Enemy Has Now But One Place of Retreat-Advance Column Under Command of Col. Summers Did the Work -Must Face Poisoned Arrows.

San Isidro, which has been looked upon as one of the most important towns occupied by the Philippine insurgents, has been captured by the Americans. The town was taken at 9 o'clock on the morning of May 16 by Gen. Lawton's advance column under Col. Summers. It-is considered a decisive blow against the insurrection. as the enemy will be compelled to retreat still farther into the mountains, and will find means of subsistence more difficult.

The Filipino junta at London says the mountains are almost inaccessible and are inhabited by savages who use poisoned arrows, and that it is absolutely impossible for the Americans to follow the insurgents there.

the steamer, at once reported to the owners.

The Folsom, Mitchell and Nelson were laden with coal for Lake Linden. They passed through the locks here at noon Friday and headed out into Lake Superior. The weather was not threatening at the time, but Friday night a severe northwest gale developed, and at noon Saturday it was blowing fifty miles an hour from the northwest and freezing hard. Capt. White headed the tow into the sea. when the gale first developed, and the Folsom steamed into the wind all the morning. Shortly after noon, however, the wind and sea became too heavy to face. The three boats were being coated with ice, and this, added to their coal, made them ride very low in the water. Seas broke aboard constantly, and the force of the gale was driving them toward the beach, despite the best efforts of the steamer's engines.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the beach at Grand Marais was but four miles under the lee of the boats, ana Capt. White determined to try the dangerous expedient of turning the tow in the sea and running before it for Whitefish Point. He selected a favorable time when there was a lull in the seas, and turned the steamer about. The Mitchell, which was second in the tow, finally rounded. The Nelson was then seen to turn toward the shore, and it became evident that the line had parted under the strain or had been cut. No signals of distress had been displayed from the Nelson up to this time, but then it became apparent that she was sinking. There was no chance of rendering any assistance, however. The crew of the Folsom had its hands full in taking care of its own craft and the Mitchell. In a few minutes the Nelson threw her stern into the air and dived straight for the bottom. She sank in 300 feet of water.

even in poor soils. There are a large number of species, some vining and some of a sturdy bushy habit. Lonicera fragrantissima blooms very early and is very fragrant. It retains its leaves nearly all winter. Lonicera tartarica produces white and pink flowers in the spring, and later during the summer yellow and red berries are formed, which are as attractive as the blooms.

Berberis Vulgaris also produces attractive flowers in the spring and scarlet fruit in the fall.

Spireas are excellent shrubs and make very good low screens, and also give a beautiful display of flowers. Spirea Thunbergli, Spirea Van Houttei and Spirea reversiana give a succession of blooms.

Deutzia gracilis and Deutzia crenata florapiena are very compact shrubs, with close spikes of very attractive flowers.

China Buying War Supplies.

China has ordered from manufacturers in several European countries war supplies to the value of 40,000,000 taels ($28,400,000).

FALLING OFF IN EXPORTS.

Treasury Figures Show Imports Have Slightly Increased.

The official report of the bureau of statistics shows exports of merchandise for April to have been $88,377,194; imports, $65,231,536; excess of exports over imports. $23,145,658. Exports for the first ten months of the fiscal year. $1,036,363,504; imports, $565,259,435; excess of exports over imports, $471,-044,069.

Imports and exports for April for three years compared as follows:

1897: 1898. 1899. Exports .... 77,648,786 99,314,816 88,377,194 Imports .... $101,322,406 $.5,946,410 $65,231,536 These figures show a recent falling off in exports and increase in imports. For ten months' period the record shows an increase of $54,059,663 in imports and a decrease of $11,143,332 in exports. The total volume of imports and exports for ten months is $1,601,-622, 939, which indicates a total for the whole fiscal year of $1,925,000,000, a figure somewhat less than last year.

Eager to Honor Dewey.

A sailor who has known Dewey for many years, says that the hero of Manila bay will veto many of the arrangements being made for his reception in this country. He reports Dewey as being opposed to all ostentatious display and says that he would rather live at the Army and Navy club than occupy an elaborate mansion such as is suggested by those arranging popular subscriptions. It is probable, however that the admiral's admirers will proceed upon the theory that he will be forced to accept the popular demonstration, and it is believed that a handsome fund sufficient to purchase or build a magnificent residence will be quickly raised.

Dewey's home coming by way of the Mediterranean is likely to give occasion for distinguished honors from the navies of Europe.

fore planting. This can be done at slight expense by using a box of soil. A still better method is to use two dinner plates. Place an inch of soil in the bottom of the first plate, moisten and cover with two thicknesses of any cloth, preferably old cloth that has been washed several times. Upon this place the seed to be tested and cover with another moist cloth. Then cover by turning the second plate bottom upwards over the first to prevent the soil from drying out, and set in a warm place.

Temperature for Seedlings .- It would be well to caution those who have sown seeds of annuals during the last few weeks that the seedlings must be kept cool. If they are subjected to the heat of the ordinary living room (70 degrees Fahrenheit) they will be drawn, weak and spindling, and will perhaps not do so well after being planted out as if the seed had been sown directly into the ground. Endeavor if possible to keep the seedlings in a temperature not higher than 60 degrees, with a night temperature of not above 50. If kept no warmer than this they will make a stocky, sturdy and healthy growth .-- Vioman's Home Companion.

The Question of Exporting Butter .-This export question is well worthy of serious consideration by buttermakers, and dealers, but combined action is necessary, as it would not be wise for a few individuals to assume all the risks of finding a market, and allow others to reap the benefits that might result from the unloading of the home market. It is easy to find people who say, "Oh yes, it would be a good thing if we could ship off a portion of our summer product, even at a low price," but they want the other fellows to do it and hold their own stocks for home customers .-- N. Y. Produce Review.

Deep Plowing Profitable.-Land that is plowed endures the drouths better than shallow plowed land, as there is a greater absorption of moisture. In other words, the deeper the soil is plowed the greater its capacity for holding water. To prevent loss of this moisture the top soil should be cultivated so as to simply loosen it, which prevents evaporation and at the same time keeps the weeds down. The water in the soil escapes at the surface, and this should be prevented by a mulch of loose dirt over the surface, which is effected by cultivation .-- Ex.

Monmouth After School.

Springfield, Ill., Special: A delegation from Monmouth, headed by Representative, George C: Rankin, and consisting of the mayor and postmaster of Monmouth, the sheriff of Warren county and a large number of influential private citizens of that county, is here today to see Gov. Tanner relative to having the Western Normal school, as provided for by the last general assembly, located at Monmouth.

Expect Strike Settlement.

Pana, Ill .- In anticipation of an early settlement of the strike and the turning down of the negroes, the latter have issued an ultimatum to the operators, in which they declare they will not leave the city. Operators and union mine officials are now in session, and it is conceded that a settlement must be reached before adjournment or the strike will continue indefinitely. Company C returned to Springfield.

Beans at 10 Cents a Dozen. Harrisburg, Ill .- Two sharpers are working the unsuspecting farmers in the extreme southern part of Saline county by selling to them kidney beans saturated with oil of cinnamon at 10 cents a dozen. They represent that a brother sent them a quantity from Manila, and that they are a prevention against moth.

Murder Ends a Quarrel.

Quincy, Ill .- Henry Milner, late of the Twenty-fourth United States infantry, shot and killed George Williams at a dance here early this morning. The murder was the culmination of a quarrel over a girl. Milner gave himself up.

The Latest Divorce Case.

Considerable social astonishment has been caused by the Sloane divorce case In New York, and the public at large is in much perplexity over it. Mr. Henry T. Sloane applied for and obtained an absolute divorce from his wife, naming Perry Belmont as corespondent. The divorce was obtained in New York in the morning, no defense having been made, and in the evening the divorced wife and Perry Belmont were married in Connecticut. As all the parties are of conspicuous social standing the neatness and dispatch of the whole business, to say nothing of the privacy of the court proceedings and the reticence of the lawyers, gave rise to a great deal of discussion. By the terms of the decree the divorced wife is prohibited from marrying again, but to this prohibition she paid not the slightest attention, merely dodging the decree by crossing the state line. The virtual admission thus made that she preferred another to her own husband and the prompt following of the marriage upon the divorce appear to have had no effect upon her social standing. Mrs. Perry Belmont is a society woman, and will probably remain one. This only brings squarely into view the remarkable changes that are taking place in what is called society. Fifty years ago this act would have been a most perilous one in society. The New York World, in commenting upon it, remarks, "No dramatic author, for instance, would begin his play with the preposterous supposition that a divorce suit brought by a husband in New York society on the only ground recognized ty the law of the state-that of infidelity to the marriage vow-would be the signal for a formal family dinner in high life in honor of the respondent to enable her to maintain her social standing." The Tribune calls attention to the criminal code which makes it possible for Mrs. Perry Belmont to be punished in New York for violating the decree. But no one for a moment supposes that her residence in New York will be attended by any such result. Viewed in the most generous light, this divorce case shows unmistakably what changes are taking place in the social world with respect to its relations to marriage, for marriage now seems to/ carry with it the implied idea that if you do not like one husband you can try another. China has long been known to the world as the Flowery Kingdom, but very few people outside of the kingdom know with what beauty and exuberance it teems. Dr. Bretschneider has recently made an elaborate report on the flora of China, and the book reads like a fairy dream. He penetrated to the interior and everywhere was amazed at the variety and the luxuriance of the flowers. They spring spontaneously on the mountains and on the levels and everywhere display forms of beauty that to the rest of the world are unknown. So familiar are the people of China with flowers of the rarest luxuriance that they are amazed when they come into the west at our admiration for a few violets, roses and orchids. He collected 1,500 beautiful flowers that were unknown to science, but that grew spontaneously along the roadside. The conservatory attached to the White House grounds in Washington has always been a source of pride to the nation, and foreign diplomats and guests are always invited to inspect it. But to the Chinese embassy our conservatory is really a very ordinary affair, and, as one of them recently temarked after inspecting it, "Everybody in China has flowers like this "

Spanish Administration In Cuba. The Americans are finding out some things about the Spanish administration in Cuba that make political iniquity in America look small. The custom house at Havana has revealed almost as many enormities as the Bastille. It is now known that it proved for hundreds of years the richest source of plunder the government officials had. Havana was long classed as the fourth port in importance in North America, only New York, Philadelphia and Boston outranking it in the value of imports. The present tariff is 62 per cent less than was the Spanish, but it is resulting in a 25 per cent increase in revenue-that is to say, under Spanish. rule the revenues yearly were about nine millions for Havana and twelve millions for the island. Under the low American tariff duties are collected at the rate of a million a month for Havana and a million and a quarter a month for the island. The estimates now show that the Spaniards in Havana ought to have turned in $28,000,000 instead of $9,000,000. The colossal frauds that were perpetrated resulted in the enriching of officials. This fraud extended through every department in the city and affected the commercial relations of the people. Fifteen or 20 great firms monopolized the fraud business. Thus one of them was enabled by the connivance of the government to sell flour at $2 a barrel less than the market price. It frequently came into port as cabbages or charcoal, and was so taxed in the importer's interest. A wholesale grocery house, it now turns out, brought in for years thousands of tierces of lard weighing 500 pounds to the tierce, and paid duty on it as potatoes. The duty on lard was 8 cents a pound and on potatoes 3 cents. A tierce of lard weighed 300 pounds more than a package of potatces, so that the importer, by paying duty on 1,000 packages of potatoes, instead of on 1,000 tierces of lard, saved $27,000. To work this little job cost him from $5,000 to $8,000 in the custom house.

Some time ago the wanderings of our embassador to England, Mr. Choate, as he searched through/London for a place to lie down, caused a good deal of merriment in this country that a first class power like the United States should not have a home in the British metropolis for its minister. . We now get word from Peking, the capital of China, that our minister there is in very much the same fix. While all the other nations of Europe own their legation buildings in Peking our minister has to hire what he can get and our present resident embassador is living in a house formerly owned by a missionary. The climate of Peking in the summer is insufferable-the heat intense and constant and of such moisture as to be almost unendurable. At such times all the foreign residents take to the hills. where they have homes of their own, but our minister, not having any permanent residence, is obliged to put up with an old Buddhist temple. What is very curions about this is that our representatives at Washington never take the slightest interest in it. but act and express themselves as if the foreign legations were merely political excuses by means of which-politicians could be sent out of the country. To preserve the dignity and decordm of a nation of the first class is a very important task

The London Saturday Review has characterized nine-tenths of the popular literature of the day as "snippety." This is a capital name for it, as it is made up of odds and ends, in imitation of the newspaper, whose place it cannot fill and whose duties it should not undertake to perform. The Review goes a little further and declares that this snippety literature is the result of the invasion of woman into bookmaking. There may be some truth in this statement, but it should not be forgotten that some of the most vigorous books of recent times have been written by women that we do not seem to be educated up to. The Canadian papers are making a hullabaloo over the large number of people who are leaving that country for the United States. The stream appears to be unusually large this year, and the complaints are as numerous as the explanations. But it all amounts to thisthat the Canadians are finding out that the United States offers them larger chances of success. Emigration in this quarter is only a kind of annexation by drops.

It has been judicially decided in the Empire State that it is not an indictable offense to call a man "a fine old educational mastodon." Some years ago a city official was called by somebody a "platitudinous old plum," and instead of going to the grand jury the. "old plum" went down town to the offender's office with a club, and then the case went to the grand jury with what the magazines call a natural "trend."

The Russian government has given an order in the United States for 12 steel bridges, to be used on the Transsiberian railway. The contract has been taken by the Phœnix Bridge company of Pennsylvania. Thus Europe continnes to recognize the neatness and dispatch of the United States in spite of the clamor raised by the Enropean contractors.

-CHAPTER XVIII.

The fleet under Admiral Rymelandt's command was ordered to proceed to the East Indies by the western route, through the Staits of Magellan into the Pacific ocean-it being still imagined, notwithstanding previous failures, that this route offered facilities which might shorten the passage to the Spice Islands.

The vessels comprising the fleet were the Lion, of forty-four guns. bearing the admiral's flag; the Dort, of thirty-six guns, with the commodore's pennant-to which Philip was appointed; the Zuyder Zee, of twenty; the Young Frau, of twelve, and a ketch of four guns, called the Schevelling.

The crew of the Vrow Katerina were divided between the two larger vessels; the others, being smaller, were easier worked with fewer hands. Every arrangement having been made, the boats were hoisted up, and the ships made sail. For ten days they were baffled by light winds, and the victims to the scurvy increased considerably on board of Philip's vessel. Many died and were thrown overboard; others were carried down to their hammocks. The newly appointed commodore, whose name was Avenhorn, went on board of the admiral's vessel, to report the state of the vessel and to suggest, as Philip had proposed to him, that they should make the coast of South America, and endeavor by bribery or by force to obtain supplies from the Spanish inhabitants or the natives. But to this the admiral would not listen. He was an imperious, bold and obstinate man, not to be persuaded or convinced, and with little feeling for the sufferings of others. Tenacious of being advised, he immediately, rejected a proposition which, had it originated with himself, would probably have been immediately acted upon, and the commodore returned on board his vessel, not only disappointed. but irritated by the language used toward him. A week passed away and the fleet had made little progress. In each ship the ravages of the fatal disease became more serious, and the commodore leave so many of his fellow-creatures to perish, and that he had come out of his course to land them at the first Spanish port he could reach. He requested that they would immediately send on board vegetables and fresh provisions for the sick men, whom it would be death to remove until after a few days, when they would be a little restored; and added that in return for their assisting the Spaniards he trusted the governor would also send supplies for his own people.

This well-made-up story was confirmed by the officer sent on board by the Spanish governor. Being requested to go down below and see the patients, the sight of so many poor fellows in the last stage of that horrid disease-their teeth having fallen out, gums ulcerated bodies full of tumors and sores-was quite sufficient, and, hurrying up from the lower deck, the officer hastened on shore and made his report.

In two hours a large boat was sent off with fresh beef and vegetables sufficient for three days' supply for the ship's company, and these were immediately distributed among the men. A letter of thanks was returned by the commodore, stating that his health was so indifferent as to prevent his coming on shore in person to thank the governor, and forwarding a pretended list of the Spanjards on board, in which he mentioned some officers and people of distinction, whom he imagined might be connected with the family of the governor, whose name and titles he had received from messenger sent on board; for the Dutch knew full well the majority of the noble Spanish families-indeed, alliances had continually taken place between them previous to their assertion of their independence. The commodore concluded his letter by expressing a hope that in a day or two he should be able to pay his respects and make arrangements for the landing of the sick, as he was anxious to proceed on his voyage of discovery.

On the third day a fresh supply of provision was sent on board, and so soon as they were received the commodore, in an English uniform, went on shore and called upon the governor, gave a long detail of the sufferings of the people he had rescued, and agreed that they should be sent on shore in two days, as they would by that time be well enough to be moved. After many compliments he went on board. the governor having stated his intention to return his visit on the following day, if the weather were not too rough. Fortunately the weather was rough for the next two days, and it was not until the third day that the governor made his appearance. This was precisely what the commodore wished. There is no disease, perhaps,' dreadful or so rapid in its effects upon the human frame, and at the same time so instantaneously checked, as the scurvy, if the remedy can be procured. A few days were sufficient to restore those who were not able to turn in their hammocks, to their former vigor. In the course of the six days nearly all the crew of the Dort were convalescent, and able to go on deck, but still they were not cured. The commodore waited for the arrival of the governor, received him with all due honors, and then, so soon as he was in the cabin, told him very politely that he and all his officers with him were prisoners. That the vessel was a Dutch man-of-war, and that it was his own/people, and not Spaniards, who had been dying of the scurvy. He consoled him, however, by pointing out that he had thought it preferable to sacrifice lives on both sides by taking them by force, and that his excellency's captivity would endure no longer than until he had received on board a sufficient number of live bullocks and tresh vegetables to insure the recovery of the ship's company; and in the meantime not the least insult would be offered to him. Whereupon the Spanish governor first looked at the commodore, and then at the file of armed men at the cabin door, and then to his distance from the town; and then called to mind the possibility of his being taken out to sea. Weighing all these points in his mind, and the very moderate ransom demanded, he resolved, as he could not help himself, to comply with the commodore's terms. He called for pen and ink, and wrote an order to send on board immediately all that was demanded. Before sunset the bullocks and vegetables were brought off, and so soon as they were alongside, the commodore, with many bows and many thanks, es- | ty av worruk for two ar us."

complimenting him with a salvo of great guns, as he had done beon his arrival. The peofore on shore thought that his ple excellency had paid a long visit, but as he did not like to acknowledge that he had been deceived, nothing was said about it, at least in his hearing, although the facts were soon well known. As soon as the boats were cleared, the commodore weighed anchor; and made sail, well satisfied with having preserved his ship's company; and as the Falkland islands, in case of parting company, had been named as the rendezvous, he steered for them. In a fortnight he arrived, and found that the admiral was not yet there. His crew were now all recovered, and his fresh beef was not yet expended, when he perceived the admiral and the three other vessels in the offing.

It appeared that as soon as the Dort had parted company, the admiral had immediately acted upon the advice that thte commodore had given him, and had run for the coast. Not being sd fortunate in a ruse as his second in command, he had landed an armed force from the four vessels, and had succeeded in obtaining several head of cattle, at the expense of an equal number of men killed and wounded. But at the same time they had collected a large quantity of vegetables of one sort or another, which they had carried on board and distributed with great success to the sick, who were gradually recovering.

Immediately that the admiral had anchored, he made the signal for the commodore to repair on board, and taxed him with disobedience of orders in having left the fleet. The commodore did not deny that he had so done. but excused himself upon the plea of necessity, offering to lay the whole matter before the court of directors so soon as they returned; but the admiral was vested with most extensive power, not only of the trial, but the condemnation and punishment of any person guilty of mutiny and insubordination in his fleet. In reply, he told the commodore that he was a prisoner. and to prove he confined him in irons under the half deck.

A signal was then made for all the captains; they went on board, and of course Philip was of the number. On their arrival the admiral held a summary court martial, proving to them by his instructions that he was so warranted to do. The result of the courtmartial could be but one-condemnation for a breach of discipline, to which Philip was obliged reluctantly to sign his name. The admiral then gave Philip the appointment of second scanty rations. The discontent bein command and the commodore's pennant, much to the annoyance of the captains commanding the other vessels; but in this the admiral proved his judgment, as there was no one of them so fit for the task as Philip. Having so done, he dismissed them. Philip would have spoken to the late commodore, but the sentry opposed it, as against his orders; and with a friendly nod Philip was obliged to leave him without the desired communication.

TWENTY INSURGENTS KILLED.

Sergeant of the Utah Battery Killed in the Fight, and One Private Wounded -Rapid Fire Guns Too Much for the Enemy.

On Monday last the tinclad gunboats Laguna de Bay and Cavadonga and a launch under Capt. Grant ran into a nest of insurgents concealed in the brush and on both sides of the Rio. Grande river, three miles above Calumpit, yesterday afternoon and were received with heavy volleys at short range.

A sergeant belonging to the Utah battery was killed and one private wounded.

Opening with their rapid-fire guns the Americans killed twenty of the natives and wounded several others, filling the jungle with a hail of shot for a half hour until the enemy fled.

TO CONTINUE THE WAR.

Filipino Congress Decides to Keep Up the Fighting.

The Filipino junta in London has received the following message from Aguinaldo, cabled from Hong-Kong under date of May 12:

"The Filipino government, in accordance with the general feeling of the country, has decided to continue the war at all costs until independence is secured. The Filipinos energetically refuse the American peace overtures, based on restricted autonomy, coupled with promises of subsequent self-government. The Filipinos demand a strict fulfilment of the articles of the American constitution and treaties contracted by the American representatives when imploring a Filipino alliance in combating the Spaniards.

"All the Filipino generals support Aguinaldo. Gen. Luna's reported overtures for peace are untrue. Our army is near Manila, simultaneously attacking the whole American line. The heat and rains are causing many casualties in the American army. All the hospitals are crowded with sick and wounded. Four hundred of the Cincinnati regiment have been imprisoned by Gen. Otis for insubordination in refusing to fight. The regular troops quartered in Manila and other towns are quiet. The volunteers, are abused and are always at the front, with had but twenty men able to do duty. Nor had the admiral's ship and the other vessels suffered less. The commodore again went on board to reiterate his proposition.

Admiral Rymelandt was not only a stern but a vindictive man. He was aware of the propriety of the suggestion made by his second in command; but, having refused it, he would not acquiesce; and he felt revengeful against the commodore, whose counsel he must now either adopt, or, by refusing it, be prevented from taking the steps so necessary for the preservation of his crew and the success of his voyage. Too proud to acknowledge himself in error, again did he decidedly refuse, and the commodore went back to; his own ship. The fleet was then within three days of the coast, steering to the southward for the Straits of Magellan, and that night, after Philip had returned to his cot, the commodore went on deck and ordered the course of the vessel to be altered some points more to the westward. The night was very dark, and the Lion was the only ship which carried a poop-lantern, so that the parting company of the Dort was not perceived by the admiral and the other ships of the fleet. When Philip went on deck the next morning he found-that their consorts were not in sight. He looked at the compass, and, perceiving that the course was altered, inquired at what hour and by whose directions. Finding that it was by his superior officer, he, of course, said nothing. When the commodore came on deck he stated to Philip that he felt himself warranted in not complying with the admiral's orders, as it would have been sacrificing the whole ship's company. This was, indeed, true.

In two days they made the land, and, running into the shore, perceived a large town and Spaniards on the beach. They anchored at the mouth of the river, and hoisted English colors, when a boat came on board to ask them who they were and what they required. . The commodore replied that the vessel was English, for he knew that the hatred of the Spanish for the Dutch was so great that, if known to belong to that nation, he would have no chance of procuring any supplies except by force. He stated that he had fallen in with a Spanish vessel, a complete wreck, the whole of the crew being afflicted with the seurvy; that he had taken the men put, who were now in their hammocks blow, as he considered it cruel to

CHAPTER XIX.

The fleet remained three weeks at the Falkland islands, to recruit the ships' companies. Although there was no fresh beef, there was plenty of scurvy grass and penguins. These birds were in myriads on some parts of the island, which, from the propinquity of their nests, built of mud, went by the name of towns. There they sat, close together (the whole area which they covered being bare of grass), hatching their eggs and rearing their young. The men had but to select as many eggs and birds as they pleased, and so numerous were they that when they had supplied themselves, there was no apparent diminution of the numbers. / This food, although in a short time not very palatable to the seamen, had the effect of restoring them to health, and before the fleet sailed there was not a man who was afflicted with the scurvy. In the meantime the commodore remained in irons and many were the conjectures concerning his ultimate fate. The power of life and death was known to be in the admiral's hands, but no one thought that such power would be exerted upon a delinquent of so high a grade. The other captains kept aloof from Philip, and he knew little of what was the general idea. Occasionally when on board of the admiral's ship he ventured to bring up the question, but. was immediately silenced; and feeling that he might injure the late commodore, for whom he had a regard, he would risk nothing by importunity; and the fleet sailed for the straits of Magellan without anybody being aware of what might be the result of the court martial.

(To be continued.)

The other day a North Side woman found fault with something her servant had done. "If such a thing occurs again, Norah, I shall have to get another servant," she said. "Oi wish yez wud," replied Norah; "they's plintween the Americans and Europeans is general.

What "Kalsomines" Are.

"Kalsomines" are cheap temporary preparations manufactured from chalks, clays, whiting, etc., and are stuck on the wall with decaying animal glue. They bear no comparison with Alabastine, which is a cement that goes through a process of setting, and hardens with age. Consumers, in buying Alabastine, should see that the goods are in packages and properly labeled. Nothing else is "just as good" as Alabastine. The claims of new imitations are absurd on their face. They cannot offer the test of time for durability.

No More "Ordinary" Sleepers.

Some time ago the Pullman Company, as an experimental measure, in-troduced "Ordinary" sleeping car ser-vice on the Baltimore and Ohio Rallroad between Baltimore and Newark, and Pittsburg and Chicago. The results to the Railroad Company were very gratifying, but subsequently it was ascertained the Pullman Company was not in position to furnish this class of equipment to all roads operating Pullman cars east. of Chicago and St. Louis, and to allay any friction that might result from this inequality of service, the Pullman Company requested the Baltimore and Ohio Rail-road to resume the standard cars previously in service, which will be done commencing April 10.

George Elsuer, son of Wm, Elsner, escaped what might have been a serious accident Saturday evening. While seated on a large land roller driving a team the roller struck an iron beam. The sudden stop forced the young boy from his seat casting him before the roller. The horses instantly started forward, the huge cylinder passing over the boy. Fortunately, he sustained but slight injuries and is now able to be around as usual.

Lake Bluff to be the Terminus. The Chicago and Fox Lake Electric railroad company will make Lake Bluff its eastern terminus instead of Lake Forest, as the result of the favorable franchise granted by the Lake Bluff NEW village board. The company applied for a franchise at the latter place a long time ago, but could not get what it wanted, so decided to build to Lake Forest. On hearing of this, leading Lake Bluff residents went to work and secured the change.
