Board Proceedings

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT FRANCHISE GRANTED UNANIMOUSLY, AND NOW FOR WATERWORKS.

The meeting of the village board Monday evening attracted a large crowd, it being known that the question of putting in a system of waterworks would be discussed.

President Boehmer was in the chair and all the trustees answered to the roll-call of Clerk Powers except Trustee Willmarth, who was absent.

After reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the following bills were allowed and the clerk instructed to draw orders on the treasurer for the same:

A. S. Henderson, salary	$ 45 00
H. A. Sandman, "	35 30
Leroy Powers, oil	4 23
Miles T. Lamey, printing	13 83
L. F. Schroeder, nails	63

President Boehmer reported that the safe which he was instructed to purchase of Mr. Redmond was too large to get through the door of the village hall and, consequently, did not make the purchase. He was instructed to look up a safe elsewhere.

On motion of Trustee Collen it was decided to gravel North Hawley street to connect with the gravel recently completed by the town of Cuba on the Lake Zurich road. This improvement is commendable.

Trustee Peters moved that William Collen be ordered to build a new sidewalk in front of his property on south side of Russel street.

The walk to be built in front of Spinner's property on north side of North Railroad street was up for discussion. The ordinance calls for an 8-foot walk, while Spinner brothers think a 6-foot walk is fully wide enough. The matter was finally disposed of by leaving it to the street committee.

Some of the aldermen were of the opinion that something had ought to be done at once to get the sidewalks in the center of the town to the grade line. After considerable discussion the matter was dropped without any action being taken.

The electric light ordinance which was passed by the board June 16, was the next on the minutes to receive attention. Messrs. Brownell and Shedd were present in the interest of the electric light company. The company was under the impression that the ordinance had been regularly passed and in force, and had gone to work and put in their plant, which is now completed. The fact of the matter is, that the ordinance was passed at a special meeting of the board held for the purpose, and every member present voted for it. The ordinance, however, was not signed by the president of the board, nor published, and it now has given the board a loop-hole in which they are able to make further demands of the company. President Boehmer says that they made a mistake in passing the ordinance in not requiring a bond, and that before it would be regularly passed the board would require such a bond. It was agreed to adjourn until Tuesday evening, when the attorneys of the village and the electric light company could be present.

J. E. Heise presented a petition which contained the signatures of 104 of the taxpayers of the village, requesting that the board put in a system of waterworks. A committee was appointed to look into the cost of the same and report at the next meeting. It is thought that a complete system can be put in for about $20,000.

Alderman Grunau moved to adjourn. Motion carried and board stood adjourned.

TUESDAY EVENING.

The board met pursuant to adjournment and all members were present, except Trustee Willmarth.

Attorney Joslyn for the electric light company and Village Attorney Redmond were present.

This meeting being for the purpose of disposing of the electric light ordinance, the attorneys got to work at once to get at some agreement as to what was desired.

The board agreed to accept the ordinance and pass it upon the filing of a bond of $5,000 by the company, protecting the village from any damage that might come as a result of their granting such a franchise. The board then adjourned until Thursday evening, so as to give the company a chance to have a meeting of the directors and prepare a bond.

THURSDAY EVENING.

The village board met at the town hall at 8 o'clock, but adjourned to Stott's hall to transact the business of the evening. The meeting was called to order by President Boehmer.

The following trustees were present: Hatje, Peters, Robertson, Grunau and Collen.

The first matter taken up by the board was the ordinance granting a franchise to the Barrington Electric Light company to erect and operate an electric light plant in Barrington. The ordinance was somewhat revised over the first one drawn. Among the changes made was a clause compelling the electric light company to give a $3,000 bond for the faithful performance of their contract with the village, and in addition to which the company is required to give a $2,000 indemnity bond, to cover any accidents that has or may occur while the plant is operated. After some few minutes of general conversation, the ordinance as amended was put to a vote. Trustee Hatje made a motion that the ordinance be passed as read by Clerk Powers. It was seconded by Trustee Collen and passed by the board unanimously.

Attorney Redmond was delegated by the board to go to Elgin and fix up the bonds; also to investigate the sureties offered by the electric light company.

After this troublesome question had been disposed of, a great sigh of relief on the part of the electric light company and the board was noticeable.

The next question that came before the board was that of waterworks. Circulars had been distributed early in the morning, announcing that the question would be discussed by the board and asked all citizens to be present so as to voice their sentiments as to how they felt on the matter. The hall was well filled with an earnest and enthusiastic audience in favor of a good system of waterworks. President Boehmer opened the discussion, and said he considered that a good system of waterworks would be but a small expense to the property owners each year, and believed that it would, besides lowering insurance considerably, enhance the value of property from 15 to 25 per cent.

Attorney Redmond was then called upon to address the audience. Mr. Redmond declared that he believed waterworks would prove to be a paying investment. The speaker went on to show how Dekalb, where he formerly lived, was at first inclined to be against putting in a system of waterworks, but now they have one, and it is a paying investment. Mr. Redmond wound up his speech by saying that he would like to see waterworks here in full force by this time next year.

The citizens, who had been earnest listeners, were then requested to express themselves individually on the matter. Several of our most prominent citizens responded to the privilege granted, and in nearly every instance the speeches were strongly in favor of waterworks, and were highly applauded by the audience.

A Mr. Houston, representing an engineering company of Chicago, was called upon to give some idea as to his plan of waterworks necessary for the village, which he did by drawings especially made for the purpose. He estimated that a waterworks plant could be put in for about $20,000.

After considerable time had been devoted to an explanation of drawings, and to find out the feeling of the audience, President Boehmer requested all present in favor of waterworks to manifest it by rising. The manifestation for waterworks was what might be called unanimous, as nearly every one present arose. After this request had been fulfilled, those in opposition to the same was requested to manifest it in the same way, but none could be found who objected.

The village attorney was instructed to make the proper arrangements to carry out the will of the people.

A motion to adjourn was made and carried.

MRS. SELLECK IN A RUNAWAY.

Her Carriage Dashed to Pieces on the Miltimore Hill.

Mrs. J. O. Selleck, living on Center avenue near the School for the Blind, at Janesville, Wis., was hurt badly in a runaway on the Miltimore hill Sunday morning. Her horse took fright at a cow latched beside the road and bolted down the long hill which leads to the east end of the Monterey bridge. Half way down the hill the carriage struck an electric light pole and was smashed into kindling. Mrs. Selleck was thrown out headlong and lay motionless. She was half stunned and it was feared she had sustained internal injuries but examination showed that her most serious injury was a broken leg. She was bruised severely but when last heard of was resting comparatively easy.

Village Board Meeting at Palatine.

There was not a quorum at the regular meeting of the village board Monday night, three members—Horstmann, Ost and Meyer—being absent, and the president postponed the meeting until Wednesday night. A large number of citizens were disappointed at the adjournment, as it was thought that the question of waterworks would be presented and they had come to watch the proceedings.

All members were present Wednesday night and after the usual business was gone through with the following bills were ordered paid:

H. Law, August salary	$40 00
Wm. Scherring, supplies	6 60
Wm. Tegtmeyer, labor	14 70
Christ Grum, "	6 00
H. Schoppe, "	6 60
Battermann, Abelmann & Ost, supplies	73 87
A. C. Bennett, labor	3 00

A petition was presented, signed by a majority of the taxpayers of the village, asking for a system of waterworks in Palatine.

It was moved by Ost that the petition be referred to the committee on Fire and Water, composed of Ost, Meyer and Putnam.

An amendment was offered by Taylor that the committee be composed of the heads of the following committees: Fire and Water, Street and Drainage, Financial, which would be composed of Ost, Putnam and Taylor. A vote was taken resulting as follows: Yeas—Stroker, Putnam, Taylor. Nays—Ost, Horstmann, Meyer. There being a tie in the vote, the president voted in the affirmative and the amendment prevailed.

A special meeting of the board will be held on Monday evening, September 27, for the purpose of hearing the report of this committee.

Board then adjourned.

It was a very foolish story that the United States government had sent Minister Woodford to consult with European nations in regard to our addressing Spain as to Cuba. The United States does not have to consult other nations in regard to our course concerning Cuba or concerning anything else.

New York and Boston have waked up to find they are behind the times in facilities for shipping and receiving ocean freight. Their dock and draft accommodations are deficient. They only found out the fact when it was discovered that last year the export trade of New York fell off 9 per cent; that of Boston, 1 per cent. Philadelphia and Baltimore were gainers by what the northern ports lost.

Mark Lane Express Figures the Net Deficiency at 14,000,000 Quarters. London, Sept. 8.—The Mark Lane Express, reviewing the crop situation, says: "The weather has been adverse to the completion of the harvest and the quantity of grain still out is considerable. The French wheat crop is estimated at 31,000,000 quarters by the chief writers of the Paris press. Correspondents of English business firms state that the crop will amount to from 33,000,000 to 36,000,000 quarters. The Austria-Hungary crop is stated to be 17,000,000 quarters. If this is true it adds greatly to the gravity of the situation. The American crop is reckoned by careful judges to be 68,500,000 quarters, or 11,000,000 quarters improvement to offset a decline of 3,444,000 quarters in Russia and 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 quarters in France. Injuring Dairy Export Trade.

A conversation not long since with a gentleman who has spent a considerable time in Great Britain in investigating the markets of that country for both butter and cheese, we were very much impressed with his idea; that is, that our people had too much of the Yankee in their business methods in connection with England when exporting butter and cheese, says Elgin Dairy Report. The matter came up incidentally as to the quality of goods from the reason that a box maker had sent to a factory where this gentleman was having butter packed, some boxes made of wood that had both flavor and taste. He refused to accept them, believing that in the end, although a saving of two or three cents on the box might be had, he would probably lose a cent or two on each pound of butter, which would not be a good investment. The conversation drifted into the quality of goods heretofore sent to England from our American market as a representative of the quality of both butter and cheese made in this country. Of course filled cheese came in for discussion, as it always does in that direction, showing that the quality of cheese sent over there as full cream cheese, being filled or sophisticated with lard, had done more to degrade the reputation of American cheese than any one thing and that the dealers over there take advantage of that, and whenever they find a bad lot either of English or Canadian cheese, they label it American and mark it at low prices, and refer their customers to the fact that they cannot get good cheese from America, and these are a fair sample of the goods. It is so in the butter line. We have been sending over to a large extent nothing but low grade butter that would sell there possibly for a cent a pound profit more in proportion than the better grades, and the English dealers had come to believe that they could get no good butter in this country; but now that a change has been made it rests entirely with the dealers and shippers on this side to build up and sustain a reputation for high class goods in the English markets that will stand us in good stead not only at present but in the future. Take for example the Danish dairy industry; it is fostered by the government and in such a way that the maker or manufacturer who does not come up to the requirements of grade, both in regard to the butter itself and the method of packing, that he loses caste at once, and not only that, but he loses money at the same time. This is a most effectual way of curing either shippers or manufacturers of careless or slovenly ways. So with exporting dairy products from this country. Now that we have gotten rid of the filled cheese question, and it must go forward labeled so that the people who buy it will know what they are buying, the butter question comes to the front more extensively than ever before, and the quality that we send forward will determine the extent of the market which American butter will obtain in England.

Standard Varieties of Chickens.

Minorcas—This variety of fowls belong to the Mediterranean class, and they are placed next to the Leghorns in laying qualities. They are in appearance very similar to the Leghorn. Their general outline is, in fact, that of the latter, but of more length of body and heavier in mold. Indeed, they are the only variety of the Mediterranean class that has a given weight, which approaches that of the Wyandotte, being only one-half pound lighter than the last named. The origin of the Minorca, like that of so many others of our profitable poultry, is much in doubt. Some are of the opinion that they originally came from Minorca, an island in the Mediterranean Sea, one of the Balearic Isles, while others contend they are a variety of the Black Spanish. Be that as it may, they are one of the most profitable breeds of poultry for the farm that is known. For table purposes they are good, the flesh being white, or light colored, and fine grained. Their chief property is their egg production. They are non-sitters, and year-around layers. As winter layers they are exceptionally good when kept under fairly favorable circumstances. While the Leghorn surpasses them in the number of eggs laid, the Minorca's eggs are larger, and equal the output in bulk. Their eggs are white, and average eight to the pound. They lay from twelve to fifteen dozen a year. For farm purposes they are especially profitable. Being of an active, restless disposition, they keep in splendid condition and make good foragers. For suburban poultry keeping they are very practical birds, and net good results to the keeper. They are hardy, easily raised, and mature quickly.

Advice from Canada.

Following are creamery items that appear in a Canada exchange:

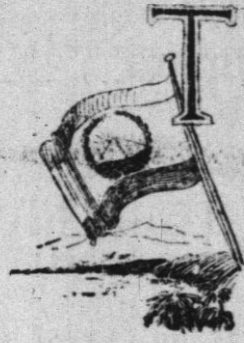

The people of Great Britain are great butter eaters. They like theirs mildly salted and not highly colored. If the creamerymen of the United States do not secure their share of this fine butter market, they will be wickedly negligent, that's all. Lack of cleanliness is the cause of seven-eighths of all the bad butter, milk and cheese upon the market. Never let steam go directly into milk to heat it. This spoils the flavor of the butter that is made from the milk. When butter is the size of grains of wheat in the churn draw off the buttermilk carefully and wash and salt the butter. A fine wire strainer held under the buttermilk vent will catch any particles of butter that try to escape. In hiring a buttermaker let the proprietor of a creamery require him to give a guarantee that he will make first-class butter. Then let them on their part give him a guarantee that they will furnish him with nothing but first-class milk to work on and first-class machinery in the creamery besides.

Marking Butter Tubs.—Don't mark your tubs all over with stencil marks. Mark them on top only. I see some buttermakers continue to put the stencil on the sides of their tubs as well as on top. This makes the tubs look badly and causes your commission dealer a good deal of trouble. He wants the tubs to look nice and is obliged to erase the extra stencil marks.—Ex.

PAZ FROM BOLIVIA.

THE NEW MINISTER TO THE UNITED STATES.

A Young Statesman Who Is Already a Power in His Country's Government—His Career in War and Politics in His Native Land.

HERE have been two important additions to the diplomatic corps from South America this summer, and for the first time in many years both Peru and Bolivia are represented by ministers resident at this capital. Luis

Paz, the new envoy from Bolivia, who presented his credentials only a day or two before the president left Washington, making at the time a most felicitous speech, is the last to arrive. His credentials having been presented, there are no official duties that demand the minister's immediate attention. He has planned, therefore, to leave Washington soon, and will visit some of the eastern resorts. The first representative accredited from Bolivia was Ladisloa Cabrera, who served from November, 1880, until December, 1882. After Mr. Cabrera's recall there was an interval of nearly four years during which time, and at all subsequent times when there has been no minister resident here from that country, all diplomatic business was conducted by the state department directly with the secretary of foreign affairs at Sucre. It was the hope of interesting capital and stimulating immigration and the desire to study the railroad systems of this country, which the chief executive of Bolivia, President Alonzo, considers the finest in the world, that inspired Mr. Paz to resign his seat in the senate and relinquish the leadership of a great political party to accept the post of a forceful personality. When he speaks it is to convince his hearers. For the institutions of the United States and for its people he expresses the warmest admiration, an admiration shared by the young and brilliant president of Bolivia, who has only recently been elected to that office. Mr. Paz has traveled widely in Europe, but this is his first visit to the United States, and he hopes his mission here "will bring into more intimate relations Bolivia and the United States, for which my countrymen have the greatest love and affection." The minister is accompanied by the first secretary of legation, Dario Gutierrez, a young man of fine appearance, agreeable manners and diplomatic training, who shares his chief's enthusiasm for this country, and who confesses himself as delighted that his official duties have placed him in so charming a capital.

Has Had Adventures.

Any woman who engages in the practice of medicine is warranted to have an interesting existence, but Miss Lillias Hamilton, an English woman, has had rather more than falls to the lot of most women physicians.

She is now in England, where she has returned from Afghanistan. When she graduated from the London School of Medicine she went to Calcutta to practice, but after three years' hard work her health gave way and she was advised to seek the splendid air of Cabul, which she did. Arriving as a patient, she remained as a doctor.

While in Cabul the favorite wife of the ameer of Afghanistan fell ill and Dr. Hamilton cured her. This made her so popular with the royal family that she was induced to remain as physician to the court. As competent doctors were very few in Afghanistan, sick persons from all over the country flocked to Cabul and this English woman wrote prescriptions and if necessary operated, for she is a surgeon as well as a doctor of medicine.

Two years ago, when the ameer sent his son, Nasrulla Khan, to England on minister to the United States. In conversation the other day the Bolivian minister, who, by the way, speaks no English yet, said: "I see just now that your people are much excited over the discovery of gold in the Klondike region. We have more gold in Bolivia than they have in Klondike, and you don't have to freeze or starve to death in our country. There is not a stream in all Bolivia where gold cannot be washed out. With modern machinery there are vast quantities of the precious metal to be had. It is to interest capitalists here in our gold possibilities that I came. One of the greatest opportunities Bolivia offers to men of small means is the development of the rubber and cocoa industry. Many come among us to mine gold, and when they see the chances offered by the rubber fields they never go near the mines, but at once engage in the rubber business. Since the passage of our recent laws, any person can stake out a grove of rubber trees and it belongs to him." The new minister is a young man, having been born in Farija some forty-three years ago. He was brought up and educated at Sucre, the capital of Bolivia, and received from the university there, of whose faculty he is now a member, the degree of doctor of laws. But Mr. Paz was not destined to spend much time in the practice of his profession, as at an age when most young men are still in the classroom, he entered politics and soon rose to be a power in the state. For a number of terms he served as member of the lower house of the Bolivian parliament and in the cabinet of Mr. Alonzo's predecessor he held at first the portfolio of interior, and later was made minister of war. Mr. Paz is a typical Spaniard in appearance, and is possessed of diplomatic business, Dr. Hamilton accompanied him as physician to the suite. Since that time she has had a trained nurse working under her direction in Cabul and hopes to establish a hospital with a corps of trained nurses as soon as the ameer and his wives realize the value of such help to a physician. Among other things Dr. Hamilton has introduced vaccination. Dr. Hamilton, as has been said, is now in England, but it is not likely she will

MISS L. HAMILTON, M. D. remain long with such a promising field awaiting her in the land of the ameer.

£300,000 in Tips. It is stated that every year the railway servants of Great Britain get no less than £300,000 in tips from the public.

ILLINOIS NEWSLETS.

RECORD OF MINOR DOINGS OF THE WEEK.

Seven Days' Happenings Condensed—Social, Religious, Political, Criminal, Obituary and Miscellaneous Events from Every Section of the State.

Mascoutah.—Judge Padfield, residing near Summerfield, a half dozen miles north of here, has broken the big apple record with one just picked in his orchard. It is of the Belle-Dora variety, weighs only twenty-one ounces and is five and one-half inches in diameter.

It is expected that Colonel Merritt Barber, adjutant general of the department of the Missouri, will soon be transferred to New York. He has gone east on a six weeks' leave. A succession of expected retirements have prompted Col. Barber's friends to determine to ask the president to advance him over Col. Corbin, to the adjutant generalship of the army next spring, so he can retire as a brigadier-general. Colonel Corbin is much younger.

Chicago.—The man calling himself "Francis Schlatter," who has been conducting the divine healing camp at Manhattan Beach since Sunday, has been served with a summons to answer the charge of practicing medicine without a license. He will be prosecuted by the state board of health of Illinois, and if convicted is liable to a fine of $100 for the first offense and $200 in addition if his patients care to trouble him further. Dr. J. A. Egan, secretary of the state board, instituted the legal proceedings.

The Chicago police say they will have 100 complaints against George Carson, alias Sanderson, alias Sandberg, who was arrested yesterday. He has been wanted for several months on charges of passing worthless checks. On one of the checks found in his pocket he had forged the name of Alderman Kenna, but he had made a mistake in the name by writing John instead of Michael. The checks were drawn on the Illinois Trust and Savings bank. Carson was located as a result of a statement made by Louis Bross, who was mysteriously stabbed the other night. Now it is thought Bross was a confederate.

Decatur.—Jerome R. Gorin, a prominent citizen and banker of this place, was found dead in bed. Mr. Gorin was the oldest living past grand master of the Illinois Masons, and had held a number of other high offices in the masonic fraternity. He was a member of Chicago consistory, having been admitted to the thirty-second degree in that city in 1866. He was grand master in 1867-8. Mr. Gorin had also been prominent in Sunday school work and was at one time president of the State Sunday School association. In 1856-7 he served a term in the state legislature, and later was in the employ of the government as distributing officer. For many years he practiced law in partnership with such men as Chase, Emerson, Kirby, Benedict and Arthur Gallagher.

Mascoutah.—For more than twenty-five years Colonel John Thomas of this county was one of the leading figures in Illinois politics. When he died Dec. 16, 1894, he was probably the richest man in southern Illinois. He left an estate valued at over $1,000,000, made up largely of valuable lands in this and adjoining counties. Col. Thomas was twice married, and left thirteen children—five sons and five daughters by his first wife, and one son and two daughters by his second wife, whom he married in 1875. These two families were completely estranged from each other, and their disagreement over the division of the estate has finally landed in court. The case will be fought stubbornly by both sides, and it is asserted will bring out a family skeleton in the shape of an old scandal long since forgotten. George D. Thomas of Montana represents the older children, and Colonel John E. Thomas of this county the younger set.

Springfield.—The Illinois railroad and warehouse commission is preparing to proceed against the Union stock yards and transit company of Chicago. It is claimed that the company has exceeded its corporate powers and is violating the laws of the state by doing other than a railroad business, for which it was incorporated; is collecting revenue for work being done; is operating eight miles of main track, and eighty-nine miles of siding in Cook county; has rolling stock in considerable quantity; handles coke, pig iron, iron ore, coal and other commodities from South Chicago to the plant of the Illinois steel company at Bridgeport, Ill., and when that plant is operating hauls its products from the plant to various railroad yards in Chicago for transportation to other railroads. The report of the stock yards company has been returned to the officers, with the request to at once make and file with the railroad and warehouse commission a true statement of its affairs. If this is not done proceedings will be taken against the corporation under the laws of the state.

The New Northwest.

The northwest used to be the country about Chicago. Then it was shoved farther outward and upward to Minnesota, next the Dakotas. Canada drove it on still north to Manitoba and Winnipeg. The great gold discoveries in the very farthest corner of this continent are evidence now that the northwest will never stop till it reaches the very jumping off place at Bering strait.

Nothing is more likely than that the first year of the twentieth century will witness an American railroad through Alaska and a similar Canadian line through the Northwest Territory to Klondike goldfields or other goldfields that may be opened. If one can believe the half or quarter that is told of the new frozen mines of gold, they will exceed in richness and quantity anything ever known even in the palmiest California, Australia or South African days. But transportation is absolutely imperative before they can be developed.

One Canadian project is that of reaching the Klondike by way of Hudson bay and Mackenzie river. A railway line is proposed from Sault Ste Marie northward to James bay, the southern point of Hudson bay. This railway would be 400 miles long. From James bay steamers would go 1,300 miles northwest through Hudson bay to Chesterfield inlet, along a narrow strip of water projecting westward from the northwest corner of Hudson bay. It is 250 miles in length. From the head of Chesterfield inlet a railway 175 miles long westward would connect with Great Slave lake, the head of the Mackenzie river. Passing down Mackenzie river, still northward and westward, the traveler would be brought to within 50 miles of Porcupine river, which is a navigable tributary of the Yukon. These 50 miles could be covered by a railway. In winter the waterways could be traversed by sleighs. Solid ice is a smooth and easy road over which to convey heavy freight.

The Enchanted Mesa is the name of a great rock rising out of the sandy plain 75 miles west of Albuquerque, N. M. It is 500 feet high and has such steep, smooth sides that nobody until recently has ever been able to ascend it. Legends were thick as leaves concerning the towerlike rock. It was popularly believed among Indians that a remnant of the ancient Aztec race were living up there still, growing vegetables and keeping sheep. On the 21st of July, this year, science as incarnated in Professor William Libbey of Princeton university solved the mystery of the Enchanted Mesa. He took with him from the east a quantity of rope and a small cannon such as the life saving service on the seacoast uses for shooting lines over shipwrecked vessels in a storm. He rigged this and shot a line clear over the Enchanted Mesa. Then he hitched a team of horses to one end of the rope and had himself pulled up to the top of the great rock in a chair. A companion, Mr. Pearce, was also drawn up. The professor explored the top of the bald headed pile of stone thoroughly. He found not a broken dish or pipe or arrowhead or bone, not a thing to indicate that any human foot had ever before trod the top of the rock. And now the Enchanted Mesa becomes the disenchanting mesa.

"The Grand Army of the Republic believes in military instruction in the public schools because it is good for the boys mentally, morally, physically and above all patriotically," said General Clarkson in his address to his comrades at Buffalo.

We doubted from the first that story of the Andree carrier pigeon having been shot off North cape, Lapland, by a sailor, and it now turns out to have been a gorgeous fake, a good one even for the brain of the cable correspondent.

Eat as little as possible in hot weather, and you will be well and happy.

Once more that engine of destruction the folding bed has been at work. This time it shut down upon a man and broke his neck.

It is a race between France and Germany for the favor of the czar, with chances at present apparently in favor of France.

The Cults and Philosophies.

Boston is always educating our minds. The newest thing in education is apparently the cults and philosophies as they have been presented to a gaping and admiring world through the medium of what are called the "Cambridge conferences."

So far as an outsider can judge, the Cambridge conferences were a series of meetings at which people who could not get anybody else to listen to them on the cults and philosophies met and read papers to one another in a place where nobody could get away. From the 1st of November, 1896, till the 1st of May, 1897, there rolled out from Cambridge, Mass., words that will go thundering down the corridors of whatever is left when time shall be no more. Jew, heathen, Christian and Yankee came together and talked. Great Scott, how they did talk! Now one, next time another, and again another, so that they strung the big words out over the whole winter. An account of the meetings informs us that these learned persons held 21 Wednesday afternoon conferences and 70 discussions. But mostly the talkers were pure Yankee, we believe.

Mary and varied as the topics are, we are told that there was a perception of unity back of all and that it was a human dependence on the Unsearchable with a large U. How can one have a perception of a unity of dependence on the Unsearchable? Maybe those who have the cults and philosophies at their tongue's end can do it, but a plain body cannot.

Plain people have, however, missed much in not having been present at these delicious Cambridge conferences. How they would have lost themselves in the perception of the Unsearchable during a lecture on "The Rational Origin of the Categorical Imperative and the Law of Its Distributive Operation." Those benighted individuals who have had secret doubts as to the law of the distributive operation of the categorical imperative are hereby bidden to stand aside. They are not in it. Let them take a back seat till they get that straight in their minds. Then and then only will they be qualified to take in the "Ethical Survivals in City Immortality."

We may hold out a faint but dependably unsearchable hope, too, that after they have mastered the categorical imperative and the ethical survivals they may tackle the ethics of Plotinic mysticism and the unutterable mahatmic meanderings of the Swami Saradanda and the Anagarika H. Dharmapala.

We are told that in these sublime conferences often a happy thrill of surprise at new mental furnishings and the beautiful products of a glorified life hurtled through the cults and philosophies among the audience. We should think so. It gives us thrills only to hear of the things they did and said there, and we are sure it will give our readers thrills too.

P. S.—We regret not to have heard as yet of any great and good movement among mankind as the direct result of the Cambridge conferences.

There were chivalry and gentleness toward women in the Spanish breast in former times. Some trace of it must linger still, enough to insure the rescue of Evangelina Cisneros from the awful fate of being sent to Ceuta. Evangelina Cisneros is a niece of President Cisneros of the Cuban republic. She was believed to be a rebel and was exiled with members of her family to the island of Pines, 50 miles south of Cuba. There the Spanish commandant insulted her. Her brother and her fiance caught the officer, and Spaniards claim, attempted to kill him. For this the girl was thrown into prison in Cuba a year ago. The Spanish prosecutor demands that she be sent to Ceuta, the penal colony on the north coast of Africa. There this young and beautiful girl will be thrown in the company of the worst ruffians in the whole Spanish kingdom. Her fate is one that makes the civilized man and woman shiver. Public feeling in Europe and America has been roused by this case. After the girl's trial and final sentence it will be in the power of Queen Christina to pardon her.

The Spanish government approves the American demand for indemnity to the family of Dr. Ruiz because the demand was couched in pacific language. In public as in private life there is no diplomatic weapon like pacific language. One may take a position and stand to it as firm as the rock of ages and still be perfectly polite and courteous to his opponent all the time, giving no hurt to his pride and using no violent words in which he can take advantage of a weak point. This is the perfection of diplomacy.

 The ball game Saturday between the Wauconda and Barrington Junior teams proved a regular walkaway for the Wauconda boys. From the first our boys were in the lead and staid until the end. The hour being late when the game commenced it was agreed to play but seven innings, which proved a great sufficiency, as the audience had nearly dispersed when that was finished, the score standing 27 to 13 in favor of Wauconda.

Farm Products Bring Higher Prices.
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Assistant Secretary Brigham of the department of agriculture has prepared the following table showing the increase in prices of farm products this year over those of the corresponding period in 1896:

	1896.	1897.
Butter, creamery, per lb.	$.15	$.18

GROVER CLEVELAND'S TAX VALUE.

Makes a Return, Putting His Realty at $20,000 and Personalty $130,000.
 TRENTON, N. J., September 8.—The county board of assessors met yesterday to adjust the assessments of the townships and municipalities of Mercer county and to fix the tax rate.
 The assessors were greatly pleased by the statements presented by the assessors from Princeton borough, who exhibited the return blank made by Grover Cleveland, who gives the borough a little lift by frankly acknowledging the value of his personal estate. It fixed the value of his new home at $20,000 and his personal property at $130,000.
 The former President says in his remarks that this is as near as he can get at the value of his securities, because of the uncertain condition of the market and fluctuating value of stock.
 There is an increase of $1,000,000 in the valuation of the county, and $300,000 of this is in Princeton township. Half of the latter comes through Grover Cleveland coming into the county.

Unions Lose a Game.

The base ball game Saturday between the South Elgins and Unions at Barrington ball park was a very quiet affair. While the game was exciting and close, the usual kicking as to the decisions of the umpire was not heard. In fact, there was no occasion to kick, as the umpire was impartial in his decisions.
 Richards was in the box for the South Elgins and Drewes for the Unions. The pitchers did good work. A misunderstanding arose between the players and the captain of the Unions in regard to the game being fixed for seven innings, the players claiming to know nothing about the arrangement. The shortness of the game was very unsatisfactory to the spectators. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Unions	3	0	0	0	0	2	4
South Elgins	1	0	0	1	0	4	1-7

BODIES OF MILITIAMEN FOUND.

Kelm and Uebel Washed Ashore Just South of Kenosha.
 The bodies of the militiamen, John Kelm and Henry Uebel, who were drowned off Camp Logan, south of Waukegan, a week ago last Sunday, while attempting to go to Waukegan in a small sailboat, were washed ashore at the state line, between Kenosha and Waukegan, Wednesday morning. Captain Benjamin Cameron of the life saving crew took charge of the bodies and the relatives were notified. The bodies were taken to Chicago Thursday.

A CAREFUL INVESTIGATION

WILL CONVINCE EVERY ONE THAT THE PLACE TO

BUY WHITE LEAD, LINSEED OIL,

MIXED PAINTS, VARNISHES, HARD OILS, LIME, BRICK, CEMENT, Etc., is at

J. D. LAMEY & CO.'S,

Prices are low. Parties desirous of doing painting will find no better time to do so than right now. Linseed Oil is now down to a remarkable low figure, as is also White Lead. It looks reasonable that prices can not hold down to so low a point but for a short time; in particular that of Linseed Oil. Nearly every one is aware of the rise in price of all grains, which include flax, of which Linseed Oil is made. Prices can not get lower—they are as low as they can get.

PART II.

Told by Richard Fenton, of Frenchay, Cloucestershire, Esquire.

My old friend Phil Brand has asked me to do this, I suppose I must—Brand is a right good fellow and a clever fellow, but has plenty of crotchets of his own. The worst I know of him is that he insists upon having his own way with people. With those who differ from him he is as obstinate as a mule. Anyhow, he has always had his own way with me. This custom, so far as I am concerned, commenced years ago, when we were boys at school together, and I have never been able to shake off the bad habit of giving it to him. He has promised to see that my Queen's English is presentable; for, to tell the truth, I am more at home across country than across foolscap, and my fingers know the feel of the reins or the trigger better than that of the pen.

All the same, I hope he won't take too many liberties with my style, bad though it may be; for old Brand at times is apt to get—well, a bit prosy. To hear him on the subject of hard work, and the sanctity thereof, approaches the sublime!

What freak took me to the little God-forsaken village of Midcombe in the depth of winter, is entirely between myself and my conscience. The cause, having no bearing upon the matters I am asked to tell you about, is no one's business but mine. I will only say that now I would not stay in such a place, at such a time of the year, for the sake of the prettiest girl in the world, let alone the bare chance of meeting her once or twice. But one's ideas change. I am now a good bit older, ride some two stone heavier, and have been married ever so many years. Perhaps, after all, as I look back, I can find some excuse for being such an ass as to endure, for more than a fortnight, all the discomforts heaped upon me in that little village inn.

A man who sojourns in such a hole as Midcombe must give some reason for doing so. My ostensible reason was hunting. I had a horse with me, and a second-rate subscription pack of slow-going mongrels did meet somewhere in the neighborhood, so no one could gainsay my explanation. But, if hunting was my object, I got precious little of it. A few days after my arrival, a bitter, biting frost set in—a frost as black as your hat and as hard as nails. Yet still I stayed on.

From private information received—no matter how, when, or where—I knew that some people in the neighborhood had organized a party to go skating on a certain day at Lilymere; a fine sheet of water some distance from Midcombe. I guessed that someone whom I particularly desired to meet would be there, and as the skating was free to anyone who chose to take the trouble of getting to such an out of the way place, I hired a horse and an apology for a dog-cart, and at ten in the morning started to drive the twelve miles to the pond. I took no one with me. I had been to Lilymere once before, in the bright summer weather, so fancied I knew the way well enough.

The sky when I started was cloudy; the wind was chopping around in a way which made the effete rustic old hostler predict a change of weather. He was right. Before I had driven two miles light snow began to fall, and by the time I reached a wretched little wayside inn, about a mile from the Mere, a film of white covered the whole country. I stabled my horse as well as I could, then, taking my skates with me, walked down to the pond.

Now, whether I had mistaken the day, or whether the threatening fall of snow had made certain people change their minds, I don't know; but, to my annoyance and vexation, no skaters were to be seen, and, moreover, the uncut, white surface told me that none had been on the pond that morning. Still, hoping they might come in spite of the weather, I put on my skates and went outside-edging and grape-vining all over the place. But as there was no person in particular—in fact, no one at all—to note my powers, I soon got tired. It was, indeed, dreary, dreary work. But I waited and hoped until the snow came down so fast and furiously, that I felt sure that waiting was in vain, and that I had driven to Lilymere for nothing.

Back I went to the little inn, utterly disgusted with things in general, and feeling that to break someone's head would be a relief to me in my present state of mind. Of course, a sensible man would at once have got his horse between the shafts and driven home. But, whatever I may be now, in those days I was not a sensible man—Brand will, I know, cordially endorse this remark—the accommodation of the inn was not such as to induce one to linger within its precincts; but the fire was a right good one, and a drink, which I skillfully manufactured out of some hot beer, not to be despised, and proved warming to the body and soothing to the ruffled temper. So I lingered over the big fire until I began to feel hungry, and upon the landlady assuring me that she could cook a rasher, decided it would be wiser to stay where I was until the violence of the snow-storm was over; for coming down it was now, and no mistake!

And it kept on coming down. About half-past three, when I sorrowfully decided I was bound to make a move, it was snowing faster than ever. I harnessed my horse, and laughing at the old woman's dismal prophecy that I should never get to Midcombe in such weather, gathered up the reins, and away I went along the white road.

I thought I knew the way well enough. In fact, I had always prided myself upon remembering any road once driven over by me; but does anyone who has not tried it really know how a heavy fall of snow changes the aspect of the country, and makes landmarks snares and delusions? I learnt all about it then, once and for all. I found, also, that the snow lay much deeper than I thought could possibly be in so short a time, and it still fell in a manner almost unding. Yet I went on bravely and merrily for some miles. Then came a bit of uncertainty—

WHICH of those two roads was the right one? This one, of course—no, the other. There was no house near; no one was likely to be passing in such weather, so I was left to exercise my free, unbiased choice, a privilege I would willingly have dispensed with. However, I made the best selection I could, and followed it for some two miles. Then I began to grow doubtful, and soon persuading myself that I was on the wrong track, retraced my steps. I was by this time something like a huge white plaster-of-paris figure, and the snow which had accumulated on the old dog-cart made it run heavier by half-a-ton, more or less. By the time I came to that unlucky junction of roads at which my misfortune began, it was almost dark; the sky as black as tarpaulin, yet sending down the white feathery flakes thicker and faster than ever. I felt inclined to curse my folly in attempting such a drive, at any rate I blamed myself for not having started two or three hours earlier. I'll warrant that steady-going old Brand never had to accuse himself of such foolishness as mine.

Well, I took the other road, went on some way; came to a turning which I seemed to remember; and, not without misgivings, followed it. My misgivings increased when, after a little while, I found the road grew full of ruts, which the snow and the darkness quite concealed from me until the wheels got into them. Evidently I was wrong again. I was just thinking of making the best of my way out of this rough and unfrequented road, when—there, I don't know how it happened, and such things seldom occur to me—a stumble, a fall on the part of my tired horse sent me flying over the dashboard, with the only consoling thought that the reins were still in my hand.

Luckily the snow had made the falling pretty soft. I picked myself up and set about estimating damages. With some difficulty I got the horse out of the harness and then felt free to inspect the dog-cart. Alas! after the manner of the two-wheel kind whenever a horse thinks fit to fall, one shaft had snapped off like a carrot; so here was I, five miles apparently from anywhere, in the thick of a blinding snow-storm, left standing helpless beside a jaded horse and a broken cart—I should like to know what Brand would have done under the circumstances.

As for me, I reflected for some minutes—reflection in a snowstorm is weary work. I reasoned, I believe, logically, and at last came to this decision: I would follow the road. If, as I suspected, it was but a cart track, it would probably soon lead to a habitation of some kind. Anyway, I had better try a bit farther. I took hold of the wearied horse and with snow under my feet, snowflakes whirling round me, and a wind blowing right into my teeth, struggled on.

He—"You are a veritable queen of the roses, Daisy, but I—what am I?" She—"Give it up, dear boy, altogether, unless you are an evergreen."—Stand-ard.

It was a journey! I think I must have been three-quarters of an hour going about a quarter of a mile. I was just beginning to despair, when I saw a welcome gleam of light. I steered toward it, fondly hoping that my troubles were at an end. I found the light stole through the ill-fitting window shutters of what seemed, so far as I could make out in the darkness, to be a small farm-house. Tying to a gate the knotted reins by which I had been leading the horse, I staggered up to the door and knocked loudly. Upon my honor, until I leant against that doorpost I had no idea how tired I was—until that moment I never suspected that the finding of speedy shelter meant absolutely saving my life. Covered from head to foot with snow, my hat crushed in, I must have been a pitiable object.

No answer came to my first summons. It was only after a second and more imperative application of my heel that the door deigned to give way a few inches. Through the aperture a woman's voice asked who was there?

"Let me in," I said. "I have missed my way to Midcombe. My horse has fallen. You must give me shelter for the night. Open the door, and let me in."

"Shelter! You can't get shelter here, mister," said a man's gruff voice. "This ain't an inn, so you'd best be off, and go elsewhere."

"But I must come in," I said, assounded at such inhospitality, "I can't go a step farther. Open the door at once!"

"You be hanged," said the man. "Tis my house, not yours."

"But, you fool, I mean to pay you well for your trouble. Don't you know it means death wandering about on such a night as this? Let me in!"

"You won't come in here," was the brutal and boorish reply. The door closed.

That I was enraged at such incivility may be easily imagined; but if I said I was thoroughly frightened I believe no one would be surprised. As getting into that house meant simply life or death to me, into that house I determined to get, by door or window, by fair means or by foul. So, as the door closed, I hurled myself against it with all the might I could muster. Although I ride much heavier now than I did then, all my weight at that time was bone and muscle. The violence of my attack tore from the lintel the staple which held the chain; the door went back with a bang, and I fell forward into the house, fully resolved to stay there whether welcome or unwelcome.

CHAPTER III.

THE door through which I had burst like a battering ram opened straight into a sort of kitchen, so although I entered in a most undignified way, in fact on my hands and knees, I was well-established in the center of the room before the man and woman emerged from behind the door, where my successful assault had thrown them, I stood up and faced them. They were a couple of ordinary, respectably attired country people. The man, a sturdy, strong-built, bull-necked rascal, stood scowling at me, and, I concluded, making up his mind as to what course to pursue.

"My good people," I said, "you are behaving in the most unheard of manner. Can't you understand that I mean to pay you well for any trouble I give you? But whether you like it or not, here I stay to-night. To turn me out would be sheer murder."

So saying I pulled off my overcoat, and began shaking the snow out of my whiskers. I dare say my determined attitude, my respectable, as well as my muscular appearance, impressed my unwilling hosts. Any way, they gave in without any more ado. Whilst the woman shut the door through which the snowflakes were whirling, the man said suddenly:

"Well, you'll have to spend the night on a chair. We've no beds here for strangers. Specially those as ain't wanted."

"Very well, my friend. Having settled the matter you may as well make yourself pleasant. Go out and put my horse under cover, and give him a feed of some sort—make a mash if you can."

After giving the woman a quick glance as of warning, my scowling host lit a horn lantern, and went on the errand I suggested. I gladly sunk into a chair, and warmed myself before a cheerful fire. The prospect of spending the night amid such discomfort was not alluring, but I had, at least, a roof over my head.

Love's Greeting.

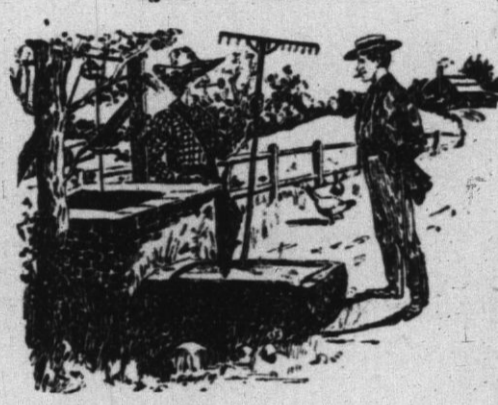

OLLY meets me at the door
When the toll of day is o'er,
When the summer sun at setting,
Flashing through the leafy fretting,
Flecks with molten gold the floor,
With a smile of Love's begetting,
Molly meets me at the door.

Molly meets me at the door,
'Neath the porch's fragrant store,
'Neath the sweet wistaria, clinging,
With its purple clusters swinging,
And the apple-blossoms galore,
In her voice a welcome ringing,
Molly meets me at the door.

Molly meets me at the door,
Fair as in the years before,
When our vows of love were spoken,
And I begged the ribbon token
At her dainty throat she wore,
With our love-knot still unbroken,
Molly meets me at the door.

Molly meets me at the door,
Ah, pray God, for evermore,
Till my last faint breath is fleeing,
Till my heart has ceased its beating,
May she meet me as of yore;
Grant for aye, with cheery greeting,
Molly meets me at the door.

In European Style.

"This hotel is run on the European plan, isn't it?" asked the hungry-looking guest, with the long hair and buckskin trousers.

"Yes, sah," replied the waiter.
"Well, I haven't time to look over the bill of fare," rejoined the other resignedly. "Bring me some English breakfast tea, a Hamburg steak, Swiss cheese, some German fried potatoes and French coffee cake or Vienna bread—I don't care a darn which."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Advantage.

Mrs. Stalemate—Only to think of the way in which Mrs. Smarte snapped up that wealthy Mr. Goode! It's positively disgusting.

Uncle John—Naturally some of the other ladies are disappointed; but they had no chance against Mrs. Smarte. She's a widow, you know, and she hasn't haunted the matrimonial bargain counter the last two or three years for nothing.—Boston Transcript.

His Unwarranted Boast.

Louise—Do you know that Charley Finnicks is going around town bragging that he kissed you the other night?

Jessie—Why, the horrible story teller! He did no such thing. It was I that kissed him, and he nearly fainted when I did it, too. But that's the way with cowards. They always are the greatest boasters.—Cleveland Leader.

Very Personal.

Clever Engineering Feat.
From the Newark (N. J.) Call: City Engineer Morris R. Sherrerd did a piece of engineering work the other day that has never been done before. By a device, patented by Mr. Sherrerd and Engineer D. W. French, superintendent of the Hackensack Water company, a valve was placed in a six-inch water main without shutting off the water. A piece of the water main was cut out, and the valve put in place and securely fastened. Work of a similar nature can be done on any sized main.

Broad Ripple, a Small Town Eight Miles North of Indianapolis, Ind., Almost Destroyed by Flames—List of the Dead.

The village of Broad Ripple, eight miles north of Indianapolis, Ind., was almost wiped off the map by the double natural gas explosion and fire Saturday. The list of dead numbers eight. The dead: Albert C. Hayward, Westville; Jacob Darling, Broad Ripple; Charles Yountz, Indianapolis; P. E. Gresh, Broad Ripple; Henry Earnest, Broad Ripple; John Porter, Broad Ripple; Thomas Mitchell, Broad Ripple; unidentified man.

Twenty-three persons were more or less seriously injured.

The first explosion was in the cellar of J. F. Watts' drug store. It wrecked the building, killed two persons and injured three before aid could be extended to the injured.

The I. O. O. F. building, across the street, occupied by a grocery store, was wrecked by an explosion in its basement. A crowd of men that had just rushed up to remove the stock to save it from the threatening flames across the street was mowed down and three were killed and twenty-three injured.

The fire department from this city hurried out to find the terrified people standing at a safe distance and letting the town burn up. In a little while the flames were extinguished.

The force of the explosions shocked the country for miles around. It was distinctly heard in this city. No one knows the cause, but it is supposed that a conduit had been leaking into the cellars of the two buildings.

THE HEAT PLAGUE OF AUGUST, 1896.

Mrs. Pinkham's Explanation of the Unusual Number of Deaths and Prostrations Among Women.

The great heat plague of August, 1896, was not without its lesson. One could not fail to notice in the long lists of the dead throughout this country, that so many of the victims were women in their thirties, and women between forty-five and fifty.

The women who succumbed to the protracted heat were women whose energies were exhausted by sufferings peculiar to their sex; women who, taking no thought of themselves, or who, attaching no importance to first symptoms, allowed their female system to become run down.

Constipation, capricious appetite, restlessness, forebodings of evil, vertigo, languor, and weakness, especially in the morning, an itching sensation which suddenly attacks one at night, or whenever the blood becomes overheated, are all warnings. Don't wait too long to build up your strength, that is now a positive necessity! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has specific curative powers. You cannot do better than to commence a course of this grand of first symptoms you will see by the following letter what terrible suffering came to Mrs. Craig, and how she was cured:

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had pro-lapsus uteri and leucorrhoea and thought I was going into consumption. I would get so faint I thought I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensation down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failed. I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new woman of me. I wish I could get every lady in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."—MRS. SALLIE CRAIG, Baker's Landing, Pa.

William M. K. Olcott is the man whom Mr. Platt and the republican organization may pit against Candidate Seth Low for mayor of Greater New York. Mr. Low has signified his intention of making the race, and Mr. Platt and his party must swallow the Columbia College president or fight it out. If they decide to fight, Mr. Olcott will probably be their standard bearer. He is a young lawyer with a ravenous appetite for work, and is a republican of the deepest dye. He is just 35 years old, but he is mature of mind and a sage in the law. At present he is district attorney, and was selected for that place by Mr. Platt when Colonel Fellows died. In 1894 Mr. Olcott became the republican leader in the board of aldermen, and his intense republicanism and his inordinate desire to be doing something attracted the attention of Mr. Platt. While an alderman he was chairman of the finance committee and ex-officio chairman of the sinking fund. When Mr. Olcott took charge of the district attorney's office the democrats fled from him as from a pestilence. The Tammany men were replaced by men whom Platt named. They represented every political element. Mr. Olcott is by no means a machine man. He has often rebelled, and carried his point, at the methods of the machine, and it is said that he is in some sympathy with the reform movement. That accounts, as much as anything else, for his selection. He is a graduate of New York College and Columbia law school, and is a native New Yorker. The party that nominated Low may yet have to take Olcott. The Clevelandites are all for Low.
