GREAT STRIKE IS ORDERED

President Shaffer Declares It Means Fight to Bitter End by Workmen-He Says Amalgamated Association Is Not Unprepared for Battle.

THOUSANDS ARE INVOLVED.

President T. J. Shaffer issued orders from Pittsburg Sunday to all the union men employed in the various mills of the American Steel Hoop company to refuse to work Monday morning. In addition President Shaffer and other officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers spent Sunday sending out circular letters to sublodges all over the country notifying the 60,000 members of the strike declared Saturday against the American Sheet Steel company. The members of the board will decide whether all the union men employed by the United States Steel Corporation, which owns the sheet combine, shall be called out at this time. If they come out 200,000 men will be involved. It is estimated that 15,000 men will be subject to the call in the American Steel Hoop mills in connection with the sheet steel strike. President Shaffer says:

"The impression that only the mills of the American Sheet Steel company are affected by the decision of Saturday is a mistake. The workmen of all mills in the American Steel Hoop company are interested, and will be officially notified that the scale has not been signed and that they will quit work. To the well organized mills this notice will not be necessary, as the men will have watched the situation carefully, but what are known as open mills, where union men have been allowed to work side by side with the non-union, is where we have to move. Union men must walk out of these open mills in the hoop trust. The open mills to be notified are one at Hollidaysburg, Pa., three at Pittsburg, and one at Monessen. The organized mills which will close on our call are the upper and lower mills at Youngstown. O.; Pomeroy, O.; Sharon, Pa.; Girard, Pa.; Warren, Pa.; Greenville, Pa. This, I believe, will bring the number of men affected up to 50,000. It is a matter of regret that the issue has been forced, but it now looks as though it will be a fight to the death. The Amalgamated association is not untiger, a knife in each hand. Ho prepared for it. Accomplice in an Insurance Swindle Tells of the Scheme.

In the district court at Fort Scott. Kan., there was filed a confession of Dr. McGuire of Juno, Texas, who was arrested as an accomplice of Dr. Thos. O'Tolle was reported to have died of smallpox. McGuire corroborated this, but says the grave was dug under a large live oak tree and in a thick growth of underbrush, that while he was filling one end of the grave O'Tolle crawled out under the brush in the other end and got away. Then Cox was dismissed and the two men got away together. McGuire implicates Mrs. O'Tolle in the scheme, saying she met O'Tolle at San Antonio and later reported to the lodge that he was dead.

Riot in South Carolina.

The first blood in a strike riot in South Carolina has been spilled in the Southern railway shops in Columbia, S. C. Sunday morning about 125 men with faces blackened or wearing black masks attacked the north fence of the yards, which comprise twenty acres, quickly made a breach and marched in. There were forty-two men in the yards, sleeping in two cars. Twice the guard, Myers, ordered a halt, and when the leaders were within thirty yards fired both barrels of a shotgun into the midst of the mass. At the same moment a pistol ball struck Myers in the temple, but glanced off. He got behind cover and used his revolver. The strikers attacked the car and called on the men within to come out. There was no response, and the rioters opened fire. The car looks as if it had run the gantlet of Boer sharpshooters. There are 200 bul'et holes in it. The occupants escaped by throwing themselves on the floor.

Consul Afraid of "Reds."

As a result of the many threats against his life by anarchists an indefinite leave of absence has been granted Giovanni Branchi, the Italian consul general in New York. It is said that he has gone back to Italy, where he will remain until the Pater-son "reds" are less active in their plottings. For weeks before he left the consul employed a bodyguard and kept his place of residence a secret. His personal mail was received at the Lotus club, but he was seldom seen there. Lunatic Beaten to Death.

Herbert C. Wadman was done to death in the Manhattan State hospital at New York. In effect this was the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury in the case of Herbert C. Wadman, who, insane, was taken to the Manhattan State hospital in February last, and who, on March 5, died. The jury found that the injuries to Wadman were inflicted by Attendant John Foley and that Michael Carroll, a keeper, was accessory. The authorities of Bellevue hospital were exonerated. The autopsy showed that the dead man's ribs were broken and that he was frightfully bruised about the chest and other parts of the body.

Unluckily, colds may be caught in the trolley or on the train, or any place of public assembly. Sad to say, places of worship are great breeding places of colds, because the ventilation is not usually of the best, and the air, being overmuch used by the 'congregation, becomes of low quality, so that the respirer of such air often falls an easy prey to the germs which are responsible for colds. Teeth to Ragtime. There is a genius in Paris-and where in that delectable city can yo go without finding a genius ?- who has discovered the secret of painless dentistry. It is so exceedingly simple. Just project into the victim's brain a few strains of ragtime. That will make him feel as if "nothing is doing." A well-known Paris physician recently laid his scheme before the Academy of Medicine, and that learned body thought so much of it that they Imm diately gave to it their offic sanction. Patients under the influence of the anesthetic nitrogen protoxide in vapor invariably have at first unpleasant sensations, a good deal like nightmare. The dentist who made the discovery that sweet sounds soothe tired teeth came to the conclusion that this preliminary ordeal of bad dreams was caused by the perception of noise aroused by the mind when in a state of partial consciousness. So he thought "Why not try to soothe the patient?" And what could be so soothing as music? But it would be impracticable to have a brass band in each dentist's office, and so the expedient was tried of pouring the music into the cars of the patient from a powerful phonograph. The tubes are placed in the patient's ears, and his assembly of noises is converted into a concord of sweet sounds which lulls him into a state in which he doesn't care if every tooth in his head is drawn. Of course this principle can be extended to surgical operations of all kinds, for the taking of an anesthetic for a dental operation differs only slightly from the reducing to unconsciousness of a patient who is to undergo a major operation. Different temperaments would need different kinds of music. And fective against mosquitoes anywhere. If the physician is wise he will apply the music at the time that the patient is coming out from the ether, or whatever anesthetic is used, for that is when most patients do and say the most foolish things .- New York Press.

YOUNG SARCEY'S DUEL.

The latest thriller in the way of a Paris duel is the encounter between young Sarcey, son of the late dramatic critic, and one of the elder Sarcey's contemporaries, Laurent Tailhade, & book reviewer. Tailhade in reviewing a book said things about the elder Sarcey that his son didn't like, such as calling Sarcey's criticisms drivel, hence the challenge. The insult was wiped out in a wood near Paris. The impetuous young Sarcey fired ahead of time, and alone, and, according to custom, didn't hit his mark. Then Tailhade fired his pistol at the sparrows overhead, and advanced to Sarcey and made this little speech: "Sir." he said. "I felt compelled to accord you the satisfaction which you asked of me. I valued too highly the motive of your challenge not to accept it. But let me tell you, sir, that a duel with me is a delusion.

How Furcessful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm - A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dairy Notes.

Similar facts can be brought out in almost any native herd of cows in this country-that is a herd that has not been selected with the idea of getting only good milk and butter producers. The ordinary herd is picked up here and there without much reference to ancestry. Their capacities are judged of by the amount of milk they give when fresh, and this standard often proves a very unreliable one. The writer has known cows to give extraordinary yields a few weeks after calving, only to dry up in six months. Such cows were not profitable. Yet they were kept because they could at least be sold again to another farmer at the next time of calving. It is frequently said that if lightning would strike half of the cows in any one of our states, the dairy industry would be helped. It is a fact that a good many cows are kept that produce no revenue whatever. The testing of the cows would eliminate this factor, and only good cows would be the order of the day rather than the exception.

In this country the testing associations would soon develop into something more-that is, into associations that would also provide for the application to all of the herds of the tuberculin test. A sentiment would be created in favor of healthy cows, and it would become impossible to dispose of a cow at a sale unless she were positively known to be free from any of the contagious diseases, especially tuberculosis. At the present time the cost of applying tuberculin to a single cow is prohibitive. In the vicinity of Chicago a charge of $15 is made for the application of the test for tuberculosis. That is because the veterinarian must come a number of times to see the animal, often from considerable distance. Were large numbers to be given the treatment at the same time, the time element per cow would shrink to an insignificant amount. The cost per animal need not exceed $2 or $3, and could be made even less if all conditions were favorable. In fact. the only practical way of getting either the milk testing done or the tubercu-at least ten times that of the house in which the birds are kept, and if the yard is still larger it will not be of excessive size. In fact, it is best to have the area of the run so large that it will remain green through the entire growing season . . .

A writer on poultry subjects says: "Put 100, 200 or 300 eggs into an incubator, and after the second day you can notice the odor of what the stock that laid them have had access to. This is no fanciful idea, any careful operator has noticed this. Likewise such a fowl when boiling in the pot gives out the same unmistakable odor, and while the same can not be detected when cooking the egg the flavor can. A fowl with access to the manure pile or pig pen is not fit food for man, nor are the eggs." Doubtless there is more truth in the above than we generally believe. We are in the habit of looking upon our fowls as perfect strainers, thinking that we can feed them anything and that they will eliminate from the food all that is undesirable, even in smell. Scientists are coming to believe that only pure food should be fed our domestic animals at any time.

. . . A successful poultry raiser says: "There is a class of enthusiastic novices who write to know if they can make a living at poultry-keeping. They might as well ask if they can make a living at bridge building. A living can be made at bridge building, by one who knows all about it, but for one, we would soon be in the poor house if we had to depend upon bridge building, as we would not know how to begin on a bridge. And one can make a living at the poultry business-if he knows how. No novice can do it, and we are frank to say so, but it will at least cost the novice less to begin and try to learn at the poultry business than in any other direction." It is rather strange that a man should expect to succeed in a business in which he has had no experience; yet we find new men every year rushing into poultry keeping, certain that they will succeed, though without a moment's experience in poultry-raising.

Deadly Assault with An Az. William Kencke, who tried to stop a quarrel Sunday between Ignatz Ernet and another member of a party of Spring Valley people, who were enjoying themselves at a fish fry, was turned upon by the former, who inflicted three vicious and deadly blows with an ax. One blow buried the ax deep in Kencke's lungs. The first blow struck hit Kencke in the thigh, but Ernet dissatisfied with his aim, struck twice more. George Hoffman of Spring Valley tried to interfere in the struggle and received a severe out in the lower lip. The Ernet brothers escaped after the occurrence, but were arrested and jailed by the Peru police. Feeling ran high among the farmers and there was, and is yet, strong talk of lynching. The Ernet brothers are extremely unpopular. Ignatz Ernet, who struck Kencke, is a butcher by trade. William Nael of La Salle was at the picnic and when Kencke fell after being struck with the ax he attempted to pick up the wounded man. When he stooped someone from behind stabbed him in the back with a pitchfork. The wounds are not regarded as serious.

Desperate Triangular Fight.

A desperate battle occurred between an officer and two young men from Kentucky near Brookport, six miles above Metropolis. The men, James Mason and James Pritchard, were in Metropolis earlier, and seemed bent on mischief. They left town to escape arrest, going to Esquire W. H. Bonifield's, near Brookport, where a dance was being held. They at once proceeded to break up the dance and run things their own way. Officer Grant Rankins was called upon to restore order, but Mason and Pritchard opened fire upon him with their revolvers, which the officers promptly returned. As a result. Officer Rankins lies dying, with five bullets in his body, and Pritchard is shot through the stomach and will die. Mason is shot through the back and shoulders and may, recover. The latter two are in jail in Metropolis, where they are receiving medical aid.

Priest Opposes a New Order.

Right Rev. John Janssen, of Belleville, bishop of the diocese, has issued an edict against the Knights of Columbus, a new Catholic fraternal order. Organizers from Chicago recently came into the diocese and prepared to institute councils. The bishop sent his edict to the churches of the diocese and had it read Sunday. Catholics were forbidden to join the order. In disregard of the order, members of St. Patrick's church of East St. Louis met Sunday night and organized a council and elected officers. Speeches denunciatory of the action of the bishop were delivered. The members of this church were not long ago in rebellion against the bishop on account of the appointment of a priest who was distasteful to them. The bishop says he disapproves of the new order because it will draw members away from the old orders.

Mr. J. H. Monrad recently asserted that at the present time nothing is needed in dairy methods in this country more than the establishment of testing associations, such as have existed for the last six years in Denmark. The Farmers' Review has previously referred to these associations and has urged that the work be taken up here. Mr. Monrad says that the work in Denmark began in 1895, with 13 farmers. They formed the first Danish testing association. The men hired a young agricultural student at about $30 per month to go from herd to herd and make monthly tests. The work on the thirteen farms took his entire time. The cost to each farmer was only nominal. The results soon began to make themselves seen. The poor cows were weeded out and the good cows increased in number. The butter fat began to show a decreasing cost per pound. So successful was this first association that it was followed I am blind in one eye and have lost the use of one arm. Now that I have by another and another. More than this: The work has so grown that the associations have taken steps to combine under the supervision of the government. We agree with Mr. Monrad that this work should be taken up here. A score of farmers could be found in almost any locality devoted largely to dairying who would be willing to form an association to have the testing of their milk carried on systematically. Young men can be found that are capable of doing correct work with the Babcock tester, and men, too, that can be secured at a reasonable price. The cost to each farmer would probably not average more than $2 per month, a very small sum, when the value of the tests is considered. In one of the tests in Denmark, one cow was found making butter fat at a cost of 15 cents per pound and another at a cost of 78 cents per pound. Of course the cow that made butter fat at a cost of 78 cents per pound did not long continue in the

The Billings Gazette reports that shearing in Wyoming is progressing nicely with but few delays. The clips in almost every instance have been a surprise to the flockmasters, in that they are much lighter this year than ever before. The wool is shorter. looser and cleaner than for years. One large clip is said to have fallen short of last year's weight over 25,000 pounds and the same number of sheep were sheared this year as last. Others will fall short from 5,000 to 15,000 pounds. The flockmasters of that section are of the opinion that the clips will be much lighter than last year.

The Rocky Mountain Husbandman savs that while the owners of live stock, horses, cattle and sheep, have been very much frightened about the season, and not without reasons, the indications at this writing are that Montana is to have an exceptionally fine grass crop. The snowless winter and the dry spring; especially in the eastern part of the state, and the fact that a succession of snowless winters and dry seasons were followed by an exceedingly dry summer, created considerable alarm about the beginning of April. But the fact of general rains throughout the entire country, and some rain in the eastern portion of the state, with the opening of Mayr is rather reassuring, and it is scarcely probable now that the grass crop will be short. Had things been as favorable a month ago stock cattle would have ranged at least $2 per head higher than they now do, and much larger purchases of southern cattle would have been made.

Siberian Butter.

Speaking of the development of the Russian dairy industry the Boston Morning Herald says:

"We recently alluded to the new port which Russia is attempting to establish in the far north. This port is to be used for the shipment of agricultural products during the winter months. While the ports on the Baltic are open; however, a very large dairy business is carried on between Russia and Great Britain. Quite recently the Russian government entered into a contract with a commercial house at Riga, a port to the south of St. Petersburg, to establish a direct line of steamers to London. These are to be equipped with special refrigerating plants, and weekly trips will be made from Riga, largely with cargoes of butter. It is planned to collect this butter at the railroad stations on the Siberian rail. way, the train starting at Ob. Special fast freights made up of refrigerator cars will be run, each car car-

Japanese Legend of Emperor Chuai and His Valiant Wife.

Seventeen centuries ago the Japanese Emperor Chuai was playing his lute in the presence of his wife and prime minister. Whether on account of the music or from some other cause, the empress became inspired with a divine afflatus and began to utter the thoughts put into her mind by the deity. "There is a land to the westward," she exclaimed, "and in that land is abundance of treasure, gold and silver, dazzling to look upon. This land I will now bestow upon you."

Mrs. Booth OFFICE, Lageschulte Block. ever uses the word "ex-convict." She considers "ex-prisoner" less offensive and without tendency to brand a man. She says that of more than 1,600 exrisoners whom these homes have shelered she has positive knowledge that 5 per cent are leading honest and useful lives, about 5 per cent have refurned to crime, and the remaining 20 per cent she has lost track of. Those who have had experience in this work say this is a wonderful record, espechilly when it is considered that in the omes no distinction among the prisonrs is made. The most gratifying feature, however, of Mrs. Booth's work in this line is the gradual decrease of the prejudice against the employment of ex-prisoners. In this respect her suc ess has been truly phenomenal, she naving succeeded in placing with one employer alone 35 of these unfortugates.

> The reply of Lord George Hamilton, British secretary for India, to Sir Alred Hickman's criticism of the purchase of American locomotives and other railway material of the Indian roads is a plain, businesslike statement be difficulty in understanding. He says the purchases were made, in the first instance, because English works could not supply the demand, and the American engines have proved so superior in Opp. Grunau's barber shop. actual work that more are called for, Lord Hamilton makes it plain that the only way for British manufacturers to regain their lost supremacy is to study the methods of turning out the best work at the least cost, and that, too, without any considerable loss of time. The emperor pushed away his lute. "If you go up to a high place and look toward the west," said he, "there is no land to be seen, but only the great waters. They are lying spirits who have spoken to you."

Then the good god was filled with anger, and again he moved the empress to prophesy. "You are not fit," she said, "to rule this empire. Go the one road!"

But the prime minister trembled when he heard these words and said to his master: "I am troubled, my heaveny sovereign; by this terrible message. Continue, I pray, to play the august lute."

The Emperor Chuai commenced to play softly. Gradually the sound died away; all was still. They held a light to his face and saw that he was dead. But the empress put herself at the head of her fleet, invaded the land of gold and silver with her warriors and soon made the three kingdoms of Korea tributary to Japan.

was a Miss Elizabeth Burr and closely allied to the family of the man who killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel 97 years ago. One of the results of the fatal meeting was a feud between the Hamilton and Burr families. Yet 34. years after the tragedy another Alexander Hamilton, and a direct lineal descendant of the famous statesman, met Elizabeth Burr, who resided in a neighboring village, fell in love with her and married her in defiance of the wishes of both families. It is said that the marriage wiped out the feud and reunited the Burrs and Hamitons. It was the heroine of this romance who has just passed away, leaving no descendants.

The state of the English mind upon the subject of the Boer war is made evident by the agitation in London over the rumor that negotiations looking to a cessation of hostilities in South Africa are going on between English and Boer leaders. The recent interview of Mrs. Botha, wife of the famous Boer general, with Lord Roberts and Joseph Chamberlain has set rumors flying thick and fast. It is apparent that the British public is willing to catch at almost any straw that will furnish a reason for calling off hostilities. That the war office, people and the members of the cabinet will show an eager interest in a peace messenger from the Transvaal, and that messenger a woman, indicates that English officialdom is also not averse to listen to peace talk.

We were always told that the famous Mason and Dixon line was somewhat imaginary, being intended merely to designate the division line between the north and south. The states of Maryland and Pennsylvania, however, view the matter differently, having recently appropriated the one $5,000 and the other $7,000 to relocate the old boundary posts and stones, many of which, they say, have been stolen by vandal elic hunters. Their places will be taken by new cast iron markers.

It now appears that the Outlanders . and Strictly in South Africa are complaining as bitterly against the Milner-Kitchener administration as they did against that of President Kruger. As the Outlanders, by posing as outraged and persecuted British subjects, were largely responsible for bringing on the Boer war, they are entitled to very little sympathy.

But economy does not necessarily mean to look for the cheapest article on the market. Cheap materials are dear even as a gift. Pure white lead and oil paints has more substitutes and imitations than other material. The chief adulteration of white lead is Barytes, a ground cystalline, without opacity or body, and to buy this stuff is like throwing money away, because if it is desired to use a good paint afterwards, there will be no foundation to which it can ' adhere. Heath & Milligan's paints have been the standard for 47 years and are guaranteed to be the best; that's the reason we handle that brand.

She left them, and hurrying to her own room, strove hard to quiet the storm that raged within her; while they, remaining behind, asked each other in whispers how it had all happencd, and half feared to believe the welcome news was true.

But Lady Caroline's heart smote her when she remembered the look in Mildred's eyes when they had met hers -the great unhappy light that had shone in them, revealing so much that she would gladly have kept untold.

"If you think it necessary," he said, you have it: but I can remember no wrong you ever did me."

They were standing with hands clasped and eyes reading each other's hearts. Denzil drew his breath quick-

"Good-by," he murmured, despairingly, and, turning away, abruptly, passed rapidly out of her sight.

When all the people at King's Abbott met to dine Denzil was among them, and very welcome he found himself. Charlie alone of all the family was absent; but even he had written word to say he would be with them for a day or two in the course of the following week.

"We cught to get up a party and go to the lake tomorrow," suggested Eddie, during a pause in the conversation.

Lyndon, who was also dining with them, and who generally agreed with everybody, said he thought it was a "capital plan," and appealed to Miss Trevanion, who sat beside him. She thought she had lost her skates or misplaced them, or something; but Frances Sylverton overruled all such opposition by declaring that she had severroom, only to find the poor child pac- al pairs to lend, and that a day on the Mabel, seeing Denzil looking slightly dejected, with her usual sweetness had entreated him in the prettiest manner to drive her in the dog cart; and Eddie, who, at this period was hopelessly and finally in love-for about the fifteenth time-with an extremely pretty, but decidedly idiotic little girl, staying with the Deverills, had managed to vanish in some mysterious way, in company with others, similarly heart-"I think you do," he said, gently; bound; while Mildred, whom nobody seemed to want, and with whom none does not wear its old expression; and of the opposite sex in these days atjust now, as I was passing by the vil- tempted to interfere; fell to Lord Lyndon's lot. When fairly started the skaters made as picturesque a group as any eye could wish to rest on, the girls, in their soft, luxurious furs and brilliant satin petticoats, striking out oddly on the glassy surface of the lake. Frances and Mildred were accomplished skaters, Mabel was not quite so good: still the latter could hold her own and certainly beside the Deverill girls-who were generally clumsy-looked everything that could be desired.

"Hullo!" exclaimed Lyndon, trying to keep his balance, and succeeding with much difficulty. "What is the matter? You have nearly thrown me. Anything wrong, ch?" "Don't you see where you are go-

Mildred had been looking on, and, having witnessed the whole scene, had understood it thoroughly-had seen her future lord and master gliding to his doom, and had half started up to call out or warn him in some way of his danger, when Denzil's figure, flashing before her eyes, showed her that he, too, had recognized Lyndon's peril. and was on his way to tell him of it. As Denzil returned from his mission and cast his eyes upon her, she appeared unconscious of everythilng but the dainty little pair of skates she was in the act of unfastening. He stopped.

"Can I help you?" he asked; and she answered promptly, without lifting her eyes:

"No, thank you. I am quite accustomed to do this sort of thing for myself"-whereupon she drew off the skates, in confirmation of her words, and Denzil went on to Mabel.

An hour crept by, and then Lady Caroline, feeling that she had suffered enough for her friends for that one day, declared her intention of returning without further delay, and forthwith departed, carrying with her Mabel, who was anxious to reach home before the post-hour arrived.

The eldest Miss Deverill was afflicted with . nervousness, and, having been driven to the lake by "Sonny" Summerton-who was in a bad temper, and knew as much about driving as the "man in the moon"-had endured such agonies on the journey as determined her, whatever came of it, to drive back in different company. So, going up to her cousin, Lord Lyndon, who was an undoubted "whip," she entreated him as follows:

"Promise me," she said, "that you will drive me home."

"My dear Margaret," said Lyndon, 'do not ask me to do that. You know I ve Mildred under my c

DISTINCTION BELONGS TO DR. CHARLES F. RAND.

Who Enlisted at Batavia When Lincoln Called for Troops-His R.markable War Record-Exceptional Honors-Had An Iron Nerve.

In the National cemetery at Arlington there is a burial plot presented by the United States government to Dr. Charles F. Rand of Washington, D. C. The plot is not occupied. There is no reason to suppose that it will be for siany years. But when its owner is haid there for his last rest. the monument which marks his grave will commemorate the distinguished services of the first volunteer to enlist in the civil war, in response to Lincoln's call for 75,000 men, who was also a wearer of the rare and highly prized medal of honor, to be worn only for notable gallantry in action. Dr. Rand's medal of honor is the first that was ever struck off, and the deed that won it was performed before the decoration was in existence.

First to Enlist.

The opening chapter in one of the most remarkable military careers on record in this country, was on April 15, 1861, when young Rand, then an 18-year-old clerk, attended a meeting in the old Eagle tavern, at Batavia, N.Y. There had been a heated discussion over the probabilities of war. in the middle of which a man came rushing in waving a telegram over his head. "The president has called for 75,-000 men to go forward and fight," he shouted.

Henry I. Glowacki, who was pre-erless. Instead they ordered him to report to the hospital for treatment. He respectfully declined to go. He then appealed to the colonel and the general in command, but in vain. There was now but one chance left him. He would appeal to the commander-in-chief of the armies-the President of the United States. He appealed to Lincoln, but the President also declared that he was unfit for service. He appointed him to a place in the War Department. For many years Dr. Rand practiced his profession in Washington, but a few years ago retired.

WOMEN SUICIDES.

Inherent Pride Causes Them to Dress Up for the Deed.

"If I should ever be called upon to furnish indisputable proof of the inherent pride of woman." said a police sorgeant, "I would point at once to her invariable rule of dressing up in her best clothes when she goes out to commit suicide. In my experience on the force I have had occasion to handle a good many suicides and afterward investigate their personal affairs. and in every instance I have found that the poor unfortunates prepared themselves for death by donning their best bib and tucker. The majority of the printed reports of suicides say that the clothes of the dead woman were 'good' or 'well made' or 'elegant.' If the woman contemplating suicide owns a silk waist she wears it. Her broadcloth skirt and silk petticoat naturally go with this garment and she selects her best shoes. I have looked up the history of many of these respectably clad suicides and have found that they owned but one gown with which they could make a decent appearance on the street, and that that one good dress was chosen, without exception, as the appropriate garb in which to make the exit from this world's stage. It makes no difference what manner of death is chosen, the costume is carefully selected. Let a woman sleep her life away under the influence of drugs or burn her soul out with acids or sink into the slime of the river, she clothes herself in her most becoming garments and seeks the end with apparent tranquility. Her instinct of gentility and elegance in clothes is with her to the last, and even in the face of death she shrinks from a public appearance in unbecoming raiment."

THE GRAND MEDICINE MAN.

Elaborate Ritual of the Ojibways Covering Several Days.

The ceremony of the Grand Medicine is an elaborate ritual, covering several days, the endless number of gods and spirits being called upon to minister to the sick man and to engthen his life. The several degrees of the Grand Medicine teach the use of incantations, of medicines and poisons. and the requirements necessary to constitute a brave. "When a young man seeks admission to the Grand Medicine lodge he first fasts until he sees in his dream some animal (the mink, beaver, otter and fisher being most common), which he hunts and kills. The skin is then ornamented with beads or porcupine quilis, and the spirit of the animal becomes the friend and companion of the man." The medicine men have only a limited knowledge of herbs, but they are expert in dressing wounds, and the art of extracting barbed arrows from the fiesh can be learned from them. In olden timesres. to within the memory of the Gjibways-the medicine man at the funeral ceremony thus addressed the departed: "Dear friend, you will not feel lonely while pursuing your journey toward the setting sun. I have killed for you a Sioux (hated enemy of the Ofibways) and I have scalped him. He will accompany you and provide for you, hunting your food if you need it. Austrians in South America.

Some interesting particulars of Austrian settlements in South America are contained in a report by the commander of the Austrian warship Doneu, which was dispatched last year on a semi-commercial mission to the South American ports. It appears that there is an Austrian colony of about 1,500 persons at Punta Arenas, the most southerly town in the world. It is composed chiefly of Dalmatians, and is the largest foreign element in the place. The greater part of its members are engaged in gold-mining, but it comprises a number of well-to-do merchants, sheep farmers and innkoepers. The colony is prosperous, although most of its members began without any capital. There is a favorable prospect for future immigrants, who would benefit by the experience and assistance of their predecessors. The report goes on to declare that Magellanes and Western Patagonia have a great future. The many islands of the Patagonia archipelago are covered with evergreen forests capable of supplying immense quantities of valuable

"Yes, it is quite true," answered Miss Trevanion, steadily, disdaining to put off the evil hour by equivocation or pretended ignorance.

"Then you are going to marry him after all?" said Denzil.

"I am engaged to be married to Lord Lyndon," returned Miss Trevanion. Then, very abruptly, Denzil asked: "Are you happy?"

"Of course, I am happy," she answered, with a faint accession of color -"why do you ask me such a strange question? Do I look unhappy?"

It is absurd. I will not listen to such folly; Lord Lyndon, I am sure, would not wish me to do so, and-"

"And as he is everything to you now, while I and all the rest of the world count nothing," interrupted Denzil, bitterly-"is that so? Do you expect me to believe that? Because, if you do, I tell you plainly, that I do not believe it, and never shall. He is unsuited to you in every way, having not an idea in common with you. "Well, somebody must take care of Mildred,' he said, with hesitation, "and -where is Mildred?"

TRAVELERS' DOG BAGS.

Theatrical People Carry Pet Dogs from

Place to Place. A novel thing in travelers' equipment is the dog bag. It is produced by a trunk and bag maker who makes a specialty of things for theatrical people, and it is used chiefly by theatrical people for the convenient carrying of pet dogs from place to place in their constant traveling when on the road. The pets carried about the country by theatrical people, mainly women, include dogs of various kinds and sizes. It may be that the dog owners are on the road eight or ten months in a year and constantly moving as they are, some means of getting the dogs about easily is especially desirable. The dog bag is made in the form of what is called in the trade a cabin bag. It has a box-shaped body with vertical sides and ends and with the top sloping. Obviously the cabin bag was the most desirable for this use, because with its straight sides it afforded the most room inside, and so gave the greatest comfort to the dog. Made up as a dog bag one end of the bag is taken out entirely, and in place is set a wire screen. Sometimes both ends for greater ventilation are thus equipped. Over the grating is a leather curtain. which may be opened or closed .- Chicago Journal.

A correspondent sends us a remark. able instance of adaptation of instinct in a trapdoor spider. Says the writer: "A friend of mine noticed near his camp a trapdoor spider run in front of him and pop into its hole, pulling the 'lid' down as it disappeared. The lid seemed so neat and perfect a circle that the man stooped to examine it, and found to his astonishment, that it was a sixpence! There was nothing but silk thread covering the top of the coin. but underneath mud and silk thread were coated on and shaped convex (as usual.) The coin had probably been swept out of the tent with rubbish." Commenting on this, a contributor to Nature says: "As is well known, the doors of trapdoor spiders' burrows are typically made of flattened pellets of earth stuck together with silk or other adhesive material. The unique behavior of the spider in question showed no little discrimination on her part touching the suitability as to size, shape and weight of the object selected to fulfill the purpose for which the sixpence was used."-Sydney Bulletin.

record of first in the great iron industry. She is losing her lead in coal mining. Her cotton manufacturies are sinking to second rank. Many of the industries in which it has been her boast for many years that she has led the world are being threatened. There is, however, one article in the produc-tion of which, both in quality and quantity, this country can safely assert her superiority. Not even Germany has snatched from her first honors in ship-building."

So says an English publication, and if we pass the point of quality, the statement regarding shipbuilding is, like the other statements, undoubtedly true. Britannia rules the wave. To go back to the year 1899, which affords the latest ascertained figures for comparison, we find that in that year the United Kingdom launched 1,245 yessels. This estimate takes no account of war vessels, nor of vessels built for foreign nations er individuals. Of the former there were eight launched dur-ing the year, and of the latter twentysix men-of-war and 215 merchantmen. Of the merchant ships alone the total tonnage was 930,550 tons. These 1,460 vessels would carry cargoes amounting in real burden to about twice their registered tonnage, or, 1,861,100 tons of freight.

The easiest way to see at a glance the position of England in the shipbuilding world is to take a list of the largest vessels—say those of 100 tons and over-and compare the number built in the United Kingdom during the year, and their tonnage, with those of other ship-building countries. In-

"Great Britain has lost her proud | whereas fully one-half of the American ships were intended for service on the great inland lakes, the German ships were mainly meant for competing for the transatlantic trade, and for commerce with Germany's new colonies in Africa or the Pacific.

Germany is Great Britain's most dangerous competitor in the matter of ship-building, and grows more formid-able every year. She and the United States are both threatening Great Britain with cargo ships of equal or even greater size than the largest British ship, though the Celtic of the English White Star line holds the cargo record.

Recent Activity in America.

The recent activity in American shipbuilding is due to the great prosperity of the country and to new legislation. The legislation of forty years ago was disastrous. In 1860 there were on the high seas 2,386,000 tons of American shipping, which dwindled in the next ten years to 1,450,000, and in 1889 was down to 1,000,000 only. But the country started up the ladder again about ten years ago, and has been progressing with giant strides. The returns at present in hand for 1900 show that the 207,000 tons of 1899 have been exceeded by at least 25,000 last year, and it is confidently predicted that within twenty years the United States will beat Great Britain as badly in ship-building as it is already doing in the matter of steel and iron.

On the coast of the United States has lately been laid the keel of two ships which, when completed, will beat all record for size. They are intended for could carry twenty per cent more cargo than an iron one, and by 1890, ninety out of every 100 steam vessels built were constructed of steel. England is the principal builder today of iron and wooden ships. She also makes a few of what are called composite ships, ships built of metal and shielded with wood. The British figures for materials of ships for the year 1899 are as follows: 206 wood, nine composite, eighty iron, 849 steel.

The cost of ship-building has fallen greatly within the last few years. The is due to the great reduction in the cost of producing steel, and to improved machinery. It is estimated that twenty years ago first class tramp steamers cost $70 a ton to build. They can now be built for $50. For sailing ships the cost is $25 a ton as compared with $35 a ton twenty years ago. High speed steamers are far more expensive, a typical twin-screw steamer cannot be built for less than $200 a ton, it is said.

It is interesting to see where the glant steps of modern ship-building are leading us. In the last third of a century ships have increased five times in size and have doubled their speed. If this goes on the ocean greyhound of 1923 will be of 65,000 tons burden. 1,100 feet long, 120 feet beam, 75 feet depth, and travel at forty-five miles an heur.

PHOTOGRAPHING JEWELRY.

As a Precaution Against Theft it Works Well.

Photographing jewelry as a means of its protection is likely to become popular now that the picture of a valnable diamond brooch led to its recog-nition and recovery. But it is doubtful if there is one woman among ten who owns costly jewelry that ever thought of taking this precaution. One photographer who takes many pictures of women of wealth in New York said the other day that few of them ever had themselves photographed wearing their jewelry, since it had become the style to wear less jewelry than formerly. He looked at random over half a ozen portraits made recently, and there was scarcely on any of their orginals jewelry that amounted to more than a few hundred dollars in value. Yet the majority of these women own wels worth thousands of dollars. In England the custom of wearing jewelry in photographs is much more prevalent than it is in New York. Pictures of English women of wealth and posi-tion usually display the entire con-tents of their jewelry boxes, and their tiaras, stomachers and necklaces are frequently conspicuous enough to be erviceable as a means of identification were they stolen, although thieves rarely dare to keep such things intact for even the briefest time.-Philadelphis Times.

It is with some pride that we note that in the number of ships built the United States stands second on the Mat but this feeling of pride is humbled somewhat by the fast that although Germany built only ninety-eight ships their combined tonnage was 20,000 tons greater than that of the 154 launched in our shipyards. IMAGINATION WORKS CURES.

Bogus Experiments Prove Successful in

The value of a lively imagination as a surative agent in disease is now well understeed by doctors, and is frequently used as an aid in effecting a cure. Pure water, for instance, is used by certain physicians in the city hospital at Cincinnati, where there is a young woman who believes she can not sleep without receiving a hypodermie injection of morphine. She gets the injection regularly, but water is substituted for the morphine. The deception works like a charm. and the patient is recovering. Now and then a case presents an amusing phase. One woman possessed of the idea that her heart was growing to her side, refused to improve under the treatment accorded her, and the tors, knowing her condition was due to hysteria, planned to get rid of her. Medicine was prescribed, made up of the most nauseating drugs, and the patient was ordered to take doses hourly. After the first day's treatment the woman said she was well enough to go home, and the doctors congratulated themselves that the expelling decoction had proved so successful. To their surprise, when the woman left the hospital she asked that a bottle of the medicine be given her, as it had furnished more sallef than anything she had taken. Although the doctors say that it is women who respond most readily to this form of treatment, there is now and then a man who permits himself to be deceived to his own advantage. An elderly man for instance, suffered

In 1820, for instance, the world had 20,000 tons of steam vessels and 5,814,000 tons of sailing ships all of which were built of wood. In 1860 the carrying power of steam had risen to 5,840,000 and of sail 14,890,000, but all but two were still of wood. It was not until 1889 that the use of iron just began in ship-building. In that year was built La France, an iron-plated frighte, for the French navy, and in the next year the Warrier, of 6,170 tons, was built in England. During the civil way the Ericeson monitor and other iron elad war vessels were built in the United States. The Monitor was the first iron-elad successfully put to the hasard of a fierce engagement.

Iron Ships Begun.

The Guion line of Transmilantia ships then began building from ships, and by 1879 nearly half the steam vessels built were being constructed of that metal. In 1879 came the first steel vessels. Japs Absorb as Well as Imitate. The Japanese have so long been called "imitators" that the terms sounds trite. But it is one of these trits expressions of a half truth. THE YOUNG GAMBLER.

Was Against Him,

I remember one handsome young felow whom I used to meet occasionally on the staircase who captured my youthful fancy. I met him only at midday, as he did not rise till late, and this fact, with a certain scrupulous elegance and neatness in his dress, ought to have made me suspect that he was a gambler. In my inexperience it only invested him with a certain romantic mystery.

One morning as I was going out to my very early breakfast at a cheap Italian cafe on Long wharf I was surprised to find him also descending the staircase. He was scrupulously dressed even at that early hour, but I was struck by the fact that he was all in black, and his slight figure, buttoned to the throat in a tightly fitting frock coat, gaye, I fancied, a singular melancholy to his pale southern face. Nevertheless he greeted me with more than his usual serene cordiality, and I remembered that he looked up with. a half puzzled, half amused expression at the rosy morning sky as he walked a few steps with me down the deserted street. I could not help saying that I was astonished to see him up so early, and he admitted that it was a break in his usual habits, but added, with a smiling significance I afterward remembered, that it was "an even chance if he did it again."

As we neared the street corner a man in a buggy drove up impatiently. In spite of the driver's evident haste my handsome acquaintance got in leisurely and, lifting his glossy hat to me with a pleasant smile, was driven away. I have a very lasting recollection of his face and figure as the buggy disappeared down the empty street. 1 never saw him again. It was not until a week later that I knew that an hour after he left me that morning he was lying dead in a little hollow behind the Mission Dolores, shot through the heart in a duel for which he had arisen so early .-- Bret Harte's "Under the Redwoods."

"There is no accounting for the construction which some people will put upon certain passages of Scripture," remarked a clergyman. "I remember the story of one clergyman who went to call on a woman whose husband had recently died. He had expected, quite naturally, to find her heartbroken with the burden of her sorrow and was greatly surprised when she greeted him with a very happy smile and ushered him into the parlor.

"'Well-er-sister,' he said at length, 'you have my warmest sympathy.'

" 'Thank you, doctor,' replied the widow casually. I did feel very badlyvery badly indeed. But I came across a verse of Scripture which comforted me very much indeed.'

"'And what was the verse, sister?' inquired the clergyman.
