A TIE VOTE CAST.

Right of Renting City Hall For Other Than Council Meetings Questioned.

TO HAVE ANOTHER SALOON.

City Council Adjourns Before Electric Lights Go Out.

The Board of trustees of the Village of Barrington held an interesting meeting, at their hall, Monday evening. President Boehmer called the meeting to order shortly after 8 o'clock, and all the members excepting Trustees Richardson and Peck, who came in later, answered to the clerk's roll call.

After the minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved the following bills were allowed and ordered paid.

A. S. Henderson, night watch	$35 00
H. A. Sandman, marshal	35 00
Wm. Hager, engineer	40 25
J. C. Meier, street labor	1 50
E. Rieke, hauling gravel	3 20
John Jahnke, hauling gravel	1 20
H. Johnson, hauling gravel	4 00
James Sizer, street labor	6 20
J. Palmer, street labor	4 25
S. Palmer, street labor	5 55
E. Johnson, hauling gravel	3 20
F. Kampert, hauling gravel	1 60
J. D. Lamey & Co., material	13 77
D. H. Richardson, ring for catch basin	5 75
Sundry parties, labor tapping mains	14 00
Stillwell Bierce & Smith Co., supplies for water works	22 34
Wm. M. Carpenter, electric light	63 00

John Rudolph presented an application and bonds for a saloon license to conduct a saloon at 111 Williams St. until April 30, 1899. The bonds, as presented, were accepted and the clerk instructed to issue a license on payment of $277.76.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Chicago & North-Western Railway Co. to remove obstructions from the ditch at the outlet of the tile which were recently put in by the village.

The matter of putting in larger tile at the corner of Main and Walnut streets came up for discussion. After nearly an hour's talk on the subject, it was finally disposed of by accepting Mr. Lageschulte's proposition. He agrees to pay the village $75 in cash and take the old 18-inch tile in exchange for new 24-inch tile on the payment of 34 cents per foot by the village.

The Barrington Social and Athletic club, through its secretary, George Otis, asked for permission to use the hall for dances this winter on evenings that would not interfere with the business of the village. Mr. Otis said that the club was willing to pay whatever was right for the use of the hall. After a lengthy discussion the matter was referred to the Judiciary committee, giving them power to rent the hall if it was found that they had a legal right so to do. There was a tie vote on the question and the president was called upon to cast the deciding vote.

The I. O. G. T. presented a petition to the Board, signed by its members, requesting that the saloons be required to remove all blinds, screens and other obstructions to view, from the windows of their saloons in this village on all days on which saloons are ordered closed by the ordinances of the village. The prayer of the petition was granted by a unanimous vote and the marshal was instructed to enforce the provisions thereof.

The Judiciary committee made a report on the question of compelling the property owners on the south side of Main and Railroad streets on grade line. They reported that the village attorney advised them that the village could not compel any property owner to change his walk, unless it was out of repair, without paying damages. No action was taken.

There was plenty more business to dispose of, but as it was then nearly 11 o'clock, and the electric lights would soon be out, the Board adjourned until Friday evening.

Village Board Proceedings.

The Board of Trustees of Palatine met in regular session Monday evening with President Batterman in the chair. Full Board present.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting the treasurer's report for September showing a balance of $849.14 was read and ordered placed on file.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

Pay roll for labor, September	$568 31
Conrad Winecke, painting	6 00
Henry Law, September salary	40 00
John Bergman, September salary	40 00
Herman Schrader, police service Sept.	10 00
H. W. Meyer, supplies	4 99
Total	$669 30

Motion prevailed that the village attorney be instructed to notify Willis Johnson to move the fence and sidewalk in front of his property out to line within twenty days, and that if he failed to do so at the expiration of that time to commence proceedings against him.

Pushing Westward.

Pending the decision of some minor points relative to the connection of their line with the Chicago Telephone Co.'s line, the Lake County Telephone Co. suspended work on the extension of their line westward. Recent developments indicate the two lines will be connected by way of Waukegan in a very short time and the Lake County company is arranging to extend their line to Gilmer and Lake Zurich. In fact work on the extension will be commenced just as soon as the projectors are assured of the co-operation of citizens of the village named. The line will be built to all towns in western Lake county where sufficient business is in sight to warrant and where citizens want the service and favor the movement. Ere many weeks the Lake County Telephone company will have connection with Waukegan, Chicago and innumerable towns west of the Wisconsin Central railroad, which with the towns already on the line will give it facilities for affording a valuable and much to be desired service.—Lake Co. Independent.

To Protect the Milk Supply.

Health Commissioner Reynolds has asked farmers shipping milk into Chicago to assist him in stamping out typhoid fever. The commissioner in a circular letter asks each shipper to keep a particular watch for returned soldiers who have had the disease. If among them or anyone else in the shipper's neighborhood typhoid develops he asks that immediate report be made to the office of the health commissioner in Chicago. He will then send an inspector at the expense of the health department to investigate the shipper's surroundings, particularly his water supply.

A Good Entertainment.

The Surricks in songs and travels have been engaged by the Relief Corps to appear at the M. E. church Saturday evening, October 8th. They were here last season, and their entertainment took immensely. Their motion pictures are the greatest novelty of the times, while the illustrating of up-to-date military songs are grand and taking, especially when sung by Mabel Scott-Surrick, who has a most beautiful voice of great range and power, and as a vivid elocutionary delineator, she has but few equals. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

Donnelly-Grady Affair.

Many have thought that the Donnelly-Grady case would not be settled in time for either candidate to file his petition, so that neither one could become a candidate. The fact is that the nomination papers of each, filed at Springfield are sufficient. One of them must be taken out, however, and that will be done when the case is decided.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of unclaimed letters remaining in the Barrington postoffice for the week ending October 6th, 1898:

Mrs. Boss, D. B. Brown, James Fenton, A. L. Goetzmann, C. Harm, James A. Lydick, E. E. Lydick, S. A. Rowl, John Wagner.

Shell Wilden.

A ROMANCE

CHAPTER VI.

Shell is in the now almost disused stillroom of the Wilderness, dusting delicate china tea-cups with a clean glass-cloth. She is singing at the top of her fresh young voice, as she usually does when working alone.

"Oh, here you are at last!" cries Ruby, entering the room with a victimized air. "I have been searching all over the house for you. Who ever would dream of finding you down here at the end of this long passage?"

"Anybody with an atom of sense," answers Shell bluntly. "If you insist upon asking about fifty people to a garden-party, with only two servants, some one must give them a helping hand."

"Absurd—afternoon-tea is no trouble; but if you choose to encourage their laziness of course they are willing enough to let you!"

Shell makes no reply, but placidly proceeds with her dusting.

"Vi and I want you up-stairs," continues Ruby in a different tone. "We have decided to wear those muslins we had for the flower-show, only they want altering a little, and some new laces tacking on."

"All right—only I can't come just now," assents Shell readily—"the flowers have to be gathered and arranged yet; and cook is steeped to her eyebrows in cakes—I promised to help her as soon as I had finished these."

"Oh, but the dresses must be done first! I'll gather the flowers if necessary," says Ruby in the voice of a martyr, "even though going out in the heat always does give me a frightful headache."

Shell reluctantly complies, and is occupied for nearly an hour, then having still many household matters on her mind, she rises to take her departure.

"Don't go yet; you know how I abhor this sort of work," said Ruby sharply—her only work so far has consisted in watching Shell's deft needle darting to and fro.

"But, Ruby, I must—the tennis-courts want marking; and I must keep my promise to cook."

"Oh, we can manage now quite well!" remarks Violet cheerily. "By the way, Shell, what are you going to wear?"—looking up with sudden interest.

"I? Oh, I don't know—I haven't thought!" returns Shell carelessly. "My white serge will do as well as anything—at any rate it is ready."

"Don't wear stuff, it looks so hot; besides, that serge looks horrid since it was washed," objects Vi, who likes Shell sufficiently to wish that she should appear at her best.

"My dear Vi, don't waste advice on Shell—you know how self-opinionated she is. Besides—with a slight upraising of her eyebrows—"she is such a child, it really doesn't matter much what she wears."

"Just so," assents Shell, shutting the door behind her; but, all the same, she goes away feeling rather sore at heart, for there is no small amount of contempt in Ruby's tone. Though her eldest sister has assigned her age as a reason for her dress not mattering, she knows full well that the tone also insinuates a vast want of personal attractions too.

Yet, if she only knew it, she has a charm all her own—the charm of a genial spirit and a warm impulsive heart, which peeps out of her clear gray-green eyes, and lingers amidst the dimples of her crimson lips.

All that long summer afternoon there is no thought of self in the girl's conduct. She flits about, finding footstools and seats for old ladies, getting pins and fresh flowers for girls who have come imperfectly provided, and generally making herself useful.

"When will you be ready for tennis?" asks Robert Champley, who has been watching her narrowly, though unseen, for the past ten minutes.

"I am not going to play," answers Shell brightly, as she hurries across the lawn with a sunshade for an old lady who has left her own at home, and now finds herself incommoded by the ardent gaze of King Sol.

"But everybody says you play so well; and yet I have never seen you touch a racket," he urges, with a smile, on her return.

"Perhaps that is how I keep my reputation," laughs Shell gaily.

"No—but, really, I like to watch good play; you might be obliging," pleads her companion. Truth to tell, he is beginning to take a deep interest in Shell, probably owing to the fact that she seems to take no interest whatever in him.

"Well, I will be," responds Shell, with a curious little smile; and then, walking straight up to an exceedingly pretty girl dressed in pale pink, she says gravely, "Nora dear, Mr. Champley is most anxious to meet with some one who plays tennis really well, so I thought I couldn't do better than bring him to you. Mr. Champley—Miss Nora Fretwell;" and with a little nod she proceeds placidly on her way, having so disposed of her cavalier.

Five minutes later she is accosted by Ted.

"Isn't it a jolly afternoon?" he begins.

"Yes, only rather warm," agrees Shell, pushing her sailor hat a little farther off her brow.

"Come into the shade and let me fan you," suggests Ted coaxingly.

"How very kind!" scoffs Shell. "But I think I won't accept—it sounds so much nicer than it really is. Fanning only makes one hotter; and the midges are swarming in the shade."

"It seems impossible ever to say or suggest the right thing to you," says Ted with boyish impatience.

"If I have been rude, I am very sorry," Shell returns thoughtfully; "but all the same it is true, you know. Fanning only cools one for the moment, and one is ten times hotter afterwards." As she speaks she saunters on a few steps by his side, that she may not appear too pointedly unobtainable.

"By-the-way, I had almost forgotten," remarks Ted, laughing—"Bob and Meg charged me with a commission. I am entrusted with a mysterious packet, which I faithfully promised to deliver into your own hands;" and from his pocket he produces a small and remarkably clumsy paper parcel tied up with a bit of colored wool.

"I think there must be some mistake," says Shell, looking at the proffered offering superciliously; "they probably meant it for Ruby."

"On the contrary, I was particularly cautioned not to entrust it to your sister," laughs Ted. "I believe it is of an edible nature, and they feared the temptation might be too great."

Shell takes the packet reluctantly, and, standing still for a moment in the pathway, cautiously opens it, displaying to view some half-dozen chocolate creams of a decidedly crushed and not very tempting appearance.

For a moment a beautiful and gentle smile lights up her every feature; then she remembers with a start the part she is acting, and asks scornfully—"What on earth induced them to send me these things?"

"They probably thought you would appreciate them—poor children!" answers Ted, rather hotly. "They got a box as a present this morning, and wouldn't give me any peace until I consented to bring you over some. I wish—indignantly—"that I had thrown them away on the road."

"It certainly would have been wiser," retorts Shell, as she ruthlessly tosses the small bundle away amidst a clump of shrubs. "Children have such odd fancies."

"I don't call that an odd fancy—I call it a generous impulse," corrects Ted, stolidly. "By the way"—looking at her keenly—"shall I tell them the fate of their poor little present?"

"As you please," answers Shell carelessly; and then, knowing the pain that would be inflicted by such a revelation, she adds quickly—"No, I think perhaps you had better not. Some people imagine that children are sensitive, and I have no wish to wound their feelings, in case they possess any."

"In case they possess any?" repeats Ted, positively flushing with mingled anger and contempt. "You must be very dense if you have not yet discovered that those children are of a keenly nervous temperament."

"I know I am dense," admits Shell, with not the faintest show of annoyance or resentment. "As for children, I don't profess to understand them—probably because I have no sympathy with them."

Ted walks on beside her in thoughtful silence. It seems to him a sad pity that Shell, who used to be such a genial, sunny little creature, should have changed into the hard callous being now talking to him. He would like to account for the phenomenon in some way, and is contemplating the possibility of asking her if she has been crossed in love, when their tete-a-tete is cut short by Mrs. Wilden.

"Shell dear," says that lady, in a troubled tone, "I wish you would run in and see to the making of the coffee—it is sure not to be properly cleared if you are not there. Mr. Champley will excuse you, I am sure—he knows that we cannot afford efficient servants."

"I am only too delighted to find that England still possesses young ladies who are not above making themselves useful," answers Ted, in a bantering, teasing tone. "There is nothing I admire so much as domesticity in a woman. Most of our girls are getting so blue that it will be a blue look out for their husbands."

"Yes, indeed," murmurs Mrs. Wilden, as Shell, with a little toss of her head, walks away. Dear Shell is most useful—not very ornamental, but very useful—thoroughly domesticated, and such a gentle, kind creature. I often wonder how I should get on without her."

In the meantime Ruby, at the other side of the lawn, is listening to a piece of intelligence which causes her cheeks to turn pale, whilst she flutters her fan with increased nervous energy.

"You think the dear children need change?" she is saying in a tone of bewilderment. "I thought they were looking remarkably well; and the pets are always in such excellent spirits."

"Meg is not well," answers the father decisively. "She seems languid and heavy. The air here is very relaxing during the hot months; I think I shall take her to Scotland."

"Oh, not to Scotland—poor child—the journey would be so dreadfully fatiguing!" pleads Ruby, as she thinks with consternation of the impossibility of inducing her mother to permit her to go so far from home—for already her quick brain has formed a plan for following the children.

"Yes, it might be trying for so young a child," agrees Mr. Champley thoughtfully. "In that case I must be content with the moors or the North Devon coast."

"I should just keep her at home, and send her down by the sea every morning—sea-air is always bracing," observes Ruby, with a feeble hope that her advice may be taken.

"Mudmouth is the reverse of bracing," corrects her companion decidedly; "besides, it is not only the air—the children want a complete change."

"Of course you know best," admits Ruby, with a reluctant and despondent sigh; "but I always think that children are happier at home than anywhere else."

"That depends," remarks Robert Champley vaguely, and with a sharp sigh.

"Oh, yes, of course!" agrees Ruby eagerly; then after a moment she continues slowly, "However trustworthy servants may be, they can't understand everything."

"Do you mean that the children are in any way neglected?" he asks quickly.

"Oh dear, no!" laughs Ruby, with a playful head-shake. "I am sure their nurse is most attentive from all accounts—but you ought not, for instance, to allow her to choose their clothes. Of course she has no idea how to dress them—how should she, poor woman!"

"They seem very sensibly clothed to me," answers Robert Champley, but in rather a dubious tone—in fact a tone open to conviction. "As long as they are warm and comfortable, the cut isn't of much importance."

"But, my dear Mr. Champley, how can poor Meg be comfortable in a dress that allows of no free play of the limbs? Children ought never to be hampered by their clothing."

"Is Meg hampered?"

"Almost tortured, I should think, in her last dress. As for Bob, he ought to be dressed sailor fashion now."

"Dear me—what am I to do?" asks Robert Champley, half-mocking, half in earnest.

"I tell you what," says Ruby suddenly—"I will make clothes for each of them as a pattern. Now please don't protest—it will only be like the fun of dressing dolls to me."

Of course Mr. Champley does protest, but, as usual, he protests in vain; and when he takes his departure from the Wilderness that evening he finds himself weighed down by one more obligation to Ruby Wilden. As for Ruby, she is in great spirits—the only thing which troubles her in the matter is her total incapacity either to cut out or to make the clothes in question, seeing that in reality she knows far less how children should be dressed than the nurse whose tastes she has been criticising.

Eccentric Tides.

Owing to the effects of shore-lines, and other influences which are more or less obscure, it is very difficult to account for the peculiarities exhibited by tidal waves in various parts of the world. Interfering waves cause once-a-day tides at Tahiti, and in some other places, while on the other hand, in the harbors back of the Isle of Wight, and in the Tay in Scotland, there are three tides in a day. The latter have recently been ascribed to "overtides," produced by the modification of tidal waves running ashore, and resembling the "overtones" of musical sounds.

GOVERNMENT WAR BALLOONS.

Daily Ascensions at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition Grounds.

Among the many interesting features of the United States government's exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha, none is attracting greater attention than the war balloons. Besides the monster captive balloon which was used by the American forces at Santiago, there are four other large balloons, each with a capacity of 21,000 cubic feet, sufficient to carry three or four persons, and a score of small signal balloons. In charge of the balloons and the half dozen carloads of apparatus accompanying them are Capt. A. Warren Yancey and a detachment of twenty-three members of the United States volunteer signal corps, of whom about one-half were engaged in the operations before Santiago.

The big balloon used at Santiago is an object of intense popular interest. One or other of the big balloons makes several ascensions daily from the exposition grounds. These balloons, as stated above, have a capacity of 21,000 cubic feet of gas. This is sufficient to raise about 1,800 pounds. The balloon itself, with the car and ropes and cable, weighs in the neighborhood of 1,200 pounds. Each balloon can carry four persons of average weight.

The balloons are equipped with complete telephonic and telegraphic apparatus, communication with the ground being obtained by means of insulated wire paid out as the balloon ascends. Capt. Yancey has with him at Omaha two coils of wire, each 2,500 feet long. The wire is five-eighths of an inch in diameter, and consists of sixteen strands of nickel steel and twelve strands of copper. It is used for the double purpose of holding the balloon and of establishing telegraphic and telephonic communication with the ground. The wire is wound on a reel, connected with brass bushing and so arranged that communication is not interrupted as the balloon ascends or descends. The daily ascensions are made to about the limit of one of these coils of wire, and from a height of from 2,000 to 2,500 feet an excellent view of the exposition grounds, the cities of Omaha and Council Bluffs and the surrounding country is obtained.

A building forty feet square on the ground and fifty feet high has been erected on the North Tract to house the balloon over night. It costs in the neighborhood of $80 to inflate, and it is cheaper, therefore, to retain the gas from day to day than to generate fresh gas for every ascension. In order that the gas may not be allowed to escape it is necessary to protect the balloon from the weather, for the varnished silk of which it is made is very quickly ruined when a little rain gets to it.

In addition to the quarter of a hundred balloons, large and small, Capt. Yancey has with him at Omaha two stationary generators and one portable field generator and portable boiler, two gasometers, one of which was made in Omaha, and 250 tubes, each of which will hold about 150 cubic feet of gas compressed.

Of almost equal interest with the balloon ascensions are the daily exhibitions of visual signaling which are given by Capt. Yancey's men. Every member of the United States signal corps is an expert signalist, either with the telegraph or the heliograph or with the flags. The flag signaling, or wigwagging, as it is termed, is very interesting to watch. The signalmen are provided with small colored flags, with which they do their talking. A dip to the right or to the left or some combination of such movements represents each letter of the alphabet, in accordance with what is known as the Myer code. The two squads of men are separated by lagoon at sufficient distance to prevent any verbal communication, but near enough for the public to watch both operators at the same time. The exhibitions with the heliograph, or signaling by means of sun flashes, are also of great popular interest. It is interesting to note that both the wigwagging and the heliograph systems of signaling were derived from the Indians.

THE LONE WOMAN TRAVELER.

The "new woman" doesn't propose to miss the delights of travel simply for lack of a protector. She knows how to take care of herself, and when she starts off on a little journey nowadays it isn't with the nervous dread that something's going to happen before she reaches her destination—if ever she does, but she proceeds at once to make herself comfortable and to thoroughly enjoy her little rub up against the outside world.

But although she rests secure in a delightful feeling of safety, it has never occurred to the general woman that "making her to travel in safety" is a business all in itself.

She may have heard, for example, that the great New York Central Railroad is the only route in the United States that is completely equipped with the world-famous lock and block system of signals, but that doesn't mean anything to her until you explain that by this system every foot over which she travels is carefully and unceasingly watched and signaled day and night, and that collision is practically impossible, because a train cannot enter a given block or section until the train ahead has passed out, and that even if there should be another train following on the same track the engineer knows all about it through the electric telegraph, which is part of the system, thus making assurance doubly sure.

If the lone woman happens to be going to New York City she need have no dread of landing alone in the confusion of a big, strange place if she travels by the New York Central. All she has to do is to speak to one of the red-capped attendants—free service—who will carry her bag, answer her questions and show her to cab, car or elevated train.

Another thing, she lands right in the heart of the city within a step of a dozen or more of its leading hotels—and she should bear in mind that this is the only railroad depot in all New York City.

The New York Central might aptly be called "the lone woman's route."—Fashions.

Unrecognized.

Perhaps when one makes that conversational blunder which is known as a "break," it is best to say nothing whatever about it. Extenuation only renders a bad matter worse. Not long ago a lady was visiting the studio of a portrait-painter, and trying to make herself as agreeable as possible in return for a welcome and afternoon tea. She enjoyed the pictures, although in each case they seemed to her much idealized, and she went from one to another, civilly expressing her approbation. "Ah," she said to her hostess, "you must tell me all about them! Who is this?" "Mrs. Lorraine." "I don't know her. Charming, but of course I can't speak for the likeness." "I try to be faithful," said the artist, humbly. "Oh, I know! I know! And who is the very pretty lady in brown?" "That," said the other, with some frigidity, "is myself!"

American Boy Battleship.

W. Rankin Good, the President and Originator of the AMERICAN BOY BATTLESHIP ASSOCIATION, whose object is to build a Battleship with funds raised entirely by American Boys and Girls, visited Chicago last week. He said that during his visit to the Eastern cities he had offers from a number of rich men of enough funds to complete the ship. These offers he refused as he intends to adhere to the original plan. There has already been raised over $35,000.00, and he feels confident that the American Boys will raise by their own efforts all the money required. The interest taken in the scheme has been enormous and already thousands of American youths have their names on the roll.

The Black Kat Trap Co., 1100 Caxton Bldg., Chicago, offers to give any Patriotic Young American Boy five cents on every trap he may sell.

The trap sells for 10 cents, is made of steel, cannot break, has a safety set, and is warranted to catch every time without baiting. A boy selling 20 traps will make $1.00.

Write the Black Kat Trap Co., 1100 Caxton Bldg., Chicago, enclosing 2c. stamp for full information, or 10c. for sample trap and agency, or $1.00 for 20 traps and get to work at once. This liberal offer is made to all Patriotic American Youths, who wish by their individual efforts to earn money to place their name on the roll of honor.

The money for the AMERICAN BOY BATTLESHIP fund must in all cases be sent to W. Rankin Good, 841 Everett St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Stop! Women,

And Consider the All-Important Fact,

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience in treating woman's diseases is greater than that of any living physician—male or female.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides, a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman, whose knowledge from actual experience is greater than any local physician in the world. The following invitation is freely offered, accept it in the same spirit:

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

"The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women a year."

The course of the last act in the Dreyfus drama has shown the greater part of official France making a firm stand against the rising tide in the middle and lower classes favoring a revision of the case. Why President Faure should have threatened to resign the presidency if the public demand overrode opposition it is not easy to analyze. One can only understand it on the assumption that he, the highest official in France, was as guilty in the Dreyfus episode as any of the officers of a court packed to condemn. One can only suspect that there are depths which have not been sounded yet. The finale of this Dreyfus affair, for the truth is certain to be yet forced to the surface, may easily prove a more sensational revelation than anything yet known in the tragedy.

The reports of merchants and shippers indicate a great growing trade to England in manufactured products where England herself is our competitor. While some of these articles are designed for reshipment it is amazing what a variety of American made-goods are absorbed in the English market. In every town of medium size dealers in hardware, machinery, fancy goods, shoes and hats offer large lines of the American product. The weekly shipments of such articles, it is said, rarely amount to less than $1,000,000 per week. The country is proving its ability to meet the world on its own terms despite the higher price of labor. The secret is more effective and ingenious machinery.

George Meredith in a letter to The Harvard Monthly has a suggestive word to say of the work of the novelist: "I think that all right use of life, and the one secret of life, is to pave ways for the firmer footing of those who succeed us, and as to my works, I know them faulty, think them of worth only where they point and aid to that end. Close knowledge of our fellows, discernment of the laws of existence—these lead to great civilization." Mr. Meredith's conception is the noble and true one. But he is too modest. In breadth, depth, variety and sure clutch at the heart of things, he of all modern writers is entitled to be called the Shakespeare of prose fiction.

In acquiring control of Delagoa Bay, the only possible port for the Transvaal republic, the "detested Englishers" have put a permanent muzzle on that African G. O. M., as some of President Kruger's admirers have dubbed him. It was the height of the Boer statesman's highest ambition to secure access to this outlet. But his dear friend and son, Kaiser William, "went back" on him. The South African Republic is now completely bottled up.

Luteschi (the name of this miscreant is spelled in several different ways) displayed great cunning in selecting Geneva as the place to vent his murderous hate. There he escapes the noose or the guillotine. It is a pity that a retroactive law cannot be enacted for the occasion.

The story that Queen Wilhelmina was shot at by an anarchist a few weeks before coronation has been denied by the Dutch papers. But the fact has been established by other evidence. Holland should make good its contrast with the ineptitude of Switzerland.

Kansas is not to be outdone in its productions and does not stop with corn and wheat. In the recent cold snap she produced a crop of five inches of snow at one point.

Senor Sagasta, in his speech in the cortes frankly confessed, "We are an anemic country." If the nation would only come to the same conviction, it might speedily find a tonic by getting into line with the rest of civilization as soon as possible.

Those who have most defects are the keenest in discovering the defects of others. The reverse is also true. Like recognizes like.

Most men are like plants. They possess qualities which only chance discovers.

Happiness is like a watch. It never marks the time but when you interrogate it, and the less complicated it is the more easily it is kept running.

Corbett on Boxing.

The pugilist whose solar plexus was rudely shocked last year by the fist of one Fitzsimmons has given his views in a very prominent newspaper on the subject of prizefighting. His tone is as that of an ancient Hellene commending the dignity and importance of the Olympic games. Mr. Corbett promulgates the following: "It must be evident to every one that boxing, in the highest sense of the word, has become a sport that must be recognized by the American public. The day of the prizefighter, the man who pummeled his adversary with his bare fists, has gone forever. In his stead has sprung up a race of athletes, quiet, gentlemanly, well dressed men, who are welcome in any company, although they earn their livelihood by their knowledge of the art of 'hit, stop and get away.' From a sport that was carried on only under cover it has come to be one of the leading entertainments and amusements of the times."

It is quite fit that this representative of the fistic art should salve his own vanity by puffing the business which he alternates with play acting as a means of support, but one must be allowed gently to dissent from his conclusions. In calling professional boxing for money one of the leading entertainments of the time and prizefighters "a race of athletes, quiet, gentlemanly and well dressed, welcome in any company," he is forcing the pace much more than he was able to do with the redoubted Australian bruiser. The spectacle of a modern prizefight, whether it be called a boxing entertainment or a bruising match, smacks of the same ruffianism as of old, even though there be a sprinkling of the better classes in attendance. Whatever removal of sheer brutality has been effected from the old conditions of the prizefighting has resulted from legal compulsion, responding to an indignant public spirit in the community. As for this pugilist's eccentric notions of "any company," which must include the best company, opinion, of course, is a question of point of view. But it is very questionable whether Mr. Corbett would be able to entertain "the flattering unctious" long were he able to put it to the test. That the modern bruiser is sometimes treated with a kind even of adulation by his superiors is true. But it is in the same kind of spirit with which the ancient Roman dandy patted the brawn of the gladiator on whom he expected to bet his sesterces the next day in the amphitheater and on whom he turned down his thumb with scornful indifference if the poor wretch was vanquished.

An interesting Indian race is described in The National Geographical Magazine for August. The radical differences in the aboriginal stocks found on the North American continent are well illustrated in the habits of this tribe of 4,000 people found in Arizona and lower Mexico. Having adjusted their lives to the desert as completely as the Bedouins, they yet show an exceptional stability of character unaffected by contact with alien races. The Papagos are evidently descended, like the Maquis, from a people of superior aboriginal culture. They yet retain much of the manual skill and artistic taste of their ancestors whose relics found in the mounds and the ruins of whose constructive knowledge shown in aqueducts and irrigation works indicate a remarkable gens, perhaps allied to the ancient Toltec race. The early Spanish records note their dignified hospitality and reserve, and they are the same now. Yet that they are degenerates is without doubt. One of the most interesting facts in North American ethnology is the existence of so many modern tribes who are decadents from a notable degree of culture in the arts of life.

The work of college athletics in fitting young men for life has been a matter of controversy. The excess to which physical training is carried under the spur of competition has occasioned protest from many wise observers. Some light is thrown on the question by the lesson of the war. It has been found that the trained athletes of West Point have died from the effects of wounds or disease more quickly than those not distinguished in athletic skill. Medical opinion asserts that the severe training required to prepare men for athletic contest affects their vital organs. They are thus less fitted for the exigencies of campaign life.

In six years more California will be a genuine forty-niner, an argo of the argonauts, for she will have achieved that mystical number in her statehood. The grizzled old veterans of golden adventure hope to live long enough for the golden occasion, when they will paint Frisco yellow.

The railway industry in the United States is the most important factor in our prosperity, and its capitalization is the largest, yet the returns of that industry are the lowest, and there has been a steady decadence in the income value of railroads for the last six years. According to the statistics of Poor's Manual and of the interstate commerce commission, our roads have sunk to such a low ebb of profit that they cannot go much further that way without bordering bankruptcy. Without entering extensively into figures it may be cited that on a stock and bonded capital of $10,635,008,074 the returns are 1.92 per cent, a declension of one-half within half a dozen years. The essential cause of this terrible decline is attributed to extensive competition and the cutting of rates in the most unscrupulous fashion. In every pooling arrangement there has always been one to betray the rest. No guardianship on the part of traffic associations or of the interstate commerce commission has been able to check the rings within rings in railway operations and the surreptitious attempts to cut each other's throats. Many of the most conservative and honest railway men are coming to believe that government ownership is the only remedy. But against that, alike as a matter of theory and practice, there is a radical objection in the sentiments of many people. That something will have to be done very soon, however, to remedy the evil is the conviction of all those who have looked into the subject.

The world rarely scrutinizes evidence closely in favor of something which it is anxious to believe. This enables many intelligent men to form honest convictions which do great discredit to their good sense.

The last public act of General Jaenenes, the governor general of the Philippines, was to fine a newspaper editor for speaking the truth. This was the ruling passion strong in official death.

PLANS OF THE PRESIDENT.

It is Said He Will Recommend a Large Standing Army.

WANTS 100,000 TRAINED MEN.

He May Also Make a Proposition for the Organization of Several Native Regiments for Service in Cuba and the Philippines.

From intimations made by the cabinet officials, giving an idea of the recommendations they will make in their annual reports to the chief executive, which will soon be sent in, it is probable that the president's message will be of great length. It will review the war and make important recommendations concerning the islands which have been acquired. These recommendations will necessi-

LOSS IS $1,000,000.

Eight Blocks at Colorado Springs, Colo., Destroyed by Fire.

Fully eight blocks of the best portion of Colorado Springs is in ashes, including the Antlers hotel. The explosion of a car of powder and the high wind blowing made the destruction complete. In round numbers the loss is estimated at $1,000,000, insured for half that amount.

ILLINOIS IS LAUNCHED.

Magnificent Addition Made to the United States Navy.

The mammoth United States battleship Illinois, one of the three latest additions to the navy and probably the most powerful fighting machine afloat, was launched at Newport News, Va., in the presence of 30,000 spectators.

To Launch the Wisconsin.

The battleship Wisconsin is to be launched at San Francisco Nov. 26, and preparations for the event are already under way.

SHE SAVED THE KING.

Marie, queen of Portugal, is a doctor of medicine. She is the only woman of royal blood in the world who has achieved such distinction. Five years the queen devoted to the study of medicine. She had the ablest physicians in Portugal for instructors. Every moment of time which she could call her own was given to study. Behind this history of the scientific labors of the queen is a pretty love story. It was not love of science but love of her husband which has been the incentive to her work. The Princess Marie Amelie was the daughter of the Comte de Paris. She married blond, good-natured Carlos, and then straightway fell in love with her husband. Their romantic attachment is one of the prettiest stories ever chronicled of royalty. Soon after the marriage King Carlos, already stout, became corpulent to a painful degree. The formation of fat about the heart became highly dangerous. The doctors could not agree about the treatment. The king traveled about to many spas, and used all of the obesity cures, but without avail. The devoted queen meanwhile was his patient nurse and constant companion. Finally, becoming disgusted with the physicians, she determined to become one herself. There are many ludicrous stories told of the queen's first experiments. She pressed the entire court into service as patients. The queen has done more to restore her husband to health than any of the great specialists to whom he resorted. Queen Amelie is one of the royal European beauties. She is immensely popular with her subjects. When she went as a bride to Lisbon she infused new life and spirit into the sleepy old town. She organized fairs and entertainments for the poor. The court circle became noted for its brilliant gaiety.

tate a large increase in the standing army. On good authority, indeed, it is understood that the president's suggestion to congress will call for the establishment of a regular army of 100,000 men and will give an idea of the use these men will be put to in the future.

The president may recommend the organization of several regiments in Cuba and the Philippines composed of natives, and will probably say that the question of how long a standing army of 100,000 men will be needed must be left to future events, although it will be needed for at least a year.

Massachusetts Democrats for Silver. The Massachusetts democratic state convention adopted a platform which strongly indorses the Chicago platform, specifically mentioning the free coinage of silver. The platform indorses Bryan and George Fred Williams.

Wants Silver Campaign Funds. General Manager Harvey, on behalf of the democratic national committee, issued a manifesto asking friends of the silver cause to contribute to a campaign fund.

To Supplant White Miners. Two carloads of negro miners who were imported from the south have arrived at Pana, Ill., to take the place of the striking white miners.

Local Travel Is Prohibited. Owing to the spread of yellow fever a general order has been issued prohibiting all travel from point to point in Mississippi.

Wisconsin Forest Fires Quenched. Rain has quenched the forest fires in western Wisconsin. Relief committees are now fully organized and will begin the work of distributing at once. No further deaths are reported.

Gen. Miles Wants Delay. Gen. Miles is making a vigorous fight against the proposition to throw the army of occupation into Cuba this month. He wants the movement delayed until late in November.

New York Bank Suspends. With $2,000,000 due to small tradesmen depositors, the Tradesmen's National bank of New York closed its doors. The officers claim depositors will be paid in full.

Good Times in Michigan. Labor Commissioner Cox, in a report based on trustworthy advices, declares that industrial conditions in Michigan are vastly improved.

Fear Yellow Fever Epidemic. Mississippi seems doomed to a general epidemic of yellow fever unless early frost intervenes. The disease is spreading rapidly.

Burden Lifted from Pensioners. United States pensioners will hereafter be permitted to have their checks cashed at all money-order postoffices free of charge.

Catholic Archbishops to Meet. The annual meeting of the archbishops of the United States will be held at the Catholic university, beginning Oct. 11.

A SOLDIER'S ESCAPE.

From the Democrat-Messenger, Mt. Sterling, Ky.

When Richmond had fallen and the great commanders had met beneath the historic apple tree at Appomattox, the 83d Pennsylvania Volunteers, prematurely aged, clad in tatters and rags, broken in body but of dauntless spirit, swung into line for the last "grand review" and then quietly marched away to begin life's fray anew amid the hills and valleys of the Keystone State. Among the number Asa Robinson came back to the old home in Mt. Sterling, Ill., back to the fireside that he had left at the call to arms four years previous. He went away a happy, healthy farmer boy in the first flush of vigorous manhood; he came back a ghost of the self that answered to President Lincoln's call for "300,000 more."

To-day he is an alert, active man and tells the story of his recovery as follows: "I was a great sufferer from sciatic rheumatism almost from the time of my discharge from the army. Most of the time I was unfitted for manual labor of any kind, and my sufferings were at all times intense. At times I was bent almost double, and got around only with the greatest difficulty. Nothing seemed to give me permanent relief until three years ago, when my attention was called to some of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had not taken more than half a box when I noticed an improvement in my condition, and I kept on improving steadily. I took three boxes of the pills, and at the end of that time was in better condition than at any time since the close of my army service. Since then I have never been bothered with rheumatism. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the only remedy that ever did me any good, and to them I owe my restoration to comparative health. They are a grand remedy."

Then He Dodged. "At last," he said, Manila will get the benefit of our beneficent institutions. We may rest assured even now that Manila—" He paused and carefully gauged the distance between himself and the nearest member of the party, after which he moved a little farther away. "Even now," he repeated, "Manila is under the Merritt law." In spite of the precautions he had previously taken for his safety he felt it incumbent upon him to dodge a run.

$100 Reward, $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

EVENTS IN ILLINOIS.

Seven Days' Doings in the Prairie State—Telegrams Received from Various Points.

Jehu Baker Blind.

Belleville: Congressman Jehu Baker is blind. After an active career covering half a century, he must travel the remnant of his road with sightless eyes. At his age—he is 76—the doctors say there is no hope of a restoration of sight. This calamity has not fallen suddenly. The congressman has been failing for some time. In fact, he has never quite recovered from his serious illness of four years ago. Now the world is utterly dark to him—he is stone blind—and he is utterly removed from public life. Congressman Baker has been for years the most picturesque figure in Illinois, as he has been almost the last of this section's most conspicuous public men. He dates from the time when the politicians of the state were giants, and he never was the weakest among them. Yet he ruled always by the force of intellect and personality rather than by manipulation of machinery. Jehu Baker is the only man who ever defeated William R. Morrison, so long congressman from the old eighteenth district, and more recently chairman of the interstate commerce commission. He whipped Colonel Morrison three times, and the last time, 1888, retired him from active political life at a time when the colonel was the leading democrat of Illinois and a likely possibility for presidential nomination. It is Mr. Baker's record that he never entered a political fight and lost so long as he retained a liking for the game. He was in congress three times prior to 1890. Two years ago he came from retirement again, said good-by to his old friends in the republican party, ran as the democratic-populist candidate and again demonstrated his hold on the people by defeating Congressman Murphy. He took the position that the democratic party today is in reality the republican party of 1860, with Bryan as its Lincoln. Mr. Baker was born in Kentucky in 1822. His father moved to Illinois in 1829—to Lebanon, where the farm then taken up is still known as "the old Baker place." He picked up what education he could in the country schools of St. Clair county, and later attended McKendree college in Lebanon, but did not graduate. The same institution afterward conferred upon him the degrees of M. A. and LL. D. He was admitted to the bar in 1846, and took up the practice of law in Belleville. He has lived here ever since. He was a keen student always, not only of the practice but of the history of politics. He demonstrated such aptness and skill in this branch of effort that the republicans made him their candidate for congress in 1864. Colonel Morrison was his opponent. Mr. Baker was easily elected. Two years later Colonel Morrison was nominated again by the democrats, and again Mr. Baker beat him. Then the latter retired from active participation in politics for ten years. President Hayes sent Mr. Baker to Venezuela as minister resident in 1878. President Garfield reappointed him. President Arthur left him there, and so did President Cleveland, until 1886. Then he returned to Belleville. Colonel Morrison had been king of the old eighteenth congressional district all the time Mr. Baker was in Venezuela. He was renominated for congress by the democrats in 1888. The tariff was the alleged issue of that year, and Colonel Morrison was such a conspicuous low tariff man that he was known from one end of the United States to the other as "Horizontal Bill." Mr. Baker was prevailed upon by the republicans to take another nomination against his old opponent. The campaign which followed is historic in this part of the world. Its like was never seen before or since. When the ballots were counted Mr. Baker was elected and Colonel Morrison never again became a candidate for an elective office. Morrison has since gone over to the republican party. Mr. Baker was renominated by the republicans in 1890, but against his will. He had, too, contracted opinions which were not in accord with the modern school of using money in politics. He refused to spend money on his campaign, and even refused to let others spend money for him. William S. Foreman of East St. Louis—"Swamp Fox" Foreman—defeated him under these circumstances, but his majority was less than 100. Foreman has followed Morrison into the republican party. Mr. Baker then went into retirement again, to reappear in 1896 as the victorious fusion nominee for congress against Congressman Murphy.

Canal Raises Property Value.

According to reports received at the Chicago city hall, the agitation for a canal to divert the flow of the Calumet into the sanitary canal has caused a sudden rise in the value of real estate in that territory. Real estate speculators besieged Commissioner of Public Works McGann for details of the proposed canal.

Peoria Was Not in It.

Peoria: That the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft aglee is pointedly illustrated by the experience of the city of Peoria in the matter of the biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. Word came by wire yesterday that Peoria was in it for one ballot only, the convention going to Des Moines in accordance with the recommendation made by the ladies' auxiliary of the order about the middle of last week. But prior to the convention there were two settled convictions here as to what would be done. One was that Peoria would get the convention. The other was that some one other than Frank P. Sargent would be elected grand master. The facts are that Peoria does not get the convention and that Frank Sargent is himself grand master again. It was felt, however, by those who were watching the course of events that when the ladies made their suggestion it was reasonable to expect its acceptance by the brotherhood. This conviction was intensified when the Peoria delegation returned. The truth is that the Peorians who went to Toronto to represent this city had difficulties to contend with. Peoria had opposition in unexpected quarters, Peorians themselves circulated the story that Peoria could not properly entertain the convention if it did come here, and with this handicap there could be no headway made. The convention goes to Des Moines despite the fact that the Milwaukee representatives made a most expensive canvass and the gathering of 1900 will be held in the state capital of Iowa. This means that in 1902 the convention will not be held anywhere near the central states, but will probably go to the Atlantic coast. In fact, Peoria may as well make up its mind now that the convention will not come here while the headquarters are located in the city.

Cook a Bone of Contention.

Springfield.—At the session of the board of equalization preliminary work was practically completed, and now the members are ready for the contests which always attend the adjustment of the assessment. The chief fight will be over the decrease of $17,000,000 in the Cook county assessment of this year over that of last. The word has been given out by the officeholders, and they are supposed to be in position to know that unless the assessment is greatly increased it will be hard to run the city and county governments on the revenues raised from the low assessment. The country members from southern Illinois and a few from the northern part of the state are ready to take advantage of the opportunity to scale down the assessments in their respective districts and put them on Cook county. The Chicago members to a unit favor leaving the assessment just where it is. Obendorff, McKnight, McKenna, McAnsh, Severin and Taylor are all willing to make no raise in Cook, and they are supported by Samuel M. Barnes of Fairbury and one or two others who are unwilling to announce their positions at present.

Saw the Sights.

Chicago.—The unusual spectacle of a minister of the gospel sitting in beer halls and absorbing the sights of midnight revelers in their gayest hours was revealed last night to the small coterie which accompanied Rev. J. Q. A. Henry on the rounds of the all-night down town saloons last night. Dr. Henry, after the meeting in the old Waverly theater in West Madison st., and a passing glance into a few saloons along that thoroughfare in which music and women are the drawing cards, sought the center of the city, and in a half hour visited four places popular with the mysteries of Clark street and neighboring avenues. In the party with Dr. Henry were two detectives, three newspaper men and L. E. Joseph and Charles Peters, appointed by the Young People's Christian Temperance Union, to accompany the reform leader.

They Will Vote.

Peoria women are expected to vote this fall in unusual numbers. The election authorities are already getting ready to accommodate them. Women may vote for four out of five candidates—superintendent of public instruction and three trustees of the state university—and for one county candidate, superintendent of schools. A special ballot will be prepared for them as usual, and special ballot boxes and booths will also be furnished. But women can not vote unless they register, any more than men can. Everybody who wishes to vote this fall must see that he or she is registered.

Mount Vernon, Ill.—The soldiers' reunion of the 20th congressional district began today for a three days' meeting.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY STORM.

Hurricane at Fernandina, Fla., Caused Loss of $500,000.

THREE DEATHS ARE REPORTED

Buildings in the City Are Wrecked—Tidal Wave at Brunswick, Ga., Inundates Practically Every Business House and Ware House in the City.

The most severe hurricane that Fernandina, Fla., has ever experienced caused loss estimated at $500,000. Three deaths are reported, a father and two children. The tide rose so high that it extended for four blocks up into the city and homes and buildings of all descriptions were flooded. Women and children were taken out of the houses on the river front in boats.

At Brunswick, Ga., a tidal wave was driven in from the sea and inundated for an average depth of five feet, practically every business house and warehouse in the city. Conservative estimates place the property loss at $500,000.

TRAIN HELD UP.

Negroes Imported to Work in Illinois Mines Are Sent Back.

A band of 150 strikers from the coal mines at Pana, Ill., armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers, laid in wait near Tower Hill for a special transporting negroes to work in the mines. When near the Shelby, Christian county, line, the train was flagged and held up by the strikers. They then compelled all the negroes to leave the train, and drilled them back to Tower Hill, where they were placed on a return train to Indiana.

DANIEL O. ESHBAUGH, LATE PRESIDENT NEW ENGLAND TRUST COMPANY.

Daniel O. Eshbaugh, the self-stain president of the embarrassed New England Loan and Trust company, was long known in New York financial circles. Nearly thirty years ago he began to dabble in western real estate, and some years ago acquired a great tract of land in the far west, hoping to become immensely rich by a rise in values. This land was what hurried on his ruin. The taxes were burdensome, the property unproductive and Drive Out Negro Miners.

One hundred and fifty coal miners from Pana, Ill., assembled at the fair grounds at Washington, Ind., with the home union miners and drove the negro miners from the town.

Artificial Lakes on Farms.

We have noticed in some parts of Illinois a number of small artificial lakes constructed in the pastures where the soil is suitable. Recently we saw not less than half a dozen of these on a single large farm. So far as we could see they supplied the only water available for the stock, and the latter not only drank the water but bathed in it. There was no outlet, and the supply was gathered mostly from the rains. The result of such conditions is that the water becomes stagnant and foul. Water weeds and water life multiply rapidly and the possibilities of disease are greatly increased. It would be better to build fewer artificial ponds and have them more sanitary in construction.

The desideratum is to produce a pond in which there will be a current of water. In such farms as we refer to it will be found impossible to produce such ponds without going outside of the natural resources of the pasture. In many townships there are no brooks that run throughout the year. The dependence in such cases must be placed in a wind-mill, and this is the reason why fewer and better ponds should be constructed. A wind-mill will not give much of a stream, it is true, but it will be enough to prevent the water from becoming entirely stagnant.

It will take some study to make the water run through the whole pond, but this can be accomplished by placing obstructions in the way of the current, continually deflecting it. Where there are low swales it will not require much of a lift to get the water to the top of the ground. This will increase the amount of water that can be pumped. If gravel and sand be near and plentiful, it might be advisable to use some of it for the bottom and sides, as that would probably have some influence on keeping down the growth of slime in the ponds. It would be also well to suggest that the hogs be not allowed to divide the possession of this pond with the other stock. The hogs seem to do more than any other animals to keep such places in an unwholesome state.

Preparing Ground for Tobacco.

There are many good people that do not like tobacco and think it should not be raised. Yet we are forced to confess that the growing of tobacco seems to be on the increase and to be coming more into prominence every year as an agricultural crop. The zone of its influence seems to be enlarging in an agricultural sense. Parts of the country that were formerly regarded as unfitted for the growing of this plant are coming into prominence as tobacco growing regions. The tobacco plant holds a unique place in our agriculture. We cannot look upon it either as a food or ornamental plant. In itself it is a poisonous weed. It was formerly thought that tobacco growing greatly exhausted the ground, but under proper methods this is believed now not to be the case.

Growers of tobacco say that the culture of the soil should begin a long time before the culture of the plant, to get the best results. The land should be thoroughly plowed and harrowed in the fall. Stable manure should be used in large quantities, and some follow the practice of cutting it on the ground before the plowing is done. Others put it on after the field is plowed and harrow it in. At least this should be done in the fall to give the manure time to decay, as the tobacco plant grows so rapidly that there is no time for manure to undergo chemical changes after the seed has sent out the shoot. It is advised to avoid the use of manures too heavily nitrogenous, and to use considerable potash. The ground should be well harrowed, and there are growers that assert that a tobacco field cannot be harrowed too much. After the plants are on the ground cultivation should be frequent and thorough.

Trick of German Stockmen.—The following paragraph is clipped from the London News: The enterprising German merchants have lately begun to run the proverbial carriage and six through the Contagious Disease Act and regulations of the agricultural department. Under the regulations based on that act, the prohibition of the importation of cattle from Germany is strictly enforced. A method of evading the requirements of the act has, however, been discovered, and is now in operation. The German merchants ship cattle on steamers, and send with them butchers, who kill the beasts during the passage and have the carcasses all dressed for market by the time the vessel arrives at the English port. This week a supply of fresh German meat thus prepared was landed in the Tees and at once sent off to the Manchester market.

It Hurts the Butter Business.—The bitterest foe of American buttermakers could not strike the business a harder blow than do the so-called creamery papers that advocate the use of preservatives in the manufacture of such butter as is intended for export, or in fact in any butter, no matter for what market it may be designed. It is the beginning of an era of adulteration, and this, in the end, no matter if legalized, will be ruinous to the traffic generally.—Elgin Dairy Report.
