Danielson-Heimerdinger.

Mr. George Heimerdinger of Cary, Ill., and Miss Ernestine Danielson were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, in Palatine, Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. J. C. Hoffmeister, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Church. The affair was a quiet one, only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties being present. After the ceremony an elegant luncheon was served.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. Charles Danielson of Palatine. She is an intelligent and pleasant young lady, who can count her friends by the score.

Mr. Heimerdinger is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Heimerdinger of Barrington. He is an energetic young man and has a large circle of friends in the business and social world. For several years he held a responsible position with Rabel Bros., Chicago, but resigned a few years ago to enter into the lumber and feed business with his brother at Cary.

On the newly married couple's return from their wedding trip in Wisconsin they will make their home at Cary.

The REVIEW joins with their many friends in wishing the happy couple a long, happy and prosperous life.

WM. MCCREDIE & CO.

Many old soldiers now feel the effects of the hard service they endured during the war. Mr. Geo. S. Anderson of Rossville, York county, Penn., who saw the hardest kind of service at the front, is now frequently troubled with rheumatism. "I had a severe attack lately," he says, "and procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It did so much good that I would like to know what you would charge me for one dozen bottles." Mr. Anderson wanted it both for his own use and to supply it to his friends and neighbors, as every family should have a bottle of it in their home, not only for rheumatism, but lame backs, sprains, swellings, cuts, bruises and burns, for which it is unequalled. For sale by A. S. Olms, Palatine and A. L. Waller, Barrington.

May Become Invaded by Catarrh—General Lewis' Case.
Pe-ru-na Drug Mfg. Co., Columbus, O.
 "Gentlemen—I have used Pe-ru-na for a short time and can cheerfully recommend it as being all you represent and wish every man who is suffering with catarrh could know of its great value. Should I at any future time have occasion to recommend a treatment of your kind, rest assured that yours will be the one.

 "Gratefully yours,
"JAMES LEWIS."
 Wherever the catarrh is, there is sure to be a waste of mucus. The mucus is as precious as blood. It is blood, in fact. It is blood plasma—blood—with the corpuscles removed. To stop this waste, you must stop this catarrh. A course of treatment with Pe-ru-na never fails to do this.

Send for free catarrh book. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Kind-Hearted Man with a Bag.
 A novel incident is reported in connection with a run of the North Cotswold hounds.
 While out near Broadway the hounds go to the line of a strong fox, and ultimately came upon a man who had placed Reynard in a bag he was carrying.
 The man refused to give the fox up, saying she was the mother of some young cubs in an adjacent wood; and he had bagged her to save her from the hounds so that the poor little cubs should not be left in the world motherless.—London Daily Mail.

Awkwardly Worded Sign.
 A sign hung in the partially depleted store of a New York funeral director who had moved further uptown caused many a broad smile among passers-by the other day. It read: "Have gone to a better place above: where a fine stock of coffins, caskets and so forth will be found, with all the latest designs in funeral furnishings."

What "Alabastine" is.
 Alabastine is a durable and natural coating for walls and ceilings. It is entirely different from all "kaissomine" preparations. Alabastine comes in white or twelve beautiful tints, and is ready for use by adding cold water. It is put up in dry powder form in five-pound packages; with full directions on every package. Alabastine is handsome, cleanly and permanent. It can be re-coated and retinted at slight expense. Paint dealers and druggists sell Alabastine and furnish card of tints.

WINNIPEGOSIS LETTER.
 From Dennis Twohey Who Went From Austin, Minn., March, 1898.

Winnipegosis, Man., Jan. 23, 1899.
 Benjamin Davies, Esq., Canadian Government Agent, St. Paul, Minn., Dear Sir:—I have great pleasure in writing you these few lines to let you know how I like my new location and how I have been getting along since I left Southern Minnesota. I like this country well, the climate agrees with me and my family at all seasons, and taken all around it is away ahead of Minnesota. I may say that we have not had one storm yet this winter. As regards the productives of the soil, I consider it beats Southern Minnesota. I am a practical farmer, but have never seen such vegetables in my life as I have seen raised here. As regards grain of all kinds, I have seen splendid yields, in fact any man who cannot get along here and make a good living cannot do it anywhere.
 We have abundance of wood for fuel, timber for building, and lots of hay. I have got good water on my place about 24 feet. I have a good class of neighbors around me, and have been well used by everybody. I have been able to get lots of work for myself and team at fair wages, whenever I wanted it, and I think any one else can do the same. I would not care to return to Minnesota. I am, sir, yours very truly,
(Signed) DENNIS TWOHEY.

PAINTS CHILD'S LIKENESS.
 Woman Artist Engaged on Portraits of Anglo-Indians.

Portrait painting may not be the highest form of art, according to the highest authority, but it certainly brings to the artist a more lucrative return than other branches of painting. Miss Aimee Osborne Moore, an English artist, having adopted America as her home, has not only gained a reputation, but has reaped a financial success by the painting of portraits of children and young girls. At the world's fair Miss Moore won the Columbian medal for a series of mechanical aids for the student. Miss Moore, who lived for many years in the East Indies, will summer in Europe and paint the portraits of a number of Anglo-Indian children. Despite her success, Miss Moore is a woman of delightful simplicity and possesses the quiet repose and charmingly modulated voice for which her people are noted.

A Test.
 The woman did not believe in the occult. "Now, I propose to test this clairvoyant," she was saying. "I shall send her a lock of my hair, as she directs, with some question which nobody but myself can possibly answer. Let me see, what can I ask her?" The man laughed hoarsely. "Ask her what is the real color of the hair!" he urged.
 —Detroit Journal.

Not His Idea of It.
 "Give your testimony without so much prompting," said the judge, losing patience with the reluctant witness. "Speak freely." "What! Don't I get no fee?" said the witness, becoming alarmed.

TICKETS MUST BE REDEEMED.
 Some Information About Theater Seats Not Generally Known.

From the New York Sun: The fact that a ticket bought for a theater and not used on the date stamped on it is always good for an admittance is not generally known, and probably theater managers would take very little trouble to spread knowledge of the fact; but it is nevertheless true. "A man who buys a reserved seat for a theater," said a theater treasurer who handles more tickets every season than any other in New York, "may not use it on the evening for which he bought it. Good for this date only" may be stamped on the pasteboard. That would seem to mean that the ticket could be used at no other time. Probably most of the public accepts that as proving the impossibility of making use of the ticket, and therefore few make any attempt to get the worth of their money when they were prevented by any cause from using the ticket on the date marked on it. But it could be presented at any time and would be good for an admission. Any theater manager would have to recognize the holder's right to enter the theater, although that would, of course, carry with it no right to the seat. It is that right which is limited by the printed date. For all other purposes the ticket is quite as good as if used on the date it bears."

Siberia Will Have an Exhibit.
 Siberia will be largely represented in Paris in 1900, the first time at any exposition. The new railway and the lands it has opened will be fully represented.

Admiral Dewey's report on the condition of the Oregon indicates that he is in very good shape himself.

HEALTH and beauty are the glories of perfect womanhood. Women who suffer constantly with weakness peculiar to their sex cannot retain their beauty. Preservation of pretty features and rounded form is a duty women owe to themselves. The mark of excessive monthly suffering is a familiar one in the faces of young American women.

Don't wait, young women, until your good looks are gone past recall. Consult Mrs. Pinkham at the out-start. Write to her at Lynn, Mass.

MISS EDNA ELLIS, Higginsport, Ohio, writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am a school teacher and had suffered untold agony during my menstrual periods for ten years. My nervous system was almost a wreck. I suffered with pain in my side and had almost every ill human flesh is heir to. I had taken treatment from a number of physicians who gave me no relief. In fact one eminent specialist said no medicine could help me. I must submit to an operation. At my mother's request, I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham stating my case in every particular and received a prompt reply. I followed the advice given me and now I suffer no more during menses. If anyone cares to know more about my case, I will cheerfully answer all letters."

MISS KATE COOK, 16 Addison St., Mt. Jackson, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am by occupation a school teacher, and for a long while suffered with painful menstruation and nervousness. I have received more benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than from all remedies that I have ever tried."

THE MARKS OF SUFFERING

Any Girl Can Tell

A physician who makes the test and is honest about it can tell you that, in many cases, the number of red corpuscles in the blood is doubled after a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

That this means good blood may not be entirely clear from the doctor's statement, but any girl who has tried the pills can tell you that it means red lips, bright eyes, good appetite, absence of headache, and that it transforms the pale and sallow girl into a maiden who glows with the beauty which perfect health alone can give.

Mothers whose daughters grow debilitated as they pass from girlhood into womanhood should not neglect the pill best adapted for this particular ill.

Frank R. Trout, of 103 Griswold Ave., Detroit, Mich., says: "At the age of fourteen we had to take our daughter from school on account of ill health. She weighed only 90 pounds, was pale and sallow and the doctors said she had anemia. Finally we gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When she had taken two boxes she was strong enough to leave her bed, and in less than six months was something like herself. To-day she is entirely cured, and is a big, strong, healthy girl, weighing 130 pounds, and has never had a sick day since."—Detroit Evening News.

The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in packages, the wrapper always bearing the full name. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50¢ per box.

Democracy and Culture.

The Rev. Henry Van Dyke the other day said, in an unusually fervid address on democracy, that class hatred, the arrogance of the newly rich, the stupid, blundering cruelties of those who grind the faces of the poor, arise when the faculty of imaginative sympathy has been smothered in the crass atmosphere of commercialism. Political manias and financial lunacies and social hydrophobias are the result of a popular craving for swift action without the trouble of steady thought. In other words, democracy has not enough patience, and the only thing that will secure it is culture. This was Matthew Arnold's doctrine, and it is sound enough as a generality to be accepted: only the word "culture" is not the best that could be found. Culture, unless it is broad, human, sympathetic and affectional, is no guarantee of happiness either to the individual or to the nation, and this is a point that cannot be too often dwelt upon by our people. Culture of itself is very apt to make smart men without making them good men—that is to say, the sort of thing that passes current for culture. The Christian church everywhere at this moment is struggling with a vague unrest that is simply culture, but it threatens to drive out spirituality, and the whole tendency of democratic education is to make successful men, not worthy men. This is the question that lies unanswered at the bottom of all our educational systems.

Militarism in France.

The opponents of militarism in this country are deeply interested in the future of the French republic, for it is in France that militarism is a continual threat. The army is the one cohesive unit of power. This is felt by statesmen and diplomats, and it was painfully shown in the cowardly treatment of the Dreyfus case. Nothing is wanting to make the army assert its power but the unexpected opportunity, and so thoroughly have the French people been nursed on "la gloire" that whenever a master hand seizes this power they will give him their thoughtless admiration at once. The best observers acknowledge that at bottom France is pining for a military leader. The nation has not succeeded in outgrowing the prestige of the first Napoleon. Whenever there is confusion the people cry, "Oh, for one hour of the Little Corporal!" The nation has sedulously kept alive the spirit of militarism without being able to produce a military genius. What would happen if another Little Corporal should arise is not hard to imagine if one takes history for a guide. With all the confusing elements at hand which nothing but a strong hand can allay, one can easily see looming up another consulate, another empire and perhaps another Waterloo.

Oratory, whether declining or not, is gravitating toward the comic papers. If orators did not ask questions of children in the audience, where would the comic papers be? Twelve out of fifteen jokes are furnished by the answers of the smart children, and yet orators go on asking questions and getting nonplused. The latest example from Troy is typical. A patriotic speaker in a church, discoursing on the beautiful symbolism of the flag, stumbled, in an inadvertent moment, on a question. Turning to the star spangled banner which hung upon the wall, he asked in stentorian tones, "Can any boy tell me what that starry emblem is hung there for?" Here comes the small boy's pit-fall. He rose up instantly and said, "If you please, sir, it's to hide the dirt on the wall." Fancy Daniel Webster or Henry Clay playing into the hands of the precocious urchin in this manner.

The Fifty-fifth congress passed into history with a song on its lips. It died methodically, temperately and in the best of humor with itself. It had spent all the money there was in sight, and it shook hands with itself and went home. Few other congresses have spent more money, and scarcely any were complained of for it less than this one. It left a good deal of work undone that ought to have been done, but on the whole it did very little that it should not have done.

Mr. William Archer, the distinguished critic, has been sent over here by a wealthy publisher in England to examine and report upon the American theaters. He comes at a good time. The American theater is in high feather. It never made so much money before, never covered so much space for the public eye and never drew into its enticing meshes so many people of all classes. What Mr. Archer thinks about it he has taken good care to keep until he gets back. He has been wined and dined in the customary way, but he has responded only with amiable generalities. This is in marked contrast to Mr. Hall Caine, who said so much when he was here that he has been trying to catch his breath ever since he got back.

Great preparations are making in London for the reappearance of Sir Henry Irving on the Lyceum stage in the new play of "Robespierre." M. Sardou has been invited to be present, and an effort was made to have Ibsen on hand. The event is to come off about the middle of the month and will be the signal for the opening of the London season. Later Sir Henry Irving expects to bring "Robespierre" to this country, and his advance agent is trying to get him to bring Sardou and Ibsen also.

WHAT TO READ.

Some Prominent Chicagoans Express Opinions.

"In these enlightened times every person who pretends to keep in touch with the progress of the world must read a first-class daily metropolitan newspaper. They who would select the best should be guided by the opinions of prominent newspaper-men who know. Read the following:

"There is no question as to the position occupied by The Chicago Tribune. Its enterprise has been too often demonstrated. As a local and American news-gathering institution it has no superior and few equals. In the matter of foreign cables, no other paper west of New York can be compared to it. These are the things, of course, that go to make a complete and great newspaper. "WASHINGTON HESING." Now Mayor of Chicago, formerly publisher Chicago Times.

"The Chicago Tribune is the best newspaper in the world. I consider its make up and facilities for gathering news unequalled, although I do not agree with it politically. "WASHINGTON HESING." The late Postmaster, Chicago, and publisher Staats Zeitung.

"The Chicago Tribune is beyond question the greatest newspaper in the West, if not in the country.

"MARTIN J. RUSSELL." Editor-in-Chief Chicago Chronicle. Your Postmaster or newsdealer will take your subscription for a trial period.

WAUCONDA.

Village election next Tuesday, April 18.

Mr. H. T. Fuller spent Sunday with relatives at McHenry.

G. M. Fitch and J. Valquet were Chicago visitors Monday.

G. W. Pratt and A. B. Johnson transacted business in the city Monday.

Charles McMahon of Chicago spent Sunday with friends in our village.

Claude Pratt went to the city Tuesday, where he has secured a position.

Miss Rosina Reynolds of McHenry visited with friends in our village Sunday.

Misses Buelah Dixon and Sadie Hill and little Robin Pratt are reported on the sick list.

Miss Lilah Golding accompanied Miss Lilah Ford on her trip to Barrington Tuesday.

Fred Grabbe and Miss Lillian Coudrey of Ivanhoe were in town Tuesday evening, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Powers and family of Barrington spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Powers.

Mrs. R. C. Kent and daughter and Miss Lilah Glynn of Chicago are spending the week with friends and relatives in our village, visiting.

A large crowd attended the school entertainment given by Miss Jennie Green and pupils at the Slocum's Lake school house, last Saturday evening. The program was most interesting, containing about twenty-five numbers, and all went off nicely, after which refreshments were served to all the assembled guests. A very pleasant time is reported.

Last Monday evening the fire department held their first meeting of the year, at which time they elected the following officers for the ensuing year: E. A. Golding, chief; J. W. Cook, captain engine company; J. P. Blanck, captain hose company; B. J. Barker, secretary; A. Baseley, treasurer. Following new members were voted upon and accepted: J. W. Gilbert, E. Ford, H. Cook, J. Forbes, L. Hubbard, W. Sensor and L. Harris.

Wednesday evening Miss Emma Welch entertained a number of her friends at her home, about two miles north of our village, it being the 18th anniversary of her birth. The evening was most enjoyably spent by playing various social games, vocal and instrumental music, interrupted only by refreshments which were served at 11:30. It was a jolly crowd that had assembled and it was long past the midnight hour before they dispersed, bidding their fair hostess good night and wishing her many returns of the happy event.

Another little fire created considerable excitement in our burg at about 12:20 Wednesday morning. John Blanck, while plodding along his homeward way, discovered a blaze in the rear of V. D. Kimball's yard and, thinking the barn was on fire, ran to the engine house and spread the alarm. Like a flash, the whole town was up and hardly had the peals of the fire bell died away before the firemen had responded and were on their way to the scene of the fire. When they arrived it proved to be a hog-pen and the blaze had been extinguished by the bucket brigade.

The League organ social held in the M. E. church parlors last Friday evening was a grand success. While the crowd was not as large as was expected for such a nice evening, they seemed to realize the object of the social and a nice little sum was netted, which will be used toward purchasing a new organ for the church. Supper was served from 5 till 8 o'clock and after the last table had been cleared the program was opened, consisting of vocal music, readings and recitations, closing with a debate: "Resolved, That an Organ in a Church is Detrimental to the Community." George C. Roberts and Miss Jennie Green conducted the affirmative, while M. W. Hughes and Orton Hubbard took charge of the negative. The debate was most interesting as well as amusing, and if we are a judge of music would say that, from the tone of Mr. Robert's voice, he would surely have made a singer had his voice received proper training in youth. The affirmative, however, proved too much for their opponents, and the question was decided in their favor.

Spring has at last arrived, the roads are fine, and our village sports are again exercising their two-wheeled machines which have lain dormant all the long winter months. The green grass is beginning to make its appearance, and if present good indications continue many farmers will have new feed for their stock before they get their last year's crop harvested.

LAKE ZURICH.

Last week Henry Feddeler sold his sorrel team at Wheeling for $200, which is a good price considering the prices that horses generally bring.

The commissioners of highways will meet at the town clerk's office next Tuesday, for the purpose of organizing the new board and for the transaction of any other business that may come before the meeting.

The commissioners of highways of the town of Ela are to be congratulated on the start they have made to give the residents of that township good roads and nearly every road in the township has been scraped and turpined so that the water will run off from the road, instead of lying in the center and making mud holes, as heretofore. We understand that the road from Lake Zurich to Barrington will be gravelled this year. This will be a great improvement and benefit to the residents of Ela, and more particularly to the people of Lake Zurich, and should be done at once. Let the good work go on.

have cast him with the working people, and he is chiefly known by his great work, written in collaboration with his wife, which treats of the history of trades unions. Mrs. Webb was the ward of the philosopher, Herbert Spencer, who, in his last book, acknowledges that the history of trades unionism written by Mr. and Mrs. Webb is the summum of the subject of which it treats.

One of the Most Remarkable Men of This Century—Sketch of His Life.

Condensed Report of Week's Proceedings in Both Houses.

The senate passed these bills: Authorizing cities to construct water-works on majority of popular vote; revising state game laws; Illinois National Guard appropriation bills, carrying $307,500; revising parole law, fixing term of imprisonment at one year; killed bill allowing state to appeal in criminal cases where new points of law are involved, and bill specifying mode of selecting conventions. The tax levy was sent to third reading; also house appropriation bill for payment of Illinois volunteers for time they assembled at home stations until mustered into government service; also omnibus appropriation bill, with slight amendments; also bill amending primary election law.

The house passed bills appropriating $193,000 for construction and equipment of trade school and other buildings of all state buildings; establishing state colony of epileptics; for state and county farmers' institutes. The house reconsidered adverse vote on legislator's salary bill, recalled it to second reading, reduced amount of annual salary from $1,500 to $1,000, and sent it to third reading; killed bill requiring teaching of agricultural science in all ungraded schools; sent to third reading committee Lincoln monument bill; also senate bill allowing government to permit societies to parade with arms; passed Goodnow bill requiring corporations to make annual report to secretary of state, with forfeiture of charter as penalty. Sent to third reading, bill regulating stock yards charges.

Saturday, April 8.

The house worked seven hours and advanced on the calendar a number of bills. The senate did not meet, as an adjournment was taken Saturday to 3:30 o'clock Monday evening.

In the house Mr. Rankin presented a bill giving women the right to vote on all license questions in town, city and village. The bill provides that special ballots and special boxes shall be provided in such election. A petition signed by 2,000 women accompanied the bill.

Monday, April 16.

The sine die adjournment resolution was made a special order for next day immediately after the reading of the journal.

The house and senate started on the homestretch. The house held two sessions, taking a recess for supper. It is Speaker Sherman's design to hereafter hold three sessions of the house daily.

In the evening the house passed the general tax-levy bill and killed the "mob violence" bill introduced by Mr. Martin of Cook county.

Among the bill advanced were appropriation bills for the general expenses of the state militia; to pay for new tents and uniforms and to improve Camp Lincoln and the Logan rifle range.

Tuesday, April 11.

The senate killed bill for the removal of the Fourth district Appellate Court from Mount Vernon to East St. Louis; passed bills extending privileges of soldiers' and sailors' home to veterans of the Spanish-American war; providing for equal division of school levies between building and educational purposes; prohibiting sale of liquor within mile of soldiers' home at Danville; increasing powers of state board of arbitration; appropriating $7,500 annually for beet sugar bounties; revising mining laws; prohibiting employes of sheriffs or courts to act as receivers or assessment commissioners; to regulate department stores in cities over 100,000; amending primary election law as applicable to counties outside of Cook.

The house passed bills for removal of Lincoln monument to within city limits of Springfield; national guard appropriation bills, carrying $422,500; appropriating $6,000 to pay rejected volunteers for time between order to begin drilling and their rejection; establishing western state normal school; authorizing use of J. Blocher voting machine at all elections. Killed bills appropriating $3,500 to erect Lincoln industrial institute in southern part of state; providing for election of member of state board of agriculture by popular vote. The house failed to pass bill increasing salaries of members of general assembly to $1,000 annually; passed bill to tax gross receipts of foreign insurance companies 5 per cent and of domestic companies 2½ per cent, exempting mutual and assessment plan companies. Passed bill to prohibit use of national flag for advertising purpose.

Stephen Johnson Field was born Nov. 4, 1816, at Haddam, Conn., the son of the Rev. David D. Field, D. D., and was a brother of Cyrus W. Field, David Dudley Field and the Rev. Henry Martin Field, each of whom won more than national fame, Cyrus W. by laying the first Atlantic cable, David Dudley as a lawyer, and Henry Martyn as a preacher and a writer on religious topics.

The life of Stephen J. Field has been since his youth that of a leader among men and filled with incidents characteristic of the era of development in the United States. As administrator of law and justice in California in the frontier days he had many thrilling experiences and since that time his life was twice attempted by persons whose interests had been affected adversely by his judicial decisions. When 3 years old his parents moved from Haddam, Conn., to Stockbridge, Mass., where he lived for ten years. In 1829 he accompanied his sister to Asia Minor, her husband, the Rev. Josiah Brewer, having been sent on an educational mission to the Greeks. He spent two and a half years in the east, most of the time in Smyrna or Athens, and while there acquired such knowledge of the modern Greek language that he was able to speak and write it with ease. At the age of 16 years he returned to America, and in 1833 entered Williams College, where he was graduated in 1837 with the highest honors of his class. He then entered the office of his brother, David Dudley Field, in New York, as a student of law, and in 1841 was made his brother's partner, remaining in that position for seven years.

In 1848 he traveled extensively in Europe, and upon his return went to California, where began the career which brought him into public notice. Since that time he had been one of the leading figures, and a unique one, among the men in public life in the United States.

In the Gold Fields.

Mr. Field sailed from New York for San Francisco, and arrived in the latter city on Dec. 28, 1849. The gold excitement on the coast was then at its height, and after a brief inspection of the field he decided to make his home at Marysville, Cal. He arrived there early in January and found the town without government. In the matter of law and justice and administration of civil affairs chaos reigned. He suggested that a local government be formed, and his advocacy of the plan led to the holding of a caucus. He announced himself as a candidate for the office of mayor or alcalde, as that officer was then termed. He had been in Marysville three days when the caucus was held, and his chief rival for the office of alcalde, who had been there six days, denounced him as a newcomer. He was elected, however, by a majority of nine votes. The Mexican law gave the alcalde but limited jurisdiction, but Alcalde Field exercised great powers. In his memoirs he says: "As a judicial officer I tried many cases, both civil and criminal, and I dictated the form of process suited to the exigency. In civil cases I always called a jury if the parties desired one, and in criminal cases, when the offense was of a high grade, I went through the form of calling a grand jury and having an indictment found, and in all cases I appointed an attorney to represent the people and also the accused when necessary."

In the first legislature elected in California after the state was admitted to the union Stephen J. Field was a member of the assembly or lower house, and was made a member of the committee on judiciary. Meantime he continued to practice law till 1857, when he was elected a judge of the state supreme court for a term of six years. In 1859 he became chief justice on that bench.

Before the expiration of his term as judge of the supreme court of California, in 1863, Judge Field was appointed by President Lincoln as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, an office from which he did not retire till he had made the record of holding a place on the nation's judicial tribunal longer than it had been held by any other incumbent. His nearest competitor for the honor was Chief Justice Marshall, the first chief justice of the United States Supreme court. When Associate Justice Field retired in 1897, after thirty-four years of service, he had held the office a few months longer than Chief Justice Marshall of earlier fame.

For his selection to a place on the bench of the United States Supreme court Judge Field had the support of the entire Pacific coast delegation in congress, consisting of four senators and four representatives, of whom five were Democrats and three Republicans, all union men. While on the supreme bench he was distinguished especially for a minute knowledge of laws relating to mines and mining and land claims, and held high rank also as a constitutional lawyer.

Attempts to Kill Field.

Like every man of strong convictions and independence of action in public life, Justice Field had enemies. About thirty-two years ago, soon after taking his place on the United States supreme bench, Justice Field received in the mail a package containing an infernal machine. The appearance of the parcel aroused suspicion, and he was prevented from opening it. Investigation proved the package contained a mechanism calculated to kill any person who might open it without taking unusual precautions.

On the inside of the lid of a box inclosed in the package was pasted Justice Field's decision which terminated litigation known in legal circles as the Pueblo case, and by which a large number of speculators and squatters who had occupied land in San Francisco had been deposed.

The second attempt to assassinate Justice Field was made in 1889, when Judge Terry, a man noted for the violence of his temper, and formerly the associate of Judge Field on the Supreme court bench of California, attempted to insult and then murder the then associate justice. Judge Terry had become incensed at one of the justice's decisions which was adverse to his own personal interests.

Sarah Althea Hill Terry had brought suit against ex-Senator Sharon, a California multimillionaire. Justice Field was on the bench. The outcome of the case was unfavorable to the plaintiff.

A few months later Terry and Field met by chance in a railway eating-house in Lathrop, Cal. Terry was accompanied by his wife, who had been the principal in the suit against Sharon, and whom he had married subsequent to the suit. With Field was Deputy United States Marshal Nagle, who had been detailed to protect the justice. The woman attempted to chastise the aged justice and Terry interfered. When it seemed that he was attempting to do violence to Justice Field Nagle, the deputy marshal, shot and killed Terry. Nagle was acquitted.

Some Famous Decisions.

During his term of more than a third of a century Mr. Field was concerned in some of the most important cases ever passed upon the Supreme court. Among the prominent decisions was the famous test oat case, in which he gave the casting vote and wrote the opinion of the court annulling the validity of the "ironclad" oath. His dissenting opinions in the confiscation cases, the legal tender cases, and in the New Orleans slaughter-house case attracted the widest attention.

He also was before the public eye in other ways than as a judge of the United States Supreme court. He was a member of the Hayes-Tilden Electoral commission in 1877, and voted with the Democratic minority. In 1880 he received sixty-five votes for the presidential nomination at the Cincinnati Democratic convention on the first ballot. In 1873 he was appointed by the governor of the state of California one of the commission to examine the code of laws of that state. In 1866 Williams College conferred upon him the degree of LL. D., and in 1869 the regents of the University of California made him a professor of law in that institution.

Justice Field's retirement from the Supreme court bench took place on Dec. 1, 1897, and Attorney General McKenna of California shortly afterwards was nominated to succeed him. He tendered his resignation in April, 1897, to take effect on Dec. 1. The president, in his letter of acceptance of the resignation, wrote:

"Upon your retirement both the bench and the country will sustain a great loss, but the high character and great ability of your work will live and long be remembered not only by your colleagues but by your grateful fellow-countrymen."
