WORK OF CONGRESS.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS AT WASHINGTON.

Senate Passes Most of Its Time in Executive Session—General Deficiency Appropriation Bill Passed by the House—Sectarian Schools.

Wednesday, Feb. 17.

The immigration bill now goes to the president, the last legislative step having been taken in the senate by an agreement to the conference report on the bill. Strong opposition was made to the report, but on the final vote the friends of the measure rallied a small majority, the vote being: Yeas, 34; nays, 31.

Thursday, Feb. 18.

The house by a vote of 197 to 91 reversed the finding of a majority of the elections committee, and decided the contested election case of N. T. Hopkins vs. J. M. Kendall from the tenth Kentucky district in favor of the republican contestant.

The senate adjourned at 6:30, after spending six hours in executive session. Senator Sherman gave notice that he would Friday at 12:30 move an executive session for the purpose of considering the arbitration treaty alone, and that he would ask that the session behind closed doors be continued until the fate of the treaty should be known. Upon this announcement the senate adjourned without division.

Friday, Feb. 19.

Friday, Feb. 19, a very spirited debate on the general subject of the payment of claims found to be due against the United States was indulged by the house during the consideration of the general deficiency appropriation bill. It was stated that the just claims against the government, instead of aggregating hundreds of millions, as was frequently stated, could be discharged with $10,000,000. The bill carries $8,441,027.

The senate adjourned at 8:15, after having spent almost eight hours in continuous executive session on the arbitration treaty. No result was accomplished beyond voting down the motion made Thursday by Senator Nelson to postpone further consideration of the treaty until March 5.

Monday, Feb. 22.

The house passed the general deficiency appropriation bill and began the consideration of the last of the money bills, that providing for the naval establishment. Sixteen of the forty-eight pages of the naval bill were completed.

The senate spent its first hour in listening to Washington's farewell address, read by Mr. Daniel (Va.), and then turned its attention to the Indian appropriation bill. The clause directing temporary contracts with sectarian schools, when no government schools were available, was agreed to, 51 to 8. A provision was added declaring it to be the settled policy of the government hereafter to make no appropriations whatever for the support of sectarian schools. Mr. Chandler submitted a report on the Loud bill, so-called, as to second-class mail matter, and Mr. Butler (N. C.) announced that he would make a minority report. Mr. Stewart (Nev.) made it known that he would oppose the bill by every possible means. Mr. Butler said the bill was "infamous," and if the people understood it they would not tolerate it.

HANNA TO BE SENATOR.

Gov. Bushnell So Declares in a Signed Statement.

Gov. Bushnell of Ohio Sunday night gave out the following to the press: "It has been my intention to make no announcement in relation to the action I would take in the matter of an appointment to fill the prospective vacancy in the Ohio representation in the United States senate until the vacancy actually existed. But, on account of the manifest interest of the people and their desire to know what will be done, I deem it best now to make the following statement: "When Senator Sherman resigns to enter the cabinet of President McKinley, I will appoint to succeed him, the Hon. Marcus A. Hanna of Cuyahoga county, to serve until his successor is chosen by the LXXIII general assembly of the state. I trust this action will meet with the approval of the people. Asa S. Bushnell."

Annual Congress of Mothers.

The national congress of mothers opened its session at Washington Wednesday. Since its inception, less than a year ago, the organization has attracted widespread attention all over the United States, backed, as it is, by some of the most influential women in the country. The sessions of the congress are held in the banquet hall of the Arlington. Many distinguished women occupied seats on the speaker's platform. A number of interesting papers were read and discussed.

Hanna Lays Down His Policy.

M. A. Hanna, speaking regarding the announcement that Gov. Bushnell had decided to appoint him United States senator to succeed Sherman, said: "I shall do all in my power to be worthy of the honor. So far as my policy goes it will be to aid the McKinley administration, and in particular to assist in framing at once a tariff bill which will seek to restore confidence to the country and give a stimulus to our industries. That is now the chief purpose of my life."

Archbishop Grace Dead.

Most Reverend Thomas L. Grace, formerly bishop of St. Paul, Minn., and latterly titular archbishop of Sionia, died at 8 o'clock Monday at the age of 83. He became a victim to bronchitis about six weeks ago, and sank gradually and painlessly till, attended by the clergy of the city, he passed away.

Dr. Parkhurst Breaks Down.

Charles H. Parkhurst has been seriously ill for over a week in his home at New York. There is a slight change for the better in the doctor's condition, but his mental and physical condition are acutely affected, and it will be a long time before he can return to his pulpit.

New Pythian Temple Dedicated.

Pythians from all parts of Wisconsin were at Milwaukee, Wis., Monday to assist their local brethren in dedicating the handsome new temple in the Uihlein building.

A PROSPECTIVE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

Judge James A. Gary, who is talked of for postmaster-general in the McKinley cabinet, is one of the most distinguished Republicans in Maryland. His family came originally from Massachusetts, and the judge cannot be said, therefore, to be a southern man. In politics he was a Whig and placed Henry Clay before him as his ideal of a statesman. He was an abolitionist by instinct, and he was one of the three delegates from Howard county to the big union convention of 1861, which was held at the Maryland Institute.

After the war the Republicans were very scarce in Maryland, but Mr. Gary was true to his convictions. He was a delegate to the convention of 1872 that nominated Grant, and he was the chairman of the Maryland delegation. Since that time he has served his party with unflinching ardor and has sat in many conventions, state and national, as the representative of the Republicans of the old state. He takes a keen interest in municipal politics. He is a banker, a business man and one of the most polished gentlemen of Maryland.

Millions of Cook Books Given Away.

There is one large house in this country that has taken business on its turn and means to ride in on the rising tide. Alive to the signs of better times and to the best interests of the people, they are now circulating among families a valuable publication known as The Charles A. Vogeler Company's Cookery Book and Book of Comfort and Health, which contains very choice information on the subject of cooking. Recipes for the preparation of good, substantial and dainty dishes, prepared especially for it by a leading authority, will be found in its pages. Much care has been taken in its preparation and distribution, with the hope that it will be just the thing needed for housekeepers, and just the thing needed also for the care of the health and household. As a Cookery Book it will be invaluable to keep on hand for reference.

It also contains full information in regard to the great remedies of this house, which provide against bodily ailments, especially the Master Cure for Pains and Aches, St. Jacob's Oil.

To give some idea of the labor and expense of this output, more than 200 tons of paper have been used in its publication, and at the rate of 100,000 a day, it has taken several months for the issue.

The book can be had of druggists everywhere, or by enclosing a 2c stamp to The Charles A. Vogeler Company, Baltimore, Md.

Children's Letters.

Children should be encouraged to write letters. It gives them facility in writing letters. It gives them facility in expressing their ideas, and if the habit is established in childhood, it is less difficult in after life. When they leave the old home a regular correspondence is a source of the greatest comfort to both parents and children, and frequent letters help to keep the fraternal tie strong between brothers and sisters.

No Kissing in Japan.

No kissing ever occurs in Japan except between husband and wife—not even between a mother and child; no shaking of hands in salutation. If one were to offer a kiss to a Japanese maiden, she would probably think she were going to be bitten.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE

REPORTED BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

February 16.
 Senator Dwyer's garbage bill was passed. The bill provides that contracts for the final disposal of garbage be made in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants for more than one year and not to exceed five years. When Senator Templeton's bill authorizing the governor to borrow $250,000 to meet casual deficits and failure in the revenues came up on its passage Senator Mahoney objected.

Senator Templeton moved that further consideration of the bill be postponed until to-morrow morning immediately after the reading of the journal, which was carried. Among the bills introduced were the following: By Senator Morrison—To compel elevated railroads to have two men instead of one on the pilot car to prevent accident in case one should become ill while in service. By Senator Stubblefield—To provide against the evils arising from the sale of cigarettes. The bill provides a $2,000 license for retailing cigarettes and $5,000 for wholesaling the same, the money to go to the school fund. By Senator Baxter—To define trusts and conspiracies against trade, declaring contracts in violation of the provisions of the act void, and making certain acts in violation thereof misdemeanors.

Mr. Sharrock's bill prescribing the qualifications of county judges came up on third reading as a special order. The bill provides that "no person shall hold the office of county judge nor be eligible thereto who shall not at the time of his election be a lawyer holding a license regularly obtained from the justices of the supreme court of this state more than two years prior to his election." The debate continued for an hour. The bill was favored by Perry, Selby, Boyd and Sherman and was opposed by Murry of Clinton, McLaughlin, Allen of Randolph and Rarricklow. The bill failed to pass—yeas, 49; nays, 82. Mr. Sharrock gave notice that on Wednesday of next week he would move to reconsider the vote.

February 17.
 A message was transmitted to the senate from the governor by his private secretary appointing Anton Peterson as member of the Chicago west park board, to succeed Emil A. Grotefund, resigned. The senate immediately went into executive session and confirmed the appointment. Senator Templeton's bill authorizing the governor to borrow $250,000 to meet casual deficits and failure in the revenues came up on its passage as a special order. The bill passed with the emergency clause by a strict party vote—yeas, 35; nays, 11—the republicans voting in the affirmative. Senator Morrison's bill fixing the salary of judges of election in Cook county at $5 per day was reported favorably, and on suspension of the rules advanced to third reading.

In the house a large number of petitions were presented, most of them on the subject of woman suffrage. Mr. Perry presented a petition from the Quincy bar favoring the consolidation of the supreme court.
 Mr. Miller's bill providing for the establishment of branch appellate courts was reported from the committee and advanced to the second reading. The committee on elections made a report, recommending the dismissal of the contest of Joseph Bacharach against Representatives Bovey and Andrews. The report was adopted. The democratic members of the committee did not present a minority report as had been expected. The senate joint resolution introduced by Senator Sparks urging the Illinois members of Congress to use their influence and votes to secure the recognition of the belligerent rights of Cuba was laid before the house by Speaker Curtis.

February 18.
 The bill to repeal the libel law passed two years ago was called up in the house by Mr. Revell and placed on its final passage. The measure called forth the first real debate of the session, and caused the lobby and galleries to fill with listeners, who paid close attention to the discussion. The roll-call was followed with keen interest, and persons in every part of the house kept tally as the votes were announced. In its present form the bill carries the emergency clause, and thus required a two-thirds vote for its passage. This it could not secure. But as the emergency clause is not necessary to the measure, its friends hoped to rally enough votes to pass it as an ordinary bill. For this purpose seventy-seven votes are necessary. The highest number the friends of the measure could muster was sixty-three. As announced, the measure secured but sixty-two votes, Novak having changed for the purpose of moving a reconsideration. The motion to reconsider is a special order for next Wednesday, but it is not believed the friends of the measure can secure enough additional votes by that time to insure its passage. In fact, the measure is likely to have less support, for the Cook county politicians, who are particularly desirous of securing the passage of the bill, will then be in Chicago preparing for the republican city convention.

Immediately after the reading of the journal Gov. Tanner sent to the senate the following appointments, with the request that they be confirmed: Board of commissioners of the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet, John H. Pierce, Kewanee, to succeed Daniel Heenan, term expired; Homer H. Green, Bloomington, to succeed Harry A. Sanger, term expired; Thomas J. O'Shaughnessy, Chicago, to succeed Levi Waterman, removed. Members of the board of commissioners of labor, P. H. Donnelly, Springfield, and James Alexander, Murphysboro, to fill vacancies existing on the board; Andrew Yeager, Alton, to succeed W. E. R. Kell, resigned; T. D. Kelliger, Pana, to succeed J. C. Lutz, resigned; S. M. Dalzell, Spring Valley, to succeed C. G. Stivers, resigned. Members of the board of managers of the Illinois state reformatory at Pontiac, Thomas C. MacMillan of Chicago, to succeed Martin B. Madden, resigned; William Jackson of Rock Island, to succeed John W. Ela, term expired. The senate immediately went into executive session and confirmed the appointments.

February 19.
 Both branches of the legislature agreed to adjourn until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning owing to Washington's birthday on Monday. In the house the bill for the consolidation of the supreme court at Springfield was made a special order for next Tuesday, as was Mr. Farrell's bill appropriating $31,000 for furnishing the soldiers' memorial hall in the public library building at Chicago. Mr. Buckner's bill appropriating $20,000 for the participation of Illinois in the Tennessee centennial exposition was opposed by Mr. Needles. He said there was nothing in the bill to show an emergency existed, and he moved to strike out the clause. Mr. Johnson of Whiteside took the same ground, while Mr. Craig said it was a poor time to squander money on an exposition when the state institutions were in urgent need.

Mr. Buckner said that without the emergency clause the bill would be worthless, as the exposition would open May 1. He continued:
 "The commissioners already appointed have an understanding with the governor that the money appropriated by this bill is not to be drawn from the public treasury until it can be spared. There are public spirited men who will advance this money. All this commission desires is the authority of the state back of them. They want the state to be represented as a state."

Mr. Needles' amendment was tabled, but amendments were adopted increasing the number of commissioners from twenty-six to forty, and reducing the salary of the secretary of the commission from $250 to $150 per month. The bill was then ordered to third reading. The senate joint resolution providing for adjournment from Feb. 26 to March 9 to enable members to go to Washington to witness the inauguration was made a special order for next Wednesday. Mr. Rowe's resolution for a constitutional amendment abolishing justice of the peace courts in Cook County and substituting district courts was made a special order for March 11. Mr. McEnery offered a resolution, which was adopted, favoring the passage of the bill pending in congress for the identification of prison-made goods.

The Illinois Central railroad has adopted a new system of dating tickets which goes into effect the first of the year. The tickets have always been dated by stamping them on the back, but it has been found that the ink is sometimes rubbed out and the date changed. By the new method it will be impossible to use an old ticket. A machine similar to those used in banks to perforate checks will be used by the railroad. The month is not given, but each day is numbered up to 365. When the date is one of but two figures a star is put in front so that another figure cannot be supplied. The tickets being perforated it is impossible to change them. The machines are being put in all offices where coupon tickets are sold.

GEN. HARRISON HAPPY

DAUGHTER BORN TO THE EX-PRESIDENT.

Important Event Happened at Five O'clock Sunday Morning—Mother and Child Both Doing Well—The General Says He Is Out of Politics.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Dr. Jameson, in attendance, pronounces that the child weighs eight and one-half pounds and is robust. He stated that both mother and child were doing nicely.

It is said that in the early summer the ex-President will take his wife and little daughter to the Adirondacks, where he owns a splendid estate. In conversations with friends recently he has frequently declared that he is glad to be out of politics. There was a time last spring when he was almost persuaded to contest the nomination with McKinley, but he has often said since that he was glad he was not led into the fight.

Mrs. Harrison is now believed to be

FIRE ON THE GREEKS.

Foreign Warships Bombard Insurgent Camp.

An engagement has occurred just above the village of Mournies, between the insurgents and a Turkish band.

At 4:45 the insurgents at Akotiri, having attacked the Turkish garrison at Halepa, the joint fleet bombarded the Cretans for twenty-five minutes. The insurgents fled, taking their flag with them.

King George has ordered Col. Vassos to offer safe conduct to Canea for all Turkish garrisons besieged by Christians. Col. Vassos made the offer to the Voukolies garrison. The troops at the garrison refused to leave without arms, and the fortification, therefore, was bombarded.

British torpedo boats have captured and brought to Canea the small Greek steamer Laurium, which was carrying victuals and tents for the insurgents.

The forts fired two rounds of blank cartridges Sunday at the Greek gunboat Peneus. A Turkish frigate also discharged blank shots at the Greek. The Greek gunboat Peneus quickly re-entirely out of danger. It is understood the baby will be called Ruth, though Mr. Harrison would have preferred the name of Mary, after his mother, but for the fact that there is already one Mary in the family, that being Mrs. McKee's name.

Spain Satisfied with McKinley.
 The Havana Diario Marina prints a Madrid cable dispatch saying that the government is fully satisfied with McKinley as future president, since well-known persons give assurance that in his inaugural address he will recognize the chivalrous attitude of Spain, and will remove all hopes of the Cuban insurgents that the United States will recognize their belligerency.

Carnegie Invades Great Britain.
 The Carnegie Steel Company has broken into the territory of English manufacturers and is underselling them on steel rails. During the last week the company has closed orders for export to England for 100,000 tons. The Carnegie Company also booked an order from Japan for 11,000 tons. Between 30,000 and 35,000 additional tons were booked from foreign countries.

Brooklyn Loses the Convention.
 The executive council of the Baptist Young People's Union of America has determined to hold the next international convention in Chattanooga, Tenn., instead of in Brooklyn as originally voted at Milwaukee, owing to more favorable rates of travel made by the Southern Passenger Association.

Wilson Accepts the Office.
 All rumors to the plans of Postmaster-General Wilson after the close of the present administration were definitely set at rest Thursday by the authorized announcement that he had accepted the offer of the presidency of the Washington and Lee university, located at Lexington, Va.

Looks to Britain and France.
 Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado, who has been visiting Berlin in the interests of bimetalism, has started on his return trip to London. While here he was assured that Germany would join in a bimetallic convention provided Great Britain and France agreed to do so.

Demonstration at Athens.
 Athens cable.—Over 40,000 persons participated in a demonstration Sunday on University square in favor of the union of Crete with Greece. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed. An address was adopted, declaring that the king and people were ready for any sacrifices of blood and treasure to bring the present Cretan policy to a successful issue. The crowd then marched to the palace and a deputation presented the address to the king. Tremendous cheering followed.

Emperor's Proposal Not Accepted.
 Berlin cable.—None of the powers, except Austria, has accepted the proposal of Emperor William to blockade Piraeus.

Will Hang Side by Side.
 Newport, Ky., Feb. 23.—Gov. Bradley having fixed upon March 20 as the day for the hanging of Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, Sheriff Plummer has begun preparations. A single scaffold is being built with a double trap, which will be so arranged that Jackson and Walling will be hanged simultaneously. The demand for tickets is unprecedented, requests having already come from all parts of the United States. The number is limited by law to 50. Jackson and Walling are still in the Covington jail, and the death watch was instituted Saturday.

Brigham Young in the Capitol.
 Congress recently passed a law granting the privilege to every state in the Union to place in the hall of statuary at Washington the statues of two of their honored deceased whom they delight to honor. The Utah legislature will take advantage of this privilege and place in position the statue of Brigham Young.

Texas Anti-Trust Law Falls.
 Judge Swayne of the Federal district court at Dallas Monday handed down his decision in the famous Texas anti-trust law litigation against the Standard Oil company, and declared the law unconstitutional.

"Pie Melons" as Stock Food.

A number of Oklahoma farmers have fed and been pleased with what are known as "pie melons" as a part of the food for cattle, hogs and sheep, says Bulletin 32 of that station. This melon resembles a watermelon, often grows to a large size, is "solid meat," and gives an enormous crop, apparently suffering less from drouth than do most crops. It thrives so well that an objection is made to it from the fact that the undigested seeds of melons fed to cattle often cause the growth of a crop where it is not wanted. A specimen of the "green seeded" variety was recently analyzed by the chemists of the Oklahoma experiment station. The dry substance was only 7 per cent of the total weight, while turnips have about 12 per cent of dry substance. Turnips have one-half more protein or nitrogenous matter, but less fat, also less fiber and slightly more of other carbohydrates. The melon is the surer crop and probably would give a larger yield, even under favorable conditions. It is not readily injured by frost. Some farmers prefer to have the shell somewhat softened by freezing before feeding. While apparently much unlike, the composition of the dry substance of these melons is nearly the same as that of the dry substance of corn ensilage. The latter, however, has much more dry substance—in many cases three times as much. The adaptation of these melons to this climate, producing large crops even in unfavorable years, and the fact that they are palatable to stock and have a fair feeding value, suggests the propriety of giving them more extended trial. They may be fed in connection with bran, middlings or cotton seed cake.

Selecting a Boar.

It should be needless to say that the sire should always be a full blood well bred. But we find that this very essential matter is too often entirely neglected. Such sires are plentiful today, and can be bought so cheaply that no farmer can afford to feed pigs that have not been sired by a well bred boar. In his selection observe the following individual points of merit:

1. Let him be broad in his forehead, as, in this matter of swine breeding, we want intelligence on both sides of the house.
2. Let him have a short neck and a broad back.
3. Let him be well let down in his hams.
4. He should be broad across the shoulders, with his ribs well sprung. Bear in mind that we want him as sire of pigs that will eat food and make meat of it.
5. Let him stand well on his feet with good, strong bone.
6. Avoid the common error of today in selecting a fine-boned hog. Their progeny will not bear up under the load of a well-developed body, particularly when being transported to market. In making this selection of a sire, always bear in mind the type you already have in your herd on the part of your sows; i. e., are they too long in the body, too high upon their feet or too fine in their bone; then select a boar of an opposite type, in order to correct those evils.—Theodore Louis.

Club Breeding.—In some sections there is a movement in neighborhoods to combine together, obtain a good pure-bred stallion, and go into club breeding of horses. Farmers who engaged in breeding horses in any locality or neighborhood will often find an advantage in combining or working together to produce one particular kind of animal for the market. The result of club breeding among farmers would be greater uniformity of produce, and as animals of one class and about the same size and build would be grown, carloads of the same could be easily made up, and would find a ready market at paying prices. Buyers cannot afford to run all over the country to find what they want, if they can be supplied by specialists who are breeding in their line. Enough farmers should be found in any neighborhood to go into such an arrangement as would warrant its success. It will prove much better than single-handed and indiscriminate work in horse breeding.—Indiana Farmer.

Oil Meal for Milk Cows.—The use of oil meal for milk cows will be found to produce more and better butter, and if farmers only realized how much trouble can be averted at calving time by the use of oil meal none would be without it. It is an almost unfailing remedy for the retention of the placenta, which so commonly occurs in cows not well cared for; besides this it makes calving easier. In feeding oil meal to milk cows do not increase the amount as in fattening stock, and never feed as freely before calving or for a short time thereafter as when once settled down to an even flow of milk, which occurs about two weeks after calving. If fed too freely just before and after calving milk fever may result and ruin the cow.—Ex.

Tested Butter.—Only the minority of farmers' wives make an excellent quality of butter. Often it would do good to take a package of one's product to an expert taster and ask his opinion of it. He would tell instantly if anything was the matter, and instruct how to avoid such errors in the future.—Ex.

SA TURDAY, FEB. 27, 1897.

A Good Idea.

Whatever one may think of the extravagance of the famous Bradley Martin ball, there was at least one highly commendable feature connected with it. That was that this most exclusive and fashionable function had place at a hotel, a mere house of public entertainment, and not at a private dwelling. Indeed, rich as New York's Four Hundred are, there are not over half a dozen private mansions in the city that could have accommodated in all respects the guests at this great fancy dress ball. Two or three of the Astors and Vanderbilts have houses that would have answered; so would the old Stewart mansion. But the Stewart mansion has been converted into a clubhouse. Undoubtedly the few very large private houses of the Vanderbilts and Astors will share the same fate in time.

The truth is that a huge, costly house, large enough and expensive enough for a grand opera house or a cathedral or public hospital is an elephant in the hands of its owner. Besides that it is in exceedingly bad taste as the property of a citizen of a republic.

The point we wish to make is this: Instead of building private houses too costly to maintain, too large to be occupied comfortably by any one family, the people of our country should have in every neighborhood a casino or clubhouse adapted in all particulars to social meetings and receptions. It is a fashion that began in America among our Jewish citizens, who set the commendable example of having wedding and full dress receptions in commodious and handsome clubhouses and hotels instead of in private houses.

Even in rural neighborhoods there might be built a house combining the lecture and concert hall, the theater for home or traveling dramatic troops, with reception and dressing rooms, having kitchen and dining accommodations for private social gatherings.

Trusts and Trades Unions.

At its last annual meeting the American Economic association paid its respects to the great business corporations and the trades unions, criticizing both about equally.

Professor Hadley of Yale college was the critic who took the trusts in hand. He did not believe they ought to be either taxed or mobbed out of existence. He did think, however, that the government ought to keep a sharp eye upon all business corporations. He declared they should be required to make very full and free reports, putting all their accounts before the public, and doing this often and so thoroughly that there could be no juggling with figures in dark corners, no sly watering of stock or making of contracts with themselves by the directors of a company. One would not like to discourage so learned a man as Professor Hadley by reminding him that what he recommends has already been done so far as it could possibly be done in the case of national banks, and still the officers of such institutions manage to embezzle and rob and ruin.

Professor Henry C. Adams of Ann Arbor thought trades unions were to blame in not bringing up the quality of the work of their members. Where they claim the right to ask and obtain the highest wages they ought also to enforce strictly the obligation for first class work.

And now they say the poor czar has epileptic fits every month. Royalties in Europe are in a bad way. The heir of the Italian throne is sickly and has little intellectual ability or force of character, the heir to the Austrian throne committed suicide or was murdered, and the country was very glad when last year another scion of the house of Austria near to the throne died of drunkenness and debauchery. The emperor of Germany is deformed and eccentric; the little king of Spain is a weakling and may never take his seat; the king of Belgium is one of the wickedest and most degraded old men living. Some of these days will come a tremendous storm of revolution and sweep all this rotten timber away.

Is it true that a man has recently been elected to the United States senate from one of the new states who is unable to use the English language fluently?

The coast of Cuba is 2,000 miles around, and Spain is supposed to guard all this distance by her gunboats.

The People's Own Trusts.

It is asserted as a fact that the Syracuse Salt company used to make 200 per cent profit out of its capital invested in the salt springs belonging to the state of New York. This is interesting.

Some more mighty interesting reading is furnished in the investigations by the Lexow committee of the New York legislature into the great Sugar and Coffee trusts. The Sugar trust makes $20,000,000 a year profit out of a capital which was originally not so much as that. They acknowledge to making 9 1/2 per cent profit, which they distribute in dividends to their stockholders. But the 9 1/2 per cent is calculated on the basis that a share which was originally $100 is now worth, say, $400, and the business must earn 9 1/2 per cent profit on the $400.

The revelations wrung reluctant from the Coffee Roasting trust managers were quite as significant. The people of the United States who buy their coffee roasted are at the mercy of three firms. Practically one firm and one man fix the price of roasted coffee for the whole 70,000,000 people of this country. The heads of the combine confessed that one of these three firms made last year, even in the midst of the hard times, 100 per cent profit on its actual paid up capital.

We merely mention these facts by way of asking the people of the United States why they themselves do not universally take a hand in the trust forming business and get these profits for themselves, or at least, if not that, force the price of the enormously inflated goods here mentioned down to a reasonable level. The co-operative stores of Rochdale, England, and other places in the United Kingdom furnish the model for distributing goods. They have shown that the common people, laborers, clerks and mechanics can conduct a vast commercial business economically, honestly and profitably. The common people can in like manner control the whole industries of production and manufacture in the world, if they use their intelligence.

It is not worth while to abuse existing private trusts as octopuses and monsters of cruelty merely because they saw a great opportunity for enriching themselves and took advantage of it. The methods they used in many cases cannot be too sharply condemned, but the system on which they have worked is one that, if studied and applied by the common people, will change poverty to prosperity. Let us take two of the commonest articles of production, wheat and milk. The producers of these two staples have only to organize over the whole country, calculate what is a living profit for their wares, fix prices and stand by them. They can control the whole output.

The question whether Dr. Lyman Abbott is an infidel because he refuses to accept literally the Biblical story of Jonah and the whale threatens to agitate church circles as precariously as the criticisms of Dr. Briggs did three years ago. There are two current theories regarding the story of Jonah. One is that it is a parable, like so many other Bible narratives, and that it is to be interpreted spiritually, not literally. It would thus be similar to the story of the prodigal son and of the sower. Other interpreters claim the tale of Jonah and the whale as literal fact, the acceptance of which is a test of the faith of the true believer in the Bible. Dr. Abbott's position is different from both these. He says the Jonah narrative is on the face of it plainly a satire, a sort of humorous sketch, "the 'Pickwick Papers' of the Bible," and to regard it in any other light is a mistake. Meanwhile he declares that the congregation of Plymouth church is with him in his view, every one of them.

It is claimed that the secret sessions of the senate are a farce. They ought to be. It is an insult to the intelligence and patriotism of the people of this country that their legislators at Washington should try to keep anything from them. They have a right to know all about what the two houses of congress do in their sessions, legislative or otherwise. The secret session business is a relic of oriental despotism and humbug.

It seems to have taken Bismarck a long time to learn it, but he has found out at last that, in his own words, "no statesman in this world is so powerful as to be able to command the voice of the people in certain emergencies." Lincoln said it far better, "You can fool all the people sometimes, you can fool some people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time."

What is the use of being disagreeable? You will live longer and make more friends and be more prosperous by being polite and civil to everybody.

The pupils were all well drilled, and carried out their parts to perfection. Some of our people assisted in the musical part of the program, and on the whole we are pleased to say everything went off nicely. The tableaux was a very instructive scene, and is a good warning to the young man who goes courting hereafter. The receipts were as large as could be expected considering the low price of admission charged. The net proceeds will be used for the commendable purpose of purchasing new books for the library.

The program of the Wauconda Literary society Friday evening of last week was very entertaining. The election of officers did not take place until after the program had been rendered. The officers elected for the ensuing two weeks are as follows: President, A. Roney; Vice-President, H. E. Maiman; Secretary, Miss Minnie Roney. The election completed, the debate was taken up. The topic was: "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should be Abolished." The discussion was good on both sides, and the subject was well handled throughout. The decision of the judges, however, was in favor of the affirmative by a vote of 4 to 1.

EREAKS ALL MOVING RECORDS.

Accomplished in the Removal of a Baltimore Warehouse.

All housemoving records have recently been broken in Baltimore. The largest single structure ever transported from one place to another has recently been moved over 100 feet in that city and the remarkable feat accomplished without the slightest damage to the building and its contents. It was a freight warehouse belonging to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company which was the subject of this engineering achievement and the building was full of freight at the time. The structure is 440 feet long, 120 feet wide, and 60 feet high, made of wood and iron. Five weeks were required in preparation, one week in the actual moving, and two weeks setting the building on its new foundations. When it was all done not even one plate in all of the 3,000 cases of china which were in the warehouse was cracked. The operation of moving was conducted in much the same manner as was employed last spring to change the abiding place of the Emanuel Baptist Church of this city. Heavy beams, 6,000 in all, were laid down and on them forty tracks were placed. On the tracks 1,000 rollers were put. The building moved on the rollers. Along one side of the structure was placed a row of screw jacks, with two men in charge of each. At a given signal each jack was given a turn, moving the building ahead a fraction of an inch. Afterwards the progress averaged two feet an hour for five and one-half days. When it arrived at its destination the structure was gradually lowered onto its foundation without so much as a timber having been strained.

Nearly every business man has had cause to complain of hard times for the past two months. The months of January and February are naturally dull months. One reason for this is that every head of a family expends every cent that he absolutely does not need, to purchase gifts for his loved ones on Xmas, and it naturally makes him figure very economically for the two months following the Holidays.

By the first of March times become better with the people. They have recuperated the amount of their expenditures, and begin to look around for the place where they can purchase

"Forgive!" Yes—shame on my weakness for saying so—I could forgive. I could do more; I could persuade myself that this strong-willed man had forced her to fly with him, perhaps half against her wish. I could believe that she was unhappy, that she was penitent, that she loved me still. I could do more than forgive, I could take her—I should be forced to take her—again to my heart; even to trust her, and be proud of her glorious beauty. Yes, I could do this—after I had seen Eustace Grant lying lifeless at my feet. Weak as I was, it could not be until then!

Where was he? Where was she? Were they together? I turned again to the letter. It gave me no information as to the writer's whereabouts. The paper and the envelope were plain; the latter bore the London postmark. It was creased, which told me it had been sent under cover, to be posted in London. Sent to whom? The receipt of this scrap of paper worked a great change in me. If I had ever been approaching that state in which a man accepts the inevitable, it lifted me out of it.

It spurred me on to make fresh exertions to discover the retreat of the fugitives. That letter—the letter written by her—I carried next to my heart day and night. False as my wife had been to me I loved her, and there were times when I recalled her sweet face and marveled how evil could have lurked beneath such a mask.

I left Herstal Abbey and took up my quarters in town. There I should be ready to start on the moment I heard where Grant was to be found. But somehow I was beginning to think that our meeting would be brought about by pure chance. London is the place where all chance meetings occur. There are few Englishmen who do not visit the capital, either at shorter or longer intervals. Something must bring Grant there; so I waited and hoped.

Chance, pure chance, brought about what I longed for, but in the way I expected. I did not stumble across my foe in the street; I did not hear a chance mention of his name, and so hit upon some one who knew him. I found Eustace Grant in this wise:

This year a book, which at once took the public's fancy immensely, made its appearance. It was but a novel, yet a work the depth and research of which, combined with its pathos and humor, arrested all readers' attention. People were curious to know who was the author. The title page bore one of those names which strike every one as being a nom-de-plume. Perhaps the book was not the less read because a certain amount of mystery was kept up as to who had really written it.

Sometimes, not often, since that crushing blow had fallen upon me, I read what happened to come in my way. This particular book was one which came in my way. I began to read it, and am bound to say that the opening chapters were written by so masterly a hand that I at once experienced something of the general interest which the tale had called forth. But before I had read it half through, my interest and excitement were such as no author has by his merits ever awakened in any reader. I gave a fierce cry of triumph. I threw the book from me as if it were a reptile. I had found Eustace Grant!

For one chapter of that book contained an account of the hero's journeying through a part of Switzerland; and the account was the same as Grant had given his auditors on the night I first met him, and hated and mistrusted him. Several of the most amusing and out-of-the-way incidents which he then related, and which were sufficiently droll and strange to impress themselves on my memory, were in these pages once more narrated. Eustace Grant was the author of the successful book. I thanked my memory, which had in a second brought his adventures back to my mind; and memory brought back more than this.

It brought back Viola, listening with smiles on her face to her guardian's (as she called him) amusing recital. It brought back the days when I wooed her; the day when I told her my love; the day when she was mine, as I thought, forever; the day, the black day, when she fled—when for hours and hours I waited and would not believe the truth. It brought back the last two wretched years of my life. It brought back all of which Eustace Grant had robbed me, and I laughed the laugh of a devil when I thought that the time was at hand when he should pay me for his act.

I trod his book under my foot. Hypocrite, who could write of honor, virtue and truth, yet act as he had acted! Well, his time has come at last! But now to find him—to know where

I must go, to stand face to face with him! The next morning I called on the publishers of the book. I told them I had reason for believing that its author was an old friend of mine. Would they tell me his right name?

They could not. They believed he wrote under a pseudonym; but they knew him by no other. I asked if they could show me a letter of his. Certainly. A letter was handed me. I placed it side by side with the letter which Grant had written me just before my marriage, and which I had fortunately preserved. I compared the handwriting; then returned the author's letter to the publishers.

"Thank you," I said. "I find I am mistaken. My friend is not such a fortunate man as I hoped to find him." Then I went my way. Mistaken! No, I was not mistaken, but I feared lest, in writing to Grant, his publishers might mention the fact of my having made these inquiries. No; every doubt was now set at rest. The two letters were written by the same man—written by Eustace Grant. As I looked at the second letter, I had impressed the address upon my memory. It was dated from St. Seurin, a place which, upon inquiry, I found was little more than a fishing village on the west coast of Brittany.

They had not fled very far then! The nearer the better! Every hour which must pass before Eustace Grant and I meet will be grudged by me. In forty-eight hours we may be face to face!

That evening I left London. My preparations for the journey were soon made. Among them was included the purchase of a pair of double-barreled breech-loading pistols, which carried heavy bullets, and were warranted to shoot straight as a line. I had already learned that in a hand-to-hand struggle my foe was my superior. I laughed as my fingers closed lovingly on the handle of the weapon which placed us on an equality.

So I started to end Eustace Grant's dream as suddenly as he had ended mine.

CHAPTER VII.

HE journey to St. Seurin occupied more time than I anticipated. I reached Paris the next morning, and, without halting for rest, took the first train to Rennes. From Rennes I had to go to L'Orient, which I found was as far as the railway could carry me toward my destination.

Rennes I reached in the evening. Here I was compelled to spend the night, there being no train to L'Orient until the next morning. The morning train was a painfully slow one; it was not until late in the afternoon of the second day that I had reached the fortified port on the Bay of Biscay.

There I inquired as to the best way of getting to St. Seurin. I found the place was nearly twenty miles away. A diligence which passed it left L'Orient every other morning at ten o'clock. I must wait and go by that.

I chafed at the time which must elapse before I met my enemy, and was on the point of ordering a carriage and horses to take me to St. Seurin at once. But reflection told me that the arrival of a traveler in such a way, at a village so small as I ascertained St. Seurin to be, must excite curiosity. People would gossip, and the man whom I longed to meet might hear of my arrival, and once more fly and leave no trace. So I curbed my impatience, stayed the night at L'Orient, and started in the morning by the lumbering old diligence.

Why is it that, when one is burning to reach a certain place, the sole available mode of progression seems not only the slowest, but in many cases actually is the slowest that can well be hit upon. Those twenty miles, or their equivalent in kilometers, seemed longer than all the rest of the journey. True, the road was in many places steep, and the heavy vehicle not adequately horsed; and, very likely, no one save myself was in a hurry.

But the most wearisome journey ends at last. A snail, if allowed time, will arrive at his goal. The diligence reached St. Seurin, and as I dismounted in front of a miserable-looking inn I could scarcely repress a cry of exultation. Eustace Grant was all but within my grasp.

I entered the inn, where I was received with joyful faces. Guests were, no doubt, few, and their visits far between. I asked if I could have accommodation, and was assured I could count upon the best out of Paris. At another time, this grandiloquent assertion would have amused me. Now nothing amused me, and I cared for nothing so long as I could have food and drink, and a place to lay my head until I had accomplished my mission. I dined, for I was beginning to feel the effects of the exhausting journey. Then I walked out, and took stock of my surroundings.

St. Seurin was, as I had been informed, a small decaying village. Some of the houses were picturesque in their way, but many were half in ruins. There was a church, whose size was, of course, utterly disproportioned to the village. There were the shops necessary to supply the humble needs of the scanty population. So far as I could see, there was nothing else.

I struck my heel on the dusty, sandy path. Was it for a life in such a place as this that Viola had left me? Had she given up all the comforts and luxuries with which I would have surrounded her, to hide with the partner of her flight in a wretched hole where she could see none save rough fishermen, peasants and such like? If so, her love for Grant must be more than mortal to bring about such a sacrifice of all that women, from the time of Eve downward, have been credited with longing after. These questions, and the only answer I could give them, did not improve the state of my mind.

It was now growing dusk. I walked back to the little inn, went to my room, and asked for lights and coffee. A broad-faced, broad-shouldered Breton lass ministered to my wants. I entered into conversation with her, and in spite of her patois managed to understand her.

I asked about the place and the people. She shrugged her shoulders. Ah! but the place was decaying—going down—going down. Once she had heard that people could live there and make money; but that was hundreds of years ago. Now, every one was poor as poor could be. Parents could not save their daughters dots—girls could not save them. Besides many of the young men went away. They went to L'Orient and became sailors. It was a rare thing for a girl to get married in St. Seurin.

Were there no visitors—no English, for instance—staying in the neighborhood? No—yes. There was one monsieur—he was English. He lived at Pierre Boulay's farm—the farm just over the sea cliff yonder the house nearest the sea.

His name? Ah! she forgot those strange names. He was tall and handsome. He had been here, off and on, many months. He was a heretic, but kind to the poor people. What did he do with himself in this desolate place? Ah! she knew not. True, young Jean, old Pierre's son, said that the gentleman shut himself for hours and hours, writing, and the cure, so knew him, said he was a learned man.

It was he! My journey had not been in vain. I longed to ask the girl if a lady lived with him, but I forced the question back. When I had finished with Eustace Grant, I could then think of Viola.

Where was he to be found? Was he at the farm now? She thought not. She had not seen him for some days. Most days he came down the hill, and walked along the coast—far, far along the coast. If monsieur wished to meet with him, he would surely find him there.

Yes; the coast was very fine. Sometimes artists came to paint it. Perhaps monsieur was an artist?

She glanced at me. No doubt my coming had created curiosity. The question suggested an excuse for my staying at such a place as St. Seurin.

Yes; she had guessed right. I was an artist. I had come to draw pictures of the coast. She seemed pleased at having guessed the nature of my occupation, and quickly left me, no doubt to make her discovery known to all who were interested in the matter. I needed her no longer. I had learned enough.

Fate seemed shaping everything to my hand. I had learned that Grant was almost within stone's throw; that nearly every day he took a solitary walk along the coast. It was on the coast, far away from fear or interruption, that I would arrange for our meeting to take place. All I now wished to guard against was a premature discovery of my presence.

The next morning I stepped out and surveyed the scene of action. Far, far away as eye could see was the stretch of smooth yellow sand running from the edge of the glorious sea to the tall, rugged cliffs, in a break of which the tiny village nestled.

I climbed the hill, and from the top, looking across the valley, could see the small farm-house in which the object of my hatred lived. I dared not go near it. I turned and regained the sea-coast, and walked along under the cliff, picturing with savage rapture the moment when, utterly unsuspecting of our contiguity, Eustace Grant would find himself confronted by me, and called upon to reckon up the cost of his foul treachery.

There are 57 saloons in Decatur. The Kaskaskia river is out of its banks.

Mercedosia is soon to be lighted by electricity.

Horticulturists in the vicinity of Du Quoin say that fruit has not been injured this winter.

Chicago is now talking of erecting a splendid statue to Washington on the north side.

The women class teachers of Chicago are opposed to any change in the school teachers' pension law.

Springfield is to have a curfew ordinance. It is to be hoped the scope will be wide enough to include the veal members of the legislature.

In Kankakee county the question of reduction of salaries among the county officials is to be made an issue in the election of supervisors this spring.

The Republican campaign in Livingston county cost $1,613. The convention to select delegates to the judicial convention will be held in Pontiac March 16.

The village of Bradley, Kankakee county, was visited by a burglar the other night who went through eight different houses, gathering spoils and got away in safety.

Hon. Whisk Hensing says he would cut his right arm off to be mayor of Chicago. Arms don't count, however, in Chicago politics; the fellow whose leg is pulled usually wins.

An organization of farmers has been effected in one of the townships of Kankakee county to resist the payment of taxes levied for the purpose of building and sustaining a high school. Some of them live three miles from the proposed school and have no interest in its construction. The case will come before the county court.

Horticulturists met at Kimmunity, Ill., the other day. A majority of them were interviewed and the general belief is that there will be an abundant crop of fruit, with the exception of peaches, but it is thought that peach buds developed to such an extent during the warm, damp weather preceding the cold spell that the crop will be almost if not entirely a failure.

Sergeant-at-Arms Ben F. Russell of Missouri is secure in his place during the life of the 55th congress. The Illinois delegation has decided not to press its claims for the place. A week ago the Illinois delegation unanimously decided that if Illinois could get one of the big offices under the house organization they would urge the name of Congressman Murphy of East St. Louis for sergeant-at-arms.

The publisher of the Avoca Herald recently sued a delinquent subscriber and recovered judgment for seven years' subscription, with costs, amounting to $24. The paper had been ordered stopped and had been returned from the postoffice as refused, but the subscriber had not paid up arrearages and his name was continued on the books and the paper mailed to his address. The decision of the court was that a subscriber could be held for subscription until all arrearages are paid.—Ex.

First Assistant Postmaster-General Frank Jones has been found out in a quiet little game he has been working for the benefit of a relative. It is declared that the recently appointed postmaster at Evanston, Ill., is a blood relative of Jones and that Gen. Jones took advantage of the situation there to work his relative into office. The situation at Evanston has led many senators to believe that perhaps similar conditions exist elsewhere and it clothes with a semblance of verity the story that the postoffice department is working, in connection with postmasters who are resigning in such numbers a confidence game on the incoming administration as well as on the patrons of the postoffices throughout the country.—Peoria Journal.

A novel charitable organization exists among the Jews of the west side, Chicago. It is for the purpose of lending money without interest to less fortunate members of their race, and during the year it has been in existence it has started 400 Jews in business, enabling them to gain a livelihood for themselves and their families. The society, which is known as the Rabbi Itzhok Elchonons Gimilas Chasodim of Chicago, was organized in October, 1895, as an outgrowth of the Ohave Sholem Mariampol Synagogue on Canal street, near Twelfth street. This is in the heart of the Jewish section, and there live hundreds of poor Jews, many of whom have suffered greatly during the recent commercial depression. The charity of the Jew to others of his race is well known, and most of the sufferers could have had charity from their more fortunate brethren, but they were too proud to make known their wants and resented the idea of receiving charity.

REV. MARY A. HILLIS.
In a letter just received from the noted Evangelist, Rev. Mary A. Hillis, she writes: "I gladly give my testimony to the healing properties of Dr. Kay's Lung Balm. My son has had a terrible cough every winter for five years and he took dozens of bottles of the leading cough medicines but nothing seemed to help him or quiet his cough. But two 25c. boxes of Dr. Kay's Lung Balm has cured him, and it has been a great relief to other members of my family when afflicted with colds."

The Fountain of Youth.

We all remember the story of Ponce de Leon seeking the fountain of eternal youth; and we all sympathize with him in his search. Youth means so much. It means more than life—for sometimes life becomes a weariness. But youth—with its abounding health and vigor, its elastic step, glowing cheeks, and sparkling eyes—we all covet genuine youth.

The weakness or disease which ages people before their time, is not the result of accumulated years; it is the effect of wrong living and unhealthy blood. When the blood is pure and fresh the body will be full of youth.

Thousands of people who seemed to have lost their youth by disease and suffering have found it again through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the most perfectly natural and scientific rejuvenator of the physical forces ever known to medical science.

It gives the blood-making organs power to make new blood, full of the life-giving red corpuscles which drive out disease, build up fresh tissue, solid muscular flesh and healthy nerve force. It gives constitutional power, deep and full and strong; rounds out hollow cheeks and emaciated forms; gives plumpness, color and animation. It does not make flabby fat like cod liver oil. On this account, it is a perfect tonic for corpulent people.

It aids digestion and the natural action of the liver, and by feeding the nerves with highly vitalized blood banishes nervousness, neuralgia and insomnia. Where a constipated condition exists, the "Discovery" should be used in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are the most perfect, mild and natural laxative in the world. There is nothing else "just as good." There is nothing that will do the work so thoroughly, surely and comfortably.

THE RECORD BROKEN.

C., B. & Q. ACCOMPLISHES A GREAT FEAT.

Special Train of the Burlington Route Runs from Chicago to Denver, 1,025 Miles, at an Average Speed of Nearly 58 Miles an Hour.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad has just accomplished the greatest feat the world has ever known for long-distance fast running.

It was made in a race against death to carry Henry J. Mayham of New York to the bedside of his dying son in Denver.

The distance from Chicago to Denver, 1,025 miles, was covered in exactly 1,069 minutes' actual running time. This is only a small fraction less than one mile a minute for the longest continuous run ever made by any railroad in the world.

It was a run made in the ordinary course of business. No special preparation whatever had been contemplated for the trip. In exactly forty-four minutes from the time the order for the train was received the throttle of the engine was pulled open and the train glided out of the Union Depot on a race which surprised railroad men the world over.

The engine which took the train on the first run out of Chicago to Galesburg had just come in from Aurora pulling a regular passenger train. No time was spent in cleaning up, but it was quickly turned around, attached to the special train and manned by the same engineer who had brought it to Chicago. Not more than a half dozen officials or employees of the road knew the trip was to be made. This fact is the most important in the history of the great feat, as it demonstrates the superb physical condition of the road and the perfect management which enables such remarkable time to be maintained for more than a thousand miles.

The time made by the record-breaking train is as follows, including all stops:

From Chicago	Miles.	Time.
To Galesburg	163	2h. 56m.
To Burlington	206	3h. 48m.
To Pacific Jet.	482	9h. 5m.
To Lincoln	541	10h. 11m.
To Hastings	638	12h. 3m.
To McCook	770	14h. 15m.
To Denver	1,025	18h. 53m.

Average time, including stops, 54.3 miles per hour.

Average time, excluding stops, 57.54 miles per hour.

The first stop made by the train after leaving Chicago was at Sixteenth street for supplies, where four minutes were consumed. At Aurora the traveling engineer took one minute to look the engine over and the train ran without a stop until Mendota was reached, when three minutes more were consumed for the same purpose. A total of twenty-one stops was made between Chicago and Denver, consuming in all sixty-four minutes. The longest stop was made at Red Oak, Ia., where engines were changed on account of a hot truck. At this point the fastest run of the trip was made. Soon after leaving Creston it was discovered that a box on one of the engine trucks was heating, but in spite of this fact the run of thirty-six miles was made in thirty-four minutes. At Villisca a fresh engine was substituted and the run to Red Oak, fifteen miles, was made in as many minutes.

Over long stretches of road between McCook and Denver the train made more than a mile a minute for distances of forty to sixty miles. Six engines took the train from Chicago to Denver, making an average of 170 miles to each run.

Mr. Mayham left New York Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on Pennsylvania Limited in response to repeated messages that his son, William B. Mayham, was lying at the point of death at Denver. At Fort Wayne Mr. Mayham became convinced that the ordinary trains would not take him to the bedside of his son in time to close his eyes in death, and he promptly wired the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road to have in readiness a special train to carry him through to Denver in the shortest possible time.

The Pennsylvania arrived in Chicago ten minutes late and thirty minutes making necessary preparations for the were consumed by Mr. Mayham in journey.

The train left the Union Depot at exactly 10 o'clock Monday morning. The Burlington road had agreed to make the trip to Denver "inside of twenty-four hours." The feat was accomplished in three minutes less than nineteen hours, or more than five hours under the stipulated time.

DOG TO BE PROUD OF.

Could Swim Under Water and Turn "Flip-Flaps" in the Air.

It was a way the trappers had to spin a yarn or two and get old Si Limick started, for he was easily the most fluent and imaginative liar that ever struck a trail, says the Detroit Free Press. "Speakin' 'bout dogs," broke in Si with his slow look and honest drawl, "I owned the curliest canine 'bout ten year back that ever wagged a tail. He was a ugly little runt an' no good fer 'bars, but when it kum ter small game an' fish he war p'isen."

"What er yer given 'us 'bout a dog-fish, Si?"

"Lots o' things in the worl you uns never heard on. That there dog uster run roun th' bottom o' a river same's 'twar dry lan. I seed him swim fer half mile onct un'er th' ice an bring out a fish big'er'n hisself. Th' critter could do 'thout breathin' frum fifteen ter twenty minutes, 'cordin ter how he war feelin'. I rigged up a regalar bellyban' with a blowed up bladder 'tached by a rope. That thar doggone uster git inter th' mersheen on his own hook and go sailin'."

"But how would he sail back ag'in th' win, Si?"

"He'd jist haul in th' bladder, jam it atween his forrad legs fer a life persarver an paddle in. He never turned pup uster git inter th' mersheen on his th' win war."

"But what beat me 'bout that dog war his 'gility. You uns orter see him workin a rabbit in a brush heap. He'd be a yelpin one side, an the rabbit would start fer ter run outeh t'other side. He'd make 'bout th' orfuls' jump you ever see. When he'd be half way over, the rabbit'd whirl, and right thar in th' air that thar dog'd turn a rare en flip-flap an' lan whar he started at time ter catch th' rabbit. Never heard o' no other dog could do it."

WHERE CORK COMES FROM.

The great cork forests of the world are in southern Europe, especially in Spain and Portugal. The trees will grow and even thrive in America, but the cork produced is of an inferior quality.

The Spanish cork forests cover an area of 620,000 square acres, those of Catalonia and Barcelona taking first rank. Cork trees growing near the seacoast are subject to a fungous growth which renders their product useless for purposes of commerce.

Cork trees are not strong enough to stand the operation of barking till they are fifteen years old. After that time they may be barked every three years without detriment and will continue to thrive and bear for about 150 years.

Cork of the first stripping is called corcho bornio, or virgin cork; that of the second stripping is known as pelus. The work of removing the bark from the trees is done in summer time by men, who are paid about 60 cents a day. After the bark is stripped it is boiled, sometimes in the woods, but more often in large caldrons at the cork factories, for the purpose of increasing its thickness and elasticity.

In Spain, Italy, Turkey, Morocco and Algeria, the countries where cork is most plentiful, it is used for many things besides bottle-stoppers. For instance, bee-hives, kitchen pails, culinary utensils, coflins, images, crosses, cabins, drinking vessels, pillows, shoes, armor, boats and many articles of furniture are made from cork.

"Don't You Remember?"

When you were boys and girls and walked miles to see the elephant come into town, and even ran away from school to carry water to help make the pink lemonade of commerce, you played at circus for the remainder of that summer. What fun you had keeping the other boys and girls from ascertaining what was going on at the very private rehearsals of the performance. How grand you felt when you struck off on the home-made printing press that you had built from an old in; roller and a small wooden picture frame, some handbills that read, in various assorted type:

I have no wealth to bring to you,
My little one, my queen.
But I've a heart that's pure and true,

WHAT FOLLOWED LA GRIPPE

Hemorrhoids, Nervous Debility and General Breakdown of Four Years Standing Cured by Pink Pills.

Particulars by Paul La Clair, the Patient.

From the Commercial, Mattoon, Ill.
Mr. Paul La Clair, of Mattoon, Illinois, is a well known contractor and builder, of good standing in the community, and the following statement is well vouched for, and its truth generally known in Mattoon.

MATTOON, Ill., Sept. 5, 1896.
"Four years ago I was taken with la grippe, which left me in a partially collapsed state of nervous debility, and shortly afterward the piles in a severe form appeared. I was in this condition for four years, and could get little or no relief from either one or the other of these troubles. I was unable to attend to my business which is that of contractor and builder, and two or three days a week were as much as I could attempt to work. Besides my nervousness was so extreme, that I could not go up a ladder, or work on a scaffold, as I would become dizzy, and liable fall.

"I had spent large sums of money for medical advice, with no results, and was pretty well discouraged, when I determined to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which I had seen so frequently advertised. "After obtaining a supply of the medicine, I began to take the pills according to directions, and improvement in my health immediately began. I continued the treatments until I had taken six boxes, when I was able to do a full day's work, all sign of nervousness and dizziness having left me.

"Now I am perfectly cured, the piles have disappeared, and I consider myself sound. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been more to me than gold, and I shall never cease to sound their praises. My weight when I began the treatment was 120 pounds. Now I weigh 160, and can work on the highest scaffold, without the slightest inconvenience or dread.

(Signed) "PAUL LA CLAIR,"
Witness to signature: W. H. BUCHANAN.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sorrow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Exiles to St. Helena.

The British foreign office contemplates making St. Helena useful as an asylum for obnoxious potentates. The ex-Zulu King Dinizulu has already been deported to the first Napoleon's open air prison, where he is quite out of reach of plotting chiefs and former subjects. Ex-King Prempeh, of Ashantee, now in Sierra Leone, will be forced to join his colleague at the rock-bound island at an early date, and it is not at all unlikely that the bloody monarch of Benin will be also of the party. John Bull will, of course, first have to catch the latter before he can be sent away, but that is probably only a matter of time.

ASKING QUESTIONS.

It is a Woman's Prerogative and She Uses It.

Timely Questions and Prompt Answers Have Resulted in Great Satisfaction to Many Women.

Sensitive women hate to ask their physicians those delicate questions that only a woman understands, and therefore write to Mrs.

Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., as she has ever proved their most accurate adviser, and knowing that their letters will be read and answered by one of their own sex. Thousands of such letters have been received within a few months from those afflicted with the various forms of female diseases, and it is needless to say the answers have brought comfort and relief.

That sense of dragging in the groin, dull pains in small of back, retention, suppression of menses, bearing-down pains, headache, nervousness, blues, etc., are symptoms that require prompt measures.

The cure is, in most cases, rapid. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be promptly taken, and Mrs. Pinkham will furnish any advice required, free. Following is another letter of thanks:—

"Please accept my thanks for the little book which you have sent me. It has opened my eyes, and told me that there is a remedy for suffering women. There is no need for women to suffer, if they will only take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for years with painful menstruation, thinking there was no remedy for it; but after reading your little pamphlet, I thought I would give your medicine a trial, and it is wonderful how quickly it relieved me. I recommend it for all women who suffer with painful menstruation."

She leaves her mother, a brother, Frank, aged 10 years, and a sister, Cora, aged eight months. Her funeral occurred at Barrington, yesterday, Revs. Sulr and Ream officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thies, sr., of Plum Grove, celebrated Mr. Thies' 59th birthday, by entertaining a number of their relatives and friends on Sunday. About twenty guests sat down to a sumptuous dinner at 1 o'clock. As Mr. Thies sat down to the table and turned up his plate, he was surprised to behold a magnificent and valuable silver watch, and an elegant chain. Another pleasant surprise was the presentation of an easy chair to Mr. Thies, which was the gift of Messrs. and Mesdames Fred Berghorn, Enoch Landwer, Wm. Thies, jr., Sam Landwer. The chair is an expensive and elaborate piece of furniture with a black leather cover. A most pleasant day was spent, and it was the wish of all that Mr. Thies may be spared to enjoy many birthday anniversaries.

On Monday evening a pleasant surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lageschulte, jr., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiseman by the members of the Zion's church choir of which Mrs. Lageschulte, nee Lydia Wiseman, had been a leading member until her marriage recently. Vocal and instrumental music and social games made the evening pass very pleasantly. Refreshments were served during the evening, which were highly enjoyed. The besieging party met at the store of Wolthausen & Landwer, and drove out to Mr. Wiseman's home. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Ed Hachmeister and F. A. Wolthausen; Misses Minnie Gieske, Amanda Troyer, Carrie Plagge and Esther Wiseman, and Herman Gieske.
