P. H. S. 18. MORTON A. C. 11.

The High School base ball team defeated the Morton Athletic Club team on the local grounds last Saturday by a score of 18 to 11. The Mortons are a much older team than our boys but the school team had the visitors at their mercy from the start. Every man in the Palatine team played a good game and Beutler pitched in his usual good form. The Mortons put two pitchers in the box but both were batted freely. The grounds were in bad shape owing to the heavy rains and but a small crowd witnessed the game. The Roselands of Chicago are scheduled for a game this afternoon and it is hoped that there will be a better attendance. The High School team put up a clean game of ball and deserve the patronage of all who are interested in out door sports. The expense is considerable and they depend on Palatine people for support. Help them out by your presence.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

The Gun Club held a shoot last Saturday afternoon and the score was as follows:

W. Mosser.....	4424	18
J. Moorhouse.....	4353	18
M. Richmond.....	32434	16
W. Richmond.....	33442	16
C. Seip.....	1253	16
R. Putnam.....	3353	15
Sutherland.....	12431	11

On the Diamond.

Last Saturday was a dismal day for the Barrington Juniors who sit up nights to study essays on base ball. They had thirsted during the week for the blood of the Wauconda's who are noted as pie eaters, as well as ball players, but it rained and the contest was postponed until Tuesday when the Juniors had their thirst satisfied.

The game was called at the race track grounds at 3:15 p. m. and for 2½ hours the sheep skin was pounded all over that section of earth. The game was very exciting, and a Navajo Indian never yelled louder at a war dance than did the coaches of the contesting teams. The nines were pretty evenly matched, although the sprinting abilities of the Wauconda's proved to be the best. Errors were as numerous as flies in an empty sugar hogshead and about evenly divided.

When the eighth inning was reached it looked as though the Juniors were in the soup tureen good and deep, but they took an extra swipe at the sphere, and pounded out four runs. The following score is the excuse for so much rooting and display of leg power:

Wauconda.....	113020122-12
Barrington.....	100410014-11

Dixon and Meyer umpired the game most satisfactorily, and the battle was witnessed by a small but interested crowd. Wauconda was hilarious with joy and showed their happiness by each purchasing a pie (something new to them) and devouring it in liberal doses, took their way homeward as proud as though winners of the National league pennant.

Amid Better Surroundings.

The population of Barrington and vicinity was increased Tuesday by the arrival of forty children from the tenement districts of Chicago, who were sent here by the Bureau of Associated Charities for an outing, being beneficiaries of the Fresh Air Fund. The children were of all ages, sizes and nationality, and their colorless cheeks was evidence of the unhealthy atmosphere of their city habitations. One could not fail to notice the marked contrast between the little visitors whose daily life is spent among the undesirable surroundings of city life and the children of our village who are brought up in happy, comfortable homes near to nature's heart.

There was a large delegation of women and children at the station to welcome the arrivals, and, no doubt, many of the neglected ones received the first kind word or caress bestowed upon them in months. Each child had a tag attached bearing their name and to whom assigned, and their little faces were lighted with joy at the prospect of being taken, for a brief period into the homes of hospitable people, where they were to receive treatment such as they were seldom accorded in the place known to them as home.

Many of the woman taking these little ones into their households were already burdened with the cares of a large family, but what mattered that. These children needed care and their condition, their morals and from what conditions they came, was not considered. The women of Barrington stop not to inquire who or what these little ones are, but carry out the commands of Him who knew no caste.

No higher compliment could be paid to the hospitality of our people than this action in opening their hearts and homes to these little ones and allowing them a glimpse of a better, more congenial life, and the boys and girls now amongst us will always look back to this outing as an oasis in the desert of life.

An Enjoyable Event.

One of the most pleasant social events in Barrington was given at the home of Samuel Gieske, Wednesday evening, the occasion being a farewell party tendered Misses Carrie and Emma Schuester, of Cleveland, Ohio, who have been visiting friends in this vicinity for sometime past.

The affair was in the nature of a surprise, and former friends and associates to the number of forty attended and vied with each other in making the evening one of pleasure. Besides the numerous amusements offered the reminiscences of many enjoyable occasions were resurrected. Refreshments were served and everything calculated to make the affair one long to be remembered, was successfully carried out.

The Misses Schuester were prominent in the circle of our young people two years ago when their father, the Rev. Schuester, was pastor of the Salem Evangelical church. The young ladies departed Thursday morning for their home in Cleveland, carrying the good wishes of all and fond remembrances of the happy hours spent in their former home.

Barrington Teachers Selected.

The Board of Education has engaged the following to teach in the Barrington public schools upon the opening of the fall term: F. E. Smith, principal; Miss Minnie Batterton, of Springfield, 7th and 8th grades; Miss Rose Kublank of Palatine, 3rd grade; Miss Alvina Meyers, 4th grade; Miss Alice Lawler, 2nd grade; Miss Hahn, who recently taught in the Smith district, 5th and 6th grades, and Miss Mary Frye primary room. The new teachers are Misses Hahn and Kublank.

Why Not A Better One?

The North-Western Company have a gang of men at work reshingling the old depot. It has been the hope of our people that the company would pull down or remove the old structure and erect one that would not only be a credit to the company but to the village as well; one presentable to our residents and the large number of city people who arrive here daily to spend their time in recreation at the many enchanting resorts and summer hotels in this vicinity.

The patching up from time to time only indicates the intention of the company to preserve it and make it do for sometime to come either in the capacity of a combination depot, as it is now, or to be used in the future for freight purposes only.

Prize Eating Contest.

"They had an eating contest the other night at Pin Hook schoolhouse."
"Who won?"
"Ben Splutters—he ate nine head of cabbage."
"Didn't it make him sick?"
"No. He just took a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That prevents Stomach Trouble of any kind, they say."

NISSEN SHOTS RAPIDS.

Daring Man Goes Through the Niagara Whirlpool.

Peter Nissen of Chicago, who prefers to be known as "Bowser," made a successful journey through the Niagara rapids and whirlpool Monday afternoon in his boat, the Foolkiller. The boat struck the first foam-topped wave and turned over as easily as if it had been a stick instead of having a 1,250-pound keel. Man and boat disappeared. The watchers thought it was all over, when suddenly farther down stream "Bowser" reappeared, clutching the boat with one hand and waving his jersey cap with the other. The boat had righted itself. This occurred three times in the rapid journey, for it took only two and a half minutes for the whole trip through the rapids. Then "Bowser" and his boat were flung into the whirlpool. He was carried straight to the vortex which sucked in the boat, easting it up a minute later, with the drenched but plucky fellow clinging to his seat. Here it remained for forty minutes while the whirlpool played with it, spinning it like a top, then rolling it round the outer rims of the whirlpool. The man was finally rescued by three men who ventured into the water as far as they dared and caught a rope which he threw to them as his boat swung round on the outside of the pool. "Bowser" said the trip was more terrible than he feared, although he came out unharmed.

Three Died Quickly.

At Dayton, O., while John Burns, aged 50, a painter, was arranging his ladder on the fourth story of a building, he slipped from the scaffold and fell fifty feet to the pavement, being almost instantly killed. Nearly every bone in his body was broken. Burns moved to that city from Decatur, Ill., six months ago. He leaves a wife, Earl Wolf, 16, of Parker avenue, Dayton, was drowned in the Miami river, two miles south of the city. He was bathing with several companions, Joseph Weber, aged 72, a veteran at the Soldier's home and a former member of the Forty-fourth Ohio, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

Pray for China Missionaries.

The Baptist state convention met at Jackson, Miss. The 400 delegates are being entertained at private residences. The Baptist is the largest denomination in Mississippi. Dr. R. A. Venable of Meridian, was elected president; Dr. H. F. Sproles of Vicksburg, and Perrin Lowry of Blue Mountain, vice presidents; E. E. Thornton, recording secretary; A. J. Miller, statistical secretary; L. S. Foster, corresponding secretary; S. L. Hearne, treasurer. Several notable ministers from other states are in attendance. Special prayers were offered for missionaries in China.

Two Killed by Railroad Cars.

At Pitsburg, Pa., two persons were killed outright and a third seriously hurt in a most peculiar railroad accident. The dead are: Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, 40 years old; Thomas Morris, 48 years old. Thomas Edwards, husband of the dead woman, had his leg so badly lacerated that it will have to be amputated. The freight broke in two at the switch. The portion which turned into the switch jammed the line of cabooses through the buffer into the party.

Keane Halts in Accepting See.

It is understood that Archbishop Keane of the Catholic university at Washington hesitates about accepting the government of the metropolitan see of Dubuque, owing to the bitter opposition which the German clergy of Iowa are making against his appointment. They have a candidate of their own selection and the authorities of the propaganda in Rome have been urgently petitioned by them not to appoint Archbishop Keane.

Americans in Front.

American athletes, handicapped by climatic conditions swept the picked men of England before them in the English championships at Stamford Bridge, winning eight firsts in the thirteen events decided. Kraenzlein, the Milwaukee boy who represents the University of Pennsylvania, was the star of the meet, setting the world's record of 15 2-5 for the 120-yard hurdles on grass and also capturing the running broad jump.

Hailstones Freeze Ice Cream.

The largest hailstones ever seen at Kewanee, Ill., fell in the country five miles north of the city. The hail broke window panes and even sashes, the stones being larger than baseballs. One farmer gathered hailstones from the ground an hour after the storm and used them for freezing ice cream. The growing corn in the track of the storm was badly injured. All the farmers agree as to the size of the hail.

Mrs. Dewey Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Dewey is more seriously ill at Nargansett Pier than was at first reported. The admiral had planned to leave for Washington, but Mrs. Dewey's illness may prevent. Certainly she will not accompany him. Her throat is affected. She is obliged to remain within doors.

NOMINEES OF THE CONVENTION.

Biographical Sketches of Bryan and Stevenson.

William Jennings Bryan's father, Silas L. Bryan, was born in Culpepper county, Virginia, at the base of the Blue Ridge mountains. He went to Illinois when a youth of 18, settling finally at Salem, on the edge of Egypt. Here he made a permanent home, became distinguished in public life, married and reared a family, of whom William Jennings Bryan was the fourth out of nine sons and daughters. In 1852 Silas Bryan married Mariah E. Jennings, who was born in Marion county, near Salem, in 1824. Judge Bryan's young bride was from a distinguished family in Marion county. The house where William Jennings Bryan was born March 19, 1860, is on Broadway, Salem. The house was originally built of logs, hewn by the elder Bryan's own hands. A few years later he began work on a substantial brick farmhouse about a mile east of Salem. This was the pride of Judge Bryan's life. Surrounded by 600 acres of splendid land, the brick mansion stands 500 feet back from the road and is approached by a private driveway, lined with six rows of maples. Judge Bryan set apart a space for a deer park and at the time of his death had a fine herd.

It was on this farm that young "Billy" Bryan spent the years of his boyhood. He has little early recollection of the house in which he was born, having left there when about 5 years old and moved to the farm. His chief sport when a boy was rabbit hunting and jumping. He is said to be still fond of both. After his graduation he won a prize for a standing jump, covering 12 feet 4 inches.

During vacation season young Bryan used to return to the old farm and work with his father and hired help in the fields or around the big barn. Some seasons he "hired out" to neighboring farmers, and earned spending money, which came handy at college. During his junior year he met Miss Mary E. Baird, a junior in the female academy at the same place. They became engaged that year. Miss Baird graduated the day before Mr. Bryan, as valedictorian of her class of eight, while he was the valedictorian of his class of fifteen. She was born in Perry, Ill., where her father was a merchant. They were married October 4, 1884. Mr. Bryan was 21 when he graduated from the Illinois college at Jacksonville. He entered the law office of William Springer for a short time, and then went to Chicago for a two years' course at the Union College of Law. This was in 1881, and during the next two years he was in the office of the late Senator Lyman Trumbull, besides attending law classes. At the end of his Chicago course Mr. Bryan returned to Jacksonville and began practicing law with moderate success. He stayed at Jacksonville until October, 1887, when he removed to Lincoln, Neb., his present home. Some legal matters in Nebraska had required Mr. Bryan's personal attention. At his first visit to the state capital he was so pleased with the place that he made up his mind to remain there. He opened a law office in partnership with A. R. Talbot, who was a classmate of Mr. Bryan's in the law school.

From the outset of his Nebraska career Mr. Bryan took part in politics. In 1890 he was elected to congress from the first Nebraska district over W. J. Connell of Omaha. Mr. Bryan's political career really began with his nomination for congress. His success was rewarded at Washington, where Speaker Crisp gave him a place on the ways and means committee. Mr. Bryan's first speech in congress was delivered March 12, 1892.

At the next congressional session Mr. Bryan was reappointed on the ways and means committee, and rendered much service in subsequent legislation.

Early in 1894 he wrote a letter declining to again become a candidate for congressional honors. By this time he had become the recognized leader of the Nebraska Democracy. At the state convention, which met Sept. 23, 1894, Dr. Edwards of Lincoln placed Mr. Bryan in nomination for United States senator. Delegates from every section of the state seconded the nomination, and on the roll-call it was made unanimous. He was beaten in the legislature by Senator Thurston.

Four years ago he became a figure of national prominence at the Democratic national convention at Chicago, which nominated him for president of the United States. The stampede in favor of Mr. Bryan for the presidential nomination followed what was considered the greatest speech of his political career. The remarkable canvass that followed Mr. Bryan's nomination in 1896 is still fresh in the public mind.

In the stirring days of the Spanish-American war two years ago Mr. Bryan raised a regiment from his own state and was commissioned colonel. He served with his regiment in the south until the close of hostilities.

The Bryans live in a handsome house in one of the prettiest parts of Lincoln. Their children are Ruth, age 14; William J., Jr., age 10, and Grace, age 8. The study, in which both Colonel and Mrs. Bryan have desks, is filled with books, stationery and souvenirs of various campaigns. In the room are busts or portraits of Washington, Webster, Clay, Jefferson, Benton, Jackson, Lincoln, Douglas, Gladstone and one of Mrs. Bryan's father. Sketches of different kinds adorn the walls.

Adlai Ewing Stevenson, the Democratic nominee for vice president, was born in Christian county, Kentucky, Oct. 23, 1835. In 1852 he removed with his parents to Bloomington, Ill. Here he attended the public schools. His education was finished at Center College, Danville, Ky., and at the Illinois Wesleyan University. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1857. In 1864 he was chosen prosecuting attorney for the twenty-third judicial district. He was elected to congress as a currency reformer in 1874, and was re-elected to the forty-sixth congress. He served as first assistant postmaster-general during Mr. Cleveland's first term, and was elected vice president of the United States in 1892. He is a man of affairs, and also an excellent campaigner. As presiding officer of the United States senate he gained the friendship of all the members irrespective of party. He was among Mr. Bryan's most ardent supporters in 1896.

LITHOGRAPHERS' STONE.

It is Found Mostly in the Kingdom of Bavaria.

The territory in and around the village of Solnhofen, in the Kingdom of Bavaria, forms the world's chief supply of lithographic stones, says United States Consul Weber, stationed at Nuremberg, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. The litho stones found in France, near Montpellier, cannot compare with the solnhofen stones. Lithographic stone is nothing but a com-compact and homogeneous limestone, and the villages of Solnhofen, Moernsheim and Langenaltheim, with a population of about 3,000 inhabitants, lie right in the center of such limestone strata. These cover an area of about ten acres, of which the greater part has not yet been worked. The statement which is given out from time to time, mostly from interested parties, that the supply of Solnhofen stones is rapidly diminishing is therefore absolutely without foundation. These stones will not be exhausted for the next 200 years at least. Rumors of newly discovered litho-stone beds in other countries have so far proved to be untrue, or the stones found have turned out to be of little use. Nowadays, I hear, litho-stones must be of excellent quality in order to satisfy the requirements of the art. Many stones found at Solnhofen are laid aside as not coming up to the standard. These are sold to builders and are used for paving floors, etc. A scarcity, therefore, of superior lithographic stones, if it should ever arise, would have the effect of bringing into the market inferior stones.

It is interesting to note that the stones here do not lie deep in the ground. In fact, only the earth and some rock have to be removed as a rule. The stones lie in layers and

MISS GRACE BRYAN.

(Aged 8.) have simply to be taken carefully from the earth. The bulk of the ground beneath which the litho-stones lie belongs to the communities of Solnhofen and Moernsheim, and therefore such gemeindeburger (homestead owner) of these communities has a share in the ground.

BRYAN AND STEVENSON.

Nominated by the Democrats at Kansas City.

FRIDAY'S SESSION.

The Democratic National convention at Kansas City adjourned Friday afternoon after having nominated Bryan of Nebraska, for president and Stevenson of Illinois, for vice-president. A condensed report of the proceedings of the convention follows:

Stevenson for Second Place.

The closing session of the convention on Friday was not as tame as such sessions generally are. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, was nominated on the first ballot. Towne was named by Rosing of Minnesota, and Stevenson by Williams of Illinois. Ex-Gov. Thomas of Colorado, seconded the nomination of Towne in an eloquent speech which set the galleries aflame again, and then the delegates' turn to shout came.

Senator Grady named David B. Hill of New York for vice-president. No sooner had the well-known name been pronounced than pandemonium broke loose. Two-thirds of the delegates leaped to their feet and began to cheer and wave their hats, handkerchiefs and canes. The fickle crowd took up the chorus and the building reverberated with a mighty shout.

Congressman Newlands of Nevada, a silver republican, seconded the nomination of Towne, and incidentally dwelt upon the need of allying the western states. Congressman Daly of New Jersey, seconded the nomination of Hill. Ex-Congressman Handy of Delaware also seconded the nomination of Hill. He said that although Hill had declined to accept the nomination, he was indispensable to party success. There was another Hill demonstration at the conclusion of the ex-congressman's address.

Col. Dougherty of Columbus, as spokesman of the Ohio delegation, presented the name of Judge Patrick of Ohio for vice-president.

Before a ballot was taken Hill announced that he would not accept if nominated. As the balloting proceeded it was soon seen that it was Stevenson and the states that previously voted for Towne changed their vote to the winner. Mr. Stevenson having received more than a two-thirds vote was declared the nominee. The convention then adjourned.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

Bryan Is Nominated.

Mr. Bryan was nominated at the evening session. It is said fully twenty thousand spectators showed approval. The nominating speech was made by W. S. Oldham of Nebraska, who paid an eloquent tribute to the Nebraskan.

Routine Proceedings.

Chairman Richardson presented the Rt. Rev. John J. Glennon of Kansas City for the opening invocation. As the entire audience, delegates and spectators stood with bowed heads the Rev. Mr. Glennon prayed very fervently.

Mr. Richardson then announced that the platform committee was not ready to report, and pending word from them he invited to the platform Ex-Gov. Hogg of Texas, who addressed the convention.

At the termination of Gov. Hogg's address the cry of "Hill" started. Chairman Richardson wielded his gavel vigorously, and when order was restored in some degree introduced A. M. Dockery of Missouri.

The first mention of Dewey's name since the opening of the convention was made by Mr. Dockery while discussing the Philippine question, but the name of the famous admiral was received without a ripple of applause.

Waiting for the Platform.

At the conclusion of the speech of Mr. Dockery, Mayor D. S. Rose of Milwaukee was called to the platform to address the convention. He made a fine impression instantly and soon stirred the audience to cheers.

When quiet was partially secured the chair recognized Mr. Williams, who submitted a resolution, reciting: "That a committee of nine delegates, be appointed by the chair for the purpose of conferring with the silver Republican and Populist parties now gathered in Kansas City."

Shouts of "No, no" followed the reading, but the resolution was put to a vote and amid much confusion on the floor was declared adopted.

Congressman James R. Williams of Illinois was then introduced by Chairman Richardson. He opened his remarks by an appeal to all Democrats to stand together on one platform, which he declared would be broad enough to hold them all. He spoke briefly and was frequently applauded.

As Mr. Williams took his seat Chairman Richardson announced that Gov. J. W. Beckham of Kentucky would address the convention.

After the cheers with which Gov. Beckham's speech was received had subsided Chairman Richardson introduced J. W. Miles of Maryland, who addressed the convention in support of conservation action upon the platform.

As Mr. Miles concluded, Chairman Richardson announced that he had been informed the platform committee would be ready to report at 3:30. Thereupon a motion was agreed to to adjourn until that hour.

Afternoon Session.

By 3:30 nearly all of the delegates were ready for business, and at 3:33

the chairman made his appearance. At 3:46 Senator Hill of New York, who had been absent from the two preceding sessions, came through the delegates' door by himself. Then the cry of "Hill," "Hill," broke forth.

At 4 o'clock the convention was still waiting for the arrival of the committee on resolutions, and nothing was going on with the exception of occasional music by the band. The crowd had been allowed full swing and the jam had reached the danger point. It was not until 4 o'clock that Chairman Richardson, returning from a conference with Gov. McMillin and Senator White, picked up the gavel and brought the convention to order. The platform committee, headed by Senator Jones, D. J. Campau, Senator Tillman and Judge Van Wyck, had just pushed their way through, and, proceeding to the platform, had taken seats flanking the chairman. Mr. Richardson appealed long for order. When quiet was restored Senator Jones arose and said:

"I am authorized by the committee on resolutions to present the platform agreed upon, and I will yield to the Senator from South Carolina, Mr. Tillman, to read the document."

Reading the Platform.

Mr. Tillman then stepped to the front and was greeted with a cheer. He read the platform in a full round voice, easily heard throughout the hall. As he proceeded each plank was greeted with applause. (The full text of the platform will be found in another column.)

When the applause had subsided Chairman Jones of the platform committee said he had been instructed to move that the platform be adopted by the convention by acclamation. The motion was put and amid a roar of cheers and applause the platform was adopted without a word of dissent. The announcement of Chairman Richardson of the adoption of the platform was followed by a stunning shout, which made the building ring from one end to the other.

Text of the Platform.

Imperialism is held to be the most important issue immediately before the American people. Extensions of government without the consent of the governed is opposed. Independence is promised the Filipinos. Expansion to territory which can be made into states without injustice to the inhabitants of the United States, and with the consent of the people annexed, is favored. Militarism, with a strong standing army, is held to threaten the liberties of the people and the stability of a free government. Strict construction of the Monroe doctrine is demanded. The Chicago platform of 1896 is reaffirmed, with special declaration in favor of free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. The Porto Rico bill and the Republican policy in Cuba are denounced. Trusts are charged with robbing both the producer and consumer, and rigid legislation for their suppression is called for. Free trade in articles used by the trusts is urged. The Dingley tariff law is condemned. The new currency law is denounced as being a measure in the interest of the national banks. The retirement of all national bank notes is demanded. Arbitration is urged as the means for settling industrial disturbances, and a department of labor, with a seat in the cabinet, is advocated. Liberal pensions are promised to soldiers. The construction of the Nicaragua canal by the United States is demanded, and the Hay-Pauncefote treaty denounced. Statehood is held out for New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma. Sympathy is expressed for the Boers in their struggle for liberty and independence. Reduction and repeal of present war taxes are demanded.

Bryan Put in Nomination.

W. D. Oldham of Nebraska then presented the name of Mr. Bryan to the convention. Among other things he said:

"Mr. Chairman: More than a hundred years ago the continental congress of America adopted a declaration which had been drafted by the founder of the Democratic party, and the joyous tones of the old Liberty bell which greeted the act announced to a waiting world that a nation had been born.

"With hearts unchilled by the selfish sentiments of cold commercialism, you have responded patriotically to each sentiment contained in democracy's first platform as it was read to you at the opening of this convention; and in view of the radical departure which the party in power had made from the principles set forth in that historic document, it is meet that we—true believers in the republic of old—should, when choosing a field and forming our lines for the bloodless battle of ballots now impending, say in the language of one of the loved patriots of long ago: 'Read this declaration at the head of the army, and every sword shall be drawn from its scabbard and a solemn vow taken to maintain it or to perish on the field of honor.'

"Democratic skies are tinged with a rosier hue today than when we met in convention four years ago. Then a financial cataclysm had spread over the country, and, although its every inducing cause was easily traced to the errors and follies of the republican party, yet we were in power when it came, and were wrongly held responsible for the wreck of shattered fortunes which followed in its wake. Torn asunder by dissensions within and disasters without, our party faced a gloomy and foreboding future which seemed to augur its dissolution. The problem then was to select a standard-bearer bold enough to cover the rear of a retreat and save the party from destruction, if not from defeat.

The Coming Champion.

"While discord with her flaming torch confused the counsels there, from out the sunset realm a champion came and bade defiance to the oncoming host. With the strength of youth and the wisdom of age, with knightly mien and matchless speech, he towered above his peers, and all who saw him then with one accord did hail him 'Chief' and gave our party's banner to his hand. Slowly despair gave way to hope; confidence took the place where timorous fear had been; the broken, shattered columns formed again, and behind him singing came six million five hundred thousand valiant men to that unequal fight.

"Realizing that imperialism, like the fabled Artaeus, was born of earth, and that contended with upon the selfish, worldly plane of greed and gold, it was of giant strength, and if thrown down would rise again refreshed from contact with its mother element, he, like the mighty Hercules, raised it above the sordid sphere from which its strength was drawn and on a plane of lofty patriotism he strangled it.

"With the issues now clearly drawn no doubt remains as to the name of our candidate. On that question we are a reunited democracy.

"Already worthy allies differing from us rather in name than faith have shouted for our gallant leader again, and every state and territory has instructed its delegates to this convention to vote for him. So it only remains for Nebraska to pronounce the name that has been thundered forth from the foot of Bunker hill and echoed back from Sierra's sunset slope, and that reverberates among the pine-clad, snow-capped hills of the north and raises up from the slumbering flower-scented savannahs of the south; and that name is the name of William Jennings Bryan, her best-loved son."

A Big Demonstration.

Then followed a demonstration fully equal in fervor to anything that had preceded yesterday or today when the platform was read. When the enthusiasm had run for nineteen and a half minutes Chairman Richardson began to pound vigorously for order. He was lost beyond all power of hearing for several minutes, and it was not until twenty-seven minutes had elapsed from the instant that Mr. Oldham had mentioned the word "Bryan" that the cheering had subsided and the convention was in order once more.

Several seconding speeches were made and then the vote was taken. As Bryan was declared the unanimous nominee another demonstration began. It lasted for ten minutes. Then the convention adjourned to 10 o'clock Friday to nominate the candidate for vice-president.

The New National Committee.

The following are members of the new national committee: Alabama, H. D. Clayton; Arkansas, James P. Clarke; California, M. F. Tarpey; Colorado, Adair Wilson; Connecticut, Homer S. Cummings; Florida, George P. Raney; Georgia, Clark Howell; Illinois, Thomas Gahan; Iowa, Charles A. Walsh; Indiana, Thomas F. Taggart; Kansas, J. G. Johnson; Kentucky, Urey Woodson; Louisiana, N. C. RUSSIAN CALENDAR.

Making It More Simple Than the Gregorian Reckoning.

It is stated that the Russian government is proposing to effect an alteration in the calendar, the dates in which, since the end of last February, have differed thirteen days from those of western Europe and America, says Notes and Queries. We are, however, told they do not propose to adopt the Gregorian reckoning, but to bring into use a scheme more simple and more accurate, and to invite other nations to accept this. It is then to be presumed that the plan in question is that of dropping a leap year regularly each 128th year; which would keep the calendar right and in accordance with the true length of the tropical year for 80,000 years. Obviously this is far more simple than the Gregorian rule, which is this: Drop a leap year in each year the number of which is divisible by 100, unless it is also divisible by 400. This would keep the calendar right for over 3,000 years; but if it were further modified by dropping a leap year the number of which is divisible by 4,000, it would preserve the year in accordance with its true length for 100,000 years. So that the modified Gregorian rule, with an exception, would be scarcely more accurate than the above simple rule, according to which the next leap year dropped, after the present one, would be 2028. To prove its accuracy, it is only necessary to point out that it implies having, in every period of 128 years, ninety-seven common years of 365 days each, and thirty-one bissextile years of 366 days each. This makes in all 46,751 days in 128 years, or the average length of a year 365.24219 days, which differs only in the fifth decimal place from the true length of a tropical year.

An Armored Train.

The Indret works have just finished the construction of an armored train intended for the French army. Unlike the armored trains in use in the South African war, the new wheeled fortress is composed of wagons cylindrical in shape, instead of the quadrangular form used in the English army. The separate cars are so constructed that they may be "telescoped" one into the other, if required, in such a way that the train may, at a moment's notice, either lessen or prolong its length, according to the resistance manifested by the enemy. The locomotive is also of cylinder shape, and the forward portion of it is encased in a massive steel cuirass. The rear of the train is protected by a similar armor device. The new train is about 160 feet long. Its maximum speed is fifty miles an hour. Seen in movement from a distance this new engine of war resembles a monster serpent gliding across the earth by the simple motion of its coils.

Novelties in Scarfpins.

Summer brings the usual new designs in scarfpins. These little trinkets are almost indispensable to those who have ribbons and scarfs to keep in place. For those who are fond of outdoor sports there are the usual tennis, golf, military and navy pins. Flowers, insects, birds and animals are to be had in plain gold or mounted in jewels or enamel. Flower pins are the daintiest and prettiest and are made in many odd and artistic patterns, for it is expected that they will be more popular this season than any of the other sorts.

PEPSIN SYRUP CO.

Dear Sirs:—For the past 10 years I was troubled with my stomach. About 4 years ago was taken down with rheumatism; was not able to do a day's work for 3 years. All medicine seemed of no benefit to me. A year ago I was advised to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I truly believe I would have died but for this medicine. My rheumatism is entirely gone and my stomach is in good condition. It has saved my life and I cannot recommend it too highly. Yours respectfully, Biliousness is a condition characterized by a disturbance of the digestive organs. The stomach is debilitated, the liver torpid, the bowels constipated. There is a loathing of food, pains in the bowels, dizziness, coated tongue and vomiting, first of the undigested or partly digested food and then of bile. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets allay the disturbances of the stomach and create a healthy appetite. They also tone up the liver to a healthy action and regulate the bowels. Try them and you are certain to be much pleased with the result. For sale by all druggists, Barrington; A. S. Olms, Palatine.

A Testimonial from Old England.
"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale by all druggists, Barrington; A. S. Chautauqua Letter.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 3, 1900.
 The second week of Chautauqua shows a considerably increased attendance. People are constantly arriving. The first excursions arrive this week, and it is expected that they will bring large numbers.
 Tomorrow, Independence Day, will be observed by a display of fire works at the lake front. Aside from this program will not specially recognize the day. There is a peculiar fitness, however, in Prof. Taylor's lecture which is entitled "Jeffersonianism and What It Stands For in American History."
 Monday morning at Chautauqua Dr. George C. Workman conducted the devotional hour. He addressed the audience on Faith, this being the first of a series of lectures on the "Essentials of Christianity."
 Mrs. Conover's lecture on Moliere, concerned the morale of the comedies. After discussing briefly the question of art for art's sake, versus art for doctrine's sake, she showed that Moliere preferred the latter, intentionally violating the commandment laid down by literary men, "Thou shalt not instruct or reform." He regarded the stage as a lay pulpit. For him the object of comedy was to direct men while diverting them. He assailed in satirical pictures the weakness of his countrymen. The effectiveness of his satire resulted from the fact that while men allow themselves to be wicked, they will not allow themselves to be ridiculous. Moliere had no panacea for human ills; he merely tried to rid the French society of foolishness by forcing it to see itself in a mirror. In his comedies no unworthy act in society escapes the whip of scorn.
 By showing the follies of the doctors he helped the world to pass from hypothesis in medicine to observation. He gave an important development to the French language. He painted true love and marriage, based on mutual affection, an unusual view of the seventeenth century. He was not religious, since he did not come into contact with true Christianity, but he practiced justice and mercy. He has influenced and inspired the English and American drama more than we suspect. In America today we need a Moliere to show the follies of the society butterfly, the club woman, the modern newspaper, the foot ball fiend and the vegetarian.
 Charles H. Bartlett lectured on the Indian in art and literature. The lecturer dwelt first on the fact that the Indian, both in his primitive state and after he knew the white man, has furnished a wide and rich field for the artist and the poet. The real Indian, the true representative of the race, was a noble, lofty being. His ideas were primitive, but grand, like the nature which surrounded him.
 Romanticism in Literature was the subject of Miss Kinkead's lecture. She discussed the chief English and American writers of this school. Coleridge's writings have, above the mere enchantment of the words, a spiritual meaning which can be applied to human life. This is especially true of the Ancient Mariner. Shelly was not so much immoral as amoral. His whole message is beauty; is truth. Beyond this he had no perception. Poe's writings rise no higher than his character. He had a distorted perception of truth, and certainly did not long for truth. This marks his limitations.
 Hawthorne did not save as great natural powers as Poe, in that he is a seeker after righteousness and morality. He was a more healthy spirit.
 But all romanticism, the writing of enchantment, is inferior in greatness to the writing of truth.

A STORY OF THE BOER CAMPAIGN IN NATAL

By H. B. Mackenzie

"Was it anything, dearie?" She uttered an exclamation as she saw Bluebell's white face. "The Boers—they're going to attack us, Bluebell? Is that it?"

"No, no, auntie—not so far as I know," said the girl, with an attempt at a wan smile. "At least, that wasn't what dad wanted. But don't ask me tonight, auntie, I'm tired. Good night." Miss Elizabeth was all of mother she had ever known.

"Good night, God keep you, dearie," the elder woman whispered. Her words remained with Bluebell after she had shut herself into her room.

God keep her! There was One to whom she should turn now for help in this most terrible crisis of her young life. Bluebell threw herself on her knees, burying her face in her hands.

Oh, God, show her what was the right thing to do. Help her, oh, God, for there was no other who could tell her what she must do!

Save her father from the consequences of a deliberate crime by selling herself to this scoundrel! It was a fearful sacrifice! Did God demand it of her? Nay, would she be doing right in making it? Bluebell was a good, sweet, true-hearted girl. She had always shown respect and affection for the most unlovable man who was her father, even when he was least worthy of respect; but she had an unusual amount of common sense for a young girl, and was not likely to be betrayed into any sentimental and maudlin course of action.

As she knelt there a sudden thought came to Bluebell, bringing the warm blood in a palpitating wave over the pallor of her white face, and quickening the throbs of her heart that had been beating so low and despairingly. It was the thought of Adair Rothes.

"If he were only here," Bluebell said to herself, "I think he would help me. He said he was my friend."

Her thoughts wandered from the terrible crisis of the moment to the brief time of happiness in the afternoon when Rothes had first met her. It had not lasted long, that was true; but somehow the memory of Rothes' clasp of her hand, of his long look into her eyes, brought a kind of brief sweetness into Bluebell's heart, which even the pain and sorrow of the present could not quite blot out.

When she rose from her knees her mind was quite made up.

"I shall not marry that man," she said, and her eyes were full of a strange, deep determination. "It would not make dad's sin the less if I did so. It would be a sin on my part to marry a man like that. It would be adding sin to sin. Dad must escape, but it will be in some other way. I will help him to do so. He must escape to England, and auntie and I will carry on the farm here."

This determination brought a certain restfulness to Bluebell. She undressed, got into bed, and presently went to sleep, though it was a sleep disturbed by troubled dreams of Boers attacking New Keldo, setting fire to it, and tying up all its occupants to stakes in order that they might be burnt also.

Adam Leslie had a worse night than his daughter. He was up at daybreak and riding over his farm. As he was returning about 7 o'clock he saw a tall, dark figure approaching him on horseback. He recognized it at once, and his heart sank.

Moore rode quickly up to him. Mr. Leslie could see some excitement on the usually dark, impassive face.

"News, Leslie—great news!" he exclaimed, as he came close to the other man, and flung himself off his horse. "Listen, man; but first"—he dropped his voice—"what of my love affair. How have you succeeded with the little bride-elect?"

Leslie's rubicund face blanched, but he endeavored to put on an air of assurance.

"My dear Moore, she will come round; I am not afraid of that. Of course you must allow for a little reluctance at first; but there isn't the slightest fear but she will give in. But you'll give us a day or two more of grace, will you not?"

His tone of abject entreaty told more than his words did to the keen ear of Gerald Moore, who turned aside for a moment, and passed his hand over his lips as if to conceal their expression.

"Yes, I will give you a day or two more," he said presently, "for there's some work before you, Mr. Leslie, if, as I think, you feel inclined to tell something which the British general at Ladysmith would give his ears to know. In a few days some of the biggest men on the Boers' side may be made prisoners. Ha! is that not tidings worth hearing? I could give the information myself, but I wish you to have the chance of a little glory, and also of a pecuniary reward. You do not need to sell this information under several hundred pounds."

The eyes of Adam Leslie glistened. Avarice was one of the man's besetting sins. It was the haste to be rich which had landed him in the net of the billionaire Gerald Moore.

He grasped Moore's arm. "And you can give me this information—I? For pity's sake, let me know all, Moore."

The other man bent his head, and for a few minutes spoke in a low but deliberate and distinct voice. Leslie drank in every word. His hatred of the Boers was only equalled by his lust for gold, and the two passions, seeing a way to be satisfied here, rendered his rubicund face agitated and convulsed with emotion.

"You are willing to inform? Then go, and at once!" exclaimed Moore. "Not a moment is to be lost! It is utterly impossible that the information can be carried to Ladysmith in any other way. I solemnly assure you that no one else knows it but myself. You can reach Ladysmith by 9 o'clock. So then, without more ado, go!"

As Adam Leslie, full of the design that was to deliver the very leaders of the Boer army into the hands of the enemy, hurried within his steading, the other man looked after him with a smile.

"So you have worked into my hands, friend Leslie," he muttered. And he rubbed these useful members together as if Leslie were literally between them.

"Now my path will be easy. Yes, my charming Bluebell, you will find Gerald Moore is capable of revenge as well as love!" And he laughed. "And if you will not yield to persuasion, my dear young lady, why, then, we must needs try force!"

CHAPTER V.

Bluebell had come down prepared to give her father her answer, and to make her proposal to him, in the morning; but to her surprise and consternation, she learned that he had gone off on horseback, no one knew whither, not saying when he should return.

"It was Sam who saw him go," said Miss Elizabeth, in a frightened tone, "and he says he went in the direction of Ladysmith; but of course he may be going much farther than that—he may be going by train. Do you know nothing about it, Bluebell?"

Bluebell shook her head. She was more put about even than her aunt by this new move. What could it mean?

"Dear auntie, you're not afraid of the Boers, are you? They have never done us any harm, why should they now? Though they are fighting with Britons, it is with British soldiers armed themselves, not with helpless, unarmed people, especially women."

The day passed, the women going about their usual avocations; but Adam Leslie did not return. It was not till late in the evening that he rode at a hard pace up the avenue and into the steading, right up underneath the stoop or veranda. Bluebell went down to meet him, then turned away with a shudder, for she could see he was deeply flushed and his eyes blazing, while he staggered slightly as he got off his horse.

"Sam!" cried Bluebell to the Zulu servant who had appeared at the sound of the horse's hoofs, "take my father's horse. Father, take my arm," she said, in a low voice.

But he flung her off with an oath. "Away into the house! You are a disobedient creature, and I will have nothing to do with you!" he snarled. He himself staggered into the sitting room, where he lay down on a couch and fell asleep, without even removing his great riding boots.

Bluebell could not speak to him that night. She crept away, bitterly humiliated and distressed; and Miss Elizabeth came in and endeavored to comfort her; but it was such comfort as one who is ignorant of the real nature or depth of a wound can give.

By the morning her father had slept off his drunken fit. Bluebell managed to get a few minutes alone with him after breakfast, during which he was sullen and silent, not exchanging a word with the women.

Bad as Adam Leslie was, he had still a few instincts of a gentleman, and one of these told him that he had been guilty of a base and dishonorable act in selling the information which was to betray the Boer leaders into the hands of an enemy.

"Father, I must speak to you for a minute," Bluebell said, very pale but very determined. "I have been thinking over what you said last night. I cannot do what you wish. It would be a crime to sell myself to a man I loathe and fear. But—but you must escape. This is the time to do it, when all the country is in confusion, and people are leaving every day. You must go down to Durban and get to England. Aunt Elizabeth and I shall stay on here, and we can send you the money we make. The only thing we have to do is to throw Mr. Moore off the scent."

He had been glaring at her with a look that vaguely terrified Bluebell up to this moment. Now he interrupted her in a hoarse, sullen tone.

"You are mad, child! You don't know what you are talking about! I am not going to escape, or to do any such thing, in the meantime. As for you, you will have to make up your mind sooner or later to marry Gerald Moore; but he is not going to insist at once. You will have a week or two in which to accustom yourself to the idea that seems so disagreeable to you."

He turned without another word, and walked out of the room. Bluebell looked after him, with mingled agony and humiliation in her heart.

He had not always been like this. Bluebell could remember her early years of childhood in far-off Scotland, when a sweet-faced, brown-haired woman ruled the house, and Adam Leslie had been as different from what he was now as day is from night.

Then the sweet mother had died, and Leslie had been turned out of the inheritance he had thought would be his, by a cousin, long supposed to be dead, turning up; and, in a sullen, defiant mood, the man had set off for South Africa, taking his sister with him. The passion for making money had entered his heart, which seemed to have no longer any sweet home affection to soften it since his wife died; and he had become harder and more sullen and more immersed in money making until this fearful end had come.

A day or two passed. Gerald Moore seemed to have disappeared, and Bluebell began to breathe more freely. Perhaps, after all, he was not so bad as she had thought; perhaps her evident aversion to the idea of marrying him had offended him, and decided him to act a more merciful part than he had at first intended.

Meantime, too, they had heard no further news of the invading Boers.

One night Bluebell had gone to her own room rather earlier than usual. She had had a headache—an uncommon ailment with her—and, saying to her aunt that she felt sure that there was a thunderstorm coming, she bade her good-night and went to bed; but for a long time she could not sleep.

The night was very hot—an unusual thing at that season, when, though the days are swelteringly warm, the nights are correspondingly cold—and there was the strange stillness in the air which precedes a thunderstorm. Bluebell lay waiting for the first sudden clap of thunder, the first dazzling blaze of lightning, all her nerves unstrung, not by fear, but by the overcharged electricity in the air, and her own throbbing temples.

At last Bluebell's ears, strained to catch any noise, detected a strange throbbing sound; but it seemed to be very far away. It was certainly not the rumbling of thunder. Was it a real sound, or did it exist only in her fancy, in the throbbing tympanum of her ear? Bluebell lay still and listened.

No, it was no fancy! She heard it again, and this time more distinct. It was the sound of horses' hoofs—of many horses' hoofs—Bluebell well knew, though the noise produced was not that of several distinct sounds, but of one galloping along the wagon-path of the veldt.

Bluebell started up in bed, a sudden trembling seizing her. The Boers! Of course it was the Boers! She did not have a doubt on the subject. But in what direction were they going. Ah! they were coming towards New Keldo! She could hear their horses approaching every moment.

Almost mechanically Bluebell threw herself out of bed and dressed herself quickly, then thrust her feet into her slippers. All the house was silent. It was about 1 o'clock in the morning, and every one was in bed. Should she go to wake them? Bluebell hesitated. Perhaps the horsemen would pass right on; they must be going towards Ladysmith. Was it not better that her father should sleep on in ignorance that the hated Boers were so near. If he knew of their proximity, who could tell what bad step his hatred of them might induce him to take?

Bluebell determined to remain where she was and watch. She stood behind the muslin curtains, which alone protected the unshuttered window, watching. Her heart beat fast and unevenly, and nervous little shoots of pain ran through the palms of her hands.

THE WAR WITH THE BOXERS

Severe Battles in the Empire of China.

MANY NATIONS TAKE A HAND.

Wholesale Butcheries at Peking—Boxer Revolt Attains Unmanageable Proportions—Thousands of People Reported Slain by the Blood-Thirsty Society.

Thursday, July 5.

General belief that entire European colony in Peking, numbering nearly 1,000 souls, has been wiped out by the Boxers and soldiers at instigation of Prince Tuan, and that Kwang Su is dead and dowager removed. Secretary Hay notified powers that America will enter into any mutual arrangement to restore law and order in China. United States would not take part in or acquiesce in dismemberment of China. Chinese minister at Washington asked that strong force of Americans be sent to act with allies. Army officers say 20,000 men could be spared from Philippines. Chinese said to have seized Pei-Ho bridge after desperate battle and driven Russians from station outside Tien Tsin.

Friday, July 6.

Reported that soldiers butchered 5,000 Christian Chinese. Refugees describe Peking as an inferno, the streets literally running with blood. They confirm numerous stories of executions and tortures of the isolated foreigners captured by the mob. Powers are said to have arranged compromise by which Japan will furnish 22,000 troops to be commanded by a Russian general and England will command allied fleets. Emperor William offered a reward of $700 for every foreigner in Peking handed over alive to a German magistrate.

Sunday, July 8.

Sunday, July 8.—Tien Tsin is surrounded by a Chinese force estimated at 80,000 to 100,000 men. Russians and Japanese attacked Chinese near Tien Tsin and killed 1,000. Allies are supposed to be half-way to Peking. Minister Conger's last report, dated May 21, showed Boxers were organizing throughout empire and foreigners were murdered without mercy. Conger warned China it would be held to strict account for every treaty infraction. Only England and America have agreed to give Japan a free hand to act in powers' behalf. Others merely permit it to land any number of troops. The news that foreigners in Peking were alive on July 3 is a mistake. The courier left on June 28 and reported massacres were on June 30 or July 1. "I will not rest until China is subdued and all the butcheries are avenged," said the Kaiser to officers about to sail for Taku. Officials are anxious over absence of news from 9th infantry. Typhoons are feared. Three policemen constantly guard residence of Minister Wu at Washington. Sultan sympathizes with China.

Monday, July 9.

Prince Ching, who has 10,000 troops, seized all artillery ammunition in Peking and is opposed to Tuan and the Boxers. He is preventing attacks on legations. The Dowager is said to be alive and working for peace. President McKinley is expected to abandon his vacation after July 12 because of Chinese complications. St. Petersburg papers approve American policy in China and say their interests are identical. Ninth regiment arrived at Taku. Two others will sail at once.

Tuesday, July 10.

Dowager empress is said to have regained control on June 30 and asked viceroys to protect foreigners at any cost. Legation at London declares Tuan entirely responsible for anti-foreign riots. Latest report issued by Chinese officials at Shanghai is that Peking legations were safe on July 9. Emperor is reported to have sent dispatch on June 2 deploring recent occurrences and asking European aid to suppress rebellion. Collector Jackson of San Francisco refused to admit Chinese, declaring war exists. Washington reprimanded him. Text of Hay's note to powers shows America will not grab Chinese territory and will oppose dismemberment. Chinese shelled foreign settlements at Tien Tsin all day long on July 3 with little damage. More troops will leave Manila for Taku this week. Gen. Chaffee will have 3,374. Russia and Germany distrust Japan.

Fly-by-Night won under Simons' colors.

THE WAR IN CHINA.

A MOUNTED SOLDIER OF THE ARMY OF THE EMPIRE.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Adopted by the Kansas City Convention.

THE DECLARATION FOR 16 TO 1

"Imperialism" Cited as the Paramount Issue of the Campaign—Sympathy for the Boers—Demands a Cabinet Office for Labor.

The following is, in part, the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at Kansas City:

"We, the representatives of the Democratic party of the United States, assembled in national convention on the anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, do reaffirm our faith in that immortal proclamation of the inalienable rights of men and our allegiance to the constitution framed in harmony therewith by the fathers of the republic. We hold with the United States Supreme court that the Declaration of Independence is the spirit of our government of which the constitution is the form and letter.

"We assert that no nation can long endure half republic and half empire, and we warn the American people that imperialism abroad will lead quickly and inevitably to despotism at home."

The Porto Rico law is denounced, the Cuban policy of the administration is condemned and independence for the Filipinos is promised.

"We are not opposed to territorial expansion when it takes in desirable territory which can be erected into states in the union and whose people are willing and fit to become American citizens. We favor trade expansion by every peaceful and legitimate means, but we are unalterably opposed to the seizing or purchasing of distant islands to be governed outside the constitution and whose people can never become citizens.

"We are in favor of extending the republic's influence among the nations, but believe that influence should be extended, not by force and violence, but through the persuasive power of a high and honorable example.

"The importance of other questions now pending before the American people is in nowise diminished, and the Democratic party takes no backward step from its position on them, but the burning issue of imperialism growing out of the Spanish war involves the very existence of the republic and the destruction of our free institutions. We regard it as the paramount issue of the campaign.

"The declaration in the Republican platform adopted at the Philadelphia convention, held in June, 1900, that the Republican party 'steadfastly adheres to the policy announced in the Monroe doctrine' is manifestly insincere and deceptive. This profession is contradicted by the avowed policy of that party in opposition to the spirit of the Monroe doctrine to acquire and hold sovereignty over large areas of territory and large numbers of people in the eastern hemisphere. We insist on the strict maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, and in all its integrity, both in letter and in spirit, as necessary to prevent the extension of European authority on this continent and as essential to our supremacy in American affairs. At the same time we declare that no American people shall ever be held by force in unwilling subjection to European authority.

"We oppose militarism. It means conquest abroad and intimidation at home. It means the strong army which has ever been fatal to free institutions. It is what millions of our citizens have fled from in Europe. It will impose upon our peace-loving people a large standing army and unnecessary burden of taxation and a constant menace to their liberties. A small standing army and a well-disciplined state militia are amply sufficient in time of peace. This republic has no place for a vast military service and conscription. When the nation is in danger the volunteer soldier is his country's best defender. The national guard of the United States should ever be cherished in the patriotic hearts of a free people. Such organizations are ever an element of strength and safety. For the first time in our history, and coeval with the Philippine conquest, there has been a wholesale departure from our time-honored and approved system of volunteer organization. We denounce it as un-American, un-democratic and un-republican, and as a subversion of the ancient and fixed principles of a free people."

"After pronouncing trusts to be intolerable and condemning the Dingley law the text of the platform continues: "We reaffirm and endorse the principles of the national Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system, made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bi-metallic price level, and as part of such system the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation."

"We denounce the currency bill enacted at the last session of Congress as a step forward in the Republican policy which aims to discredit the sovereign right of the national government to issue all money, whether coin of paper, and to bestow upon national banks the power to issue and control the volume of paper money for their own benefit. A permanent national bank currency, secured by government bonds, must have a permanent debt to rest upon, and if the bank currency is to increase with population and business, the debt must also increase. The republican currency scheme is therefore a scheme for fastening upon the taxpayers a perpetual and growing debt for the benefit of the banks. We are opposed to this private corporation paper circulated as money, but without legal tender qualities, and demand the retirement of the national bank notes as fast as government paper or silver certificates can be substituted for them."

"We favor an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and we favor direct legislation wherever practicable.

Arbitration is urged as the means for settling industrial disturbances, and a department of labor, with a seat in the cabinet, is advocated.

Liberal pensions are promised to soldiers. The construction of the Nicaraguan canal by the United States is demanded, and the Hay-Pauncefote treaty denounced.

Statehood is held out for New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma.

Sympathy is expressed for the Boers in their struggle for liberty and independence, and the reduction and repeal of present war taxes are demanded.

The Four plank is as follows: Jefferson said: "Peace, commerce and friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none." We approve this wholesome doctrine and earnestly protest against the republican departure which has involved us in so-called politics, including the diplomacy of Europe and the intrigue and sand-grabbing of Asia, and we especially condemn the ill-concealed republican alliance with England, which must mean discrimination against other friendly nations and which has already stifled the nation's voice while liberty is being strangled in Africa.

MINAS GERAES.

A Populous Brazilian State with an Equable Climate.

Minas Geraes is the most populous state in Brazil. It has 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 inhabitants, and its area is about 222,000 square miles. On account of its elevation the climate is for the most part cool, temperate and healthy. There is no winter in the ordinary sense of the word. The surface is a great plateau with a general height of 2000 to 4000 feet above the sea. It is varied by an extensive river system and mountain chains, the latter rarely reaching an elevation of more than 6000 feet. In the southern part of the state are several lines of railway, coffee is largely exported, immigration has been considerable, and the commercial conditions resemble those of the neighboring states, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. The northern part, including four-fifths of the area, is without railways and is more isolated, self-supporting and characteristically Brazilian. In this region are found the diamond mines. It contains a large population, and is one of the most prosperous parts of Brazil. In mining Minas is pre-eminent among the states of the republic. It has produced, and still produces, by far the largest proportion of the mineral output of the country.—New York Press.

When Lord Wolseley Goes.

Lord Wolseley's retirement from the position of commander-in-chief in a few months' time is not exciting the amount of public interest which the importance of the position demands. Under the changes introduced into the war office in 1895 the period of office fixed for each holder of the post was five years, and this term expires in the case of Lord Wolseley next September. The appointment of his successor presents a favorable opportunity for the government to place the war office system on a thorough and sounder footing, and there is a widespread impression that this will be done.—Manchester Dispatch.

Rat Feasts on Flies.

The spectacle of a rat feasting on flies may be seen any night in the window of a wholesale liquor establishment in Market street. About 10 o'clock, when the street has grown comparatively quiet, he makes his appearance among the bottles in the window, and the chase begins. There is a large arc light just outside, which supplies the necessary illumination. There are usually lots of flies on the inside of the pane, and the rat has little difficulty in capturing them in his paws.—Philadelphia Record.

If it takes two experienced Isaac Walton's one day to capture a little dodgasted sun fish how long would it take them to catch fish enough to make a meal for a healthy man?
