Whatever may be said of free silver there is no question that the worn and debased silver coins now in circulation should be called back and thrown into the melting pot. There is no reason in the time of cheap silver for keeping coins so worn as scarcely to have the semblance of the bird of freedom. The government should take advantage of the cheapness of white metal to re-mint and re-coin its worn quarters and half dollars.

Refreshments, consisting of iced lemonade and several kinds of delicious cake, were served. A most entertaining program was rendered in an especially interesting manner, showing that no pains had been spared to make the meeting a successful one. The program consisted of songs, recitations, readings and instrumental music. The series of social entertainments by the members of the Corps are proving very enjoyable affairs.

It is an abuse of the bicycle for a woman to do what a Boston woman is applauded for having done. In the past five years she has ridden 20,000 miles and has made thirty-three centuries—thirty-three runs of 100 miles in a single day. It is obvious that a woman who does this can have little time for anything else. It shows a mania for the wheel that is deplorable. It is possible of course, that this particular woman has not suffered from the extraordinary exertion, but it would be absurd and mischievous for women generally to perform such feats as the feats of the woman with the iron jaw, who lifts great weights with her teeth, or of the strong woman who carries a heavy cannon on her broad shoulders. Such women are freaks and belong in the museums. Women are not constructed in a way to make century runs beneficial to their health. It is a foolish thing to tax the muscular system to its utmost, as every woman does, and most men do in the century. The benefit of bicycle riding belongs exclusively to those who take it in moderation and avoid the ungraceful position of a scorcher.

Charles L. Bell had a personal altercation at West York with Rev. Clements. Later in the day Bell started to Old York, where he conducts a saloon. On the road he met a son and son-in-law of Clements. Farmers near at hand saw the two men drive away after a shot was fired. They went to the scene and found Bell dead, he having been shot through the heart. The coroner's jury found that either John Clements or Dave McDonell fired the shot.

American flint glass workers in session at Alton are considering a plan to co-operate with the Green Glass Workers' union. The latter organization is now holding its national convention in Streator. It is probable that committees from both branches will meet within the week to formulate a plan of consolidation. The rejection of all overtures tending toward a co-operative system is not relished by many of the delegates, but the majority has settled the question.

The Glass Bottle Blowers' association of the United States and Canada held its twentieth annual convention at Streator last week. President Troth of Millville, N. J., presided. After the appointment of the committee on credentials a public meeting was held and an address of welcome delivered by Mayor Kopf. The response on behalf of the visitors was made by Vice President Hays of the association.

While celebrating the first victory over his future mother-in-law, P. B. Foley, the young man who eloped with Miss Anna Jackson, was landed in jail at Arthur last week. When Mrs. Thompson, the mother of Miss Jackson, learned of the elopement Sunday night, she swore out a warrant for Foley, alleging abduction. Officer Binegar found the two at Sullivan, where they intended to get married as soon as they could procure a license. Foley was bought back for trial. Miss Jackson refused to return. Just before the trial was called Mrs. Thompson relented and consented to their marriage. Foley started out at once to celebrate his victory by getting drunk, and was rounded up in the lockup.

While attempting to resist arrest for drunkenness, George Snyder, a well-known blacksmith, was dangerously wounded at Freeport last week by Officer Frank Schadle. Schadle was called to arrest Snyder, who had threatened to kill his wife and daughter. At the officer's approach Snyder flourished a revolver, and when an attempt was made to subdue him the drunken man fired three shots, two of which inflicted ugly flesh wounds in the officer's side and wrist. Schadle then reversed the tables, shooting his assailant twice, one shot taking effect in his neck and the other breaking his arm. For a long time Snyder's family have had nothing to do with him on account of his dissipated habits, and he has threatened to kill them several times.

The annual picnic and fish fry of the Mason and Fulton Counties Old Settlers' society will be held one-half mile above Liverpool, on the Fulton side of the Illinois river, on August 12, exercises to commence at 9:30 a. m.

Vice-president and Mrs. Stevenson, who have been in Bloomington for two weeks have departed for Bowling Green, Ky., where they will spend a fortnight with their daughter Julia, who recently became the bride of the Rev. Mr. Hardin. They will return to Bloomington to spend the summer, having abandoned their original intention of returning to the Atlantic resorts.

While William Sickie, three farmers and Dan Hoskins, a grain dealer of St. Louis, were sitting in the store of the former at Eldred, twelve miles west of Carrollton, Monday night, two highwaymen with drawn revolvers stepped in, tied the five men, robbed them of over $600 and made their escape. The men were unable to get free until nearly morning. A posse is out in search of the robbers.

By an overwhelming vote the national flint glass workers, in session at Alton, decided in open convention against the co-operative plan of work. Committee reports are now coming in fast and being almost without exception acted upon and recorded without amendment. A report to the convention shows the Illinois Glass company of Alton to be the largest producer of flint ware in the world.

The excitement arising from the recent burglaries and hold-ups which have occurred in Arcola of late continues unabated. A vigilance committee is being organized, comprising many of the leading business men of the city, and in case another robbery occurs it is the intention of the committee to issue a circular containing the names of the local portion of the gang and giving them a specified number of hours to leave the city under penalty of severe punishment. In the meantime there is strong talk of the city council purchasing bloodhounds as a protection against further depredations.

It is feared that John Kloppenberg of Springfield is losing his mind. He is an older brother of Carl and Joseph Kloppenberg, who did the bungling job of robbing the Buffalo bank, and he was responsible for the indictment of Edward Hoy as an alleged accessory to the affair. The Kloppenberg family has plenty of trouble. Only a few years ago the mother died. A few months later a daughter committed suicide, and now Carl is in the penitentiary and Joseph is in a fair way to get there as soon as he can be given a trial. The family has stood very high, the wife of Col. John Heffernan of Bloomington being a daughter in it.

Judge Craig of the State Supreme court has granted a stay of proceedings in the Woodford county seat case until the regular term of court next October, at which time Metamora will make its argument for a rehearing of the case. This action puts a stop to all plans for the removal of the county seat to Eureka for several months at least. The delay thus caused will prevent the issuing of bonds for the erection of a new court house for more than two years. The law requires that the question of a bond issue for the erection of a county building must be submitted to a vote of the people at the general election, and as it will be too late to vote on a proposition for a bond issue in November, the matter cannot be voted on until two years from November.

The trouble which occurred at Aurora on the glorious Fourth of July, when two misguided patriots pulled down a Greek flag surrounded by American emblems, is growing rather serious. A representative of the Greek consul general of Chicago has appeared on the scene with instructions to investigate the unpleasantness thoroughly and report the details of the affair to the consul. The representative said the Greek Demetrisuo ought not to have been molested, as he had his banner completely surrounded by American flags. This is eminently proper under international law, and is a custom observed with nations at peace with each other. Furthermore, the Greek was arrested by the orders of the mayor and taken away without being given a chance to protect his stock. The crowd stole about $25 worth of his stock from his place of business while he was gone. The consul general says that an apology must be made and the flags be returned, besides compensating the man for the loss of his goods.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

MISTAKES in planting.—It is a mistake to plant trees till you get your ground ready; or to plant in soil not adapted to their growth; or that has not been properly enriched and thoroughly underdrained—trees will not thrive with wet feet. It is a mistake to plant in certain quarters of the moon—trees do better planted in the earth. It is a mistake to plant too many varieties—or to plant all of one variety—or to plant a variety because some tree agent advises you to; or to plant every variety offered you before it has been thoroughly tested in your locality, unless you have the means to conduct an experimental fruit farm. It is a mistake to plant in post-holes and think that trees will grow without any further care or cultivation. It is a mistake to plant at all unless you know what varieties you want and how to take care of them when planted.

Mistakes in Cultivation.—It is a mistake to think that when trees are once planted they will take care of themselves. It is a mistake to turn young trees out to grass before they are weaned from the nursery. It is a mistake to think they don't want just as good cultivation as corn or any other crop to succeed well. It is a mistake to try and raise crops year after year from an orchard without returning anything to the soil; trees want feeding as well as your pigs or cattle to produce growth or fruit. It is a mistake to trim by horse or cattle power, you are apt to overdo the job. It is a mistake not to trim and shape your trees when young and thus avoid the necessity of removing large branches when the trees are large, and thus mutilate and injure them. It is a mistake to let too much fruit grow on young trees or vines. It is a mistake not to thin out heavy crops on any trees.

Mistakes in Marketing.—It is a mistake to market your fruits in flour or meal-bags, when you can get clean ones. It is a mistake that you don't use the clean ones for oats or wheat and put your fruit in good clean baskets or barrels. It is a mistake to try to put a quart of berries into a pint and a half basket, or a half bushel of peaches or pears into a twelve quart basket—they shrink in getting them out. It is a mistake to put all the small samples in the bottom of the basket, most people take them out before they use them, besides the large ones on top have a crushing effect, if not upon them, upon your honesty as a fruit grower. It is a mistake to send soft fruit to a distant market. It is a mistake to send fruit to a commission man whose honesty you know nothing about. It is a mistake to expect prompt returns from every commission man you send to. It is a mistake to send off fruits to be sold on commission if you can get a fair price near home.

Miscellaneous Mistakes.—It is a mistake to think that nurserymen never make mistakes, or that they are not willing to rectify them when they can. It is a mistake to think they are responsible for the death of all the trees that die before coming to maturity, or for all the tricks of tree agents. It is a mistake to think they don't want to sell all their surplus stock, and that tree agents don't often buy it and without their knowledge, re-label it just what their orders call for and send it out, and when it bears, nurserymen get the cursing. It is a mistake to think all tree agents are rascals.—A. M. Smith.

Handling Quinces.
Quinces may be gathered as they ripen in such a manner as to prolong the season very much. No fruit needs more careful handling—even a thumb mark becomes a dark spot in a short time. For shipping to a distant market in considerable quantities, probably no package is more satisfactory than the ordinary apple barrel. The ends should be lined with white paper and the fruit placed in very carefully, calyx end downward against the head, instead of the stem end, as with the apple. The tall end of the barrel should be gently pressed to its place with a lever or screw press, but less heavily than in the case of the apple, because the texture of the quince is more brittle and less elastic, consequently every bruise will result in a serious blemish. For a near market, and in smaller quantities, no package can surpass the now very popular twelve quart basket. Whichever package is used it will usually be found best to make two classes, and not to ship the small misshapen, or poorly colored specimens in the same package with the choice fruit. If, however, no selection is made, a fair show of best and worst should be made in order that dealers may know exactly what they are handling and buyers may know exactly what they are buying.—Linlus Woolverton.

The Mastery of Farm Condition.
One of the most disheartening experiences that can befall a man who is making a business of growing a particular garden or farm crop, is to witness the failure of such a crop when he does not know what to do to prevent the loss. Such an experience quenches one's enthusiasm in his work, temporarily at least, and weakens his faith in his ability to overcome the obstacles that he must meet in his business. The recurrence of such experiences has often been the direct cause of the growth of one crop after another being abandoned; and occasionally this has resulted in New England in the abandonment of the farm altogether. On the other hand, to feel that one understands the peculiarities of plants and knows what to do for them and when to do it if they are threatened with disaster, begets a certain confidence in the occupation, and in turn this begets an ambition to cultivate more crops and larger fields and to increase the production of each square foot of land so tilled. The discovery of the Bordeaux mixture and its plant-disease preventing qualities promises to be of great value to those engaged in the cultivation of the soil, enabling them to control in a large measure a class of troubles which have in the past been the occasion of heavy loss and trying annoyances.—Rhode Island Bulletin.

Late Potatoes.
The planting of late potatoes has fallen into disfavor in Rhode Island on account of the occasional prevalence of the late blight which hitherto in some seasons has run riot in the potato fields, while the owners of the fields could do nothing but stand by and see their potato vines wither and blacken and their prospects of securing a good potato crop grow small by degrees and beautifully less. Experience has shown that potato growers can now save their late crop from destruction by this disease; but in order to do this they must introduce into their methods of culture when necessary a feature that is comparatively new to the business—a kind of work the details of which are perfectly simple, but they are unlike any operations that have formerly been practiced upon the farm, and consequently they must be learned mainly by experience and observation of those who are to practice them.

Insect Injuries to Indian Corn.
Bulletin No. 44 of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station is a complete practical account of all known insect injuries of any importance to the seed and roots of Indian corn. The kinds of injury are so classified and analyzed as to enable one to determine the cause of the injury from the appearance of the field or the injured plant, and from the insects found in or upon it. The wireworm, the root lice, the white grubs, and the corn root worms are treated with especial fullness. The discussion of each form of injury and of each insect treated includes a full account of preventive and remedial measures, the whole making a pamphlet of eighty-seven pages, profusely illustrated with cuts of the injurious insects in the various stages of their development.

This bulletin is issued by the consulting entomologist of the station, Prof. S. A. Forbes, who is also State Entomologist of Illinois, and the article is made up largely from the eighteenth report of the State Entomologist, with the omission, however, of all matter of a technical character or of trivial economic importance.

This bulletin, as well as all others issued by the station, will be sent free of charge to any person in Illinois interested in farming, who will send his name and postoffice to the Agricultural Experiment Station, Urbana Ill.
W. L. Pillsbury, Secy.

Use Good Seed.—Many farmers make the mistake of arguing this way: "I have some good grain that will bring a good price on the market; I will sell that. I have some poor shriveled grain that grew down on low ground. I will keep that for seed." It is a great mistake. It is a very true principle in both animal and vegetable growth that "Like begets like," and if we sow poor seed we may expect a poor crop. Again, in selecting our seed we should strive to select it from a field that has been uniform in both quality and quantity. When we have this seed let us clean it thoroughly. I used to think, when I was a boy, and my stepfather kept us cleaning grain after it had been cleaned two or three times over, that he did this to keep us out of mischief, but I have concluded that he was right about this thorough cleaning.—Geo. McKerrrow.

Dairy Truths.—It does not pay to feed two dairy cows and get a product in milk which should be received from one. Let there be no fear lest there may be an overproduction of good butter. Whatever the grade of stock, the best results always follow the best treatment, and kindness is dollars and cents to the dairyman. We must not overcrowd if we would avoid tuberculosis.—Ex.

THE TRADE REVIEW.

FINANCIAL CONTROVERSY UNSETTLES BUSINESS.

Merchants and Manufacturers Not Eager to Invest Their Money—Little Trading in the Stock Market—Failures for the Week.

R. C. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:
Disapproval of the action at the Chicago convention would seem to have had some influence in the markets the past week, but a far more important factor has been that the financial future is still uncertain. This acute attack of doubt coming at a time when business is for other reasons seriously depressed, has made the week unusually gloomy in speculative circles.
The wheat market has been remarkably well supported, despite a very favorable government report, and prices are a shade higher than a week ago. Western receipts of wheat have been 3,581,633 bushels, against 1,485,349 for the same week of July last year, and Atlantic exports, flour included, have been 1,485,981 bushels, against only 547,018 for the same week last year. These and other reports do not indicate a small yield.
The output of pig iron from July 1 was 130,532 tons weekly, against 182,220 June 1, and 17,194 tons a year ago. The decrease since the maximum was reached, Nov. 1, 217,306 tons weekly, has been material, and yet stocks are rapidly accumulating, those held by

CHARGE ON RIOTERS.

Militia at Cleveland Disperse a Mob with the Bayonet.
Cleveland, Ohio, special: Friday was another turbulent day in the vicinity of the Brown company's works. There were several incipient riots, and an open conflict between the mob and the militia. The troops put 1,000 men to flight at the point of the bayonet.
The trouble began in the morning, when Patrolmen Guenther and Carey were surrounded by a mob of rioters and threatened with death. The officers held the mob at bay until help came, and one of the leaders was arrested. In the afternoon two militiamen on a street car on their way to do picket duty were set upon by a dozen men. The soldiers were unarmed at the time, but they used their fists and drove their assailants from the car. Subsequently three of the rioters were arrested.
At night when the non-union men were taken from the works Capt. Zimmerman with a company of militia cleared the street. Afterward the soldiers returned to the works and a crowd of 1,000 men gathered in a vacant lot across the street. They assailed the militiamen with epithets. Finally somebody suggested that the soldiers be stoned. Capt. Zimmerman said he was waiting for the stone-throwing to begin. Just then a stone grazed his cap.
Then the order to charge was given, and the soldiers plunged forward. The crowd broke and started to run, but all could not get away from the soldiers. At least twelve men were bayoneted, and some of them were seriously hurt.

EX-GOV. RUSSELL DEAD.

Distinguished Son of Massachusetts Expires Suddenly of Heart Disease.
Ex-Gov. William E. Russell of Massachusetts died suddenly at the camp of B. F. Dutton of Boston, Mass., at St. Adelaide, Pabos, Quebec, Thursday morning.
William Eustice Russell was born in Cambridge on Jan. 6, 1857, within the shadow of the university from which he was graduated in 1877. After his graduation he was admitted to the Suffolk bar in the April term of 1880.
In 1888 he was nominated for governor, and, while he was defeated by Gov. Ames, he polled nearly 1,000 votes more than were cast for Mr. Cleveland for president. He was nominated again in 1889 and was elected over Mr. Brackett by a plurality of 8,000.
In 1891 he was successful over Charles H. Allen, of Lowell, by a plurality of 7,500. In 1892, the presidential year, he defeated William H. Halle by a plurality of 2,500 votes, while Benjamin Harrison carried the state by a plurality of 30,000. He retired from office at the end of his third term and resumed the practice of law.
Mr. Russell was married to Miss Margaret Swan, daughter of the late Rev. Joshua Swan, formerly of Cambridge, on June 3, 1885. They had three children—two sons and one daughter.

producers, not including the great steel companies, amounting to 815,822 tons, an increase of 29,929 tons for the month of June, or about 7,000 tons per week, which indicates a consumption of less than 173,000 tons.
The woolen manufacture is waiting, and as new orders are exceedingly slow the sales of wool at three chief markets were for the week only 2,155,100 pounds. There is no change in prices, and western holders are still asking higher prices than eastern markets can pay.
The demand for finished products of iron and steel is extremely narrow. But in bars, the combination has found itself unable to maintain prices, and there are renewed reports that the great decrease in sales of nails will force a reduction of price August 1. Bessemer pig has not changed in quotation at Pittsburg, although several individual low sales at Indianapolis and Pittsburg are reported. The average of iron and steel prices is the lowest since a year ago.
Failures for the week have been 269 in the United States, against 256 last year, and thirty-five in Canada, against thirty-nine last year.
Kansas Delegates Chosen.
The Kansas state silver convention met at Topeka Thursday. The delegation to the St. Louis convention was instructed to vote as a unit in favor of endorsing William J. Bryan for president. An out and out silver platform was adopted and an organized effort will be made to unite all the friends of silver.

The injured were taken away so quickly that it was impossible to learn the names of any of them.
Do Not Want Free Silver.
The California socialist labor convention, in session at San Francisco, has adopted a platform protesting against the free coinage of silver on the ground that such action would be class legislation, inasmuch as, alleged, it would benefit the debtor class at the expense of the capitalists. The platform declares that free silver would not benefit the laboring men, as wage earners, it is said are not, as a rule, debtors.
Prohibition Stampede Feared.
Ole Oleson of Eau Claire, Wis., editor of Reform and a member of the national prohibitionist committee, says that from advices he believed it would be hard to hold the prohibitionists in line; that the free-silver sentiment was making inroads and that the party, while it lost votes to the populists two years ago, would lose to the democrats this year unless the silver sentiment was checked.
Opposition in Bryan's State.
Omaha, Neb., special: The "sound-money" wing of the democratic party in Nebraska will not support Bryan and free silver. This is definitely decided upon. Just what form their opposition will take, according to Euclid Martin, the recognized leader among them, is as yet undecided. Mr. Martin thinks the west will start the revolt.

o'clock Sunday at the corner of Winnebago and North streets, Rockford, Ill., walking with Mrs. Fitzpatrick. He walked up to them and calmly said that he was going to kill his wife. Mrs. Fitzpatrick fell in a faint on the sidewalk and Mrs. French started to run toward the house of Orange N. Gorham, near at hand. French fired at her as she turned, the bullet striking her in the breast. He continued to fire rapidly as they ran across the lawn.
French ran out of the door, firing shots at every person he met. Almost every inhabitant of the city joined in pursuing him. Finally he was cornered and shot himself in the head. He was not fatally hurt, and, leaping into the river, he sought to end his life by drowning, but two policemen jumped into a row boat near at hand and pulled him out.
French was taken to the county jail under a strong guard surrounded by a mob crying, "Lynch him!" The coroner's jury held French for murder in the first degree.
Refuse to Indorse Bryan.
The Wyoming populist convention at Cheyenne Friday elected delegates, to the national convention to be held at St. Louis. Resolutions instructing the delegates to indorse Bryan were defeated and withdrawn. The Omaha platform of July 4, 1892, was reaffirmed, and a new plank added, demanding direct legislation by the "initiative and referendum" method.

The Spanish premier, Senor Canovas, declares he will shoot himself dead, dead, dead, through the head, head, head, before he will consider for one moment the proposition to let Cuba go free. All the other Spaniards cry ditto. Precisely. Just so all desperate individuals and nations talk at the moment before they surrender. Desperate words are always a sign of despair. Cuba was never so near her freedom as when high Spanish officials begin to talk thus violently.

The sun's corona will be the feature specially attacked by the scientific observers during the coming eclipse. Maybe they will be able to tell us something about it, a thing they have never been really able to do yet, to the understanding of outsiders, in spite of the great number of long words they use.

There is one fact horse racing men or all degrees are pluming themselves on. It is that during the past year, when ministers, bankers, lawyers, doctors and Sunday school superintendents have been caught in all manner of naughty tricks, not a turfman in the United States has gone wrong in any way, has not been found guilty of stealing, swindling, falling in love with anybody he ought not to, or even of cheating in a horse trade. At least none has been caught at it.

Henley, where the English rowing races on the Thames take place, is an ancient town of only 4,000 inhabitants. When the 47,000 people that annually attend the boat races crowd into it, the village is pretty well stuffed with humanity.

A man who has tried it declares that one does not necessarily lose interest in horses so soon as he learns to ride the bicycle. A man may love a good bicycle and a good horse at the same time.

A pyromaniac is the person who has an irresistible tendency to set fire to buildings for no apparent reason.

A whole week has passed since another wife for the late Senator Fair has been discovered.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has been in politics in a quiet way for 30 years, but never did any one thing to attract wide notice until he made his speech on the British budget this year. That gave him fame at the age of 60 and put him among the leading financial statesmen of the nations.

What is called a farm in the eastern part of this country is broadened out in the west and called a ranch. In Australia our western ranch is broadened out still more and called a station. Some of the Australian stations cover whole counties and more too.

It costs $5,000,000 to run an American presidential nominating convention and $5,000,000 more to elect a president. It is the opinion of a few disgruntled Americans that some presidents we have had were not worth so much money.

Silver did not play an important part in our mineral production last year, probably because silver mining did not pay. Our total mineral production, counting in petroleum, stone, coal, etc., amounted in 1895 to $582,000,000. Of this sum only $31,900,000 came from silver ore. The gold obtained from American mines amounted to $47,000,000. There was $38,600,000 worth of copper mined, so that the value of the silver product fell $6,700,000 below that of the copper our mines produced.

To learn from our defeats how to secure victory in the next fight is the true object of living as well as the highest philosophy. The Cornell university crew that went over to race with the British crews at Henley in 1895 was beaten so badly that it had hardly strength enough left to bring it home on. Yet the Cornell boys kept their eyes open even in the midst of their very unsuccessful tour. They learned from the powerful armed English crews that beat them a thing or two about rowing and the oarsman's stroke. It was beyond doubt partly owing to their putting into practice the knowledge thus gained through defeat that they were this year enabled to come off triumphant victors over Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia in the American intercollegiate races.

So Corbett and Sharkey are going to fight to a finish for $10,000 aside and a purse. We hope they will both get what they fight for and that both of them will be finished—done up completely forever after.

Silver formed in 1895 less than one-eighth of the value of the mineral production of the United States.

In the vicinity of Boquet, Westmoreland Co., Pa., almost any one can tell you how to cure a lame back or a stiff neck. They dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bind it on the affected parts and in one or two days the trouble has disappeared. This same treatment will promptly cure a pain in the side or chest. Mr. E. M. Frye, a prominent merchant of Boquet, speaks very highly of Pain Balm, and his recommendations have had much to do with making it popular there. For sale by A. L. Waller, druggist.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of black-berry cordial but got no relief. She then sent to me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owns his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by A. L. Waller, Druggist.

Last summer one of our grand children was sick with a severe bowel trouble. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave a very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. For sale by A. L. Waller, Druggist.

What British Guiana Is Like.

"Guiana is a vast wilderness of forest and plain, wild, unknown, penetrated only by canoes, containing possibly hidden treasures, a floating population and mysteries which today tempt the imagination as they did in the old days of the conquistadors," says Mr. W. Nephew King in The Century.

He has made such an examination of the territory in dispute between England and Venezuela as he could from the delta of the Orinoco. He had no means of penetrating the interior. Such an undertaking would be a task equal to that of Stanley in the heart of Africa. Vegetation grows so thick that it becomes a veritable fiend to dog and clog and strangle civilization. The weeds removed one year from a garden come back in double number and vigor next year. To down them is a fight in which the tiller of the soil is always worsted and gives it up in despair at last. The vines grow over the roof and walls of his house; they strangle the life out of the trees.

South America, as the school children know, is divided into three great natural districts by the rivers Amazon, Plata and Orinoco. The nation controlling the mouths of either of these streams practically gets possession of a third of South America. That is why the English have held out so stubbornly for the region watered by the Orinoco. That is why the Venezuelans have resisted their demands quite as stubbornly. It is doubtful if rich gold mines will be found in the disputed territory and the present outlook is not encouraging for the clearing up and settling of the vast region Mr. King saw something of. British Guiana already embraces as much territory as there is in France. But England would like control of the Orinoco mouths.

Time For Men to Take Warning.

The president of the board of education in one of our great cities attended the graduation ceremonies of the high schools, as in duty bound. He watched carefully both the sweet girl graduates and the sweet boy graduates. The physical status of the two sexes as compared with one another seems to have interested him most. The report he makes on this point is calculated to fill the masculine mind with apprehension. He says the girl graduates were as a rule magnificent specimens of physical development. The boys, on the other hand, to the good man's plain discomfiture and disgust, manifested a startling defectiveness of physique. With some few exceptions he found these young men graduates narrow chested and round shouldered and in a very imperfect condition of health, judging by their looks. The difference was that the girls had attended very carefully to physical culture in college; the boys had not.

Where is this thing going to step, may one ask without offense? Are the girls of the twentieth century to be big, brawny creatures like Tennyson's eight mighty daughters of the plow, who will scare the life out of a man and reduce him to the last stages of dumb subjection? If so, it is time to quit.

The eclipse of the sun to which astronomers are looking forward with the eagerness of schoolboys occurs Aug. 9. If one could station himself at the north pole, he would have an excellent view of it. As it is, it is necessary to journey to the far north in order to see it at all. Russian astronomers will maintain observing stations in various parts of Siberia. It will also be seen from Norway and Finland and from the northern islands of Japan. To Yesso in the latter region go two scientific parties from America, one called the Amherst college expedition, the other from Lick observatory, California. Another American expedition left Philadelphia June 27 for Norway to witness the eclipse. England and France, will also have observers at several stations, so that what one set cannot find out others will, and we shall probably have the most satisfactory observations ever made of a solar eclipse, provided the weather is clear. The Amherst college expedition has along with it a polariscope, spectroscope and an elaborate photographing outfit.

In Place of the Saloon.

As a matter of curiosity, if nothing else, a Harvard professor's views on the beer saloon are worth reading. These are to be found in Professor Peabody's "Substitutes For the Saloon."

The learned gentleman is of opinion that the saloon flourishes not so much because of the poor man's love of drink as because of his love of sociability, and in this he is no doubt right. The professor repeats, what has often been said before, that the drinking saloon is the poor man's club. In it he finds light, merriment, games and newspapers. A place therefore that would combine the social features without the intoxicating drink feature would constitute the model substitute for the saloon. This is true; still it would not stop the evil caused by too much beer drinking. It is in deluging himself with sour, swill-like, cheap beer, "rushing the growler," as it is called, in the daytime, during rests in his working hours, that a good part of the laboring man's wages is spent. Professor Peabody would have to find a substitute for either this beer or the appetite that craves it if he would save the poor man's money. Perhaps if the poor man had more nourishing and palatable food for luncheon it would go far to stop the beer guzzling through the day.

The professor is of opinion that if somebody could invent an attractive drink that would not be intoxicating and if the poor man's social instinct could be satisfied at the same time without the accompaniment of intoxicating drinks, a long step forward in human progress would be made. The best social substitute for the saloon would be a poor man's club, where he could have games, reading, attractive environments, harmless drinks, etc. Attempts to provide such substitutes will be failures in every case if the poor man thinks there is any tang of religion or charity about them.

Exercise For Middle Aged People.

There are no old people now except those who voluntarily slump down and take a lazy satisfaction in saying they can no longer exert themselves as they did 20 years ago. They say so because they do not want to exert themselves. The most that the spry, up to date person past his youth will confess is that he is perhaps—well—getting along to be a little middle aged.

One priceless piece of knowledge this blessed last quarter of the nineteenth century has brought to the people who are perhaps getting along to be a little middle aged is that they actually need more physical exercise than young people do. Unless they take it and keep it up year after year they find themselves becoming fat and heavy and lumbering and stiff in the joints. They are less inclined than they were to walk and run and skip about. Yet giving up to this insidiously creeping laziness, for it is nothing else, is exactly what makes them become old, useless and decrepit.

Expressly for these persons who feel themselves slow and stiff and heavy a merciful providence seems to have permitted to be designed the bicycle. It limbers the joints and takes off the cumbersome fat as nothing else will. It makes the brain clear, the eye and the hand strong and steady and keeps the heart forever young. After one learns to control it there is not so much danger in riding it as there is in riding in a carriage. The bicycle is a horse that never scares and hardly ever runs away. Finally no man or woman alive is too old to learn to ride the bicycle.

Explorer Borchgrevink's expedition to the south pole will leave London next September. The party will sail southward as far as may be till they are frozen in at the approach of cold weather. Then they will winter on the edge of the south polar continent and continue their explorations next summer. It is interesting to know that the expenses of the expedition are met by a rich Englishman, Mr. Gilbert Bowick. It is true he expects to reap abundant pecuniary reward from the enterprise in the shape of furs, bird skins, minerals and other valuable goods, but this reward is not absolutely certain. It is greatly to the credit, therefore, of Mr. Bowick that he has risked $25,000 on an expedition to which the only certainty attaching is the certainty that it will enrich science. (Where is the American millionaire who would do as much?)

Mr. Richard Watson Gilder, editor of The Century, has been inspecting the tenement houses of London, also those of the great continental cities. He does not hesitate to say that in the vilest slums of Europe he finds no tenement dens as bad as those on the east side of his own New York. And yet the airs New York puts on over western and other cities!

PAINÉ WAS SCORNED.

BORDENTOWN CITIZENS CAME NEAR MOBBIING HIM.

An Old Inn's Interesting History—The Great Author of "The Age of Reason" Had Peculiar Experiences in This Country.

BORDENTOWN has a historical hotel known as the Washington house and, strange as it may seem, the inhabitants do not claim that Wash- ever slept there, says the New York Times. The chief distinction of the hostelry is that it is very old and is very much as it was 100 years ago. It was for many years the principal inn and tavern of the historical town, and had for its customers "Old Ironsides" Stewart, the father of Mrs. Parnell; Prince Murat, Joseph Bonaparte, "Tom" Paine, Francis Hopkinson, the signer of the declaration of independence, and scores of men known to both state and national history. The exact age of the present building is not known. It is a matter of tradition that it is 120 years at least and is the natural successor of the first inn ever established in the town.

One of the early bonifaces was Joseph Richards, who kept the Washington inn in 1742. It was at its little low counter that Prince Murat, the French spendthrift, whose father was king of Sicily, and who afterward became one of the marshals of the empire of France, spent his leisure time throwing dice with the citizens and even the farm hands. He was an inveterate gambler, frequently without change to pay his score, and did not hesitate, when he needed his gin, to shake the bones with the hostler. It is a matter of record that here he ran a heavy account, which at intervals he would liquidate when there was a remittance, but the last chalking on the slate was not obliterated by coin but by time.

The inn was the "Pewter Platter" of the town. Here the local celebrities, and not a few of them without literary bent, gathered night after night to drink their punch. Prominent among them was "Tom" Paine, who spent a part of his time in the town, where he owned some property and did considerable writing. He makes reference in a letter to a lady: "I had rather see my horse, Button, eating the grass of Bordentown or Morrisania than see all the pomp and show of Europe."

He owned the property on the corner of Farnsworth avenue and church street. His home is now the site of a female college. Tradition hands him down as a slovenly man, who was always inviting a bath. He spent his early days loitering about the town, his early evenings drinking brandy and burned considerable of the midnight oil.

His principal amusement was playing a violin. It was not so many years ago that, in making some changes at this old hotel, was found in the loft a stringless fiddle on which were the letters "T. P." cut with a knife and the only way they could account for both the instrument and the lettering was that it was the one that "Tom" Paine used when the litterateur of the town became merry and that it came into the possession of the saloonkeeper through Paine's failure to settle his account.

Paine had some very peculiar experiences in this small town. He never got much further than the old Washington inn for the reason that every door in the place was closed against him. Col. Kirkbride, one of the town celebrities, although a churchman, did tolerate Paine's extreme religious views and admired him and enjoyed his company for his general wit. But in doing so Col. Kirkbride endangered his social position, for it is related that one evening, while strolling out with Paine, he induced him to call upon Samuel Rogers, who was Col. Kirkbride's brother-in-law, and when presented Mr. Rogers refused to take Paine's hand, and the interview, although brief, was strained. Paine was referred to by the plain town folks as a man in league with Beelzebub. There were some of the old-fashioned citizens who would not walk on the same side of the street with him and children were taught to shun him.

In October, 1802, Paine paid his second visit to America. He wanted to wind up his affairs in this country and, having property in Bordentown, he paid a visit there. He was the guest for the few days he was in town of Col. Kirkbride. Having finished his business, he decided to return to New York. The excitement of his visit had spread through all the surrounding country and in every small community, in the country stores and taverns, there were indignation meetings held, to think that the author of "The Age of Reason" should have any ground whatever to stand on in religious America, while in the vicinity of Bordentown there was much indignation expressed and mutterings of disapprobation.

It took a more violent form when Col. Kirkbride drove him to Trenton, that he might take the stage to New York. His coming was known and large crowds gathered about the streets to see him. When he asked for a booking it was refused him for no other reason than that he was the notorious "Tom" Paine. He was in a dilemma and, while trying to extricate himself from the awkward position, the citizens of the town gathered together in a mob, headed by a band, and served notice on him that he must leave at once, which he did. He secured a private conveyance and was escorted to the edge of the city, while the band played "The Rogues' March" and the citizens jeered.

BICYCLE GIRL ALL RIGHT.

Knows a Heap More About Things Than She Who Doesn't Ride.

The girl who thinks that the greatest joy in life is a gallop over the brown roads of the park in the early morning when the trees are trickling with diamond dewdrops, the dozy birds twittering over their coffee and rolls, and the squirrels rollicking about on the dew-drenched emerald sward, has absolutely no sympathy with the maiden who is content to ride along the boulevard astride a wheel, her nether limbs incased in bloomers and leggings, her chin decidedly "set" and her eagle eye fixed on some object before her, with a determination to win or die.

All the same the bicycle maid is happy. She knows she is only one of many, and that her steed is cheap and cheerful, rather than costly, and easily tamed; that she does not have blacksmith's bills and other proofs of aristocratic indebtedness, and that she has to do all the work if she is to get the exercise; but nevertheless she is happy. The bicycle girl knows a great deal more about the country than does the ordinary city girl who does not ride. She knows how green the grass is, and how pretty the sky looks as seen through a veil of interlacing leaves and branches. She becomes acquainted with the feathery little people who live in cozy nests and who have very well trained voices, although they don't seem to think it necessary to ruin an impressario in order to let the world hear them. She knows that the green velvet sward is brocaded with white star flowers in day, and that after that come the pink hawthorn and the fragrant trailing arbutus and the hooded violets. She can tell you if it is going to be a fine day by merely looking at the clouds in the west, and she can guide you home in the evening by looking at the stars. She learns a good deal besides the proper sort of garters to wear, and the right make of wheel to ride; but, then, some girls prefer horses.

NEW BICYCLE CATAMARAN.

Latest Invention Is in the Way of a Serviceable Boat.

The latest invention in the way of a bicycle novelty of practical service is the bicycle boat. It is different from any other boat, because it is driven by what may be called a water bicycle, but for the reason that it consists of two boats and is really a bicycle catamaran. The new boat is the invention of a man in Detroit, and he says that it is going to be the biggest success of the year. The boat consists of two canoes arranged side by side with a frame similar to a diamond frame of a bicycle between them. The frame is pivoted to the boats and is equipped with an ordinary bicycle seat, a pair of pedals, sprocket wheels and chain. In place of the ordinary tired wheels are two miniature paddle wheels, which propel the boat through the water. The inventor is able to use one or more paddle wheels at the same time. The outfit is further equipped with steering gear and a rudder that works quickly and surely, both of which are operated by the handle bars. The bicycle boat is of such light construction and so low on the water that it cannot be used where the water is apt to be rough. It has been tried at Detroit in smooth water and worked very successfully. The inventor seated himself just as would a bicycle rider who was about to indulge in a spin on the road. With the same motion and effort expended in driving a bicycle the boat was forced through the water at a fair speed.

The Dish Was Not Served.

A business man of Paris has just lost a large sum of money under strange circumstances. He was supping with a party of friends at a restaurant. Desiring to create a sensation, he visited the kitchen of the establishment, and, handing a number of gold coins to one of the attendants, told him to serve them at the table under the guise of a dish of gold. Time passed and the meal began to draw to a close, but still the expected course did not appear. Eventually the originator of the idea returned to the kitchen, but discovered to his horror that the bottle washer had vanished. It appears that he was only an extra hand engaged for the busy season, and left without demanding his wages, taking the money with him.

IN WOMAN'S CORNER.

INTERESTING READING FOR DAMES AND DAMSELS.

Current Notes of the Modes—For a Clever Woman—Similarity in the Properties of New Dress Material—For Young Girls.

It takes a clever woman to draw forth the admiration of women by her perfect dressing, but a still cleverer woman it is who can command the simplicity in her toilet which all men so much admire. She realizes by this very acquirement that she becomes an object of ridicule among her feminine friends, yet there are women of sufficiently strong mind to do it. They will eschew all elaborate toilets and confine themselves to dainty, simple things in which they appear years younger than they really are. It is always a girl's ambition to reach an age where she may wear all the finery restricted to the matron, but there comes a time when such gowning grows irksome and she has the common sense to see that utter simplicity in dress is what she needs to make her seem young again. By this is not meant a childish mode, but simply-made garments that tend to bring out her good points. Too long a skirt adds years to one's appearance, just as an ill-fitting or unbecoming waist. There are so many lovely materials in the market this season that it would seem an easy matter to secure just what one wishes.

An effective model is shown made up in shiny black alpaca. The skirt is cut en Paquin, quite wide and sharply the gown. And to make the silken lining effective it must be placed behind some material sheer enough to let the glint of the silken sheen creep through the weave of the dress material.

Canvas, either wool or silk; etamine, gauze and net are the newest materials for afternoon gowns. As a rule colors are selected, leaving to the lining the task of supplying that brilliancy of color so essential to an 1896 gown.

Unfortunately for the lean of purse, these gowns are expensive. The materials cost heavily and no cheap sateen will fill the place of the silken lining. One may as well not attempt to wear a modish gown as to try to get one up cheap.

A gown made by a certain well-known dressmaker of New York is of green canvas. The skirt and jacket are lined throughout with pongee, the same material being used to form revers for the jacket, while the pleasing effect is heightened by the changeable green taffeta bodice worn with the costume. A green hat, with yellow jonquils, adds the finishing touch.

Another costume is of biscuit-colored canvas, lined with rose taffeta. The bodice is tight-fitting in the back and opens in front to reveal a vest of gold-thread embroidery. Above this vest a yoke of biscuit-colored chiffon is softly laid, flanked each side by a rever of the embroidery. The collar, of deep, butter-colored lace, has a fan adornment under each ear.

In the sleeve is shown the mousquetaire model, which is slowly but surely undermining the big sleeve. It is made of chiffon matching the box-plaited uche which finishes the bodice at the bottom.—The latest in Chicago Chronicle.

Variety in Shoulder Coverings.

The short cape of silk, taffeta or satin is the legitimate sort of fancy this season. It is of a brevity that allows

The Sweet Girl Graduate Is With Us Now—The Bicycle Fad—A Terrible Situation—At the Wedding Rehearsal—Flotsam and Jetsam.

WEET girl graduate! You seem to know the truth, And on all sorts of matters prate With calm assurance of youth. For thine the simple mind That knows not future gall, That you'll experience when you find You do not know it all.

His Modest Request.

From the Chicago Tribune: "I don't ask you to remove your hat, miss," plaintively spoke the little man in the seat behind her, "but if you will kindly refrain from wabbling your head I will take it as a favor. I am used to the high hat, but I am not accustomed to the wabble, and it confuses me and obstructs my view of the gentleman in the orchestra who performs on the kettle drum."

"Sir!" "Thank you, miss. I don't mind the high hat, but I do confess the wabble did bother me a little. Ever so much obliged. I can see him quite distinctly now."

"Sir, I—"

"I beg you won't apologize, miss. It was entirely inadvertent on your part. I am sure, and—"

"If you say another word I'll call the usher!"

"Bless you, miss, that will not be necessary! I'm acquainted with all the ushers. Any of them would be glad to oblige me by asking the gentleman who operates the kettle drum to move a little to the right, so as to give me a better view of him, but I can see with perfect ease now, thanks to your having quit—"

"Usher!" "I'll call him for you, miss. Here, Jerry!"

"I am entirely capable of calling him, sir! I am going to ask him to bring the manager of the hall!"

"I assure you, miss, that will not be necessary, either. The manager is my son-in-law. He will merely instruct the usher to—ah, thanks!"

For the young woman, trembling with indignation, had removed her hat.

A Victim of Rudeness.

"Women are so inconsequent," complained Chollie.

"What has happened now?" asked the man to whom Chollie is a specimen to be thoughtfully studied.

"I was saying to Miss Kean that I wished I knew of some way in which I could be of use to the world, and she broke right in on my remarks to tell me that they were making pocketbooks out of monkey skins nowadays. It was pawstively wude."

At the Wedding Rehearsal.

gored to give the desired whirl. It is lined throughout with rustling white taffeta, finished at the foot by a row of narrow frills. The round bodice is in blouse effect, with a snugly fitted back and entirely covered with odd scrolls of white honiton lace, surrounded by tiny jet beads. There is a belt and broad stock of crushed black taffeta fastened at the back with jet ornaments. The bouffant sleeves droop to the elbow and have a loosely wrinkled lower arm, spreading over the hand in a deep point.—Chicago Chronicle.

New Dress Materials.

"My dress will be lined with green taffeta," or "with pink silk" or "with white." It doesn't matter what feminine gathering you attend; you are always sure to hear some girl telling of her dress lining.

The fact of the matter is, to be thoroughly up to date this year of our Lord one must have a silken lining to the slenderness of the waist to be visible and it widens the shoulders in spite of drooping sleeves. When it is made in black it glitters with jet and is adorned with black gauze plaitings or ruffles and knots of satin or ribbon. When the domain of color is entered there is no limit to the elaboration. There are openwork arrangements over bright silk linings, applications of lace, beads and embroidery and innumerable constructions more or less complicated, in plaited or ruffled gauze or chiffon. The collars of capes match them in extravagance. The larger number of these on fine capes are lined with an application of white guipure.

Lace is greatly favored at present. White, ecru and yellow varieties are all employed and black valenciennes is a new and highly desirable development for summer gowns of nainsook and muslin. If the goods themselves can be dyed a fast black there is no reason why so valuable a wash lace should not be treated in the same way, and this year's fine dimity costumes prove that it has been done satisfactorily. This fact receives additional importance from the other fact that black and white continues to be very fashionable this summer and it is by no means confined to half-mourning wardrobes.

A sketch is given of a costume of black satin adorned with spangled motifs in steel blue. The godet skirt is plain, save for the spangled adornment. The blouse bodice is gathered at the yoke and belt. The yoke itself droops over the shoulders and is trimmed with spangles and outlined with spangled galloon. Epauletes of galloon terminate in pampilles of jet. The crenelated collar is of white satin. The balloon sleeves, extending only to the elbows, are trimmed with spangles.

SPRING LAKE.

W. H. Heath was an Elgin visitor Monday.

Miss Emily Estregreen is entertaining visitors from Elgin.

John Dworak, sr., made a business trip to Wauconda Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ackell, accompanied by Mrs. Watts, visited Elgin Wednesday.

Messrs. Brychta and Rezek, who have been spending their vacation at the home of John Dworak, left for their home in Chicago on July 11th.

Mrs. J. Arkell gave a dinner party Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Watts of Chicago. Among those in attendance were Messrs. and Mesdames Wm. Gibson and Fred Estregreen, and Thomas and Miss Sarah Gibson.

Misses Brezek and Kalal left for Chicago, after spending two weeks at the home of John Dworak.

Every seat in the school house was filled at the services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Elliot Sunday evening. The reverend gentleman held his audience spellbound from the beginning to the close. Preaching every two weeks until further notice.

A concert was given by Messrs. Jos. Brychta and Vincent Rezek at Anton Dworak's farm on July 7th, 8th and 9th. Mr. Brychta gave a correct imitation of the world's renowned violinist, Ondricek, and rendered several selections on the violin. Mr. Rezek introduced the buck and wing dance and in conclusion sang "The Old Kentucky Home." Miss Aggie Turek entertained the audience with recitations and songs, while John Dworak, jr., played a selection on his tuba. A select audience, composed of young ladies from Chicago and several Algonquin citizens, was in attendance. On July 9th a concert was given at the home of John Dworak by the same talent. The American trio were introduced, several songs were sung by colored artists, and Miss Kitty Rezek, representing Topsy, danced the original negro "jig." Messrs. Brychta and Rezek reproduced a sketch of Weber & Fields, and received an ovation. Mr. Brychta delivered a comical speech on Coxe's army and the financial standing of our country. The concert was concluded with a gold and silver debate, in which the "gold bugs" were worsted (?).

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

We make the low prices—others follow if they can.

The extreme low prices at which we are selling strictly pure white lead and oil, gives us pleasure to place the figures in large black type before the public so that all may read the slaughter of prices we have inaugurated in the paint business.

D. B. Shipman

Strictly Pure White Lead

St. Louis - - Per Hundred Pounds.

It may pinch our competitors to sell at such low figures. Let them squirm; the public is getting the benefit of the "pinching" prices, and that isn't a bad thing either, is it? Then again low prices encourages the painting of many buildings which would otherwise have been neglected for some time to come, thus giving more employment to the painters, which is a good point too; we also find that our low prices bring to us trade for miles around. Large sales is what we depend on, and our low prices are making the sales.

If you are thinking of doing painting this year, don't put it off thinking that materials might still go down a little lower in price. Delays are dangerous. Buy right now, for it is safe to say that they will not go down any lower in price, for they are now as low as they can be got—the lowest notch ever sold at, anywhere in this vicinity. Call around and let us talk with you.

Is Called Home.

Mrs. Marie Hatje, wife of Mr. John Hatje, died at 10:20 o'clock Thursday evening at the family residence in North Hawley street, aged 33 years 5 months and 6 days.

Mrs. Hatje was born near Barrington on February 17, 1863, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schoppe. On August 8th, 1885, she was married to Mr. John Hatje, two children blessing the union—Willie 10 and Ella 9 years old.

About six months ago Mrs. Hatje was affected with lung troubles, and had been suffering with the disease until her death. That Mrs. Hatje anticipated the end is evidenced by the fact that she arranged the details of her funeral before she died. She particularly requested that no flowers be placed on her coffin.

Mrs. Hatje leaves a large circle of friends and acquaintances who mourn the loss of a staunch friend who join with THE REVIEW in extending sympathy to the bereaved family in this their hour of deep sorrow in losing a devoted wife, kind mother, affectionate daughter and a loving sister.

The funeral services will be conducted at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, Revs. E. Rahn of the St. Paul's church and T. E. Ream of the Methodist church officiating.

The London Times has found out that as soon as McKinley is elected president the American congress will pass a free silver bill. Is this some of Mr. G. W. Smalley's teaching?

Salem Church Sunday School Picnic.

That the members of the Salem church Sunday school are strictly up-to-date was amply evidenced Thursday, when they gave an umbrella picnic at Randall's lake.

The weather was dismal and gloomy, with a drizzling rain that would have been sufficient to dampen the enthusiasm of most anyone excepting the patriotic pupils of this flourishing Sunday school and their loyal friends.

About 9 o'clock, headed by the Barrington Military band, they started for the picnic grounds, about twenty-five vehicles, each one loaded to its full capacity with picnickers, being in line.

Arriving at the grounds games were played, and a number of efficient waiters served ice-cream, lemonade, fruits and confections. The contents of a "grab bag" went like a whirlwind at 5 cents per grab, and the prizes ranged all the way from a full-fledged dinner pail to jewelry of various descriptions.

About noon, while the jolly assemblage were satisfying the inner man from the contents of well-filled lunch baskets which they brought with them, the Young Ladies' International Combination Brass band, under the able leadership of Miss Luella Plagge, made the greatest hit of the day. The twenty young ladies comprising this musical organization were robed in costumes representing almost every nation on the globe. The drill and musical selections rendered were pronounced fine.

As it began to rain very hard at 2 o'clock Foreman's Pavilion was taken possession of, and a jollier, happier crowd never was assembled.

About 300 people participated in this, the first umbrella picnic ever given in Barrington, and a neat sum was realized.
