Big Taxes for Palatine.

The townships and villages outside of Chicago in Cook county are threatened with abolishment. The subject is to come up before the state legislature at its next session and the towns and villages are aroused to the issue. The fight is bound to be a hard one for the towns and villages, but proper steps are being taken to defeat the measure. Mass meetings are being held in various places and delegates selected to meet and confer as to the proper method of procedure. Palatine does not want to pay taxes for Chicago's expenses. It will mean an increase of from 2 to 3 per cent. and we will be overwhelmingly defeated in any venture we undertake for our village or town improvements.

Let everyone turn out and attend the Palatine mass meeting which will be held soon.

M. W. A. Band Concert.

One of the best concerts ever given in Barrington was given Thursday by the Barrington M. W. A. band, under the direction of Prof. C. S. Horn. The numbers given by the full band were of a standard grade and their execution gave evidence of careful study and preparation. The selection by the quartet was good and deserved the hearty applause it received.

The clarinet solo by Herbert Plagge was well rendered. The execution was brilliant for one so young and proves him to be a good student.

The reading given by William Sott was well received.

We were surprised to hear so good a solo on the bass as was given by Ernest Wessel. His tones were large and full, and yet not too loud.

One of the best numbers on the program was the duet given by Misses Alma and Mabel Stiefenhofer. They made a very nice appearance and their playing was excellent. We notice it is becoming quite popular for ladies to play band instruments.

As usual, Myrtle and Almeda Plagge delighted the audience by their singing. Both have good voices and speak their words distinctly.

The trombone solo by John Kampert was well rendered. We wish to commend Mr. Kampert upon his judgment in selecting this instrument, also his rapid progress towards mastering the same.

The recitation by Miss Esther Lageschulte deserved the hearty encore. She has considerable talent along that line.

The solos by Prof. Horn were of the highest order and rendered with artistic taste. The persistent encores gave evidence of the appreciation of his work. Both his solos and the program show him to be a close student and a thorough instructor.

The following was the program:
 Galop, "Lathia Races"..... Band
 Overture, "All Around the City"..... Band
 Cornet solo, "Remembrance of Liberty"..... Prof. C. S. Horn.
 Male quartet—Messrs. Plagge, Rieke, Landwer and Stiefenhofer.
 Clarinet Solo, "Long, Long Ago"..... Herbert Plagge
 Reading..... William Sott
 Tuba solo..... Ernest Wessel
 Cornet duo..... Alma and Mabel Stiefenhofer
 Overture, "Eclipse"..... Band
 Vocal duo..... Myrtle and Almeda Plagge
 Trombone solo, "Old Kentucky Home"..... John Kampert
 Bass solo, "The Mighty Deep"..... Prof. Horn
 Song and Dance, "Sweet Little Daisies," Band
 Recitation..... Miss Esther Lageschulte
 Waltz, "Auf Wiedersehn"..... Band
 March, "Tenth Regiment"..... Band

Industry and Success.

"There's nothin like farmin on a hillside," said the man with the faded hair during a pause in the conversation, "if you pick out a good location."

"Do you mean to say," they asked him, "that you ever worked on a hillside farm or anywhere else?"

"Who said anything about workin?" he rejoined. "I said hillside farmin was all right if you picked out a good location. I had a location right down below a 40 acre farm where a feller put in one whole summer raisin melons on pumpkins. When they got ripe, they broke off 'em the vine an rolled down on to my land. It was a good deal of bother to gather 'em up, but I done it. Made a pretty good thing out of it too."

It was a narrow escape and nearly cost him his reputation as the laziest man in the crowd.—Chicago Tribune.

Insulted.

"Troubled with insomnia, are you?" said Dr. Pareisis after listening to his patient's tale of woe. "Tried all the usual remedies, have you? Well, now suppose you try to read 'The Impressions of a Bohemian.' It's a new book, just out. I tried to read it last night and was asleep in three minutes."
 "Sir," replied the patient, with freezing dignity, "I am the author of that book, and I have the honor to wish you a very good evening!"

Proceedings of Six Days in National Congress.

ROOT ON MONROE DOCTRINE.

Scott of West Virginia Gets His Seat in the Senate—Pay of Census Officers Raised—91 Private Pension Bills in One Day.

Thursday, April 26.

Almost the entire session of the senate was devoted to consideration of the right of Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia to retain his seat in the senate. Mr. Pettus (Ala.), who alone of the members of the committee on privileges and elections is opposed to the claim of Mr. Scott to a seat, made an elaborate argument to sustain his views. Mr. Morgan (Ala.) spoke in favor of his colleague's contention. Mr. McComas (Md.), Mr. Turley (Tenn.), Mr. Chandler (N. H.), Mr. Teller (Col.) and Mr. Allen (Neb.) supported the resolution declaring Mr. Scott entitled to his seat. The case went over without action. After four days' discussion the house passed the postoffice appropriation bill. The attempt to strike out the $196,000 for special mail facilities from New York to New Orleans and from Kansas City to Newton, Kan., was defeated. The amendment providing for pneumatic tube service was defeated. The one allowing extra compensation for letter carriers for work in excess of forty-eight hours a week was adopted by a big majority. The bill to increase the salary of the director of census to $7,500 and the salaries of supervisors of census by 2 per cent of the amount received by their enumerators was passed. The final conference report on the Hawaiian government bill was presented, but not acted upon, owing to the absence of a quorum.

Friday, April 27.

The senate by a vote of 52 to 3 decided that Mr. Scott was entitled to his seat, thus upholding the precedent that the senate had no right to go behind the act of legislatures in cases similar to the West Virginia contest. Mr. Chandler gave notice that on Wednesday, May 2, he would call up the Clark contest. The house broke all records by passing ninety-one private pension bills, among them being one granting $40 a month to the widow of Col. John M. Stotsenberg of the First Nebraska, killed in the Philippines. Adopted the conference report on the Hawaiian government bill and sent it to the president.

Saturday April 28.

The house devotes the greater part of the session to the senate bill to adjudicate the claims of citizens of the United States against Spain assumed by this country by the treaty of Paris. Secretary Root's declaration at Waldorf-Astoria banquet that "we must abandon Monroe doctrine or fight" creates a profound sensation in Washington. Senator Pettigrew succeeds in introducing a resolution extending sympathy to the Boers. A motion to refer it failed because of the absence of a quorum.

Monday, April 30.

Senate steering committee decided to push army and other appropriation bills. Tendency is to postpone shipping bill until after election. Secretary Gage told "Dr." Dowie he could import lacemaking instructors from Nottingham. Conferees agreed on Porto Rican franchise bill and both houses adopted report. House passed Lacey bill to prohibit interstate commerce in game killed out of season. Supreme court declared no more oral arguments would be heard in drainage canal case. Grosvenor introduced bill to permit national banks to lend money on real estate securities. Argument in Kentucky governorship case began in United States Supreme court. Senate, by vote of 20 to 29, refused to consider resolution of sympathy with Boers. Bartlett Tripp may be made chief justice of Porto Rico.

ADRIFT WITH 700 PASSENGERS.

Exciting Experience of a Steamer with a Broken Shaft.

The breaking of a port shaft of the Fall River line passenger Puritan caused that vessel to drift for half an hour on the waters of Long Island sound Saturday night with 700 passengers and a heavy cargo of freight. About 9 o'clock the Norwich line steamer Rhode Island, bound from New York to New London, ran alongside the Puritan to ascertain the trouble, and in a few minutes two lines were run out astern the Norwich line steamer, and it soon had the Puritan sighted on its course and moving slowly up the sound. Twenty minutes after the Rhode Island started with the Fall River liner the Stonington line twin-screw freighter New Hampshire ran alongside and its offer to assist was accepted. The various railway officials at New Haven were notified immediately after the Puritan's arrival here, and a special train was made up as soon as possible to convey the steamer's passengers on to Boston by rail.

Eight Drowned in Waco, Texas—Tornado at Blum.

A cloudburst, accompanied by a high wind, descended upon Waco, Texas, at noon Friday, and the result is that eight persons are known to have perished in the city limits and property valued at several thousand dollars was destroyed. The known dead are: Mrs. Nancy Caudle, Miss Clara Caudle, Rosa Chapman, Emma Decker, Thomas Capps, Frank Walker, two negro men, names unknown.

A tornado passed through the eastern part of Blum, Texas, destroying several residences and a two-story school building. Fortunately but two persons were seriously hurt, one of whom, Eunice Hanks, will die. She was caught between two timbers and received internal injuries. About fifteen others were slightly hurt.

The list selected six months ago is not to be considered, as Dr. Moeller has been appointed bishop of Columbus and Rev. Dr. Schoenhoff of Cincinnati has declined.

Roberts Case Goes to Jury.

The case of B. H. Roberts at Salt Lake City, Utah, took an unexpected turn Monday evening. After spending the morning session in securing eight jurors, County Attorney Putnam announced that by stipulation the whole case would be submitted on an agreed statement of facts, constituting what the witness would testify to if called on the stand. The jury is composed of seven Mormons and one gentile. The agreed statement was submitted, and counsel for the defendant moved that the court instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. The motion was overruled, and after brief arguments the case was submitted to the jury.

I could work hard and not feel tired. I recommend Hood's to all who need a good medicine." A. P. CHARTER, Creston, Iowa.

Hidden by Cromwell's Troops. A remarkable discovery of coins has been made at Houghton, midway between Blackburn and Preston, at a farmhouse belonging to Mr. Thomas Crook, near Houghton Tower, the seat of Sir James De Houghton, and the scene of one of the Cromwellian advances. The coins, which number fifty-five, are of silver, varying in value and dated near the end of the fifteenth century and the beginning of the sixteenth century. They were discovered under the thatch of a roof, where it is conjectured they were placed for safety from plunder by Cromwell's troops. They are in a remarkably good state of preservation, and were in a curious bag of wash leather.—London Leader.

Jephthah's Daughter:

CHAPTER IV.

But Namarah raised her hands and hid her face from sight, and Adina's voice began to tremble as he spake to her again, and said, full tenderly:

"Didst thou not know, Namarah, when I told thee I would send thee a message by thy bird, but that I lacked the courage, that that message was my love for thee? As God beholds me, maiden, my heart hath even been knit to thine since first my eyes fell on thee; and if thou love me not, my life is all over for me."

Still was silent the maiden Namarah, so that Adina's heart grew cold with fear within him, and his voice brake as he spake once more:

"I go forth to battle, O maiden, to fight against the enemies of the Lord and to shield thy father. It may be that death awaits me, and if thou hast in thy heart aught of tenderness toward me, I pray thee speak, or let me go to death and silence and forgetfulness."

Then did Namarah turn to him, a sudden trembling passing over her whole body, and dropping her hands from before her face, she stretched them out toward him. Whereat Adina fell upon his knees and bowed his head, thinking it was her to bestow her blessing upon him in token of eternal farewell. But with a swift and silent motion, Namarah was at his side, and before he could lift his bended head, her soft arms clung around his neck.

"Maiden," he muttered in a voice deep with passion, while he reached upward his strong arms, and held her in a close and gentle clasp, though he rose not from his lowly posture, "tell me, I pray thee, what thou meanest. Is it for pity thou dost clasp me? If so—"

But Namarah bent her head above him, and made answer:

"No, not pity—love."

Then did he spring to his feet, and stand erect in all the comely beauty of his goodly youth, and drawing her close against his breast, he bent his head and kissed her. It was to Namarah the first time she had ever felt her heart respond to any sign of love, and Adina's heart was even as virgin as her own. It was this in the heart of each that made that moment's rapture. It was a long, long time that neither spake. Their arms were folded close about each other, and once and again their lips met and clung to those sweet and sacred kisses which are the precious fruit of purity of life. Then spake the young man Adina:

"Wilt thou have me tell thy father, Namarah, that we may have his blessing on our betrothal?—for I think he will not turn him from me, seeing he hath but lately told me that he oweth unto me his life."

But Namarah answered:

"Nay, I would have him go forth to the fight, as hath been his wont of yore, believing himself my only object of care and love and prayer. He hath told me that he wills that I shall marry, and when thou comest back with him victorious, then will I tell him all, and ask his blessing. But, ah, Adina, my most loved one, my new-found joy and hope, how if the enemies of the Lord should slay thee, that thou returnest to me no more!"

And at these words she fell to weeping, and sobbed upon his breast. But Adina comforted her strongly, and bade her pray to God with faith, telling her he felt within himself that God would prosper the army of her father Jephthah, and bring them back victorious.

"Then will I claim thee for my bride, Namarah, thou fairest of women and maidens, and joy will be ours as long as life shall last."

Namarah clasped him closer yet, and turned her face upward to receive his kiss; and behold, as his lips rested upon hers, they heard the doves near by cooling and calling.

"Thou shalt give me one of thy birds, Namarah," Adina said; "and I will make for it a little cage, and carry it with me; and when the enemies of the Lord shall have been vanquished, then will I send thee the tidings on the wings of thy bird."

And the idea pleased Namarah, and side by side they went together to where the doves slept, and Namarah opened the door and called them to her with the little call they knew so well; and, although the time was late and strange, they circled round her head, and one of them settled on her shoulder. Namarah took it gently in her hand, and ere she gave it over to Adina, she kissed the crest of its snow-white head.

"Come back to me in peace and triumph," she said.

And then, when Adina had taken the dove from her, she realized that the moment of parting was come, and, with a great wave of love and tenderness and longing sweeping over her, she gave herself into her lover's arms to receive his last embrace.

Solemn and sweet and silent it was, there in the holy moonlight; and when at last she raised her head to speak, there were brave words on her lips.

"Thou knowest the meaning of our city's name," she said. "Take it for an omen to comfort thee and rest thy heart, and I will even rest so on it, too."

"Yea, I know it," he answered; then kissed he her once more, and murmuring the word "Mizpeh!" between his half-parted lips, he turned and left her alone.

CHAPTER V.

It was many a weary day that Namarah waited for tidings which came not. It was her habit to sit at work with her maidens upon the roof, or else high up in the top chamber of the house, and always she would place herself near to the window which looked toward the field of battle, and none knew why it was that she strained her eyes so wistfully into the air, as if she looked for and expected some token in the heavens. Often her work would fall from her fingers, and she would rest a long time idle, with no sound escaping her, except the deep-drawn sighs which none knew how to interpret. The maidens that were her companions looked on at this and marveled. They knew that Namarah was ever a loving and solicitous daughter, but it was not uncommon for her father to be away and in danger, and this was something more than her usual concern for him. She had lost heart in her work, also, and cared no longer for the amusements and pastimes with which it had formerly been her wont to occupy herself. But, in spite of this, her interest was more tender than ever before in those who were sick or in trouble, and she spent much time in prayer.

Her chief amusement and diversion during this time were her doves, and sometimes, after feeding them, she would place herself on the garden seat and let them climb and flitter all about her, and take their food from her mouth and fingers, and even from the meshes of her hair. She had told to no one the secret of her heart, and these silent witnesses of her meetings with Adina seemed now the nearest thing to him that there remained to her.

At length, one morning, when Namarah had grown paler than was her wont, with long waiting and watching, she stood at the casement of her chamber, and her listless gaze that had been long fixed wearily upon the distant scene, became in a moment alert and animated. Far up in the blue she had seen a flying bird, and at that sight her heart within her always trembled. Perhaps it was a skylark, or even one of her own pets, wandered farther than its custom away from home. Yes, it was a dove—a snow-white carrier—and surely, one of her own, as there was none like them in that region. She had never known one of hers to fly so high as that before, and the throbbing of her heart grew violent, as she looked up and saw it pausing and circling above her head. Surely she caught sight of a tiny object, not a feather, between its wing and breast, as the bird swooped downward and flew into the pigeon house.

With limbs that shook with hope and fear, Namarah stole softly through the silent halls and chambers, down the garden path and into the place where all her birds were together. They were cooling and muttering and gabbling as if something out of the common had happened to them, and when she paused in the doorway and called, they all came fluttering to her. One by one she touched them, with her hands and felt beneath their wings. They were too exactly each like each to distinguish among them, but all of them came tamely to her call, it being her habit to stroke and smooth them as she would. Just as her heart began to sink with disappointment, she noticed one with broken feathers, and her fingers touched something smooth and hard, and lo, there was indeed, the thing she sought—a tightly folded paper, tied with a small cord under the bird's wing. Her hands trembled as she loosed it, and she hid it hurriedly in her bosom. Then she ran swiftly through the garden paths and back to her own room, where she shut herself in, and taking out the precious paper, pressed it to her lips and then fell upon her knees in prayer. She entreated God most earnestly that the tidings might be good; her heart swelled with praises to His holy name, and her faith was strong in the answer to her prayers, as she opened the paper and read. These were the words:

"Most Dear Maiden—It hath pleased the God of Israel to send the hosts of Jephthah, thy father, a complete and mighty victory, and we be, even now, upon our way to thee, returning in triumph and great thankfulness of heart. Thou wilt greet me as thy chosen and sanctioned husband, Namarah, for thy father hath so commended my bearing in the fight, wherein I was able to render him good service, that he hath promised me that I shall choose my own reward, and I have chosen even the maiden Namarah to be my wife. I have even so spoken to thy father, feeling sure that at that moment he would not say me nay, and he hath even given me his blessing, and avowed that I have found favor in his eyes. The white bird will bear to thee those tidings, and before set of sun we shall be with thee. God grant to me, O maiden, that thy heart may reach forth to mine with the same love wherewith I feel mine reach to thee, as I write these lines, to be held in thy dear hands beneath thy dear eyes.

Now, as the maiden Namarah read these words, there rose within her so great a rapture that her very face did glow and become radiant with joy. For until her eyes had rested on the young man Adina, she had known not what it was to feel the mighty love wherewith a tender virgin loveth, with her soul and heart at once, the youth whose nobleness and virtue command her worship and devotion, and the exceeding joy of this moment wrapped her soul in a great wave of ecstasy, that make the shining of her eyes like unto the light of stars. To feel that Adina loved her, he who was unto her eyes the very prince of men, and that her well-beloved father looked with favor on their union was a bliss so great, that almost she felt as if her heart within her must burst for very joy. As she sat in her chamber alone, and read again and yet again the precious message that the bird had brought, such visions as ever fill the minds of maidens when love is come in truth passed like pictures before her. She saw herself meeting with Adina without the need of concealment and she felt again those arms about her and those kisses on her lips, at the mere memory of which she thrilled. She saw the calm delight upon her beloved father's face, as he blessed her union with Adina, and gazing further yet into the future, she saw herself the happy wife and mother.

CHAPTER VI.

Now when the sun began to sink toward the west, Namarah called to her maidens, and arrayed herself in garments richly wrought and beautiful, as one that keepeth a great feast. Her robe was all of white, embroidered with gold, and the encrusted folds fell heavily about the splendid curves of her most noble figure. In her loosened hair were twisted chains of gold that wrapped it in and out, and made a light and darkness beautiful to see. About her shoulders, which her robe left bare, she wrapped a scarf of golden tissue, through which her gleaming neck and arms shone fair as moonlight seen through sunbeams.

And when the maidens and all the household of Jephthah wondered to see her so adorned, she spake, and said unto them:

"I go to meet my father Jephthah and his host returning from victory."

And when they asked her:

"How knowest thou that he hath won the day, and is returning?"

She made answer, as the saying was:

"A little bird hath told me."

And they knew not how true indeed were the words she spake.

And as the sun sank lower and lower and it began to draw toward evening, behold, there fell upon the ears of Namarah and her maidens the distant sound of tramping horses and anon the notes of a trumpet.

"They be notes of victory; even as thou hast said," spake one of the maidens, while Namarah stood and listened, breathless and half troubled, like an image of too perfect joy. And Namarah said:

"I will even go forth to meet them."

Whereat her maidens wondered, for it was her custom to await her father within the house, a feeling of timidity ever preventing her from appearing before the eyes of the soldiers. But now there showed in all her bearing a very noble pride, so that she looked no longer a shy and trembling maiden, but a woman and the daughter of a conqueror. There was a most rich hue of roses on her cheeks, and her great eyes blazed and sparkled, so that Namarah looked that day a being of such glorious beauty as none who looked on her had ever seen before.

FINDING NEW SHORE LANDS.

Dr. Nathorst's Cruise of 800 Miles in a Strange Fjord.

Last year's explorations in the arctic regions had the general character that marked nearly all geographical discovery in the eighteenth century. Comparatively little was learned about the interior of the great land masses, but many thousands of miles of coast lines were charted, and maps began to show the continents with about the same shape in which they now appear. The American Peary and the Norwegian Nathorst were foremost in this work. Thirty years ago next spring the second German north polar expedition made a most interesting discovery in the waters where Dr. Nathorst has now brought further facts of equal importance to light. One day they saw the wide entrance of Franz Josef fjord and entered it. This inlet extends over 5 degrees of longitude into the interior of the island. One bare rock was seen that rises 5,600 feet out of the sea, and the party reported Mt. Petermann, at the head of the fjord, to be about 12,000 feet high. Not quite midway in the fjord they saw an inlet that proved to be a sound, and he named it after his little steamer, Antarctic sound. Threading his way through this channel, he came to a hitherto unknown fjord almost as great and magnificent as Franz Josef fjord itself. He spent ten days mapping this part of the great inlet. He found that the west side of King Oscar fjord, as he named it, sends two branches into the interior, which extend almost as far northward as Franz Josef fjord. The southern branch divides into two and the northern into three branches. The fjord extends south for sixty nautical miles to the sea at Davy sound, and on the way sends two branches east that also connect it with the sea. He traveled for eighty nautical miles in these unknown waters, whose surroundings he describes as "beautiful and splendid."

A CURIOUS CASE

Resulting From Taxation of Honey Bees By the Turks.

There is a curious illustration of the rapacity of Turkish officials in a report just sent to the state department by Consul Merrill at Jerusalem. Palestine was once considered a land flowing with milk and honey. Modern methods of cultivating the honey bee were not introduced until 1880, when a Swiss family named Baldensperger made a start and began making honey. It was not long before this industry began to attract the attention of the government, and at first a tax of a little less than 10 cents a hive was imposed, but this was soon increased by an ingenious device whereby the officials not only counted the actual hives, but every door, window and hole in which they could see any bees moving was reckoned as a "hive," with the result that 150 hives were counted as 2,000. The matter had to be carried to court, and was not settled till after two years of litigation, when the Baldenspergers were found in debt to the government to the amount of about $500. This decision affected one large apiary only. It was in 1889 that the judgment was rendered, and, as the Baldenspergers refused to pay, this apiary was sold at auction in Jerusalem for about $1.25 per hive. The difficult part of the work was to deliver the goods to the purchaser, which the officials were bound to do. The purchaser, the officials and a large number of camels and camel drivers went to the place where the apiary stood, expecting to take it away, but, as the bottom boards of the hives happened to be unhooked, the bees, when the hives were touched, swarmed, and everybody had to retreat. A compromise was effected, one half of the amount demanded being paid, and the bees remained in the hands of the original owners.—Chicago Tribune.

Activity of President Diaz.

Powell Clayton, ambassador to Mexico, on a recent visit to Washington told a story illustrative of President Diaz' activity, despite his years. In company with the president the ambassador visited the Mexican military academy. It happened to be the hour of exercise, and many cadets were engaged in the gymnasium. Rope climbing was one of the exercises. From rings in the timbers of the roof, 40 feet from the ground, ropes were suspended, and up these the cadets climbed, using only their hands to raise and maintain themselves. President Diaz and Ambassador Clayton looked on for a few moments and then, to the astonishment of the American, the president of Mexico stripped off his coat, took hold of one of the ropes, and went up, hand over hand, to the top as nimbly as any of the cadets.

Reason for It.

"Somehow, Aunt Clara likes to stay right in a rut. She can't bear innovations." "I don't blame her. When you get to be her age perhaps you will fight shy of new wrinkles, too."

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS.

RECORD OF HAPPENINGS FOR SEVEN DAYS.

Celebration of Grant's Birthday at Galena—Mine Strike Ends in Death—New Coal Shaft for Illinois—Alexander Grandpre, Pioneer Publisher Dead

Mine Strike Ends in Death.

Spring Valley.—An accidental killing was a feature of the miners' strike. The shooting took place in a saloon. William Price, a colored man, threw a revolver toward Richard Quirk, also colored. The weapon dropped on the bar and was discharged, the bullet striking Quirk in the forehead, killing him instantly. Price gave himself up to the police. The mules in the five shafts of the Spring Valley Coal company have been hoisted to the surface and turned out on pasture. There are 200 of them and they had not seen the light of day for three years. In a signed notice to miners the company declares that in the employment of labor it will not discriminate between union and non-union men. The state officers of the United Mine Workers notified the miners that they will be backed up in their demand by every dollar in the treasury and point to Pana as an example where the miners were on strike for fourteen months at a cost of over $100,000.

Grant Birthday Celebration.

Galena.—The annual celebration of General U. S. Grant's natal day took place here Friday. An oration was delivered by Governor Roosevelt of New York. The special train bearing the orator and about 400 invited guests from Chicago arrived at 1 o'clock p. m. and at the Illinois Central depot was met by the reception committee, an escort of the Spanish-American soldiers, veterans of the civil war and bands. The officers of the Grant Birthday association are: President, J. C. Spare; vice president, Thomas McNeill; secretary, John F. Jewell; treasurer, O. C. Kraehmer. At the conclusion of the afternoon exercises the ladies' reception committee was entertained at Turner hall and an informal reception for the Chicago delegation was held in the same hall at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Death of Alexander Grandpre.

Chicago.—Alexander Grandpre, founder of the Courier de l'Ouest, the pioneer French newspaper of the west, died Thursday at the West Side hospital after an operation for cancer of the stomach. He was born at St. Cuthbert, Canada, in 1835, and removed to Kankakee, Ill., in 1857, where he established his journal under the name of the Courier d'Illinois. In 1887 the plant was moved to this city, where he continued to publish it until four years ago, when he sold out his holdings to a stock company. At that time the name of the paper was changed, and Mr. Grandpre retired to the position of associate editor, a post he held until the time of his death.

Scale Fixed at 45 Cents a Ton.

Springfield.—In a decision handed down by the state board of arbitration in the Saline county mine rate case the state board of arbitration sets its stamp of approval on the scale fixed at the joint meeting of the miners and operators of Illinois. It holds the scale of 45 cents per ton, fixed for Saline county, a fair one. This indorsement of the scale will act as a damper on other districts which had contemplated appealing to the board in the case the miners would not consent to arbitration.

Carpenter's Sentence Cut Down.

Cumberland County.—The governor has commuted from fourteen to ten years the sentence of Charles Carpenter, who was convicted in 1894 in Cumberland county of manslaughter. Carpenter stabbed George McMecham during a drunken brawl near Union Center. McMecham's brother petitioned for the pardon. David Warren will be released from the Chester penitentiary May 1. While drunk he stole a hat and a pair of spectacles.

New Coal Shaft for Illinois.

Wenona.—A mammoth coal shaft is to be sunk between Rutland and Minonk. A stock company, composed of several capitalists of both of these towns, has been organized for the furtherance of the enterprise. It is proposed to make the new shaft the largest in the vicinity and the entire output will be shipped to the northwest.

Oscar Stebbins Dead.

Springfield.—Oscar F. Stebbins, aged 70 years, a prominent business man and Odd Fellow and an old resident of Springfield, died suddenly Thursday at his home of paralysis. He was president of the German-American Savings and Loan Association and was a director of the old Springfield and Northwestern railroad.

An experiment in education is being tried in Ithaca, N. Y., which will no doubt interest educators elsewhere. A class of 12 5-year-old children was organized and a teacher put in charge to give them instruction for one hour in the day, the rest of the time being given over to play. So far the experiment seems to be successful, and the school officials are encouraged to divide the primary grades in such wise that the classes will be reduced in number, no group to be in school for more than one hour. The idea, though not altogether new, has its merits. It is doubtful if a child of tender age can absorb more than a given quantity of instruction at a time. When the limit is passed, time is worse than wasted, and the child receives more harm than good.

The Smart Set, the title of a New York periodical, whose initial number was recently issued, is a rather queer name for a magazine, but there is no accounting for taste in the matter of nomenclature. Dr. Holmes was once obliged to explain that The Atlantic Monthly was not so called because it was an ocean.

Queen Victoria in her speech at the opening of the British parliament notes a war in South Africa, a famine in India and a plague in the same country "which shows no signs of diminution" and felicitates her faithful subjects on the favorable outlook for the empire. "As an optimist her majesty has few rivals.

Rev. Mhot Savage recently preached a sermon on married life, and in the course of his discourse he dwelt upon the confidence which a man and his wife ought to have in each other. He said: "I think, for example—I do not care how much they love each other—that no husband on the face of the earth and no wife on the face of the earth ever had or ever should have the right to break the seal of a letter belonging to the other. I would as soon commit a burglary as to open a letter that belongs to my wife. If there is something in it that she wants me to know, she will tell me. If there is something she does not want me to know, then, if I trust her, I don't want to know it, and if I don't trust her marriage is at an end, and opening the letter won't help if any." This is true as gospel.

Saloon Keeper Ackron, who was recently arrested in New York on the charge of conducting a gambling resort, says that if people are robbed in his place early they get home so much sooner and insists that he is therefore doing his patrons a good turn. He is almost as philanthropic as the waiter who robbed David Copperfield of his dinner so that the dear little fellow would not die of indigestion.

In his review of Great Britain's grievances against the Boers Lord Salisbury neglects to mention the exploit of Dr. Jameson.

It appears that the engineering difficulties are not the only ones to be encountered in the construction of the Nicaragua canal.

It is stated that the banks in Kentucky refuse to recognize either state government. Kentucky officials will now have to give up faro and devote themselves to poker.

Apparently Germany does not want American pure food to come into competition with the impure article which her butchers are selling in the Berlin market.

Minister Wu Ting Fang advises the Americans not to try to be too sharp in dealing with the Chinese. There is a certain old poem by Bret Harte which suggests that the caution might be mutual.

Whenever John Bull starts to slide down the slope of a kopje Oom Paul appears to have everything well greased for the occasion.

Just at the present time the Transvaal is enjoying the peculiar advantages of being an inland country.

Cuba's Census and Election.

General Wood, the military governor of Cuba, has informed the war department at Washington that June 16 is the date finally fixed upon for holding the municipal elections of the island.

This action is the direct result of the Cuban census taken under the direction of the military authorities. The figures supplied by what is declared to be the first accurate enumeration ever made in Cuba appear to have satisfied the war department that the municipal elections might be proceeded with in the reasonable expectation of an outcome auspicious for the future.

The total population of Cuba is now 1,572,797—815,205 males and 757,592 females. Of this total 20,478 are Spanish citizens, 1,296,767 are Cubans, 79,625 are of other citizenship and 175,811 are in suspense. The whites greatly outnumber the blacks. There are only 111,898 male negroes and 122,740 female negroes. The mixed races number 125,500 males and 145,305 females. There are less than 15,000 Chinese.

It appears that there will be at least 140,000 qualified Cuban voters under the proposed basis of suffrage, and as against these there will be less than 50,000 Spaniards. The whole matter derives its importance from the fact that the municipal elections are to afford a test of Cuban capacity for self government.

The time for the realization of the cherished desires of the Cuban patriots, independence and complete control of the political affairs of the island, will in large measure be determined by the use they shall make of the opportunity extended to them in the sphere of municipal self government.

Among the innocent victims of a war are the children born during its progress, who are condemned to carry through life the names commemorating the commanders and their successful battles. The American children who first saw the light during our recent unpleasantness with Spain were rather fortunate, inasmuch as the principal and most popular names are euphonious. Here, for instance, are some of the names, which are by no means inharmonious or inappropiate: George Dewey Dawson, San Juan Williams, Manila Murphy and Havana Henderson. But what of the fate of the babies born in England during the present war in South Africa? The London Graphic investigated the parish registers and found some horrible names fastened upon infants. Two named Majuba had about the prettiest of all, and the prophet who anticipated history by calling his little girl Pretoria gave her a name that does not grate harshly upon the ear. There were babies named Bloemfontein, Jacobsdaal, Paardeberg and Elandslaagte, who will probably be nicknamed "Bloom," "Jake," "Parry" and "Ely" and who will have much trouble spelling their name whenever they wish to have goods sent home. The favorite names of generals were Powell and White, which are not so bad. Roberts is reported a popular name for girls, and one young woman a few months old is known as Roberts Ladysmith Master-son, which is a good deal of name for a child of her size. Names like these would hardly be euphonious: Spion Kop Jones, Potgieter Perkins and Thaba Nchu Thompson.

Business appears to have been only fair at Monte Carlo the past season. The company that runs the gambling establishment there has been somewhat embarrassed on account of the big payment of $2,000,000 which it has had to pay to the Prince of Monaco for the renewal of its concession. The season's receipts have amounted to something over $4,000,000, against nearly $5,000,000 last year. Deducting all the running expenses, the gambling company regrets to announce to its stockholders that it is able to pay a dividend of only $40 a share this time. Still that isn't such a bad showing. The stockholders ought to be satisfied to get anything after the operators have had their rake off.

One of the most popular books of the season is going to be the one just issued by Uncle Sam containing supplies of postage stamps interleaved with paraffin paper to prevent them from premature adhesion. A slight advance on the price of the stamps is charged, but, as it stops the waste and annoyance caused by their sticking together, people will gladly pay the small extra price.

The people who have been paying the stamp charges on express matter under the war revenue act may perhaps derive some consolation from the decision of the supreme court that the payment is entirely legal.

A GREAT NEWSPAPER.

It has always been claimed for The Chicago Tribune that it would, in all probability, pass with the highest average in any competitive examination among the newspapers of the United States for excellence in all departments of journalism.

"Under date of May 2, 1899, the Omaha World-Herald, editorially answering a letter from 'Inquirer' asking the names of the five best newspapers in this country, points out that a newspaper may excel in one way and be inferior in another. The World-Herald gives lists under five general headings of leading American newspapers distinguished especially for excellence, mentioning 'in all some twenty.'"

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE HEADINGS

- (1) Most and best news, foreign and domestic, presented attractively.
- (2) Best possible presentation of news briefly.
- (3) Typographical appearance.
- (4) Classification of news by departments.
- (5) Editorials.

The Chicago Tribune is the only newspaper in the United States which the World-Herald considers "worthy of mention under four different heads."—From the October Plain Talk.

Practically all high-class intelligent newspaper readers, comprising the best and middle classes in Chicago and vicinity, read The Chicago Tribune. A great majority of them read no other morning newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune prints more advertising year in and year out than any newspaper in the West.

We do not pretend to be weather forecasters, but predicted a storm arising as the Leader editor appeared in front of his office Monday morning and his noble white hairs, in their straightened condition, signified that something had gone wrong and by the appearance of last week's issue of his paper should judge he had exploded his wrath to the best of his ability. Mr. Editor, we are pleased to see that you have taken this matter so seriously and perhaps now you will understand that it is much pleasanter to explode some of our mistakes than to have the compliments returned. If you care to continue your criticism we are always ready to follow.

The Lakeside orchestra kindly furnished music for the occasion. The net proceeds were $8.11, which will be used toward buying a set of dishes for the lodge.

Don't Be Funny.

It does not pay. If you have a good thing, tell it right out. Don't use false means to attract attention. We say "right out" and mean it, too, that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will cure every case of stomach trouble. FEW SIGNS OF WAR.

PRETORIA SEEMS TRANQUIL AND UNCONCERNED.

Despite the fact that the Boer Nation is struggling for existence—Pen sketches at the seat of government.

The following interesting description of life in Pretoria, the capital of the Transvaal republic, is from a correspondent of the New York Herald, and was written a few weeks ago: Imagine the capital of one of the smaller New England states, with its half-townish, half-countrified and wholly sleepy air, during a period when the legislature is not in session, and you have the Transvaal seat of government in war times. The South African republic is at war with a powerful foe, a war upon which the very existence of the nation depends, a war involving every political and social right which the Boer holds dear, yet Pretoria pursues her way tranquilly and seems on the surface unconcerned. Things go on everywhere about as usual. The town is destitute of martial atmosphere, and if an echo of the incessant fighting on the borders—only a day's ride by rail distant—knocks at the hearts of the people their faces give no trace of anxiety within. Few soldiers are seen. Beyond the half dozen sentinels who pace the pavements about the red stone Staatshaus and the small bodyguard which twice a day accompanies the president from his residence to his official sanctum, the mailed hand is not in evidence.

All the shops are open, although trade is dull, and the cabs which stand in the Burgers square in the shadow of Oom Paul's unfinished statue do a fair business. At wonted intervals the rusty tramcars, drawn by palpably discouraged horses, creak along the wide red streets, enveloped in a tiny cloud of red dust. This red dust is a permeating feature of Pretoria, being a product of the clay soil upon which the town is built. Groups of neatly clad children, the little girls in clean white frocks and sunshade hats, the boys in shirtwaists and knickers (you have to rub your eyes to realize that you are not in the United States), trip joyously along. About the streets and shops the preponderance of women over men is noticeable, and perhaps some of the faces wear an anxious look. Mourning dresses are frequent, many a lad as he romps about wearing a wisp of crape on his arm. You may, if you pay attention to such things, observe that the dresses of the women are no further behind metropolitan fashion than is generally the case in large interior towns in the United States, while the men wear the clothing of the period. Take a stroll late in the afternoon, when the declining sun has spent its heat (for it is summer here), about Sunnyside, the pretty suburban residence section of Pretoria. Low, neatly built cottages, generally surrounded by broad verandas, set back among the trees, separated from the wide, smooth streets by close copped hedges and well-kept lawns, where scores of fountains play. It is the hour of tea, and the tables will be set on the verandas or the lawns. About these tables are gathered groups of women, many of them young and beautiful, exchanging bits of gossip or talking of the absent ones—for there is scarcely a cottage that has not one or more vacancies, caused by the move of the men to the front.

Husbands, fathers, sons, brothers, sweethearts—all are missing from the homes of Pretoria. Yet their women would not have them back as long as there is a British soldier on the borders of the federated republics. The national unanimity of this war is marvellous, and the Boer women are content to watch and wait, and even suffer if need be. If the day comes when Pretoria is bound with a cordon of steel and shells are falling in her streets, these women will be found doing their duty as they see it. A society has been formed among the leading women of the place resolved upon refusing to leave the capital in the event of a siege and to remain with their men folk.

Tennis courts and croquet lawns are apt to be tenanted at this hour, for the war has by no means crushed social activity in the capital. Anything that can afford relaxation from the general mental strain is eagerly sought. Parties are frequent, and there is an occasional dance or reception. Driving is a pastime much indulged in, and some really handsome equipages turn out. In the afternoon sometimes there is cricket. Early in the morning or late in the afternoon, a few enthusiasts may be found driving a ball over the golf links. Nearly everybody attends church regularly, and special prayer services are held for the armies in the field. Once a fortnight Oom Paul preaches in the pretty church just across the street from his residence. He seldom mentions the war in his sermons. Yet it is a quiet, orderly, pretty town, just such a one as hundreds in the United States, and with just such a population.

About the hotels one catches an impression of the presence of war. Here are still quartered many of the Red Cross physicians and nurses who recently arrived, sent out by Russia, Holland and Germany. At the present stage of Boer casualties there is a superabundance of Red Cross workers, and so they remain in Pretoria, whence they can easily be sent anywhere their presence is required.

BARB WIRE TELEPHONE LINE.

Two Indiana Towns, Fifteen Miles Apart, Successfully Connected. An Anderson, Ind., correspondent writes: One of the most novel telephone systems in the world is the "barbwire" line, which connects the towns of Anderson, Pendleton and Ingalls. It is fifteen miles in length. Its inventor, builder and sole owner, Cassius Alley of Pendleton, Ind., now has six subscribers at $50 a year each. The time is not far distant when there will be ten-fold this number. One clothing company at Anderson with branch stores at Pendleton, and the Wagner Glass Works, with offices at Anderson and factory at Ingalls, are using this barb-wire system in their business affairs exclusively. They use the line frequently. They can convert it into a private line by plugs so arranged that when one party is using the line he can cut out all others except in Mr. Alley's residence, which is used as a central station. It is no exaggeration to say that this barb-wire telephone system is quite as satisfactory as the copper circuit of the Bell. Ordinary phones are used with no special strength of battery and there is very little trouble with the lines. In constructing the line Mr. Alley used the top strand of the barb-wire fence of the Big Four railway, making the connections with the offices of his subscribers with ordinary telephone wire. In some instances where the posts had rotted it was necessary to paint the wire and posts with rubber paint to insulate the wire. The whole line of fifteen miles was built at a cost of about $100, and the outfit for each house, consisting of receiver, transmitter, battery, call, etc., costs not over $10. The line has been in operation since December 22, and has not been out of order except for a few hours when a fast train on the railway track struck a cow, threw her body against the fence and broke the wire.

MEN OF GENIUS.

First-Born Sons Do Not Monopolize Greatness.

Professor Axenfeld, an eminent European physiologist, has brought about an interesting discussion by the statement of his belief that men of genius are always the oldest of families. "Second or third sons, may be eminent men," he adds, "and sons born later may be men of talent, but they can never be great." Dr. Cyrus Edson, a physiologist of New York, undertakes to controvert these statements, and furnishes the following names of men of genius who were not the first-born: Benjamin Franklin, fifteenth; Sir R. Arkwright, thirteenth; Joseph Butler, eighth; Sir Joseph Reynolds, seventh; Alfred the Great, fifth; Sir Charles Bell, fifth; Prince Bismarck, fourth; Gladstone, fourth; Cecil Rhodes, fourth; Wellington, third; Charles James Fox, third; Sir Robert Walpole, third; Shakespeare, third; Beaumont, third; Fletcher, third; Lord Lytton, third; Philip of Macedon, third; Tennyson, third; Simon de Montfort, third; Napoleon Bonaparte, second; Turenne, second; Solomon, second; Sir William Wallace, second; John Wesley, second; Sir F. Baring, second; Montaigne, second; Carlyle, second; Brian Boru, second; Christopher Huggens, second; R. B. Sheridan, second.

Women Not Money Makers.

In Harper's Bazar, Hetty Green, the famous woman financier, tells why women are not money-makers. She says: "In the first place, woman is entirely too impulsive for business. She sails gaily into the world of commerce, believing in everything, and in herself most of all. A certain stock may be increased temporarily in value, owing to the enterprise of its owners, who are themselves advancing the market. The woman speculator, with her usual impetuosity, thinks: 'I must have some of that. If it is this high, I can sell it for more.' She does not stop to look over the market; she has not trained her judgment, but, with both hands outstretched, offering her little all, she plunges headlong into the grasp of cunning speculators. The next day—or the next hour, perhaps—the stock falls in value. She is just the prey the sharpers are looking for. More money is made in the end by an oversupply of caution than by indiscriminate recklessness. I am not advising timidity. Quite the contrary. Be sure that you are right first, then go ahead."

METHODISTS AND SPORT.

Leaders of Church Against Theaters, Cards and Dancing.

The Vandavia district conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was in session at Mason, Ill., Thursday. About ninety delegates were in attendance. The Rev. John W. Flint, D. D., of Salem, Ill., the presiding elder of the district, is the president of the conference. A memorial to the general conference was unanimously adopted strongly condemning the movement on foot to remove the Central Christian Advocate and Methodist Book concern from St. Louis to Kansas City, Mo. A report was adopted urging the delegates from this conference to the general conference at Chicago in May to do all in their power to defeat the movement now on foot to strike from the discipline the rule prohibiting dancing, card-playing and theater-going among the members of the church.

Take Cronje for a Drive.

General Cronje and his wife, accompanied by the general's private secretary, were permitted to attend religious services Sunday at Deadwood Camp, St. Helena, after which they had their first ride around the country, an experience which seemed to give General Cronje much pleasure. The Boer commander was received with cheers.

A JAPANESE NOBLE.

Talks of the Amalgamation of Three Religions.

Tacoma (Wash.) Special New York Times: Some of the leaders of religious thought in Japan are endeavoring to choose between Buddhism, Shintoism and Christianity as the future religion of the empire. Others would amalgamate the best features of the several religions. One of these is Count Okuma, one of the heads of the Japanese government. In an interview reported in a Japanese newspaper he says: "The fundamental idea of Confucianism is benevolence, that of Buddhism is compassion or mercy and that of Christianity love. These feelings form the basis of all religion. The founders of the different religions knew their own people and their own part of the world only, and hence could not devise any system of teaching that should suit all countries alike, but they did an immense deal in the way of drawing attention to the importance of certain principles. For the multiplication of sects their disciples are responsible. Their interpretation of the meaning of the words said to be used by the founders differed widely, and each variation was perpetuated by special forms and ceremonies. What is most desirable now is to get rid of the superstructure and lay bare the foundation. Benevolence, compassion and love! Cannot Buddhists, Christians and Confucianists come together on these principles and work in harmony? This union may not be witnessed in my time, but it will come some day." Some of the Christian churches in Japan are taking steps to open a new divinity school to take the place of the Doshisha Divinity hall, which has been closed owing to a disagreement with the American Missionary board in New York, which supported it. Hitherto the American Board of Foreign Missions and the Japanese churches have been acting separately, but since the object is the same, efforts will be made to unite the two classes of workers.

A NINE-CENT MEAL.

Prince and Princess of Wales Dine at the People's Restaurant.

A touching incident, simple in its character, but invested with almost historical interest, marked the opening of a couple of weeks ago of the first of the poor men's restaurants which the Princess of Wales has succeeded in establishing in London. No formal ceremony inaugurated the opening day's business at the establishment founded by the Alexandra Trust in the City-road, London. Something much more telling than prosaic speeches, more impressive than votes of thanks, occurred to draw attention to the cooked meals which are served at a cost below anything previously attempted in London. One day the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Hon. Sydney Greville, drove down to the City-road on a surprise visit to the Alexandra restaurant. Luncheon tickets were bought in the ordinary way at 4 1/2d. (9 cents) each. Whilst thousands of toilers, workmen, factory girls, shop boys and needy clerks were consuming the luncheon provided in the big dining halls, the royal visitors sat down to a similar meal in an adjoining room. There were six in the royal luncheon party. Three courses were served. The bill for the whole party came to 2s. 3d. (54 cents). Needless to say, the presence of the heir-apparent and the princess in the restaurant was the occasion of a singularly interesting demonstration on the part of the people.

By a Professor.

A man's ideal of womanhood is generally worth knowing, and for this reason the following sentence from an article in the Humanitarian, written by Prof. Mantegazza, will be read with interest: "In order to approach to the perfection required in the future, woman should try to improve herself physically, morally and intellectually—three adverbs which represent the great human trinity, three gods in one god, the god of happiness, who is the perfect equilibrium of all our energies, who is a being who answers to all our necessities, who is a being who does not forget the body by giving everything to the soul, and who does not reduce man to the level of an animal, which eats and drinks and sleeps. Woman has always been and always will be, powerful—all powerful—on account of her beauty, and we poor servants of nature can neither dethrone her nor make her move by unaccustomed ways. Only we ought to extend the physical beauty of a woman to her heart and thought."

Must Furnish Clean Cars.

A railroad company which undertakes to carry cattle is bound to provide cars that are not infected with contagious cattle diseases, and if it furnishes cars in which cattle that had "Texas fever" have been hauled, without properly disinfecting them, it is liable for the value of any cattle which the shipper may lose by reason of that fact. The Supreme Court of Illinois so declared in the case of the Illinois Central Railroad company vs. Harris.

DAN. GROSVENOR SAYS: OUR BUDGET OF FUN

"Peruna is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, of the Famous Ohio Family.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy." Very respectfully, Dan A. Grosvenor,

Hal P. Denton, Chief National Export Exposition, Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was completely run down from overwork and the responsibility naturally connected with the exploitation of a great international exposition. My physician recommended an extended vacation. When life seemed almost a burden I began taking Peruna, and with the use of the fifth bottle I found myself in a normal condition. I have since enjoyed the best of health."

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Every one who has tried it has had the same experience as Mrs. D. W. Timberlake, of Lynchburg, Va., who, in a recent letter, made use of the following words: "I always take a dose of Peruna after business hours, as it is a great thing for the nerves. There is no better spring tonic, and I have used about all of them."

THE FREIGHT BUSINESS.

Not the "Go-as-You-Please" Hap-Hazard Thing Many Suppose.

Most people have an idea that freight is the last thing that railroads look after. Many profess to believe that a piece of freight once started on its journey is allowed to loaf along at its own sweet will and pleasure, stopping where it wishes, and staying as long as it likes, and only bringing up at its destination when there is nowhere else to go. When you have waited day after day for that piano which was shipped a month ago you are ready to adopt that opinion. But don't be in a hurry. When that piano box shows up in Poughkeepsie at the time it should be in Portland, the Poughkeepsie agent does not uncase the instrument and give a series of boxcar recitals for the next two months. You may think he does, but he doesn't. Not a bit of it! There is no welcome anywhere for the wandering Willies of freightdom. No agent wishes to be caught with missing freight piled up in his yard or house. The truth of the matter is, the railroads are continually punching jagged freight in the ribs and admonishing it to move on. After you have listened to a freight agent's description of the elaborate plans taken to look after freight you will marvel that a single package ever goes astray. But—the man who is waiting for that piano knows that it does.—Lewiston Journal.

They Got Out of the Dilemma.
In Kansas a number of years ago, there was a country editor who invariably got full just after his paper was issued on Friday, and would stay intoxicated till the following Monday, then sober up and get out his paper. One week he and the printer working for him got on a big high-lonesome and stayed that way till the next publication day. They sobered up and found they were in a dilemma—paper day and no type up, and the previous week's forms not even distributed, everything was just where they left off the week before. The editor scratched his tousled head a few minutes, grabbed a large composing stick and set in large letters across the page: "By request of 300 prominent citizens we republish last week's paper." The problem was solved, but everybody is still wondering who were the "300 prominent citizens," and why they wanted the paper republished.

Lottery for the Minister, Too.
In Cripple Creek a sturdy miner drove up to the minister's house with a young woman, to whom he desired to be married. When the ceremony was concluded and the minister's fee came up, the happy man discovered that he had left his money in his other trousers.

"What's your usual fee?" he asked.
"Sometimes we get $2, sometimes $5," said the parson.
"Then that ain't no usual about it," decided the happy man, quickly adding: "Tell ye what I'll do, mister; I'll gamble with yer. I'll walk a year, an' if this pans out O. K. I'll give ye $10, an' if it don't—" He smiled.—San Francisco Wave.

Upsetting Arithmetical Tradition.
Jack—How did you come out on that bulldog pup you bought?
Dick—Lost over 100 per cent on the transaction.
Jack—Oh, I guess not. A hundred per cent is all you can possibly lose.
Dick—Think so, do you? Well, I paid $10 for the pup, and then I had to give a boy a dollar to take him out and drown him. If that isn't a hundred and ten per cent loss, I'd like to know what you call it.—New York Sun.

The Voice and Altitude.
Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Among the people living on the plateaus between mountain ranges the men have voices like the women and the women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

FOR WOMAN'S HEALTH

Earnest Letters from Women Relieved of Pain by Mrs. Pinkham.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before I commenced to take your medicine I was in a terrible state, wishing myself dead a good many times. Every part of my body seemed to pain in some way. At time of menstruation my suffering was something terrible. I thought there was no cure for me, but after taking several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all my bad feelings were gone. I am now well and enjoying good health. I shall always praise your medicine."—Mrs. AMOS FESCHLER, Box 226, Romeo, Mich.

Female Troubles Overcome
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I had female trouble, painful menses, and kidney complaint, also stomach trouble. About a year ago I happened to pick up a paper that contained an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I read how it had helped others, I thought it might help me, and decided to give it a trial. I did so, and as a result am now feeling perfectly well. I wish to thank you for the benefit your medicine has been to me."—MRS. CLARA STIEBER, Diller, Neb.

No More Pain
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound has been of much benefit to me. When my menses first appeared they were very irregular. They occurred too often and did not leave for a week or more. I always suffered at these times with terrible pains in my back and abdomen. Would be in bed for several days and would not be exactly rational at times. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and menses became regular and pains left me entirely."—Mrs. E. F. CUSTER, Brule, Wis.

ALABASTINE Is a durable and natural cement-base wall coating. In 5 lb. paper packages, made ready for use in white and fourteen beautiful tints by mixing with cold water. It is a cement that goes through a process of setting, hardens with age, and can be coated and recoated without washing off its old coats before renewing.

ALABASTINE Is entirely different from all the various kaolinones on the market, being durable and not stuck on the wall with glue. Alabastine customers should insist on having the goods in packages properly labeled. They should reject all imitations. There is nothing "just as good."

ALABASTINE Prevents much sickness, particularly throat and lung difficulties, attributable to unsanitary coatings on walls. It has been recommended in a paper published by the Michigan State Board of Health on account of its sanitary features; which paper strongly condemned kaolinones. Alabastine can be used on either plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas, and any one can brush it on. It admits of radical changes from wall paper decorations, thus securing at reasonable expense the latest and best effects. Alabastine is manufactured by the Alabastine Company of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Instructive and interesting booklet mailed free to all applicants.

The News will have something further to say on the matter as the campaign progresses.—Antioch News.

We see that in the newly organized county board our representatives are on several important committees. Mr. Hogan headed the finance committee, the most important one there is, besides being on some others, while Mr. McDonald is chairman of one and second on the poor farm. Deerfield may be a small town off in one corner of the county, but her men of brains and ability are recognized. The board elected Editor Lamey of Barrington as chairman, showing how well they appreciate good editors.—Sheridan Road News-Letter.

Essence of

The Jones Lever Binder

has but 16 pieces in the knoter alone while on other machines the parts used for a like purpose are from 28 to as high as 50 pieces. It is the simplest, lightest draft and longest lived mower made. It is made of steel and malleable iron for long wear and requires less expense for repairs than other machines.
