Geo. Clark, an ex-convict who was waned for assault, was arrested Sunday afternoon by Officers Heaney and Sebastian. He was fined $100 by Judge Severson, and cxecution stayed on condition he leave the city within 48 hours.

There is a movement on foot to tender Mr. E. W. Freeman a testimonial in the form of a concert in Irving Club Auditorium. This should meet with the hearty endorsement of the residents of Irving Park, as Mr. Freeman has contributed a great deal to the pleasure and entertain-ment of this suburb, both in church music and society.

One of the most important arrests was made by Officers Griffin and Kipley of the 32d precinct station. He was wanted for assault with intent to kill, and Kipley nd Griffen, two of the most efficient officers of that station, were detailed on the case and succeeded in capturing him. He was sentenced by Judge Adams to three months in the county jail.

Died, Nov.14, Willis Hughes, Jr., youngest son of Willis Hugnes, aged 13 months, 21 days. He was sick but four days, his illness, at first a trifling cold, developing into pneumonia. He was buried Sunday afternoon, Nov. 15, at Union Ridge Cemetery, Norwood Park. His bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

The Pleasure Club will give a Thanksgiving Eve party at Pregler's Club House, Crawford avenue, one mile north of Irving Park.

Competitors.

LONDON. Nov. 12.-An enormous crowd gathered at the South London Palace in order to witness the attempt of the famous strong man, Louis Cyr. to break the weight-lifting record of the world. Cyr's backer offered a 1,000 pounds to any man who would do the feats that Cry was about to perform. The modern Goliah then lifted 104pound dumbbell above his shoulder with his right hand. Then he lifted one weighing 242 pounds in the same way with both hands. His third feat consisted in elevating a barrel containing 280 pounds of cement with his left hand, and, aided by the thigh, he raised it to his chest and then to his shoulder. This evoked a tremendous degree of excitement and drew forth cheer after cheer.

Finally, putting on a harness to which a frame was attached, he lifted a weight of 2,619 pounds, at which everybody became still more excited, and so contagious was this feeling that even Samson, a rival strong man, be-came imbibed with it. He, however, declared that Cyr's right-hand lifting was not the same as sandow's, as the former bent his arm. Cyr's backer offered Samson £100 to rival either feat; but that worthy declined the offer, saying he was obliged to go away.

CONFLICTING REPORTS FROM THE TROUBLED REPUBLIC.

SITUATION IN BRAZIL.

Uncle Sam Has Four Warships Ready to Take Part in Any Dispute hat May Arise.

LONDON, Nov. 18.-Either Fonseca is a very badly scared man or else all the reports of trouble in Brazil are founded on nothing more substantial than the vain imaginings of sensational correspondents, and are entirely unworthy of credence. The reports from the great South American republic are sharply civided into two classes. The one comes from government sources and bears the imprint of Fonseca's handiwork. The others, mostly from Chile, are of a private character both as regards senders and receivers.

The last official dispatch received here from the foreign office at Rio de Janeiro declares that complete tranquility prevails everywhere throughout the country with the exception of the Stat of Rio Grande do Sul. In no part of the country is there any demand for secessions from the Brazilian union, and the State of Rio Grande do Sul has not se.eded. The troubles there are said to be entirely of a local character and not due to any desire of the State to sever its connection with the rest of the country. But this statement is directly contradicted by dispatches from Santiago. They declare that the Provisional Junta in authority in Rio Grande do Sul has taken absolute control of things. It holds undisputed possession of the capital of the State and claims to have, an army of 30,000 men ready for the field. These men are said to be fuily equipped with rifles. The Junta is weak in artillery, having only four field guns. It is also deficient in warships. Its navy consists of a single river vessel of the Monitor type, which is armed with one 70 pounder cannon and a single machine gun.

GREIF'S DAUGHTER DEAD.

Polic Charged With Breaking Into the Dying Girl's Room.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.-There was a touch of pathos added to the contention between the police and the Anarchists yesterday by the death of Mary Greif, the daughter of Thomas Greif, the proprietor of the saloon and halls at No. 54 West Lake street. The girl was Greifs only daughter. She was 21 years old and had been suffering from consumption. What the police call unfortunate, and what the Anarchists yesterday called brutality, was the fact that the girl should have lain ill in the house when the officers aided the saloon and hall. The living rooms of the family were over the saloon and the police are charged with having broken into her room. thus giving her a shock which hastened her death.

Yesterday the anarchists and their sympathizers held meetings all over the city and denounced the Mayor and police in strong terms for thir raids on the meetings.

BLOODY DEED AT OMAHA

MADDENED, A GIRL COMMITS MURDER AND SUICIDE

Capt. Smith, a Salvation Army Commander, Shot by Nettie Bledler, Who Takes Her Own Life.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 17,-The muster of the Northwestern Division of the Salvation Army at Omaha to meet La Marechale Booth-Clibborn of France has terminated in a tragedy sad, sudden, and inexplicable. While the soldiers were filing out of the barracks the sound of a pistol-shot rang out, and with a groan one of the army's captains fell to the pavement, blood gushing from her mouth and nostrils, Her body had not yet lodged on the sidewalk when the second r port from the pistol was heard, and a private reeled from the ranks and staggered blindly a step or two and felt dead in the gutter.

It was just after 6 o'clock in the evening and the army's forces had gathered at the barracks for the purpose of making its usual parade prior to services. The presence in Omaha of the official heads of the army in France and America-La Marechale Booth-

Clibborn and her brother, Commissioner Ballington Booth, had drawn hither all the forces of this division, which includes Iowa, Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Nebrska. The real motive for the fearful double crime is not so clear as it might be, but the indications point to a rather queer combination of jealousy and semi-religious frenzy. However obscure may be the motive that prompted the deed its results stand out only too plainly, for the body of Nettie Biedler. the murderess and suicide, rests on a marble stab at the city morgue and her victim, Capt. Hattie Smith, of the Salvation band at Oskaloosa, lowa, is awaiting in untold agony the final ex-unguishment of the vital spark at her temporary boarding place on Davenport street.

The murderess came upon her victim as she was standing on the sidewalk conversing with Capt. Wallace from Marshalltown, Iowa. Without speaking she arew a revolver from beneath the folds of her dress and fired. Almost simultaneously with the crack of the pistol came the shrick of pain Wallace started to run down the street.

Evidently fearing the bullet had not reached a vital part, the crazed Biedler followed her fleeing victim a few steps and fired again. The first as the woman leveled the revolver the wounded captain reeled and fell. Without waiting to see the effect of her second shot the murderess placed the muzzle of her weapon to her right temple and pressed the trigger a third time. A muttled report, a heavy plunge forward, and the body of Nettie Biedler sank lifeless to the gutter. Not twenty feet away lay Capt. Smith unconsciously moaning, a crimson flood dying the bright red folds of her uniform.

"Lay on, Levi, lay on!" "Nay." answered the strong rabbi, "the boy will die. Let us leave him here for this night."

"As thou sayest."

Again there was silence. Soon the rays of light ceased to shine through the crevices of the outer shutters, and sleep descended upon the quarter of ion changed not.

. Lord, if it be thy will that I die. grant that I may bear all in thy name. grant that I, unworthy, may endure in this body the punishment due me in spirit for my sins. And if it be thy will that I live, let my life be used also for thy glory !'

The voice ceased and the cloud of passing time descended upon the vision and was lifted again and again.

"I believe," it said, always. "Do what you will, you have power over the body, but I have the faith over which you have no power.

So the days and the nights passed, and though the prayer came up in feeble tones, it was born of a mighty spirit, and it rang in the ears of the tormenters as the voice of an angel which they had no power to silence. appealing from them to the tribunal of the throne of God most high.

Day by day, also, the rabbis and the elders began to congregate tomight break the endurance of his son and bring him again into the synagogue as one of themselves.

"I renounce my sins, and whatsoever is yet left for me to suffer, I will, by God's help, so bear it as to be not unworthy of Christ's mercy."

"It is as we feared," they said. "He is unrepentant and he is worthy of death. It is not expedient that the understood clearly while you were young addet should live. > "Hearest thou? Thou shalt die." It was Lazarus who spoke, while holding up the boy before the table and hissing the words into his ear.

The belief in a great cruelty and a greater injustice roused the man who throughout so many days had lived in calm indifference to every aspect of the humanity around him. Seeing TALMAGE'S VISIT TO SMYRNA that Israel Kafka could not be restored to consciousness, he rose to his feet again and stood between the prostrate victim and Unorna.

"You are killing this man instead of saving him." he said. "His crime. you say, is that he loves you. Is that a reason for using all your powers to destroy him in body and mind?"

"Perhaps," answered Unorna, calmly, though there was still a dangerous light in her eves.

"No. It is no reason," answered the Wanderer with a decision to which Unorna was not accustomed. ...Keyork tells me the man is mad. He may be. But he loves you, and deserves mercy of you."

"Whatever your art may be, you use it badly and cruelly. A moment ago I was blipded myself. If I had at agony described. I would have stopped you. You blinded me as you longer,"

"And how would you have stopped me? How can you hinder me now?" asked Unorna.

"By force, if need be,"he answered, very quietly.

"You talk of force to a woman!" she exclaimed. contemptuously. "You are indeed brave!"

"You are not a woman. You are the incarnation of cruelty. I have seen it."

His eyes were cold and his voice was stern. Unorna felt a very sharp pain and shivered as though she were cold

"You do not know," she answered. 'How should you?" Her glance fell and ber voice trembled.

"I know enough," he said. He turned coldly from her, and knelt again beside Israel Kafka.

He raised the pale head and supported it upon his knee, and gazed anxiously into the face, raising the lids with his finger, as though to convince himself that the man was not dead. Indeed, there seemed to be but little life left in him, as he lay there with outstretched arms and twisted fingers, scarcely breathing. In such a place, without so much as the commonest restorative to aid him, the Wanderer saw that he had but little chance of success.

Then she heard tootsteps on the saw that the Wanderer had lifted Kafka's body from the ground and bated what they should do, and for a leaving her in anger, without a word.

TABERNACLE PULPIT.

AND EPHESUS.

How Prophesies of the Bible Have Been Fulfilled-The Neven Christian Churches of Diana-An Instructive Sermon.

We have landed this morning at Smyrna, a city of Asiatic Turkey. One of the seven churches of Asia once stood here. You read in Revelation, "To the church in : myrna write." It is a city that has often been shaken by earthquake, swept by conflagration, blasted by plagues and butchered by war, and here Bishop Polycarp stood in a crowded amphitheater and when he was asked to give up the advocacy of the Christian religion and save himself from martyrdom, the pro-consul saying: "Swear and I release thee; reproach Christ," replied: "Eighty and six years have I served Him. and He never did me wrong; how then can I revile my King and Savior?' When he was brought to the fires into which he was about to be thrust, and the officials were about to fasten him to the stake, he said: "Let me remain as I am for he who giveth me strength to sustain the fire will enable me also without your securing me with nails to remain unmoved in the fire." History says the fires refused to consume him, and under the winds the flames bent outward so that they did not touch his person, and, therefore, he was slain by swords and spears. One cypress bending over his grave is the only monument to Bishop Polycarp.

But we are on the way to the city of Ephesus, about fifty miles from Smyrna. We hire a special railway train, and in about an hour and a half we arrive at the city of Ephesus, which was called "The Great Metropolis of Asia," and "One of the Eyes of Asia," and "The Empress of Ionia," the capital of all learning and magnificence. Here, as I said, was one of the seven churches, and first of all we visit the ruins of that church, where once an Acumenical council of two thousand ministers of religion was held.

Mark the fulfillment of the prophecy! Of the seven churches of Asia, four were commended in the book of Revelation, and three were doomed. The cities having the four commended churches still stand; the cities having the three doomed churches are wiped out. It occurred just as the bible said it would occur. Drive on and you come to the theater, which was 660 feet from wall to wall, capable of holding .56,700 spectators. Here and there the walls arise almost unbroken, but for the most part the building is down. Just enough of it is left to help the imagination build it up as it was when those audiences shouted and clapped at some great spectacular. Their huzzas must have been enough to stun the heavens. As I took my place at the center of this theater and looked around at its broken layers of gallery upon gallery, and piled up into the bleak skies of that winter day, and thought that every hand that swung a trowel on those walls and every foot that trod those stairs, and every eye that gazed on that amphitheater, and every eye that greeted the combatants in that arena had gone out of hearing and sight for ages on ages, I felt a thrill of interest that almost prostrated me amid the ruins. Standing there, we could not forget that in that building once assembled a riotous throng for Paul's condemnation, because what he preached collided with the idolatry of their national goddess. Paul tried to get into that theater and address the excited multitude, but his friends held him back, lest he be torn in pieces by the mob, and the recorder of the city had to read the riot act among the people who had shrieked for two mortal hours till their throats were sore and they were black in the face: "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Now, we step into the Stadium. Enough of its walls and appointments are left to show what a stupendous place it must have been when used for foot races and tor fights with wild beasts. It was a building 680 feet long by 210 feet wide. Paul refers to what transpired there in the way of spectacle when he says. "We have been made a spectacle." "Yes," "I have fought Paul says. with beasts at Ephesus," an expression usually taken as figurative, but I suppose it was literally true, for one of the amusements in that Stadium was to put a disliked man in the arena with a hungry lion or tiger or panther, and let the fight go on until either the man or the beast or both were slain. It must have been great fun for these haters of Christianity to hear that on the morrow in the Stadium in Ephesus the missionary Paul would, in the presence of the crowded galleries, fight a hungry lion. The people were early there to get the best seats, and a more alert and enthusiostic crowd never assembled. They took their dinners with them. And was there ever a more unequal combat according to crooked-backed proposed? Paul, tradition. small. and weak-eyed, but the grandest man in sixty centur:es, is led to the center, as the people shout: "There he comes, the preacher who has nearly ruined our religion. The lion will make but a brief monthful of him." It is plain that all the sympathies of that crowd are with the lion. In one of the underground rooms I hear the growl of the wild beasts. They have been kept for several days without food or water in order that they may be especially ravenous and bloodthirsty. What chance is there for Taul? But you can not tell by a man's size or looks how stout a blow he can strike or how keen a blade he can thrust. Witness, heaven and earth and hell, this struggle of Paul with a wiid beast. The coolest man in the Stadium is Paul. What has he to fear? He has defied all the powers, earthly and infernal, and if his body tumble under far as possible, to preserve his life. Now, I hear the bolt of the wild beast's door shove back, and the whole audience rise to their feet as the fierce brute springs for the arena and toward its small occupant. I think the point of a sharp blade, and the

But now the little missionary has his ing of a horse that when Alexander's turn of making attack, and with a few well-directed thrusts the monster lies dead in the dust of the arena, and the Apostle puts his right foot on the lion and shakes him, and then puts his left foot on him and shakes him-a scene which Paul afterwards uses for an illustration when he wants to show how Christ will triumph over death-"He must reign until He hath put all enemies under His feet:" yes, under His feet. Paul told the literal truth when he said: "I have fought with beasts at Ephesus," and as the plural is used, I think he had more than one such fight, or several beasts were let loose upon him at one time. As we stood that day in the middle of the Stadium and looked around at the great structure, the whole scene came back upon us.

But, we pass out of the Stadium for ve are in haste for other places of interest in Ephesus. To ada to the excitement of the day one of our party was missing. No man is safe in that region alone unless he be armed and know how to take sure aim and not miss fire. Our companion, Dr. Louis Klopsch, now the publisher of The Christian Herald, had gone out on some explorations of his own, and through the gate where Paul had walked again and again, vet, where no man unaccompanied should adventure now. But, after some time had passed, and every minute seemed as long as an hour, and we had time to imagine everything horrible in the way of robbery and assassination, the lost traveler appeared, to receive from our entire party a volley of expostulation for the arousal of so many anxie-

But I have now to unveil the chief wonder of the chiefest of cities. In 1863, under the patronage of the English government, Mr. Wood, the explorer, began at Ephesus to feel along the ground at great depths for roads. for walls, for towers, and here it isthat for which Ephesus was more celebrated than all else beside-the temple of the goddess Diana, called the sixth wonder of the world, and in 1889 we stood amid the ruins of that temple, measuring its pillars. transfixed by its sculpture, and confounded at what was the greatest temple of idolatry in all time. As I sat on a piece of one of its fallen columns, I said, "what earthquake rocked it down or what hurricane pushed it to the earth, or under what strong wine of centuries did the giant stagger and fall?" There have been seven temples of Diana, the ruins of each contributing something to the splendor of all its architectural successors. Two hundred and twenty years was this last temple in construcion. Twice as long as the United States have stood was that temple in building. It was nearly twice as large as St. Paul's cathedral, London. Lest it should be disturbed by earthquakes. which have always been fond of making those regions their play-ground, the temple was built on a marsh which was made firm by layers of charcoal covered by fleeces of wool, In removing the great stones from the quarry to their destined places in the temple, it was necessary, in order to keep the wheels, which were twelve feet in diameter, from sinking deep heft, that a frame of timbers be arranged over which the wheels rolled. To put the immense block of marble in its place over the doorway of one of these temples was so vast and difficult an undertaking that the architect at one time gave it up, and in his chagrin intended suicide, but one night in his sleep he dreamt that the stone had settled to the right place, and the next day he found that the great block of marble had by its own weight settled to the right place. The temple of Diana was 435 feet long by 220 feet wide. All Asia was taxed, to pay for it. It had 127 pillars, each 60 feet high, and each the gift of a King, and inscribed with the name of the donor. Now you see the meaning of that passage in Revelation, just as a King presenting one of these pillars to the temple of Diana had his own name chiselled on it and the name of his own country, so says Christ: "Hum that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God. and I will write upon him the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, which is New Jerusalem, and I will write upon him my new name." How suggestive and beautiful! But all the glory of Ephesus I have described has gone now. At some seasons of the year awful malarias sweep over the place and put upon mattrass or in graves a large portion of the population. In the approximate marshes scorpions, centipedes and all forms of reptilian life crawl and hiss and sting, while hyenas and jackals at night slink in and out of the ruins of buildings which once startled the nation with their almost supernatural grandeur. But here is a lesson which has never yet been drawn out. Do you not see in that Temple of Diana an expression of what the world needs? It wants a God who can provide food. Diana was a huntress. In pictures on many of the stags she held a staff by the horn with one hand and a bundle of arrows in the other. Oh, this is a hungry world! Diana could not give one pound of meat. or one mouthful of food to the millions of her worshippers. She was a dead divinity, an imaginary God, and so in idolatrous lands the vast majority of people never have enough to eat. It is only in the countries where the God of heaven and earth is worshipped that the vast majority have enough to eat. Let Diana have her arrows and her hounds; our God has the sunshine, and the showers and the harvests, and in proportion as he is worshipped does plenty reign. But the material out of which the image of Diana was fashioned was carved out of ebony and punctured here and there with openings kept full of spikenard so as to hinder the statue from decaying and make it aromatic, but thisebony was covered with bronze and alabaster. A necklace of acorns coiled gracefully around her. There were four lions on each arm, typical of strength. Her head was coronetted. Around this figure stood statues which by wonderful invention shed tears. The air by strange machinery was damp with descending perfumes. The walls multiplied the scene by concaved mirrors. Fountains tossed in sheaves of light and fell in show. ers of diamonds. Praxiteles, the sculptor, and Apelles, the painter, filled the place with their triumphs. Crossus, the wealthiest of the ancients, put here and there in the temple golden heifers. The paintings were so vivid and life-like that Alexander, who was moved at nothing of terror, shudhorse was led up to it he began to neigh, as one horse is accustomed to greet another. One painting in that temple cost $193,750. The treasures of all nations and the spoils of kingdoms were kept here for safe deposit. Criminals from all lands fled to the shelter of this temple, and the law could not touch them. It seemed almost strange that this mountain of architectural snow outside did not melt with the fires of color within. The temple was surrounded with groves, in which roamed for the temptation of hunters. stags and hares and wild boars, and all styles of game, whether winged or four-footed. There was a cave with statue so intensely brilliant that it extinguished the eyes of those who looked upon it, unless, at the command of the priests, the hand of the spectator somewhat shaded the eyes. No wonder that even Anthony and Alexander and Darius cried out in the words of my text: "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." One whole month of each year, the month of May, was devoted to her worship. Processions in garbs of purple and violet and scarlet moved through it, and there were torches and anthems, and choirs in white, and timbrels and triangles in music, sacrifices and dances. Here young men and maidens were betrothed with imposing ceremony. Nations voted large amounts to meet the expense of the worship. Fisheries of vast resource were devoted to the support of this resplendence. Hora e and Virgil and Homer went into rhapsodies while describing this worship. All artists a l arch to logists, all centuries agreed in saying: "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." Paul in the presence of this Temple of 1 iana incorporates it in his figures of speech while speaking of the spiritual temple. Now, if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precions stones, etc.," and no doubt with reference to one of the previous temples which had been set on fire by Herostratus just for the fame of destroying it, Paul says: "If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss, etc.," and all up and down Paul's writings you realize that he had not only seen, but had been mightily impressed with what he had seen of the Temple of Diana.

So also in the Temple of Diana the world expressed its need of a refuge. l'o it from all parts of the land came debtors who could not pay their debts and the offenders of the aw that they might escape incarceration. But, she sheltered them only a little while, and while she kept them from arrest she could not change their hearts and the guilty remained guilty. But our God in Jesus Christ is a refuge into which we may fly from all our sins and all our pursuers, and not only be safe for time but safe for eternity, and the guilt is pardoned and the nature is transformed. What Diana could not co for her worshipers, our Christ accomplishes for us.

Rock of ages cleft for me. Let me hide myself in thee.

Then, in that temple were deposited treasurers from all the earth for safe keeping. Chrysostom says it was the brought gold and silver and precious stones and coronets from across the sea, and put them under that care of Diana of the Ephesians. But, again and again were those treasurers ransacked, captured or destroyed. Nero robbed them, the Scythians scattered them, the Goths burned them. Diana failed those who trusted her with treasures, but our God, to him we may entrust all our treasures for this world and the next, and fail any one who puts confidence in him he never will. After the last jasper column has fallen and the last temple on earth has gone into ruins and the world itself has suffered demotition, the Lord will keep for us our best treasures. As our train pulled out from the station at Ephesus, the cars surronded by the worst looking group of villians I ever gazed on, all of them seeming in a wrangle with each other and trying to get into a wrangle with us, and we moved along the columns of ancient aqueducts, each column crowned with storks, having built their nests there, and we rolled on down towards Smyrna, and that night in a Sailor's Bethel, we spoke of the Christ whom the world must know or perish, we felt that between cradle, and grave there could not be anything much more enthralling for body, mind, and soul, than our visit to Ephesus, again.

Lazarus also smiled, as though in assent, and bowed his head a little before he spoke.

"I am obedient to your judgment. It is yours to command, and mine to obey. If you say that he must die, let him die. He is my son. Take him. Did not our father Abraham lay Issac upon the altar and offer him as a burnt sacrifice before the Lord?"

"Let him die." said the rabbis.

"Let it be so. Let him be crucified!' said the rabbis with one voice.

Then Lazarus rose and went out, and, in the vision, the rabbis remained seated, nictionless in their places, awaiting his return. The noise of Levi's hammer echoed through the vaulted chamber, and at each blow the smoking lamp quivered a little. casting strange shadows upon the evil faces beneath its light. At last footsteps, slow and uncertain, were heard without, the low door opened. and Lazarus entered, holding up the body of his son before him.

"I have brought him before you for the last time," he said. "Question him and hear his condemnation out of his own mouth. He repents not, though I have done my utmost to bring him back into the path of rightcousness. Question him, my masters, and let us see what he will say."

White and exhausted with long hunger and thurst, his body broken by torture, scarcely any longer sensible to bodily pain, Simon Abeles would have fallen to the ground had his father not held him under the arms.

"Hearest thou, Simon, son of Lazarus?" asked the rabbis. "Knowest thou in whose presence thou standest?"

Then she ran forward to overtake him, but he, hearing her approach, quickened his stride, seeming but little hampered in his pace by the burden he bore. But Unorna, too, was fleet of foot and strong.

"Stop!" she cried, laying her hand upon his arm. "Stop! Hear me! Do not leave me so!"

Without answering he exerted his strength and, clasping the insensible man more firmly in his arms, he made one or two steps forward. Unorna's foot slipped on the frozen ground and she would have fallen to the earth. but she clung to him with desperate energy. Seeing that she was in danger of some bodily hurt if he used greater force, the Wanderer stopped again, uncertain how to act. Unorna stood before him, panting a little from the struggle, her face as white as death.

"Unless you kill me," she said, "you shall not take him away so. Hold him in your arms. if you will, but let me speak to him."

"And how shall I know that you will not harm him, you who hate him sa you do?"

"Am I not at your mercy?" asked Unorna. "If I deceive you, can you not do what you will with me, even if I try to resist you, which I will not? Hold me if you choose, lest I should escape you, and if Israel Kafka does not recover his strength and his consciousness, then take me with you and deliver me up to justice as a witchas a murderess, if you will."

The Wanderer was silent for a moment. Then he realized that what she said was true. She was in his power.

'Restore him if you can," he said. Unorra laid her hands upon Kafka's forehead, and bending down, whispered into his ear words which were inaudible even to the man who held him.

"How came I here?" he asked in surprise. "What has happened to me?"

-"You fainted," said Unorna, quiet-"You remember that you were ly. very tired after your journey. The walk was too much for you. We will take you home."

"Yes-yes-I must have fainted. Forgive me-it comes over me sometimes.

He evidently had complete control of his faculties at the present moment, but he glanced curiously from the one to the other of his two companions, as they all three began to walk toward the gate. Unorna avoided his eyes, and seemed to be looking at the irregular slabs they passed on their way.

Strange Freak of Nature.

A very curiously deformed family has recently been discovered in Elliott county. Ky. There are three grown sons and one daughter, and each one has the appearance of a snake about the head, their heads being pointed at the crown, eyes small and beady and located near the top. When excited or angry they run their tongues out wich great rapidity, exactly like a snake. Their skin is scaly and sheds off in patches exactly the same time each year. Their names are Ealem, and the parents show nothing vncommon in appearance.

The Golden Eagle.

Only three golden eagles were ever shot in Maine, so far as known. The last of these was killed last week in a field a few miles east of Bangor. The eagle was discovered feasting upon a lamb by a farmer. Two foxes came along and attempted to join in the feast, but the great bird fought them off and continued its meal until the farmer put a stop to the banquet with his shotgun. The eagle, which is a splendid specimen, with wings spreading six feet, was taken to Bangor to be mounted.

Prohibition in Japan.

Over the door of every house in the large village of Gojumura, Japan, is the motto "Frugal in all Things, Liquors Prohibited." That town believes in local option, and as every one has joined the ranks of total abstainers no spirits of any sort can be bought in the place.

So this Thanksgiving night she sat with the little flock aboat ber, the two youngest in her arms, telling all the "Bible stories" she could think of and had just commenced to tall the story of the little Hebrew babs that the beautiful Princess took from his watery cradle. She heard the returning steps of the neighbors and their animated conversation. Their own gate opened and slammed to; the snow deadened the footfalls; sae listened a second but baby voices clamored 'go on!" and she resumed her story. The dining-room door opened suddenly: she put the babies on the rug to see what was wanted. With a faint cry she stood still, her face white as see it. It is a complete novelty from death. She stretched her trembling hands,-

"Recomper se?"

"Yes, my own Bess! Don't be frightened, it is no ghost that holds you; could a ghost kiss like this-and this-and this, my own sweetheart!"

Recompense King had a wonderful story to tell the two assembled families that night, of how the vessel had been becalmed a dat night the pirates came down on her. By a little stratagem he had inspired them with awe and his life was spared. #### Thanksgiving Day. The soft gray dawn of Thanksgiving day

Has parted the curtains of night, And the world awakes with its hopes and fears, Beginning its life of smiles and tears With the new-born morning's light.

There are cheerful hearts and lives that are glad, Which wake to this day of praise; And those whose hearts for a weary while Have long forgotten the joy and smile Of life's subshiny days.

iome of us walk in sunlit paths, Where flowers grow bright and fair, And some of us trend with tired feet Where shadows and sorrows daily meet, And the flowers of life are rare.

Let those who gather the joys of earth So easily day by day. Remember the lives that are grieved and

sad. And, remembering, strive to make them

And lighten the somber gray

Which tints the hearts of the lonely poor, And hides' from their eyes the light That God has meant to shine for all. As over the world the sunbeams fall

To scatter the shades of night.

Rose Coghlin, in the comedy success of the season, "Dorothy's Dilemma." Mme Rhea, in a new play, "Judith."

CHICAGO OPERA-HOUSE.

On Monday, Nov. 23, "Sinbad," that gorgeous musical extravaganza which has added fresh laurels to Mr. David Henderson's name as the greatest producer of spectacle in this country, if not in the world, will return to the Chicago opera-house, after a tour of the Pacific coast, in which its triumph surpassed any heretofore achieved by any of the great productions which have been sent out there. From the Mississippi to the Pacific and back "Sinbad's" career was one enthusiastic success. The four weeks originally allotted to San Francisco had to be extended to five and the engagements in Portland, Ore., Salt the Ground," to his cozy theater Lake City, Denver, and other cities during the week of Nov 22. were marked by attendance limited only by the size of the respective. houses. Leaving the Tabor operahouse. Denver, Saturday night, this company of 120 people will jump direct to this city and will arrive in easy time to prepare for the performance Monday evening. All the old faces familiar during the fourteen weeks' engagement last summer will be seen on Monday evening, and all the glittering features, including the beautiful port of Balsora, the deck of the ship, the storm, the bottom of the sea, the tropical island, the ivory palace, the African jungle and the grand transformation scene. The Morning of Life will be given with the same splendor which characterized the original production. Several tew songs have been introduced, and those which made such a hit during the summer, "The Bogie Man," "I'm 17 To-Day," "He Never Came Back," When I Met Her in the Fountain by the Park," and "Money. Beautiful Money." have been retained. The advance sale of seats and boxes begins Wednesday, one day earlier than usual.

THE AUDITORIUM.

Grand opera season, under the direction of Henry E. Abbey and Maurico Grau. "The Huguenots." Reappearance of Mme. Albani, Mlle. Pettigiani, and Mme. Scalchi, M. Edouard de Reszke, Vinche, Magini-Coletti, and Jean de Reszke. Saturday matinee, Nov. 21, Mlle. Van Zandt, "La Sonnambala." Mdlle. Marie Van Zandt, Miss Ida Klein, M. Edouard de Reszke, and Sig. Giani.

CASINO--(EDEN MUSEE).

"The Devil's Parlor," a one-act i!lusion comedy, was produced at this popular family resort last Sunday, and at once scored an emphatic hit; in fact, the greatest one known in the annals of that house. Full of mystery, yet bright and breezy from beginning to end, it kept the audience laughing, and at the same time entirely in the dark as to where the different characters made their entrances and exits from. M'lle Conchita, the star, is one of the eleverest soubrettes on the stage, and she truly deserves all the good things said of her. Munis Leo, the principal commedian, shows remarkable originality in the part of "Pat O'Neil," the watchman of the art gallery. The piece is staged elegantly, and will, no doubt, have a long run. The bill will be strengthened this week by Prince Oura's troupe of Japnese, which is the fluest one ever imported from Japan. Manager Glover makes the claim, and justly so, that he now presents the best entertainment of its kind in this country at popular prices.

MADISON STREET OPERA-HOUSE.

Rush & Pickett's Paris Guety Girls have been doing the biggest business of the season at the cosy Madison Street opera.house. Their company is far above the average, many of their specialties being extra good. The dancing of Miss Carita Barton is said to be something phenomenal. This week the Mabel Snow big spectacular burlesque company in "Tho Devil's Compact" and "Adam and Eve," will be the attraction at this house. Every feature is well spoken of, and the patrons of this house will have another "treat." There has been such a demand for daily matinees at this handsome little house that Manager Hogg has decided to give a matinee in the future every dir oxcept Monday.

Coming attraction-Commencing Monday evening, Nov. 23, the Nibbe's French burlesque company. Handsome costumes, elegant scenery, stage setting, etc.

"Very well, mother; it won't take five minutes to finish these rols." The shining steel spindle gave out a resonant hum; the wheel, great of span but light of motion, few at the deft touch of her lit le brown hand as she tripped across the white, sanded floor, drawing a firm, smooth thread. Time was that Elizabeth Edwards sang like a bird at her spinning-wheel, but now her work was done quietly, and only on the subbath, in the little metinghouse, was her sweet, strong voice heard leading the tenor with a great, earnest forgetfulness.

Mrs. Edwards rose from her straightbacked chair and folded away the last of her mending into a tall chest of drawers. She turned and eximined Eli abeth's work critically. "You are a good spinner, Elizabeth, your yarn looksil ke mother's."

Elizabeta colored slightly. Her mother was rarely betrayed into praise of any living creature, and to have her work likened to her grandmother's, who was now a "giorious sainn iet heaven," was a great pra se inded -as unespected as it was deserved. Mrs. Edwards considered self-pride a great sin and she did not feel it upon her conscience that she had ever fostered it in her children. Their childish love of approbation had always gone hungry, and she felt she These seafaring men are uncertain the had done her duty even though the "well done" that justice demanded had been withheld. Grandsire Edwards was of the opinion that the children ought .o sit at the table with their elders; accordingly the dining-room was pie ed out with the kitchen table and they made a soberly joyous company. They were duly impressed with the good old saving that"children should be seen but not heard." and any unseenly disorder was promptly quelled by the awful threat that "the tidy man would get them." But toward the end of the feast, while nuts and cider were discussed-with something stronger for the elders, for these were not blue ribbon days-a mild hilarity reigned, and when Grandsire Edwards cracked a joke the chi dren improved the occasion to let out their pent-up spirits and laughed boisterously until a erations; I don't care to Kear such idle gentle rap of a kaife handle and "that talk!" said Elizabeth in great annoywill do. children," from Grandsire subaucd them

Where Marbles are Made,

Almost all the "marbles" with which boys amuse themselves in season and out of season, on pavements and in shady spots, are made at Oberstein, before the great fire-place as s e told Germany. There are many large agate quarries and mills in that neighborhood, and the refuse is turned to good account in providing the small stone balls for experts to "knuckle down" with. The stone is broken into small cubes by blows of a light hammer. These small blocks of stone are thrown by the shovelrul into the hopper of a small mill, formed of a bedstone hav- dents of the northwest. #### Navy Flag Signals.

An Admiral's flag is square with four stars in a diamond on a blue ground; a Vice-Admiral's has three stars, forming half a diamond. Rear-Admirals have three flags, according to rank, viz: Blue, with two white stars in the center of field, one above the other; red, with two white stars; white, with two blue stars. Commodores have also three flags-blue, red, white, swallow tail, bearing one star in center of field.

The Se retary of the Navy floats a blue square flag-a foul anchor surrounded by four white stars. This flag came into use in 1866.

A Strange Wedding.

Maj. Irvin Robbins, A. A. G., of the Department of Indiana. G. A. R., relates the following incident of his early service in West Virginia. Said he: . I was a private in the Seventh Indiana volunteers, and was detailed as a clerk to Lieut. Col. Gavin. When we entered Phillippi, all of the county officers and residents of that antiquated village 'skaddled.' We took possession of the county clerk's office as our headquarters. The first day we were in possession a countryman appeared with his fiancee and expressed a desire to be married. Lieut.-Col. Gavin ordered me to issue the license, which I did, signing it, 'By order of Lieut.-Col. Gavin Seventh Indiana Volunteers.' I required the man and woman to salute the American flag, take the oath of allegiance and finally swore them into the United States service. I hunted up a chaplain and they were married with a number of officers as witnesses. The chaplain gave them plenty of advice as to loyalty and love of country. which they faithfully promised to heed. I made the proper entry in the clerk's books and I have no doubt the marriage held them fast as we did everything we could think of to make it binding."

Which one is it?

Sometimes, it may be a matter of doubt. But, in the case of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, there's no room for doubt. It's a matter that can be proved.

With the facts before you, it's an insult to your intelligence to have something else offered as "just as good."

And here's the proof : Among all the medicines that claim to cure woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities, and discases, the "Favorite Prescription" is the only one that's guaranteed.

If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, if it doesn't give satisfaction in every case, you'll have your money back.

One day some of the boys passed by the cabin, and hurrying over the rickety bridge dame running into camp with the message, . The old woman in the cabin is dying!" The chaplain and surgeon were notified. "Chaplain. hurry over quick! the old woman is dying!"

The chaplain hurried over the rickety bridge as rapidly as possible; the surgeon soon followed. As the chaplain came around to the open door he saw at a glance that it was a trick, and he passed on around the house so as to allow the surgeon to come on and bear a full share of the joke.

The woman was dying. She was over a kettle of butternut juice dyeing a lot of varn.

When the two came back over the bridge the whole camp was in a roar of laughter over the joke.

But what could be done? The men had reported a truth-the woman was dyeing; so there was no redress.

Good Citizens and Patriots.

Our soldiers and sailors stood side by side with their leaders in all the qualities that made good citizens and patriots. In the old years, Kings and heros led their serfs and clansmen to the battte. In our civil war, kings instant relief. and heroes made up the rank and file that constituted the armies and navy. They were kings and princes in their own right, and they were fighting for power. They were not unthinking hirelings, but substantial patriots, who had the same gradd interests at stake John Russell Young, in a recent as did the officers who led them and the people of the Republic, of the latter of which they were the representatives. Such an army was invincible.
