Black-Robertson Nuptials.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Robertson was the scene of a most enjoyable and happy social affair on Wednesday afternoon, June 29th, at 4 o'clock, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Rose A., to Joseph L. Black, M. D., of Palatine, Rev. Hageman of the Baptist church officiating.

The ceremony was private, only the immediate relatives being present.

After the solemn words which made two hearts one had been said the young couple and assembled guests sat down to a banquet of delicious and tempting viands.

Mr. and Mrs. Black left on the 6:52 train for a few days' visit to friends in Michigan, after which they will return to Palatine, where they will be at home to their many friends.

Miss Robertson is a young lady possessing all the characteristics that makes an accomplished and charming woman. Barrington society loses a valuable member, while Palatine will prosper by our loss. She has a host of admiring and devoted friends in this vicinity.

Dr. Black is a prominent and rising physician of Palatine, where his successes in his profession have won for him an enviable reputation.

Prof. Sears' Concert at Nunda.

It was a large and appreciative audience that greeted Prof. Sears and his pupils at the 9th annual concert at Nunda Friday evening of last week, and they were repaid for attending, for few musical programs have been given in Nunda that can rank with the one of Friday evening when it comes to real merit. The playing of the pupils was simply par excellence without any exception and reflected great credit on themselves, and especially so to their instructor, Prof. Sears. The pupils can well feel proud of the progress they made the past year.

Year's Work Closed.

The Thursday club closed its fourth year of work by giving a lawn party at the residence of Mrs. Philip Hawley on Thursday afternoon. The following program was rendered by the members of the club:

Quotations by the members of the Club.
Essay, "Woman"—Mrs. Howarth.
Poem—Miss Cora Higley.
Paper, "Synopsis of Our Year's Work"—Mrs. M. C. McIntosh.
Reading—Mrs. Thomas Dolan.
Reading—Mrs. C. Meyer.
Duet—Mesdames Philip Hawley and Luella Austin.
Chorus by the Club.

After the program a banquet was served on the lawn. About forty were present. Among the club's invited guests were: Madams Ream, Ela, Hageman, A. W. Meyer, Otis, Miller, Kenhall, L. A. Powers, Higley, Freeman, Wheeler and Strickfaden.

Camp-Meeting Closed.

The camp meetings of the Salem church ever brought to a close Monday noon.

The meetings were the best and most successful ever held at this place.

Last week we mentioned the order of the services and who presided at them from the beginning of the meetings on Friday, June 17th, to Thursday evening.

Friday of last week being Jubilee day, an unusually large audience greeted Bishop Dubs at both the morning and evening sermons, which were full of eloquence and devout exhortations. The afternoon meeting was addressed by Revs. E. von Freeden and John Schneider. It was during this meeting that the monument was dedicated to the commemoration of this joyful occasion—Bishop Dubs having suggested at the morning service that a monument of some kind should be planted to perpetuate the memory of Jubilee day. A large rock was secured and planted in the center of the vacant square near the tabernacle during an impressive service.

Rev. A. Lutz delivered a most interesting sermon on Saturday morning—Young People's day. In the afternoon one of the most instructive and entertaining sermons that our people had the pleasure of listening to during the entire meetings was delivered by Rev. H. Thoren. The same speaker addressed the evening meeting. The young people were distinguished by wearing neat badges, which were distributed by the Y. P. M. S. of the Salem church. Judging from the fact that over 300 badges were distributed—a number insufficient to supply all present—great interest was taken in the Young People's day by the young folks.

The largest crowd present on any day of the meetings was in attendance on Sunday, and listened to a beautiful sermon by Bishop Dubs. In the afternoon the Bishop addressed the members of the G. A. R., who attended in a body. The interesting manner in which the Bishop delivered his excellent sermons is so well known that he needs no commendation at our hands excepting to say that he excelled himself on this occasion.

Rev. C. J. Schuster made an interesting talk on Sunday evening.

On Monday morning (closing day) Rev. A. Fuesele delivered the sermon, after which the usual ring was formed and "good-bys" were said. It is a pleasing fact that the ring this year was the largest that was formed for many years past, and the hearty hand clasps betokened the deep interest that was taken in these meetings.

Let us hope that all who attended these meetings may have the privilege of attending next year's meetings.

Picnics of the Past Week.

As good a time as any one could wish for was enjoyed by the scholars of Zion's church at Randal's Lake last Tuesday, the occasion being the annual picnic of the Sunday school.

There was singing, declamations, games of various kinds, races, etc., galore. Many times during the day peanuts were scattered to the four winds, and it proved an endless amusement for the older ones to watch the little boys and girls scramble for them—each trying to beat his neighbor in harvesting a supply of the popular "grubbers."

Another number of the program much enjoyed was an appropriate address by Rev. Haller.

Everyone present—and there was a large number—went home in the evening well satisfied with the day's outing, regretting only that the picnic is held only once a year, instead of every week during the summer.

JUGENDVEREIN PICNIC.

On Thursday morning the playing of patriotic airs by the Barrington Military band on the streets announced that the large procession of vehicles loaded with merry picnickers was about to leave for Comstock's grove, and enjoy the annual picnic given by that popular society composed of young folks of St. Paul's church called the Jugendverein. A perfect day caused many to attend, and all were well repaid, for the literary program, singing and music, social games, races, etc., was of an especially fine character.

There was none present at this picnic but what enjoyed as pleasant a day's outing as one could wish for, and evening came only too early for the young folks.

Celebrate the Fourth in the Good Old-fashioned Way at Barrington.

This is patriotic year—The Spanish-American war calls forth from every free-born American citizen a patriotism and love for country and the Cause of Humanity which has no equal in any other nation on the globe. The citizens of Barrington are full of just such patriotism. They will celebrate the 4th of July in the good old-fashioned way of our forefathers, by listening to patriotic speeches, songs, declamations, music and the reading of the Declaration of Independence and enjoying a day's outing in Comstock's grove. Every family will bring their dinner baskets and enjoy a good old-fashioned picnic dinner in this beautiful grove, and return thanks to God for the liberty, freedom of thought and blessings which they now enjoy.

The program of the day will be under the auspices of Barrington Camp No. 809, M. W. A., who will form on the public square at 9 a. m., and proceed to the grove, where every effort will be made to make this an enjoyable day for all who join them. At 9:30 a. m. a parade of 200 ragmuffins will enter the grove and will be awarded prizes.

The program for the morning will commence at 10:30 a. m.; and will be an especially fine one. Such noted speakers as Director Quackenbush of Dundee and the Hon. C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan will make the addresses of the day, followed by other able speakers.

Music will be furnished by the Barrington Orchestra, a string band that is noted for its fine music. The Barrington Military band will play the National airs. There will be two male quartets and one ladies' quartet that will render appropriate songs during the day; also declamations and the reading of the Declaration of Independence. Do not miss the morning program, for it will be one that will be enjoyed by all who attend.

12:00 o'clock will be the dinner hour. A large refreshment stand has been provided for, where you can purchase such edibles as ice cream, fruit, lemonade, coffee, sandwiches, pastry, sweetmeats, etc.

1:00 p. m. Races and games, commencing at 1 o'clock and continuing through the afternoon. Running races, children's races, race for girls under 10 years of age, race for boys under 10 years of age, young men's race, married ladies' race, fat man's race, wheelbarrow race, egg race, potato race, sack race, 3-legged race, wooden shoe race; hop, skip and jump; "chicken" game, doll and cane racks, climbing greased pole, catching greased pig, etc., etc. Pretty and valuable prizes will be awarded the winners of the contests.

2:00 p. m. Tug of war between the Lake county and Cook county giants.

3:00 p. m. An exciting baseball game between the first and second nines.

3:30 p. m. Prizes will be awarded the prettiest girl on the grounds, to the most popular man and the most popular lady on the grounds, to the prettiest child on the grounds, to the oldest couple on the grounds and to the youngest couple on the grounds.

4:00 p. m. Men's bicycle race.

4:30 p. m. Ladies bicycle race.

Grand Display of Fireworks. There will be a five hundred dollar display of fire works in the evening.

"Yes, I love you," she continued proudly. "Whose is the sin? Is it mine, because I, your wife, have to tell you this, and you feel surprised? I love you; and now that I have to leave you I tell you that woman never loved me, wife never loved husband, more dearly, more deeply, more devotedly, than I love you; I would have died for you; every beat of my heart, every thought of my mind, every action was for you. I love you as Elaine loved the knight of old when she said: 'I have gone mad—I love you—let me die!'"

She drew nearer to him. "I love you as no one else ever will—as no woman has ever loved you—partly because I could not help loving you, and partly because I have helped to awaken the better nature within you. You may live many years, happy, flattered, but no love like mine will ever reach you; the wife you are sending from you is the dearest and truest friend you have."

He looked terribly distressed. "Why did you not tell me this before, Hildred?" he asked. "I tell you? How little you know me! Was it my place to go to the husband who neglected me and plead for his caresses, for his love? I could have died a thousand deaths first. How little you know me! I should not tell you all this now, but that I know that in this world perhaps we shall never meet again. I am speaking to you across a grave. I stretch out my hand to you over a grave—the grave where my love lies—slain!"

As she said the words she fell upon her knees, weeping, sobbing with bitter cries, as though a grave lay there, and she had fallen upon it. He was touched. He could not tolerate what he believed to be her crime, but she was young, beautiful, loving. Her crime had been committed through love of him. He raised her from the ground.

"I am very sorry, Hildred," he said; "is very sad for both of us. Now we must talk of something else. You must go at once."

She raised her weeping eyes to him. "Must you send me away?" she asked, gently. "It was wrong. I was mad with jealous anger, but I did not think I was. Could you not overlook it?" "You speak lightly," he replied, sternly. "No, you can never re-enter my house. I have arranged it all. I did so when I took poor Lady Hamilton back to the castle. I told our guests that you had been suddenly sent for by your father, that I had driven you to the station—and it is to your father's house you must go."

"Very well," she said, drearily. "You do not seem to understand," he remarked, sharply; "do you know the danger, the peril that hangs over you?"

She did not, but of what use was it to say so?

"Try to collect yourself and understand," he continued; "time presses. I cannot keep them away much longer. You must depart at once without being seen. No one must know at what hour you went. You must go to your father's house and wait there. If I should be needful to send you abroad I will arrange it."

"Have I done so very wrong?" she murmured. The earl cried out passionately.

"Heaven give me patience! You must be mad to ask me such a question. One would think you did not know what wrong meant."

Hildred stood quite still, looking almost helplessly at him.

"You do not seem to realize or to know what you have done," he said, hastily.

"I do—I do!" she moaned; "and there will be no pardon. I wish that I might fling myself into that lake. I would, but that there is a life to come."

"Hildred," said the earl sternly, "listen to me. I have told you that you must never re-enter my doors; but you bear my name; and for my name's sake I will shield you. The Countess of Caraven may have done wrong, but the world must not know it. I must save you from the consequences of your mad folly. See—I went quietly to your rooms and have brought you these."

He gave her a cloak and a bonnet with a thick veil. "I found them in your wardrobe. Have you any money?"

"No," she replied, vacantly; "none."

He took out his purse and gave it to her.

"I would accompany you," he said, "but that it would draw suspicion on you. I must be here to ward it off."

Wrap yourself in this cloak. Hide all that amber satin."

With cold, trembling hands she obeyed. Suddenly she remembered the rubies. She unclasped the necklace and bracelets.

"Take these," she said; and the earl took them—it was better, he thought, to humor her.

"Now you quite understand, Hildred! You must not go near Court Raven—you are known there. You must walk to Worsley; that is a larger station; no one will know you. Take a ticket for London. When you reach there hall a cab and go straight to your father's house. Are you quite sure that you understand?"

"Yes; what must I say to my father?" she asked.

"You had better tell him the truth. He is a quick, keen man of the world; he will know far better than I do what should be done. Tell him all."

"Yes," she replied, mechanically.

"Now hasten away from here, Hildred," he said. "I am in mortal fear. You understand all. You know the road to Worsley—it is direct—you take the high road without turning. Good-bye."

She raised her dark, sad eyes to his face; all the love, the passion, the regret that she could not put into words, was revealed in them.

"Good-bye," she repeated.

He did not hold out his hand to her. Had he been speaking to the merest stranger, his voice could not have been colder or more stern. Then he turned quickly away, and Lady Caraven walked across the coppice and through a lane into the high road. She walked quite mechanically. She had to go to Worsley, to take a ticket to London, and then go to her father's house. She repeated the words over and over again to herself, like a child who dreads forgetting a lesson. Her face was deadly pale; her limbs trembled with cold. The golden stars shone down upon her; the night winds whispered round her. She walked on, unconscious of it all.

It was the early dawn of morning when she reached the station—a large railway junction where she was both unknown and unnoticed. The train started for London in half an hour. No one spoke to her or appeared to see her as she took her place, and in a few minutes more she was on her way.

It was a hard punishment—terribly hard for such a trifle, she thought, wondering that the earl could be so stern. She was tired, fatigued with passion and emotion. She had neither eaten, drank nor slept since the evening before. When she reached London she asked a porter to call a cab for her, and gave the address—"Mr. Ransome, the Hollies, Kew;" and the drive thither seemed to her more than ever like a dream.

CHAPTER XLV.

ARLEY RANSOME had not worked quite so hard of late; there was but little need. He had achieved the height of his ambition; he had a large fortune; he was able to speak of his daughter the Countess of Caravan; he could claim kinsmanship through his daughter with some of the noblest families in England. There was no need now to work quite so hard; he could linger over his daintily spread breakfast table, and read his papers at his leisure, content if he reached the city before noon.

On this morning he had seated himself so as to enjoy three things at once—the beautiful view of the river from his window, the bright fire in the grate, and the recherche little breakfast that had been served up to him. It was a sudden shock to him, when, on hearing a sound, he raised his eyes to the door, and saw there a pale, beautiful woman, who stood wringing her hands.

"Father," she said, "I am come home."

In utter amazement he started from his seat. His daughter, his beautiful Hildred, the Countess of Caraven, pale as death, wrapped in a dark traveling-cloak! What could it mean?

"I—I am glad to see you, my dear," he said; but he had a horrible foreboding that something terrible had occurred, and that the days of his greatness had vanished. "Come in—pray come in, my dear, do not stand there. How strange you look! Where is Caraven? Dear, dear, how odd it is! Come in Hildred—the servants will think it strange to see you standing there."

She entered the room and walked up to him with haughty mien.

"This is the end of my marriage, father," she said, calmly; "the marriage that you told me could be happy without love. This is the end of it, and I am come home."

"Sit down, my dear, sit down; there is nothing so horrible as a 'scene,' and this looks like one. Take off your cloak and your bonnet. What a strange headdress!"

She unfastened the thick traveling-cloak, and there in picturesque disarray was the rich evening-dress of amber and black, with a faded crimson flower clinging to it. The lawyer looked on in utter dismay. This disregard for dress and appearances spoke more forcibly than anything else could have done—told more plainly than words that something dreadful had happened.

"Evening toilet, Hildred! Pray, my dear, put on your cloak again. I did not know—I was not prepared—put it on quickly, before any of the servants come in. What is it, Hildred? What is the matter?"

"Not much, father," she replied, drearily; "my marriage has not turned out well, and I am come home, you see."

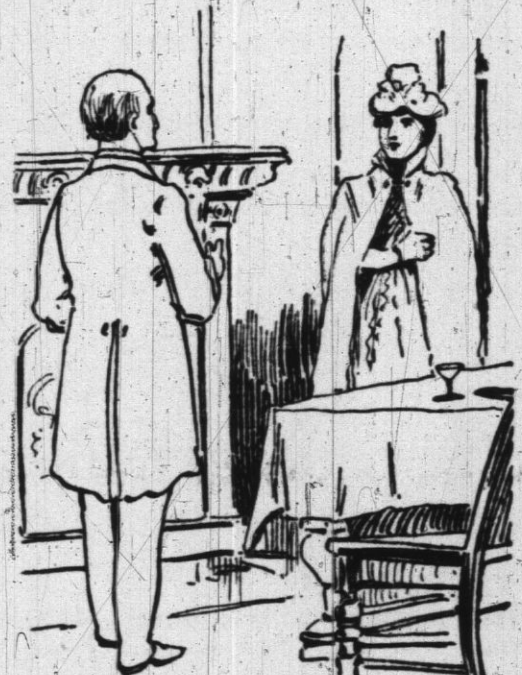

"But that is nonsense—you cannot come home. What is the matter? Tell me," and the lawyer, with a very resigned expression of face put away his pate de foie gras, and folded his arms to listen to his daughter's story.

"You have quarreled with the earl, I hope—that is, you have not left him?" "He has sent me away," she replied, and Arley Ransome's face grew very dark.

"There is not much to tell," she continued, wearily. "You misled me—you told me that marriage could be happy without love. I find that love is the soul of it, that without love marriage is like a dead body. I being weaker and inferior was the first to learn to love. I learned to love my husband—he has never cared for me."

"You are too sentimental, Hildred," said Arley Ransome, severely.

"I have been doing my best for my husband," she continued, "and we were growing happier. In time I think that he would have loved me; but someone else, a fair woman—one of the kind of women that he admires—Lady Hamilton, came, and—"

"I see," said the lawyer; "the old story—jealousy and quarreling. Surely, Hildred, you have not thrown away the labor of a lifetime by growing jealous and vexing the earl?"

"I have done worse than that," she said, "far worse. I was jealous of Lady Hamilton. I thought that both she and my husband were deriding me. I followed them when they went out to see the sun set over the lake. I hid myself behind the alder-trees to listen if they said anything about me; and then—I cannot tell how it happened—my husband saw me. He was very angry; he said I was never to enter his doors again, but to return home at once to you."

The lawyer's face cleared. "You are quite sure that you have told me the whole truth?" he said.

"Yes, quite sure. What should I keep from you? It seems a very hard punishment for what was merely a fault rather of judgment than anything else. I told the earl I loved him and that jealousy had driven me mad."

"You told him that? Then rely upon it in a few days all will be well. He will forget his anger and come to find you."

"I do not think so," she returned.

"You are quite sure, Hildred, that you have hidden nothing from me?" he interrogated; adding, "It is, as you say, severe punishment for so small a fault."

She looked up at him in surprise.

"What can I have to hide, papa? In telling you of my love, and my jealousy, I have told you the worst."

"Then all will come right again. In the meantime, keep up appearances, go to your room unobserved and wait until your luggage arrives. I shall say that you are come in for a few days' change. Keep up your spirits; all will come right again, I am sure."

"I am very tired, papa," she said. "I think I will stay in my room today."

DESPERATE FIGHT IN CUBA

Thirteen Americans Killed and Fifty Wounded.

SPANISH FORCE IS ROUTED.

Army Driven Back Into the City with Heavy Loss—Roosevelt's Rough Riders Do the Brunt of the Work—Officers Among the Killed.

June 24 four troops of the First cavalry, four troops of the Tenth cavalry and eight troops of Roosevelt's rough riders—less than 1,000 men in all—dismounted and attacked 2,000 Spanish soldiers in the thickets within five miles of Santiago de Cuba.

The Americans beat the enemy back into the city, but they left two officers and eleven privates dead on the field.

At least fifty Americans were wounded, including six officers. Several of the wounded will die.

Twelve dead Spaniards were found in the bush after the fight, but their loss was doubtless far in excess of that.

The Americans now hold the position at the threshold of Santiago de Cuba, with more troops going forward constantly, and they are preparing for a final assault upon the city.

Will Open Peace Negotiations.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph says: "When the cortes closed martial law was proclaimed. The Sagasta cabinet will resign and make way for a new government, which will open negotiations for peace."

Made a Successful Landing.

Five thousand American troops have been landed near the village of Jucagua, Cuba. The Spaniards were bombarded by the New Orleans, Machias, Detroit, Suwanee and Wasp. There was no resistance by the enemy.

Troops Have Come Ashore.

The troops are all ashore at Baiquiri, with the exception of a few scattered companies that have gone forward. The supplies are sufficient to enable the army to sustain a week's campaign at both landing points.

Large Army for Cuba.

Decisions have been reached by which from 10,000 to 15,000 men will be embarked for southern Cuba at once, and Gen. Miles will probably take personal charge of the campaign in Santiago province.

Merritt's Large Army.

The understanding at the war department is that the total number of regulars and volunteers to be dispatched to Manila in command of Maj.-Gen. Merritt will approximate 21,000 men.

To Attack Spanish Coast Cities.

If Admiral Camara takes the Cadiz fleet through the Suez canal an American squadron will be sent flying across the Atlantic to bombard the coast cities of Spain.

Expects No Resistance.

Gen. Merritt expects to take possession of the Philippines peacefully. Should resistance be offered, however, he will be fully prepared to use force, and plenty of it.

In Favor of Peace.

The chamber of commerce of Barcelona has notified the government that at a general meeting its members were in favor of peace and the termination of a state of war.

Reinforcements at Santiago.

It is announced on high authority that almost 20,000 Spanish soldiers have arrived at Santiago de Cuba since the American advance began.

Second Expedition for Cuba.

Gen. Miles is at Tampa and will embark as soon as possible with Gen. Coppinger and the Fourth army corps about 18,000 men for Santiago.

Hobson's Reward Uncertain.

It has not yet been positively determined by the administration just what measure of reward shall be meted out to Constructor Hobson.

Women's Clubs Elect Officers.

This is the new set of officers of the General Federation of Women's Clubs: President, Mrs. William B. Lowe, of Georgia; vice-president, Mrs. Sarah S. Platt, of Denver; recording secretary, Mrs. Emma A. Fox, of Michigan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. W. Kendricks, of Pennsylvania; treasurer, Mrs. Phillip N. Moore, of St. Louis; auditor, Mrs. C. P. Barnes, of Kentucky.

Die in the Gold Fields.

John Muldoon, a citizen of Johnsonville, Ohio, who is now in the Alaskan gold fields, says that of the 101 men who left Seattle with him in March only four survive. Two were drowned and the others perished from cold and hunger.

Sugar Conference Adjourns.

The sugar conference at Brussels has adjourned until international proposals are formulated as the basis for serious discussion.

Pink Coat Wins the Derby.

Pink Coat won the American Derby by a nose in 2:42. Warrenton came in second and Isabay third.

Turkish View of Gladstone.

There was a biographical sketch of Gladstone published in a Turkish paper in 1876. It stated that he was a Bulgarian by birth, but, going to London with some pigs which his master desired to sell, and desiring to become an Englishman, he changed his Bulgarian name, Grozadia, for Gladstone.

Couldn't Believe Papa.

They are telling a good story on Massachusetts at the expense of Gov. Wolcott's youngest boy, who was one of a class asked to name the governor of the state. On replying that he did not know he was told by his teacher to ask his father that night. He returned next morning to report: "Well, papa says he is, but he fools so much I don't know."

Nerves Out of Tune.

Just as the strings of a musical instrument get out of tune through lack of care and break out into ear-torturing discords when touched, so the human nerves get out of tune, and make everybody miserable that comes in contact with them. Every tobacco-user's nerves are out of tune more or less, and the real tobacco-slave's nerves are relaxed to the utmost. No-To-Bac is the tuning-key which tightens the nerves, makes them respond quickly to the emotions, resulting in the happiness of all. No-To-Bac guaranteed tobacco habit cure, makes weak men strong. We advise all tobacco-users to take No-To-Bac.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Condensed Report of the Doings in Senate and House.

BANKRUPTCY BILL PASSED.

Conference Report Agreed To in the Senate by a Vote of 43 to 13—Hawaiian Annexation Measure Is Now Under Discussion in the Upper House.

Friday, June 24.
The conference report on the bankruptcy bill was disposed of by the senate without debate. The report was agreed to by a vote of 43 to 13. The Hawaiian annexation resolutions were under discussion throughout the session, except during a brief time when routine business was disposed of.

Monday, June 27.
The senate adopted the resolution of Mr. Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, providing that hereafter, until further action shall be taken, the senate convene daily at 11 a. m.

Tuesday, June 28.
In the house the conference report upon the bankruptcy bill was adopted by a vote of 134 to 53, and the measure will go now to the president.

Almost the entire session of the senate was occupied by Mr. Caffery (dem., La.), in a continuation of his speech against the annexation of Hawaii. The general deficiency bill was read and the committee amendments, so far as they have been offered, were agreed to.

NO FEAR FOR PORTO RICO.

Navy and War Departments Ridicule Spanish Plans.

Washington, June 29.—A report that Spain intends to send re-enforcements to Porto Rico meets with ridicule in the navy and war departments. San Juan, the most important port and the only one well fortified in Porto Rico, is now blockaded by the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul. She has been blockading that port for some days without any assistance, and there is no fear on the part of her commander of any ships that Spain can send to Porto Rico. At the department it is not thought probable that Spain will attempt to send any more troops to Porto Rico, for the reason that their capture would be as certain as anything possibly could be in the future.

The transports will be ready soon for the Porto Rican expedition and it is regarded by the war and navy departments as an easier thing to take Porto Rico than to take the single city of Santiago. It will not be necessary to capture San Juan at the start in order to take Porto Rico, and it is intimated that troops will be landed elsewhere and the city attacked from land and sea. It is not protected from a sea attack, as is Santiago, and would be sure to fall within a few hours by a combined attack of the army and navy.

May Promulgate a "Monroe Doctrine."

Paris, June 29.—A Russian correspondent of the Figaro, referring to the uneasiness felt in St. Petersburg over the Spanish outlook, represents Russia as being pleased with the prospect of the United States taking the Philippines, while, the correspondent says, she will hardly, if at all, brook an American incursion into Spanish waters. The sending of a squadron to bombard Spanish coast cities might lead to the most serious consequences. The threat of sending a squadron to Spain has already resulted in an exchange of views by the powers. If it is repeated it may lead to a declaration analogous to the Monroe doctrine.

Vote in Berlin Re-Balloting.

Berlin, June 30.—The second balloting in the election of members of the reichstag resulted as follows: Conservatives, 19; imperialists, 10; center, 23; reform party, 5; national liberals, 39; radical union, 11; radical people's party, 29; German people's party, 8; Agrarians, 3; socialists, 24; poles, 1; Guelphs, 8; independents, 6.

The newly completed returns in the second balloting show that the next German reichstag will be practically constituted as its predecessor, with slight modifications. The socialists have made gains.

Suffered four years with female troubles. She now writes to Mrs. Pinkham of her complete recovery. Read her letter:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish you to publish what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Sanative Wash and Liver Pills have done for me.

I suffered for four years with womb trouble. My doctor said I had falling of the womb. I also suffered with nervous prostration, faint all-gone feelings, palpitation of the heart, bearing-down sensation and painful menstruation. I could not stand but a few minutes at a time.

When I commenced taking your medicine I could not sit up half a day, but before I had used half a bottle I was up and helped about my work.

I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am cured of all my troubles. I feel like a new woman. I can do all kinds of housework and feel stronger than I ever did in my life. I now weigh 121 1/2 pounds. Before using your medicine I weighed only 108 pounds.

Surely it is the grandest medicine for weak woman that ever was, and my advice to all who are suffering from any female trouble is to try it at once and be well. Your medicine has proven a blessing to me, and I cannot praise it enough.—Mrs. Lucy Goodwin, Holly, W. Va.

COULD SCARCELY RAISE HIS HAND.

Yet took care of seventy head of stock.

The farmer who found a friend.

"Serious results often follow a strain, especially when it affects the back, and few people are so liable to strain as those who are lifting heavy loads of various kinds, from day to day. The teamster rarely ever overtaxes his strength. Familiarity with the class of work he handles, enables him to entirely gage the load he lifts so as not to put an excessive burden on himself. But with the farmer it is different. He is lifting loads of such varying weights and under such varying conditions that he is very liable to lift a little too much some day, with injurious results. Many serious affections of the great organs of the body originate in a strain. It was so in the case of H. R. W. Bentley, of Towson, North Dakota. A strain resulted in serious trouble with the liver. How he recovered and was enabled to feed seventy head of stock during the winter, let him tell himself:

"About a year ago, I sustained an injury in my back and shoulders by lifting a heavy weight. After a time, a liver trouble came on, which so weakened me that I could scarcely lift my hand to my head. While in this condition, I began the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued until I was cured of my complaint, so that I was able to take care of seventy head of stock all through the winter, which shows that the cure was not temporary but permanent."

—H. R. W. BENTLEY, Towson, N. D.

The action of Dr. Ayer's Pills on the liver makes them invaluable for those living in malarial climates. C. F. Alston, Quitman, Texas, writes: "I have found in Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills an invaluable remedy for constipation, biliousness, and kindred disorders, peculiar to miasmatic localities. Taken in small and frequent doses, these pills act well on the liver, aiding it in throwing off malarial poison, and restoring its natural powers. I could not dispense with the use of Dr. Ayer's Pills."
—C. F. ALSTON, Quitman, Tex.

Dr. Ayer's Pills are a specific for all diseases of the liver, stomach, and bowels; they promote digestion, cure constipation and its consequences, and promote the general health of the entire system. They should always be used with Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla when a cathartic is required. More about the pills in Dr. Ayer's Carebook. Sent free. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Philippine Problem.

It is beyond doubt that we shall hold the Philippines in our military possession when this war shall have ended. What is to be done with them challenges attention even at this stage of the game. That the continental powers will protest bitterly, even if they do not shake the "mailed fist" in our face, seems to be now indicated. That England desires that we should retain such an acquisition is equally clear. But of one thing the world may rest assured. America will not be driven by threats from an eastern conquest, which is the logic of conditions imposed on us.

Whatever may be done in regard to the Philippines will be determined solely by a due regard for our own national interests. There are powerful reasons for and against which will needs be carefully weighed. This archipelago is one of the most fruitful and lavishly gifted of nature to be found in the world. Its products, mineral and vegetable, are of the most varied kind. It could be made easily capable of supporting a thriving population of 20,000,000 as well as a source of export wealth not easy now to calculate. Its geographical relation to eastern Asia is of commanding importance as an entrepot of commerce. Its possessions could easily transform ownership into a gigantic agency for controlling a great share of eastern trade. The countries within easy reach contain 850,000,000 people, who export and import $2,000,000,000 worth. The United States in its reach for the rich prize, would find the Philippines of great value from this standpoint alone. That would be the predominant factor in the reasons to be adduced for their retention.

On the other hand, ownership will impose vast responsibilities of a sort with which we have never before been forced to grapple. We have not been obliged by our destiny so far to experiment in the government on a great scale of radically diverse races. The Philippines are a heterogeneous mass of lazy, thriftless people, from semicivilized Tagals and half breeds down to the most brutal of cannibal savages. There are as many religions as there are race stocks, ranging from a degraded Catholic form and Mohammedan to fetich worshiping. Legalized piracy, winked at by the Spanish regime, is the most fertile industry of several of the islands. The American temper is not one to be daunted by untried responsibilities, but this problem offers a veritable witches' cauldron of unknown quantities. Aside from difficulties of management, the United States as master of the Philippines will be inevitably compelled to face international complications from which we are now free. Are we disposed to keep step to this more lively music of events? It will be a very pretty question to solve. And, if we don't want them, what then? Shall we hand the islands over to the insurgents and let them "stew in their own juice" in their attempts at self government? This promises little less than anarchy and a perpetual bid for foreign aggression. Shall we offer them to Japan or to any European power? This would at once set the civilized world by the ears. It will prove as perplexing to drop the Philippines as to hold them. It offers a curious dilemma, but every good American has confidence it will be sagaciously met. If we keep the islands, we shall prove equal to the situation.

A favorite variety of outdoor entertainment during the civil war was a flag raising over a church or school-house or other public building. The flag was generally purchased by popular subscription and was hoisted with music, patriotic recitations and prayer and benediction. We observe that the same kind of entertainment is becoming popular again and it is a good sign. Any thing that fosters love of country is good, especially in these times when there are persons who are fish blooded enough to feel no sympathy with the wave of patriotism that is sweeping the country.

A manufacturer of that typical Vermont product, chewing gum, has blasphemed by calling his special brand "Dewey Chews." Our latest naval hero will be saved from such a desecration as "Hobson's Choice," as that in current parlance means what the buyer is forced to take, not the eminently desirable thing.

Military Criticism.

There is a tendency in many quarters among those who are not doing the fighting to run this war from the spectators' or the critics' standpoint. Most of these censors have no military experience and some of them are more bent on saying or writing clever things (always the more easily accomplished in the fault finding mood) than in reporting the true relation of things. There was plenty of this in our last war and it begins to ramp and rage in the present one. No doubt fault can be righteously found, but just with whom to find it or where the onus lies involves much nicer discrimination. But carping shows itself not merely in criticising facts, but sometimes in wild misstatement. For example, a writer of brilliant reputation, a correspondent of the London Times and of the New York Herald, has stated that the worth of our army has been vitiated by wholesale political appointments to the highest positions. This is flagrantly unjust. The facts are literally the opposite. Out of the 14 major generals but one of the appointments is faintly tinged with such a reproach, and even General M. C. Butler of South Carolina made himself a splendid name as a fighting commander under the Confederacy. Every one of these men has had large and competent experience in the field, the greater number of them in the regular army, since if not during the civil war. Of the 57 brigadier generals appointed 44 are promotions from the field officers of the regular army. Of the other 13 all but five had military experience in 1861-5. This quintet is the apex on which the pyramid of misrepresentation must truthfully stand. Mr. Lincoln was compelled by the most maddening pressure ever put on a chief executive to appoint a host of civilian incompetents, and the "jigadler brindle" crowd was the laughing stock of the nation and the pest of the army, though many of them did nothing, fortunately, but flaunt their epaulets and drink confusion to Jeff Davis over Willard's bar. That condition does not exist today.

Another brilliant correspondent sharpens his pen and dips it in gall over the alleged fact that the soldiers in the volunteer army have no confidence in their regimental officers because these superiors have shown no proficiency in the practical military needs of the field. Naturally enough, officers, however well drilled in the technic of maneuvers, cannot "extract sunbeams from cucumbers" and coin experience out of nothing. The militia were transformed into volunteers and carried officers of their own selection with them. Both officers and men are what none of our civil war volunteers were at the outset, with but few exceptions—fairly well drilled in company and battalion tactics and in the effective use of their weapons. Such magnificent raw or, more properly, half trained material the magic hand of war will speedily transform into a noble fighting force. It is easy to pick flaws in a tone of airy and oracular flippancy.

The disobedient cockswain of the New York who slipped surreptitiously into Hobson's crew may technically deserve punishment, but these are not the days of Frederick the Great. When one of his colonels in contravention of orders led a brilliant and successful cavalry charge, which determined the fate of a battle, the stern martinet said as he decorated the hero before the whole army, "Your son will receive a title, but you will be shot tomorrow morning at daybreak."

The quickest thing extant in manufacturing was lately achieved at a Pennsylvania woolen mill. The sheep were sheared at 6:30 a. m., and at half past 12 the proprietor was gay in a brand new suit, tailored from the cloth made. This beats even the famous feat of the Chicago stockyards, where they put a squealing porker in the hopper and in ten minutes will give you a breakfast of ham and sausage from his meat.

Nine-tenths of the commercial crimes are rampant with one moral lesson—nearly every man would be honest if it were just as easy and convenient to be as honest as dishonest at a pinch. It's the weak link in the chain which measures its strength.

A brutal German essayist has said that the French temperament is a hybrid of the monkey and tiger. The way that the typical Frenchman grimaces and mouths and makes faces at the American visitor now in Paris shows that for the nonce the simian element is on top.

This ought to be a good season for the summer hotels and watering places. Thousands of Americans are staying at home this season instead of squandering their money in European travel.

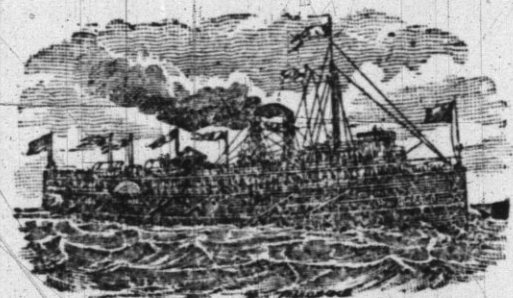

Dead Men's Shoes.

On the whole perhaps it would be a good thing if nobody were allowed to inherit much money from anybody else, not even parents. Where a rich person died leaving young children of course it would be necessary to provide for their mother and for them until they were of age. After that it really looks sometimes as if it would be for the best interests of themselves and of society to turn every one of them loose to earn their own living.

Young people with expectations are usually brought up in a manner at once the most helpless and the most extravagant. The young man's chief idea concerning money he never earned is to "blow it in." The young woman who inherits millions is the victim of foreign and domestic libertines, who seek to marry her, likewise with the object of blowing in the wealth neither she nor they ever earned a dollar of. Moreover, being born to great expectations dwarfs pitifully the intellectual powers of man and woman. They never know the joy, the triumph and the glory of struggle and victory, never know what they can do or are good for.

In another way the expected inheritance of wealth is disastrous. It brings out the meanest and worst qualities of human nature. It makes the expectant heir grudge every added year of the rich testator's life. There is a horror unspeakable about sitting down and waiting for dead people's shoes. Beyond a certain modest provision to heirs for necessities it is a very serious question whether great wealth ought not to go to institutions for the public benefit.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by A. L. Waller, Barrington, and A. S. Olms, Palatine, Ill.

Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is stated that 250,000 people in America get their living out of music. One can believe this when he thinks of the 10,000,000 young women who torture the piano excruciatingly. One person's bread may be the poison of many.

The multiplication of inland watering places through all the western states has been marvelous within a few years. People don't need now to travel to the sea shore for their summer outing.

distance, then we realize that the day of days is at hand. That is why the star-spangled banner is in the minds of everybody.

The orators with silver tongues have told and the poets have sung about all that is great and glorious regarding the old flag. So much for patriotism. Really, the flag is a very prosaic benef- it, apart from the sentiment that at- taches to it. Thousands and thou- sands of people gain their living, from one year's end to another, in making United States flags. Think of it. Every year, the people of the United States buy three millions of flags. Dur- ing that same period a million flags disappear. Nobody knows where they go to.

The American flag has just passed its one hundred and twenty-first birth- day. The patched up affair that Bet- sey Ross gave to the world at the time of the revolutionary war has been re- produced millions of times. Yet the only change from the design that the expert fingers of Mrs. Ross prepared is in the number of stars. It is just the same flag in appearance that de- corated the hall in which the first con- gress of the United States met. It is a finer flag now in point of material, and almost any sort can be bought that one is willing to pay for, but whether it be silk or paper, it is the stars and stripes, the idol of the people, whose fame increases with the addition of ev- ery star.

And all the time we think of the poetry and prose of the flag. If any reader of these lines has ever visited a foreign country, has been a stranger in some far away place over the ocean, he may remember the feeling of joy, of pride, almost rapture that came to him when he first saw the stars and stripes floating over the consulate.

The writer remembers some years ago, walking down the Bois de Bou- logne in Paris. Just ahead of him was a regulation man of the world, and yet something about him indicated that at one time or another he had lived in America. He walked slowly down the avenue until all of a sudden, from the second story of a building at the right, there was flung to the breeze the silken folds of a beautiful specimen of the American flag. The man of the world saw it. In a second his silk hat was off his head, and despite the onlookers he gave three as lusty cheers for the stars and stripes as ever came from an American throat. As the writer reached him, he turned about and with tears rolling down his cheeks, said, "I did not know that the sight of any- thing could touch me like that." And then he cheered again.

This is just by way of evidence that the average person who looks at, waves and carries the American flag has real- ly no idea of the place in his heart that it holds. If anything were ever a thing of beauty and a joy forever, it is the flag of the United States. Thou- sands of people say that it does not protect them when away from home. It has been said in mass meetings that it was no longer the flag of the free. And yet there is not one of those who make the remarks referred to who would not fight in a minute for that same flag if any one beside an Ameri- can citizen spoke against it.

A singular fact concerning the Ameri- can flag and the people over whom it floats is that with all reverence for it they are dreadfully irreverent with it. The flag is something to be cheered and saluted and honored in every way, but when it is worn out it is cast aside and a new one substituted. Nobody knows and nobody cares where the worn out ones go to. Sufficient to the day is the fact that they have served their purpose.

This by no means refers to the bat- tle flags. No, indeed. If there are only three inches of red, white and blue, and a single star remaining at- tached to the staff of such a banner, the people think infinitely more of it than they would of the finest thirty- foot flag that was ever made. The poor old rent and tattered banners all have a meaning. There is history, tragedy, romance and sometimes hu- mor among the memories of the dear old relics. Let any one who doubts that pay a visit to the state house at Hartford, Conn., that staid old town, where it used to be against the law for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday.

Hard-featured old farmers come in and view the cases where the flags are located and presently, if one cares to watch, there will be distinct evidences of moisture and the dew on the grass of a June morning was never more delightful than the dew of patriotism that really springs from the heart of the American citizen, whether he be old and hard-featured or in the flush of youth.

When we wake up on a Fourth of July morning, those of us who have passed beyond the delightful time of 4 a. m. and firecrackers, we are often disposed to make sundry and pointed remarks about the noise that we hear. But when we gather ourselves together and get to the window and look out; when we see on the nearest flagstaff the stars and stripes, brilliant and beautiful as the debutante in the first flush of social success, we forget about the noise. We only remember that we are citizens of the greatest republic the world ever knew, and we know that any disturbance we may hear is in honor of that flag which is floating above us. We are proud of it.

And then, as the day grows apace and all that it means is borne in upon us, the words of genius come back to us and we say to ourselves that nature herself shows us that the United States will never be sundered. France has the lily, England has the rose, Scotland has the thistle, Ireland has the sham- rock. All these have their day and pass from earth, but the stars shine on forever.

OLD GLORY IN SONG.

The most beautiful monuments ever erected to commemorate past deeds are those which, built by the pens of the poets, are found in the literature of America.

The hands that grasped the battle flags in the "days which tried men's souls," and the hands that, with the pen, have glorified banner and hero, have also been the hands of patriots—patriots with hearts full of love for liberty, not for conquest; for country, not self.

Out of the great number of subjects for literary work offered by American history no other one has received so much attention as the flag. Indeed, it has been called a "floating piece of poetry."

It has been the inspiration of many a poem from the pens of that group of New England writers now so dear to American hearts, among whom are numbered Bryant, Longfellow, Whit- tier, Holmes, Emerson and Lowell; while the fame of many of our minor poets, such as Joseph Rodman Drake and Francis Scott Key, rests especial- ly, if not entirely, on a single produc- tion in honor of the flag.

Naturally a great many patriotic poems have grouped themselves about the wars which our history records. The revolutionary war has furnished considerable material of this charac- ter, though most of the poems relating to this period were written long after the struggle was ended. Probably the earliest mention of the flag in poetry is found in "An Ancient Prophecy," a poem written soon after the surren- der of Cornwallis, and predicting the out- come of the war thus: "O king, my dear king, you shall be very sore,

From the stars and stripes you will mercy implore, And your lion shall growl, but hardly bite more."

Later, the first fight in the war for independence is portrayed by Emers- on in words familiar to every Ameri- can:

"By the rude bridge that arched the flood, Their flag to April's breeze unfurled. Here once the embattled farmers stood, And fired the shot heard round the world."

Holmes says, in speaking of the heroes of the battle of Lexington: "While o'er their ashes the starry fold flying Wraps the proud eagle they roused from his nest."

Thus showing the flag as the em- blem of the nation which those New England farmers helped to establish.

In spite of the "Ancient Prophecy," however, the lion, still growling, at- tempted a second bite, and the war of 1812 ensued. Again the poets come forward, and the flag of glory is borne irresistibly along, cheered on and en- couraged by such words as these: "Comrades! join the flag of glory, Cheerily tread the deck of fame, Earn a place in future story, Seek, and win a warrior's name."

May our bannered stars as ever Splendidly o'er freemen burn, Till the night of war is over, Till the dawn of peace return."

It was during a battle of this war also that the "Star Spangled Banner" was written, one of the most patriotic and impassioned songs in all literature.

The Mexican war, too, adds its con- tribution. A poem relating to that contest tells how, after an all-day's fight, the few surviving American sol- diers were able to place the victorious flag upon the public buildings of Mon- terey: "Our banner on those turrets wave, And there our evening bugles play."

A NAVAL HERO'S STORY.

(From the Times-Herald, Chicago, Ill.) Late in 1861, when President Lincoln issued a call for volunteers, L. J. Clark, of Warren, Trumbull Co., Ohio, was among the first to respond. He joined the mortar fleet of Admiral Porter just before the memorable operations on the Mississippi river began. It was at the terrific bom- bardment of the Vicksburg forts, that the hero of this story fell with a shattered arm from a charge of sbrapnel.

After painful months in the hospital he recovered sufficiently to be sent to his home at Warren, Ohio. Another call for troops fired his patriotic zeal and Clark soon enlisted in Company H. of the 7th Ohio Vol- unteers. In the army of the Potomac, he was in many engagements. Being wounded in a skirmish near Richmond, he was sent to the hospital and thence home.

A Wounded Hero.

Soon afterward he began the study and then the practice of veterinary surgery. Seeking a wider field than the Ohio village afforded, he went to Chicago, where he now has a wide practice. He is a member of Hatch Post G. A. R., and lives at 4935 Ashland Ave. Several years ago Dr. Clark's old wounds began to trouble him. He grew weak and emaciated, and his friends despaired of his life. He finally recovered sufficiently to be out, but was a mere shadow, weighing only 90 pounds. The best medical attendance failed to restore his lost strength and vigor. "A friend gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Dr. Clark, "and they helped me so much that I bought a half dozen boxes and took them. I soon regained my strength, now weigh 190 pounds and, except for injuries that can never be remedied, am as well as ever. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People the best remedy to build up a run down system, and heartily recommend them to everyone in need of such aid."

Gridley at Manila.

Capt. Gridley, of the Olympia, who re- cently died in Japan, was a distin- guished and gallant officer, and no doubt handled his ship most capably in the Manila fight, yet perhaps his surest hold on fame is in the calm words with which Admiral Dewey, standing by his side, opened the en- gagement: "You may fire when ready, Gridley." Backed up by the unerring and masterful work that followed them, these words have quite as secure a place in our history as Perry's "We have met the enemy and they are ours," and Lawrence's pathetically fu- ttle "Don't give up the ship." Lawrence fired before he was ready.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MOTHERS.

We are asserting in the courts our right to the exclusive use of the word "CASTORIA," and "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," as our Trade Mark.

I, Dr. Samuel Pitcher, of Hyannis, Massa- chusetts, was the originator of "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," the same that has borne and does now bear the fac-simile signature of CHAS. H. FLETCHER on every wrapper. This is the original "PITCHER'S CASTORIA" which has been used in the homes of the mothers of America for over thirty years. Look carefully at the wrapper and see that it is "the kind you have always bought," and has the signature of CHAS. H. FLETCHER on the wrapper. No one has authority from me to use my name except The Centaur Company, of which Chas. H. Fletcher is President. March 8, 1897, SAMUEL PITCHER, M. D.

What the Word Morro Means.

Before the operations of the Ameri- can warships in Cuban waters interest- ed folks in the nomenclature and geography of that neighborhood most people thought that Morro castle meant a particular fort at the mouth of Ha- vana harbor. In a hazy way it was imagined that the fortress was named after some Mr. Morro or other. Now the knowledge that there is a Morro at San Juan and another at Santiago has sent the inquisitive ones to their Span- ish dictionaries, where they find that the principal meaning of Morro is "anything round, or projecting over an eminence, an overhanging like of a precipice."

Electric Fans in Sleeping Cars.

The Baltimore and Ohio South-West- ern Railway officials have solved the problem of cooling sleeping cars in stations at night. At Cincinnati, Louis- ville and St. Louis this line has sleep- ing cars placed in the stations at 10 p. m., which do not depart until after midnight, and in order to make them comfortable and cool have placed 16- inch rotary electric fans in each end of the sleepers, thus removing the heated and impure air from all parts of the car. The fans have been in operation about two weeks, and have been the subject of many favorable comments from the traveling public.

Too Much for the Judge.

A citizen of Leavenworth, Kan., swore in court the other day that his wife would not cook for him, and the wife swore that he never brought her anything to cook. The court, lacking the full measure of Solomon's wisdom, was unable to solve the problem.

HISTORY OF THE WAR.

Important Events Reviewed and Condensed Into Reliable Form for Our Readers.

Wednesday, June 22.

Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter officially report the landing of troops at Baiquiri and the laying of plans to attack Santiago front and rear. The Spaniards were deceived by a feint and the troops landed where they could not have been expected. Their dispatches read as follows: "Landing of the army progressing favorably at Baiquiri. There was little if any resistance. The New Orleans, Detroit, Castine, Wasp and Suwanee shelled the vicinity before the landing. We made a demonstration at Cabanas to engage the attention of the enemy. The Texas engaged the west battery for some hours. She had one man killed. Ten of Peoria, Ill., were vindicated at Camp Thomas of charges made in connection with the mental condition of a private.—In an engagement with the forts during the landing of troops at Baiquiri one man on the Texas was killed.—It was decided to turn over to the ambassadors of France and Austria, as Spain's diplomatic agents, the non-combatants and crews of the several prize vessels.—The statement was published in London that German marines have landed in Manila.

Thursday, June 23.

Cable news direct from Cuba and by dispatch boats to Jamaica is that there has been sharp fighting on land near Baiquiri, and that the ships have kept up a vigorous bombardment of the hills, forcing the Spaniards to retreat.—Cables from Cuba by way of Madrid report that fierce fighting has taken place between the allied American and Cuban forces and the Spanish.—The Spaniards do not claim their usual victory, but declare that the "situation is critical." Officials in Washington are confident our forces have given a good account of themselves.—The auxiliary cruiser Yale sailed from Old Point Comfort with the first re-enforcements for General Shafter's army at Santiago de Cuba.—Sagasta is said to have announced in the Spanish chamber that the fleet of Admiral Camara is bound for the Philippines.—The Cuban junta in New York received from Colonel Labarde, near Santiago, its first direct cable report since the war began.—Splendid work has been done by Admiral Sampson's ships in bombarding the Spanish batteries near Santiago. The Texas is credited with the best work of the war.—The Vesuvius has demonstrated the complete success of gun cotton shells.—Governor Tanner has ordered the Eighth and Ninth Illinois regiments to be at the state fair grounds in Springfield for examination for enlistment in the United States volunteer service.—The United States monitor Monadnock and the collier Nero sailed from San Francisco to join Admiral Dewey's squadron at Manila.—The Cadiz fleet was sighted off the island of Sicily going toward Suez.—Dispatches to Madrid yesterday say that an American warship appeared off the cruiser Isabella, a gunboat, and the Terror. One Spaniard was killed and three wounded.—Fourteen hundred Michigan troops sailed from Norfolk, Va., on the cruiser Yale.—The United States troops in Eastern Cuba formed a camp five miles inland from Baiquiri, submarine mines have been recovered from the channel of Guantanamo. Communication by telegraph has been established at Guantanamo. Sampson. "Landing at Baiquiri this morning successful. Little if any resistance. Shafter."—Four picked crews removed seven submarine mines from Guantanamo harbor under a heavy fire from shore batteries. The Marblehead and the Dolphin struck by a single shell, which killed one man and wounded six others. The killed seaman was F. R. Blakely, apprentice, first class, of Newport. The wounded are: R. Russell, apprentice, Philadelphia, Pa.; W. J. Simonson, seaman, New York; H. A. Gee, apprentice, Philadelphia; J. E. Lively, landsman, Norfolk, Va.; G. F. Mullen, apprentice, New York; A. Soogvist, seaman, New York. Russell is very seriously wounded. The others will all recover. The shot which struck the Texas was about the last shot fired before the Spaniards abandoned the battery under the heavy and accurate fire of the Texas. This shell entered the battleship twenty feet abaft the stem at a point on the side about three feet below the main deck line. It cut a jagged, round hole, from measurements of which it is deduced that the size of the projectile was six and one-half inches. Oddly enough, after striking the first obstruction, it failed to explode, passing through a hawser reel and then cutting in two a heavy iron stanchion in the center of the berth deck, leaving its upper and lower parts intact. Here the explosion occurred. Standing around at quarters, but not in action, were the crews of two 6-pounders located in the forward compartment of the berth deck. Blakely stood by a chain stopper about two feet distant. He was torn to pieces. Pieces of the shell flew in all directions, wounding the others.

G., composed of colored troops from Chicago and six other cities in the state, received orders to start next Monday night for Camp Tanner.—General Shafter's command advanced westward to the town of Juraguá, which was captured without a battle. The Spaniards retreated toward Santiago and are expected to make a determined stand at Sevilla. The camp of the United States troops is seven miles from El Morro and overlooks the harbor of Santiago.—The steamer Peru, arriving at San Francisco yesterday, spoke the transports carrying the second expedition to Manila near Honolulu. All on board were well.—The government purchased seven merchant vessels at a cost of $4,000,000, presumably to carry supplies to the armies of invasion.—In a fight within five miles of Santiago early Friday morning, 1,000 men of the Tenth Cavalry and Rough Riders engaged 2,000 Spanish infantry. The Spaniards sustained heavy loss and were driven back to the city. The Americans had nearly a score killed

Saturday, June 25.

The first dispatch from General Shafter concerning the engagement between the Spaniards and the American forces reached the war department and was as follows: "Baiquiri, June 24.—Further news from General Wheeler places our lost in this morning's firing at about ten killed and forty wounded. Captain Capron, First United States volunteer cavalry, killed. Wounded—Major Brodie, Captain McClintock and Lieutenant W. Thomas, First United States volunteer cavalry; Major Bell, Captain Knox and Lieutenant Bryan, First United States Cavalry; Captain Knox seriously wounded, is uninjured. The names of the others killed and wounded are not yet known. The Spaniards occupied a very strong and entrenched position on a high hill. The firing lasted about an hour and the enemy was driven from this position, which is now occupied by our troops, about a mile and a half from Sevilla. The enemy has retired toward Santiago de Cuba.—SHAFTER."

The war department has received the following dispatch from General Shafter, received after though apparently written before, his dispatch given out earlier in the day: "Baiquiri, June 24.—In pushing out to occupy a good position near Sevilla to await and entrench until supplies and artillery could be landed, Fourteenth and Tenth Cavalry (Fourteenth apparently is a mistake) and Woods' regiment had a skirmish. Enemy was driven from his position and General Wheeler reports he now occupies their grounds. Wounded—Major Bell, Captain Knox, Captain Wainwright, Lieutenant Byram, First Cavalry, and a number of men. Above names only given. Lighters and steam tugs asked for this morning should be sent at once.—SHAFTER."

General Shafter's latest report throws considerable light on the situation and indicates that General Wheeler is in the van of the invading army. The fact that the army has passed Juraguá and is now within a mile and a half from Sevilla shows how rapidly the American soldiers have pushed forward. Sevilla is the point where the Spaniards claim they will make a desperate stand, and with our forces only a mile and a half off it is apparent that a decisive fight is near at hand. It is five miles from Sevilla to Aguadores (the interior town, not the port), and two miles further to Santiago. This shows our troops to be about eight and a half miles from Santiago, according to General Shafter's report. Army officials say the name McClintock, contained in General Shafter's report, is undoubtedly wrong, due, no doubt, to mistakes in telegraphing. They say the name should be Captain L. S. McCormick, who belongs temporarily to the First Cavalry, to which he was assigned at his own request from the Seventh Cavalry, recently stationed in the southwest. There is no officer in the regular or volunteer army by the name of McClintock. Captain McCormick is from Ohio and was graduated from the military academy in 1876. The Captain Wainwright referred to in General Shafter's dispatch as being uninjured belongs to the First Cavalry. His full name is Robert F. P. Wainwright. He was born in Pennsylvania and appointed to the military academy from New York. Secretary Alger and General Miles look for desperate fighting very soon. The main attention is given to hurrying forward re-enforcements and stores to General Shafter. In this connection a serious loss came to the knowledge of the war department to-day when it was learned that the one lighter sent with the Shafter expedition for the purpose of unloading the heavy guns had been lost. It leaves the invading army without proper means of getting the heavy siege guns and ordnance from the transports to the shore. There is but one small tug with the transport fleet, but it is not believed this can be made available for getting the big guns ashore. Besides the guns, there are the heavy mounts, caissons, trucks, etc., which nothing short of a big lighter can take ashore. How the loss of the one lighter occurred is not known. Speedy steps were taken to remedy this misfortune as far as possible. Adjutant General Corbin telegraphed General Coppinger at Jacksonville to see that two large lighters were sent at once to the fleet of transports with Shafter. The order told General Coppinger there was need of the utmost haste. It is probable that General Coppinger's quartermaster has lighters near at hand; otherwise it is expected he will adopt urgent means to secure anything within reach on the Florida coast. After that they will have to be towed over, which is a slow process with flat-bottomed craft of this kind. In the meantime it is expected that the naval vessels off Santiago will assist in getting the guns ashore, although it is doubted if they can afford much more aid than the tugs.

Among these are the Third and Fifth Illinois infantry.—President McKinley regards Shafter's operations in Cuba thus far as highly satisfactory and is refraining from embarrassing the general with instructions.—Spain is preparing for the attack of some of her home cities. The lights in many ports have been extinguished.

ANTONIO LOPEZ, GIRALDA, PATRIA, OSADO, PELAYO, RAPIDO, ALFONSO XIII, CARLOS V, COLON. ADMIRAL CAMARA'S FLEET, OTHERWISE KNOWN AS SPAIN'S CADIZ SQUADRON.

Admiral Camara's fleet consists of sixteen ships of all classes, one battleship, one armored cruiser, four torpedo boat destroyers, seven auxiliary cruisers and three transports. The battleship Pelayo, Spain's most formidable ship of war, is armed with two 12.5-inch Hontoria rifles and two 11-inch of the same make; in its secondary battery it carries one 6.2-inch, twelve 4.7-inch and six rapid-fire guns and twelve machine guns. The Emperor Carlos V, is next to the Pelayo, the heaviest vessel in Spain's navy. Its displacement is 9,235, while the Pelayo's is 9,900. This armored cruiser is styled an "armored central battery" and comes in the same class as the Vizcaya. The Carlos V carries two, 11-inch Hontorias, eight 5.5-inch rifles, four 3.9-inch, two 2.7-inch, four 2.2-inch rapid-fire guns, and six machine guns. Its complement is eighty-five men less than the Pelayo, which has 600 officers and men. The four torpedo boat destroyers, the Audaz, Osado, Proserpina and Prelajo, average 330 tons, carry 100 men each, and have two torpedo tubes. They each carry a couple of twelve or fourteen pound rapid-fire guns, two machine guns, and a Maxim-Nordenfeldt. The Audaz is the fastest craft in the Spanish navy, having a speed of thirty knots. This is the torpedo boat destroyer which broke down at the beginning of the war and was forced to put into a British port for repairs. Its three companions in the fleet are supposed to have a speed of twenty-eight knots. Of the auxiliary cruisers under Camara the Patria and Rapido, formerly the Hamburg-American liners Columbia and Nor-mannia, are probably the swiftest and most formidable. The Rapido displaces 10,500 and is nearly 500 feet long. The Patria is a tenth smaller in displacement and tonnage. They each carry eight 5.5 inch Hontorias and four 4.7-inch guns, with four small quick-firers, and a dozen machine guns each. The Alfonso XIII, Buenos Ayres, and Isla de Panay are vessels of the Spanish Transatlantic Company turned into auxiliary cruisers. They are armed with a number of 5.5-inch Hontoria rifles and a half dozen machine guns. The Giralda is a yacht armed with torpedo tubes and three or four 5.5-inch Hontorias. The Colon, Antonio Lopez, Covadonga and San Francisco are auxiliary cruisers. The three latter are but lightly armed for use as transports.

While the demonstration failed to accomplish what General Shafter desired, it resulted in a fine piece of work by the Texas. The Texas, unaided, silenced and apparently destroyed a battery which all the ships in Commodore Schley's division of the fleet had twice fiercely bombarded without result. Steaming in so close that she almost touched the shore the battleship took Socapa battery on the flank, pouring into it 135 6-inch and 12-inch shells. The Spanish forces that had been driven from Matamoros field batteries now fled from Socapa. Officers of the Vesuvius, which lay opposite the Texas' target, say the marksmanship of the battleship's gunners was the finest of the war. Admiral Sampson was delighted with the work when Captain Phillips told him, "We have destroyed them." The Texas was ed, including Hamilton Fish, Jr., and Captain A. K. Capron, while sixty men were wounded. Killed: Captain Allyn M. Dill-Mundhenke.

The many friends of Miss Mattie Mundhenke and Mr. Charles Dill of Barrington were agreeably surprised on Thursday when they heard the news that these two popular young people had linked their fortunes for life.

The old proverb that "woman can't keep a secret" and that "barbers can't keep from talking" was again disproven.

On Wednesday morning Mr. Dill was off for a little pleasure jaunt, and Miss Mundhenke also had a little engagement away from home the same day. It transpired that both took the same train and that their destination (Sharon, Wis.) was the same. Of course, it was quite natural that when they arrived at Sharon and found Rev. Brigman at the depot that they knew the opportune moment had arrived. On Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Dill arrived in Barrington and were met at the train by a shower of rice. The happy couple will make their home at Barrington, where Mr. Dill conducts a tansorial parlor and where both parties are well and favorably known.

Undertaker and Embalmer.

There's a Tenderness

About our meats that is appreciated by the cook.

It is not necessary to pound the steaks with a mallet to make them yield up their juiciness. Nor to use great care in broiling or roasting.

Our beef, lamb, veal, mutton and pork is so good in itself that the chances of spoiling them in bad cooking are small.

Every piece of meat we sell is cut from prime, well fed and carefully handled animals.
