Mrs. James Edwards died in Wilberton township, near Vandalia, aged 65 to lynch them.

Fayette county, is dead, aged 70 years. The death of Walter von Weise at his home in Greenville, removes one of the most prominent of Illinois Odd Fellows. For six consecutive years Mr. Weise was chairman of the finance committee of the Illinois grand lodge and had just returned from the annual session of the order at Springfield, having been reappointed for another term. Mr. Welse was at the head of Fellows convention at Springfield five stores located respectively at Greenville, Vandalia, Pocahontas, Waverly and Virden. He is survived by two daughters, Misses Elva and Helen von Weise, and three sons, Charles, George T. and Louis, the latter a cadet at the Western Military academy of Upper Alton.

Announcement has been made of the approaching wedding of Frank Leach of Chesterfield and Miss Clara Corbin of Macoupin, two young people of Macoupin county. The wedding will take place toward the middle of December at the bride's home.

Rev. Dudley Eells, retired pastor of the Christian church at Newton, was married Monday to Mrs. Sarah J. Tilton of Payson. The bridegroom is 75 years old and the bride 67. Relatives opposed the union, but the aged lovers were defiant.

Prof. Alfred Bayliss, state superintendent of public instruction, has been notified that he has been appointed a colonel in connection with the military instruction and patriotic education in schools, and is made special aid for the department of Illinois. The object of the organization, which is national, is to stir up patriotism among school children. Colonel Bayliss is directed to appoint an assistant aid in every county in the state to help in the work.

Professor Frank W. Harvey died at Bloomington, aged 35 years. He was founder and director of the Harvey. Academy of Music of Bloomington, to which place he went in 1890 from Chicago, where he was born. After devoting years to the study of the piano in this country he left for Germany to perfect himself under the old masters and won renown in Berlin. Too severe study impaired a naturally delicate constitution and for the last three months he had been compelled to give up his musical duties. On Oct. 26 last he was married to Adelaide Victoria Lloyd of Bloomington, the ceremony being performed while he was propped up in bed. Among the members of the elite set of Springfield who aspire to histrionic fame is Miss Annie J. Routt, known in musical circles all over the state as a contralto of wonderful power and scope. Miss Routt's voice is something phenomenal. Her tones have a melow yet vibrant ring that somehow calls up to one's mind visions of castles, armed retainers, troops of knights, crests, tournaments and moving pennants. In short, she has a voice fitted to render classical music and the ballads of chivalry. Her voice has been likened to that of Mme. Scalcht, the world renowned contralto, who sang in Chicago while Miss Routt was studying there. She sang "Calm as the Night" for Scalchi. Miss Routt comes of old families, many members of whom are musical. Her relatives are some of the leading people of the country, her grandfather, Co'onel John L. Routt, being former governor of Colorado. Her maternal grandfather, J. A. Jones, was for many years clerk of the United States Circuit Court and Miss Routt has always moved in the best society. She studied music in Chicago under Miss Root and Tatadeux, and the past year has been studying in Paris.

A Chicago, Burlington & Quincy stock train broke in two near Walnut and the rear section and caboose ran down grade and collided with a freight engine, killing one passenger, who was burned in the wreck, and injuring nine others. Finding that his appetite for strong drink was uncontrollable, Alexander Woolfolk, a member of one of the most prominent families of Chicago, killed himself at Bloomington by taking chloroform. He entered the service of the Chicago and Alton as fireman a month ago, hoping that the rules of this company against drinking would assist him. His uncle is Granville W. He was captain of Company K, One Hundred and Forty-fourth Illinois Volunteer Infantry in the Civil War and was appointed consul at Vancouver in 1876. He was appointed United States gauger for several terms and was city attorney of Collinsville for twenty ytars.

A. N. Lange, superintendent of the county institutions at Dunning, Cook county, has asked the coroner to investigate the sudden death of Frank Renz, a violently insane patient in the asylum. Mr. Lange said he believed Renz received his injuries struggling with the attendants and Dr. Springer of the coroner's office found six of Renz's ribs broken and his breast badly bruised. "Renz was one of the most violent patients we ever had in the institution," said Superintendent Lange. "He came here Oct. 10 and has been a terror ever since. He fought furiously with the attendants last Saturday when they undressed him to give him a bath, and Tuesday he threw himself across a bench as if he wanted to break his body in two." Mr. Lange says he does not doubt the truth of his assistants' stories about the way in which Renz met his death, but he is determined that this death, following so closely after the investigation of the conduct of two nurses in the women's wards shall be given a thorougr investigation now.

Judge Tuthill made an address at the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago Sunday on the necessity for a home for delinquent boys.

Geo ge Brady, aged 11, of Waukegan, was taken home from Chicago as an incorrigible boy. He threatened to kill his grandmother with an ax.

"I do not think so," replied Lord Chugmough. "If ever there was a conscious and rational dying man, he was. I cannot fathom the meaning of what he said, but he knew; of that I am sure. One thing he did say that was plain enough. Your Arthur Medworth, thinking you were dead, has gone off with another girl in a boat."

Mattazudo saw Namampa first, and promised him much gold if he would get the senorita away without any one knowing it. Namampa first cured her of her fever, and then gave her a drug that stops the heart for a number of hours. They all thought she was dead, and she was buried. That night Namampa returned to the grave and dug her up and took her to his house, where he gave her another drug that brought her to her senses again and brought her up here to escape the rushing waters. You were here and kept the senorita. Namampa saw Mattazudo and told him the senorita was here, but said nothing about you. Mattazudo came here, and you threw him out. You were very strong, senor. Then he came for us. We attacked you; you beat us. But bestare, senor! Mattazudo was not wounded. He has hundreds of men under his command who will do his bidding. He will return with plenty of men. You will be killed, and the senorita will fall into his hands again."

"Is there no way to get her to the castle under her father's protection?" A gesture of dissent from Lola made him look up.

In the meantime Gen. Mattazudo gets together a commando and attempts to rescue Lola from Lord Chugmough. Hearing of this Philip actuated by Gomez hurries to the scene of conflict. There they are surprised look down upon his race. I have heard to see Gen. Philip had a brilliant prospect before him-almost the certainty of a throne. But God in his wisdom ruled otherwise, and Mattazudo was the creature chosen by Him to undo all that Gomez and Don Juan by their executive ability and organizing power had done. As the half-breed, at the head of his cut-throat gang, climbed up Carib Hill, he saw Pedro Francisco, at the head of his men, coming up the slope in another direction.

The Pool of Siloam.

For over ten years the Pool of Siloam has been only a name. Visitors to Palestine who visited this famous spot of late years found that its healing waters had vanished. This was a great blow to the inhabitants, but recently the waters of Siloam have been made to flow once again, and there has been great rejoicing in the holy land. It appears that Jerusalem has been especially short of water of late, and it occurred to some of the inhabitants of Siloam to try to find out whether the spring which used to supply the pool was really dry. "Order of the Midnight Sun", Numbered Several Hundred When Conspiracy Was Discovered by Secret Service-Canadian Government Working on Case.

Seattle, Wash., dispatch: The Times

prints the following from Victoria, B. C.: There was an organized conspiracy to seize Dawson, secure the barracks of the Northwest mounted police with their arms and ammunition, loot the banks and pillage the property of the rich northern gold fields. These facts are confirmed. James Seeley, formerly of this city, is now head of the secret service of the Northwest mounted police. He is in this city and says that not only was there a conspiracy to loot Dawson, but the scheme hatched by the conspirators was a very feasible one. Had its existence not been discovered by the secret service of the Yukon and nipped in the bud he declares the conspirators could have accomplished their purpose, and after taking Dawson could have held that place and the Yukon for six weeks or two months. The conspiracy was born at Dawson and had a branch at Skagway, but no existence in any other place to the south of Skagway, although efforts were made to secure the assistance of pro-Boer sympathizers in Seattle and other points in the United States. It was at Dawson that the plot was made last summer. Several American Fenians, who had drifted to Dawson, got together and formed an organization which was called the "Order of the Midnight Sun." A number of others were gathered in and the order grew until there were several hundred adherents in September, when the members of the secret service in the Yukon became aware of its existence.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 25.—It has transpired that the mounted police have been tracing up an alleged conspiracy to seize the Yukon territory. The last dispatch which the mounted police department has received on the subject was dated November 4. It was from Superintendent Wood, of Dawson and reads: "Snyder reports he discovered whereabouts in Skagway of papers relating to the conspiracy to seize territory. United States refuses to release unless Snyder makes affidavit as to conspirators. This, of such conspiracy exists."

Snyder is one of the policemen. It is said that the papers have been removed from Skagway. At any rate, they were not found.

Work of the Fifty-seventh Congress. The Fifty-seventh congress has before it many important and some perplexing questions. It promises to be a busy and history making session. Perhaps the question of widest public interest to be taken up is that which relates to the building of the isthmian waterway. The diplomatic obstacles which so long stood in the way have been removed, and early and favorable action is expected. Early in the session there will be submitted to the senate a new canal convention, lately signed by Lord Pauncefote, acting for Great Britain, and Secretary Hay for the United States, which abrogates the old Clayton-Bulwer treaty and concedes the right of the United States to build and control the canal, maintaining it as a neutral waterway, open to all nations with which we are at peace, but permitting us to close it to the ships of a hostile power and to make such fortifications as exigencies may require. As this is all the supporters of a strictly American canal have ever asked there is now no reason to doubt that the senate will promptly ratify the treaty. With this done, the authorization of the digging of the canal ought to speedily follow. In no quarter, except possibly a coterie of transcontinental railroad managers, is there any opposition to the canal scheme, and there is therefore so occasion for congressional delay. The canal commission has decided after thorough investigation upon the Nicaragua route as the one most feasible, and six months hence ought to see work fairly under way on this great national enterprise upon which the American people have set their hearts.

Another public enterprise which is urgently demanded and which will unquestionably be brought up early in the session is the Pacific cable scheme. Already a private corporation has submitted a proposition to the government for the laying and maintenance of such a cable, asking for permission to make landings on United States territory. While the necessity for submarine cable communication between the United States and Hawaii and the Philippines is admitted on all hands, there may be strong differences of opinion on the question of private or government ownership and control.

The Chinese exclusion act, which soon expires by limitation, will be taken up by this congress and probably passed in substantially its present form. Some further legislation is probable in the line of restricting immigration, the assassination of President Mc-Kinley having aroused in the public mind a strong sentiment against the admission of undesirable persons. Legislation looking toward the suppression of anarchy and the better protection of presidents may also be expected.

The question of trade reciprocity will be one to receive especial attention, and tariff revision is more than likely to be injected into the debate, though it is hardly probable that existing tariff schedules will be materially disturbed. The reciprocity treaties which failed of confirmation at the last session and undoubtedly other reciprocal trade agreements will probably be pressed for senatorial approval. In view of the treasury surplus effort will be made to further reduce the war revenue

The shipping bill which was so strongly urged in the last congress, but failed of passage, will be again brought forward, with some changes in the text, and pushed with renewed vigor by its supporters.

The trusts will unquestionably be made the subject of debate if not of legislation, though it is yet too early to predict the nature and scope of such prospective legislation. The industrial commission, which has gathered voluminous data on the subject, will submit recommendations which may lead to congressional action.

With these problems for its solution, together with the usual appropriation bills and routine measures, the Fiftyseventh congress will have its hands

That the dream of Poland free and independent again taking its rightful place among the sovereign nations of the world thas not utterly faded is shown in the fact of the recent convic tion of several Polish students at Posen charged with treasonable participation in a movement to re-establish the kingdom.

It is more than a century since Poland was ruthlessly partitioned between Russia, Austria and Prussia and her national independence drowned in blood and consumed in flames. Yet deep in the Polish heart there has been maintained a spark of hope of its ultimate resurrection. Seventy years ago the Poles made a desperate struggle for the restoration of their nation, but the result was the suppression of the insurrection and the obliteration of even the shadowy form of national life. Thirty years later the Poles made another heroic struggle, keeping up for four years a determined but hopeless struggle for independence against the mighty power of Russia, but at the end Poland lay crushed and helpless at the feet of her grim conqueror.

Since then Poland has seemed hardly able to raise a hand for freedom, though the trials just ended reveal the fact that the hope of a redeemed and regenerated nation still finds lodgment in some patriotic souls. Secret propaganda is at work, particularly among Polish students, and there is a revolutionary fund in Switzerland to which patriotic Poles at home regularly contribute. Time is awaited when the great powers are once more at each other's throat, which, it is hoped, will furnish Poland's opportunity, when the national standard will again be raised. Until there shall be a decided reaction from the prevailing spirit of national concentration, of the stronger powers absorbing the weaker, there is little hope of Polish independence.

Even the Coal Was Whitewashed.

When the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York reached Ports mouth recently after a tour of the world, visiting the colonies over which the duke may one day reign, they found awaiting them a magnificent special train profusely decorated to bear them to London. Even the coal in the tender of the locomotive was whitewashed, partly to help in the decorative effect and partly to prevent the dust from flying back into the coach occupied by the new Prince of Wales and wife and getting into the royal eyes or besmirching the royal features. There is scarcely an end to the lengths to which people will go in displaying their enthusiasm over a popular favorite, particularly if they be loyal subjects of a monarch and are paying tribute to one of the household of the Lord's anointed, but whitewashing the coal would seem to be the limit.

For the Freedom of the Yukon. That was a rather startling story which came down from Skaguay to the effect that there had been discovered buge conspiracy, ramifying various sections of the Yukon country, for the overthrow of the local government of the Northwest Territories of the Dominion of Canada and the establishing of a republic, with Dawson as its cap-

According to the details of the story, arms, ammunition and provisions had been taken over the railroad and cached at strategic points. Miners to the number of 5,000, backed by a fund of $250,000, were said to be organized and awaited the summons to arms, ready to fight for independence from Dominion rule of the goldfields, camps and towns. The plan was to overpower the mounted police, arrest the civil authorities and take the government into their own hands. The rigors of the arctic winter, it is urged, would give the insurgents six months' immunity from attack from Canadian or British troops, and the conspirators hoped for intervention or outside assistance by the time the melting of ice and snow would permit the invasion of their isolated republic.

While the mutterings of discontent over the Dominion administration of the gold country have been loud and frequent and riot and bloodshed have more than once been threatened, it has hardly been thought that the miners would resort to so bold an enterprise as the overthrow of the territorial government to right their wrongs, which every one familiar with the situation there admits are many and grievous. There may be here the seeds of a good deal of trouble, though the establishment of the republic of the Yukon is decidedly chimerical.

The Diaz Doctrine.

As a complement to the Monroe doctrine of the United States the republic of Mexico now proclaims to the Americans, whose representatives are in session in its capital, the "Diaz doctrine," which is thus stated:

The international law of America is founded on peace, which in its turn depends on respect for the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of each and all republics of America.

While this is not essentially a new doctrine, its enunciation at this time and from such a source ought to have a good effect upon certain of the South American states. It ought to be an offset to the Castro doctrine, which means a scheme of territorial aggrandizement through the levying of unavowed war and the stealthy foment. ### HE KILLED THE CASE

FATAL EFFECT OF BROTHER SPEARS MUSICAL TESTIMONY.

After the Jury Heard It They Acquitted the Naughty Children Who Laughed In Church and Disturbed the Religious Assemblage.

A well known lawyer of Lancaster, Mo., related the following legal incident: One of the most original lawyers I ever met in my life was Sam Dysart, who many years ago was a resident of our county. Sam was a born humorist and could have made his fortune in the lecture field. When he lived up our The dedication of the Lake Zurich way, he was engaged on one occasion Evangelical church parsonage will be to defend a lot of boys and girls charged with disturbing a religious asseming at 10 o'clock and afternoon at 2 bly out in the country. "Laughing and read. The case was tried before Squire A. C. Bailey, a good old man who has long since gone to his final reward. Like all cases of the sort, it attracted an immense crowd from the vicinity of the alleged outrage.

T. C. Tadlock prosecuted, and he was instructed by the church people to spare no pains to convict the disturbers, who were very much frightened by being dragged into court. All the defendants were children of good families, and it was their first offense. They candidly admitted they laughed out in church, and the state insisted that by their own mouths they were condemned.

Brother Tice Spears, a righteous man of Puritable type, was the main prosecuting witness. He had conducted the service, and he testified that the peace was sadly listurbed by the unseemly behavior of the "rioters." After he told his story in chief he sat down with clasped hands, waiting for the defendants' attorney to begin on him. He didn't have long to wait. The examination began like this:

"Brother Spears, you led the meetin'

"I did, sir." "You prayed?"

"I did, sir,

"And preached?" "I tried to."

"And sang?"

"I sang." "What did you sing?"

"There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood,' sir.'

Here Mr. Dysart pulled a hymnbook from his pocket and handed it to the witness with the remark: "Please turn to that song, Brother

The witness did so.

"That's what you sang that night?" "It is, sir," "Well, stand up and sing it now, if you please." "You heard what I said, Brother

Spears." "But I can't sing before this sort of erowd."

"Brother Spears," with much apparent indignation, "do I understand that you refuse to furnish legitimate evidence to this jury?" "No, no-but, you see"-

"Your honor," said Mr. Dysart, "I insist that the witness shall sing the song referred to just as he did on the night of alleged disturbance. It is a part of our evidence and very important. The reason for it will be disclos-

There was a long jangle between the lawyers, and the court finally ordered the witness to get up and sing.

"And mind you, Brother Spears," said Dysart seriously, "you must sing it just as you did that night. If you change a note, you will have to go back and do it all over again."

The witness got up and opened the book. There is a wast difference be-tween singing to a congregation in sympathy with you and a crowd of courtroom habitues. Brother Spears was painfully conscious of the fact. You know how these old time hymns are sung in the backwoods settlements? You begin in the basement and work up to the roof and then leap off from the dizzy height and finally finish the line in the basement.

That's the way the witness did. He had a good voice-that is, it was strong. If Gabriel's trumpet ever gets out of whack he could utilize that voice and wake the dead just as readily. It seemed to threaten the window lights. The crowd didn't smile, it just yelled with laughter. The jurymen bent double and almost rolled from their seats. The court bit his corncob pipe harder and looked solemn. It wasn't any use. There were only two straight

When the time for speechmaking came Sam remarked to the jury: "If you gentlemen think you could go to one of Brother Spears' meetings and behave better than you have here, why you may be justified in convicting these boys and girls.

That was all he said, but it gave the jury lots to think about. They brought in a verdict of not guilty, with the request that Brother Spears sing another song. But that gentleman had gone home and court adjourned.—Macon Republican.

The Interoceanic Canal Commission's report is in favor of the Nicaragua route and it will be submitted to Congress before the holiddays. Here is the report in full:

Is the report in full:

The investigations of this commission have shown that the selection of "the most feasible and practicable route" for an isthmian canal must be made between the Nicaragua and Panama locations. Furthermore, the complete problem involves both the sea level plan of canal and that with locks. The Panama route alone is feasible for a sea level canal, although both are entirely practicable and feasible for a canal with locks. The tipme required to complete a sea level canal on the Panama route, probably more than twice that needed to build a canal with locks, excludes it from favorable consideration, aside from other serious features of its construction. It is the conclusion of this commission, therefore, that a plan of canal with locks should be adopted. A comparison of the principal physical features, both natural and artificial, of the two routes, reveals some points of similarity. Both routes cross the continental divide less than ten miles from the Pacific Ocean, the Panama summit being about double the height of that in Nicaragua.

Both Routes Require Costly Dams.

For more than half its length the location of each route on the Atlantic side is governed by the course of a river, the flow from whose drainage basin is the only source of water supply for the proposed canal; and the summit levels, differing about twenty feet in elevation—Panama being the lower—are formed by lakes, natural in the one case and artificial in the other, requiring costly dams and water ways for their regulation and for the impounding of surplus waters to reduce the effect of floods and meet operating demands during low water seasons. The investigations made in connection with the regulations of Lake Nicaragua have demonstrated that the lake affords an inexhaustible water supply for the canal by that route. The initial proposition, on the other hand, for the Panama route is to form Lake Robin. Both Routes Require Costly Dams. lake affords an inexhaustible water supply for the canal by that route. The initial proposition, on the other hand, for the Panama route, is to form Lake Bohio so as to yield a water supply for a traffic of 10,000,000 tons, which can be supplemented when needed by an amount sufficient for more than four times that traffic by means of the Alhajuela reservoir. For all practical purposes this may be considered an unlimited supply for the Panama route. So far as the practical operation of a ship canal is concerned, therefore, the water supply features on both lines are satisfactory. The difficulties disclosed and likely to be encountered in the construction of the dams are less at Conchuda, on the Nicaragua line, than at Bohio, on the Panama route. Both dams, however, are practicable, but the cost of that at Bohio is one-half more than that at Conchuda.

Commission Desires a Perfect Structure. A less expensive dam at Bohlo has been proposed, but through a portion of its length it would be underlaid by a deposit of sand and gravel, pervious to water. The seepage might not prove dangerous, but the security of the canal is directly dependent upon this dam, and the policy of the commission has been to select the more perfect structure, even at a somewhat greater cost. The waterways at both locations present no serious difficulties. The advantages in the design and construction of the dams are ways at both locations present no serrous difficulties. The advantages in the design and construction of the dams are in favor of the Nicaragua route. The system of regulation at Lake Bohio consists of the discharge of water over the crest of a weir, as the lake level rises under the influence of floods in the Chargres River. The plan of regulating the level of Lake Nicaragua is less simple, though perfectly practicable. It involves the operation of movable gates at such times and to such extent as the rainfall on the lake basin may require. The experience and judgment of the operator are essential elements to effective regulation of this lake. The regulation of Lake Bohio is automatic. The only means of transportation now found on the Nicaragua route are the narrow gauge Silico Lake Railroad, about six miles in length, and the limited navigation of San Juan River and lake; but the Nicaraguan Government is now building Nicaraguan Government is now building a railroad along the beach from Greytown to Monkey Point, about forty-five miles to the northward, where it proposes to establish a commercial port. By means of a pier in the area protected by the point goods and material for canal purposes can readily be landed and transported by rail to Greytown. Such piers are in constant use on our Pacific coast. This railroad and port would be of great value during the pe-riod of preparation and harbor construc-tion, and should materially shorten that Panama Has Railroad in Operation.

A well equipped railroad is in operation along the entire length of the Panama route, and existing conditions there afford immediate accommodation for a large force of laborers. The Nicaragua route has no natural harbor at either end. At both the Atlantic and Pacific terminal, however, satisfactory harbors may be created by the femoval of material at low prices and by the construction of protective works of well established design. An excellent roadstead, protected by islands, already exists at Panama, and no work need be done there for either harbor construction or maintenance. At Colon, the Atlantic terminus of the Panama route, a serviceable harbor already exists. It has afforded harbor accommodations for many years, but is open to northers, which a few times in each year are liable to damage ships or force them to put to sea. Considerable work must be done there to create a suitable harbor at the entrance of the canal, which can be easily entered and will give complete protection to shipping lying within.

Excavation Work Compared. Panama Has Railroad in Operation.

The completion of the harbors, as planned for both routes, would yield but little advantage to either, but the balance of advantages, including those of maintenance and operation, is probably in favor of the Panama route. The existence of a harbor at each terminus of the Panama route and a line of railroad across the isthmus will make it practicable to commence work there, after the concessions are acquired, as soon as the necessary plant can be collected and put in place and the working force organized. This period of preparation is estimated at one year. In Nicaragua this period is estimated at two years, so as to include also the construction of working harbors and terminal and railroad facilities.

The work of excavation on the Nicaragua route is distributed; it is heaviest near Conchuda, at Tamberoito and in the divide west of the lake. On the Panama route it is largely soncentrated in the Culebra and Emperador cuts, which are Excavation Work Compared.

practically one. As a rule, distributed work affords a greater number of available points of attack, contributing a quicker completion, but in either of these cases such difficulties as may exist can be successfully met with suitable organization and efficient appliances.

Labor Scarce There.

The time required for constructing the Nicaragua Canal will depend largely on the promptness with which the requisite force of laborers can be brought to Nicaragua, housed and organized with the locations of heaviest work along the route. The cut through the divide west of the lake probably will require the longest time of any single feature of construction. It contains 18,000,000 cubic yards of earth and rock execration, or a little less than 10 per cent of the total work of all classes included. With adequate force and plant this commission estimates that it can be completed in four years. This indicates, under reasonable allowance for ordinary delays, if force and plant enough were obtainable, to secure a practically concurrent execution of all portions of work on the route the completion of the entire work might be executed within six years after its being started, exclusive of the two years estimated for the period of preparation. The securing and organizing of the great force of laborers needed, largely foreigners, so as to adjust the execution of the various portions of the work to such a definite program of close aftting parts in a practically unpopulated tropical country involves unusual difficulties and would prolong the time required for completion. The greatest single feature of work on the Panama route is the excavation in the Culebra section, amounting to about 43,000,000 cubic yards of hard clay, much of which is classed as soft rock, nearly 45 per cent of all classes of material to be removed.

Eight Years Required.

Eight Years Required. It is estimated that this cut can be completed in eight years, with allowance for ordinary delays, but exclusive of a two-year period for preparation and for unforeseen delays, and that the remainder of the work can be finished within the same period. The great concentration of work on this route and its less amount will require a smaller force of laborers than on the Nicaragua route. Hence the difficulties and delays involved in securing them will be correspondingly diminished. The total length of the Nicaragua route, from sea to sea, is 183.06 in securing them will be correspondingly diminished. The total length of the Nicaragua route, from sea to sea, is 183.06 miles, while the total length of the Panama route is 49.09 miles. The length in standard canal section, and on the harbors and entrances, is 73.78 miles for the Nicaragua route and 36.41 miles for the Panama route. The length of sailing line in Lake Nicaragua is 70.51 miles, while that in Lake Bohlo is 12.68 miles. That portion of the Nicaragua route in the canalized San Juan is 39.37 miles. The preceding physical features of the two lines measure the magnitude of the work to be done in the construction of waterways along the two routes. The estimated cost of constructing the canal on the Nicaragua route is $45,630,704 more than that of completing the Panama Canal, omitting the cost of acquiring the latter property. This sum measures the difference in the magnitude of the obstacles to be overcome in the actual construction of the two canals and covers all physical considerations, such as the greater or less height of dams, the greater or less depth of cuts, the presence or absence of natural harbors, the presence or absence of a railroad, and the amount of work remaining to be dove. The estimated annual cost of maintaining and operating the Nicaragua Canal is $1.350,000 greater than the corresponding charges for the Panama Canal.

Panama Route Shorter.

Panama Route Shorter. The Panama route would be 134.57 miles The Panama route would be 134.57 miles shorter, from sea to sea, than the Nicaragua route. It would have less summit elevation, fewer locks, and 66.44 miles less curvature. The estimated time for a deep draft vessel to pass through is about twelve hours for Panama and thirty-three hours for Nicaragua. These periods are practically the measure of the relative advantages of the two canals as relative advantages of the two canals as water ways connecting the two oceans, but not entirely, because the risks to vessels and the dangers of delay are vessels and the dangers of delay are greater in a canal than in the open sea. Except for the items of risk and delays the time required to pass through the canals need be taken into account only as an element in the time required by vessels to make their voyage between terminal ports. Compared on this basis, the Nicaragua route is the more advanterminal ports. Compared on this basis, the Nicaragua route is the more advantageous for all transisthmian commerce except that originating or ending on the west coast of South America. For the commerce in which the United States is most interested, that between our Pacific ports and Atlantic ports, European and American, the Nicaraguan route is shorter by one day. The same advantage exists between our Atlantic ports and the Orient. For our gulf ports the advantage of the Nicaragua route is nearly two days. For commerce between North two days. For commerce between North Atlantic ports and the west coast of South America the Panama route is shorter by about two days. Between shorter by about two days. Between gulf ports and the west coast of South America the saving is about one day. The Nicaraguan route would be the more The Nicaraguan route would be the more favorable one for sailing vessels, because of the uncertain winds in the Bay of Panama. This is not, however, a material matter, as sailing ships are rapidly being displaced by steamships. A canal by the Panama route will be simply a means of communication between the two oceans. The route has been a highway of commerce for more than 300 years, and a railroad has been in operation there for nearly fifty years; but ation there for nearly fifty years; but this has affected industrial changes but little, and the natural features of the country through which the route passes are such that no considerable development is likely to occur as a result of the construction and operation of a canal. In addition to its use as a means of com-munication between the two oceans, a canal by the Nicaragua route would bring Nicaragua and a large portion of Costa Rica and other Central American states into close and easy communication with the United States and with Europe. with the United States and with Europe. The intimate business relations that would be established with the people of the United States during the period of construction by the expenditure of vast sums of money in these states, and the use of American products and manufactures would be likely to continue after the completion of the work, to the benefit of our manufacturing, agricultural and other interests. and other interests.

Nicaragua the Healthier.

The Nicaragua route lies in a region of sparse population and not in a pathway of much trade or movement of people. Conditions productive of much sickness do not exist. On the other hand, a considerable population has long existed on the Panama route and it lies on a on the Panama route and it lies on a pathway of comparatively large trade, along which currents of moving people from infected places sometimes converge, thus creating conditions favorable to epidemics. Existing conditions indicate hygienic advantages for the Nicaragua route, although it is probable that no less effective sanitary measures must be taken during construction in the one case than in the other. The cost of constructing a canal by the Nicaragua route and of completing the Panama Canal, without including the cost of acquiring the concessions from the different governments, is estimated as follows:

Panama..... 144,233,358-

For a proper comparison there must be added to the latter the cost of acquir-ing the rights and property of the New Panama Canal Company. This commis-sion has estimated the value of these in the project recommended by it at $40,000,000. In order to exercise the rights necessary for the construction of the canal and for its management after completion the inited States should acquire control of a strip of territory from sea to sea sufficient accomplishment of these purposes. Measures must also be taken to protect the line from unlawful acts of all kinds to insure sanitary centrol and to render police jurisdiction effective. The strip should be not less than five miles wide on each side of the center line of the banal, or ten miles in total width. No creaties now exist with any of the states within whose territory the two routes ile authorizing the United States to occupy its territory for the construction and operation of a canal. When it has been determined to undertake the work and the route has been selected, the consent of Colombia, or of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, for such occupation must be obtained before the inauguration of the enterprise, and one or more contentions must be entered into by the United States to secure the necessary privileges and authority. The republics of Nicaragua and Costa Rica are untrammeled by any existing concessions or treaty obligations, and are free to grant to the United States the rights necessary for the attainment of these ends, and in December, 1900, demonstrated their willingness to have their territory so occupied by the United States by executing protocols by which it was agreed that they would enter into negotiations to settle in detail the plan and agreements necessary to accomplish the construction and provide for the ownership of the proposed canal whenever the President of the United States is authorized by law to acquire the necessary control and authority.

Colombia Not Free. Colombia Not Free.

Colombia Not Free.

The government of Colombia, on the contrary, in whose territory the Panama route lies, has granted concessions which belong to, of are controlled by the New Panama Canal Company, and have many years to roit. These concessions, limited in time and defective in other ways, would not be adequate authority for the purposes of the United States, but while they exist Colombia is not free to treat with this government. If the Panama route is selected these concessions must be removed in order that the republics may enter it to a treaty to enable the United States to acquire the control upon the istimus that will be necessary and to fix the consideration. An agreement with the New Panama Canal Company to surfender or transfer its concessions must include a sale of its canal property and unfinished work, and the commission undertook, soon after its organization, to ascertain upon what terms this could be accomplished. Much correspondence and many conferences followed, but not proposition naming a price was presented until the middle of October, 1901, and after prolonged discussion it was submitted to the commission in a modified form on the 4th of November, to be included in its report to the President. The itemized statements appear in an earlier chapter of the report. The total amount for which the company offers to sell and transfer its canal property to the United States is $109.141,500. This, added to the cost of completing the work, makes the whole cost of a canal by the Panama route $253,374.858, while the cost by the Nicaragua route is $189,-884,062, a difference of $63,510,796 in favor of the Nicaragua route.

States Must Be Compensated.

States Must Be Compensated. In each case there must be added the cost of obtaining the use of the territory to be occupied and such other privileges as may be necessary for the construction and operation of the canal in perpetuity. The compensation that the different states will ask for granting these privileges is now unknown. There are certain physical advantages such as a shorter canal line, a more complete knowledge of the country through which it passes and lower cost of maintenance and operation in favor of the Panama route, but the price fixed by the Panama Canal Company for a sale of its property and franchises is so unreasonable that its acceptance cannot be recomerty and franchises is so unreasonable that its acceptance cannot be recommended by this commission. After considering all the facts developed by the investigations made by the commission, the actual situation as it now stands, and having in view the terms offered by the New Panama Canal Company, this commission is of the opinion that "the most practicable and feasible route" for an isthmian canal to be "under the control, management and ownership of the United States" is that known as the United States' is that known as the Nicaragua route.

THE MINORITY REPORT.

George Morrison of the Canal Commission Fayors Panama Route.

Following is a summary of the minority report of George S. Morrison of the Nicaragua Canal Commission:

While concurring in the excellence of the greater part of the majority report, I was unable to accept the conclusions at which my colleagues have arrived. I accept the location for the Nicaraguan Canal as one to which I can suggest no improvements. I consider that the estimate does not make enough provision for unknown conditions and contingencies.

The cost of the work on both the Nicaragua and the Panama routes has been estimated at the same unit prices and with the addition of the same percentage to cover "Engineering, Police, Sanitation and General Centingencies."

The excavation of the Panama Canal has been opened for nearly its entire length, and the character of the material to be removed can be examined in posi-

On the Nicaragua route the character of material has been determined by borings which, though unusually complete, do not give the definite information that is visible at Panama.

At Panama there are fair harbors at both ends of the canal that are fully adequate for all demands during construction and connected by a railroad in high condition, the country is settled and many of the necessary accommodations for a large working force are there. Before the eastern section of the Nicaragua Canal can be begun a harbor must be created at Greytown, convenient lines of transportation which do not now exist must be provided, as must also the means of housing and caring for a large laboring population, nearly all of which must be imported.

The preliminary engineering has been done at Panama and the general contingencies have been reduced to a minimum. Comparing modified estimates, the cost of completing the Panama Canal would be $67,000,000 less than the cost of building the Nicaragua Canal.

On the Panama route two concessions must be extinguished before such rights can be acquired. They are the contract of 1867, by which the Panama railroad holds its present rights, and the Wyse concessions, under which the French canal companies have been operating.

The settlement with the French must be simply an extinguishment of their rights; the authority to build the canal must be derived from a new treaty with the republic of colombia.

The Panama Joute has advantages over the Nicaragua Joute in cost of construction, in cost of operation and in convenience when done, while its use is less likely to lead to local international complications. If the United States government is to build an isthmian canal the Panama route is the best.

The French states must first be extinguished.

The French rights must first be extinguished, and whatever this government may pay for so h extinguishment will be salvage to the French. If these rights cannot be extinguished the Nicaragua GEORGE S. MORRISON.

SIX ARE KILLID AT DETROIT

Boiler Explosion Brings Death and Injury to Many.

THE BUILDING IS DEMOLISHED

Of Fifty Employes of the Penberthy Company, Nearly All Are Dead or Hurt -Property Loss Is Estimated at $150, 000, Partly Insured.

Detroit teegram: The boiler in the factory of the Penberthy Injector company, Seventh and Abbott streets, exploded at 9:30 a. m. today with such terrific force that it demolished the entire three-story brick building in which it was located. Inside the structure some fifty employes were at work. Nearly all of these were seriously injured, and at least six were killed.

The building containing the boiler was 54 by 100 feet in size. It was separated from a larger structure adjoining by a sixteen-foot alley. The mechanical building was instantly destroyed and a portion of the wall of the other one blown in. No one in the latter building was seriously hurt except one girl-Effie Davis.

The dead whose names have been ascertained so far are:

Samuel Reilly. John Frey, tester.

Fireman, new employe; name unknown.

Richard Ryan.

Two unidentified persons.

The injured: Fred Klein, Lewis Miller, T. D. Crowley, Wm. Begeman, Julius L'Iebetrou, George Raymond, Del Raymond, Michael Denanger, George Reichlin, Max Yurkewicz, Lewis Vzina, Willie Ager, Frank Rowcafski, Herman Goldner, John Hueflern, A. T. Gildley, Anthony Walker, John Schiedille, William Knapp, John Heifflein, Herman Goldner, A. T. Gidday, James Nal, John Vogt, John Dingle, Samuel Kolpe, Bert Dixon, Ignatius Brock, aged man, known at factory as "No. 64," Burt Martin, August Hendraen, Stephen Machigal, Gus Galley, and four men unknown.

The aged engineer of the plant was taken from the ruins at 11:30 and removed to Grace hospital. He was too badly injured to talk. The foreman of the works asserts that several bodies will yet be taken out from near the spot at which the engineer was found. The property loss is estimated at $150,000, partly insured.

Shaffer Denies Rumor.

Pittsburg te egram: President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association emphatically denies the report from Wheeling that the association lodges in that district are to vote on an emergency assessment for the creation of a gigantic strike fund by the time the agreement with the United States Steel Corporation expires, eight months hence. He says that about six or eight weeks ago he authorized the levying of an assessment of 10 per cent, but this was to make up a fund having for its purpose the caring for men who since the great steel strike have been unable to secure employment.

Western Lumber Men Unite.

Seattle, Wash. telegram: It is rumored that a combination of Pacific coast lumber manufacturers is to be formed which will control the entire output of the coast. The cause of the movement is stated to be the fact that freight rates east are so great that western manufacturers are unable to put their products in eastern cities with any degree of profit. The proposed plan of the lumbermen is to make themselves so strong that they can control the product of the coast, sending it east by a fleet of lumber vessels around the Horn.

When Uncle Sam's in want o' cash we're glad ter help him out, 'N we'll stand all the taxes thet are needed, never doubt, But when his pocket-book's well lined an' nary cent he lacks, Et seems ter me his duty's ter repeal thet sugar tax. Take off raw sugar duty an' the price will quickly fall, To everybody's benefit, fer sugar's used by all.
The poor will bless the Government that placed it in thar reach-('n millions of our citizens free sugar now beseech) The dealer 'll be delighted—less expenditure fer him—
More demand 'n bigger profits—which at present are but slim.
An' the farmer 'll be as well paid as he ever yet hes ben— But he'll buy his sugar cheaper—thet's whar he an' I'll cum in.

Now, whar's the sense er reason of the sugar tax to-day, When our treasury's a-bulgin' an' we hev no debts ter pay? The duty on raw sugar's Fifty million every year— And the FEW? Beet-sugar MAKERS! Don't it really seem a sin
Thus ter help an' fill thar coffers? Whar dew you an' I cum in?

The farmer growin' beets hes got a contract price fer years,— Free raw sugar wouldn't hurt him, an' of it he hes no fears. But mebbe, like myself-he's also growing fruit so nice-Ter preserve it—at a profit—he needs sugar—at a price!
The repealing of the duty surely cuts the price in two—Thet'll make a mighty difference, neighbor, both ter me an' you! Let the sugar manyfactrer make such profits as he kin— Ter him it may seem right enuff—but whar dew I cum in?

An' I ain't a-goin' ter swaller all the argyments they shout Thet the farmers' need protection-an' must bar raw sugar out. Common sense is plainly showin' that the people in the land Want raw sugar free in future—an' its freedom will demand. They can't blind me any longer with the foolish yarns they spin,— While they're busy makin' money—whar dew you and I come in?

I'm a-goin' ter keep on hustlin', talkin', pleadin' with my frends,—Ain't no sense in lettin' others gain than selfish privet ends. I'm a-goin' ter write ter-morrer to my Congressman 'nd say Thet he oughter do his best ter kill that tax without delay! Feller-farmers, do your utmost-whether you grow beets or not To repeal the tax on sugar-you can but improve your lot! Cheaper sugar helps your pocket, greater blessings you can win-When we've three-cent granylated—that's whar you an' I come in I

Hurricane, Centering at New York, Races at the Rate of Sixty Miles an Hour, Bringing Death and Destruction

New York, dispatch: The first storm of the winter broke over New York Saturday night, and before the wind went down Sunday and left the rain to soak the wrecks along the path it had caused over $750,000 loss in this vicinity. Four lives were lost. A man, unidentified, perished in the wreck of pier and ships at Long Branch, another was drowned in New York Bay. He was James Feehan, a watchman, who is supposed to have fallen from the schooner James May during the gale, and two others were drowned in Jamaica Bay trying to save a boathouse. Following are the principal losses and the curious incidents of the sudden tempest, which banked up the waters of the bay and rivers so that the waves did as much toward the hurt of property as the wind: At Long Branch one man lost his life. The iron pier at Long Branch is a twisted ruin. The tug Robert Haddon was pounded to pieces against the iron pier and the shore. The ship Flootbek lies on the sands at Monmouth Beach. The crew was saved by the breeches buoy. The United States Hotel at Long Branch is entirely unroofed, and the walls are damaged and the interior of the building is soaked. It will cost $10,000 to fit it up. At City Island yachts were wrecked and hotels damaged to the amount of $100,000. The cup winner, Columbia, was blown from her ways in Hawkins' yard and had a hole stove in her. A steamboat owned by Thomas Burns of the department of highways was dashed on the beach and wrecked. At Hart's Island a bark was blown ashore. Communication with the island is still cut off, so it is not known if the crew escaped. On Echo Island the estate of C. Oliver Iselin was seriously damaged. At Coney Island piers were smashed, bathhouses washed away, board walks torn up and roadways destroyed, involving an aggregate loss of $30,000. At Asbury Park the pavilion is smashed and the board walk torn up and the fishing pier is destroyed. The storm hit the plate-glass window of Howard & Co., jewelers and silversmiths, at 264 Fifth Knoedler & Co., Fifth avenue, were unfortunate. One of their large plate of Pittsburg, Pa., is dead as a result glass show windows was blown in, of a shooting affray during a poker and nearly $9,000 worth of paintings game at his home in North Bridgeand water colors were destroyed. A score of pleasure craft were driven ashore on Staten Island and wrecked. Arbuckle's floating hotel, the bark, J. A. Etamler and the Arbuckle schooner yacht Gitania damaged. Staten Island Transit Railroad trestle wrecked. Coal-laden piers undermined and hundreds of tons of coal lost. The ferry boat Ripple is swamped and stranded on a rocky ledge. The coast survey vessel Manisses driven ashore. The hurricane centered on New York. Racing at sixty miles an hour, the wind from the eastward sent the incoming tide through the Narrows, with the speed of a millrace. A fleet of ocean liners were kept out by the storms. The Cunarder Campania was swept by the tempest for more than

GETTING MUSICAL PITCH.

Solicitous Care is Exercised in Preservng the Standards.

Musical pitch has a curious tendency to creep in. It is said that Bach's music sounds much differently now from what it did when Bach wrote it, because the instruments are now pitched higher. In 1882 it was found that the pitch of high A at the Vienna Court Opera had crept from the pre-scribed 435 double vibrations a second to 443, and in 1885 this number had further increased to 450. Accordingly a musical conference was held, and a resolution was taken to re-establish the old pitch of 435 vibrations per second. Upon this announcement the Reichsanstält, the Imperial Physical and Technical Institute of Germany, set up standard instruments, and has since tested and corrected many hundreds of tuking forks, shortening them if they are too low in pitch, and thinning the arms if they are too high. All the military orchestres of Germany are pitched alike, and the Reichsantalt keeps the tuning forks correct. And this selicitous care of the government in preserving standards is one reason why the world now goes to Germany in musical matters.-Pearson's Magazine.

CANADA'S CAPITAL AROUSED. Never Was There Such Excitement-Physicians' Association Trying to Explain.

Ottawa, Canada, Nov. 25th.-This city is stirred up as never before. Some seven years ago the local papers published an account of a man named George H. Kent of 408 Gilmour street, who was dying of Bright's Disease and who at the very last moment after several of our best physicians had declared he couldn't live twelve hours, was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

People who know how low Mr. Kent was refused to believe that he was cured permanently and the other day in order to clinch the matter the papers published the whole case over again and backed up their story by sworn statements made by Mr. Kent, in which he declares most positively that in 1894 he was given up by the doctors and that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else saved him, and further that since the day that Dodd's Kidney Pills sent him back to work seven years ago, he has not lost a single minute from his work. (He is a printer in the American Bank Note Printing Company.)

Mr. Kent is kept quite busy during his spare hours answering inquiries personally and by letter, but he is so grateful that he counts the time well ent. Indeed he and his wife have shown their gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills in a very striking way by having their little girl-born in 1896christened by the name of "Dodds."

Altogether it is the most sensational case that has ever occurred in the history of medicine in Canada and the perfect substantiation of every detail leaves no room to doubt either the completeness or the permanency of

A THIEVES' MARKET

ONE OF THE PROMINENT PLACES IN THE CITY OF MEXICO.

Way to It and You May There Purchase Stolen Goods by the Single Piece or by the Carload.

If you want to know the time in the City of Mexico; if you need household goods, objects of art or of personal adornment; in fact, if there is anything you desire from a pincushion to a redhot stove-just ask a police-

He will point the way to the thieves' market without any more idea of laws that deal with those who receive stolen goods than if you had asked him the way to the best hotel in the city or to one of the theaters or to the National palace. The official of the law will not hesitate to tell you that it is directly across the street from the National pale ace, east of the Zocalo-the park of the peons-and that if you are timid about the size of the load you wish to take there the gate is large enough to drive the biggest truck through without inconvenience. It is a very simple matter to find the thieves' market.

It is no small establishment, but a city institution, with a court as large as a city block, and it is crowded from morning to night with those who are looking for bargains without the slightest idea of moral wrong in buying stolen goods. Indeed it is stated that now and then persons find property once belonging to them exposed there for sale at prices so reasonable that it would be absurd to go to law about it and lay up against the delightful convenient "manana" the trouble of appearing in

The market is just what its name implies—a thieves' market, where moths do not corrupt, because there is always a stream of purchasers for goods at ridiculous prices. Nothing remains in stock over a few days. Spread out on tables or piled high on the ground can be found samples of almost anything, for the Mexican ratero is not particular what he steals. The thieves do ular what he steals. The thieves do ation for the fall and winter, Address not themselves act as the salesmen, for THE HAWKS NURSERY COMPANY, this would be dishonest even to the Milwaukee, Wis. Mexican mind. They dispose of their plunder either for a lump sum or take a commission from the sellers.

There is no assortment of goods as to class or kind. It is a case of pick and choose. Crockery, cutlery, tinware and cooking utensils are the main staples, for the Mexican is careless, and the thieves of his kind find this sort of plunder easy to get and with a ready market. The proprietor of one of the well known local restaurants admits that nearly all his knives, forks and table linen come from the thieves' market. He makes it a point regularly to visit there to replenish what may have been stolen from his own place.

But it is perhaps in the line of curiosities, books and objects of art that the thieves' market is most interesting. The libraries of the monks, scattered in the war of reform, are represented now and then. The thieves, of course, know nothing of the value of the books.

Recently a folio of Shakespeare, bound in vellum, in splendid condition. notwithstanding the long ago date of its publication, was picked up by a book lover for $1.50 in Mexican silver. Several bibliophiles of the United States have regular agents in the thieves' market, and it pays them.

With Maxmilian and his court many rare works of art came to Mexico. In the rush away from Mexico these were left behind. Within the last month a fan, beyond doubt by Watteau, was bought in the thieves' market for $8. The painting is still bright, the lace exquisite and rare, and the ivory sticks, inlaid with gold, are still intact.

The Last Nickel.

The Philadelphia Record tells of little Sunday school boy who always receives a nickel from his father to place in the collection plate. Last Sunday his father gave him two nickels, saying, "One is for the Lord, and the other is for yourself." As it was too early to start for Sunday school the ing with the two nickels. After awhile he dropped one of them, and it disappeared down a crack. Without a moment's hesitation and still clutching the remaining coin in his clinched fist,

The first shop made dolls after the middle ages were the jointed wooden dolls of the Netherlands. These were known in England and in this country, too, in colonial times as "Flanders babies."
