful enough to bring at no distant date a great measure of relief to the wise and efficient farmers."

THE LEGISLATURE MEETS

The fifty-seventh Illinois General Assembly will be in session next week. For weeks past the newspapers of the state have carried accounts of various bills that are to be introduced. It is apparent that the Assembly is to be swamped, as usual, with appeals for legislation to control this, that, and the other thing.

How many of these bills will be passed? Far too many, if we may judge by the experience of former years. One of the strangest political tendencies of our time, is the evident faith of legislators in the power of laws to enforce themselves once they are reduced to writing. No belief has been so continuously discredited, yet none is so alarmingly alive.

Every political philosopher from Montaigne's day to this hour has recognized that the best government is that conducted with the least law and machinery. A multitude of evils attend the naive faith of legislators in the auto-enforcement capacity of law as represented by words on a piece of paper. One is an inevitable weakening of respect for government, born of a disregard for its more outlandish aspects. Another is the uninterrupted encroachment of government on the governed. A third and most distressing evil is the appalling expense attending the creation of multitudinous new bureaus and offices provided for.

The time may come when a candidate pledges himself to nothing but the repeal of two laws for every one created, will be generally supported.

SUBSCRIBERS IN LUCK

Subscribers to the Barrington Review will receive fifty-three issues of this newspaper in 1931, instead of the usual fifty-two. This will happen not through any generosity of the publishers, but because the calendar so decrees. It occurs because the first and last days of the year both fall on a Thursday—the Review's publication day. This rarely happens but it has occurred twice during the past few years.

Looking through the calendar further it is observed that, aside from this New Year's Day, the Review's weekly publication schedule will be interrupted but once during the year by a national holiday—on November 26th, Thanksgiving Day.

Two national holidays—Memorial Day and the Fourth of July—fall on Saturday. That is good news for workers on weekly newspapers and those employed in many other trades and industries: two days off together. And Christmas, 1931, comes on Friday. To some that will mean three days of recreation and rest.

EDITOR AS "OLD PROB"

The editor of a country paper received the query: "Can you tell me what the weather will be next month?" In reply he wrote: "It is my belief that the weather will be very much like your subscription." The inquirer wondered for an hour what the editor was driving at, when he happened to think of the word "unsatiable." He went in next day and collected his account.

The Town Doctor

(The Doctor of Towns)

SAYS

HOW IS BUSINESS GOING TO BE?

Business is going to be whatever you make it as far as you are concerned. You may think that is all bunk—you may be the sort that says "You can't make a pink shirt yellow by thinking it's yellow." But you can take it or leave it. BUSINESS WILL BE WITH YOU JUST EXACTLY AS YOU MAKE IT.

If you sit around and wait for "good times" they will be a long time coming. If you try "hard times" to every customer that you come in contact with and go around with a face a mile long, blaming politics, religion, dry weather and prohibition for what you alone are responsible, then business always will be punk—and with such people it never should be otherwise.

How come you are in business anyway? What did you do before you went into business? Are you dead sure that you are IN BUSINESS right now? Maybe it's just a store you are running and if so, where are you running it?

Here is a sure fire way of telling how YOUR business is going to be! Put on a disguise so no one will know you and go out to your customers and see yourself as THEY see you. Ask them how your business is going to be—they can tell you better than anyone else. Be sure and put on the disguise though, for sure as they recognize you they will not tell you just what they think. That's always the case. May be the wrong attitude for customers to take but nevertheless they will give you a wrong steer if they know you are you.

It's too bad that every Seller cannot see himself as others see him. If it could be, there would be fewer "lost customers" and there would be fewer failures in every line of endeavor.

YOU don't know YOU as others know you—don't forget that! You can't look in the mirror and see what the fellow that looks over your shoulder sees—no, it can't be done, for you look from the inside out—the other fellow looks from the outside in and ninety-nine per cent of the fellows only see your outside. And that goes for your business as well as for your personal self.

Can't get away from it, business is going to be with you, what you are going to make it. And the whole "works" depends on knowledge of yourself, how much you know of others, plus gumption and "git."

VICTORY

Three interesting and very different experiences occurred one Sunday last fall.

In the morning we sat in the chapel of an historic academy in New England and, while the preacher prayed, we pecked a little. Our eyes wandered over the bowed heads of the boys; our imaginations were busy with thoughts of what might be in store for them.

Riding back to New York on the train we read an impressive speech by the President of the United States.

When the train stopped at Hartford we looked out of the window to see a crowd filling the air with rice and confetti, and presently an embarrassed but happy young couple hurried through the car and into a drawing room.

Of these events—the prayer in the academy chapel, the speech of Mr. Hoover, the marriage of an unknown and apparently common-place young couple—which was the most important? Which will leave the most lasting impression on history? No one can possibly tell.

If every child and every happening were labeled "This is important" or "This is unimportant" the business of living would soon lose its zest. The eternal uncertainty of it keeps it exciting.

For example, a King of England, coming down from Scotland, stopped for refreshment at a little town called Scotchby. The young man who waited on the table was so obscure that the king probably never noticed him. But who is more important in the light of history, the weak King James I of England or the strong young man William Brewster who sailed on the Mayflower and became the first governor of Massachusetts?

In 1704 occurred the Battle of Blenheim. Most of us remember nothing about it except the last lines of Robert Southey's poem:

"And what was the use of it all?" asked little Tweedledum.

"I don't know," the man said, "but 'twas a famous victory."

Just one year before, not far from the battle-field, was born a red-faced baby. His name was John Wesley.

Battles, kingdoms, fortunes—they are all part of the great human drama. But the thrill lies in the fact that a word dropped into the fertile mind of a boy, or a young couple starting a new home, or a helpless infant uttering its first cry—these also may have undying significance.

And any one of us, quite unwittingly, may be a part of a famous victory.

We hear less of Congressional blocs than formerly, but there is no appreciable falling off in the numbers of block heads.

Those old fellows who used to debate the slavery question thought they had a real issue. But they had never heard of prohibition.

Home Education

The Child's First School is the Family—Elizabeth

WE MAKE A PICTURE BOOK FOR ELIZABETH

MEMORIAL FISHER

Elizabeth is four and like most other little girls of that age delights in pictures, especially those in "pitty colors" so when we made a picture book for Elizabeth, we discarded all our black and white pictures and used only our carefully hoarded colored ones.

But first, may we tell you about the book itself? We used strong brown wrapping paper for our pages. The neutral color of the paper made an excellent background for the pictures. Then, too, the brown does not show baby finger-marks as a lighter paper would do. The big sheets were folded, creased very thoroughly, and then torn along the edges. These torn edges do not have the trim appearance of painted paper cuts but they eliminate the danger of painful paper cuts on baby fingers, and, we thought, have a certain unfinished charm of their own.

The pages in Elizabeth's book were to be twelve by eighteen inches, so our big sheets to make double sheets, were torn. We prepared one of these, folded each down the center, and then one inside the other in book form. To hold them together, we stitched them down the center of the middle sheet by hand, using a darning needle and black waxed thread and making the stitches about an inch long.

For covers, we used two sheets of stiff cardboard, each thirteen and a half by twenty-two inches. We had purchased cardboard that was covered on one side with brilliant scarlet moiré paper. This covered side was used for the outside.

On the inside of these cardboard, we painted a two-and-one-half inch border of soft cream. The two separate half covers were then joined on the outside with a strip of narrow, black adhesive tape, then laid on the scarlet, proving most effective. To fasten the book to the cover, we pasted the first page to the front cover and the last page to the back cover.

And now we were ready for the pictures that Elizabeth would love best. We had been saving them for months, brilliantly colored advertisement pictures cut from magazines, pictures used to illustrate stories, and, rarest and most precious of all, animal pictures. We had babies of every age and description, doing all the correct baby things—playing with their toes, drinking milk, teaching for their daddies, learning to walk. There were babies

Awake and babies asleep, and one adorable set of twins, gazing wide-eyed at this wonderful world that brought a surge of ecstasy from Elizabeth.

Then came pictures of little girls and boys, with their mothers, with their fathers, with both parents. There was a little girl with her grandmother, a boy with his grandfather, children with dogs, children at a party, at a picnic, at home on a rainy day, children in the country, in the city, at the seashore, at the farm; a little boy's playroom and a little girl with her family of dolls. Children of other lands followed these. The Dutch children we found illustrating a story in a popular magazine. The Indian children were in an advertisement for a certain make of automobile. Then there were Eskimos, little southern pickaninnies, tiny, doll-like Chinese and shy French peasant boys and girls.

Our animal pictures came next. We had cows—beautiful cows they were—grazing peacefully in a clover field, horses with their heads up and tails streaming in the wind, a baby lamb with its mother, an adorable, disreputable goat and a family of pigs so realistic we almost heard their squeal.

Then transportation pictures—an airplane, railroad train, automobiles, street cars, buses, steamships, camels and donkeys—dozens of them.

Elizabeth loves her picture book. She crawls over the babies and follows with intense interest all the doings of the boys and girls in the picture world. She plans long trips on the airplane and the steamships to the countries where the strange little children live. But the animal pictures have a special place in her heart. We've never yet found anything quite as satisfying as Elizabeth's long "Oh-ah!" of delight when she comes to the page where the little pigs live with their mother.

Elizabeth is interested, too, in the way the book was made. She has asked many questions about it, and wants magazine pictures saved for a book which she herself plans to make. And this second volume, even though it should lack some of the intrinsic charm of the first, will, without doubt, bring even more satisfaction. There is much joy for a child in doing things and in being able to say, "I made it myself."

Judging by the rattle, Mabel's sister may have been made out of an old model T.

Many who have the itch to write tell us of enough scratching after they have written it. When a London boy murdered his parents, leniency was asked for him because he was an orphan.

One thing may be said for our enemies. They don't pester us with advice.

Let us hope that South America has gotten caught up with its revolting.

Racing a train to a crossing is hardly fair to one's life insurance company.

AS WE take the old calendar down from the wall and put the bright new one in its place, we all naturally pause to review the events of the old year and make plans for the new. For all of us, 1930 brought its mixture of joy and sorrow, of disappointment and success. And 1931 waits at the door with new opportunities and happiness. The members of this firm wish one and all the best that life has to offer in the New Year.

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the need for a laxative was as great as now. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physical and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice and which he put in his book in 1892, under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a simple, scientific, and accurate test, which, when taken, gives you the system in 15 minutes. Blackhawks Split Double Header With Crystal Lake Team

The Barrington Blackhawks divided a double header with Crystal Lake Tuesday night, the heavyweights losing 17 to 10 and the lightweights collecting a 24 to 9 victory.

The heavyweight game was a tough one for the Blackhawks to lose after leading at the half 14 to 4. Crystal Lake put on a spirited rally in the second half and held the Blackhawks to one basket to none then out by a point. Buckley and Johnson led the Hawks in scoring, Buckley getting three baskets and one free throw and Johnson two baskets.

Next Tuesday the Blackhawks play McHenry at the high school gym. McHenry is a member of the Fox Valley League and has a very strong team.

The lightweights annexed their third win of the season, beating Crystal Lake 24 to 9. Pavlik, Schenck and Altenburg did most of the scoring.

"Man to Man" Opens New Year at The Catlow

Two types of love are depicted in "Man to Man," the Saturday Evening Post story which comes to the Catlow theatre New Year's Night and Friday.

One is the love of man and woman, the other of father and son.

Phillips Holmes has the role of the boy, Lucille Powers of the spot heart, in this human and amazing story, the scenes of which are laid in a small town in Kentucky.

Grant Mitchell, former star of the stage, in the role of "Barber John," and the youthful Holmes, contribute the love of father and son, a devotion which means an acid test.

Polly Moran is William Holmes, "good luck" when he starts out to make a new picture.

So Polly is found among the featured cast in "Remote Control," his new talkie which will come to the Catlow theatre this Saturday night.

For several years Holmes has made a picture without filling a part in it somewhere for Polly and in the picture of the stage play Polly is to be seen and heard as a beauty expert.

Mary Moran is the leading lady in the new Holmes vehicle, and the supporting cast includes Charles King, John Miljan and J. C. Nugent.

"These Three French Girls," a comedy talkie which has proved a very popular number with film fans, will play The Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday nights, Jan. 4 and 5. Bill Dorsey and Reginald Denry lead a large cast of well-known players in the picture.

Manager Catlow of the local theatre, announcing that "On Sailors Be-ware," featuring Olsen and Johnson, will be the next Friends' Night attraction Tuesday and Wednesday, January 6 and 7.

"On Sailors Be-ware," which is taken from the play, "See Naples and Die," by Elmer Rice, brings to talking picture audiences one of the greatest casts ever assembled in one picture.

Rip Van Winkle, writhed and gray from his 20 years absence, stood before his wife. "Where have you been, you scoundrel?" she demanded.

"I was up at the Veterans Bureau waiting in line for my compensation," replied Rip.

"Well, that's different," conceded the wife. "How'd you get back so quick?"

Find Man Dead of Heart Disease in His Automobile

Eugene R. Lauer, 39, 4615 Clairmont avenue, Chicago, was found dead in his automobile, a black from their cottage at Wauconda, at 10 o'clock last night by his wife, who had gone in search of him.

Mr. Lauer had been in poor health, and with his wife had been staying at their cottage in the Kirk subdivision on the east side of Bangs lake since the Christmas holidays.

He left at 5 o'clock last night to drive down town after milk for the evening meal. Apparently he felt a heart attack coming on and shut off his motor.

At a coroner's inquest this morning death was declared due to heart disease.

HISTORIC RAILROAD SOLD TO E. & O.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad company purchased the Chicago and Alton at public auction at Wilmington, Ill., on December 11. The purchase price was $23,000,000 with the assumption of the C. & A.'s obligations, which will make a total cost of about $75,000,000. The Chicago and Alton grew out of the Alton and Hannibal, incorporated in 1847. Abraham Lincoln was once on its legal staff. George Pullman tried out his sleeping car on the Alton in 1857 and an Alton funeral train carried the body of the martyred president to Springfield in 1865. The purchase of this road gives the E. & O. a much stronger hold on the commerce of the middle-west and is a continuation of the policies of its founders 104 years ago.

Start the New Year RIGHT

At this time of the year your battery or generator should function at its best, so you will have no trouble on a cold winter day or night. Maybe your valves are sticking; your tappets need adjusting; your oil does not flow properly; your brakes need adjusting—many things can happen in cold weather—so you owe it to yourself to have your car in the best of shape for winter driving.

Charles F. Renich Twenty-five Years as Sentinel Editor

On the first of the year Charles F. Renich of Woodstock had been for twenty-five years editor and manager of the Woodstock Sentinel.

Although he has spent his lifetime in Woodstock, Mr. Renich has many friends in Barrington, and Mrs. Renich, a former Barrington young woman—Miss Lucy Hummel, before her marriage.

Prior to taking charge of the Sentinel, Mr. Renich was, from boyhood, associated with his father in the publication of the Volksblatt, a Stadler county German weekly newspaper which was continued until 1904. The Volksblatt issued an annual phonetic German language which was distributed by Barrington to the Barrington Review. Many who are still on the Review's subscription list will recall coming to this office at the year's end to get their copy of the "annual."

Sentinel 75 Years Old

The Woodstock Sentinel is among the oldest newspapers in the state; it was fifty years old when Charles F. Renich took the reins. It installed the first linotype machine in McHenry county, and a number of well known McHenry county newspapers are graduated from the Sentinel office.

The Sentinel has been published as weekly and as a semi-weekly. Ten years ago it was changed to a daily publication, and despite the fact that many newspaper men said that a daily newspaper could not prosper in a town the size of Woodstock, Mr. Renich seems to be making a success of the venture.

COURT GRANTS PETITION TO SELL BUSINESSES OF MILES T. LAMEY

At a hearing in the Probate court of Lake County on Monday, Judge Martin C. The bank will be sold at auction for cash at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon of this week, immediately following the annual stockholders' meeting of the bank. The businesses will be sold later.

Until the two businesses are disposed of, Mr. Robertson will continue to operate them. Leslie B. Pauldock, who has been managing editor of the Barrington Review for the past 32 years, will continue in that capacity and will also handle Lamey & Co.

BIRTHS

A daughter, Violeta, was born December 26 to Mrs. and Mrs. Gus Bitter of 321 W. Station street.
