Board of Education Meeting.

The board of education met at the school house Thursday evening.

President Plagge called the meeting to order at 8:30 o'clock and the following members answered to the clerk's roll call: A. W. Meyer, George Stiefenhofer, Silas Robertson and William Grunau. L. A. Powers, the newly elected member of the board, was duly installed.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The election of clerk was the first order of business. Mr. Grunau moved the election of clerk be by ballot; motion carried. On the first ballot L. A. Powers received 3 votes, A. W. Meyer 2, and William Grunau 1. On the second ballot Mr. Powers received 5 votes and Mr. Meyer 1.

A. W. Meyer moved that the clerk's salary be fixed at $25, the same as heretofore. Carried.

The president appointed the following standing committees: Finance, Robertson, Peck and Meyer. Text books, Peck, Grunau and Powers. Teachers, Robertson, Peck and Meyer. Buildings and grounds, Stiefenhofer, Grunau and Robertson.

Bills of M. T. Lamey, for printing, $3.44, and Richard Earith, for waste baskets, $1.40, were allowed and ordered paid.

The condition of the school fund is in excellent shape, showing a balance on hand of $3,892.92.

There has been considerable comment of late on the board paying the teachers by the month on the basis of 20 days to the month. The law provides that the school month shall be based on the calendar month, which would be 22 days. A letter was addressed to O. T. Bright, county superintendent of schools, a few days ago in regard to this matter, and we give extracts from his letter below:

"The school law is as you state, but it must be borne in mind that the calendar months of the school year are almost exactly equivalent to forty weeks of school, or 200 days, hence there is no clash on that score. So far as paying by the calendar month is concerned the school board may contract to pay as it chooses. In almost all the graded schools they pay so much for four weeks' work. They could pay so much per day if they chose. The fact that your salaries are divided into installments of ten per year cuts no figure in the case whatever. So far as the graded schools in Cook county are concerned I know of none of them with more than three teachers which is not run upon the basis of ten months of four weeks each per year."

In making new contracts with teachers this year the board will probably hire them by the year and make the payments the same as heretofore.

His Heart Failed Him.

When the midnight train pulled up at the platform a few nights ago a handsome, well-dressed and polished man alighted and quickly walked to the Warner House. He carried a small bundle in his arms. He rang up the clerk, who assigned him a room. At this juncture Mr. Haight, the clerk, discovered that the bundle the man carried contained an infant and, thinking it very strange that no woman accompanied the man, wished to be of as much assistance as possible, asked him if he should get some fresh milk for the baby, to which the stranger remarked that he had sufficient food in a bottle to last until the morning. When morning dawned the man was called. He ate breakfast and sauntered over to the depot, leaving the baby upstairs in bed. By this time it got noised about that there was a baby in the house, and it would have taken a dozen regiments of Rough Riders to prevent the woman folks from getting a "peak" of that kid." Right here we may add that the three or four ladies gave that child a thorough investigation, and discovered that it was not to exceed three days old and had never been washed or dressed. Then the mother instinct predominated in the little one's behalf. He was fed and fondled as only women know how. All this time the stranger was pacing up and down the walk, seemingly in an undecided frame of mind. He explained, when hard pressed, that the mother was in Beloit, Wis.

Here is the mystery: If the mother was in Beloit, what in the name of common sense and humanity was this man chasing around through Chicago and down here with a new-born babe, unwashed and undressed? He evidently intended to desert the little one in the bed at the hotel, but there were too many eyes on every move he made. Perhaps, while waiting for the train, his better nature got control of him and his heart warmed toward the helpless infant, so he wrapped it up in the soft shawl and took it on board the 9:24 o'clock train going north with him, and "thereby hangs a tale."

Whooping Cough.

I had a little boy who was nearly dead from an attack of whooping cough. My neighbors recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did not think that any medicine would help him, but after giving him a few doses of that remedy I noticed an improvement, and one bottle cured him entirely. It is the best cough medicine I ever had in the house.—J. L. Moore, South Burgettstown, Pa. For sale by A. S. Olms, Palatine, and A. L. Waller, Barrington.

Mrs. James Moorhouse has dismissed her suit for divorce in the Chicago courts.

Mrs. Curnick of Barrington and Miss Lettie Newton of Irving Park visited relatives here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keyes returned from Elgin Wednesday. Mrs. Keyes' sister, Mrs. Green, underwent an operation Monday, and will probably recover.

The Odd Fellows will celebrate the 80th anniversary of the organization of the lodge in America, and the 17th anniversary of Palatine lodge, in their hall next Wednesday evening.

A merry gathering of young people met at the home of Henry Thies, in Plum Grove, last week Wednesday evening, in honor of Miss Alice Hoke of Elgin and Miss Martha Brandis of Harmony. The evening was spent in a social way and a very pleasant time was had.

The school election was the hottest contest that Palatine has ever experienced. The women turned out in big numbers and swelled the vote to 233. The result was as follows: For president, C. D. Taylor, 221; for members of board of education, E. Beutler, sr., 169; Robert Mosser, 183; G. H. Arps, 88.

The village election passed off quietly last Tuesday, there being but one ticket in the field. The following vote was cast, a number of ballots being thrown out: Ballots cast, 169; for president, A. S. Olms, 138; H. C. Battermann, 11. For trustees: R. M. Putnam, 144; H. J. Stroker, 143; J. G. Horstmann, 128; W. L. Hicks, 5; H. W. Meyer, 6. For clerk: A. G. Smith, 145; J. H. O. Engelking, 6.

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS.

MINOR HAPPENINGS OF PAST SEVEN DAYS.

Error May Defeat It—Governor Says He May Have to Veto the Bill Appropriating $250,000 to Pay Guardsmen—Wheat Condition.

Springfield, Ill.—April 17.—Governor Tanner is in a pickle over the appropriation bill for paying national guardsmen at the national guard rate of $2 a day for the time which elapsed between the day they were called out for the Spanish war and the day they were mustered into Uncle Sam's service. The original bill included this extra time pay for all volunteers whether they were national guardsmen or not. This was afterward amended to restrict the appropriation to national guardsmen alone, on the ground that they only had a claim on the state through having been in the service when called for duty. It is certain that the senate adopted this amendment. Through some error the bill as engrossed and laid before the governor is the original bill without the amendment. The governor has sent for the chairmen of the military affairs and appropriations committees in both houses—Representatives Rankin and Curtis and Senators Gilchrist and Chapman. He says that if they cannot put their heads together and have the bill fixed up as it should be, the only course open to him will be to veto the bill. The total appropriation is $250,000. National guardsmen all over the state have been waiting for the passage and approval of this bill. It means an average of about $30 to the privates, and a good many of them need the money.

Wheat Condition Poor.

Chicago grain and commission firms are watching with keen interest the effect of the weather just now on the agricultural conditions throughout the state. The farmers, they say, have an adage which they bank on extensively, to this effect: "A dry April, a wet May, and a hot June are good for the wheat." In other words, that such conditions result in a big and sturdy crop. The rainfall thus far this month has been exceptionally light, the greatest being slightly over half an inch in northwest counties, and sunshine has been ample. Nevertheless, farmers visiting Chicago the past few days announce the poor condition of wheat in all except the southern district, and there late-sown grain is considerably damaged; rye is in better condition. Clover over the north half of the state is badly winter-killed; other grasses are alive and now show a rapid growth, but not yet sufficient for pasturage, even in the southern district. Oats seedlings made rapid progress and much of the crop is now in the ground; also potato planting and gardening, except in the northern district. Some plowing is being done, but mostly clearing, stalk cutting, burning and preparatory work. Apples, cherries, plums and early pears are blooming in the southern district and buds are swelling throughout the central; leaves are slowly appearing on trees and shrubs.

Will Make Its Own Power.

Ottawa, Ill.—The owners of the Fox River Electric Light company, which was refused a franchise recently by the city council because it took its power from Dayton and thereby injured water power supplied in this city from the Dayton dam, has now decided to build a dam for itself three miles above Dayton on the Fox river. The company intends to spend $100,000 and will develop from 3,000 to 5,000 horse power, which will be transmitted to Ottawa by electricity. The company intends to furnish both light and power and means to have everything ready by fall.

Big Reception at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ill.—General John C. Black of Chicago, commander of the Illinois G. A. R., and Mrs. Carrie T. Alexander, president of the W. R. C. of the state, arrived here, and are to be given a reception this evening by the Ottawa post and corps. The reception will be held in the Congregational church parlors and will be attended by many of Ottawa's people outside of the members of the organizations giving it. Besides General Black and Mrs. Alexander, a number of other prominent members of the two societies are expected to be present.

Field Agent for This State.

New York—The American Bible society has appointed Rev. William R. Henderson as its field agent for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Mr. Henderson is a native of Indiana, graduated from Princeton college in 1867 and from McCormick Theological seminary, Chicago, in 1876. He began life as a lawyer, but left the practice of his profession in Indiana to enter the ministry.

HIS OLD YELLOW ALMANAC.

I left the farm when mother died, and changed my piece of dwellin' To daughter Bessie's stylish house, right in the city street, And there was them, before I came, that sort of scared me tain' How I would find the town-folks' ways so difficult to meet. They said I'd have no comfort in the rustlin', new-up throng, And I'd have to wear stiff collars every week-day right along.

I find I take to city ways just like a duck to water. I like the racket and the noise, and never tire of shows; And there's no end of comfort in the mansion of my daughter, And everything is right at hand, and money freely flows; And hired help is all about, just listenin' for my call, But I miss the yellow almanac from off my kitchen wall.

The house is full of calendars from attic to the cellar; They're painted in all colors, and are fancy-like to see. But just in this particular I'm not a modern feller, And the yellow-covered almanac is good enough for me; I'm used to it, I've seen it round from boyhood to old age, And I rather like the jokin' at the bottom of each page.

I like the way the "S" stood out to show the week's beginning (In these new-fangled calendars the days seemed sort of mixed), And the man upon the cover, though he was n't exactly winnin' With lungs and liver all exposed, still showing how we are fixed; And the letters, credentials that was writ to Mr. Ayer, I've often, on a rainy day, found readin' very fair.

I tried to find one recently; there wa'n't one in the city. They coted out great calendars in every sort of style; I looked at 'em in cold disdain, and answered 'em in pity: "I'd rather have my almanac than all that costly pile." And, though I take to city life, I'm lonesome, after all, For that old yellow almanac upon my kitchen wall.

ONE reason Mrs. Pinkham's treatment helps women so promptly is that they have confidence in her. Through some of the many thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's friends an ailing woman will be led to write to Mrs. Pinkham at her home in Lynn, Mass., and will tell her symptoms. The reply, made without charge of any kind, will bear such evidence of knowledge of the trouble that belief in her advice at once inspires hope.

This of itself is a great help. Then the knowledge that women only see the letters asking for advice and women only assist Mrs. Pinkham in replying makes it easy to be explicit about the little things that define the disease.

MRS. ELIZA THOMAS, of 634 Pine St., Easton, Pa., writes:

CONFIDENCE HELPS TO CURE

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I doctored with two of the best doctors in the city for two years and had no relief until I began the use of your remedies. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I suffered something terrible, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief. To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain. I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sanative Wash and cannot thank you enough for the good it did me."

MRS. M. STODDARD, Box 268, Springfield, Minn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For about four years I was a great sufferer from female troubles. I had backache all of the time, no appetite, pains in stomach, fainting spells, was weak and my system was completely run down. I also had falling of womb so bad that I could scarcely walk across the floor. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound and one box of Lozengers, can say I am cured."

Columbia BEVEL-GEAR CHAINLESS BICYCLE

The fact that the Chainless wheel girl is helping the chain wheel girl up the hill does not mean that chain wheels are of no use. We make chain wheels ourselves and can assure you that they give you excellent service. What the picture shows is that the Chainless is the better hill-climber. Why is this? Simply because the bevel-gearing cannot be cramped or twisted under the extra strain. This same uniformity of action makes the Chainless an exceptionally easy running machine under all conditions of riding.

THE CUTTING KIND

The Deering Ideal Mower is the best modern representation of a grass cutting machine that will cut. The light draft of the Deering Ideal Mower is due to the fact that the Deering roller bearings have practically annihilated friction. The Deering Ideal Mower runs almost noiselessly and has no lost motion. The Deering Ideal Mower is quick acting and positive. Every ounce of horse power is saved. The knife starts with the wheels. No backing up to "get a start." The Deering Ideal Mower has an adjustable cutter bar that is always in line; the hand levers and foot lift are handy and quick-acting. The unsatisfactory mowers cost less money than the Deering Ideal, but the Deering Ideals are the cutting kind.

Mr. Editor:—For the good of suffering humanity, and particularly those suffering from that most dreadful disease, rheumatism, we desire to inform your readers that the only specific in the world today for this disease is our "Five Drops" remedy. "Five Drops" is the name, and "Five Drops" is the dose. It is not only acknowledged a specific by the many thousands who have been cured by its use, but it is now acknowledged to be such by the medical profession, many of whom use this remedy in their daily practice, and they state to us that it is the only thing with which they can cure the rheumatism. This remedy not only positively cures this disease, but it never has failed and it never can fail to cure any and all of the following diseases: Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Creeping Numbness, Nervousness, Asthma, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, La Grippe, and diseases of the liver and kidneys. "Five Drops" is not a patent medicine, but was perfected only after vast research in scientific fields, and at great expense. It never can be fully appreciated until it is used. Many of its cures border on the miraculous. Words are almost inadequate to express the great benefit which suffering humanity is daily deriving from the use of this most wonderful remedy. Its merits and medicinal properties are as far above the other remedies offered for sale as the mountain is above the valley. It is worth its weight in gold to anyone suffering from any of the diseases for which it is recommended. The price is low and within the reach of all, $1 per bottle for full size (300 doses), prepaid by mail or express, or six bottles for $5. Anyone desiring to test its efficacy without ordering a full size bottle, can have a 25 cent sample bottle sent by mail until May 10, by sending 10 cents to the Swanson Rheumatic Care Company, 167 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

PLEASED WITH ALBERTA.

An Excellent Report from Wisconsin and Minnesota Delegates.

The opinion of five delegates from Minnesota and Wisconsin, published by the Edmonton Bulletin over their names is very complimentary to Northern Alberta. The report says:

"We must say with all sincerity that driving all over the country for six days, we have not found one settler who was not more than pleased with the country and its productions, and will not return to the land he left. We have seen people here from all parts of the states and all doing well. We met a Dakota farmer by the name of McLean, who has informed us that he has raised more grain here in three years than he did in thirteen where he came from, on half as much ground. We have seen a number of others, both men and women, and all speak in the same strain about Alberta. They all look well and contented; even the children are happy. In our drive over the country, in passing the countless school houses we could only see happiness in the faces of the little ones. We noticed them all well dressed equal if not better than the same class of children in the state of Minnesota. The wheat that is raised here is just beautiful, the kernel full and plump and may well be termed golden grain, yielding 30 to 55 bushels to the acre. This statement is not from one farmer but from hundreds who tell the same tale. Oats yield from 70 to 100 bushels to the acre, barley from 40 to 60 bushels and potatoes from 300 to 400 bushels to the acre. We have taken particular notice of the climate in regard to the difference between this country and our own. When we left Ada, Minnesota, we were in the midst of a real Dakota blizzard. When we arrived at Edmonton we found the people on the streets still wearing summer clothing, no mittens on their hands and far less use for them. The country is simply more than we ever dreamed of. The printed matter sent out by the government does not half tell of the grand country in Alberta, open for millions of people to make beautiful homes for themselves. Too much can not be said in praise. It is all and more than the greatest eulogist ever thought of giving to the public. We saw cattle and horses in herds grazing on the prairie like in summer time all sleek and fat. We were informed by several farmers that most of the stock run out all winter. We also found the market extra good here for beef and pork. Hogs fetch 4½ cents live weight. A three-year-old steer will bring from $40 to $45 right from the prairie. Coal and wood are here in abundance. Coal is sold in the town of Edmonton for $2 per ton and farmers can secure coal at the mines themselves for 75 cents per load. Before closing we say to you one and all, come to Alberta, where there are homes for millions and a promise for something to lay by for an old age. We are well satisfied with this country and as evidence have each bought a half section of C. P. R. land in township 35, range 21 west of the 4th initial meridian, and will return next spring to reside. Hoping this may be of some benefit to the overburdened farmers of the United States."

The Mystery of the Kennedy Murder Case.

The trial of Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy for the murder of Emeline C. Reynolds in the Grand hotel, New York, on Aug. 15, 1898, was brief, and the doctor was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to die. The case is a very remarkable one because, while the evidence left no doubt whatever of the man's guilt, it threw not a gleam of light upon his motive or explained in any way the astounding and unnecessary brutality of the killing. Not a living person can form a plausible explanation of the doctor's act, even while conceding that he did the crime, unless upon the theory that he acted under the impulse of a second consciousness of which he had no knowledge afterward. The man is a dentist, educated, intelligent and passing among his fellows as a gentleman. His knowledge of anaesthetics and drugs would have enabled him to execute his purpose easily and simply and without violence; but he armed himself with a piece of lead pipe, stiffened by an iron bar, and with this barbarous weapon concealed on his person he went to the hotel where the young lady was to meet him and crushed her head with it. That weapon convicted him. He might have known that it would, but he didn't. He deliberately conceived the plan of using it upon a rather frail woman, whom he could have strangled with his fingers. The difficulty of believing that a sane man would adopt such a method is very great. The only possible explanation left to us, in the face of the evidence, is that in certain possessions of the mind, by an evil purpose the reasoning faculty is suspended and man acts with the sullen stupidity of a brute.

A great deal of the feeling manifested in Germany, England and America with respect to each other is pure coquetry. Some of the absurd remarks made by the extreme German press about this country wear upon their face the spitefulness of mere jealousy or the captiousness of a young lady who is not attracting as much attention as she thinks she deserves. The meeting of Germans in Chicago to declare vehemently against an alliance of the United States with England betrays a good deal of this feeling. There is really no good reason why a closer bond of friendship between Great Britain and the United States should not be of advantage to Germany. The ultimate interests sought to be conserved by an unwarlike and commercial understanding apply almost equally to all three nations, whose noblest purposes are in the main identical so far as civilization is concerned. The mere fact that the Germans in any large numbers have their emotions stirred by the flirting of England with America is only an evidence that they are entitled to do a little of it themselves. On the whole, this looks like a little innocent family brawl, every member of which family will come promptly up shoulder to shoulder if an outsider dares to take a hand.

One need not wonder that the railroad question enters largely into public discussions when he learns that there are nearly a million men employed in the service of the roads in the United States. The exact figures are 900,000, and they represent 190,000 miles of railway. But that this aggregate represents any definite political purpose or interest is quite another question. It cannot be regarded as a political unit any more than the 6,000,000 Methodists in the United States can be counted on to hold the balance of power. Until the interests of all the roads are identical and all the men employed give up their convictions to their employers any calculation based upon the aggregate is wholly out of the question.

Admiral von Diederichs, who made himself so officious at Manila and from sheer lack of tact came so near bringing upon a collision with Admiral Dewey, has been softly let down by the German emperor. This is reported to indicate a desire on the part of the kaiser to please the Americans, especially as he has ordered Prince Henry, his own brother, to Admiral von Diederichs' place. It is a pity the emperor has not another brother to send to Samoa.

Matrimonial Display.

The spectacular side of marriage has grown to be a marked peculiarity of our times. A wedding, which of all things is supposed to be a sacred relation of private interests, has a singular tendency nowadays to resolve itself, so far as the public is concerned, into a lavish display of wealth and eccentricity. For some time the costly and beautiful presents of Miss Virginia Fair, who was to marry Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, were the theme of correspondents and interviewers and the delight of photographers. Special views of them were arranged and invitations sent out to come and look at them and estimate their value and write about them, and this let in all the gossip mongers and news manufacturers. The gifts were spread out on long tables, duly guarded, and included, among many costly specimens of ornamentation and household utensils, articles which appertained exclusively to the personal apparel of the bride. It is idle to speculate upon what elements of human nature such an exhibition appeals to, but one cannot help asking in what way such a parade adds to the serious and solemn step which marriage entails. One does not object to the ceremonies in church with music and flowers and bridesmaids, for it is in the church that the event is consummated as a sacrament, and the event ought to be a happy and hopeful one. But to make a bazaar of the friendly tokens and gifts and get up schedules of their intrinsic value seems, even when viewed most charitably, to be singularly at variance with the old-fashioned reticence and dignity with which our daughters were married. Just now the whole world of gossips in England is chattering over the preparations for the marriage of Lady Peggy Primrose and Lord Creine. There is really not much to talk about except that the affair is to be in Westminster abbey and the Prince of Wales is to be present and there is going to be an extraordinary theatrical show of a hundred pages and as many maidens in white. There will be a crash. The police will have to keep order with their truncheons among the shopkeepers who will mob the doors, and there will be columns of graphic description. After all this, it is to be hoped that the bride and bridegroom will go away into that private life for which all this has been an unseemly preparation.

The United States postoffice department will sooner or later have to adopt some such system as that which the navy department has established in naming its war vessels. Every new namelet that is planted overnight has the right to select its own postoffice name, and the crop of Deweys, Roosevelts and Bryans is looming up. There are already three Manilas in Montana, Oregon and Nebraska, one Iloilo in California and a Schley in Arizona. But this is not the worst. Arizona also reports an Ibsen and Dakota a Kipling. To follow the navy department plan would simplify matters. Thus, for example, every town with 100 inhabitants should take its name from the latest novel; every town with 200 inhabitants might select its name from the war reports; if it has 300 inhabitants, it should be confined to the popular playwrights, and when it reaches 500 it might be entitled to select a popular politician. Of course, when it reaches the thousands it would naturally fall back upon something classic and nice, like Rome or Florence or Troy.

The vexed but pressing question of the municipal control of railroads is being focused by the action of the city of Detroit, which proposes to buy all the lines of street railroads that run in that metropolis, and by the proposed tunneling of New York city for an underground road. In both cases a very strong public sentiment has been developed that the valuable railroad franchises should be held by the people and in some measure controlled by them in their own interests. As the New York project is of enormous import to that city, it will naturally attract the most attention in this test question. The franchise of this projected road is estimated to be worth $100,000,000, and beyond all doubt, considered simply as an engineering feat, it will affect the comfort and the prosperity of New York more than any improvement that has yet been undertaken there.

Deep investigations into the ancestry of Rudyard Kipling indicate that his forefathers were Wesleyan Methodists. It is notable that more able men are interested in finding out where Rudyard Kipling came from than where he is going.

WHAT TO READ.

Some Prominent Chicagoans Express Opinions.

In these enlightened times every person who pretends to keep in touch with the progress of the world must read a first-class daily metropolitan newspaper. They who would select the best should be guided by the opinions of prominent newspaper-men who know. Read the following:

"There is no question as to the position occupied by The Chicago Tribune. Its enterprise has been too often demonstrated. As a local and American news-gathering institution it has no superior and few equals. In the matter of foreign cables, no other paper west of New York can be compared to it. These are the things, of course, that go to make a complete and great newspaper. CARTER H. HARRISON, Mayor of Chicago, formerly publisher Chicago Times.

"The Chicago Tribune is the best newspaper in the world. I consider its make up and facilities for gathering news unequalled, although I do not agree with it politically. The late Postmaster, Chicago, and publisher Staats Zeitung.

"The Chicago Tribune is beyond question the greatest newspaper in the West, if not in the country."

"MARTIN J. RUSSELL," Editor-in-Chief Chicago Chronicle. Your Postmaster or newsdealer will take your subscription for a trial period.

Many old soldiers now feel the effects of the hard service they endured during the war. Mr. Geo. S. Anderson of Rossville, York county, Penn., who saw the hardest kind of service at the front, is now frequently troubled with rheumatism. "I had a severe attack lately," he says, "and procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It did so much good that I would like to know what you would charge me for one dozen bottles." Mr. Anderson wanted it both for his own use and to supply it to his friends and neighbors, as every family should have a bottle of it in their home, not only for rheumatism, but lame backs, sprains, swellings, cuts, bruises and burns, for which it is unequalled. For sale by A. S. Oims, Palatine and A. L. Waller, Barrington.

—OR—
The Flying Dutchman.

—BY CAPTAIN MARRYAT.

"There are twenty men on deck to tell the story," replied the captain, "and the old Catholic priest, to boot, for he stood by me the whole time I was on deck. The men said that some accident would happen; and in the morning watch, on sounding the well, we found four feet of water. We took to the pumps, but it gained upon us, and we went down, as I have told you. The mate says that the vessel is well known—it is called the Flying Dutchman."

Philip made no remarks at the time, but he was much pleased at what he had heard. "If," thought he, "the Phantom Ship of my poor father appears to others as well as to me, and they are sufferers, my being on board can make no difference. I do but take my chance of falling in with her, and do not risk the lives of those who sail in the same vessel with me. Now my mind is relieved, and I can prosecute my search with a quiet conscience."

The next day Philip took an opportunity of making the acquaintance of the Catholic priest, who spoke Dutch and other languages as well as he did Portuguese. He was a venerable old man, apparently about sixty years of age, with a white flowing beard, mild in his demeanor, and very pleasant in his conversation.

When Philip kept his watch that night, the old man walked with him, and it was then, after a long conversation, that Philip confided to him that he was of the Catholic persuasion.

"Indeed, my son, that is unusual in a Hollander."

"It is so," replied Philip; "nor is it known on board—not that I am ashamed of my religion, but I wish to avoid discussion."

"You are prudent, my son. Alas! if the reformed religion produces no better fruit than what I have witnessed in the East, it is little better than idolatry."

"Tell me, father," said Philip—"they talk of a mysterious vision—of a ship not manned by mortal men. Did you see it?"

"I saw what others saw," replied the priest; "and certainly, as far as my senses would enable me to judge, the appearance was most unusual—I may say supernatural; but I had heard of this Phantom Ship before, and moreover that its appearance was the precursor of disaster."

The Batavia waited a few days at St. Helena, and then continued her voyage. In six weeks Philip again found himself at anchor in the Zuyder Zee, and having the captain's permission, he immediately set off for his own home, taking with him the old Portuguese priest Mathias, with whom he had formed a great intimacy, and to whom he had offered his protection for the time he might wish to remain in the Low Countries.

Again he was united to his dear Amine.

CHAPTER XIII.

About three months later Amine and Philip were seated upon the mossy bank which we have mentioned, and which had become their favorite resort. Father Mathias had contracted a great intimacy with Father Seysen, and the two priests were almost as inseparable as were Philip and Amine. Having determined to wait a summons previous to Philip's again entering upon his strange and fearful task, and, happy in the possession of each other, the subject was seldom revived. Philip, who had, on his return, expressed his wish to the directors of the company for immediate employment, had, since that period, taken no further steps, nor had any communication with Amsterdam.

All at once Philip felt something touch his shoulder, and a sudden chill ran through his frame. In a moment his ideas reverted to the probable cause; he turned round his head, and, to his amazement, beheld the (supposed to be drowned) pilot of the Ter Schilling, the one-eyed Schriften, who stood behind him with a letter in his hand. The sudden appearance of this malignant wretch induced Philip to exclaim:

"Merciful Heavens! is it possible?" Amine, who had turned her head round at the exclamation of Philip, covered up her face, and burst into tears. It was not fear that caused this unusual emotion on her part, but the conviction that her husband was never to be at rest but in the grave.

"Philip Vanderdecken," said Schriften, "he! he! I've a letter for you; it is from the company."

"I thought," said he, "that you were drowned when the ship was wrecked in False Bay. How did you escape?"

"How did I escape?" replied Schriften. "Allow me to ask how did you escape?"

"I was thrown up by the waves," replied Philip; "but—"

"But," interrupted Schriften, "he! he! the waves ought not to have thrown me up."

"And why not, pray? I did not say that."

"No! but I presume you wish it had been so; but, on the contrary, I escaped in the same way that you did—I was thrown up by the waves; he! he! but I can't wait here. I have done my bidding."

"Stop," replied Philip; "answer me one question. Do you sail in the same vessel with me this time?"

"I'd rather be excused," replied Schriften; "I am not looking for the Phantom Ship, Mynheer Vanderdecken;" and with this reply, the little man turned round and went away at a rapid pace.

"Is not this a summons, Amine?" said Philip, after a pause, still holding the letter in his hand, with the seal unbroken.

"I will not deny it, dearest Philip. It is most surely so; the hateful messenger appears to have risen from the grave that he might deliver it. Forgive me, Philip; but I was taken by surprise. I will not again annoy you with a woman's weakness."

"My poor Amine," replied Philip, mournfully. "Alas! why did I not perform my pilgrimage alone? It was selfish of me to link you with so much wretchedness, and join you with me in bearing the fardel of never-ending anxiety and suspense."

"And who should bear it with you, my dearest Philip, if it is not the wife of your bosom? You little know my heart if you think I shrink from the duty. No, Philip, it is a pleasure, even in its most acute pangs; for I consider that I am, by partaking with, relieving you of a portion of your sorrow, and I feel proud that I am the wife of one who has been selected to be so peculiarly tried. But, dearest, no more of this. You must read the letter."

Philip did not answer. He broke the seal, and found that the letter intimated to him that he was appointed as first mate to the Vrow Katerina, a vessel which sailed with the next fleet; and requesting he would join as quickly as possible, as she would soon be ready to receive her cargo. The letter, which was from the secretary, further informed him that, after this voyage, he might be certain of having the command of a vessel as captain, upon conditions which would be explained when he called upon the board.

"I thought, Philip, that you had requested the command of a vessel for this voyage," observed Amine, mournfully.

"I did," replied Philip, "but not having followed up my application, it appears not to have been attended to. It has been my own fault."

"And now it is too late."

"Yes, dearest, most assuredly so; but it matters not; I would as willingly, perhaps rather, sail this voyage as first mate."

"Philip, I may as well speak now. That I am disappointed, I must confess; I fully expected that you would have had the command of a vessel, and you may remember that I exacted a promise from you on this very bank upon which we now sit. That promise I shall still exact, and I now tell you what I had intended to ask. It was, my dear Philip, permission to sail with you. With you I care for nothing. I can be happy under every privation or danger; but to be left alone for so long, brooding over my painful thoughts, devoured by suspense, impatient, restless and incapable of applying to any one thing—that, dear Philip, is the height of misery, and that is what I feel when you are absent. Recollect, I have your promise, Philip. As captain you have the means of receiving your wife on board. I am bitterly disappointed in being left this time; do, therefore, to a certain degree console me by promising that I shall sail with you next voyage, if Heaven permit your return."

"I promise it, Amine, since you are so earnest. I can refuse you nothing; but I have a foreboding that yours and my happiness will be wrecked forever. I am not a visionary, but it does appear to me that strangely mixed up as I am, at once with this world and the next, some little portion of futurity is opened to me. I have given my promise, Amine, but from it I would fain be released."

"And if ill do come, Philip, it is our destiny. Who can avert fate?"

"Amine, we are free agents, and to a certain extent are permitted to direct our own destinies."

"Ay, so would Father Seysen fain have made me believe; but what he said in support of his assertion was to me incomprehensible. And yet he said that it was part of the Catholic faith. It may be so—I am unable to understand many other points. I wish your faith were made more simple. As yet the good man—for good he really is—has only led me into doubt."

"Passing through doubt, you will arrive at conviction, Amine."

"Perhaps so," replied Amine; "but it appears to me that I am as yet but on the outset of my journey. But come, Philip, let us return. You must go to Amsterdam, and I will go with you. After your labors of the day, at least until you sail, your Amine's smiles must still enliven you. Is it not so?"

"Yes, dearest, I would have proposed it. I wonder much how Schriften could come here. I did not see his body, it is certain; but his escape is to me miraculous. Why did he not appear when saved? where could he have been? What think you, Amine?"

"What I have long thought, Philip. He is a ghoul with an evil eye, permitted for some cause to walk the earth in human form, and is certainly, in some way, connected with your strange destiny. If it requires anything to convince me of the truth of all that has passed, it is his appearance—the wretched Afrit! Oh, that I had my mother's powers—but I forget, it displeases you, Philip, that I ever talk of such things, and I am silent."

Philip replied not; and, absorbed in their own meditations, they walked back in silence to the cottage. Although Philip had made up his own mind, he immediately sent the Portuguese priest to summon Father Seysen, that he might communicate with them and take their opinion as to the summons he had received. Having entered into a fresh detail of the supposed death of Schriften, and his reappearance as a messenger, he then left the two priests to consult together, and went upstairs to Amine. It was more than two hours before Philip was called down, and Father Seysen appeared to be in a state of great perplexity.

CHAPTER XIV.

"My son," said he, "we are much perplexed. We had hoped that our ideas upon this strange communication were correct, and that, allowing all that you have obtained from your mother and have seen yourself to have been no deception, still that it was the work of the Evil One, and, if so, our prayers and masses would have destroyed this power. We advised you to wait another summons, and you have received it. The letter itself is of course nothing, but the reappearance of the bearer of the letter is the question to be considered. Tell me, Philip, what is your opinion on this point? It is possible he might have been saved—why not as well as yourself?"

"I acknowledged the possibility, father," replied Philip; "he may have been cast on shore and have wandered in another direction. It is possible, although anything but probable; but since you ask me my opinion, I must say candidly that I consider he is no earthly messenger; nay, I am sure of it. That he is mysteriously connected with my destiny is certain. But who he is and what he is, of course I cannot tell."

"Then, my son, we have come to the determination, in this instance, not to advise. You must act now upon your own responsibility and your own judgment. In what way soever you may decide, we shall not blame you. Our prayers shall be that Heaven may still have you in its holy keeping."

"My decision, holy father, is to obey the summons."

"Be it so, my son; something may occur which may assist to work out the mystery—a mystery which I acknowledge to be beyond my comprehension, and of too painful a nature for me to dwell upon."

Philip said no more, for he perceived that the priest was not at all inclined to converse. Father Mathias took this opportunity of thanking Philip for his hospitality and kindness, and stated his intention of returning to Lisbon by the first opportunity that might offer.

Hollister; treasurer, William Peters. Directors: John Dwoark, George Wagner, William Leonard, John Baumgarten, Charles Jahnke and Frank Donlea. An assessment of $1 was levied on the members for incidental expenses.

A rod and gun club has been organized at this place, composed of the following gentlemen: Charles Zorno, George Wagner, George Foreman, Lew Collen, Stephen Palmer, Henry Brasel and a couple of gentlemen from Chicago, whose names we did not learn. The club as yet has not been christened, but the members have erected a handsome and commodious club house on the bank of Fox river, about 6 miles northwest from here on land owned by George and Frank Kelsey. The location is a delightful one, picturesque and romantic. Two clear, cold, sparkling springs bubble forth pure aqua, which will doubtless be relished by the horses, and which the club will also use for making coffee. Mr. Zorno has built two boats already, and within a very short time all the details will be completed and a first-class club resort established.

The regular organized college quartette of the Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., will give a high grade entertainment at the M. E. church on Friday evening, April 28. The young men come recommended by Prof. R. L. Cummock of Evanston, and will give an excellent program in singing. One of the young men is a master elocutionist and will render several fine selections. Admission, adults, 20 cents; children, 10 cents.

Henry Zemke of Milwaukee and Miss Camille Ulitsch were married at the home of the bride's parents at Champaign, Ill., Monday. The groom is a young man of sterling qualities, being industrious and of good habits. The bride is a sister of A. T. Ulitsch of this place, and the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Ulitsch of Champaign. The bride is a refined lady with many excellent traits of character and a long list of friends. The newly married couple are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ulitsch, who reside on Elm street.

Eugene Don Murphy and Miss Hazel Rahn were married Wednesday evening in the new St. Paul's church, Orchard street and Kemper place, Chicago. The bride's uncle, Rev. E. Rahn, performed the ceremony. Mr. Murphy holds a responsible position with Reid, Mardock & Co., Chicago, and is well and favorably known. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rahn, and a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rahn of this place. All who know her speak of her in terms of praise. She has always borne the reputation of being a young lady of refined taste and high ideals, kind and sympathetic, and the possessor of a sweet disposition. She brings sunshine wherever she goes.

At about 2 o'clock one morning this week the clerk, Wm. Haight, at the Warner House was aroused. He went to the door and a stylishly dressed young man confronted him and asked for lodging. The house was crowded, every room being occupied. However, there was a single bed in a room where a man was sleeping in another bed. The s. d. young man objected to sleeping in a room with another man, saying he had "a couple of hundred" on his person and was afraid of being "touched," but finally took the bed. He also filed a decided protest against Mr. Haight appearing without a night robe, and signified his willingness to supply him one gratis. When daylight peeped in at the window he arose, carefully made his toilet and silently "slid down the back stair," neglecting to pay for his lodging. Moral—Clothes and gall do not always make the man.

Lambert Tasche closed a deal with J. E. Heise yesterday, in which he conveys to Mr. Heise his residence and two lots on Liberty street, also six acres of land just to the rear of the above described property. We understand that the consideration was $4,800, and that Mr. Heise expects to go into the chicken business on a large scale. Mr. Tasche will build a new residence on a lot which he owns at the corner of Williams and Washington streets.

Village Election.

At the village election last Tuesday, held at the city hall, a light vote was polled.

The caucus ticket was the only one printed on the ballot, and it looked as if all would pass off serenely and quiet, and little or no interest was taken in the selection of the custodians of our village.

Early in the morning of the election it was learned that Frank O. Willmarth, one of the nominees for village trustee, was to be knifed, and the name of William Grunau was to be substituted in his stead, by writing in the name on the ballot. Mr. Grunau made a splendid run, winning over his opponent by about 5 to 1.

The following is the result of the election:

For president, Henry Boehmer, 105.

Village clerk, Miles T. Lamey, 106.

For trustees, William Peters, 105; John Robertson, 102; William Grunau, 87; F. O. Willmarth, 17.

A few scattering votes were cast. George Searles and William Collen each received a complimentary vote for president of the village, as did also F. C. Meyer, John Collen, A. W. Landwer, J. E. Heise and H. A. Harnden for village trustee. 113 votes were cast, which does not represent one-half of the voters of the village.

Mr. Grunau has served on the board before and makes a good trustee and always has the welfare of the city at heart in all his decisions.

Bicycles! Bicycles! Bicycles!

It is a prominent fact that no bicycle made is a "higher grade" than the Crescent. They are sold year after year in all the principal towns and cities by the leading bicycle merchants. They are purchased and ridden by the best class of trade. These are strong proofs that the public is fully convinced and appreciate the true high-grade qualities.

One of the strongest recommendations of Crescent Bicycles is their regular equipment of the Dunlop Detachable Tires. They distinguish the Crescent from cheap bicycles, as they are the highest priced tires on the market, as well as the best. They are manufactured by the Crescent people under a license from the American Dunlop Tire company. Nothing but the finest materials enter into their construction. They have all the qualities necessary to satisfy the rider. They are durable and do not puncture easily. No tools are required to detach or remove from the rim; use only the hands. Call and see them, also the parts showing the material of the entire wheel. If quality and price are any inducements you will leave your order with us.

Crescent bicycles are fully guaranteed by the manufacturers as all parts, including tires, are made by them.

Remember we can save you money on Hardware and Harness as our present large stock was bought for cash before the rise in prices. We have the latest and best gasoline stoves on the market. Call and see it.
