Funeral of Mrs. Dr. Wadhams.

The funeral services of Mrs. Dr. Wadhams were held in the Methodist church Friday afternoon, September 23rd. A private funeral service at the home of Mrs. H. Schirding preceded the public services in the church. Rev. M. H. Plum of Chicago officiated and gave a touching eulogy on the christian life of the deceased. Before her marriage she was an earnest worker in the Sunday school and was at the head of a young peoples' society, called "Willing Workers," which did much work for the church. After her marriage she taught a young men's class, six members of which were pall bearers at the funeral—John Swick, Otto Engelking, G. Wilson, Henry and Geo. Stroker and John Williams. Many friends from Chicago came to attend the last sad rites and show their respect for the deceased.

The flowers were abundant and beautiful.

MEMOIR.

Mrs. Jennie Schirding - Wadhams was born October 26, 1860, and attended school in Palatine. She was married to Dr. F. E. Wadhams September 10, 1879. They moved to New York City nine years ago, where the doctor practiced his profession. They returned to Chicago in 1892, where they resided until last fall, when Mrs. Wadhams went to Arizona for her health. She was afterward joined by her husband, but the disease proved too much for her and she died of consumption Sept. 17, 1898. She was brought to Palatine for burial September 24th.

Two daughters and one son, beside the husband, are left to mourn her loss.

IN DEFENSE OF HIS WIFE.

A Former Resident of this Vicinity Kills a Man at Joliet.

John Sbrochi, at one time employed in Grunau's barbershop in Barrington and afterwards conducting a shop at Lake Zurich, and later one at Palatine, killed a man at Joliet Sunday, his present home, because the victim had been paying too much attention to Sbrochi's wife. The Chicago News had the following account of the affair in its Tuesday's issue:

"JOLIET, ILL., Sept. 26.—John Sbrochi, a well-known barber, emptied five shots into Pasqually Colletti yesterday. One shot struck Colletti in the heart and he fell dead into the street. "Colletti, who was a powerful man, followed Sbrochi for a fight because the latter objected to Colletti's making love to Mrs. Sbrochi. "After the shooting a mob of 500 was trying to lynch Sbrochi when a patrol wagon, filled with officers, arrived to save him."

An Old Resident Gone.

Mrs. Johanna Marie Dorethea Brasel nee Roock, one of our oldest residents, died suddenly at her home in Barrington on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Brasel was born in Borgstadt, Pommern, on June 9, 1835. After her marriage to Mr. Fred Brasel the couple removed to America in 1865, living one year in Elkhart, Wis., after which they removed to this village, where they resided until death called Mr. Brasel home in that beautiful land some three years ago, and now again united the father and mother. Six children were born to this estimable couple—three boys and three daughters—of which one daughter, Mollie, preceded the parents some 23 years ago. The children living are Mary, now Mrs. Henry Hennings, living 6 miles south of Barrington; Henry, stopping at home; Fred, of Des-Plaines; John, stopping at home, and Minnie, now Mrs. John Dockery.

The deceased was a member of St. Paul's Evangelical church.

The funeral services will be conducted at the late residence tomorrow (Sunday) morning at 11 o'clock, after which they will be continued at St. Paul's church. Interment will take place in Evergreen cemetery beside the graves of her husband and daughter.

Mrs. Brasel was of a quiet, unassuming disposition, one who was well and favorably known to our residents, whose respects and esteem she possessed and merited.

North-Western Road Issues Humane Orders in Behalf of Soldiers.

A humane order has just been issued by the Chicago & North-Western Ry. Impressed with the pitiable condition of a majority of the returning soldiers, General Manager Whitman of this road has determined that none of the boys in blue who may come in contact with his company shall suffer from lack of attention. The North-Western system covers five or six states which furnish a large proportion of the volunteers, and in order that the boys may be treated kindly on their way home, whether discharged or on furlough, Mr. Whitman has issued special instructions to every agent and conductor on the entire system to give special care and attention to returning soldiers en route from camps to their homes while upon the trains or at the stations of the North-Western. The employees are instructed to be diligent to ascertain if any of the soldiers are in need of food and more particularly if they are sick and require medical attention, and if any such are found he is to be attended to at the expense of the company, if necessary. It will not be necessary for the soldier to be in uniform to get the advantage of the road's hospitality, for if he can show the proper papers of discharge or furlough, he will receive the same consideration.

"We cannot do enough for the returning soldier," said General Superintendent Sanborn, in speaking of the order. "The boys went down there and faced death in a hundred different ways, and those who escaped are returning home debilitated and worn out. They did this for what? Not for money: it is not in any sane man to resign himself to death for a money consideration. They did it for the love of country."

Other roads probably may follow the North-Western's move.—The Chicago Chronicle.

Shell Wilden.

A ROMANCE

"You don't seem altogether happy in here," a cheery voice calls out at this moment, as Shell's somewhat mocking face appears at the open window.

"Happy!" cries Ruby derisively. "Would you feel happy caged up with a couple of young bears? The children have been behaving shamefully."

"Have they?" returns Shell in a tone which denotes doubt, as she steps in over the low window ledge, and gently begins to stroke Meg's hair, which has become disheveled through her various emotions.

The child nestles up against her side, clasping her skirts firmly, as if for protection, while Bob indulges in a vigorous welcoming nod, for he knows he is not allowed to speak.

"Yes, they have given me quite a headache," pursues Ruby, pressing her hand to her brow. "I shall be fit for nothing the rest of the day if I can't get rid of it. I wish you would hear the children read for me."

"Why should I?" answers Shell bluntly. "As you know, I disapprove of their coming here; and I told you from the first to expect no help from me!"

Shell speaks in French, that the children may not understand; but Meg guesses with the quick instinct of childhood that she is refusing to take charge of them.

"You hear me read, Sell?" she slips with a look of almost piteous entreaty on her baby face. "Me will be dood."

Shell looks down for a moment with unrelenting eyes—then she catches Meg up in her strong young arms, gives her a resounding kiss, and turning to Ruby, says—

"All right—if you are tired I don't mind looking after them till they are fetched—only I don't profess to be a good hand at teaching."

"I wish you wouldn't be so rough with them," says Ruby, rising from her chair with a sigh of intense relief. "Now us is happy!" cries Bob, sliding down from his chair and stretching his small arms with delight as Ruby disappears.

"But us must go on with our lessons," says Shell gravely.

"All right," acquiesces Bob, as he begins to hunt for their reading book. "You sit down in the big chair and have Meg on your lap, like you did last time; and I can stand beside you."

"My dear children, isn't it rather hot for that kind of arrangement?" expostulates Shell, as Meg springs into her arms, whilst Bob installs himself with his arm around her neck.

But the children only know that they love her, and want to be as near her as possible; any such minor consideration as the state of the thermometer is a matter of supreme indifference to their inexperienced and consequently selfish little minds.

That evening, as luck will have it, when the children come in to dessert, their father begins to question them as to their conduct.

"I hope you were both very good children this morning?" he says, helping each to a plentiful supply of strawberries.

"No, pa—us wasn't berry good," falters Meg, with downcast eyes and burning cheeks.

"Dear me—that is very sad, Meg!" says Robert Champley, with a laughing glance across the table at Ted.

"How did you misbehave yourselves?"

"I didn't know tree times four," replies Meg, looking deeply abashed.

"That was extremely wicked of you," says her father smiling.

"And, now that Meg has made an open confession of her sins, we must fear your enormities, Mr. Bobby," laughs his uncle. "How did you offend Miss Wilden?"

Bob heaves a profound sigh.

"I did somethink dreadful," he says in a low ashamed voice.

"Something dreadful?" repeats Ted, looking intensely amused. "Come—out with it."

"Papa, dear, don't be angry wid Bob—he didn't know," interposes Meg, suddenly, laying hold of her father's arm and hugging it vigorously.

"Dear me, this is getting alarming! What did you do, Bob?" asks Mr. Champley with real interest.

Bob takes a kind of gulp to swallow down his fear—and then he says in an awestruck voice—

"I pulled her hair out."

"God-gracious—whose hair?" asks his father, looking startled.

"Miss Wilden's," explains Bob, much alarmed at the sensation his announcement had created.

"You young villain!" exclaims his uncle. "What induced you to attack a lady like that?"

"I didn't attack her," says poor Bob, on the verge of sobs. "I just pulled out her pins for fun, when she was setting my copy, and then all her hair tumbled down on the carpet."

"Not all," hastened to explain Meg— "only a lot of it."

Ted Champley is seized with a violent fit of coughing, which sends him over to the window for relief, whilst his elder brother as suddenly develops a cold, which necessitates a vast amount of handkerchief play before he speaks again, then he says quietly to Bob—

"That was very ungentlemanly of you, and if I hear of your being rude again I shall punish you."

CHAPTER V.

This threat from his usually indulgent father has such a depressing effect on Bob's spirits that he makes up his mind to eschew temptation for the future.

"Miss Wilden won't love you if you don't behave like a gentleman," continues the father severely, as an appropriate ending to his reprimand.

"Us don't love Miss Wilden," here interrupts Meg with great dignity—"she is a nasty cross old ting."

"Nonsense, Meg!" says her father, placing his hand under her chin and smiling down into her eyes. "If you don't love Miss Wilden, I am afraid you must be a hardened little wretch, for—with a dreary sigh—"alas, she is only too devoted to you!"

Meg shakes her head in an uncomprehending way, and repeats, with a determined little pout—

"Us don't like her—us loves Sell."

"Yes, us loves dear Shell," chimes in Bob eagerly. "She tells us lovely stories."

"My dear misguided children, your affection for Miss Shell is decidedly misplaced," here interrupts their uncle, returning from his post at the window. "She doesn't like boys and girls at all."

"Not like little boys and deris?" repeats Meg, quite taken aback by such an extraordinary statement.

"No, indeed—in fact she gave me to understand that she almost hated them," repeats Ted, much amused at the children's look of horror. "So I strongly advise you not to waste your young affections on such an unresponsive object."

The warning, being clothed in words beyond their understanding, makes no impression on the children's minds, but their strong preference for the younger sister strikes their father forcibly, and he catches himself murmuring more than once in a wondering tone—"Us loves Shell; us loves dear Shell!"

After that it often happens that Ruby, under some trifling pretext or other, shifts the burden of her self-imposed task on to Shell's young shoulders—she has a headache, or is busy, or has letters to write; and then Shell, taking pity on the poor children—who are sure to have a rough time of it if Ruby is disinclined for them—devotes her morning to their instruction and amusement.

She bribes them to be good at their lessons by the promise of a romp in the grounds when their task is completed; and so it happens that Robert Champley, changing to drive over himself to fetch them one late June morning, comes upon an unexpected and to him a charming sight.

On a moss-grown mound at the front of a copper-beech sits Shell in a dark print gown, with her bright hair coiled around and around with daisy-chains, which the children's busy fingers have been weaving, whilst she tells them a wonderful tale from Fairyland.

So engrossed are all three that they do not become aware of the intruder's approach until he has descended from the trap and walked quietly to within a few paces of their resting place; then a shout of "Papa, papa!" from Meg rouses them all from their ideal world to a realistic one.

Shell starts from her lowly seat, crimson to the very roots of her hair, and puts on as forbidding a look as she can well assume.

"Oh, pa, it is so jolly; you come and listen, too!" cries Bob, eager that his father should participate in their enjoyment. "The princess is shut up in a dark room, because her wicked god-mother won't allow her ever to see the sunshine, and the prince is keeping guard outside her tower with a carriage and six, to carry her away to an island blazing with light if he gets the chance."

"Rather trying for her eyes, won't it be? I should be inclined to recommend her a pair of spectacles till she gets used to the glare," laughs Robert Champley as he shakes hands with Shell.

But Shell has become fossilized. She shakes hands limply, puts on a stolid conventional expression, and, drawing her small figure up to its fullest height, tries to look exceedingly dignified. Her efforts are somewhat marred by the daisies so profusely twisted around her head; but, as she is happily forgetful of their presence, they do not trouble her.

"Sell, dear, she didn't have blue spectacles, did she?" cries Meg, shocked at such a very unromantic suggestion.

"I don't know, I am sure," responds Shell in a tone of cold indifference.

"But oo does know," cries Meg, waxing impatient, and shaking Shell's skirts in her anxiety to have the doubt settled.

"I am afraid my children are wearying you, Miss Shell," says their father rather stiffly. But I have just come over to carry them away."

"I find the easiest way to keep them quiet is to tell them stories," says Shell bluntly and ungraciously.

"I am very sorry that you should be put to so much trouble, particularly as you dislike children," remarks Mr. Champley, with a curious and rather satirical glance at her flower-decked head.

"Oh, it doesn't matter!" answers Shell condescendingly.

"Now then, young monkeys—if you are ready we may as well start," he says, pointing to a trap which is waiting in the avenue. "I am going to take you for a drive right around by the sea."

"Take Sell too, pa," pleads Meg, catching her father's hand and fairly jumping with delight.

"With pleasure, if she will only consent to go," is his ready answer, whilst he darts an amused glance at the girl's flushed vexed face.

"No, thanks—I hate driving," responds Shell curtly.

"You seem to have a great many detestations, Miss Shell," says the gentleman sarcastically.

"I have," is Shell's laconic answer.

"Well, then, since we can't persuade you to accompany us, we may as well start. Come children!"—and, making no effort to shake hands, he raises his hat politely.

A latent fear that she has been inhospitable assails Shell.

"Won't you go up to the house?" she asks almost eagerly.

"No, thank you—since I have been fortunate enough to meet with the children here. Good morning."

"Good morning," answers Shell stiffly, and quite ignoring the two little faces that are turned up to her for a good-bye kiss.

"Papa, is us naughty?" asks Meg as she trots over to the trap beside her father.

"I hope not. Why?" he demands absently.

"Cause Shell didn't kiss us," answers Meg in a wondering tone.

"Kiss you!" repeats her father, laughing. "She looked far more likely to bite."

But, all the same, as he makes the assertion a memory of Shell as he first came to her, with sparkling eyes and smiling lips, and the two children kneeling beside her, rises before his mental vision.

"Well, have you got rid of those little torments?" asks Ruby languidly, looking up from her book as Shell enters the room.

"Their father has just come for them," answers Shell shortly.

"Their father—oh, where is he?" cries Ruby, starting from her chair.

"I want to consult him about Bob's writing; and I must speak about the nurse; I am afraid she is not very careful—Meg's hands were quite dirty this morning. Where is he—where did you leave him?"

"He is down by the sea; I didn't leave him—he left me," answers Shell drily.

"Why did no one tell me he was here?" asks Ruby angrily.

"He didn't come to the house; I was in the drive with the children, and he picked them up there."

"How very strange! But it is all your fault, taking them out the foolish way you do. I suppose you were romping like a tom-boy when he came."

"I was telling them stories."

"Anyway you were a ridiculous object," says Ruby, with such an obviously scornful sneer that Shell instinctively glances across the room at her reflection in the mirror, then for the first time becoming aware of her profuse decorations. With a sudden access of wrath she tears the daisies from her hair, whilst tears of mortification rise to her eyes.

"I wouldn't have had him see me so for a hundred pounds," she says angrily.

"What nonsense! I don't suppose that he even noticed them," observes Ruby with cutting scorn.

"Ah, perhaps not!" murmurs Shell with a sigh of relief; and yet, thinking it over, she remembers clearly that twice or three times during their short interview she noticed an amused smile flicker over his face.

CHICAGO DAY AT OMAHA.

Chicago day, October 1st, will be one of the most notable of the special days at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition.

Since the exposition project was first mooted, the people of the World's Fair city have never lost an opportunity to show their keen interest in the enterprise. The state of Illinois has one of the finest and largest of the state buildings on the grounds, and Chicago merchants and manufacturers are well represented in the big exhibit buildings. In view of all that Chicago and Illinois have done toward making the exposition a success, the exposition management has been putting forth every possible effort to provide a hearty welcome for the thousands of people who will come to Omaha from Chicago on the 1st of October. This desire to do honor to whom honor is due is shared by all the people of Omaha, who fully appreciated Chicago's loyal support to the exposition, and every Chicagoan who visits Omaha on October 1st will be made to understand that everything in the city and especially on the exposition grounds is his for that day.

The railroads have granted a rate of $10 from Chicago to Omaha and return, and the tickets will be good for five days, which will enable Chicagoans to return home for the local celebration on October 9th. The low rate and the multiplicity of attractions at Omaha will certainly result in a large attendance of Chicago people on the day set apart for their entertainment at the exposition. Already several special trains have been engaged for special parties and other parties have arranged for a number of special cars on the regular trains. The Union League club will fill a train of more than a dozen sleepers, enough pledges having been already obtained from the members to assure this. The cars will be switched to a sidetrack near the exposition enclosure, and the members of the club will eat and sleep on the cars during their stay in Omaha, making their headquarters on the grounds at the big Illinois building. They will travel over the Northwestern. The Milwaukee road will provide another special train of twelve elegant sleepers for the members of the Board of Trade. The Cook County Democratic Marching club will also have a special train and will be very much in evidence in Omaha during their visit. The Hamilton club, the Chicago Athletic club, the Marquette club, the Germania club and other bodies will also be well represented.

These large delegations will form the nucleus of an army of several thousand people who will form one of the most representative crowds that has ever gone out of Chicago. Among the distinguished guests of the exposition on the day will be Mayor Harrison, Senator Mason, Congressman J. R. Mann and Comptroller of the Currency C. G. Dawes.

The distinguished visitors will be met on their arrival at the Omaha depot by representatives of the exposition directors, and escorted to their hotels. There will be a parade to the grounds and the formal exercises of the day will be held in the Auditorium at 11 o'clock. Addresses of welcome will be made by Mayor Frank E. Moores on behalf of the city of Omaha and by President G. W. Wattles on behalf of the exposition management. Mayor Carter Harrison will deliver the reply on behalf of the city of Chicago. After the speechmaking, a banquet will be tendered to the distinguished visitors by the exposition directors.

Special features are being arranged for Chicago day at the Indian encampment on the exposition grounds, where nearly 1,000 red-skins are assembled. A sham battle between members of the different tribes will be a part of the program, which will itself be an attraction of sufficient merit to pay for the journey from Chicago to Omaha. Never before has such a representative assembly of Indians been gathered together, and never will it be possible to bring so many together again. The sham battles which are being given regularly on the exposition grounds are a sight never to be forgotten by those who have been fortunate enough to witness them. Commissioner of Indian Affairs Jones, who was in Omaha recently, was especially enthusiastic over the exhibition. A drill of the United States life saving crew on the lagoon and ascensions of the war balloons from Santiago will also be included in the day's program, and at night an exceptionally brilliant display of fireworks will be given. Major Clarkson, general manager of the exposition, has announced that the attractions of the day will be the best ever offered for any occasion since the opening.

Appreciated Facilities.

"They talk about America being a new country, and all that sort of thing," said the European novelist, after his lecture tour. "But I must confess that it has resources for enjoyment which our own country has not afforded in such abundance. Of course, I spoke only from my own experience." "To what pursuits do you refer?" "Well, for instance, counting $100 bills."—Washington Star.

PRACTICAL KINDNESS.

One Hundred Thousand Grateful Soldiers.

These war times have tried men's souls in many unexpected ways, but like a shaft of sunshine and good cheer out of the cloud of privation and endurance has been the work that The American Tobacco Co. has done since the U. S. Soldiers and Sailors ever since the war began—for when they discovered that the camps and hospitals were not supplied with tobacco they decided to provide them, free of cost, with enough for every man, and have already given outright to our Soldiers and Sailors over one hundred thousand pounds of "Battle Ax Plug" and "Duke's Mixture" Smoking Tobacco, and have bought and distributed fifty thousand briar wood pipes, at a total cost of between fifty and sixty thousand dollars.

This work has been done quietly and thoroughly, by establishing headquarters in each camp, so that every camp and every hospital of the United States Army has been supplied with enough tobacco for every man and the sailors on thirty United States Ships in Cuban waters have shared with the soldiers this most welcome of all "rations."

Perhaps it will be only fair to remember when we hear the remark again that "corporations have no souls," that there is one American corporation whose soul has been tried and has not been found wanting in "practical kindness."

The number of people at present who speak English is said to be 116,000,000.

HANDSOME PICTURES.

Only a Short Time Remains in Which to Get Them Free.

The demand for the handsome game plaques which have been given away to purchasers of Elastic Starch this season has surpassed all expectations and has kept the manufacturers, J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., busier than at any time in the history of their business. Their offer to give these handsome plaques away to their customers will remain open only a short time longer, and those who have not already availed themselves of this opportunity should do so at once. Not for years has anything as handsome in this line been seen. The subjects represented by these plaques are American wild ducks, American pheasants, American quail and English snipe. They are handsome paintings and are especially designed for hanging on dining room walls, though their richness and beauty entitles them to a place in the parlor of any home.

Only until October 10 do Messrs. J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. propose to distribute these plaques free to their customers. Every purchaser of three ten-cent packages of Elastic Starch, flat-iron brand, manufactured by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., is entitled to receive one of these handsome plaques free from their grocer. Old and new customers alike are entitled to the benefits of this offer. These plaques will not be sent through the mail, the only way to obtain them being from your grocer. Every grocery store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market and is the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century, and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. Ask your dealer to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute. Bear in mind that this offer holds good a short time only and should be taken advantage of without delay.

MANY FEMALE ILLS RESULT FROM NEGLECT.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Ordinary Tasks May Produce Displacements That Threaten Women's Health.

Apparently trifling incidents in women's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb. A slip on the stairs, lifting during menstruation, standing at a counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most ordinary tasks, may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started.

The first indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action. Don't let the condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea that you can overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone.

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Mrs. MARY BENNETT, 314 Annie St., Bay City, Mich., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can hardly find words with which to thank you for the good your remedies have done me. For nearly four years I suffered with weakness of the generative organs, continual backache, headache, sideache, and all the pains that accompany female weakness. A friend told my husband about your Vegetable Compound and he brought me home two bottles. After taking these I felt much better, but thought that I would write to you in regard to my case, and you do not know how thankful I am to you for your advice and for the benefit I have received from the use of your medicine. I write this letter for the good of my suffering sisters."

The above letter from Mrs. Bennett is the history of many women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Peace Jubilation.

New York has been preparing for a grand national peace jubilee which should adequately express the sentiments of the people at the end of the war and their joy at the results of it. Chicago is also busying her eager patriotism in organizing a similar festival. From other cities and sections we hear of the same purpose to give official seal to the nation's happiness. This is admirable in motive and purpose. Not to do these things would be less than American, for we are a proud and demonstrative people, and to embody our feelings in deeds is instinctive. There is much to furnish a solid basis for jubilee. We have swiftly risen in three months to such a commanding position in the respect of the world as we never had before. Europe now perceives in the republic of the west not only a great commercial and industrial force, but a potency to be reckoned with in all international complications. We have vastly extended the field of our own activities. The nation has risen to a self-consciousness of its own resources which glows to its finger tips. It has attained a solidarity of sentiment such as it never had before. Prior to the civil war union was political, not organic. Now we are united in national sympathy, as between all sections, down to the very roots. No disturbing elements exist, except so far as they are bred in the very conditions of modern civilization. We have achieved remarkable results in a short war at a loss of life through the direct casualties of war unprecedentedly small.

Olympic Games at Paris in 1900.

The revival of the ancient Greek games at Athens in 1896 was a thought at once unique and valuable. The Olympic festival, occurring every four years, was held by all Hellenes in every Mediterranean country as the most sacred thing in the race life, and it powerfully drew their eyes and hearts to the common home. Consecrated by divine sanction, the Olympic season at once declared truce to all warring Greeks, and peace then reigned throughout Hellas. No other influence so welded Greece together and so made its commonwealths feel the thrill of a common blood and a common ideal. The modern recrudescence lacks nearly everything which made the ancient festival an organic outgrowth of life. But it does not lack in timely suggestion. The recent announcement of the programme of the games by the international committee includes nearly every kind of prominent athletic amusement and exercise involved in our modern habits and will at once engage the attention of expectant competitors.

This international festival of athletics, for this is what it is proposed to become, may attain a strong influence, which will help to bind the world together in ties of future peace. Regarding modern civilized humanity as a greater Hellas, for the world's finest culture came from this source, there is something striking in the thought of the new Olympic festival, which will be moved, however, from city to city instead of being sacredly guarded at one. The trend of recent startling movements has been toward the establishment of universal peace and of safeguards for its continuance. Humanity longs for such a panacea to its manifold wars, and the disposition to put that into operation has been made manifest in startling fashion. Everything which can converge to that end is full of significance. It is one way to look at the new Olympic games. Even as the great Elia festival drew the hearts of all Greeks together in love and covered the sympathy of blood and ideal so perhaps this new Olympian gathering for international rivalry in friendly exploits may be a binding link in the great peace chain. Should it prove to exert such a manifest influence the name of King George of the Hellenes as a world's benefactor, for to his inspiration the project to connect ancient and modern life in this fashion was due, will survive all the mediocrities of his reign.

If one would be sure of the qualities lacking in an acquaintance, let him study those which the latter boasts of the most.

The rudest man inspired by passion is more persuasive than the most eloquent man if uninspired.

Astronomy in the United States.

In no country has there been a keener interest in astronomical science and nowhere has there been more devoted and skillful research into the mysteries of the skies than here. We have the two largest refracting telescopes in the world, and in the possession of instruments of the next grade, we stand among the three foremost peoples in the world. In the number of important discoveries made during the last quarter of a century we compete favorably with any other. In that important branch of the science known as spectroscopy we are a little behind our contemporaries, but in all other directions, including stellar photography, our record is a magnificent one. Among the more celebrated men, the names of Newcomb, Harkness, Hall, Davidson, Langley, Young and Elkin are famous worldwide and among the younger aspirants such students as Pickering, Todd, Keeler, Barnard, Burnham, Comstock, Lowell and others equally deserving are almost as well known and honored.

An important step in the organization of astronomical work in the United States has just been taken in the formation of an astronomical society similar to the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain. It is worth while that this great science should be represented with more dignity than as a mere branch of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The special affiliation of men working in the same direction is in line with that differentiation of work so important for effective research. It will more effectively draw together all those enthusiastic in this study who are perhaps in part amateurs. From this class the science of astronomy has, however, drawn some of its brightest lights. Hall, for example, now at the head of the Yerkes observatory, in the start had his own little telescope in Chicago, and Barnard, who discovered the fifth satellite of Jupiter, was originally a photographer's assistant at a small salary. An astronomical society admitting these amateur workers as associate members, while the full membership would be reserved for the higher achievement, would be of great scientific value.

Medical Experts.

Mr. St. Clair McKelway of Brooklyn delivered a pregnant address at the Saratoga convention of the American Social Science association on a topic of great practical interest. In this he discussed the value of medical expert testimony in law trials and the evils involved in the practice. The speaker, putting emphasis on the point that the medical expert is retained to prove the contention of one or the other side precisely as is the lawyer, goes on to say: "If the professions other than that of law, which, as already said, is a licensed and discounted partisan, and the contending partisanship of which is tempered by judge and jury and is really useful to both, deliberately enter the market in competition for clients or for a price, they must expect to part with the authority and respect which they would like to command, and they must expect to be rated by the gauge and wage of interest in hand or in sight, supplied by the adherents to the view to which they sell their services. The retained expert is becoming more and more a discredited quantity in the courts of law, among jurors, in the press and in the general community." Mr. McKelway touched a crying evil with great vigor of statement. Had the consequences not been so maleficent in a host of cases it would have made this court practice a public laughing stock as a travesty on the righteous mechanism of law. The speaker argued that this hitherto necessary evil should be remedied by making the payment of expert testimony an affair of public remuneration, the selection of the witnesses a matter to be determined by the presiding judge. This would eliminate the phase of personal temptation and hang the issue on the skill and veracity of the witness who had ceased to be a retained advocate. Whether or not the manner of reform would suit the preferences of the bench and bar, its need is recognized generally by the profession.

In the race between the English and French to be the first at Khartoum the English won the prize. It was a bigger prize, too, than a ruined city. It was the sure control of the interests of all of east central Africa, where the Germans are willing to play second fiddle.

Most speculators in working a grain corner take great satisfaction in squeezing rivals and strangers. Young Joe Leiter has the unique satisfaction of having squeezed his father out of $5,500,000, for these are the figures recently announced of the final settlement.

The Last Chemical Discovery.

One never knows when new and interesting discoveries will be scored by scientific research. Neither can one be sure that any such discovery, at first apparently of mere abstract or academic interest, may not soon prove to be of great practical importance. Professor Dewar in London about three years ago amused audiences by his experiments in the liquefaction of gases. It was scarcely to be prophesied that it would soon prove to be revolutionary in some practical processes of great value, a fact which now seems probable. Cooke's "New Chemistry" in 1874 specified the existence of 63 elementary substances, and five new ones have been rapidly added, the last three being helium, argon and metargon, gases which almost refuse to unite with any other substance. A few weeks ago the identification of another elementary gas was made known to the French Academy of Sciences by three Italian physicists, MM. R. Nasini, F. Anderlini and R. Salvadori. The discovery came about by the agency of spectrum analysis, that all compelling tool of chemical and physical research. For many years the green line in the solar corona, known to spectrum analysts as 1474 K, was attributed to the aurora, but it was finally believed to represent some elementary presence in the sun lighter than hydrogen, but nonexistent in the earth. The investigation, mentioned above, found the same line in the spectrum of the gases thrown off by the volcanic springs of Pozzaoli, and the inference was that it was the identical gas previously recognized in the sun. This, it is believed, will soon be isolated and prove to be the lightest substance known to man.

The London Spectator advocates a plan which would have made the statesmen ruling English affairs 24 years ago open their eyes with amazement. It proposes the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and in its place one whereby the two nations of England and America guarantee for each other the control of the Suez and the Nicaragua canals against all comers. This would constitute a pact of invincible strength, and the official discussion would make the rest of the world squirm. Probably no serious opposition could or would be made to such an agreement, but none the less it would be felt as a slap in the face by every continental power. It would be looked on as the final seal of Anglo-Saxon partnership. Stranger things have certainly come to pass.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Roggs, Stumpdown, Gilmer county, W. Va. For sale by A. L. EVENTS IN ILLINOIS.

Seven Days' Doings in the Prairie State—Telegrams Received from Various Points.

Canal Men Under Fire.

Joliet, Ill.—The drainage trustees have filed their answer to the amended bill submitted by the canal commissioners last Monday. The answer covered fifty-three typewritten pages and its contents are of such an unexpected nature the canal commissioners were compelled to ask the court for time to examine the document. When they had done so they filed exceptions to some of the statements made, but the judge ordered the trial to proceed. The answer brings out some new points of rather a sensational nature. The principal one is in relation to the water power lease at dam No. 1, held by the Economy Light and Power Company. After calling attention to the appraisal of the value of all water power along the canal the drainage trustees assert that the Economy Light and Power Company is paying much less than the rate agreed upon. This rate was $20 per horse power, yet the Economy company pays only $1,220 for 909 horse power, being at the rate of $1.34 per horse power. The claim has been made by the commissioners that the state should have the benefit of the proposed increase in power at dam No. 1 to 6,000 horse power, but the trustees aver in their answer that, by the terms of the existing lease, the Economy company would control all the increase, and while paying the state only $1.34 per horse power, could release the same at a higher figure, and thus make an enormous profit. The point is made that under this construction of the case, not the state, but private individuals, would be benefited.

The time was taken up mostly in reading from the minutes of the canal board. It was apparent from these that the commissioners had passed upon the plans in dispute and had accepted the terms of payment. One of those connected with the case says there is no doubt that the canal board had indorsed the plans, but later realizing that a big water power was to be created, the commissioners are now endeavoring to get out of the bargain by claiming they have no right to sell the land. There is a rumor that drainage board detectives are watching the commissioners. When spoken to about this, President Snively said: "Let them send on 1,000,000 detectives if they want to. We are doing nothing that we are ashamed of."

Members of the drainage board do not take a very rosy view of the reported proposition of the state canal board to compromise in the Joliet land litigation by leaving the matter for settlement in the hands of Chief Engineer Randolph of the sanitary district. This cause they hold would practically amount to surrender by the state board of all for which it has been contending. They say they will only be too glad to support Attorney Hayes in accepting such a proposition, but call attention to the fact that in the reported interviews between Attorney Hayes and President Snively the latter could not commit himself as helping such a compromise. Attorney Jones, chief assistant attorney of the sanitary district, said in discussing the probable attitude of Attorney Hayes: "I have received no communication from Attorney Hayes saying such a compromise as is reported is pending. As the case stands, however, it would be almost meaningless. It would practically be a surrender by the sanitary district of all its rights in the March contract. I cannot imagine that Attorney Hayes would consider any proposition involving such a state of affairs."

Sig. Perugini Asks Divorce.

Although Lillian Russell is far away, singing where beer and music are as brother and sister, reminders of her domestic vagaries are still with us. Signor Perugini has asked the Chicago courts for a divorce. As usual under these circumstances, some secrets have come out. The signor says that his wife has been too fond of poker; and herein lies an explanation why the beautiful diva has remained poor, though golden treasures have been poured into her lap for a dozen years or more. Indeed, so dearly does she love a jackpot that she could not be kept out by a $1,000 raise if she held deuces; and Signor Perugini thinks this such positive proof of alienated affection that he desires a legal separation. Perhaps all this might be different if she had won, but where stakes travel skyward as rapidly as they do when Lillian is near her system is not the right one for profit.

Miners Offer to Arbitrate.

The miners who have been engaged in a prolonged controversy with the coal operators at Pana, Ill., have made an offer to submit the matter to arbitration, and they agree to give bond that they will abide by the decision rendered. If the employers refuse to accept this offer and insist instead on importing low-grade labor to take the places of the strikers, they will have difficulty in appeasing public sentiment.

Fever Refugees in Chicago.

Chicago is becoming the Mecca for yellow fever refugees from all parts of the south. There is not a hotel in the city that does not contain a dozen or more people who have fled from their homes in Memphis, New Orleans and other southern cities because of the fear of the yellow pest. Yesterday the arrivals from these cities were far more numerous than on the day before, and on the engagement book of every large hotel there were many telegrams for reservations of rooms for those who are coming north as soon as they can get through the quarantine lines. The guest from a city that is known to be infected with the fever is compelled to show a certified quarantine certificate before a room is assigned. Albert Bierce, a traveling man who makes his home in one of the leading down-town hotels, said yesterday that he had just returned from an interrupted trip through the south. He went first to New Orleans and found that the people were fleeing in such numbers that business was almost at a standstill. He went to Mobile, but finding the same state of affairs started northward. At Meriden, Miss., he was caught by the quarantine officials and detained.

First Guns of Campaign.

Alton, Ill.—Congressman J. H. Mann of Chicago and Secretary of State Rose opened the republican campaign here tonight under the auspices of the local republican club. The affair was intended to head off the big democratic rally to be held here next week.

Macomb, Ill.—The republican campaign was opened for this county here today. An incessant rain interfered materially with the attendance. L. Y. Sherman of this city and L. A. Jarman of Rushville, candidate for the legislature, and Colonel B. F. Marsh, candidate for congress, spoke.

Lincoln, Ill.—The campaign in Logan county opened at the Broadway theater, where I. R. Mills of Decatur, republican candidate for congress, spoke.

Peoria, Ill.—Congressman Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa opened the campaign in the Fourteenth Illinois district in an address at Rouse's hall, this city, under the auspices of the republican county committee. He was introduced by Congressman Graff. He advocates retention of all territory gained by the war, except, possibly, the Philippines, and would have a naval station at Manila.

Illinois Men Exposed to Fever.

New York, telegram—Four members of Chicago's crack regiment, the First volunteer infantry, may have been exposed to yellow fever. They are detained on Swinburne and Hoffman islands, pending an examination. The men are: Edward J. Hackett, company K; Byron Predmore, company M; Walter Simkins, company C; First Sergeant Charles Frink, company K. The three first named are convalescents, but the latter is known as a special case for whom trained nurses have been provided. Nineteen members of a passenger list of seventy-five who came in from Santiago and Porto Rico on the transport Seguranca were taken tonight with the one yellow-fever patient, E. Isaacs of Macon, Ga., to Swinburne island. They have been the ones most exposed and they will be closely watched for indications of the disease. The other fifty-five were sent to Hoffman island, where they, too, will be observed. The transport came in this morning from Montauk, where she had gone direct from Santiago with the very last stragglers of the Fifth army corps.

Veterans Hold a Reunion.

Of the 1,000 men of the Thirty-sixth Illinois volunteer regiment who enlisted during the civil war, less than 400 survive. Eighty of these were in attendance last week at the thirty-second annual reunion and banquet given in the Transit house, Chicago. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Joseph Ingham, president; John A. McQueen, vice president; W. F. Sylla, secretary and treasurer. The veterans were given a banquet by Comrade J. C. Denison, secretary and treasurer of the Union Stock Yards. Major George D. Sherman, United States paymaster, department of the east, who has just returned from Santiago, acted as toastmaster.

Dr. Gray at Kankakee.

Kankakee, Ill.—Bishop H. W. Warren, of Denver, delivered a lecture on "Factors of Conversion" at this morning's session of the central Illinois M. E. conference. The name of G. W. Kling, of Farmington, was withdrawn as effective elder on charges. Bishop Hartzell, of Africa, delivered a lecture on that country tonight. Dr. G. W. Gray, of Chicago, spoke on "The Forward Movement."

IS A QUESTION OF POLICY.

Cubans Oppose a Large Army of Occupation.

DECLARE IT IS NOT NEEDED.

Opinion Expressed That the United States Will Be Charged with Utterly Motives if a Very Strong Force is Sent to Cuba.

The plan of the administration to send at least 40,000 and probably 60,000 soldiers to garrison the island of Cuba is meeting with the determined opposition of Cuban leaders. They point to the fact that the Spanish soldiers are all to be sent away and that as rapidly as possible the Cuban army is merging with non-combatants, giving cheerful acquiescence to American rule and authority.

Senor Quesada, secretary of the Cuban junta, points out that Gomez has yielded and ordered his men to muster out as soon as possible, that Garcia is the guest of Gen. Lawton at Santiago, and has nothing but kind words for the Americans; that like conditions prevail all over the island so far as the Cubans are concerned, and in view of this action of the administration in sending such a great army there, can not fail to incite the fear that the United States has an ulterior object in view.

PRESIDENT IMPATIENT.

Spaniards Must Evacuate the Island of Cuba by Oct. 20.

The first troops of the army for the occupation of Cuba will leave this country Oct. 20. Gen. Miles says that this detachment will consist of about 3,000 troops, to be divided among the regulars. These will be followed from time to time by detachments to fill out the 50,000 intended for the garrison of the island.

This early announcement of the destination of troops for Cuba is due to the fact, not heretofore stated, that the president has sent the Spanish commission an ultimatum that the authorities here would not tolerate a delay in evacuating the island to Feb. 28, as had been contemplated by the Spaniards.

The president considers Oct. 20 a reasonable time, and will begin the peaceable occupation then, and will occupy it by force if he is resisted.

COL. PICQUART NOW IN SOLITARY CONFINEMENT.

Colonel Picquart, the friend of Dreyfus, who was the first to suspect the genuineness of the bordereau which convicted the captain, has been placed au secret, or, as Captain General Blanco would say in Spanish, incommunicado. Picquart is guarded very carefully, and not even his attorney is permitted to see him. He is on trial for espionage in revealing the documents in the case. The French colonel is in a desperate situation, and when first cast into prison made the startling statement that if found dead in his cell he would have been murdered, for he had positively no intention of committing suicide. He also hinted that Col. Henry did not kill himself, but that he had been assassinated. Picquart further said that a detective employed on the case—one Picard—had also been killed by the authorities. It is evident that the powers in France are afraid of Picquart and what he may say that will precipitate a crisis from which the republic may not be able to emerge.

CUBANS ARE STARVING.

Gen. Gomez Appeals for Aid for His Soldiers.

The Cuban army is starving, and for over two weeks has been unable to procure any meat; the vegetables are almost gone, and the last mules and horses have been killed to feed the sick. The children and old people are dying by dozens every day. Gen. Gomez appeals for aid and says his men are desperate.

MINERS BLOWN TO DEATH.

Seventy Men Entombed in a Pennsylvania Colliery.

TWENTY ARE STILL MISSING.

Explosion in a Coal Shaft Near Brownsville—Forty Men Make an Almost Miraculous Escape Through an Abandoned Shaft—The Dead.

The most disastrous explosion in the history of the upper Monongahela mining district occurred at the Umpire mine of Snowden, Simpson & Co., near Brownsville, Pa., Sept. 22. Eight miners were blown to pieces, the mangled remains not being recovered till hours after the event. Many others were taken out of the mine alive, but with their bodies charred and mutilated. About forty men who were working in other parts of the mine were entombed, but escaped by an old passage. They reached the surface over two miles from the main entrance and returned home after their families had given them up as dead or perishing in the suffocating flames in the Burglars Shatter the Safe and Secure $12,000 in Cash.

At 2:30 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 27th, burglars entered the Farmers' bank of Flora, Ind., and, placing a charge of dynamite, completely demolished the interior of the room and the safe, securing about $4,000 in gold, $7,000 in paper and $1,000 in silver. The force of the explosion awakened William Lenon, owner of the bank, who opened fire on the burglars with a small revolver. The fire was returned and Mr. Lenon was seriously wounded. One man is under arrest for complicity in the crime.

CYCLONE IN CANADA.

FELL FROM A SCAFFOLD.

From the Herald, Watertown, N. Y.

John Young, of LeRoy, N. Y., is 72 years old, and is well known in that and neighboring towns. While putting some weather boards on a barn, standing on a scaffold twenty-two feet from the ground, he felt dizzy, lost his balance and fell to the ground. The side of his face, arm and one entire side of his body, on which he struck, was badly bruised. Picked up and carried to the house, he was under a doctor's care for several weeks. The doctor finally came to the conclusion that his patient had received a stroke of paralysis and was beyond medical aid. He could not use one arm, or turn over in bed.

Paralyzed by the Fall.

One day, while lying on the bed, he read of a case something like his having been cured with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He coaxed his granddaughter to get him a box of the pills. After that box had been used he secured another. In three weeks he began to feel a little life in his arm; at the end of four he could move his fingers; at the end of two months he could walk, and in three months he could shave himself with the injured hand.

As he told his story in the Herald office, he looked the perfect picture of health. He carries a box of the pills in his pocket, and whenever he does not feel just right, he takes them. They cured him after doctors had given him up, and his death was daily expected.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained in a condensed form in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of influenza, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Something About Butter.

A distinguished physician who lived about the time of Christ, mentions that butter was made by agitating the milk of sheep; but none makes mention of its being used except as an ointment or medicine, save by the Thracians and Germans, who were the first nations to adopt it as food. It is related by Plutarch that while a Spartan lady was visiting the wife of a distinguished nobleman of the adjacent principality, the former smelt so strongly of sweet ointment and the latter of butter that mutual repulsion was the consequence, which finally ended in war.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Great Day for Veterans.

In some respects the most striking feature of peace jubilee week at the exposition at Omaha will be the friendly meeting of the Blue and the Gray on "North and South Handshaking Day," October 11th, and on "Army and Navy Day" and "Veteran Soldiers' Day," October 13th. Great efforts have been made to secure a large attendance of federal and confederate veterans for this occasion, and there is no doubt that the gathering will be one of the most memorable of its kind in the history of the country. The Grand Army of the Republic, through its commander-in-chief, the Women's Relief Corps, through its national president, and the Daughters of the Confederacy, through their national president, have been invited to be present and the invitations have been given very wide publicity. A number of prominent speakers have accepted invitations to deliver addresses at campfires to be held morning and evening of the two days named. It will be a fitting accompaniment to the celebration over the close of the war of 1898 that the men who bore the brunt of the fight in the early sixties shall stand upon the same platform and address the participants in that great struggle.

TO AID THE SOLDIERS.

North-Western Road Issues a Humane Order as to Them.

A humane order has just been issued by the Chicago & North-Western railway. Impressed with the pitiable condition of a majority of the returning soldiers, General Manager Whitman of this road has determined that none of the boys in blue who may come into contact with his company shall suffer for lack of attention. The North-Western system covers five or six states which furnished a large proportion of the volunteers, and in order that the boys may be treated kindly on their way home, whether discharged or on furlough, Mr. Whitman has issued special instructions to every agent and conductor on the entire system to give special care and attention to returning soldiers en route from camps to their homes while upon the trains or at the stations of the North-Western. The employees are instructed to be diligent to ascertain if any of the soldiers are in need of food, and more particularly if they are sick and require medical attention, and if any such are found he is to be attended to at the expense of the company, if necessary. It will not be necessary for the soldier to be in uniform to get the advantage of the road's hospitality, for if he can show the proper papers of discharge or furlough, he will receive the same consideration. "We cannot do enough for the returning soldiers," said General Superintendent Sanborn, in speaking of the order. "The boys went down there and faced death in a hundred different ways, and those who escaped are returning home debilitated and worn out. They did this for what? Not for money; it is not in any sane man to resign himself to death for a money consideration. They did it for the love of country." Other roads probably may follow the North-Western's humane move.—The Chicago Chronicle.
