President's Message

The Barrington Area Chamber of Commerce, representing the 900 business and professional firms of our 90 square mile area, is pleased to present you with this Community Guide, a reference to business, government, education and services, clubs and organizations. We sincerely hope you find it useful throughout the coming year. Published in the center of this book is a complete listing of Chamber members both alphabetically and by business classification...the companies that are working together to provide the services and to help shape the business environment for our area. We hope that you will make good use of the directory by being patrons to Barrington businesses whenever possible.

We want to take this opportunity to express our gratitude to the residents of the Barrington Area for their support of our business community. It is our goal to serve the community with quality merchandise and services. There are more than 200 retail stores in Barrington and an equal number of service establishments.

Attracted to the Barrington communities by the proximity to excellent transportation, a large pool of informed workers, and carefully planned preservation of natural resources, many well-known companies are established here. The Allstate Insurance Co., Quaker Oats Co., Uarco, General Kinematics, American National Can Co., General Electric Capital Corporation, Recon/Optical Inc., Park Corporation, C.T.I. Industries, and Ameritech Services are among our larger employers. Barrington also has excellent office facilities as well as a large number of support services. Approximately 14,000 people come to work each day in the area represented by the Barrington Area Chamber of Commerce.

A complete civic welcome for all new residents is provided by the Chamber through its Welcome Neighbor program. Our greeter personally visits new residents and provides them with civic information, maps, booklets, and gifts from Barrington businesses. If you are new to the area, just call our office (381-2525) to arrange a visit to your home.

The strength of Barrington lies in its people. We're proud to be a working partner in our area's progress.

History of Barrington

Until 1833 and the signing of a treaty with Chief Blackhawk, the area that now includes Barrington had for centuries been home ground to tribes of Pottawatomie and Mascouten Indians. Later that year, their migration across the Mississippi River was begun in compliance with the treaty, which thereby opened up vast tracts along the Fox River to early settlers who came in 1834.

Pioneers who traveled from Troy, New York, by way of Fort Dearborn--newly renamed the City of Chicago--set down their roots in what was to be Cuba Township in Lake County. Others, primarily from Vermont, upper New York State, and Massachusetts, most notably from that state's Great Barrington in Berkshire County, settled in what is now Cook County. Their settlement was originally called Miller Grove but was later renamed Barrington Center. It was established at the point where Sutter Road crosses Route 68.

The area's rich soil and ample water supply naturally attracted an ever-growing number of farming families throughout the 1830s. They were industrious, courageous people who saw an opportunity to carve out a prosperous future, not only for themselves but for all those to follow.

With settling down came inevitable changes and the need to develop a sense of pulling together into a community. And so the first school house, the Northway School, was built at Barrington Center early in the 1840s just east of what is now the Catlow Theatre.

Not only was this simple, one-room school the seat of learning for a growing number of farm youngsters, it also served as the house of worship for the Methodists and the Congregationalists until completion of their own churches in 1859.

In 1850, at the request of the County Sheriff, the inhabitants of the various nearby settlements assembled to choose a name for their township, and to set up a town government. The name they chose for the township was Barrington.

In 1854, Robert C. Campbell, a civil engineer, completed a detailed plan for a village to be called Barrington Station. When built it consisted of a farm house and a log barn owned by Willard Stevens, and was bounded by what is now Hough Street, County Line Road, a line east of Spring Street, and by a point drawn a few feet south of Russell Street. The 80 acres within this boundary were the nucleus of what is today Barrington proper.

That same year also saw the completion of the northwest extension of the Chicago and Fond Du Lac railroad, later known as the Chicago and North Western. Deer Grove was home for the first station, but in reaction to protests from some residents it was carted a few miles up the track by flat car to what would soon be the site of Barrington Station.

The homes that sprang up around the original farm were constructed of logs, as were most homes in rural America at that time. But in 1855, the Village's first milled lumber facility went into operation. The building that housed the mill is still a fixture on Franklin Street--a vivid reminder of Barrington's rustic past.

In 1863, the 300-some people who comprised the population of Barrington Station decided, in a referendum, to separate local and township powers. This led, in 1865, to the state legislature's approval of a charter for the Village of Barrington.

Not surprisingly, many families from nearby communities saw the advantages to be derived from moving to Barrington, and having easy access to the railroad and the growing number of stores that had recently opened.

In reaction to this steady migration, the number and variety of small businesses to set up shop near the railroad kept pace with the growing needs of the population.

The last decades of the 19th century saw Chicago grow from a promising prairie town to a great pivotal hub of commerce and industry, one that had been truly forged in the Great Fire of '71.

As Chicago became more prosperous, the desire for suburban living led to major population growth both in the countryside and in the Village. Many of those who came to Barrington after World War I were Chicago businessmen in search of the same rural spaciousness that had so attracted farm families of the last century.

To their credit, these residents, and the generations that followed, worked hard to preserve the qualities of charm and graciousness which are the hallmarks of life in Barrington.

Today, Barrington's vision is directed very much toward the future, but its thoughts are never far from the rich legacy of its past. The Barrington Historical Society has been instrumental over the years in preserving relics from the Village's bygone eras. For additional information, please contact Michael Harkins the Director of the Barrington Area Historical Society, 218 W. Main St., at 381-1730.

School District 220

Administrative Offices
310 East James St., 381-6300

Community Unit School District 220 serves over 6,400 students from Pre-Kindergarten through Grade 12 who reside in a 72-square mile area which includes Barrington and all or part of the nine surrounding Villages. Eight elementary schools, a middle school and a high school presently comprise the district. A second middle school is scheduled to open in September 1992.

The district's commitment to excellence is exemplified by the wide range of Advanced Placement and honors courses offered at Barrington High School. In addition, both faculty and students representing the fine arts, foreign language and English departments are frequent award-winners at regional, state and national levels. Ninety-two percent of the Class of 1990 went on to some form of higher education, with 72 percent enrolling in four-year colleges and universities located throughout the U.S.

Programs for gifted and talented students are offered at elementary, middle and high school levels. Special education services are provided to eligible students aged 3-21 through district schools or the Special Education District of Lake County (SEDOL). Not only within these specialized programs, but within each classroom in each school throughout the district, the mission is the same: "to help each student pursue excellence in learning through caring schools."

The Barrington Public Library District, formed in 1970, constitutes in area one of the largest library districts in Illinois. Covering some 72 square miles, it serves approximately 35,000 people. The district is administered by an unpaid board of seven trustees elected to six-year staggered terms.

The library's collection includes upwards of 145,000 volumes, 2,890 records, 4,820 cassettes, 1,260 compact discs, 2,043 video cassettes and 480 periodical titles. Also, the library has various microfilm, framed art prints, toys and games.

Reference service is available by phone or in person during regular library hours, and, in addition, a "Night Owl" reference service is available by phone for after hours. A meeting room is available for library-sponsored programs and for use by not-for-profit organizations. Children's story times, craft, film and summer reading programs are offered. Adult programs cover a variety of topics, including films and speakers on such subjects as art, music, genealogy, finance and social issues.

Through membership in the North Suburban Library System, reciprocal borrowing privileges are available from 42 area libraries, as well as from the Chicago Public Library. Special materials for the blind and the physically handicapped may also be ordered.
